That would give South a ruff and discard and allow him to get out without losing a diamond trick. At this point we interrupted and said, "Judging by the expression on your face you led the queen of diamonds rather than a small one whereupon South won in dummy and finessed against the jack that he thought you were holding. "Exactly" was the triumphant reply. A Nebraska reader wants to know what we lead from ♠AQJ985432. Our right-hand opponent has opened one notrump and partner has raised him to three. My partner's double of four spades kept me from hiding five clubs where I would have only been set one trick. True, his doubles aren't always sound, but this one would have been if he had known how to defend. Just let him shift to a club at trick two and we would have been sure of a trick in each suit, but he continued hearts. South ruffed and led a spade. My partner won and

Abbott Herring as county attorney? How 'bout that rumor, Earlings... the Ear hears the Republicans want to reward the recently defeated Republican state attorney. But Republican Commission Chairman Dick Williams says the first time he'd ever heard of such a proposal was when The Ear asked him about it. "No one has ever mentioned his (Herring's) name in connection with that except yourself," Williams countered. The highly touted Champagne Ball, at least in the area of culinary delights, ended this year not with a bang—but a whimper, highly-placed Earlings have informed The Ear. Dropping in at a local eatery, Sambo's, The Ear couldn't believe it. But there they were Earlings, ladies and gents decked out in formal gowns and tuxes—tucking into eggs and bacon as if they were starved—as indeed some said they were. Earsdropping on conversations, the Ear gathered these folks were pretty disgruntled. Lured to the Champagne Ball with promises of a continuous buffet to sustain them through an evening of revelry, they had to content, instead, with slim pickings—from less-than-bountiful hors d'oeuvres trays. The Ear remembers Champagne Balls past, with happy people dancing the night away, then gathering around the buffet table well into the wee hours for a hearty and "sobering" breakfast of sausage, eggs, toast, rolls, coffee—before hitting the long road home. But this year, hungry and unhappy, many partygoers trailed off to Sambo's, or Mr. P's, or the Lake Monroe Inn long before the winking hour. The Ear pressed closer to the ground, listening to rumblings about the reason. And the Ear heard that at least three Sanford caterers—renowned for the fine spreads they serve up—weren't even approached. Instead, a big name, out-of-towner was invited to cater the event. And the "big name" demanded reservations be closed a full six days before the ball. Local caterers tell The Ear local reservations could have been taken right up 'till the LAST MINUTE. Besides, seems like good sense, at least to the Ear, to use local caterers. That, Earlings, is called taking care of the hometown boys first. This year's turnout was less encouraging than usual. The Ear suspects the out-of-town, hotshot caterer and his "bigtime" rules could account for the drop in attendance. Earlings, School Supt. Bud Layer got off a zinger at a recent board meeting. Casselberry architects Joe Pavelchak and Phil Daimwood were presenting board members with examples of exterior building graphics. Included were red-white-and-blue patriotic designs, printed slogans or titles and the use of bright colors to highlight particular sections of a building. The architects were suggesting such graphics for the outside of the new school administration building to be located at Mellonville and Celery. Panelist Bud Feather said he was originally in favor of having a message such as "Have you hugged your kid today?" painted on the building. "But then I thought that this was a project that perhaps we should involve the school system in," said Feather. "We've got a lot of talented students in the county and I thought maybe it would be a good idea to have them participate in something like this." "You give 32,000 kids a bucket of paint," said Layer, "and you'll see more graphics than you can believe."

Santa Claus came zooming into Marina Isle, Lake Monroe, by motorboat Saturday morning and was immediately escorted by Sanford fire-truck to the Magnolia Center where he was scheduled to remain until 5 p.m. welcoming visitors...

Kidnapers Grab Aide To King

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Gunmen presumed to be Basque separatists kidnaped one of King Juan Carlos' advisers in a daring, daylight operation in downtown Madrid today only four days before a national reform referendum. Antonio Maria de Oriol Urquijo, 68, president of the Council of State and a member of the king's advisory council, was seized in bold parliamentary elections next year to begin dismantling his law offices at gunpoint by four young men with submachine guns. They disappeared with their victim in the capital's traffic. The king and Premier Adolfo Suarez were informed of the abduction by the victim's son, who watched the kidnaping helplessly. A former justice minister, Oriol arrived at his law office with a police escort, his family said. They said he sometimes worked on weekends, but it was not his normal routine. The kidnaping appeared aimed at bringing on a wave of disruptive protest against the king and Suarez' proposed political reforms as the nation prepared to vote next Wednesday. The political right is asking for rejection of the king's plan to hold parliamentary elections next year to begin dismantling the government structure built up by the late Gen. Francisco Franco. The family said Oriol, a conservative who fought with Franco during the Spanish civil war, was on a death list issued several months ago by ETA, the leftist Basque separatist organization pledged to destroy the government. As president of the State Council, Oriol is responsible for legal advice to the administration. It is largely an honorary office with little real power. But as a member of Juan Carlos' 16-man Council of the Realm, Oriol has an important vote on some of the king's appointments, including the premier. Oriol's son told reporters that four gunmen, wearing dark glasses and carrying submachine guns, carried out the kidnaping within only a few minutes around 10 a.m. Last October Basque guerrillas ambushed and killed another of the king's advisers, Juan Maria de Aralar, and his four police escorts in the northern Spanish city of San Sebastian. Oriol arrived at his office with a police escort. It was not immediately clear where the bodyguard was when the kidnaping occurred. Members of ETA — the initials stand for "Basque Land and Liberty" — assassinated Spanish Premier Luis Carrero Blanco in 1973 in Madrid.

Marine Jet Downs Navy Jet--Why?

CHERRY POINT, N.C. (AP) — Navy and Marine Corps authorities said widely differing accounts of what led to the shooting down of a Navy jet fighter by a Marine F4 Phantom jet firing unarmed, heat-seeking missiles. A Marine Corps spokesman said he didn't know what the Navy's A4 Skyhawk was doing in the training area over the Atlantic Ocean. But an official with Atlantic Fleet headquarters, Norfolk, Va., said the accident occurred during a joint Marine-Navy exercise, and that the Skyhawk was participating in the training. Since the missile was unarmed, the Navy plane did not explode, but crashed into the ocean Friday as a result of the "projectile going through the aircraft," said Capt. James Pendergast of the Cherry Point Marine Air Station public affairs office. Defense Department spokesmen in Washington said Navy and Marine officers were investigating the incident. Pendergast said the Marine plane was manned by Capt. Chuck Allison, pilot, and 1st Lt. T.E. Helman, radar intercept officer, both from the Beaufort, S.C., Marine Air Station. The missile missed the drone and struck the Skyhawk instead, he said. Navy officials at Norfolk said that the Skyhawk was towing the target that the missile was intended to hit. Navy Cmdr. John Barry, commander of U.S. Atlantic Fleet headquarters at Norfolk, told reporters the A4 was on a "routine training mission" when it crashed. The pilot of the Skyhawk, Navy Lt. Jerome L. Petrowski, 30, stationed at Virginia Beach, Va., ejected safely and was picked up by a Marine search and rescue helicopter after being in the Atlantic Ocean about an hour, the Marine Corps said. He was taken to the Naval Hospital

12 TONS OF POT SEIZED

KEY WEST (AP) — An estimated 12 tons of marijuana was seized near here today when police interrupted a group unloading the weed from four boats, officials said. The 400 bales of marijuana would have been worth $5 million if sold at retail, authorities estimated. Sheriff's Deputy Jeff Berman said 13 persons were arrested after law enforcement officers watched the transfer of the marijuana from crawfish boats offshore to a truck on Ramrod Key.

Kissinger Rules Out More Meetings On 'Plan'

LONDON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Friday he will not meet again with Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith to clarify the so-called "Kissinger plan" for a settlement of the racial conflict in Rhodesia.

Smith insists that the plan be the basis for a transition to black rule. The black delegations at the deadlocked Geneva talks on Rhodesia have rejected key items in the plan, including white control of security forces during the transition. In Geneva Friday, an irate Smith said he was drawn into the settlement talks under the "false pretense" that the conference would simply carry out the proposals.

Indian Parties Bickering

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's Congress party and the pro-Moscow Indian Communist party, longtime allies, are openly attacking each other in a squabble that could strain India's traditionally warm ties with the Soviet Union. The Congress attack is spearheaded by Mrs. Gandhi's 30-year-old son, Sanjay, who has accused the Communists of not helping India's poor. The Communists have retaliated with similar name-calling.

The political sparring also is significant because it marks the first resurgence of public political controversy since Mrs. Gandhi proclaimed a national emergency last year.

U.S.-Korea Relations Suffer

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Diplomats and other observers here say relations between the United States and South Korea are bound to continue deteriorating because of reports of Korean influence-buying in the U.S. Congress. Public exchanges between Washington and Seoul this week were unusually antagonistic.

The scandal is contributing to fears here that the United States may decide to withdraw its 42,000 troops from South Korea. President-elect Jimmy Carter has said he favors a phasing out of the U.S. presence in consultation with South Korea and Japan.

Jimmy Home To Work On Cabinet

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Carter is spending the weekend at home, but he plans to keep interviewing prospective Cabinet appointees by telephone.

Carter returned home Friday night after spending four days in Atlanta and Washington meeting with potential administration officials. He made it clear he planned a working weekend here.

"I'm going to work on selection of a Cabinet," the President-elect said, slinging his garment bag into the trunk of his car at the Albany, Ga., airport.

The President-elect interviewed prospective appointees during two days in Atlanta and Washington this week. He may return to Atlanta on Monday for more meetings.

Carter has said he expects to name his entire Cabinet before Christmas, two weeks from today. Only Secretary of State-designate Cyrus R. Vance has been named so far, and the next announcements are anticipated during the coming week.

Carter told a group of senators on Friday that he plans to name one person to head at least two energy agencies in what would be a first move to consolidate federal bureaus dealing with energy problems.

The Washington Post said in today's editions that James R. Schlesinger, fired by President Ford as defense secretary last year, is a top contender for the energy post.

But today's edition of the New York Times said Schlesinger is still in the running for secretary of defense.

Carter, according to aides, has done much of his talent searching by himself on the telephone. Press spokesman Rex Graman said the President-elect planned to spend today talking to people on his own list for Cabinet posts and with other people who know them.

Carter's visit to Washington ended Friday with a series of Pentagon briefings that touched on, among other things, "the responsibility I will have in the initiation of atomic use if it ever becomes necessary," he said.

His remarks on the Pentagon steps after the meetings were nearly drowned out by several demonstrators' chanting, "disarm now."

After briefings in the National Military Command Center, known to outsiders as the "war room," Carter held in his campaign statement that $5 billion to $7 billion could be cut from the defense budget.

"I have no way to know what President Ford's budget requests will be, but I believe that through better organization and efficiencies that can be implemented that amount of savings is possible," Carter said.

While Carter's immediate problem is naming the Cabinet members and other top advisers who will help him run the government, he also is focusing on the economy, one of the first problems that will confront him when he becomes president on Jan. 20.

He met with most of the Democratic members of the House and Senate while staying at Blair House, the government guest quarters across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

He talked about the economy and promised that members of Congress would have access to him, participants in the meetings reported.

Summing up the congressional visits, Carter said his first priority in dealing with economic problems would be unemployment.

Carter repeated that he has not made a final decision about the need for a tax cut. That decision, he said, will depend on the amount of economic stimulation required when the new administration takes office and how much stimulation can be provided by jobs programs.

He said jobs under the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act and public works projects were the areas in which "I'd like to move as rapidly as I can."

Carter said the amount of economic stimulation required could range from $10 billion to $15 billion or higher. A group of business leaders presented him with one proposal to spend $5 billion on job-creating programs and cut taxes by $15 billion.

Trio Of Robbery Suspects Say They Killed 4 People

DELAND (AP) — Three young Georgia men charged in an armed robbery of an Ormond Beach motel say they killed four people during other recent robberies in Florida and Georgia, officials say.

Held in Volusia County Jail at DeLand without bond were Harold Dean Snead, 26; Anthony Jerome Cobb, 18; and Daniel Fowler, 21, all of Ocala, Ga.

They are charged with the Friday morning armed robbery of a motel just north of Ormond Beach in Volusia County.

Truck Hijacked; Driver Freed

WEST PALM BEACH (AP) — A statewide search was on Saturday for a 40-foot tractor-trailer rig, loaded with drugstore merchandise, and for two men who hijacked the truck from a West Palm Beach man, police say.

Driver Tony Kuntz, 47, bound and with a hood over his head, was released unharmed in Miami several hours after the early Friday hijacking, police said.

Police said they could not immediately learn exactly what was in the truck because the delivery invoice was taken with it. They said it had been loaded in Tampa and driven to West Palm Beach late Thursday for Kuntz to drive to Walgreen drugstores in Miami.

Attorney: Free 5,000 Inmates

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — A Miami attorney has filed another suit seeking to have a federal judge force the release of as many as 5,000 prisoners to relieve overcrowding in Florida prisons.

Attorney Tobias Simon filed the motion Friday before U.S. District Judge Charles Scott of Jacksonville.

Simon sought a temporary injunction from Scott to force several state agencies to comply with Scott's original timetable for reducing the inmate population.

That timetable, handed down by Scott in May 1975, would have forced the state to release 5,000 prisoners by December of this year, Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin maintained.

Tucker Airs Career Plans

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — House Speaker Donald Tucker, one of Jimmy Carter's earliest supporters in Florida, says he doesn't want to go to Washington with the Georgian.

Tucker said Friday that he has only one intention: To run for governor in 1978.

"I'm not after a job in the administration and I wouldn't take it if it were offered," Tucker said at a Capitol news conference. He added that such a job had not been offered.

Truck Hits Boy In South Seminole

By AUDI MURPHY
Herald Staff Writer

A 14-year-old Maitland youth was injured in serious condition at Winter Park Memorial Hospital early Saturday after being struck by a truck while walking along Tusawilla Road on Friday afternoon.

Tim Snider, of Maitland, and a friend were walking along the highway south of Dike Road in South Seminole when Snider was struck by a pickup truck driven by Maxwell Acres IV, 16, of 344 Pennsylvania Ave., DeLand, according to the Seminole County Sheriff's Department.

Snider, who suffered severe head and hip injuries, was given first aid at the scene by the Seminole County Fire Department, then was transported to the hospital by Herndon Ambulance, deputies reported.

When the accident occurred, Snider and Mark Hutchinson, 16, reportedly were walking along the stretch of road between Tusawilla School and Dike Road.

No charges had been filed in the accident as of early Saturday.

The incident is under investigation by the Florida Highway Patrol.

Also in South Seminole, two men were arrested on charges of auto burglary and grand larceny late Friday after sheriff's deputies received a call from a man at the Circus Club in Fern Park who said he had seen two men breaking into automobiles.

Jeffrey L. Stewart, 28, told deputies he had witnessed the incidents, then had discovered his own van had been entered and his CB radio stolen, along with a briefcase and an insurance book.

Deputies arrived and spotted a white van described by Stewart as the one used by the alleged burglars, parked at a fast-food restaurant near the night spot.

The occupants of the van — James Alfred Hines, 19, Rt. 7, Conservville, Indiana, and Joe Clinton Burdette, 19, 1707 Thor Avenue, Apopka, were arrested after a search of their van turned up the items missing from Stewart's van.

Committee Naming Sparks Gripes

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — House Speaker Donald Tucker has named 18 standing committees and has already started hearing the complaints he knew were inevitable.

He has not formally named the Select Committee on Organized Crime, but said Friday what Democrats he would name to the panel. He said he was waiting for House Republican Leader Bill James to decide which Republican should be on the panel.

James was generally pleased with the GOP's share of the appointments, but was miffed about the secrecy of the process. He also complained about not being consulted on the GOP appointments.

Two years ago, Tucker let James name the GOP members. This time he only called James on Thursday night to put where Tucker had said last week he would consult James before naming the panels.

"It was strictly a courtesy call to notify me," James said. "I had expected that I would be contacted and be able to provide him at least with my recommendations."

Asked why he did not let James make the appointments this year, Tucker said: "I felt like I could do it."

Kutun, who opposed Tucker's reelection bid as speaker, was named to one important committee he sought but put on two lesser panels, Community Affairs and Veterans Affairs.

"Those are the dumping grounds for some of us who have opposed him and have been speaking out," Kutun said.

The speaker put Rep. Richard Hodges on two important committees: Education and Health and Rehabilitative Services. He had dumped Hodges as chairman of education last month because Hodges opposed Tucker on the appropriations bill last year.

'Confused' Drug Abuser Convicted Of Store Robbery

By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

John Henry Kreimer, 22, of San Francisco, who says he still has hallucinations because of long-term abuse of illegal drugs is in Seminole County Jail during a pre-sentencing investigation.

He was found guilty by a circuit court jury at Sanford of robbery of a Longwood store and receiving a stolen Lincoln Continental sedan used as the getaway car.

Kreimer had filed notice of insanity defense but defense attorney Chris Ray presented no evidence witnesses in the two-day trial.

The jury convicted Kreimer of robbing a 7-Eleven store at SR-64 and Raymond St. on Nov. 15 by using his hand in a jacket pocket to simulate a gun.

Kreimer told sheriff's deputies who chased and stopped him in the auto stolen in Daytona Beach shortly after the robbery that he returned to the robbery scene to get his shoes that he left at the rear of the store.

But sheriff's detective Sgt. Robert Simmons said Kreimer said he was hitchhiking and was picked up by two juveniles who were driving the luxury car.

The juveniles waited in the car during the robbery and Kreimer later bought the boys sandwiches at Altamonte Springs and paid them $30 of the money taken in the robbery for the auto and they hitchhiked out of the area, Simmons said.

Simmons said Kreimer, who claimed he was on a "trip" at the time, got confused and ended up back at the robbery scene at the 14-SR-44 interchange while trying to go to St. Petersburg on the interstate.

Deputies investigating the robbery spotted the Lincoln and gave chase.

Kreimer, his face adorned by a dark, bushy beard, wore a leather-like top hat from the nearby jail to the courtroom during his trial. His knobby arms appeared to have numerous scars and needle marks. He told Circuit Judge Robert McGregor he had been in and out of mental hospitals over the country since age 18 and has previously been convicted of drug abuse. He said he has suicidal tendencies and has previously attempted it.

"I sometimes hallucinate, but right now I'm just real scared," Kreimer told McGregor.

"I've kicked my drug habit since I've been in jail here but I'm still strung out on needles. I just crave for needles in my arms all the time."

Kreimer faces a possible maximum sentence of 20 years in prison on the robbery and stolen property convictions.

In other cases before Judge McGregor:

— James Clarence Horn, 20, of Higgins Terrace, Sanford, pleaded guilty to attempted burglary and was sentenced to two years in prison plus three years probation.

— Anne Rosenblatt Brownstein, 27, of 5500 Howell Branch Road, south Seminole, pleaded guilty to felony possession of controlled substance and was allowed to remain free on her own recognizance until sentencing on Jan. 25.

— Frank L. Freitz, 25, of Altamonte Springs, pleaded guilty to petty larceny. The court withheld adjudication and put him on two years unsupervised probation.

— Terry Clayton, 23, of Mt. Dora, pleaded guilty to robbery and is being held in jail pending sentencing on Jan. 25. Assistant State Atty. Jay Novick dropped a robbery charge against co-defendant Altona Teague, 24, of Lake Monroe Terrace, Sanford, for lack of evidence.

— Timothy Wayne Burke, 22, of 1315 Lake Ave., Sanford, pleaded guilty to burglary and was allowed to remain free on his own recognizance until sentencing on Jan. 25.

— Willie Mae Lock, 25, of Castle Brewer Court, Sanford, pleaded guilty to aggravated assault and is free on bond pending completion of a pre-sentencing investigation.

Judge McGregor ordered a bench warrant issued for the arrest of Michael Plante Cowan, 23, of Lake Moore, after he failed to appear for trial on two counts of burglary, and charges of grand and petty larceny.

— David Scott, 23, of 700 E. Seventh St., Sanford, was put on two years unsupervised probation after pleading guilty to burglary.

40 Cases Face Court

Circuit court trials for defendants in murder, drug, robbery and sexual battery cases are among the 40 cases docketed this week at Sanford before Circuit Judge J. William Woodson.

However, three cases have been continued to January, several other defendants are seeking trial delays, and one case has been dismissed by the court.

One of the defendants seeking a continuance is Raymond Phillips, 29, of Sanford. Phillips is accused of first-degree murder of the Nov. 5 shooting death of Robert W. Tomasson, 36, at his 700 Magnolia Ave. apartment following a party.

DETECTIVE CASE DELAYED

A Casseberry police detective charged with delivery of marijuana allegedly stolen from the department's evidence locker was continued until this week after being set for Oct. 25.

Bobby Gene Bennett, 32, of Chulatoa, has been free on bond since he was arrested Sept. 16. Bennett, with the Casseberry police five years, the last two as a detective, has been suspended from duty with pay pending outcome of court cases charging marijuana delivery, larceny of evidence and tampering with evidence.

According to investigator's reports, Bennett is alleged to have driven an unmarked police car to a Fern Park apartment complex where police say marijuana taken from the evidence locker was delivered to a confidential informant working with vice squad officers.

Court documents also indicate that investigators tape recorded telephone conversations and used electronic bugging devices in the drug probe.

ARMED ROBBERY

Alfred Johnson, 21, and Robert Lee Williams, 23, both of Bradenton, are accused of the armed robbery of a Goldenrod man at a Casseberry apartment complex on April 4.

William A. Gassaway, 25-year-old Winter Park man listed as a south Florida prison escapee, is accused of the armed robbery of an Altamonte Springs gas station.

Edwin Mason Gill, 39, of Louisville, Ky., is accused of robbing a food store near Forest City.

Earl Dreggers, 54, of Sanford, faces trial on two counts of sexual battery upon a 13-year-old boy.

Mark A. Jackson, 19, of Forest City, is accused of attempted sexual battery upon a five-year-old girl.

Egbert Erwin Gurdick, 63, of Sanford, is docketed for trial on charges of lewd assault upon a seven-year-old girl and lewd act in the presence of a child.

Larry Johnson, 18, of 1926 W. 18th St., Sanford, is accused of attempted murder. He was shot in the foot by a policeman Nov. 7 as he allegedly chased a woman from her burglarized apartment with a butcher knife.

Charles Jess Palmer, 38, of Longwood, was docketed for trial on incest and sexual battery charges, but the case has now been continued until the week of Jan. 10.

Also continued until Jan. 10 is the trial of David Franklin Larrimore, 20, of Orlando, accused of making false telephone reports of bombing status-owned property. Sanford police reported Larrimore Nov. 12 in connection with two bomb threats at Seminole Community College. Larrimore is now reportedly hospitalized.

The third case on the docket that has been delayed until Jan. 10 is the trial of Kenneth J. Casper, 40, of 100 Lazy Susan Ct., Casseberry, on charges of burglary and grand larceny.

The court last week dismissed a charge of carrying a concealed firearm against William George McComell, 29, of 34 S. Wekiva Springs Rd., Apopka.

EX-LONGWOOD EMPLOYE UP

Former City of Longwood public works employee Robert Henrick Keen, 34, of 181 N. 13th Ave., Longwood, is docketed for trial on charges of grand and petty larceny of scrap copper and brass owned by the city.

The trial was continued from Nov. 12 because a handwriting expert wasn't available to testify for the prosecution.

Donald Mason Bowman, 17-year-old Bunnell juvenile indicted for trial as an adult on three armed burglary charges, is also scheduled for trial this week before Judge Woodson.

A co-defendant, indicted on the same charges in connection with burglaries at three Casseberry businesses on Sept. 25, pleaded no contest to lesser and included offenses of burglary of structures last week. Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor ordered Gary Vincent Walker, 16, of Orlando, held in jail during a pre-sentencing investigation and pending sentencing on Jan. 25.

Also on this week's docket is the twice-continued trial of Norris Larzoo Latson, 30, of Cherrywood Garden, Fern Park, on charges of felony possession of marijuana, cocaine and heroin. Court records indicate that Latson was arrested when sheriff's vice squad agents conducted a search warrant raid at his residence on Aug. 13.

William D. Carr, 36, of Altamonte Springs, is accused of felony delivery of heroin. Also scheduled to trial on charge of felony delivery of phenylhydrazine is Jeff Dean Long, 18, of 561 Semoran Blvd., Fern Park.

REMAINING CASES

— Barry Allen Heckabee, 35, of Greensboro, N.C., accused of obtaining property by worthless check.

— Michael Bryson, 21, of 3818 Palm Ave., Forest City, accused of the Nov. 30, 1975 grand larceny of an auto.

— Claysya M. Suarez, 31, of Altamonte Springs, is accused of obtaining property by worthless check.

— Ralph Michael Monaco, 22, of Orange City, faces trial for burglary of a conveyance at Deltona in a case transferred from Volusia county in connection with a CB radio theft. NATION IN BRIEF

Indians Vote To Try To Recover Ancestral Land

GAY HEAD, Mass. (AP) — The Wampanoag Indians want their ancestral land back — 243 acres of creek bed, cranberry bog and scenic cliffs taken in the 1870s.

After moving successfully from the court room, where they filed suit for the land, to the town meeting hall, where the tribal council on Thursday won local support for transfer of the land, the tribe now must win over the Massachusetts legislature.

Gay Head residents, about half of whom claim Indian ancestry, voted 50 to 28 to direct town selectmen to take all steps necessary to return the land to the tribe. All three selectmen are Wampanoag descendants.

Retail Sales Show Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers may be in the mood to make this a good Christmas buying season for merchants, according to the government's latest figures on retail sales.

The Commerce Department estimated Friday that retail sales for November totaled $55.6 billion, an increase of 1.7 per cent over October, which in turn was 1.1 per cent higher than September. It was the first two-month increase since February and March, and officials said it may point to a continuing trend for the Christmas season.

Federal officials are saying that a strong buying season will help rejuvenate the economy.

Chrysler Balks At Order

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. says it will challenge a precedent-setting government order to recall 208,000 of its large-engine cars because they emit too much carbon monoxide.

Friday's recall order by the Environmental Protection Agency involved nearly one-fifth of Chrysler's 1975 models.

In the past, EPA has ordered auto recalls to correct manufacturing defects, but the agency said this was its first recall involving "improper design and adjustment procedures."

White House Pushing 'Copter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford Administration is going ahead with development of an Army attack helicopter that could cost $3.6 billion, a move that officials deny is intended to influence President-elect Carter's decision on production of the aircraft.

The Army on Friday awarded a $317.7 million contract to Hughes Helicopters to develop a more powerful tank-attack helicopter. The Army wants to build 536 of the helicopters, the first to be ready for combat in about six years.

NLRB Breaking Labor Laws?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board is being charged by some of its lawyers with the same sort of violations the agency enforces against private employers.

In an unfair labor practices complaint filed with the Labor Department earlier this week and made public Friday, the NLRB Professional Association said board officials improperly imposed a requirement that all new employees pledge to work for the agency for at least three years.

Cache Linked To Extremists

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A munitions cache found in the desert 30 miles east of here and large enough to supply a 200-man military company appears to have been stockpiled by right-wing extremists, authorities say.

The eight tons of machine guns, mortars, grenades, ammunition and an antitank bazooka discovered Friday have been linked to a man who had Nazi and other right-wing literature at his home, authorities said.

Lopez Portillo Urging Unity

The ceremonial glitter of inauguration ceremonies in Mexico City Dec. 1 did not hide the fact that Jose Lopez Portillo was taking office as president with a program of austerity and lowered expectations for the Mexican people.

The eloquence of Mr. Lopez Portillo's inaugural address raises hope that he can provide the kind of leadership that the country needs to work its way out of its current crisis. As always, the question is whether he can unify the Mexican people behind the kind of goals his address has outlined.

Clearly the new president was attempting to show no special sympathy or favor toward one segment of the population or another in his references to the problems now tearing at Mexico's social and economic fabric. He must maintain this even-handed approach if he is to rally the people to an end of the "hate, rancor, fear and impatience" he sees to be dividing the country.

This is a big order, but it is hard to see how anyone but a popular and trusted leader can bridge the gaps which have been widening in Mexico between rich and poor, between land-owner and peasant, between a powerful government and a mistrustful private sector. Significantly, the new president called for more "efficiency and honesty" in government as part of his prescription, an acknowledgment of shortcomings in the outgoing administration.

As a former finance minister, Mr. Lopez Portillo placed the expected emphasis on economic reforms aimed at restoring confidence in the peso, including a plan to resume minting silver coins. His call for a "people's national and democratic alliance for production" shows his perception of the need for Mexico to rely more on the strength and energy of its people, and less on loans from abroad, to solve economic problems. His plan for tax breaks as a reward for increased productivity can inject new incentive into industry, and his banking and credit reforms should increase the flow of needed investment capital.

There was little revolutionary rhetoric in Mr. Lopez Portillo's address. Incitement of class against class is what Mexico now needs to avoid. There were hopeful news from the state of Durango, where 900 persons had invaded private farms and ranches, clamoring for instant land reform. They withdrew on the eve of Mr. Lopez Portillo's inauguration, a sign of openmindedness toward the new administration.

The orientation of Mexico toward the confrontation politics of the Third World under former President Luis Echeverria had contributed to the flight of capital from Mexico. His successor seems determined to start the country down a new path of reconciliation. Indeed, he appealed to his people with a simple and familiar metaphor: "Don't rock the boat."

Mr. Lopez Portillo has taken office with a sensible grasp of where Mexico's strength lies—in her natural resources and her people, rather than in visionary political miracles. If Mexicans calm down and roll up their sleeves, they can surely attain the "good life" he held out as the reward.

Tourist Season

Whenever Congress is out of session, its members capitulate to the lure of faraway places, sustaining their ego sometimes at the expense of private groups or foreign governments, but most often with the American taxpayer footing the bill.

The junkets—euphemistically labeled as briefings, inspection tours, defense missions or exchange visits—cost the government about $5 million this year. A year ago more than 300 senators and representatives made trips overseas.

Some of the travel conceivably is productive. But most is questionable, particularly that of "lame-duck" congressmen, many of whom are even now enjoying the pleasures of exotic lands abroad. And some of the trips are of doubtful legality, pushing the limits of the rules adopted by the House of Representatives itself against accepting such favors from foreign governments.

BERRY'S WORLD

WASHINGTON — Former Vice President Spiro Agnew, convicted of income tax evasion in 1973, has sought a presidential pardon from the man who succeeded him, Gerald Ford.

White House attorneys, perhaps recalling the uproar over their boss's pardon of Richard Nixon, politely but firmly referred Agnew's lawyer to the Justice Department.

Agnew's bid for a pardon came shortly after Oct. 10, when his sentence of three years probation expired. An Agnew attorney called White House counsel Philip Buchen's office.

The conversation "was very low key, very professional," a White House official said. The brief discussion, we have learned, centered on the "receptivity" of the White House to a formal filing for a pardon by Agnew.

The reply was that there have been procedures established by Justice, "the White House official told us. "The request was no more than any good lawyer would do for his client."

Agnew resigned in disgrace on Oct. 10, 1973 when he pleaded no contest to a single count of tax evasion. The plea, equivalent to a conviction, helped Agnew avoid a messy public trial.

At the time, the Justice Department filed a detailed statement which showed that Agnew began accepting payoffs in 1967 when he was governor of Maryland. The payments continued right up to January, 1973, when a federal grand jury began investigating Agnew.

Footnote: We can find no evidence that Agnew took his plea for a pardon to the Justice Department. His lawyer, Judah Best, declined comment.

CAUTIONING CARTER—In finding a labor secretary, Jimmy Carter is caught between the two groups who punched through his election, the blacks and Big Labor.

Around

The Clock
By NORM OSHRIN

There are a lot of disappointed, lonely, frustrated roosters this morning. At least 314 of them.

That's how many cornish hens were cooked, catered and carried by Buck's for the nourishment of the crowd Friday night at SEEDCO's Fifth Annual Friends Banquet.

Starting time was 8 and Horace Orr, president and executive director of the Seminole Employment Economic Development Corp., was nowhere to be found. Some were wondering if the man of the hour was going to miss the festivities.

He did miss the observation of Sanford Mayor Lee P. Moore who, in his welcoming remarks, noted that it was "one hell of a year" for SEEDCO and Orr. Through all those investigations, charges and audits, Moore recalled, Orr "never lost confidence, never lost his sense of humor."

Then, Orr arrived, accompanied by keynote speaker, Rep. Parren Mitchell, Democratic congressman from Baltimore.

The audience at the Sanford Civic Center also heard the Rev. Amos C. Jones, chairman of the SEEDCO board of directors. He also reflected on the year of investigations. The $200,000 spent for those activities, he noted to the applause of his listeners, "could have provided employment for a year for 40 persons."

They heard Rep. Mitchell admittedly "bitter" lash out at the "subtle anti-black, anti-poor climate" developed in Washington over the past eight years by the Nixon and Ford administrations.

Mitchell, something less than the most humble of politicians one can hear or meet, opened by claiming he was "more intelligent than any man who ever occupied the White House." And he went on from there—proudly announcing his election only late Thursday as chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus, made up of 17 black congressmen.

Then he took off on his principal theme. He decried the "lack of economic parity" in the nation for blacks. He belittled the 1.5 per cent unemployment-drop goal President-elect Carter has set.

He pledged to "end racism one way or another." He equated political and economic parity "as one and the same."

Well, Carter should scrub the project. If he really wants to know why this price increase has occurred now, he has only to look into the nearest mirror where, to paraphrase Pogo, he will meet the enemy and discover it is himself.

Throughout his campaign for the presidency and even after he was elected, Carter repeatedly threatened U.S. business with wage and price controls. Typical of his public utterances on this subject were his remarks last May in an interview in Business Week magazine, where he declared:

"I would like steady wage and price controls. My guess is that I would never use them. But I would like them as a lever. I wouldn't hesitate to use them if I had to."

So, in 28 words or less, it doesn't take a seer of Jeeves to see that the reason why the steel industry raised its price now is primarily a political one. Big steel believes Carter was telling the truth when over and over during his campaign he said he'd never lie or mislead us.

Thus, when he threatens the invocation of wage and price controls, this warning is credible. From the steel industry's point of view, it's infinitely preferable to raise prices now, and take the heat, rather than wait until Carter is sworn in and the latest insanity of "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" is being frozen into an economically weak position.

Speaking of the economic condition of the steel business, a word or two is in order. Vice President-elect Mondale, echoing his boss, sees no reason at all for the price hike, calling it "ominous." But, in fact, a good case can be made.

Reflecting the depressed state of the U.S. economic recovery, the steel industry is currently operating at 68 per cent of capacity, which is relatively weak. This represents a steady slide in the production of raw steel from just this past May when operating capacity stood at 91 per cent.

Steel companies' profits are also down. According to Fortune magazine, the metal-manufacturing industry last year had an 8.1 per cent return on stockholders' equity which is well below the 15.7 per cent listed in the Federal Trade Commission's data for all manufacturing.

Exactly what Mondale means when he accuses the steel industry of "administering" its prices, he doesn't say. If this is true, the Wall Street Journal asks editorially, how come they don't make more money?

Finally, according to steel industry officials, since their last price increase went into effect, the cost of making steel and strip steel has risen more than 6 per cent.

All the criticisms of the steel price hike, the strangest is that its timing is "unfortunate," in the words of Washington Star newspaper, because it comes "in the face of slack demand" rather than a market reaction to high demand.

Unfortunately! If this is true, it may be the very reason why the price rise will be cancelled! If the demand is not there, then prices will have to be lowered. This is precisely what happened last October when the steel industry announced a price increase. There was substantial customer opposition and competitive pressure from abroad, and the cost rise was rolled back by the industry. Don't the Star editorial writers know anything about economics?

Footnote: Ironically, if President Carter should decide to abolish all foreign steel tariffs, the U.S. steel industry, in view of their effective price freeze for the free world, would have a very difficult time opposing such a move.

THE LONDON ECONOMIST

Schiff, pat her readiness to sell down to fear of inheritance taxes, not the profit and loss account. But its circulation told a somewhat different story: despite an evening monopoly in New York City since 1967, it is down from 700,000 to 500,000 now. Taken by surprise though they were, the Post's pious journalists were happy enough to laud Murdoch's riding in on his white horse with nuggets of new investment—not very heavy nuggets, actually, probably only $1 million—in the saddlebags.

That was as far as he rode. The Observer's journalists, some at least of them, and indeed its own—though it was they who had sought him out—weren't quite so keen. The Observer is intellectual-liberal; Murdoch is not famous for being either. Businesslike undoubtedly, but the star of his business is the Sun; a tabloid daily that shines for night-time working people.

That is an awful lot of men, so the young ladies of the Sun's page three have become famous in their fashion, what little they wear of it, as the girls on the Pirelli calendar.

return to pay by followers of former UMW boss Tony Boyle, who was convicted of the murder of a UMW leader, "Jack" Yablonski. In a private letter to Miller, Washington attorney Joe Raab, who led the fight to oust Boyle from power, pleaded with Miller to meet with Patrick and make peace.

All the enemies of union democracy are hoping you and Harry will fight to the end. . . . Please . . . say you'll meet us." Despite Raab's plea, however, Miller pulled out of a meeting at the last moment.

WASHINGTON WHIRL—Big banking interests are lobbying to block Rep. Henry Ruesch, R-Wis., from continuing as chairman of the powerful House Banking committee. The pro-consumer Ruesch has led the fight for banking reform. This, naturally, has not gone down well with the bankers. Ruesch, incidentally, comes from a banking family. But between 1970 and 1973, he gave his entire bank stock worth $100,000 to various charities.

Many American Indians want former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris for Secretary of the Interior, which oversees Indian affairs. They are organizing a "draft" for Harris, who has led the fight for Indian rights and whose wife LaDonna is a Comanche. A formal petition is being sent to President-elect Jimmy Carter promoting Harris for the post.

Carter Prompted Steel Hikes

WASHINGTON — The Associated Press reports that in order to understand why the steel industry has announced a 6 per cent price hike in the cost of sheet steel, President-elect Jimmy Carter has requested his transition staff prepare a report on the subject.

Well, Carter should scrub the project. If he really wants to know why this price increase has occurred now, he has only to look into the nearest mirror where, to paraphrase Pogo, he will meet the enemy and discover it is himself.

Throughout his campaign for the presidency and even after he was elected, Carter repeatedly threatened U.S. business with wage and price controls. Typical of his public utterances on this subject were his remarks last May in an interview in Business Week magazine, where he declared:

"I would like steady wage and price controls. My guess is that I would never use them. But I would like them as a lever. I wouldn't hesitate to use them if I had to."

So, in 28 words or less, it doesn't take a seer of Jeeves to see that the reason why the steel industry raised its price now is primarily a political one. Big steel believes Carter was telling the truth when over and over during his campaign he said he'd never lie or mislead us.

Thus, when he threatens the invocation of wage and price controls, this warning is credible. From the steel industry's point of view, it's infinitely preferable to raise prices now, and take the heat, rather than wait until Carter is sworn in and the latest insanity of "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" is being frozen into an economically weak position.

Speaking of the economic condition of the steel business, a word or two is in order. Vice President-elect Mondale, echoing his boss, sees no reason at all for the price hike, calling it "ominous." But, in fact, a good case can be made.

Reflecting the depressed state of the U.S. economic recovery, the steel industry is currently operating at 68 per cent of capacity, which is relatively weak. This represents a steady slide in the production of raw steel from just this past May when operating capacity stood at 91 per cent.

Steel companies' profits are also down. According to Fortune magazine, the metal-manufacturing industry last year had an 8.1 per cent return on stockholders' equity which is well below the 15.7 per cent listed in the Federal Trade Commission's data for all manufacturing.

Exactly what Mondale means when he accuses the steel industry of "administering" its prices, he doesn't say. If this is true, the Wall Street Journal asks editorially, how come they don't make more money?

Finally, according to steel industry officials, since their last price increase went into effect, the cost of making steel and strip steel has risen more than 6 per cent.

All the criticisms of the steel price hike, the strangest is that its timing is "unfortunate," in the words of Washington Star newspaper, because it comes "in the face of slack demand" rather than a market reaction to high demand.

Unfortunately! If this is true, it may be the very reason why the price rise will be cancelled! If the demand is not there, then prices will have to be lowered. This is precisely what happened last October when the steel industry announced a price increase. There was substantial customer opposition and competitive pressure from abroad, and the cost rise was rolled back by the industry. Don't the Star editorial writers know anything about economics?

Footnote: Ironically, if President Carter should decide to abolish all foreign steel tariffs, the U.S. steel industry, in view of their effective price freeze for the free world, would have a very difficult time opposing such a move.

Good Neighbor Donates Blood

Gertrude Fischer, left, of the Sanford Homemakers Club presents a check for $101 to Polly Stevens, coordinator of Stepping Stones. The money was donated by all the Seminole County Homemaker Clubs to purchase a sewing machine for the Stepping Stones rehabilitation project.

Some weeks ago there was mention of reviving the Good Neighbor of the Week. Since then several names have been submitted. The person chosen as the first "good neighbor" more than deserves the nomination. He is... John Sabatini of The Terrace.

Sabatini was named because of several acts of kindness, but the mention of one will surface. Seems Sabatini heard that Mrs. Betty Ash was having open heart surgery and would require several pints of blood to replace those lost during the surgery. Without saying a word to anyone, he went to the hospital and donated his blood for Mrs. Ash. Sabatini had never met Mrs. Ash.

Her many friends will be glad to hear that "fisty" Betty Ash has come through her long and difficult open heart surgery successfully. Betty is back home and making a great recovery, and will soon be in the swing of things again.

Winter Springs Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary 5405 recently announced eight students from Lake Howell High School will take part in the annual National Voice of Democracy program this year. These teenagers will write a three-five minute script on "What America Means to Me." The scripts will be put on tape and forwarded to the contest headquarters. The 31 state winners will receive a five-day, all expense paid trip to Washington, D. C. where they will compete in the national scholarship awards.

Late parade note... the Women's Auxiliary to the Winter Springs Volunteer Fire Department will be participating in the Christmas Parade. Some will ride in an enclosed vehicle, while others, more daring, will be perched atop a refurbished 1941 antique fire truck.

Gerry and Tony Nosse of The Terrace entertained his uncle and aunt, Ed and Alice Stern of Cleveland, Ohio recently. The Sterns are on a camping vacation. They called from their Oteen campground and spent several days visiting with the Nosses and taking in the sights of Central Florida.

Dollie and Marcel Snyder of Takawilla had their two sons home for the holidays. The older son, 1st Lieutenant James M. Snyder Jr. (USAF) returned to his duty station in Sunnydale AFB, Calif. and the younger son, 2nd Lieutenant Daniel W. Snyder returned to his duty station at Scott AFB, Ill. Other recent guests include Mrs. Andrew Coe, wife of the Administrative Officer American Embassy, San Salvador, and Mr. Charles Dieter of Fort Collins, Col. The Snyders also entertained his nephew, Rev. Albert Clipp and his wife Jane. Rev. Clipp is pastor of both the Maple Side Methodist and Melvin Methodist churches in Cumberland, Md.

Matusick, May Repeat Vows

Robin Lorraine Matusick became the bride of Frank Thomas May in a candlelight, double ring ceremony performed by Rev. Edwin Hayes at the First Baptist Church, New Smyrna, on Nov. 6 at 7 p.m. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Matusick, New Smyrna Beach. The bridegroom is the son of Lt. (USN Ret.) and Mrs. Frank T. May, 205 Mirror Dr., Sanford. Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal white gown of organza over taffeta featuring a square neckline and full, tiered skirt with re-emphasized Chantilly lace trim. The full, sheer sleeves wereuffed and trimmed in lace, and the natural waistline was belted with white satin ribbon. Her fingertip veil of imported French illusion was caught to a Juliet cap of Chantilly lace. She carried a bouquet of pink and red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thomas May. Usher-groomsmen were Frank Williams, Robert Metastick, Jack Rellly and Conrad Conclick. Bridesmaids were Lynn Jarrell, Anita Weeks, Linda Jenkins and Michelle Wilson. They were attended identically to the honor attendant and carried nosegays of pink roses and white mums. Robert Keen was best man.

Teen Needs Brother, Not Lover

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I am a recently divorced 26-year-old man. I'm a college graduate and have a good job. My problem is a girl named Marcie. She will be 14 next week but she's very mature for her age and looks much older. Marcie and I hit it off immediately, and it was soon apparent that she wanted to be more than just friends. I tried to ignore her not-too-sincere advances, hoping it would pass, but I must admit I was very much attracted to her. She's very pretty, bright and extremely honest. She told me she has gone all the way with several fellows, but she's not a tramp—she just has a healthy sex-drive. We've done some kissing and heavy petting, but I wouldn't let myself go beyond that because of her age. I'll be truthful, Abby. If it weren't for what people would say about my dating a 14-year-old girl, I'd date her, not because I must admit I was very much attracted to her. She's very pretty, bright and extremely honest. She told me she has gone all the way with several fellows, but she's not a tramp—she just has a healthy sex-drive. We've done some kissing and heavy petting, but I wouldn't let myself go beyond that because of her age.

inflammable relationship in the bud. Should you get carried away by this aggressive little sexpot with a "healthy sex drive," you would be contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Marcie desperately needs counseling. Do her a favor and help her get her head together before she gets into serious trouble. She needs a big brother—not a lover. DEAR ABBY: I'm writing this for our whole family. Our problem is our 30-year-old sister. She is very intelligent, holds a highly respected position, and makes a fantastic salary, but she thinks our bathroom is a library.

Christmas Shopping: What's Your Style?

Greg Rice, Casselberry: "I generally shop store to store and take a list; but I'm a last minute shopper. I've hardly done any, as yet, and I'll probably be out on Christmas Eve, shopping. We wrap our own presents."

Gloria Waldrop, Sanford: "I shop both by catalogue and in stores. I'm a spur of the moment shopper and don't carry a list. I like to wrap my presents myself, and an usually a last minute shopper."

Irene Bussare, Sanford: "I moved here recently from Atlanta, where I generally shopped in one store. Here, I will go from store to store. As a rule, I start my shopping early and know what I want for each person. I'm not a last minute shopper because I like to be well organized."

Al Gilpin, Deltona: "We go store to store, but we make up our minds before we start to shop. We wrap our own presents and do a good job of it, too! We shop fairly early, not last minute."

Marly Wetherington, Sanford: "I carry a list and go store to store. I'm about half-finished now, but never start way ahead. I wrap my own presents; it's cheaper and just a part of Christmas."

Keep Common Touch: Rockwell

By CAROL SMITH
Herald Correspondent

Norman Rockwell, one of the nation's top artistic interpreters of Americana, believes artists must keep a common touch if their works are to appeal to a mass audience. In fact, he said, if you want to be a successful artist move to a farm.

"May sound corny but I have to feel the part of the characters I paint—I have to pretend to be the character before I can get the feeling and the expression down on canvas," said Rockwell.

You cannot help but to imagine the pleasure of a child opening a Christmas gift. It's this emotional quality he brings out in his paintings that seems to hold a personal meaning to all of us.

"Be sure you want to be an artist, above anything else," said Rockwell. "Then go to a good art school or an artist friend and find out whether there's any hope for you, or if you'd be a better plumber. If the answer is hopeful, study with the best teachers you can find and be prepared to work harder than any day laborer all the rest of your life. If it's what you want to do, you'll be happy anyway."

That 25-year-old advice, true yesterday as it is today seems to be applicable to all fields of endeavor. Are you listening, students?

Already he has met some of the other AFSers in the area, enjoying weekend get-togethers where they discuss their experiences, any problems and enjoy social functions.

A Sanford chapter of the AFS is in the process of being formed. Its function is to raise money to help toward the cost of bringing foreign students to the community, and sending Sanford students abroad, as well as scheduling programs to introduce visiting students to the local community. Anyone interested in joining the chapter should call Mrs. Alda Bowman, area AFS representative at Orlando 601-8447.

If Hans' experience, and the Forbes' enthusiasm, are anything to go by, AFS is a most worthwhile program.

Grits, Peanuts Popular South Rises On Capitol Hill

When the South rises on Capitol Hill in D.C. next month, expect gimmicks galore, tired satire and probably "gritzy" with red-eye-gray on breakfast menus across the nation. Already the ordinary peanut has been disguised as a gourmet's delight and the southern language has been translated into diction drawl, yawl. To bridge the communication gap so that the north, east and west can decipher Jimmy Carter's vocal code, Steve Mitchell has compiled a delightfully different dictionary, "How To Speak Southern." Definitions of mispronunciations native to the Old South are accompanied by hilarious cartoons. The author came through exceedingly well, but as a Southerner, some of the lingo I never heard of. Mitchell described the "cus" word that Rhet Butler used when he was provoked with his wife, Scarlet O'Hara, in the nearly 40-year-old movie, "Gone With The Wind." It took a lot of deliberation on the Hays censors to give the cuss word the go signal. And this was probably the first word of its nature ever heard in the motion pictures at the time—but not the last. To be more specific, Mitchell didn't quite get the emphasis in the proper term in quoting Rhet's famed sentence that has gone down in history. All of the southern gentlemen that I have known in and around Etlanza, Jawaia would have probably drawn out their mint julep breath," Frankleh mah deah, ah doan gil-uv uh dayum."

With Christmas shoppers frantically creating artificial snow and shopping for colorful poinsettias, Woodrow (Woody) Clark is looking toward spring in bloom. Woody is chairman of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Civic and Community Affairs Committee azalea sale scheduled for February. Last year's successful sale was almost a sell-out shortly after it got underway. Sanford welcomes new residents, Miriam and David Wright. Although Sanford is not new to the former Winter Park apartment dwellers, their new home in Idylwildie is.

Miriam is tickled as pink as the ballet shoes she teaches dancing in at School of Dance Arts. David said, "I am just thrilled to death. We have been waiting to move up here for a long time. We bought the first house we looked at. Oh, we looked at others, but the first one was us."

Vivian and Richard Buck entertained employees of Buck's Catering and Duck's Restaurant Tuesday night at the restaurant. The superb sit-down Christmas dinner ignored the traditional turkey with succulent stuffed pork chops served as the entree. The employees presented the couple with gifts of silver and crystal.

Mrs. Robert (Peggy) Hatway was hostess Wednesday at her Altamonte Springs home to the annual covered dish Christmas luncheon for Altamonte Springs Woman's Club.

Jan Vibben, all decked out in a Christmas white and gold frock, was dashing off to Daytona Beach to a luncheon. According to Jan, a mutual friend and former Herald scribe, Charne Leone, is attending Florida Technological University, working on a master's degree in journalism. Charner, her husband Fred and children now call Cocoa home where he has established a law practice. Fred was formerly associated with Attorney Gordon Frederick.

Freedom Train Revives History

By NANCY BOOTH
Herald Correspondent

The American Freedom Train made a brief stop in Sanford last week, and then halted for a while in Orlando to give Central Florida residents a chance to enjoy its precious historical cargo. Ten cars, each equipped with a moving walk way, carried one forward to view 300 years of American history. Each car contained a kaleidoscope of priceless historical documents, rare photographs, art treasures and national memorabilia. In some instances the artifacts are authentic, borrowed from museums and private sources. In other instances, great care was taken to make exact replicas.

Starting with the first car, one is carried through categories that include The Beginning, Exploration and Expansion, Growth of the Nation, Origins, Evolutions, Human Resources, Sports, Performing Arts, Fine Arts, and Conflict and Resolution. One is struck by the thought that we have come a long way in a short time in history. The primitive tools of yesterday have been, through American ingenuity, replaced with the modern appliances of today. Any inventor would enjoy the display of machinery—then and now. Someone with aspirations of becoming a veterinarian would be thrilled by the sight of an 1890 surgical kit placed side by side with the instruments used on one of the Apollo missions. Who would not thrill at the sight of Abe Lincoln's stove pipe hat, Franklin D. Roosevelt's Stetson, John F. Kennedy's rocking chair, and the Bible used in the swearing-in of President Ford? After seeing the inside of the 10 cars, one could walk along the outside of the steam engine containing a 1904 Oldsmobile, a hand pumped fire engine built in 1849, an 1824 locomotive and a replica of the Lunar Rover used on the moon.

After the tour, visitors could go to the site of the Liberty Bell replica and sign the "Declaration of Independence." In 2076, on July 4, the signatures will be opened at the Woodlawn Memorial Park. One could say it was a chance for an average citizen to become part of history.

A Delicious Secret Lurks In Casselberry

By JANE CASSELBERRY

Sailing, Sailing ...

The waves weren't exactly bounding last weekend on Lake Monroe, where the Tangerine Bowl Regatta was staged, but there were perfect racing conditions in the two-day event in which 150 skippers participated. Race chairman Ernie Cowen described the regatta as 'the most successful' in T-Bowl history. For complete details about the races, see photos and story, Page 4-A.

Interim County Post Two Firms Eyed For Attorney

By ED PRICKETT
Herald Staff Writer

A Sanford attorney and a South Seminole judge are under consideration by the county commission for appointment Tuesday as interim county attorney for a four-month period, a source confirmed today.

According to the source, law firms of William Leffler III, of Sanford, and Gene Stephenson, a municipal court judge in Altamonte Springs and Longwood, are being considered by commissioners for the interim position.

Commission Chairman Dick Williams neither confirmed nor denied reports that the two attorneys' names are under consideration. Williams, however, did confirm that one of two applicants will be considered at Tuesday's county commission meeting.

Both Leffler and Stephenson reportedly have submitted applications for the position. The interim attorney's position opened after Asst. County Atty. Robert Pierce last week announced he would not accept the interim position because he planned to seek a position out of the political arena.

Reports are the interim position pay $35 an hour, or $2,500 per month. The salary will depend on which applicant is selected for the post.

Commissioner Bob French said this morning that Stephenson, per se, would not occupy the position. However, French said a member of Stephenson's law firm would, if the Stephenson firm is selected.

French submitted Stephenson's name. But French said he wasn't aware Leffler had applied for the interim position. French said Leffler had applied however, for the lead attorney's position in the newly created legal department.

Asked to release names of applicants, Williams replied, "I think the proper time would be tomorrow."

Williams said it's time to act on the attorney issue because the county will require legal advice for about four months until the new in-house legal staff is ready to assume its duties.

Weed-Eating Amur Await Resident OK

Commission Chairman Dick Williams said today the weed-gobbling white amur could be introduced into three Seminole lakes by the end of this month.

All that is lacking, Williams said, is approval by lakeside dwellers and a resolution passed by the county commission.

At Tuesday's commission meeting, the chairman said he will ask that petitions be circulated among homeowners on Lake Oriata, Lake of the Woods and Mirror Lake.

The state's Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has offered to introduce the amur to all three Seminole lakes. The agency's efforts are opposed by a second state agency, the Florida Game and Fresh Water Commission.

Game and Fresh Water Commission members have warned that the white amur could destroy the game fish population in the St. Johns River — if the weed carp, as it is called, is allowed to make its way into the river.

The amur cannot breed in stagnant water, such as a lake. But officials believe the fish can reproduce rapidly in swift-moving waters, such as the St. Johns.

The amur can wipe out a fish population by eating the hydrilla and other vegetation at the bottom of a body of water. Gobbling up the weeds affects the ecology by eliminating the food supply game fish feed on. In some lakes, officials say introduction of the amur has eliminated most of the game-fish population within a year.

Also, the amur by eating the hydrilla — its entire purpose for being placed in streams — eliminates the food supply for water fowl, including coots which are plentiful on the 106-acre Lake Oriata.

Williams said today he's hoping DNR officials will place the amur "in all three" Seminole lakes. Williams added, though, that the bodies of water must be closed so as to eliminate the chances of amur getting into the St. Johns.

The DNR argues the amur has been "highly effective" in elimination of pesky water weeds. But the Game and Fresh Water Commission argues use of the amur is premature until more scientific investigation is made into possible side effects.

Williams says the hydrilla is a problem of great magnitude in Seminole. He said it's worth the risk — if homeowners approve — of using the amur to rid Seminole lakes of pesky hydrilla.

Citrus Sales Cut Inventory

Demands of the holidays and the cold and flu season have increased sales of Florida's quality canned single strength and reconstituted grapefruit juice to a point where Florida warehouse inventory is at a many-year low, United Growers in Orlando said today.

Warehouse reserve dropped to 1.5 million cases of the week ending Dec. 4 or 5.8 per cent under last year's equivalent period, said Gen. Mgr. Wilson McGee of the Orlando-based grower organization.

He added some processors were virtually out of stock on the popular 46-ounce size.

"And that condition hasn't prevailed since the three low stock years that started with the 1968-69 season."

Sales of this dominant supermarket shelf item are 4.8 per cent ahead of the 1975-76 season period when canned grapefruit juice was the second largest moving volume fruit item reported by chain store statistics. It was second only to apple juices and ciders.

Askew: No War Of $$$

BOCA RATON (AP) — "While the South should not shrink from any form of healthy competition with other parts of this great country," talk of an economic war between the states is disturbing, Gov. Reubin Askew said today.

He contended in the state of a speech to the Southern Growth Policies Board that the South's economic growth in recent years "has not been tied to a decline in the fortunes of the northern economy."

"To the contrary," Askew said, "the South's emergence as an economic power stems mostly from inherent sources of strength that had not been developed for a long time."

Northern interests who are seeking a greater share of federal funds at the expense of the Sunbelt states in the belief it will stimulate business in the North are mistaken, Askew said.

He said the Wall Street Journal has called such efforts "economically wrong and politically dangerous" and said it is high taxing and spending that are hurting the economy in the Northeast.

Askew said the efforts of the South to lure industries away from the North have not put many Northerners out of work.

Such efforts must continue, he said, because they expand the economic base of the South and help to improve its quality of life.

"If circumstances in the South provide a favorable climate for economic success, relocating in this region may mean the difference for a company to remain in business and make a profit," Askew said.

The board is a public agency supported by the states of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia.

What, Me Sail? Bah, Humbug!

There were a few of the 400-500 visitors to the weekend Tangerine Bowl Sailing Regatta on Lake Monroe, Sanford, who just weren't that enthused with what was happening out there on the bounding main. Visitors like Jeffrey Moehl, whose father, Jeffrey Sr., was one of the racers. Jeffrey Jr. preferred a landlubbing status, spending his time checking the quality of the sand and surf from up close. His daddy managed to compete successfully, even without the enthusiastic backing of junior; he placed second in the Portsmouth class.
