BRIEFS

Habitat house

SANFORD — The St. Augustine Catholic Community, along with Habitat for Humanity in Seminole County, Inc., will dedicate a home Sunday at 2:30 p.m. The home, built by volunteers from St. Augustine Parish Community, is located at 1911 W. 16th St. in Sanford. It will become home for Lofee Atkins and her family. An open house will follow the dedication ceremonies.

Habitat for Humanity homes are built by mostly volunteer help and donated materials. People selected must donate a minimum of 500 "Sweat Equity Hours" to a Habitat project. Atkins has reportedly completed the required hours, working at the Habitat for Humanity Resale store at U.S. Highway 17-92 and Airport Blvd. in Sanford.

Chamber sets First Friday

SANFORD — The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce has begun a new member service called First Friday at the Chamber. A one-hour info-lunch is designed to provide members with topical information which may assist in their daily activities. Sanford Police Chief Ralph Russell will be this Friday's guest speaker. His comments will relate to cooperation between police and the business community.

Cost for the First Friday info-lunch is $5. For additional information or reservations, phone the chamber at 322-2212.

TDC at Zoo

SANFORD — The Seminole County Tourist Development Council's next meeting will be Thursday, April 13, at the Central Florida Zoological Park in Sanford. Among items scheduled for discussion are training center activities, a Seminole County Parks & Recreation report, zoo research study funding request, and a sponsorship application review for fiscal year 1995/96.

The meeting will begin at 12 noon.

CORRECTION

No self-respecting cat would stand for it. To be named after the sound made by an unlubricated door hinge or horrors...a toy mouse. In our haste to wish a Lake Mary cat a Happy 20th Birthday Wednesday a reporter called Streaky the cat "Squeaky," by mistake. Apologies to the birthday girl and her owner, Harriett Boyd. Streaky was named for the streaks of color on her coat.

Lottery fever

Counselors brace for hotline calls

SANFORD — It's an epidemic. Florida residents have contracted lottery fever.

Locally as well as throughout the state, people are flocking to stores selling lottery tickets, now that the jackpot has reached $81 million. Even so, lottery officials predict it will rise even higher before Saturday.

At a Circle-K store, 2631 Sanford Avenue, a clerk said store personnel are working extremely hard, and tickets are going "like crazy." He commented, "This has been such a week, that if the lottery rolls over again, I'm going to take a vacation, preferably out of Florida."

Schools warned: No bets

SANFORD — Whenever the Seminoles meet the Gators or the Hurricanes blow into town, chances are money is laid down between friends who become rivals for a day when Florida State and Florida face-off or Miami participates in any type of competition.

"Friendly wagers" are made on the outcome of college and pro games from the NCAA championship to the Superbowl. Jury verdicts and even the sentence a judge will hand down in a major case maybe fodder for a bet.

High ranking law enforcement officers have been known to play fantasy sports games for money, picking players then betting on the outcome.

Seemingly innocent games like paycheck poker are still illegal gambling when money is the prize.

CASSELBERRY — George Thomas "Tom" Sellers, a social studies teacher at Lake Howell High School, has some time off with pay.

Not on vacation, however, Sellers will be spending a great deal of time with Seminole County sheriff's office investigators who want to know about an affair he is alleged to have had with a 17-year-old student last summer. And they want to know about the videotape he allegedly made of them having sexual intercourse.

For now, Sellers is on paid administrative leave. On Tuesday, the school board will be asked to suspend him without pay while the investigation continues.

According to an incident report filed with the sheriff's office last week, Sellers and the young woman, had a 3-month month affair beginning last July. During that time, the report alleges, the two met at his home at 426 Wild Fox Drive in Casselberry while they were supposed to be in school. School records indicate that the two were, indeed, absent from school at the same time on a number of occasions.

The report states the girl told investigators Sellers offered her alcohol and suggested they watch commercially-produced pornographic videos.

It was not clear if she accepted either offer, but she told investigators that she and Sellers made a videotape of their own in which they engaged in

James says he killed little girl, grandma

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

SANFORD — Eddie James faces life in prison or the death penalty after he pleaded guilty this morning to the murder of a Casselberry woman and her granddaughter two years ago.

In court this morning James, 33, stood before the judge dressed in a smart grey suit and crisp white shirt. He wore stylish wire frame glasses and had his hair neatly cut and combed, a sharp contrast to the disheveled man who was returned to Seminole County after he fled to Bakersfield, California in the days following the crime.

The next phase of James' case will begin April 24 when a jury will be selected to make a recommendation on whether he should die in the electric chair or spend the rest of his life in prison. Judge Alan Dickey will make the final sentencing decision.

James withdrew his previous "not guilty" plea and pleaded guilty to the September 19, 1993 murders of Elizabeth (Betty) Dick and her

More residential development may be headed for Lake Mary

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Requests continue to be received by the City of Lake Mary for various residential developments. Several are scheduled to be presented to the city commission during tonight's regular meeting.

C.T. Thermonos has petitioned the city for voluntary annexation of 25.7 acres of land on Emma Oaks Trail, approximately 1,200 feet west of Lake Emma Road. The property is intended to be developed as single family residential, by the Pulte Home Corporation.

The land adjoins Pulte's recently approved Huntington Pointe subdivision to the east.

Recent development proposals indicate the intent to expand on the adjacent Huntington Point, which has been approved for 189 homes. The property could potentially hold up to 90 housing units.

Herbert Early and Patrick Stenstrom have submitted a request to change land use designations on 32.6 acres of land on the east side of Rinehart Road, directly north of the Woodbridge subdivision and adjacent to Timacuan. The property is presently vacant.

According to reports submitted to the city, the applicants are proposing to develop a luxury apartment complex of approximately 250 units.

While both requests have been brought up for previous consideration by various city boards, this will be the first time they will be presented in ordinance form, for the annexation of the Pulte site and proposal for the Early/Stenstrom area.

Both requests require amendments to the city's comprehensive plan and future land use maps.

Although scheduled to be heard at tonight's city commission meeting, there are indications that both proposals may be tabled pending additional study or information.

The Lake Mary City Commission meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. tonight, in the commission chambers.

Prior to the regular meeting, a special called meeting is scheduled for 4:30 this afternoon. Subjects of discussion during the first meeting include a further discussion of community improvement projects, and approval of a contract for professional services.

The Lake Mary City Hall is located at 100 N. Country Club Road.

And the winners are....

Two Lakeview Middle School students were winners Tuesday evening in the 24th Annual Optimist Oratorical Contest held at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce. Eight boys and seven girls were finalists in the competition with the speech subject "Listen

FLORIDA BRIEFS

2 women charged for disturbing grave

TALLAHASSEE — Two women face criminal charges for allegedly trying to dig up the body of a loved one.

The Leon County Sheriff's Department has charged Rhonda Peden, 24, of nearby Crawfordville, and Marie Herring, 19, of Tallahassee, with disturbing the contents of a grave. Spokesman Dick Simpson said Peden had been the dead man's fiancée.

"She said she was digging him up so she could be with him," Simpson said. "When the deputy told her she couldn't do that, she said 'If I put him in my car I'll have him back.'"

Deputies got a tip about 3 a.m. Wednesday that someone was trying to dig up a grave near Ebenezer Baptist Church, just west of Tallahassee. They found a hole two feet deep on the grave of Chesht T. Herring, the brother of Marie Herring.

Chesht Herring, 24, was stabbed to death Feb. 4 in a vacant parking lot at St. Marks, a small village on the Gulf of Mexico about 20 miles south of Tallahassee. Jason Collins, 20, was charged with manslaughter, said Maj. Maurice Langston.

Police captain sentenced for embezzling

MIAMI — A former West Palm Beach police captain was sentenced to 18 months in prison for embezzling police department money and then lying on his federal income tax return.

Forty-five-year-old Timothy Wagman, of Palm Beach Gardens, pleaded guilty to the charges last August.

U.S. District Judge Kenneth L. Ryskamp ordered him to pay $11,000 in restitution and $7,748 plus interest and penalties to the Internal Revenue Service.

Wagman will be on parole for three years and must perform 200 hours of community service. He was ordered to surrender by June 15 to start his prison sentence.

Wagman admitted to stealing $11,000, which had been used in several drug sting transactions, said Kendall Coffey, who heads the U.S. Attorney's Office for South Florida.

The IRS charged Wagman when he did not declare the money in filing returns for the years 1988, 1990 and 1991, Coffey said.

6 indicted for smuggling

MIAMI — Six people, including an airline employee, have been indicted for allegedly smuggling 1,850 pounds of cocaine into the United States through Miami International Airport.

The five-count indictment levels charges of money-laundering as well as conspiracy to import and distribute cocaine against Carlos Horatio Romero Paez, 37; Ivan Dario Estrada, 35; Rafael Alfonso Mazzilli, 36; Evelyn Cecelia Boson Pappa, 33; Alex Cerra, 39; Barbara Romero Del Carmen, 50.

Horatio Romero, his wife, Bozon Pappa, Dario Estrada and Cerra headed a Colombian drug operation that tried to smuggle contraband into the United States through couriers, according to the U.S. Attorney's Office for South Florida.

When the couriers reached Miami International, Mazzilli, an American Airlines employee, would spirit them past U.S. Customs agents, prosecutors said. After the cocaine was sold, Del Carmen and Bozon Pappa would take the proceeds back to Colombia, officials said.

Authorities said the ring smuggled drugs from June 1994 until January, and laundered more than $500,000 in that time.

All defendants except Del Carmen face life in prison; she faces a maximum of 20 years in prison on money laundering charges.

He-Coon's will challenged

PREVIEW — A woman listed as a witness on what is purported to be the last will of U.S. Rep. Robert L.F. "Bob" Sikes says she never actually saw the late "he-coon" of Florida politics sign the document.

Donna E. Baggett made that admission in a sworn statement filed Monday in Circuit Court.

Sikes' children, Bobby Sikes Wicko of Chatterton, Ind., and Robert K. "Sonny" Sikes of Oviedo, are challenging the will, supposedly made in April 1990, two years after Sikes was diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease.

He died last September at 88. Gov. Lawton Chiles then borrowed his nickname, riding to a re-election victory as Florida's new "he-coon" — a crafty pack leader who protects his own. The Sikes children have asked the court to invalidate the 1990 will and instead execute a 1987 version that has significantly larger bequests for them and includes grandchildren who were left out of the newer document.

Harassment suit settled

MIAMI — A jury awarded $221,547 to an employee who complained of sexual harassment at her company, where a boss told her she would have to have sexual relations with him if she didn't drum up business.

The U.S. District Court jury of six women and one man returned the verdict Wednesday against Vacation Network, Inc., a Fort Lauderdale Co. company dealing in timesharing of homes.

Shari L. Mathews, 28, of Fort Lauderdale, said that in 1992 she and another female employee were given a handwritten sign by Timothy Dunn, a Vacation Network manager and the brother of the company president.

Hospital Holdout

Woman tries 10 years to get son home

By KAREN TESTA
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — Justin Mendat was hospitalized 10 years ago when he suffered an apparent asthma attack.

Now 11, he still isn't home.

A bureaucratic battle which has gone from the courts to the state legislature has kept the semi-comatose boy institutionalized while his family fights a hospital district claiming sovereign immunity.

"They've taken my son, and they don't want to give him back," Cynthia Mendat said Wednesday from her Coral Springs home. "They're spending money to fight me from having him."

Mrs. Mendat has fought for years to get funding for home care for her son, who was left semi-comatose when he was improperly ventilated, cutting off the oxygen to his brain. He cannot see, speak or walk.

A jury in 1990 found Broward General Medical Center at fault and awarded Justin $6.3 million.

But the North Broward Hospital District, of which the medical center is a part, is tax-subsidized. By law, government entities cannot be held responsible for more than $200,000 without legislative approval.

The hospital district has successfully beaten attempts to make it pay in the past two years. The House Claims Committee was set to vote today on a new claim bill that would give Justin and his family at least part of the jury award.

Two previous bills have been killed.

"There's no amount of money that could compensate her for losing her child, essentially," said committee member Rep. Steve Feren, D-Sunrise. "But dealing with taxpayer dollars, we have to try to come up with something that's fair and reasonable to provide for the child and mother."

Justin needs 24-hour medical attention. His mother has no insurance and can't afford to bring him home.

Each Sunday, Mrs. Mendat visits Justin. In years past, she would visit more often. But she has since married and has a 2-year-old daughter, Alyssa.

"I still have to try to live somewhat of a normal life. To have some sanity. To be strong for Justin," she said.

Justin rarely moves from his bed, except when he is bathed or put into a specialized wheelchair he received for Christmas. He has some schooling two days a week, when someone reads to him or plays music. Most of his day is spent alone, listening to the radio.

"He's maturing somewhat," said his mother, who is convinced he remembers her. "He's got the acne like most kids. He's not as big as he should be. He's a fighter though. He's held on very strong for 10

So has the hospital district.

A legislative case reviewer examined Justin's case for the Claims Committee and recommended the district pay $2.3 million to Mrs. Mendat. That sum is the difference between what jurors had recommended and what the family received in a separate settlement with doctors.

Some legislators and the district objected to that recommendation, however, because it gave $500,000 in pain and suffering to the mother which was not included in the jury verdict. They also did not want to pay additional attorney fees.

The district has offered a $90,000 a month, $30,000 van, payments of $20,000 a month for Justin's care, the balance of the pain and suffering award, $187,000 in medical equipment for the house and $150 million in other medical provisions and unforeseen expenses.

The Legislature must approve the payments.

Mrs. Mendat, who does not work outside the home, rejected an earlier settlement because she said it did not provide enough for Justin.

"They weren't offering anything. I'm not going to bring Justin home so he can roll over and die," she said. "There has to be money there for Justin to be taken care of. He's entitled to 24-hour care."

Father challenges adoptive parents' rights

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A Pompano Beach house painter claims he should have lost custody of his daughter just because he didn't live with or support her mother in the final months of pregnancy.

"These two people couldn't stand each other. The father still loved the child," attorney Steven Peseo said in oral arguments Wednesday before the state Supreme Court.

Peseo's client, Gary Bjorklund, is trying to take custody of the girl from her adoptive parents, Stephen and Angel Welch of Plantation.

The infant, referred to only as Baby Emily, was clearly rejected by her father and should not be returned to him, the Welches' attorney, Michelle Nelson argued. "She is 2 1/2 years old now," said Mrs.

Welsh, who attended the hearing with a dozen family members. She said Emily stayed home with a grandmother.

"They'll know she is where she belongs," Stephen Welch said of the justices. The court didn't indicate when it would rule.

Peseo said Bjorklund would support the girl as a single father.

"His income is not tremendous, but poor people can have children, too," the attorney said.

Bjorklund has said the child's birth mother, Linda Benco of Boca Raton, gave the baby up for adoption without his consent. Bjorklund sat silently by his attorney during the arguments and didn't comment afterward.

"That child wasn't available and should never have been adopted," Peseo said.

He said the Fourth District Court of Appeal, which awarded custody to the Welches, was swayed by what he called irrelevant and prejudicial testimony about Bjorklund's treatment of the child's mother and a prior rape conviction.

The appeals court asked the Supreme Court to rule on whether a circuit judge correctly used lack of emotional support of the mother by Bjorklund to determine that he had abandoned the child.

Bjorklund and Benco lived together during the first part of her pregnancy, Peseo said, and "he paid for at least six months of the expenses until she moved out on him."

He didn't send her money after that because he couldn't afford to support two households, said Peseo, acknowledging Bjorklund and the mother didn't get along.

The Welches' attorney noted that Bjorklund had an affair with another woman while Benco was pregnant.

"By his total lack of support during the third trimester... his conduct didn't back up his words," Nelson said. "The mother and child during pregnancy are inseparable."

POLICE BRIEFS

CCIB arrests

Members of the City/County Investigative Bureau made two arrests Tuesday in separate undercover drug sting operations.

Herbert Dwight Washington, 18, of Altamonte Springs, was arrested during an operation on Magnolia and Brentwood in Altamonte Springs. He was charged with sale and delivery of a controlled substance (crack), and possession of a controlled substance (crack).

Ellia Delmond Bell, 27, 545 Allen Avenue, Oviedo, was arrested during an operation on Avenue B and First Street in Oviedo. He was charged with sale of crack cocaine and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Mugging

Tuesday, a 73-year old Sanford man was reportedly pulled from his vehicle, parked in the 2800 block of S. Orlando Drive. Sanford police say four black males were said to have pulled him from his car and taken his wallet containing $35 in cash and assorted personal papers. The man was not injured.

Check charges

Longwood police arrested Joseph S. Gribok, 16, of Edgewater, on Tuesday. Police say he apparently cashed a check reported stolen, for $100, on Feb. 22, at a Longwood bank. He was arrested on charges of uttering a forgery, forgery, and petit theft.

Burglary

Sanford police arrested David Edward Myers, 34, of 2450 Byrd Avenue, Sanford. He was located in the 1800 block of W. 13th Street. Police say on October 12, 1994, he reportedly broke into a residence in the 700 block of Palmetto Avenue in Sanford, and was seen by a resident of the home. He was subsequently identified in a photo lineup. He was charged with burglary to an occupied dwelling. Police later found he was wanted on an outstanding warrant for failing to appear on a charge of burglary to a dwelling.

Warrants:

• Lance John Burgess, 31, 1412 Sparrow Street, Longwood, turned himself in at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Tuesday. He was wanted on a charge of battery.

• David Michael Phipps, 23, 314 Dorchester Square, Lake Mary, was served warrants at his residence by deputies Tuesday. He was wanted for violation of probation on convictions of burglary to a dwelling and grand theft.

• Victor Leon Dumas, 33, 511 Doctors Drive, Oviedo, turned himself in to deputies Tuesday on Jackson Street in Oviedo. He was wanted for violation of probation on a conviction of burglary to a structure.

• Darrell Wooden, 26, 1010 W. 16th Street, Sanford, was located by deputies at 13th Street and Sanford Avenue Tuesday. He was wanted for violation of probation on a conviction of battery.

• Quincy Jason Ticconi, 22, 2518 S. Oak, Sanford, turned himself in at the jail Tuesday. He was wanted for driving with a suspended license and attached tag not assigned.

Traffic stops

• Gail Hudson VanDeventer, 50, of Altamonte Springs, was stopped by Lake Mary police on Wilbur Avenue Tuesday. She was charged with driving under the influence.

• Jack Lynn Dublin Jr., 24, 808 Palmetto Avenue, Sanford, was stopped on U.S. Highway 17-92 at 18th Street Tuesday. He was charged with driving with a suspended/revoked license.

• Darrell Leon Hopkins, 28, 129 Yale Drive, Sanford, was stopped by Sanford police on SR 40 east of Summerlin Avenue Tuesday. He was charged with unlawful speed, possession of a controlled substance with intent to distribute, and possession of a controlled substance with intent to distribute in a motor vehicle.

Domestic cases

• Debora K. Fricks, 31, 140 Wilson Avenue, Lake Mary, was arrested by Sanford police in the 300 block of Sir Lawrence Drive Tuesday following a reported dispute with a male. She was charged with battery, domestic violence.

• Maurice Eugene Ahrens, 40, 181 Holderness Drive, Longwood, was arrested by deputies at his residence Tuesday after a reported altercation with his wife. He was charged with assault, domestic violence.

Sheriff reports

An estimated $800 in electronic entertainment items were reportedly stolen Tuesday from a residence on Regency Place in Heathrow.

• A bank envelope reportedly containing $240 in currency was said to have been stolen Tuesday from a residence in the 2400 block of Jitway Avenue in Midway.

• A boat was reportedly burglarized Tuesday in the 2900 block of Stonewall Place. Items missing included a $500 prop and $1,300 in radio equipment.

Sanford police reports

• An unknown amount of cash and a $60 car buffer were reportedly stolen early Wednesday from a business in the 400 block of Sanford Avenue.

• The Holy Trinity Church of God in Christ, 1405 Mangoustine Avenue, was reportedly burglarized and ransacked Tuesday. Nothing has immediately been determined to be missing.

• Gas generators, tools and other items valued at $2,000 were reportedly stolen Tuesday from a business building at the Central Florida Regional Airport.

• A miter saw valued at $200 was said to have been stolen Tuesday from a pickup truck in a carport in the 1900 block of Palmetto Avenue.

Highway Patrol checkpoints

SANFORD — A new month is here and Spring is in the air. As everyone adjusts to one less hour of sleep after turning their clocks forward for Daylight Savings Time, drivers should get their cars in shape for the latest round of spot inspections by the Florida Highway Patrol.

Beginning April 7, troopers will set up drivers license and vehicle inspection checkpoints on a number of Seminole County roads. Each week during the month, checkpoints will be set up on seven different roads in an effort to identify vehicles with such defects as bad brakes, worn tires and defective lighting equipment. In addition, drivers licenses will be checked to ensure no laws are being violated, such as driving with an expired license or driving while a license is suspended or revoked.

Inspection sights will be set up at the following locations on the dates indicated.

April 7-13: Airport Boulevard, County Road 15, Markham Road, Orange Boulevard, Osceola Road, Upsala Road and Persimmon Avenue.

April 14-20: Celery Avenue, General J.C. Hutchinson Parkway, Marquette Road, Orange Boulevard, State Road 428, Upsala Road and Persimmon Avenue.

April 21-27: Airport Boulevard, Celery Avenue, County

Road 15, Orange Boulevard, Old Lake Mary Road, State Road 428 and Persimmon Avenue.

April 28-May 5: County Road 15, General Hutchinson Parkway, Marquette Road, Orange Boulevard, Osceola Road, Upsala Road and Persimmon Avenue.

May 5-11: Airport Boulevard, County Road 15, Markham Road, Orange Boulevard, Osceola Road, Upsala Road and Persimmon Avenue.

Stores raided for illegal eavesdrop gadgets

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — The best high-tech gadgets that money can buy didn't help operators of spy equipment stores when customs agents cracked down on the smuggling of illegal bugging devices.

Ten Americans and three Japanese were charged with smuggling Wednesday after authorities raided 40 stores in 24 cities. Customs agents had set up phony spy equipment businesses in New York and Tokyo to gather evidence on what they call an international smuggling operation.

Some of the seized items displayed at a news conference were as sophisticated as those used by government agencies like the FBI, officials said. The items included tiny monitoring devices powered by the very phone line they tap and tiny eavesdropping transmitters concealed in a ballpoint pen, a small desk calculator and a power strip.

"I could use a lot of this equipment to do my job," said Customs Commissioner George J. Welsch. "It doesn't get much better than this."

Welsch said one pocket-sized transmitter had been concealed in a shipment of Colombian cocaine, enabling drug lords to listen for any indication the drugs had been discovered.

Federal law prohibits the import, sale or even advertising of eavesdropping devices for private use.

"These illegal bugging and wiretapping devices are being used to deprive Americans of privacy, and to carry out such crimes as drug dealing, corporate espionage and kidnapping," said Mary Jo White, the U.S. Attorney for Manhattan.

Two of the people charged Wednesday remain in Japan. One suspect arrested in New York was a Japanese executive of Micro Electronic Industries Co. Ltd. of Tokyo, described in the federal complaint as the largest exporter of illegal listening devices to the United States.

Micro allegedly shipped more than 4,000 items worth an estimated $3 million between October 1989, when the investigation began, and February of this year. The company falsified documents to mislead customs officials about the true purpose and value of the shipments, the complaint said.

Spy stores have openly sold bugging devices for years, in some cases promoting them in large newspaper ads. But White said investigators collected evidence — some through legal eavesdropping — that the merchants knew they were violating the law.

The raids were carried out in New York City, Philadelphia, Chicago, Dallas, Miami, Reston, Va.; Denver, New Jersey, Nevada, Georgia, Missouri, Utah and Washington state.

U.S. companies named in the indictment were Spy Factory of San Antonio, Texas, which has 16 stores nationwide; Allied Products International Inc., of Clifton, N.J.; The Spy Store of New York City and Melville, N.Y.; Spy Master of Rockville Center, N.Y.; Quark Spy Centre of New York City; and Spy Mart of Morganville, N.J.

AIDS virus gains resistance to drugs

By MALCOLM RITTER
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK — Treating AIDS patients with a single drug made the virus develop a resistance to not only that drug, but also many others of the same class, scientists reported today.

The study involved protease inhibitors, a promising group of experimental drugs designed to stop the virus from reproducing by disabling a crucial enzyme.

Researchers said the new finding suggests treatment with one protease inhibitor may make using another one later less effective, and that using several protease inhibitors at once may not avoid resistance, either.

Other experts said it's too soon to draw conclusions about what the findings mean for therapy.

The work is reported in today's issue of the journal Nature by Jon Condra and colleagues at the Merck Research Laboratories of West Point, Pa., and scientists elsewhere.

The work involved a Merck drug called MK-639. Condra stressed in a telephone interview that the results do not question the usefulness of that drug or other protease inhibitors.

Patients appear to be benefiting from MK-639 despite the development of resistance, and Merck is developing the drug "very aggressively," he said.

The results do suggest that if researchers want to test combinations of protease inhibitors, they should keep in mind that one drug in the mix might create resistance to the others, he said.

The study found that in four AIDS patients receiving MK-639, the AIDS virus spawned variants that showed varying degrees of resistance to MK-639 and all five other protease inhibitors tested. Resistance was revealed in test tubes by increases in the concentration of drug needed to suppress virus reproduction.

In one patient, variants that showed resistance to MK-639 plus two other drugs appeared after 24 weeks of therapy, and variants resistant to all six drugs appeared by week 40. Other patients showed broadly resistant variants at 44 and 52 weeks.

Condra said the results do not mean that the variants would show resistance to all protease inhibitors. He also said nobody knows what percentage of patients treated with MK-639 develop resistance to multiple drugs.

Condra said the study was done with patients who took a lower dose than current studies use. Higher doses may delay the appearance of resistant variants, he said.

Dr. Robert Schooley of the University of Colorado said it is not known whether drugs other than MK-639 would have the same effect. He also said using multiple drugs in combination may delay the development of resistance.

On the house

Government officials are subject to very close scrutiny by the press. As spokesmen, they are often chastised for events or actions which don't have a tendency to be in the best interests of the general public.

When their comments however, appear to be truly outstanding, they deserve outstanding applause.

Seminole County Commissioner Daryl McLain has proposed moving, rather than destroying homes purchased by the county, in right-of-way acquisitions. There are presently a large number of them involved, and with the road projects planned, a great many more may become available.

If an example is needed, drive west on SR-46A, (25th Street), near the Mayfair County Club, and look at the houses on the north side of the street. Many people would give their eye-teeth for such homes, yet they are boarded up and ready for the scrap heap unless something would be done to save them.

We agree with McLain. Moving them to another location and offering them for sale would be an excellent way of increasing the affordable housing so desperately needed. Yes, it may lead to accusations that the county is going into the real estate business, but look at what will be gained.

The only thing lacking in McLain's proposal is an indication of where they would be moved. Where would land be obtained, and what would it cost the county (if done by the county) to develop the land, put in sewers and water, and pave streets.

We believe there will be answers on this forthcoming, and we wait eagerly for the word.

If it works, and works to everyone's advantage, we can thank Commissioner Daryl McLain for getting the ball rolling. Hopefully we can thank the rest of the county commission for supporting it and helping it materialize.

LETTER

Disband Port Authority

The proposed merger (of the Sanford airport and county port boards) is a bad idea and not in the best interest of the county's citizens and taxpayers.

The Port Authority established on July 1, 1965, by an act of the state Legislature has accomplished its goals and objectives. In a recent news article Port Administrator Dennis Dolinger said, "Nearly 97 percent of the 120 acre port west of Interstate 4 is occupied." It is time for the Port Authority to be disbanded.

The Port Authority by virtue of the fact that the majority of it is tax exempt places competition in the private sector (who are struggling to survive and pay their taxes) at an unfair disadvantage. Seminole County Industrial and commercial taxpayers deserve parity.

The $5 million worth of property at the Port that is exempt from property taxes places an undue, unneeded burden on homeowner taxpayers. In Seminole County, a "bedroom community" with a dearth of industrially taxed property, disbanding the Port Authority is the responsible thing to do.

In a flash, with a simple majority vote, you can begin the process to disband the Port Authority and add $5 million worth of existing taxable value to the tax rolls. One hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) a year in added tax revenue! How many years would it take to attract that much new industry?

It is my sincere request that you place this item on the next agenda and act upon it for the benefit of all the citizens of Seminole County.

GOP lacks 'the right man high'

Looked at from the overall strategic standpoint of the conservative movement, the prospects for 1996 are a frustrating affair.

Conservatism has come a long way since the 1950s, when it was the hobby of a small minority. In 1964, under the banner of Barry Goldwater, it seized control of the Republican Party. In 1980, under the leadership of Ronald Reagan, it captured the White House. In 1994, under the dynamic direction of Newt Gingrich, it ended the Democrats' 40-year rule over the House of Representatives. Surely, logic would suggest, 1996 ought to be the year when the conservative movement, represented politically by the Republican Party, at last gets it all together -- the presidency, the House, and the Senate -- and returns this country to the people, who founded it.

What's more, there are signs that the electorate is ready to cooperate. Nothing in politics is inevitable, but the mood displayed by the voters last November, the hapless performance of the incumbent Democratic president, and the dash and vigor of the Republican majorities in Congress, all suggest that the prospects for Republican victory in 1996, in both the presidential and congressional contests, are excellent. Why, then, aren't conservatives walking around with what Mark Twain once called "the serene expression of a Christian holding four aces"? The trouble is that they do not have an obvious successor to Goldwater and Reagan running for the Republican presidential nomination.

A somewhat similar problem faced British army colonel John Hunt as he planned the 1953 expedition that staged the first successful ascent of Mt. Everest. The problem, as Hunt saw it, was to put "the right man high at the right time." As we now know, he succeeded brilliantly, installing Hillary and Tenzing overnight in Camp IX, at 27,900 feet on the southeast ridge that led up to the 29,028-foot summit. The next morning they climbed the rest of the way.

Many conservatives feel that, as far as 1996 is concerned, they simply don't have "the right man high at the right time."

There is, of course, no lack of avowed conservatives, or for that matter real conservatives, seeking the nomination. But all of them have their own special problems. Pat Buchanan and Bob Dornan, for example, are surely conservative enough for anybody's taste, but realistically neither has a chance of being nominated: Just as a matter of personal style, they scare too many people.

Lamar Alexander, on the other hand, is downright soothing, but he spent 30 years in Republican politics without ever identifying himself as a conservative. He underwent a Saul-type conversion around last Nov. 8, and since then has been demanding that Washington be chopped up and distributed among the state capitals. But this strikes many conservatives as, if admittedly not a dollar short, still at least a day late.

Pete Wilson, newly on the scene, will undoubtedly proclaim himself a conservative too. But anyone tempted to believe him ought to consult some California conservative of their acquaintance before signing up.

The prospects for 1996 are a frustrating affair.

Radical pro-lifers go too far

The Long Island, N.Y., landlord who is trying to evict his abortion-clinic tenant says he is pro-choice. He is sympathetic to the reproductive rights movement, he just doesn't want to have anything to do with it. He believes a woman should have a right to choose, so long as she exercises that right far, far away from his property.

The landlord, Ronald J. Morey, has reason to be frightened. Signs saying "Danger. This is a War Zone" were posted on his property, and bullets were reportedly fired. Recent high-profile cases, such as the shootings at clinics in Brookline, Mass., and Pensacola, Fla., have understandably generated concern in communities near abortion clinics. And anyone who has lived or worked near an abortion clinic in the past decade knows that being near a radical anti-abortion protest is an experience that ranges from unpleasant to downright scary.

We all believe in the First Amendment and the right of peaceful protest, and there are sincere pro-lifers who voice their concerns in a lawful manner. But there is an increasing number of radicals who are making life intolerable and frequently unsafe for anyone who is remotely associated with an abortion provider. (Providers can include hospitals and obstetrician-gynecologists as well as clinics.) They block entrance ways, they threaten landlords, and they harass the customers of both the providers and the neighboring businesses.

In Port St. Lucie, Fla., anti-abortion activists lined the doors and windows of the Aware Women's Health Center with butyric acid. The attack brought on a variety of injuries -- including chemical pneumonia and hair loss -- to several clinic employees and one police officer. Soon after, the parents of the children who went to a nearby day-care center were sent letters saying it was unsafe for their children to be near the clinic.

The acid attack was one of an unrelenting series of disruptions against the clinic, the landlord and the other tenants of the building. When the landlords, who were pro-choice, would not renew the clinic's lease, Aware President Patricia Baird-Windle says she understood. "People thought I should be wildly angry with them, but I wasn't," said Baird-Windle. "The pressures brought against them were on the margins of intolerable."

This has been an extremely successful tactic for anti-abortion radicals: Make the area near the provider unsafe. Then pressure individuals around the provider to get rid of it because it is unsafe. The situation is so bad some communities have even tried to enact zoning laws to keep abortion providers away from schools and churches.

"The lease situation is just the latest in a series of various types of tactics used to harass providers to make it difficult to find office space," says Priscilla Smith, an attorney for the Center for Reproductive Law and Policy in New York City.

Smith says that while she understands the concerns of the landlords, it is simply wrong to punish an organization for the actions of its persecutors. "Nobody would raise any question if this was a Jewish organization or another organization that was traditionally the butt of hate crimes, but because it involves abortion people somehow say, 'Isn't this valid to kick them out?'" she says.

Though state courts have been consistently ruled for abortion providers, most of the time, as with the Port St. Lucie, Fla., case, the provider never takes it to court. Providers will decide it's not worth it to stay where they are not wanted.

On Constitution amendments

Time to take another peek at the amendments to the Constitution of the United States -- as ratified and/or revised by succeeding amendments.

Amendment XI, ratified on Feb. 7, 1795. This one denies any judicial power of the United States to be extended into any suit in law started or prosecuted against any state by any citizen of another state or of any foreign state. I can't recall this amendment hitting the news media's front page in a long time, if ever.

Amendment XXII, ratified June 15, 1951, and revised by Section 3 of Amendment XX which itself was ratified Jan. 23, 1933, some 129 years later. This amendment is much too lengthy to cover in any great detail. It does cover the election process of the president and vice president. The Senate and the House of Representatives get into the act under certain circumstances.

Amendment XIII, ratified December 6, 1865. This one is one of the biggies. Very short in words -- very long in content. It abolished slavery in its entirety and involuntary servitude except as punishment for some criminal act ... applicable to the entire country and its possessions.

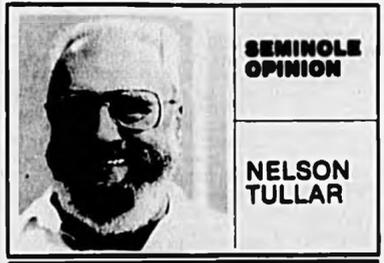

Amendment XIV, ratified on July 9, 1868. This amendment is again quite lengthy, having a total of five sections. A very big part of it covers the protection of U.S. citizens from state deprivation of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, nor denying any person equal protection of the laws. It also covers male voting rights at 21 years among other items.

Amendment XV, ratified Feb. 3, 1870. This one is short and right to the point. The citizens of the United States shall not be denied or abridged the right to vote on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude.

Amendment XVI, ratified on Feb. 3, 1913. Briefly stated -- Congress shall have the power to lay and collect taxes on incomes from whatever source. That's really plain and simple ... and as clear-cut as possibly can be. And, as it was ratified by a sufficient number of the then states, it is -- like it or not -- part of the law of the land. Protesters, stick a cork in it.

Amendment XVII, ratified on April 8, 1913. Covers the number of senators per state, their term of office, and how vacancies are filled. Two per state, each senator having one vote and for a term of six years.

Amendment XVIII, ratified Jan. 16, 1919 and repealed by the 21st Amendment on Dec. 5, 1933. This stinker made criminals out of previously good public servants: judges, lawyers, police, and probably a whole slew and a bootleggers. It also made millionaires out of bootleggers and the mobs controlled the crimes. During those 14 or so years, you couldn't even have a beer -- legally -- unless it's first name was Root or Birch. It was called ... "Prohibition."

Amendment XIX, ratified Aug. 18, 1920. Made voting a right regardless of sex. Simply put, it gave the gals a shot at electing some likely candidate into office ... just like the guys had been doing right along. It was ... the females right to vote. A darn good idea, eh!

Amendment XX, ratified Jan. 23, 1933. Rather lengthy, containing six sections. Covers the termination day of office for the president, vice president, senators, representatives, the frequency and commencement day for Congress' assembly and a few more finite points.

Amendment XXI, ratified Dec. 5, 1933. A big sigh of relief went up by the zillions from those who developed an extremely strong urge for a "legal" beer whose first name was not Root or Birch and from those cocktail lovers who could now enjoy -- legally -- their alcoholic beverages once again.

Amendment XXII, ratified Feb. 27, 1951. The first of the term limitation arguments, this one applied the air brakes to a third term as president of the United States of America. Mr. F.D.R., already in his third term, was exempted from this amendment. If this term limitation is OK for the president, why is it not OK for senators and representatives? Give that one a lot of deep thought.

Amendment XXIII, ratified March 29, 1961. Makes direct reference to the seat of government of the United States (poor old District of Columbia -- commonly thought of as D.C.) and its new right to shoulder some of the blame for what happens in "Washington, D.C." Yup! They then could field a number of electors for presidential and vice presidential elections. About time, by golly.

Only three more to go of those that made the grade and just maybe two other "wannabes" that most certainly deserve your most careful attention. You've heard and read much heifer dust about them in the last few months and that dust is most likely to continue ... and get deeper and deeper, and deeper.

Have a great day and a better tomorrow.

A 7-Eleven Store clerk at 110 E. Lake Mary Boulevard said she has been urging people to buy their tickets early. "But I expect Saturday will be the biggest day for sales," she added.

A clerk at Lil' Champ Food Store, 690 W. Airport Blvd., said ticket sales this week, "have been absolutely fantastic."

Based on past weeks when roll-overs have brought the prize amount sky-high, state officials were not surprised at the turnout of ticket buyers.

They are concerned however, with people who have allowed the possibility of a large win to blot their minds from almost anything else.

To help resolve the problem, counselors at a statewide gambling hotline are bracing for thousands of calls from gamblers who buy hundreds of dollars worth of lottery tickets.

For the estimated 400,000 compulsive gamblers in Florida, coping with the hype and euphoria over the large jackpot can be emotionally draining, ac-ording to the Florida Council on Compulsive Gambling, Inc., in Tallahassee.

Many callers will beg for financial assistance to make monthly mortgage payments, or for counseling to help conquer their compulsion, said Pat Fowler, the hotline's executive director.

"Some people can't stop at a dollar, 95 or $10," Fowler said. "Some may earn $500 a week and spend their entire pay check purchasing lottery tickets."

While most who play the lottery aren't compulsive gamblers, those who are find it difficult to resist the temptation to splurge as the purse gets bigger — though the odds of winning are about 14 million to one.

The lottery is the most enticing of games for compulsive gamblers, and more than half of those who called the hotline in the past have confessed to spending hundreds on Lotto tickets, Fowler said.

Lotto's promotion and the publicity it receives do little to dilute the temptation for gambling addicts, Fowler said.

A recovering addict who belongs to the Gambler's Anonymous group agreed.

"Lotto tickets are sold everywhere from supermarkets to convenience stores to gas stations," said the gambler, who didn't want to be identified. "We're told not to go to betting places or associate with other gamblers, but with the Florida Lotto, it's baloney because you just can't get away from it."

Helping compulsive gamblers is frustrating because there are almost no counseling or rehabilitation services in Florida, said Fowler. The hotline, a non-profit agency, operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The Lottery Department contributed $98,500 to the hotline and promotes its toll-free number, said lottery spokesman Ed George.

EDs: The 24-hour hotline of the Florida Council on Compulsive Gambling is 1-800-428-7711. Information from Associated Press is contained in this report.

8-year-old granddaughter, Toni Neuner. He pleaded guilty also to attempted sexual battery on Dick, aggravated child abuse, the kidnapping of Toni's 9-year-old sister, Wendi, and two counts of grand theft.

James strangled Toni and stabbed Dick 24 times. He also allegedly assaulted Dick with a candle holder. The defendant admitted tying up Wendi and taking her into the bathroom when she came into the bedroom where he was attacking Dick. She escaped and called for help.

James, also known as "Cave Man," was a paying boarder at Dick's home, 111 Clotiers Cove, Casselberry, at the time of the crimes.

The defendant pleaded no contest to two counts of capital sexual battery.

Assistant state attorney Stewart Stone, in detailing the prosecution's case said James committed sexual battery on the 8-year-old.

The autopsy revealed she was still alive at the time of the rape, but it couldn't be determined if she was conscious. James had strangled the little girl and then committed the rape.

James told Judge Alan Dickey this morning he was apparently angry at the time, but does not recall specific details of the rapes.

"My recollection is very vague," James explained, "that's why I'm pleading no contest to those counts."

In changing his plea, James told the judge he has had not been comfortable with the previous not guilty plea.

"I never felt comfortable pleading not guilty to the charges, but I was advised that I should enter that plea," he explained. "Pleading guilty is the only honest thing to do."

James had confessed to the crimes on television after he was captured in California shortly after the murders. He fled Florida in Dick's automobile and left a trail across the country where he pawned stolen jewelry before being arrested in California.

28 teachers at Lakeview Middle School are involved in playing numbers on their checks.

Similar to "liar's poker" where serial numbers on dollar bills are the basis for the bets, check numbers are reportedly used. If one player challenges another's claim his bill has four 8s, which he does, the challenger loses his dollar. If the player does not have the stated four 8s, the player forfeits his dollar to the challenger.

Specifics of the type and amounts of the alleged Lakeview wagering have not been revealed.

Sanford police Cmdr. Dennis Whitmire acknowledged the department has received a complaint about gambling by some of the middle school teachers from someone outside the school but would not disclose specific details.

Lakeview principal Jim Shupe said, "I predict allegations will be resolved."

Wolfgang Halbig, director of security for the school system, acknowledges he met recently with Sanford police to discuss the matter.

"There is no intent to arrest anyone at this time," Halbig said of the gambling investigation. He noted that in Florida, teachers are held to a higher level standard of conduct than others.

"The nexus between arrest and the ability to do the job for which they are hired," would be considered, he added. For example, a non-instructional school employee, such as a bus driver would be taken off the route if arrested, even while off-duty, for driving under the influence because it might impact their ability to do their job.

School officials would have to determine whether the alleged wagering by teachers interfered with their ability to do their jobs, he added, then decide on the appropriate measures to take.

Halbig said Supt. Paul Hagerty did not attend the meeting with Sanford Police. However, on March 3, the superintendent sent the following computer memo to Richard C. Wells, executive director of support services, regarding gambling.

"As we get near to the NCAA basketball playoffs, please make sure that no schools acknowledge, condone, or sponsored wagering occurs. This, of course, applies to other such situations where gambling is a possibility, i.e., Super Bowl, paycheck poker, baseball World Series games (if there ever is a season), etc. There is a state law prohibiting such activity. I am not officially aware of any problems in this area, but wanted to make sure I reminded you of an area where principals in other counties have had major problems."

Ironically, last week, a uniformed Clearlake Middle School resource officer in Cocoa was charged with violations of the federal gambling statutes in federal court in Orlando. The news release did not state whether any teachers took part in the wagering in that case.

The criminal information charges two Cocoa policemen along with four others, conducted an illegal gambling business, obtaining the line, taking bets, placing those bets, collecting for losses, paying winnings and calculating the account balances of bettors. The gambling activity allegedly took place while the policemen were on duty.

Originally, the resource officer placed bets with other officers, then began accepting bets from persons outside the department, according to the U.S. Attorney's office. The defendant passed on those bets and received the odds or line on games from another other police officer. He operated as a conduit for win and loss monies between bettors and the other officer.

U.S. district attorney Charles Wilson said the Brevard County men involved in the gambling activities have accepted a plea agreement to plead guilty to the gambling charge and face a maximum of five years in prison and a $250,000 fine. The investigation in the Cocoa case is continuing.

Sen. Alfonse D'Amato offends colleagues with Ito mockery

By RONALD POWERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Japanese-American colleagues of Sen. Alfonse D'Amato were unmoved by the New York Republican's apology for his piddling Japanese mockery of O.J. Simpson trial Judge Lance Ito on a nationally broadcast radio program.

"I don't know what we, as Americans of Japanese ancestry, have to do to be able to prove that we are Americans," said Rep. Norman Mineta, a California Democrat.

Mineta, who spent part of his boyhood locked in an internment camp during World War II with his parents, was visibly upset by D'Amato's ridicule of Ito and said it was a disgraceful affront to all Americans.

"He talks about 'little Judge Ito.' I don't think of (D'Amato) as any tall giant. As far as I'm concerned, we measure people from the neck up," Mineta said Wednesday. "For him to be mocking any ethnic and national group is just outrageous."

Mineta said today he has written D'Amato asking him to issue an unqualified apology directly to Ito, his family and all Americans of Japanese ancestry, but has no plans to talk to the senator.

"For him to say, 'if I offended anybody,' Mineta said on NBC's 'Today' show. "If he doesn't recognize and comprehend the nature of what he did then I feel very, very sorry for him."

As to D'Amato calling Ito pompous, Mineta said, "Well, I guess it takes one to know one."

D'Amato ignited this latest brouhaha on Tuesday with an early-morning phone call from Washington to the Imus in the Morning nationally syndicated radio show. With hundreds of thousands of people listening to the live broadcast, the senator, who was calling from Washington, began trashing the Japanese-American trial judge in a mocking Japanese accent. He was warned to stop by the New York show's often outrageous host, Don Imus.

"Judge Ito loves the limelight. He is making a disgrace of the judicial system," said D'Amato. "Little Judge Ito."

The usually inquisitive and accessible D'Amato spent Wednesday in his office ducking reporters and refusing to get on the telephone. While his colleagues were fuming, the senator's only comment came in the form of a two-sentence fax.

"If I offended anyone I'm sorry. I was making fun of the pomposity of the judge and the manner in which he's dragging the trial out," the statement said.

The length of the Simpson trial is what got under D'Amato's skin. On the radio program the Republican lawmaker moaned that he feared the double-murder trial would go on so long it would draw attention away from the Senate Whitewater hearings, which he will oversee.

"Judge Ito will keep us from getting television for the next year," D'Amato said in his mocking accent.

Rep. Robert Matsui, also a California Democrat, said it was "the height of irresponsibility" for the chairman of the Senate Banking Committee "to engage in racial slurs."

Patsy Mink, a Democrat from Hawaii and a member of Congress for nearly two decades, said she was at a loss for words to express her shock and disappointment in the senator.

This, she said, "is perhaps the most disappointing day of my life here in Washington."

The incident was just the latest brush with the bizarre for D'Amato, who called a news conference earlier this year to tell the world that he'd fallen in love.

In 1986, D'Amato and Rudolph Giuliani, who was then a federal prosecutor and is now the mayor of New York, dressed up like a couple of aging Hell's Angels to show how easy it was to buy a vial of crack in Manhattan.

During debate on last year's crime bill, D'Amato gleefully entertained his Senate colleagues, singing to the tune of "Old McDonald" that "President Clinton had a bill, E-I-E-I-O."

Clinton reforms include test of partial FDA privatization

By LAURAN NEERGAARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration is preparing to allow private organizations to review whether certain medical devices are safe and effective enough to offer American patients, Clinton administration documents show.

The move is part of a package of FDA reforms to be announced by the White House today that could save medical industries $500 million in regulatory costs.

FDA critics, who say the agency takes too long to approve new treatments, have clamored for the United States to copy Europe. There, new medical devices from X-rays to heart valves are reviewed by government-accredited firms that decide whether they can be sold.

The FDA won't go that far, according to documents obtained by The Associated Press.

In an experiment set to begin early next year, FDA will accredit private firms to review certain low-risk medical devices such as the cholesterol and drug-abuse tests performed in doctors' laboratories and electronic stethoscopes for measuring heartbeats.

Those firms will decide whether the devices work properly and are safe. The FDA retains the final say, but is expected to quickly follow the outside reviewers' decision unless it finds evidence that the devices shouldn't be used on patients.

The two-year pilot program will demonstrate whether critics are right in contending that outside scientists can do the medical testing and safety review faster than the government. If so, private firms might be allowed to review other FDA-regulated products, the reform plan says.

The plan comes as the Republican-controlled Congress, prompted by complaints from medical companies and conservative think tanks, prepares to overhaul the FDA. Although agency approval times are improving, it still can take two years to approve a new medicine for sale. FDA Commissioner David Kessler was addressing those issues at a Senate hearing today.

Some critics have called for even more drastic revamping of FDA, including having the agency only certify drugs' safety and letting individual doctors determine whether they actually work.

Consumer advocates have been fearful of calls to privatize FDA functions. However, this plan is very cautious and resembles one put forth earlier this week by FDA advocate Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore.

The FDA two weeks ago took tentative reform steps itself, including eliminating 125 very low-risk medical devices, such as bandages, from agency review.

The reforms announced today go much further: —Biotech firms would no longer have to build full-scale manufacturing plants before the FDA determined whether their drugs could be sold. This rule stemmed from biotech's earliest days, when doctors feared drugs made from living material might turn out differently when they moved from pilot-sized facilities to huge plants after FDA approval. The change would save 100-500 companies now awaiting FDA approval some $25 million apiece in construction costs.

—Medical companies would no longer have to get special FDA approval to export products that aren't yet approved here but are wanted by other industrialized countries. The industry says this red tape has sent dozens of U.S. firms overseas.

—FDA will harmonize its requirements for new medicines with those of other nations, so companies don't have to redo international research in Americans before the FDA will approve a product.

The reforms are "a significant step in the right direction," said Alan Magazine of the Health Industry Manufacturers' Association, who lobbied for several of the changes.

sexual activity.
The videotape has not yet been turned over to or found by the investigators.
Sellers has denied the allegations to sheriff's office investigators, but he declined to discuss the details with them on the advice of his attorney, they said.
He was unavailable for comment to the Sanford Herald this morning.
A school district investigation was done into the incident by ombudsman John Reichert before the sheriff's office was called. The broad investigation convinced the school district officials that the student's allegations should be taken seriously.
The allegations came to the attention of the school district when the young woman was called to principal Don Smith's office after she allegedly shoved Sellers during an argument outside his classroom.
She is not a student in any of his classes, nor was she at the time of the alleged affair.

Simpson trial update

LOS ANGELES — It was no secret that O.J. Simpson's lawyers were going to make a big deal about the blanket tossed over Nicole Brown Simpson's body, the rookie criminalist and the crime-scene glove that got moved.

Yet when those issues were raised during a precise cross-examination of criminalist Dennis Fung, it all seemed so fresh, and so terribly damaging. All of a sudden, the defense was exposing cracks in the strongest part of the prosecution's case — the physical evidence.

By the end of Wednesday's court session, the defense had Fung, a prosecution witness, second-guessing his own decisions and those of top police investigators.

Defense attorney Barry Scheck got Fung to acknowledge that two bloody leather gloves — one found at the murder scene and one at Simpson's estate — might have been contaminated before they were tested. Prosecutors say the glove found on Simpson's estate contains a mixture of blood from Simpson and the victims.

Delay sought in Hubbell sentencing

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — A special prosecutor wants to delay sentencing a former Justice Department official in the Whitewater case, saying his cooperation with investigators is incomplete.

Webster Hubbell was scheduled to be sentenced April 28, but independent counsel Kenneth Starr asked Wednesday for a delay until at least June 28.

Starr said the process of getting "full, complete, accurate and truthful information" from Hubbell was not complete.

Hubbell, a friend of President Clinton and Hillary Rodham Clinton, pleaded guilty Dec. 7 to mail fraud and tax evasion, saying he falsely billed the Rose Law Firm and its clients for nearly $400,000.

Hubbell was a Rose partner with Mrs. Clinton until he was named the Justice Department's third-highest official in Clinton's administration.

Starr said Hubbell and his lawyer, John Nicols, did not object to the delay. Hubbell referred calls to Nicols, who did not return messages for comment.

Lawyers familiar with the case have told The Associated Press that prosecutors want to ask Hubbell about possible interference by the Clinton administration in Whitewater investigations.

Cook charged with tabasco attack

LEBANON, N.H. — The suspect was armed — with a bottle of Tabasco sauce that was considered dangerous.

Michael Towne, a 20-year-old cook at Denny's, has pleaded innocent to assaulting two Vermont state troopers by spiking their breakfast eggs with Tabasco.

Troopers Timothy Cloutre and Michael Manning, who had crossed into New Hampshire for breakfast on Feb. 7, said the eggs burned their mouths and upset one officer's stomach.

"We've got enough trouble without people screwing around with our food," said Lebanon police Lt. Ken Lary.

But Towne said he apologized after the troopers complained and the waitress offered them a free meal. He said he told the troopers he did not spice their eggs intentionally.

"One guy said it was spicy; the other said it was flavorful," he said.

Towne could be fined $2,000 and sentenced to a year in jail on each count. He'll be on the hot seat June 6, when his trial is scheduled to begin.

Tentative settlement in GM strike

PONTIAC, Mich. — Striking auto workers have reached a tentative agreement to end a five-day walkout at a General Motors Corp. pickup assembly plant.

Members of United Auto Workers Local 594 were to vote tonight on the contract. Production will resume Friday if the agreement is ratified, officials said.

GM's Pontiac East plant builds one-third of the automaker's full-size pickup trucks.

The 5,500 UAW workers at the plant and an associated engineering center struck Friday in a dispute over jobs for 1,500 workers whose positions were eliminated when GM closed a nearby plant.

The union wanted the company to create jobs for them at Pontiac East; the company wanted union approval to transfer them to other plants.

Neither union nor company officials would discuss the agreement. But Local 594 President Don Douglas told union members that "we got everything we wanted and then some."

The strike — the seventh at GM in the last 16 months — included other issues related to health, safety and the use of outside contractors.

Warm winter: Severe allergy season

WASHINGTON — Two words may explain the sneezing, stuffy noses and itchy, watery eyes you may have been experiencing lately: warm winter.

The second-warmest winter in the past 100 years has caused trees to begin releasing their pollen a bit earlier than normal.

Pollen counts usually begin to build about now, but high counts are being recorded nationwide because of the mild weather, said Sarah Kaluzny-Petroff of the American Academy of Allergy Asthma and Immunology in Milwaukee.

"It's kind of everywhere," she said. "Mild winter, with the real nice pop of weather that we had, really just jump-started all the trees."

Kaluzny-Petroff declined to forecast the severity of the 1995 allergy season, but said "indications are that it's going to be an active one."

"This year we're seeing high levels overall, so a lot of people aren't feeling good if they haven't started their medications up," she said.

Some 35 million Americans suffer from seasonal allergies. The academy has about 70 stations across the country that count pollen, and only six cities had low readings last week for tree pollen, she said.

Grass pollen is also on the rise in parts of the South as well.

Study: Poor kids lack access to preschool

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A majority of poor, preschool-age children lack access to the health, nutrition and education services they need to get ready for elementary school, congressional investigators say in a report today.

"Disadvantaged children, who are most likely to face difficulties upon entering school and who would benefit most from attending early childhood centers, are the least likely to attend them," the General Accounting Office said.

According to the GAO, the congressional watchdog agency, more than a third — 2.8 million — of the country's 3- and 4-year-olds were from low-income families in 1990, an increase of 17 percent since 1980.

These children, the GAO said, often live in homes that provide little intellectual stimulation and inadequate health care and nutrition. Consequently, their development, including their preparation for elementary school, is undermined.

The GAO's analysis of the 1990 census showed that only about 35 percent of low-income children attended an early childhood program in 1989.

By contrast, 60 percent of children in high-income families — those that earned more than $63,370 for a family of four — attended an early childhood program, such as a preschool, nursery school or child-care center.

The researchers said lack of spaces and funding are reasons why more low-income children are not being served, but they also blamed some programs for being too narrowly focused and limited in their ability to provide appropriate services.

Sen. Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn., who requested the study, said it "adds to the volumes of evidence about the dismal state of affairs for many young Americans."

"More and more American children are living in a sort of underdeveloped nation within our own borders," Dodd said.

Legislation passed by the House last month would consolidate several federal child care programs and turn the responsibility over to the states in the form of a block grant. But Head Start, a federally funded program that served 740,493 low-income preschool children last year, would not be changed.

Of the low-income children who were enrolled in a child development program in 1989, 41 percent attended Head Start, which is supposed to provide a full range of child development, parent support and health services.

The remaining 59 percent were in centers that are less likely than Head Start to provide such an array of services, the GAO said.

Cat survives 27 days in packing box

By The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. — A fat cat named Panther lost weight the hard way — she spent 27 days in a packing box without food or water when her owners moved from Florida to Oregon.

The black cat flecked with orange was inadvertently shut in the box when Linda Monroe and her daughter, Carolyn, packed in Miami. When Panther was found Tuesday, she had slimmed down from 14 to 9 pounds.

Panther probably survived because she was overweight, said veterinarian Lynn Erdman, who treated Panther for dehydration.

Linda Monroe said the 8-year-old cat disappeared while the movers were working. She asked them to check their van, but Panther was nowhere to be found.

The movers heard a meow while unloading boxes at an Oregon storage locker. Monroe whistled and found Panther in a box in the back.

Erdman said Panther's prognosis is pretty good. "It all depends on the condition of her liver and kidneys."

Carolyn Monroe, 13, couldn't believe Panther had been found. "My mom called me and said, 'I heard a meow.' I just burst into tears."

Triumphant House GOP sends tax cuts to Senate

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — With the central promise of their "Contract With America" fulfilled, House Republicans are basking in triumph after ramming through a five-year, $169 billion tax cut Democrats say will rob from the poor to give to the rich.

But the glow may be short-lived. It's unclear which, if any, provisions of the huge package will survive a skeptical Senate and President Clinton's veto pen.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., declaring the moment "a truly historic and at the same time truly personal experience," shrugged off Democrats' criticism.

With victory in hand Wednesday night, Gingrich struck a conciliatory tone after a day of unusually acid debate. He thanked in advance of the vote the 27 Democrats who bolted to support the final chapter of the GOP's extraordinary 100-day juggernaut to reduce the size and reach of federal government.

"The American people can be proud of the United States House for what we have done together," he declared.

As midnight approached, Democrats ran out of procedural ploys and the bill Gingrich calls the "crowning jewel" of the "contract" passed 246-188. Republicans permitted no amendments and decisively rejected a $32 billion Democratic alternative.

The GOP plan offers a $500-per-child tax credit for families earning up to $200,000, a reduction in the so-called marriage penalty on two-earner couples, tax breaks for retirees, expanded Individual Retirement Accounts, a credit for adoptive parents and a list of business-backed measures headed by a sharp reduction in the capital gains tax on profits from selling securities and real estate.

Now it goes to the Senate, where senior Republicans such as Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici of New Mexico and Finance Committee Chairman Bob Packwood of Oregon have wondered aloud how they can cut taxes deeply and simultaneously eliminate the budget deficit.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., considered the front-running GOP presidential hopeful for 1996, assured reporters, "We're going to have a tax bill." But he warned, "We didn't get elected just to rubber-stamp everything the House did."

The tax-cut bill will join in the Senate many other House-passed components of the "Contract With America" — welfare, crime, changes in the civil justice system among them — facing extensive changes.

Senate Democrats, although in the minority, wield more influence than in the House, whose procedures are designed to speed majority action. Their 48 votes are more than enough to stop action under Senate rules that require 60 of the 100 senators to break a filibuster.

Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said the tax-cutting House GOP agenda was "designed to reward the rich and the well-connected at the expense of America's middle-class families."

"That is wrong and Democrats will fight it," he said.

Pressed by his Cabinet to threaten the House bill with a veto, Clinton sniped at House Republicans as "the less-than-everything crowd" but generally modulated his criticism at a news conference.

He said he would work with the Senate to get a tax cut more like his own proposal — smaller and focused on promoting college education.

"I do not want a pile of vetoes," he said. "If we're going to have a tax cut, it ought to be for middle-class people to raise their children and educate themselves and their children because that will raise incomes over the long run."

However, Republicans picked up 84 Democratic votes in defeating the Democrats' own alternative plan, 313-118. It included measures similar to Clinton's proposals for expanded IRAs and a college tuition deduction, but dropped his version of the per-child tax credit.

The House debate on the tax cut bill mirrored themes almost certain to be played out in next year's elections. Democrats accused Republicans of funneling tax benefits to the wealthy while cutting programs that help children and the needy.

"Under the Republican theory of trickle-down economics, working families won't even get wet," said Rep. Jim McDermott, D-Wash.

Alternatively, Democrats accused the GOP of planning to renege on their budget cuts, risking a repeat of the 1980s, when President Reagan and Congress cut taxes but never followed through with spending reductions.

Israeli customs confiscates pencil boxes

JERUSALEM — It wasn't the danger posed by a sharpener blade, but the threat of a map describing Israel as "Palestine" that led authorities to confiscate thousands of pencil boxes destined for the PLO-run Gaza Strip.

The metal cases were shown in a photograph in the Maariv newspaper Wednesday with the caption "dangerous pencil boxes."

Israel's Customs Authority said the 18,000 Chinese-made boxes, shipped to the southern port of Ashdod this week, would be held indefinitely because of the map.

"The shipment is being held up simply because we believe the material is inciteful," said customs spokeswoman Idit Lev-Zerahia.

Rigged case brought to bomb factory

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip — A stranger gave a rigged briefcase to a young boy and had him take it to a Hamas hideout minutes before a deadly explosion gutted the place, the Muslim militant group claimed today.

The man approached the boy as he played in front of the hideout, a second-story apartment in Gaza City's Sheikh Radwan neighborhood, and handed him the case, said a Hamas leaflet distributed today.

"He talked to the boy and then the boy was seen entering the apartment," the leaflet said. "After a little while, there was a huge explosion in the apartment."

The leaflet said Kamal Kahil, a senior commander of Hamas' military wing Izzedine al-Qassam, arrived at the hideout a few minutes before Sunday's blast. Kahil was killed in the explosion and the leaflet suggested he was a target.

Three people died in the explosion, including a 4-year-old boy who was in the apartment, Hamas said. Police initially put the death toll at six, but so far only three bodies have been identified.

Hamas has been trying to portray the explosion as an assassination carried out by Israel and Yasser Arafat's government.

Israel has dismissed the allegations as nonsense and Palestinian police said the blast was set off when Kahil and his comrades mishandled a booby-trapped suitcase they were putting together for an attack in Israel.

Dollar down, gold up

LONDON — The dollar skidded lower in European trading today. Gold prices were higher in London.

- Dollar rates compared with late Wednesday:
 - 1.3740 German marks, down from 1.3815
 - 85.45 Japanese yen, down from 86.15
 - 1.1270 Swiss francs, down from 1.1341
 - 4.7900 French francs, down from 4.8330

 - 1.713.10 Italian lire, down from 1.718.50
 - 1.3918 Canadian dollars, down from 1.3921
- The British pound was quoted at $1.6070, up from $1.6063 late Wednesday.

Earlier in Tokyo trading, the dollar briefly fell to 85.11 yen, the lowest level since modern exchange rates were established in the late 1940s. It closed in Tokyo at 85.42.

London's major bullion dealers fixed a recommended gold price of $393.75 per ounce at midmorning, up from the closing price of $392.00 bid per ounce Wednesday.

In Zurich gold was quoted at $393.75, up from $392.40 late Wednesday.

In Hong Kong, where markets were closed Wednesday, gold closed at $393.30 Thursday.

Silver traded in London at $5.42 a troy ounce, up from $5.31 a troy ounce Wednesday.

Bandits or international terrorists?

MANILA, Philippines — Six months ago, they were dismissed as bandits on the verge of extinction. Today officials consider them part of a network of Islamic extremists that includes defendants in the World Trade Center bombing.

Little is known about the Abu Sayyaf group, which officials blame for Tuesday's raid on the southern town of Ipi. It left at least 52 people dead, 44 wounded and the community in shambles.

Authorities are alarmed at the possibility that violent Islamic extremists are gaining influence among some Muslims in this predominantly Catholic country. Muslims account for estimated 6 million of the Philippines' 66 million people.

Extremists want to "re-establish Islam in this part of the world, especially since the Philippines is the only Christian country in Asia," Interior Secretary Rafael Alunan said Tuesday.

The recent violence has emerged at a time the government thought it was about to resolve a 25-year Muslim separatist movement in the southern Philippines.

Last year, the government began peace talks with the secular-oriented Moro National Liberation Front, which had waged a sporadic insurgency to establish a Muslim state.

The front condemned the Ipi attack. But the military believes some front renegades took part in it, adding to suspicions the group's leadership no longer controls its armed units.

Nearly all that is known about the Abu Sayyaf group, which also calls itself "the Islamic Movement," comes from the Philippine military.

The group's leader is Aburajak Abubakar Janjalani, 34, a former teacher from a Muslim-Christian family on Basilan Island, 550 miles south of Manila.

Gynecologist indicted

ROME — Police shut the office of a Neapolitan gynecologist charged with secretly impregnating a patient with sperm not from her husband, but from a donor who passed on a hereditary disease.

An indictment issued Tuesday also charges Raffaele Magli with using only two sperm donors to fertilize eggs that resulted in "hundreds or thousands" of births, "in violation of the most basic protocol of bioethics."

Police shut Magli's office in Naples' fashionable Mergellina neighborhood Tuesday on orders from prosecutor Nicola Ciccarelli, whose indictment called the gynecologist "a public peril."

"We're happy above all for the shutting down of his office so others won't suffer the same abuse we did," the husband, Roberto Minucci, told RAI state TV.

Magli, 40, apparently is the first doctor indicted for alleged abuse of Italy's highly unregulated but quickly growing field of "test-tube" births.

Cristina Iervolino became suspicious of Magli when her daughter Giada, now 2, was diagnosed as having thalassemia, a potentially fatal type of anemia. Both parents must be carriers for a baby to get the disease; Iervolino is a carrier but Minucci is not.

Magli accused Iervolino of conceiving the child in an extra-marital affair. He also has sued the couple, claiming they tried to extort $600,000 in exchange for a promise not to go to the police. The lawsuit is pending.

The indictment accuses Magli of fraud and aggravated personal injury. It contends the doctor recommended artificial insemination for the couple when they could have had children themselves, then used a donor's sperm instead of the husband's without telling the couple.

Magli also is charged with not running checks on the sperm, which apparently carried the hereditary disease. A preliminary hearing was scheduled for Oct. 4.

Gun parts reportedly found in cult vehicle

By KOZO MIZOGUCHI
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO — Police seized a large number of gun parts today from a car belonging to members of the cult being investigated in Tokyo's subway nerve gas attack, reports said.

Authorities, meanwhile, refused to comment on reports in a leading Japanese magazine that the sect, Aum Shinri Kyo, hid a large amount of a diluted liquid form of sarin, the gas used in the attack, in the mountains.

The Weekly Bunshun reported today that a sect informer told police that several sect members posing as hikers took 25,000 small plastic containers with sarin to Japan's Southern Alps in August and buried them.

Sarin, developed by the Nazis in the 1930s, is a clear liquid that evaporates easily into a lethal nerve gas. Even a small amount, either inhaled as gas or absorbed through the skin as a liquid, can kill a person in minutes.

It was used in the Tokyo 20 attacks on five Tokyo subways. Eleven people died and 8,500 were sickened.

Aum Shinri Kyo, or Supreme Truth, has repeatedly denied involvement. It also insists it had nothing to do with the shooting a week ago of Japan's top police officer, who directed the investigation into the gas attack. The officer remains in serious condition.

In more than two weeks of searches of cult properties throughout Japan, police say they have found hundreds of barrels of chemical materials, including sarin ingredients.

They say they also have found sophisticated biochemical labs and evidence the group was working on biological weapons.

Police seized gun parts today from a car parked illegally at a Tokyo condominium parking garage. Three sect members were arrested as they approached the car, police said. They would not comment further.

Kyodo News Service said there were enough parts to make at least 10 weapons.

Separately, four sect members were arrested Wednesday for trespassing at Tokyo Dome, a baseball stadium, a police spokesman said. The four were distributing fliers declaring the group's innocence in the gas attack and collecting signatures.

News reports say at least 24 sect members now have been arrested on various charges, none directly related to the subway attack. Police must show a direct link to a crime before charging an individual.

Yoshinobu Aoyama, a lawyer for the sect, told reporters today that 52 children of cult followers were not attending Japanese schools and were being taught at the group's communes instead.

The status of cult children has received considerable attention in education-conscious Japan. Aoyama said parents should have the right to control their children's education.

Report: Traditional cure ends 5-year coma

By The Associated Press

BEIJING — A treatment using traditional Chinese medicines has revived dozens of people from comas, including one man who was unconscious for five years, the official media reported Wednesday.

The Recovery's Heilongjiang province has treated 38 people with the medicine and all regained consciousness, hospital director Wang Dawei told the Xinhua News Agency.

The therapy uses medicine that promotes blood circulation and acupuncture, said the report, which did not give details. It was impossible to independently confirm the report.

China's official media regularly claim that traditional Chinese medicine can cure all sorts of ills, from AIDS to the common cold.

According to Wednesday's report, Gou Xiaodong, 43, was injured in a car accident five years ago and lapsed into a coma. After three months of treatment, Xinhua said, Gou is walking with the help of nurses and can understand speech.

Shaq leads Magic by Pistons

ORLANDO — Shaquille O'Neal scored 40 points and Dennis Scott had 30 Wednesday as the Orlando Magic overcame the loss of Nick Anderson (see related brief) to rally for a 128-125 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

O'Neal, who also had 19 rebounds, refused to let his team lose. Although the Magic was only 32-for-49 on free throws, Orlando made six of seven in the last 1:01 with O'Neal making one for a 126-125 lead with 32 seconds left.

Anthony Bowie added a pair of free throws with 8.5 seconds to go, then blocked Lindsey Hunter's 3-point attempt to spoil a 41-point performance by Detroit's Joe Dumars.

Anderson suffers concussion

ORLANDO — Nick Anderson sustained a concussion Wednesday night when the Orlando Magic guard bumped heads with Rafael Addison of the Detroit Pistons.

Anderson remained face down for about 10 minutes while trainers and paramedics examined him. He was removed on a stretcher and taken to Florida Hospital, where he was to remain overnight for observation.

The Magic were already without their top point guards, Anfernee Hardaway (inflamed esophagus) and Brian Shaw (strained groin).

Marlins, Dodgers open April 25

MELBOURNE — The Florida Marlins will open this year's major league season with an April 25 game against the Los Angeles Dodgers. Marlins officials said Wednesday.

The two teams will open both the exhibition and regular season schedules. The exhibition game will be played April 13 at Vero Beach, and the regular-season opener will be April 25 at Joe Robbie Stadium, Marlins officials said.

The Marlins were expected to announce their ticket policy Thursday, and tickets will go on sale Friday.

Marlins sign Hammond, Diaz

MELBOURNE — Left-hander Chris Hammond, a likely starter for the Florida Marlins, signed a new contract with the team, officials said Wednesday.

Terms weren't disclosed. Hammond had been eligible to file for salary arbitration. Last season, he had a 4-4 record and a 3.07 ERA.

Infielder Mario Diaz signed a one-year contract, increasing the roster to 36 players.

The Marlins traded pitcher Matt Peterson to the Chicago Cubs for a player to be named later.

Rangers jump on Panthers

MIAMI — After nearly five periods of scoreless hockey played between the New York Rangers and Florida Panthers, Steve Larmer broke the drought late in the second period to lead the struggling defending Stanley Cup champions to a 5-0 victory Wednesday night.

The Rangers exploded for four goals in the third period, including two by Alexei Kovalev, his ninth and 10th of the season. Pat Verbeck slammed in a rebound for his 10th of the season and third as a Ranger.

Rangers goaltender Mike Richter turned away 19 shots for his second shutout of the season, both coming against the Panthers. The result marked the first time in franchise history that Florida had been shut out at home.

Tribe goes on offensive

Chunat keys baseball rout

From Staff Reports

PORT ORANGE — Given the opportunity, Jeff Chunat seized it in a big way, slamming his first home run of the season along with a double and a single Wednesday to lead Seminole to a 14-5 baseball win over the Atlantic Sharks.

Chunat also scored three runs and drove in two for the Tribe (8-9).

"Jeff had one hit on the season until today," said Seminole coach Mike Powers. "Not too bad for a kid coming off the bench. He hasn't played in about five games. He just may have earned himself another start."

Winning pitcher Chris Youmans also launched his first home run of the season to go with a single and four RBI.

Also contributing to Seminole's 13-hit attack were Mike Meadows (double, single, two runs, three RBI) and Youmans (1). Records — Seminole 6-9, Atlantic 5-10.

Battery helps softball run

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Pitcher Jackie Hubbard and catcher Lisa Richards guided the Seminole Fighting Seminoles to a 23-13 win over the Pine Ridge Panthers Wednesday, giving the Tribe their first softball win streak in two years.

On Tuesday, Seminoles beat Leesburg 5-3.

"These are our first back-to-back wins since we made the switch to fastpitch last year," said Seminole coach David Rogers. "It's been a long time coming, but the girls have earned it. They're playing well."

After starting every other game on the mound for the Seminoles, Hubbard came on in relief Wednesday, spelling Simone Branch in the top of the third inning and closing out the game to notch the win.

Offensively, Hubbard had only one hit, but it was her first home run.

Rain again interrupts SAC tennis tourney

By TONY BOGARDON

Herald Sports Editor

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — They gave it their best shot and still wound up getting wet.

For the third year in a row, the first day of play in the Seminole Athletic Conference tennis tournament was interrupted by rain.

Lyman High School coach and tournament coordinator Jack Bloomingdale said that they'll try again today.

"We've stopped play for today," said Bloomingdale after meeting with the rest of the coaches and deciding to suspend play at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday. "All we can do is try again tomorrow."

"We've told all the players to try to be here around 3 p.m. and we'll get started as quickly as we can. But I understand that we're supposed to have more rain tomorrow. We'll just have to wait and see."

Should play be rained out Thursday, they will try to complete the tournament Friday. With spring break for Seminole County schools coming up next week, Bloomingdale didn't want to consider the possibility of the tournament being extended beyond Friday.

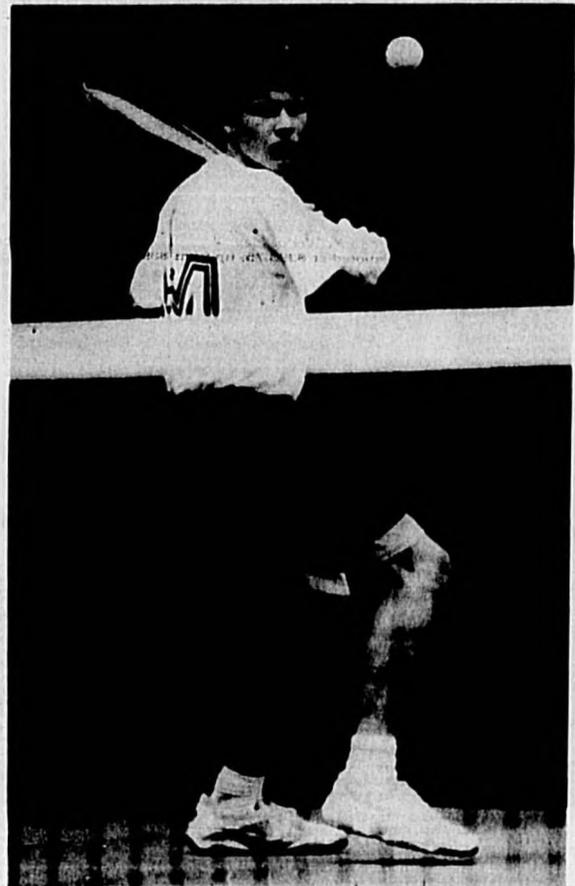

To expedite matters, the SAC coaches had adopted a pro-set format for this year's tournament. As a result, all but one first-round singles match were completed and most of the singles semifinals were on the court when play was suspended.

All matches that were in progress will continue from the point of interruption.

Including the matches currently underway, there are 51 matches (31 singles, 20 doubles) left to be played in the tournament.

Pirates take A's off unbeaten list

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — One undefeated team dealt another undefeated team its first loss in Sanford Recreation Babe Ruth Baseball League action Wednesday night at Zinn Beck Field.

Winning pitcher Tug Daniels doubled, singled, and scored a run to help the Mouse Lodge Pirates knock off the Signs by Design A's 6-2.

Meanwhile, in Sanford Memorial Stadium, the Elks Lodge No. 1241 Blue Jays rolled over the Expos 13-4.

With the win, the Pirates (3-0) join the Rotary Club Royals (also 3-0) as the only remaining undefeated teams in the 12-team circuit. The A's drop to 2-1 while the Blue Jays improve to 2-1. The Expos are now one of four teams at 1-2 on Sanford's Junior Williams was the only Seminole County power ski rider competing in the 1995 Offshore Cup Tour season finale this past Sunday in Daytona Beach. Competing in the Amateur R-A 0-1200 cc Mod Division, Williams was unable to finish the grueling 8-mile event as high winds made racing in Daytona's pounding particularly difficult.

IN BRIEF

50th anniversary set

The veterans of World War II will celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Japanese surrender in Tokyo Bay on Sept. 2, 1945 this year.

Most U.S. Navy ships that were in service at that time will host reunions to observe the event and to bring together shipmates from those days gone by.

One of those reunions is that of the USS Hesperia. It will be on May 19, 20, and 21.

For information about that reunion, write to Harold A. Curry, 1300 62nd Terrace South, St. Petersburg FL 33705 or call 813-867-4530.

Seminole Spokes to meet

The Seminole Spokes-Welcome Wagon Club of Seminole County will host a "coffee" for newcomers on Wednesday, April 12 from 10 a.m. until noon.

For information on the location of the event, call Kay at 834-8770 or Ann at 695-3318.

They will also hold the monthly luncheon meeting at Maison et Jardin, 430 Wymore Rd., Altamonte Springs at 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday, April 19.

The featured event at the luncheon will be a Merle Johnson-SteinMart fashion show.

For reservations, call Ann at 695-3318 or Kathy at 869-0652.

Reservations need to be made the Friday before the luncheon.

The clinic is sponsored by the Seminole County Health Department in conjunction with the Seminole County Sheriff's Office and Geneva Elementary School. For information, call 349-8284.

Substance abuse discussed

SAFE, Substance Abuse Family Education, is conducting a "Families in Crisis" outreach program. Interested organizations wanting to contact the Life Savers Club of SAFE may call Libby Kuharake at 291-4357.

What is called the 'New Age?'

DEAR MR. STEWART: I am really interested in what is called the "New Age." Can you explain how one goes about finding a good psychic and what to look for? I've seen ads about seminars, advertisements for psychics, and have been to a few local bookstores, but everyone with whom I speak makes me feel that I'm being hustled. Can you please help me to better understand and are you a good psychic?

'Especially'
JERRY STEWART

EDDY EDWARDS WINTER PARK

DEAR EDDY: The first thing you have to understand is that there are a lot of people out there pretending to be something they are not. Many of them are causing damage to people by conveying their own express views and opinions to many people who just want to believe in something and are on a search for truth and enlightenment. Unfortunately, many forget the primary aspect of education when it comes to personal needs and attention.

Let's first discuss the "Don'ts." Don't align yourself with people or organizations that profess that they have all the answers or that they are going to teach you in "one weekend" how to become fully aware of yourself or maybe even become psychic. Don't listen to those who profess total love, kindness, and spiritual uplift and claim that there is no dark side.

In this case, I'm not referring to Satan or evil, but rather the human experience of failure, loss, disappointment, frustration, and anxiety. I'm sure that I could even add a few more to this list as well. Don't align yourself with some self-styled guru that has a following of believers and has you perhaps sell flowers in the middle of U.S. Highway 17-92 or hand out brochures at Orlando International Airport.

Now that we have covered the Don'ts, (at least some of them), let us proceed with your own self-determination, free will, and your ability to make choices; as I believe that each of us are free to choose as we can, with knowledge increasing, along the long road of life, for we are never completed in our task for knowledge from the very day that we are born.

On your personal road to enlightenment, knowledge is going to be the key factor: long before you make any decisions, at least I hope you try anyway.

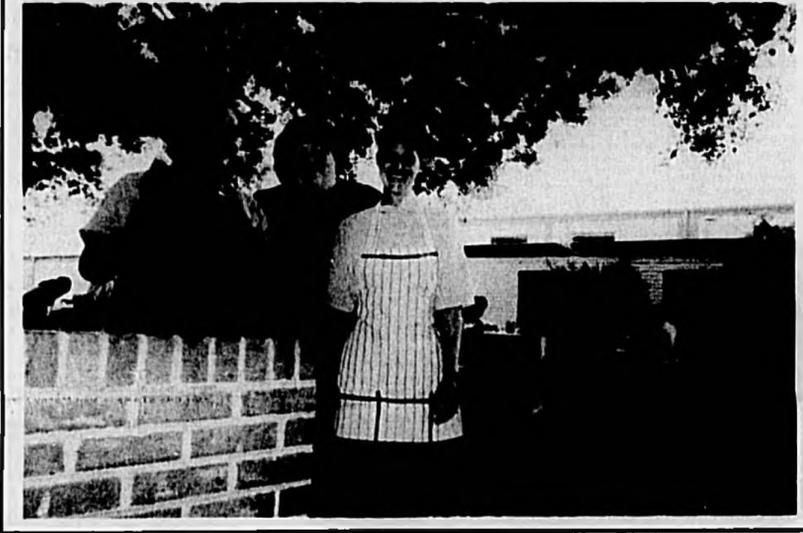

If I were to encapsulate three words which might indeed help you on your search, I would say "peace of mind," followed not by some "mantra" or "severe meditation exercise," but the actual application of what you have studied, learned, practiced, tried, and then understanding that the "secret" that you have been looking for, combined with a little knowledge, was actually you yourself.

Each of us upon God's creation called terra firma or earth has the distinct ability to feel, think, communicate, recall, project, estimate, surmise, influence, detract, and every other condition of human emotion and involvement, whether positive or negative according to the way that you, yes you, choose to use it!

And am I a good psychic? Let me just say that I do not wear a turban, have no followers, dress country western, sometimes say a four-letter word, don't profess that the "end of the world is coming," don't take donations, (unless it's for my favorite charities, MDA (Muscular Dystrophy Association) and the Association for Retarded Citizens and definitely don't have all the answers. As you see, I'm still learning about life each and every day and will probably do so 'til I'm called to return to my creator. And if I am to return reincarnated, please let it be as an "educator" and have more time to "help people to help themselves," as that is what it is really about.

And as for your own self-development, try to learn more about the "right hemisphere" of your brain and much will be learned and then you can put it to practice. And may the "for not 'The Force' be with you!" And as for all you other Trekkies out there, write to me.

It's illegal not to honor Living Will

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Grieving Widow, Edgewater, Fla.," concerning Living Wills brought back some painful memories.

My husband died of a heart attack a year ago. When I discovered him, he had already started to turn blue. I called 911. The police arrived quickly and began administering CPR. After what seemed like a long time, I finally said, "Please stop; my husband has suffered with pain for years, and lately he's been talking about suicide — let him go! He has a Living Will." They said they were under standing orders to apply CPR until the emergency medical technicians arrived. When they got there, the police told them about the Living Will, but they insisted on contacting his doctor. I was grateful that the doctor instructed them to discontinue CPR. This illustrates that only the doctor's decision counts — not what the patient wants.

ADVICE

Later the police officers, who were very comforting, told me that my husband was already gone when they arrived.

It angers me when doctors who oppose the right to die insist they can keep patients free from constant pain.

Doctors are not gods, and we should stop putting them in that position.

WITHOUT FREEDOM OF CHOICE

DEAR WITHOUT: Your letter underscores the importance of stating one's wishes in writing. That is why I urge readers to have a Living Will. Also, it is imperative that physicians agree to honor it.

DEAR ABBY: I was shocked by the report of the grieving widow in Edgewater, Fla., whose physician refused to honor her husband's Living Will. His refusal was contrary to federal law.

The Patient Self-Determination Act became effective on Dec. 1, 1991, and established without question that medical personnel and health-care institutions must respect and comply with Living Wills executed by mentally competent persons. Failure to abide by those instructions may lead to malpractice suits.

It is also now well-established by law and by court decisions that a mentally competent patient may accept or reject any recommended treatment. If the patient has signed a Living Will and should become unable to communicate, the "next of kin" is authorized to make decisions on behalf of the patient.

Even now, it may not be too late for the grieving widow to take action.

ROY TORCASO, PRESIDENT, HEMLOCK SOCIETY OF THE NATIONAL CAPITAL AREA, MCLEAN, VA.

DEAR ABBY: You tell old people it's all right for them to hug, touch and kiss, but what about getting between the sheets for a little sex once in a while?

We are both 88 years old, in good health and we are very good friends. Is this an unpardonable sin?

H.B. IN ILLINOIS

DEAR H.B.: I am not authorized to pardon sins, but if I were, I would worry less about what two old lovers did between the sheets and more about man's inhumanity to man.

DEAR ABBY: I'm married to an extremely domineering man. He wants to control my life from morning until night. He listens when I'm on the phone (if I go to another room he'll come stand in the doorway or mute the TV so he can hear better). He picks up letters I'm writing and reads them. He questions my every move, and even pokes through my shopping bags.

I'm learning to deal with all those things, but he has one habit I cannot understand. He buys himself gifts and cards for holidays, and signs my name, as though I had sent them.

Last Christmas, he bought himself a gift and had his secretary wrap it. The card enclosed read, "To Sam, with all my love, (signed) Mary." He put it under our tree and refused to tell me what it was. He spent days shaking it under my nose.

saying, "I wonder what you got me... ha, ha!"

On Christmas morning, he made a big ceremony out of pretending to be surprised. When the family came over, he made a point of announcing, "Look what my sweet Mary got me!"

On Valentine's Day, there was a large envelope on the table marked "To my Sweetie from Mary." I had already given him a gift and Valentine card, and also prepared an extra-special dinner.

He asked, "Isn't that a cute card you got me?" When I said, "I didn't buy it — you did," he laughed and said, "Oh, that's all right."

I asked "What's all right?" He replied, "Well, I know you would have bought it for me if you'd seen it first, so I did it for you." Abby, this made my gift and card seem pointless.

What's wrong with him? Please ask a psychiatrist.

TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: I fear that you have good reason to be "troubled." Your husband sounds delusional. My asking a psychiatrist will not help him. He needs to see one.

How to understand sickle-cell disease

DEAR DR. GOTT: A friend recently gave birth to a baby diagnosed with sickle-cell disease. What is this all about?

DEAR READER: Sickle-cell disease is an inherited type of anemia seen almost exclusively in blacks.

The basic problem is an abnormal form of hemoglobin (the red pigment that carries oxygen), which causes the red blood corpuscles to adopt a crescent shape, like a sickle; such cells disintegrate during the trauma of circulation, leading to anemia and other consequences.

The degree of anemia depends on the percentage of sickle cells. Those individuals with the full-blown disease suffer from profound anemia, bone pain, arthritis, fever, susceptibility to infections, growth retardation, abdominal pain, gall stones, poor circulation, renal failure, and decreased longevity. Persons who merely have the sickle-cell trait may be free of symptoms, although they can pass the defective gene to their offspring.

The diagnosis is made by special blood tests, including hemoglobin electrophoresis, that document both the sickling phenomenon and the abnormal hemoglobin.

Treatment is complicated because of the myriad complications of sickle-cell disease. For example, antibiotics are used to treat infections. As for the sickling itself, several researchers have had success using hydroxyurea, a drug ordinarily used to treat cancer patients, that has proved effective in reducing the symptoms of bone and abdominal pain. Patients with this disorder should be under the care of hematologists.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 50, exercise regularly, take vitamins and minerals. The only time I've ever seen a doctor was for a pre-employment physical. I feel fine, except for the redness I get on my face whenever I'm exposed to the sun. I also experience a burning sensation on my back at the same time. I use sun blocks and creams, yet nothing seems to work. Why am I apparently allergic to the sun, when I spent many hours in it when I was younger?

DEAR REALER: You are apparently highly sensitive to ultraviolet radiation and probably should avoid it. I don't know the cause of this reaction. However, if sun blocks don't solve the problem, I suggest that you wear suitable, protective garments when you're out in the sun. The important consideration is to prevent the sun's direct rays from reaching your skin.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
Despite the praiseworthy efforts of Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD), drunk driving is still a bane in our society. Drinking before or during a bridge session isn't recommended. (I remember playing extremely well one afternoon after two pints of beer with lunch. But it caught up with me in the evening and we plummeted out of the frame.) This led me to thinking about bridge acronyms, and I have come up with JABB - Journalists Against Bad Bridge.

Partner raises to game. West, Weasel Watkins, leads his fourth-highest club, East, Stoa Soames, punches in the queen. The Crusher, not pausing for breath, wins with the club king, cashes his diamond ace and plays a diamond to dummy's jack. The Stoa's heart discard lands like a particularly powerful blow to the solar plexus.

The Crusher staggers, realizing he doesn't have five diamond tricks. He turns to spades, but they don't break either. He takes his remaining diamond tricks before trying a heart, but the Stoa takes the ace and the Crusher is out for the count, only eight tricks won.

The Crusher should have tried the spades first, just in case the jack fell in one or two rounds. Then, with this layout, he could have won on points by way of four spades, four diamonds and one club.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Oso
YOUR BIRTHDAY
April 7, 1993
Before launching any new endeavors or enterprises in the year ahead, finish what you've already started. Your best chances for success will come from things that already have a good foundation.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Outsiders are apt to find you easy and forgiving today, but this might not be true of family members. If they anger you, there will be trouble. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $2 and a SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Beware of inclinations to overreact when you others offend you. There is a strong possibility that you'll read more into things than is intended.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Financial conditions could be subjected to big swings today. Through carelessness or extravagance, losses might overpower any gains you make.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Plan all of your moves carefully today, because if you don't, you might do things the hard way and your ambitions could go unfulfilled.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today you might have difficulty distinguishing between a fresh affront and an old grudge. For your peace of mind, forgive and let go.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Do not let your curiosity get the better of you today and impel you to poke your nose into an affair where it doesn't belong. It might be regrettable.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Partners or companions could be more of a hindrance than a help today when it comes to getting important things done. Operate on your own.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you might spend more time talking about your intentions than doing anything about them. Produce first and let the results speak for themselves.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It is best not to become involved in situations where others have more control than you do. You weren't meant to play second fiddle.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your mate might be just as determined as you are today to have his/her own way. An impasse will result if both parties are unyielding and stubborn.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Co-workers might not perform up to your expectations today. Instead of coming down on them and stirring up more trouble, set an example for them to follow.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Do not put something you value in jeopardy today. This could pertain to relationships, as well as material possessions.
