Ford Plan To Increase Energy Bills By 18%

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Energy Administration says President Ford's proposals would increase the average family's energy bill 18 per cent, with the price hike showing up most in natural gas. The FEA said Ford's proposed energy policy - a combination of fees and taxes on energy with reductions of income tax would increase consumer prices in general by about 2 or

Demos Move On Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) - House Democrats are hurrying to block President Ford's energy program in the face of his renewed appeals for public backing and continued hard stand against gas rationing. The Democrats are seeking to delay Ford's boost of oil tariffs, and they plan to attach a delaying measure to the bill that raises the legal ceiling on the federal debt. The House Ways and Means Committee was opening consideration today of the debt ceiling measure, which Ford wants. "The odds are probably more than even that the committee would combine the debt ceiling with the import duty bill," Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., said Thursday.

Oil Nations Expected

To Stress West Issue

ALGIERS (AP) - Algeria's President Houari Bournedienne was expected to open a meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries today with another call for the developing nations to form a solid front against Western "economic imperialism."

The official Algerian News Agency suggested on the eve of the meeting that OPEC should be expanded into a worldwide cartel of nations exporting all raw materials needed by the non-Communist industrial nations. The four-day meeting of finance, oil and foreign ministers of the 13 oil countries was called mainly to consider an Algerian proposal for OPEC's first summit

Trade Loss Hurts Soviets

In signing the trade bill passed by the 33rd Congress, President Ford expressed his reservations about a provision that the Soviet Union must relax its emigration policies in order to receive credits and tariff preferences for trade with the United States of America. It is hardly surprising that Moscow has now announced that it will not knuckle under to this demand.

The emigration provision did not belong in a trade bill in the first place. Sen. Henry Jackson, whose insistence on it caused much of the controversy that stalled action on the bill for nearly two years, had hoped it would ease the sad plight of Jews who are now often stymied by Soviet law if they want to emigrate to Israel. The Jackson amendment was opposed, and properly, on the grounds that trade legislation should not try dictate changes in the internal policy of any of our trading partners, apart from our understandable sympathy with the frustrated emigrants.

That principle is still a sound one, but Sen. Jackson prevailed, and we are now confronted with a situation where it is written into law that President Ford cannot proceed with new trade agreements outlined at the 1972 Moscow summit unless the Russians change their emigration

Moscow can hardly oblige without incurring a loss of face, especially in the Arab world which looks with favor on a Soviet policy that now discomforts the state of Israel. By the same token, it would hardly be appropriate for Congress to amend our new trade law simply to please Moscow. We are left with an impediment to the growth of U.S.-Soviet trade that will probably have to be accepted by both sides.

This will inconvenience the Soviet Union far more than it will the United States. Without the low interest rates of Export-Import Bank loans and the tariff considerations that the 1972 agreement would have given to the Russians, they will have to pay more dearly for the American technology, management know-how and industrial equipment they need to make their limping economy more

Sen. Jackson apparently has struck out on his ill-advised effort to try to legislate Soviet domestic policy from Washington. He may have succeeded, quite unintentionally, in setting wheels in motion which will satisfy some of the criticism that America has been far too generous in the trade terms being offered to the Russians.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger says he doubts if this impasse will have any effect on detente. He is probably right, and mainly because detente has produced so little to begin with. The trade benefits promised to the Russians in the spirit of detente had produced no significant cooperation from the Soviet Union in areas where it would count, such as the Mideast and Southeast Asia, where Soviet arms are aggravating war and threats of war. If our trade relations with the Russians are now "back to square one," as one observer comments, relations on most other aspects of detente have remained on the starting square all along.

of the Central Florida Zoologica! Society. And all the while I thought it was nothing more than an afternoon out for the busy executives. A great big pat-on-the-back to all who have made the Deltona Open one of the most prestigious golfing tourneys on the Florida tour.

Radio Star 'Prisoner' Of Fame

Broadcasting System is apparently thinking about moving at least one of its studios inside the federal penitentiary complex. Network officers have recently been huddling with convicted Watergate conspirator John Ehrlichman with the intent of making the personality a radio commentator. The idea reportedly is to put Ehrlichman on the air daily for five minutes as a kind of outlaw Socrates.

Just how this would be done if Ehrlichman is as expected, sent to prison, nobody at Mutual seems to know. But the network president, C. Edward Little, seems a man unbothered by details. Never mind, for one thing, that Ehrlichman would be the first crook in memory to be sentenced to a national airtime spot.

"Speaking personally," says Little, "the Watergate conviction does not alter my opinion of Ehrlichman's ability, mind, creativity or what ne can do for the United States or the Mutual

No doubt, if this absurdity comes to pass, Ehrlichman could do quite enough for both the USA and MBS. He could, for instance, pollute them as he has polluted the White House, the government, the court system and the Constitution of the land. Other than this, it is difficult to understand rewarding this man with further

Flexing Unavailable Muscles

A more unnecessary and counterproductive debate than the current one over the possibility of armed U.S. intervention in the Middle East would be difficult to imagine - unless it would be one over a return of American force to Vietnam. The controversy seems to have been set off by an article by a Johns Hopkins University professor, Robert W. Tucker, who suggested as "an extraordinary means for resolving the (oil) crisis" the takeover of about half the OPEC's production and reserves in a coastal strip from Kuwait to Qatar.

DON OAKLEY

Then Secretary of State Kissinger got into the act in the form of an answer to a hypothetical question posed by a magazine interviewer. Although the secretary carefully ruled out armed intervention over oil in all but the gravest emergency - "some actual strangulation of the industrialized world" - phraseology which President Ford later took no exception to, the angry reaction of the oil countries was immediate and predictable.

It is hard to believe that the astute Mr Kissinger was not aware that any such threat however couched or qualified, would produce this kind of repercussion, and just as hard to fathorn what he, or the President, thought might

On top of this, at about the same time, the secretary, or somebody in the State Department using his name, expressed regret that this country had not diverted a few warships from Rev. Askew Urges Release Of Federal Road Funds

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Gov. Reubin Askew says one easy way for the federal government to stimulate the economy is by releasing highway funds it has impounded. The move would not require any new programs and would help offset the loss in gasoline tax revenue that President Ford's plans to raise oil tariffs will keep from state highway programs, Askew said at his budget hearing Thursday heard of no such plan.

The federal Transportation Department has impounded $43 million in Florida's allocation this fiscal year and is expected to impound another $34 million in fiscal 1975-76,

Chances are he's doing what a lot of other little boys and girls are example, the electric current can be carried all the way to the ground. doing. Riding his bike. Fishing in a canal. Or climbing a tree.

Now we're sure you've warned him about the obvious dangers of outdox r play. Like traffic in the streets, falling into a canal, or out of a tree. But have you also warned him of the obvious danger of climbing trees near power lines?

It seems that some people are unaware that trees near power lines can be accidentally charged with electricity. All it takes is for a branch to come in contact with a hot power line.

If someone gets close to the point of contact, they're liable to get a severe shock. But under certain conditions, like wet weather for This means it's also possible to get a shock from simply touching the trunk of the tree.

Naturally we're doing all we can to keep your trees clear of our lines. But we also know little boys, being little boys, love to climb them. What we're concerned about is that you and your child are aware of the dangers, so that if he should climb a tree without your knowing, you can take comfort knowing he looked before he climbed This safety message has been brought to you by Florida Power & Light as a public service, because serving the public is really what we're

Raiders End Home Stand With 94-68 Win

Herald Sports Editor

The Seminole Junior College Raiders gave themselves a farewell party Thursday night - a 94-68 basketball victory over Tunxis Community College of Connecticut.

The win concluded a six-game home stand in which the Raiders won the last five. St. Johns River Junior College christened the home series with a 64-63 win over the Raiders 12

In the last two nights SJC has ripped the friendly chords of the Raider gym for 207 points. The Raiders trounced Flagler College 113-68 Wednesday. "The boys are getting accustomed to the gym and it

By BILL BELLEVILLE

Herald Staff Writer

There is a serious shortage of both low and moderate income housing in Seminole County,

according to a final report issued by an ad hoc

And this shortage not only creates hard times for those seeking such housing, but it "retards the development of our human resources as well as the growth of our economy," according to the report.

Editor's Note: The Ad Hoc Committee on Low and Moderate Income Housing was established by the Seminole County Commissioners in mid-1974. Its purpose was to study the housing situation, identify the problems and come up with recommeded solutions to them. The committee finished its work this week and submitted a final report of its findings over the last six months. Today, the Herald harbor "homes" that are deteriorating, that have no adequate plumbing facilities. Of the 4,000 such dwellings that exist in the county, most of them are centered in the areas of Bookertown, Georgetown, Goldsboro, Midway, Oviedo, and Altamonte, according to the report.

"In some cases," the report notes, "new, medium-priced houses have been built in some areas." Yet, every home in these areas are considered substandard because of its surroundings. While there is a very real need for low cost housing, the majority of the type of homes being built is in the upper income family range.

"One factor influencing this situation is there is Yet, the solutions are not simple ones. more profit to be made building the higher priced This finding is not a new one to even the casual homes," according to the report. "In order to make a profit building lower priced houses, the builder must keep a tight schedule and control his costs.'

There are neighborhoods in practically dustry - as in other large-scale industries - is every Seminole city that show signs of decay, that away from quality and towards quantity.

on the part of the builders, there are other factors that come to play. "The day of the $1,000 lot is gone in Seminole for tand that has required utilities and a reasonable location," the report explains. Lot costs range from $3,000 in a high density development, to $5,000 in one of the lower density. This factor, alone, seems to "preclude the use of low density housing as a solution to the low and possibly even the moderate income housing shortage." The substandard housing in all six areas is essen-

In addition, the interest rate on the mortgage has also increased, resulting in a 100 per cent jump in payments over a four-year period.

The report finds 5,000 low and moderate houses are needed from now to 1980. But, a thousand units per year, under present circumstances, is too much to hope for, since the housing industry produces only 6,000 units a year - most of which are in the higher price range.

Tomorrow: What can be done to improve this situation, and the reactions of county officials who are charged, by the report, with the responsibility

At the time Miss Ketteringham entered her guilty pleas Judge Hosemann indicated she will be sentenced the week after the Parrish-Phillips cases are concluded. She faces a possible maximum sentence of three years in county jail on the misdemeanor charges. Van Hook said the state will drop felony charges against Miss Ketteringham, as part of the negotiated plea. If Mrs. Parrish had gone to trial, as scheduled or Tuesday, and had been convicted by a jury on the robbery charge she would have faced a 30 year or
