General Bradley is Fearful Lest Military Fund Slash Becomes Habit

WASHINGTON (AP) - Gen. Omar Bradley says he is fearful lest this year's slash in the military budget grow into "a habit as tempting and more dangerous than the habit of dollar extravagance."

Bradley, five-star general who stepped out four days ago after two year terms as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said of the Eisenhower administration's decision to cut more than five billion dollars from the Defense Department budget.

"At first glance this looked to me like coasting before you reach the top of the hill. Personally, I could be inclined to keep the pressure on - from a security standpoint - until we reach a higher level of readiness and security."

These statements, in an article written for the Saturday Evening Post and made public last night, were Bradley's first direct criticism of the new defense budget during hearings while Congress was considering the matter, he said.

President Eisenhower, who shook up the entire Joint Chiefs of Staff, has defended his and Wilson's defense budget as one which will give the nation greater armed power in January by former President Truman.

Variety Of State's Citrus Rootstocks Now Unsatisfactory

CAMP MEQUARIE (AP) - Changing conditions have led much to be desired in Florida's once satisfactory variety of citrus rootstocks, a government plant expert said today.

One of the changing conditions is disease, said Frank Gardner, principal horticulturist at the Orlando office of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Gardner spoke at the 20th annual citrus growers institute here. Because tristeza disease has become widespread in Florida in recent years, sour orange stock, one of the most useful in past years, cannot be recommended for any citrus, he said.

Another change is that the growth of citrus has brought greater demand for oranges with a high solid (sugar) content so desirable for concentrate.

Gardner said the USDA has tests in progress throughout the citrus belt on potentially valuable new rootstocks, but the tests are not old enough for definite conclusions.

In general, he said, rough lemon rootstock has proved most satisfactory for Valencia oranges on well drained soils; Cleopatra is preferred for nearly all the Mandarin varieties such as Temple, Tangerines and tangelos; and sweet orange rootstocks have proven desirable where footrot disease is not a serious problem.

Dr. Paul Smith, USDA plant physiologist from Orlando, cautioned growers against use of large quantities of copper on their trees. Where applications of copper over the years has caused large soil accumulations of copper, tree roots have been damaged considerably, Dr. Smith said.

Applications of chelated iron are usually beneficial to trees suffering from too much copper, but are not a complete antidote, Dr. Smith said.

IN THE HERALD:

5, 10, And 40 Years Ago

AUGUST 21, 1913

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Hoff have returned to Sanford after a very pleasant trip to their old home in Illinois. They also visited in Chicago and other points and while they enjoyed themselves immensely, they are glad to get back to Sanford where the cooling breezes blow from the ocean and Gulf.

Sanford needs an uptown ticket office and the Atlantic-Coast Line officials should be approached in the matter. It would be of great convenience to the traveling public.

A letter to the editor of The Herald from Dr. Hrownlee states that he is on his way to Europe and will not set foot on terra firma for 18 days. Everything is propitious for a pleasant journey and he has not had a touch of seasickness yet.

Striking French Workers Return To Jobs

PERSPECTIVE DRAWING OF the proposed Seminole Memorial Hospital, above, shows attractive appearance the building will present upon completion. Facing E. First St., the 75-bed institution will be finished in stone except for the center portion, which will be finished in masonry. E. J. Moughton Sr., architect, and today the entire "L" shaped building will be three stories high except for a portion of the kitchen wing to the rear of the building which will be one story. The north-south wing will contain elevator and air conditioning machinery. Administrative offices will be in the center portion of the building and out of the right wing while the emergency room, X-ray room and the pharmacy will be included in the left wing. The surgical suite will be on the second floor of the wing to the rear of the building, which is not shown. All rooms on the second and third floors facing Central and Lake Monroe will be for patients, while the first floor to the rear of the building also will be for patients. The rooms are so planned in sizes, Mr. Moughton estimated that the capacity of the hospital may be hoisted to 93 beds in the event of an emergency. Sullivans will be on the corners of the second and third floors, while all the windows will be at the second floor horizontally opening type. The hospital is so designed that extensions may be added easily to the ends of the wings. Mr. Moughton and James Gable Rogers, 111 Winter Park Ave., the associate architects, prepared the plans, while Rogers and Bulkley Work City are the consulting architects assisting in the preparation.

Non Communist Unions Reach Agreement

PARIS (AP)—Thousands of striking French postal, telegraph and telephone workers started back to work today. It was the first break in the wave of walkouts that drastically slowed the nation's economic life for 16 days.

The break to work began after the two big non-Communist unions, the Socialist Workers' Force (F.O.) and the Christian (Catholic) Labor Federation (C.F.T.) reached an agreement early today with Premier Joseph Laniel's government.

Though other government work centers expected to join the return movement, observers warned that plenty of trouble may still lie ahead on the nationalized railroads.

The Communist led General Confederation of Labor (C.G.T.) left out of the negotiations had not yet indicated any end to its walkout. The C.G.T. controls the bulk of the railroad workers and transportation officials said the lines could operate only on a reduced scale without its members.

The first president of the Florida State League when it was founded back in 1924 has been named director of development and director of alumni affairs for Stetson University. He is E. E. "Eddie" Gilliland, who for the past two years has been general manager of Ponce de Leon Springs. In 1937 Eddie became vice president and farm director for the St. Louis Browns baseball team and in 1942 was named president of the Toledo team of the American Association. During his two years at Ponce de Leon Springs, he supervised the development of that million dollar attraction which opened to the public a few months ago.

Florida's mosquito fighters are beginning to put increased emphasis on a control program designed to "hit them harder where they live and breed" as a means of curbing the fall-march mosquitoes and other insects of public health or economic importance. That's the word today from John Mulrennan, director of the Florida State Board of Health Bureau of Entomology. Elimination of breeding areas is the most effective way of controlling mosquitoes, particularly the salt-marsh variety, generally considered the most numerous of the "pest" mosquitoes. Mr. Mulrennan told us today that the spraying program here has gone along well this summer and there have been relatively few complaints. However, it has been necessary to exceed the budget appropriation, but local people will be the first to agree that it's been worth it.

There's been several complaints about the increase in assessments on property in the City of Sanford. For those that want to do something about it, we suggest they drop down to City Hall Monday night to air their grievances. For on that night the City Commission will sit as a Board of Equalization to hear complaints. And the Board members suggest that more people attend meetings of both the City Commission and County Commission to find out first-hand what the respective governing bodies are doing. The lack of interest shown by taxpayers in this City and County in the activity of these two boards is a matter of concern to this writer.

Herald Notes Its 45th Birthday

The Sanford Herald is today celebrating its 45th birthday. On Aug. 27, 1903 the paper was founded as a weekly by the late Robert J. Holly and began publishing in its present location. The Herald was incorporated as the Herald Printing Co. in 1910. On Nov. 17, 1923 the entire stock was sold to William Dean, Reese Condit, and R. H. Berg of Miami.

During the 45th anniversary of the newspaper's publication a party was given at the newspaper office on May 14, 1948. The party was presided over by Carnegie Walls, R. H. Hasell Jr., and R. H. Cockleman.

Cuba Joins U.S. In India Refusal

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cuba today became the second Latin American country to join the United States in opposing a United Nations resolution in the Korean peace conference. Nationalist China came out against India earlier.

Other countries from Scandinavia, the Middle East and Eastern Europe continued, however, to join the United States in opposing the resolution. India, however, has not yet joined in the refusal.

Among those supporting India were the General Assembly's 60-Indian political committee at its morning session, were Sweden, Norway, Great Britain and Poland. China abstained, Emilio Nunez Puigondo said. "It is well known that the president of the Republic of Korea Syngman Rhee has said he will not sit in a conference with India on his side. India cannot be imposed on him."

Back To School Edition Tuesday

It won't be long now before students in the Sanford shopping area start back to school. There will be kiddies starting kindergarten and sedate college seniors who after one more year will be ready to go out on their own to take their place in society. The youngsters and the oldsters will all need new clothes and all of the necessary equipment for education.

On Tuesday, the Herald will publish its "Back to School Edition" packed full of advertising means telling where to obtain all of the essentials. In addition there will be numerous features, both local and national, telling about the school year just ahead.

Entry Blank Requests Pour In To Jaycees

Reports for entry blanks to enter the "Miss Sandalwood Springs" beauty contest at the Jaycee sponsored Sandalwood Springs Labor Day Celebration are piling in to the Seminole County Junior Chamber of Commerce office.

The beauty contest will be one of the highlights of the Labor Day celebration when it is expected that one of the largest groups of Central Florida beauties will compete for the title of "Miss Sandalwood Springs of 1948."

Requests for entry blanks have already been received from Orlando and Kissimmee with others expected to be rolling in before the week is over. The young ladies participating in the beauty contest will parade before the judges twice on Labor Day, first in bathing suits, and then again in evening dress.

Jaycee President Cliff Ables told today that the Seminole County Junior Chamber of Commerce is going "all out" to make the Labor Day Celebration at Sandalwood Springs one of the biggest events ever to be staged in Central Florida.

"We're going to have entertainment for everyone," Mr. Ables said. "The youngsters of all ages and the older folks will have every amount of fun with excitement. They can either watch or participate in some mighty fine competition, too."

Young ladies expecting to enter the beauty contest this year are reminded that the deadline to send in their entry blank is Sept. 2. And again, Jaycee President Ables stressed, there is no entrance fee whatever.

Caspius Served On Thomas, Negro Tavern Operator

A caspius was served yesterday on Clayton Thomas, operator of a night tavern club here, on Florida Lake, for changing him with four counts of gambling, according to Sheriff Deputy Sheriff O. G. Owens.

Thomas was charged specifically in the caspius with attempting to control the offenses of possessing lottery devices, selling lottery tickets, possessing lottery tickets and acting as assistant in the sale of lottery tickets.

The accused was ordered to appear in County Court Sept. 15. Thomas is free under a bond of $1,000 set by County Judge Douglass Shotton.

The arrest came in the wake of orders from Governor Dan McCarley aimed at cracking down on holders of federal occupational gambling stamps under recent legislation.

Thomas was arrested by sheriff's deputies after he produced a federal gambling stamp in connection with the arrest.

Deputy Owens produced a letter today which was prepared for mailing to the Bureau of Internal Revenue, Jacksonville, requesting evidence of six more stamps which may have been issued in Seminole County. The letter was signed both by Sheriff J. L. Hibbs and Karlyle Housholder, county prosecuting attorney.

Drag Line Stolen

Equipment on a Seminole County drag line was stolen last night near Forest City just over the Orange County line. It was reported today by County Commissioner O. E. Fouraker. The drag line was parked along side a road being repaved near Forest City. Both the Sheriff of Orange and Seminole County are investigating.

His opponents are (l. to r.) Enrique Rodriguez Fabregat of Uruguay; U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr.; and Solwen Lloyd, Great Britain. Shortly after, Vishinsky resuscitated his proposal of last year for six belligerent and five "neutral" nations to take part in the post armistice discussions. It was labeled a "suicide revival" by delegate Lodge. (International)

Tax Assessor's Records Cited

Records, excellent and accurate, were typical remarks in the annual state report of Tax Assessor Sanford Douglas's records for the past year. John F. Berger, Assistant State Auditor, cited the excellent condition of Seminole County's Tax Assessor's records in a written report to the State Auditor Bryan Willis.

The tax collector's records were prepared as required by the relatively few errors on the files list of the tax collector. The report said.

Cash resources were adequate to cover liabilities and commissions were correctly billed," he concluded.

Russia's War Machine Stealing Romanian Oil

By RICHARD O'REGAN
BUCHAREST (AP)—Russia's growing war machine today is plundering petroleum-rich Romania of almost the last drop of oil it produces, Western diplomats here report.

Romania is Russia's greatest foreign source of petroleum. To make sure Romanian oil flows almost exclusively to Soviet storage tanks, Russia maintains control over most of Romania's economic life.

It keeps an estimated two to five divisions of Soviet troops here. It has equipped one Romanian armored division and mechanized tank segments of an army that once was horse drawn and now numbers 220,000 to 500,000 men.

On top of this, Russia makes sure of Romanian oil by adding 20,000 to 50,000 men and a police system which may run into hundreds of thousands of untrained and plain-clothes agents.

With this control of Romania's economic and political life, Russia has successfully forced the nation's Communist bosses to repair wells and refineries at Ploesti destroyed by Allied bombers during the war.

Western diplomats estimate that production of 1953 may well reach the peak production of 4,000,000 metric tons which Western oil companies attained in 1936. When the Communists took over in 1947, production was a mere 3,810,000 tons a year.

All but one of Ploesti's refineries are back in operation. The Soviets apparently made available the necessary replacement equipment. A new core of Soviet-trained technicians has almost completely replaced experts of the former American, British and Dutch companies who have been slowly dismissed or arrested.

By 1955, the Communist regime hopes to have production up to 10 million tons a year. Western experts believe this aim may be achieved. Expropriation for new wells reportedly has been moderately successful.

But in a land of plentiful oil, gasoline today is strictly rationed. One pump in all of Bucharest sells ethyl and that is reserved for the fast cars of Communist bigwigs. Only a poor quality of gasoline is available at regular gasoline stations.

Since Romania exports virtually no oil to the West, the conclusion is that Russia takes almost all. Some may go to other satellite nations.

Russia's financial and technical control is maintained by a joint Soviet-Romanian company. Similar "Sovroms" control the greater amount of Romania's natural gas, metals, wood, chemicals, shipping, oilfield equipment, air and all other transport except railroads.

Romania's assistant foreign minister, Grigore Preotasa, significantly ignored an American correspondent's question about what Russia is taking out of the Romanian economy and what she is putting in. Westerners say the Soviet Union has repaid Romania with printing presses, buses, some industrial machinery, some food and some dock equipment.

But a lot of this returns to Russia one way or another—in Soviet propaganda, armaments or defense of the Soviet sphere.

For example, there are reports of considerable defense construction along the Black Sea coast near Constantia. Diplomats who have visited that port say it is a "complete military city." The Russians are believed to have their troop headquarters there and many naval and air bases nearby.

Soviet troops can be seen almost everywhere in Bucharest, and at railway stations between Bucharest and the Hungarian border. Russian bases appear open to be disguised as Romanian, if the example of an airfield north of Bucharest holds generally true. Over the entrance, a sign identified it as Romanian, but Russian soldiers stood on sentry duty.

It's Whale Meal Now For Animals In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The horse meat eaters at the Philadelphia Zoo have had a switch of diet—they're eating whale meat now—and only two of the beats, a couple of finicky leopards, seem to know the difference.

The leopards—Kitsen and Prince Igor—refuse to touch the substitute.

But for the other carnivorous citizens at the zoo—lions, foxes, wolves and dingy dogs—whale meat seems to be as good a dish as any.

The change-over is just another result of the mechanical age, says Fred Ulmer, curator of mammals. Farmers have given up horses for machines and this has cut the horses available for slaughter from 15 million to little more than two million.

The zoo needs 275 pounds of goshal meat every day and when its supplier couldn't get hold of that much day in and day out, Sales Manager Ed Solomon said he had some whale meat obtained from Norway and Japan.

Nutritionally, Solomon said, the whale meat showed a higher protein content than horse meat. Thus it was that the zoo started buying whale meat at 15 cents a pound, the same price that horse meat brings.

Why the two leopards haven't fancied the new delicacy isn't known, but Ulmer says it may be because both were born in captivity and are finicky.

Even the birds, the meat-eating vultures and eagles, have adopted the diet without a squawk.

Solomon says whale meat resembles beef in appearance and is not to be confused with blubber, which is the fatty tissue around the meat.

Poor Eyesight Holds Back Many Children

Failure to see properly is the most significant handicapping characteristic among children who are slow in learning to read, according to Dr. Willis LeBlaw of the Central Florida Ophthalmic Association.

Dr. LeBlaw based his statement on the results of a study conducted by the St. Louis, Mo., Public School Reading Clinic, which has tested 684 children, who were diagnosed to discover the major sources of their difficulties. Of these, it was found that no less than 24 per cent, or 644 cases, exhibited a "common helplessness in using word perception techniques."

Visual's prominent role in learning to read is sharply brought out by this study, where 47 per cent of close to half of the children tested suffered from visual handicaps," said Dr. LeBlaw.

"Hearing difficulties affected 18 per cent of the cases studied, while emotional and speech disturbances each accounted for the problems of only 6 per cent of these cases. The intelligence of the majority of the children tested was normal or superior.

"There is no question but that current methods of visual testing in the schools neglect to measure the visual skills connected with a child's accurate and rapid reading. Adequate visual tests for children should include those of visual acuity, binocular coordination, and ability to change fixation rapidly."

Dr. LeBlaw pointed out that the development of the skills needed for better reading is within the scope of modern scientific visual training, such as was used by the U. S. Army in teaching fliers to distinguish friendly from enemy planes in combat.

Methods that train better eye coordination and increase the speed of perception can help bring many retarded readers up to par," said Dr. LeBlaw.

American Federation Of Labor Acts

The American Federation of Labor seems to be finally out of patience with the International Longshoremen's Association, an AFL member that has come into a great deal of criticism because of the racketeering and graft along the New York waterfront. The AFL had ordered the ILA to clean its ranks of racketeers or face suspension. President Joseph P. Ryan of the ILA maintains that his organization has been making such an effort. Apparently the AFL does not believe the progress has been satisfactory.

The corruption in the International Longshoremen's Association, which represents the men who do the loading and unloading of ships on New York docks, has been building up for years. Until recently no real effort has ever been made to do anything about it. It is not surprising that a hurry-up job of cleaning up should fall short of the mark.

President Ryan was remiss in his duties to the honest dues paying members of his union. The AFL, by tolerating the sorry mess for so long, was also remiss. It is good to see the leaders of the AFL moving to rid their organization of the kind of people who have preyed on the good name of unionism.

The AFL has finally decided to do what should have been done a long time ago. There is no room anywhere in American society for racketeers and criminals. The move to get them out of the position of control they have exercised over the dock workers will do much to rectify the mistake that was made by letting them get in to begin with.

Albanian Chances

Albania is another country in which the Russians are having trouble. The Albanians, liberty-loving mountaineers, are not reconciled to the rigid rule of the Russians. A few guerrilla bands operate in the inaccessible mountains. As, however, the land is only 10,000 miles in area, not much larger than Maryland or Vermont, and the roads are few, it is easy for the Communists to control the means of intercommunication.

On the other hand, the mountaineers have one advantage. They do not have direct contact with the Soviet empire, being separated from it by anti-Russian Yugoslavia. That would put difficulties in the way of a Russian invasion.

Albania may be one of the first satellite states to escape.

A Happy Solution

Rights of way across other people's land can cause as much trouble in international relations as they often do among individuals. A sore point which had much to do with bringing on the second world war, was the so-called Polish corridor, an outlet from landlocked Poland to the Baltic across the German territory of East Prussia. Either Poland had to be cut off entirely from the sea, or Germany had to be divided into two parts, without direct access to each other. The two countries were therefore bound to be at odds and sooner or later to go to war.

Not always is a solution as happy as that proposed for an outlet to the Atlantic Ocean, for the benefit of the new Central African Federation. At present to reach the sea from British Central Africa, out of which the Federation has been formed, it is necessary to cross Portuguese territory. Now it is suggested that a narrow strip be made available as an outlet along the boundary of Portuguese Africa and South-West Africa, at present under a League of Nations mandate to the Dutch Union of South Africa. That would not cut any state into two, and would run through mostly uninhabited regions. There is hope that this arrangement may go through.

That corridors do not always make trouble, is shown by our own experience with Alaska, cut off by Canada from the rest of the United States. No friction has developed on this account. Few countries, however, have as ideal relations with their neighbors as the United States and Canada.

Iran Oil Might Be Embarrassing

NEW YORK (AP)—Iran's oil should start flowing again into world trade routes—might prove an embarrassing factor to the oil industry as its stoppage proved in world diplomatic circles.

Internationally operating oil companies have long ago increased production to more than make up for the loss of Iran's oil. They already are talking about ways to handle a possible glut of world petroleum supplies. Iran's oil would just add to their distribution and quota problems.

And it would be less than welcome to independent oil producers in America, who are seeing their own production cut back because of big supplies—and, they contend, because of imports of oil from the Middle East.

Iran's oil won't be flowing again any time soon, of course. Even if the new government gets a firm hold on the country, there still would be long and tedious negotiations with England and the United States before the Anglo-Iranian oil deal could be renegotiated. And oil here are far from sure the world in Iran will stand or that it will not reach an outcome.

Domestic supplies are such now that Texas has been slashed by 10,000 barrels a day—the biggest cut since July, 1952. That will further hit incomes of some independent producers.

World oil production so far this year is the highest on record, according to the Petroleum Information Bureau of London, and shows sharp increases over last year.

The Middle East, including Iran, has around 50 per cent of the world's known oil reserves.

In spite of the embarrassment of making room for Iran's oil in world trade again, oilmen would welcome settlement of the trouble there, of course. Like all Americans, they'd like to see Iran removed as a world trouble spot and possible price for Russia.

A quiet Iran might ease political tension in other Middle East lands. Many here, however, doubt that Iran will be the Anglo-Iranian company back in. They think there's a chance that Iran, under a new government, would grant England some restrictions for the security of the property, and then work out a scheme whereby English and American companies would buy Iran's oil and distribute it. There's also a chance that American companies might obtain Iran's oil properties.

Newspaperman Closes Typewriter

By HELMAN MORIN
Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—A friend of mine, a newspaperman, closed his typewriter for the last time the other day.

The news hit hard and hurt, at first, as always does. The vision of his red hair arose, and the freckles, like flecks of cinnamon, all over his Irish nose. His nose was large and defiant, and shaped pretty much like the nose of a frigate. He had a wide mouth and a hollower for a chin. The whole effect was of a fierce and formidable man.

And sometimes, around the office, he tried to put on a mask of civility, but it wouldn't have fooled a yearling because he could never get the grin out of his warm brown eyes. So vivid a man he was.

But there is no room for sorrow in the manner of his passing, and that is the reason for this story. Bill had cancer.

He woke up one morning in a hotel room a long way from his home. The pain had him so bad, he said, that it almost unhinged his knees.

Still, he got in his car, and barely crawling because of the weakness, started home. On the way, as he told me, a thought came to him suddenly. It sounds strange in the telling, but not if you look at it as he did.

He was glad it had come to him in this way, while he was alone, away from home, and the only one to know. That was his thought, and with it came a plan.

You can picture him on the highway, holding hard to the wheel, fighting down the pain and fear, and thinking, working out in his mind what he would do.

For nearly a week—and this is the gallantry and the wonder of it—Bill had cancer.

He was glad it had come to him in this way, while he was alone, away from home, and the only one to know. That was his thought, and with it came a plan.

the human soul—he said nothing and tried to let no sign appear in his face.

Meanwhile, he was conducting his own diagnosis. Bill had a strong bent for medicine and the study of it. He might have been a good doctor. Anyway, he said, he determined for himself what had happened, and the zone where the trouble must lie. He did it by turning to some medical books and matching his symptoms with what was written there.

His diagnosis turned out to be correct.

Then he went to a doctor for the examination. "The point is," he told me, "I was already 95 per cent certain. So the very worst news he could give me would be no more than I expected. And if I was wrong, well, that would be just that much better."

He made them give it to him straight, including the percentages in an operation.

Only then did he go home and tell his family. That was the hardest part, he said. He tried to think of some way to break it gently. He even considered lying about it. The only time he ever flinched was in the moment when he must face Helen and the boys.

When he told them, he added, with that chin stuck out a mile, "This business may kill me, but by golly, it's not going to scare me to death. So cheer up."

Well, that was nearly two years ago. As soon as he could, he came back to his desk. If he had an occasional setback, he tried not to show it. He never spared himself of the job. And he would kid around about how much better off he was than other people.

So vivid a man, and so brave. Surely, there can be no better proof of the indestructibility of the human soul than that it harbors such gallantry.

Too Late To Classify
By RUSSELL KAY

A few weeks ago I wrote in this column of the Miami family who was trying to work out an exchange arrangement so that they could send their three children to the country for a vacation and in return entertain the children of some rural family at their home in Miami.

I am in receipt of an interesting letter from this family and it is gratifying to learn that they were successful in working out such an exchange and giving details as to how it panned out.

Another thrilling experience for the publicity given in the newspapers they found one from a farm family located in Keuka, Fulton County, the most inviting of some rural family at their home in Miami.

Tale Of No Progress

WASHINGTON (AP)—If this story had a title it would be: A tale of no progress, or how history repeats itself.

In January 1946, five months after the first atomic bomb had been dropped on Hiroshima, the General Assembly of the brand new United Nations held its first meeting.

At once it voted to create a commission to find an answer to the question: how to get all nations to agree to outlaw the bomb in such a way that no one could cheat?

By Sept. 23, 1949 the commission, which included the United States and Russia, had met more than 200 times without finding a solution. On that date President Truman had an important announcement.

The Russians, he said, had produced an atomic explosion. He said this development emphasized the necessity for "truly effective, enforceable international control of atomic energy."

Four years passed, a period in which it seems likely the Russians might have been able to build a stockpile of several hundred bombs and the United States, since it had a head start, might have been able to store thousands.

In order to be sure it stayed ahead of the Russians the United States, in those four years, began work on the hydrogen bomb. The Russians apparently were doing the same, although they didn't say so.

In those same four years the U.N. commission couldn't find a formula for outlawing atomic weapons on which Russia and the West could agree.

Yesterday, just a little less than four years after Truman announced the hydrogen bomb, the Russians apparently were doing the same, although they didn't say so.

Lim-lim-lim-lim the United States Atomic Energy Commission confirmed the Russian claim to the extent of indicating an explosion of a hydrogen bomb, similar to earlier American tests.

And yesterday, just a few hours after these statements by Russia and the United States, the U.N. Disarmament Commission held brief sessions in New York and adopted its annual report.

In the seven years since January 1946, had the commission found a way to control atomic weapons and a formula for general disarmament? No. The commission just wanted to report its failure to agree.

The commission, in fact, had not met since October 1952, because of a deadlock between the West and Russia. For one thing, Russia opposed the U.S. plan for checking in on a nation's atomic development.

The commission, the report said, did not meet because no new plans had been offered since December 1949 when Truman told the world of Russia's atomic explosion and called for renewed efforts to control the bomb.

Since then, Secretary of State Acheson, chairman of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee now attending the General Assembly meeting in New York, proposed action by the American and Russian governments to control atomic power.

Andrei Vishinsky, the Soviet delegate, was reported to have said yesterday that he may have something "in time," which means he'll suggest a Russian disarmament plan in the Assembly in September.

Since then, Secretary of State Acheson, chairman of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee now attending the General Assembly meeting in New York, proposed action by the American and Russian governments to control atomic power.

Vitamin B<sub>6</sub> Found Important In Functions of Body Cells

By HERMAN N. BULGESSER, M.D.

If the clamor of publicity over the widespread effects of the Vitamin B<sub>6</sub> group, many of the other vitamins and their helpful properties tend to be overlooked.

One of these vitamins of which little is heard is pyridoxine, or as it is more commonly known, Vitamin B<sub>6</sub>. This vitamin was known to be very important to animals but its importance to man wasn't determined exactly until recently, when it was shown that Vitamin B<sub>6</sub> is important in the functioning of the normal cells of the body.

Helps in Pregnancy
A pregnant woman has an increased requirement for this vitamin. Many who have severe nausea and vomiting are helped by it. Some of the severe toxemias of pregnancy show an indirect depletion of pyridoxine. The growing infant in the mother's womb has been found to need very high amounts of B<sub>6</sub>.

In certain types of skin conditions due to a disease of the oil glands, the application of pyridoxine ointment is beneficial. One of these disturbances of the skin, known as seborrheic dermatitis, usually occurs on the scalp, face and around the ears. There is a scaling and redness of the skin which is very difficult to clear up. Vitamin B<sub>6</sub> is of great help here.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
Mrs. R. V.: Since the birth of my seventh child I have been told I have a dropped bladder. Is there a remedy for this?

Answer: Yes, this can successfully be treated by surgery in which the bladder is put back in its normal place and new support created.

University Of Mississippi's Gridiron Outlook Is Bleak For 1953

By MERCER BAILEY
ATLANTA (AP)—Last Nov. 15 Coach Johnny Vaughn's Mississippi Rebels started the football world by ramming a 21-14 defeat down the throat of the mighty Maryland Terrapins.

The Rebels rammed on to complete an unbeaten, two-tided season and a loving venture against Southeastern Conference champion Georgia Tech in the Sugar Bowl. The big question now is how close can Mississippi come to fielding a team comparable to the 1952 powerhouse. It won't be the same team by any means. Of the 22 offensive and defensive Sugar Bowl players, the Rebels have only two offensive linemen and six defensive holdovers.

Keyed stars include All-American tackle Kline Gilbert and quarterback Jimmy Lear, whose mastery of the tricky split plays and whose passing proficiency has much to do with the Rebels' fine quarter back. Vaughn looks to Jack Reed, a senior who played safety last year, and two rookies, Houston Patton and Easle Day, to quarterback the club. All three have strong throwing arms, but none is yet ready to be classed with the departed Lear.

Behind the signal-caller, though, the Rebels pack a lot of power. Offensive linemen Wilson Ellard and Dick Westerman are gone, but Hal Lofton, Lee Patton, Allen scraping for the fullback starting Murhead, Carl Blair and Jimmy Patton, plus several other reserves give Ole Miss a strong halfback corps.

Lofton was top ground gainer for the Rebels last season from the fullback slot. His shift to left half leaves Pete Mangum, a defensive specialist last year, and Bobby

Sanford Sweeps Twin Bill From Cocoa To Take 4th

Leonard Soars To .379 With 5 Hits; Cardinals Battle Hais In Deland

By KENT CHETLAIN
Like the awakening of the dead, the Sanford Cardinals rose up out of their doldrums to clothe the visiting Cocoa Indians twice, 6-1, last night in a delayed doubleheader at the Memorial Stadium, while the "talking Jack" Cardinals took the Rebels from a miserable sixth place to fourth spot in the Florida State League standings, just a game behind the third standing Cocoa Indians.

TOMMY LEONARD
... Wahoo Soars To .379

While a nearly two-hour delay threatened to spoil the evening for the 350 loyal Sanford fans, the blazing hot "talking Jack" "Wahoo" Leonard, the pitching of "Bob" Sullivan and Harry Mella, and Manager J. C. Dunn's climactic game-winning single all combined to form a fitting reward for the onlookers.

Leonard, urged by his scribe to collect five-for-six before the games did exactly that, drilling two doubles and three singles. Wahoo vaulted his .374 average up to the .379 mark to take a commanding lead over the closely fought FSL batting race.

Manager Red Broadway collected just one-for-four to drop to .267, while "talking Jack" Caldwell, batting .304 last week, garnered only one hit in six tries last night.

Leonard banged out a double in each game and adding three runs scored to reach the 107 mark for the season. The pesky hitting Cherokee descendant cracked a lead-off home run to take his RBI total to 106.

Harry Mella
Last night Sullivan handuffed

Last night Sullivan handuffed Cocoa on no-hits until Bama Howell drilled a high ball over Price Westbrook's head against the top of the rightfield wall. Westbrook re-injured his already injured left ankle and retired from the game only to return to play most of the second game. Two runs scored on Rowell's blow and the Cocoa Manager stole third, scoring on Domingo Vella's bingle.

Ben Sanford was a big gun in the Sanford attack in the opener, drilling in three runs on two singles. Sullivan handuffed Cocoa on three hits to rack up his third straight win for Sanford without a defeat. Mella coasted along with a 6-3 lead until the final seventh when Cocoa scored four runs on one tally bingle by George Hughes and a three-run homer by Rowell that snuffed up the game.

However, "Harry the Horse" sailed down center that evening walkoff by Rowell and fanned the side on the top of the eighth while his mates won the game in the

The Sports Register

By KENT CHETLAIN
The late Joseph Best Tinker, who achieved baseball fame as a member of the great Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance double play combination for the Chicago Cubs during the early part of the century, was an important role in the development of Central Florida in the coming twenties. ... Checking a biographical sketch of the infelicitous immortal we were surprised to discover that he built both Tinker Field and the downtown Tinker Building in Orlando and the Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club, known then as the Longwood greyhound racing track.

According to the sketch on Tinker's life shows that he managed the Orlando club from 1921 through 1923 in the old Florida State League. ... Tinker was born in the little town of Muscatine, Kan., July 27, 1880. He broke into baseball with the Chicago Cubs at the age of 19, and reached the major leagues with the Chicago Cubs three years later, in 1902. ... It was with the Cubs that he made his reputation.

Although his love of the game brought him back from time to time to various capacities, Tinker eventually turned to business. ... Like many others, he rode the crest of the Florida land boom and, like many others, he lost a fortune when it collapsed. ... He invested much of his baseball earnings in Florida real estate and at one time was said by friends to have been worth a cool million. He once admitted he had $100,000 in the bank.

Grid Publication Honors 3 Gators

GAINESVILLE (Special)—The 1953 football season is still a month away but three Florida Gators are already counting themselves among the gridiron honored.

In an article called "The Red-Hot Rebels of Football", written for Real Magazine in its September issue which goes on the newsstands this week, Zipp Newman, sports editor of the Birmingham News, reports on a poll he conducted among Southeastern Conference coaches.

The coaches named Fullback Rick Casares and Guard Joe D'Agostino in the 1953 All-SEC First Team, and Jack O'Brien to the second team. The coaches further named D'Agostino best defensive lineman.

Newman writes this colorful description about Casares: "Here's the 'bull' of the South. Casares is big (265 pounds) but he's one of the fastest men in the league. He's power through the line, fast going on the outside, and is a good defender."

Cardinals' Nightly Gate Average Dips From 654 To 614 In 2 Weeks

The late season attendance slump of the Sanford Cardinals cut the nightly paid average from 654 to 614 in the course of two weeks. With 35,743 paid in the first 54 home games at the Memorial Stadium, the 1953 Cardinals are still ahead of the 591 nightly average the Seminoles Blues drew in 1952.

The free customers for the big Merchants Night and Contribution Night has also increased this year's grand total gate at the Memorial Stadium to nearly 9,000 more than the regular paid admissions.

Tom Connally, Although Retired, Is Blasting Fellow Democrats

By DON WHITEHEAD
WASHINGTON — Tom Connally is a gray-haired political warrior who has retired to the sidelines, but the fiery Texan is scolding his fellow Democrats over the conduct of some of his fellow Democrats.

Retirement has dulled neither the mind nor the tongue that kept him in Congress for almost 30 years and made him an international figure. He is observing his 70th birthday today and has this to say about his party.

"The Democrats can't afford to be in a hurry about their support of President Eisenhower. That sort of thing may be no help in 10 years to come."

"Besides, they should make it clear they will vote for a program on its merits alone—not whether Eisenhower is for or against it. Most things the Democrats have supported were programs which were initiated by the Democrats in the first place. They've just been voting for what they believed in all the time."

Connally made the statement as he sat on the grassy lawn of the home in Fort Worth where he lives with his wife and his memories of the years when he was an actor in history-making events.

Speaking of Eisenhower, he said, "I think Ike's capital stock in his personal popularity as a war hero is still holding—maybe not as strong as it was, but it's still there. And there's no doubt the Democrats in Congress have helped him with their support on several measures."

"I think he's shown very clearly that he has an extremely conservative viewpoint. Many of his important appointments have gone to men with no practical experience in government or politics—though they may have had experience in big business and monopolies."

"If this trend continues, it's going to hurt him. People don't want big business to dominate us."

During the years he was chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Connally was a strong advocate of a bipartisan foreign policy. But he said too often bipartisanism runs afloat of partisan interest.

He added, "Bipartisanship depends a great deal too on whether the majority party really wants a bipartisan policy."

Connally is spending part of each day deciding up old memories and putting them down for a book he is writing—a book that will span his 30 years in Congress. It is scheduled for publication next spring.

He is up at 8 a.m. daily and works on his book until noon. Then he takes things easy or visits with old friends to argue politics.

"I didn't have a real vacation for 30 years," he said. "So I'm taking my rest now."

"I get a little restlessness at times having nothing to do. But the book takes up a good deal of my time and I'm enjoying this vacation."

Although Connally was a commanding figure on the Senate floor for years, he hasn't been back since he stepped into retirement.

"I'm through with politics," he said. "I think 30 years in the House and Senate were enough for one man."
