Reds Continue Booming Attack Upon Shanghai

Encircling Communists Push War On Wangpoo River

SHANGHAI, May 19.—(AP)—Under dizzy skies with the guns booming in the distance, Shanghai entered another night of siege with ominous indications everywhere.

Encircling Communists were pushing their attack on the Pootung sector along the lower reaches of the Whangpoo River. But it was a movement of government troops into the city from the quiet south-west defense area and a one-hour earlier curfew (9:00 P. M.) that had everybody uneasy.

At the time the Nationalists seemed to be holding their own against the compressing Red arc. But the vacating of defense areas, notably Hung Jan road, was baffling.

The latest Nationalist successes in beating off Red attacks on the Pootung back door front six to eight miles down the river from midtown.

"This is the same type of service given to Seminole County in 1947," he stated. The units are mobile, which means that no special facilities are necessary; there is very little waiting, and it is a service given by the Florida State Board of Health and the local Health Unit free of charge.

Experts Believe English May End Curse Of Babel

By SHERRY HOWEN AP Newsfeatures Writer NEW YORK—Can English end the curse of Babel? Some experts not only believe it can but is well along the road. In the centuries to come, some say, English can become a language like Latin in the Middle Ages in which all educated men can understand each other. Only this may be more important because far more of the people are educated.

Nobody knows how many people speak English today. Estimates vary from H. L. Mencken's 175,000,000 to the 1949 World Almanac's 270,000,000. Dr. Albert H. Markwardt of the University of Michigan makes a "guess" that 250,000,000 people have English as a native language. That compares with four or five million in 1582. "It is, however, in its development as a second language that the real opportunities for the future development of English seem to lie," Markwardt says. He says estimates of the number of people using English as a second language vary from 50,000,000 to 125,000,000. But in another century, he says, "we can assume that probably 500,000,000 people will be speaking some form of English either as a first or a second language."

Of international languages such as Basic English and Esperanto he says, "We can only conclude that no one of them has yet been sufficiently successful to justify much confidence in its future." Dr. Aileen T. Kitchin, associate professor of the teaching of English at Teachers' College, Columbia University, spells that out. She cites one count which shows that the 850 simple words in Basic English have 12,425 meanings when used according to the Basic English rules. And the Oxford Dictionary gives 18,416 senses for those same words. In addition, she says a living language must grow from life. Its words and form must reflect things and ideas people use. Here are some of the reasons the experts think English has a chance to spread and possibly to become the international language of the future.

1. It is the native language of two of the world's great powers. 2. It is widely used. It is one of the two working languages in the United Nations and Dr. Markwardt estimates, for instance, that three-fifths of the world's radio stations broadcast in English. 3. It is widely centered. It is used as a native language on at least four of the continents. It is the world's largest rival, is centered in two continents. 4. It is well standardized. The dialects which prevent many Chinese, for instance, from understanding each other are absent. 5. It is already widely taught as a second language. Markwardt says French and Latin as a second language in Latin America. And its teaching is important in Holland, Scandinavia and even in Russia. 6. New methods of teaching make it easier for men to learn another language. This is expected to help break the language which already has the advantage and which is native to people with ideas and the prestige of money and power.

"It is now possible," Kitchin says, "a student who does not know English to come to the United States in June, learn English in two months and enter a university in September." She admits he may have a hard time at first. But after two months' full time work, he can get along in his new language and practice will make his work progressively easier.

BRITISH ART DISPLAY LONDON, (AP)—Fifty-three thousand persons viewed the British Council's exhibition of old masters during recent exhibits in Lisbon and Madrid. The exhibition consisted of 55 pictures including works by Constable, Gainsborough, Lawrence, Reynolds, Romney, Turner and Raeburn. It was the first time such a large collection of famous British artists had been shown in either capital.

CHURCH MEET JACKSONVILLE, May 18—(AP)—More than 300 delegates will attend the quadrennial meeting of the general conference of the Pentecostal Holiness Church here beginning June 9. One thousand visitors also are expected. The session will continue for at least a week with Bishop Dan T. Muse of Oklahoma City presiding.

NEW MELON GAINESVILLE, May 18—(AP)—The first Florida-grown watermelon resistant to anthracnose rot has been exhibited to seedsmen at the University of Florida Agricultural Experiment Station. The melon, known only as the 46-40, was sent here from the watermelon and grape laboratory at Leesburg. The rot is caused by a fungus growth.

MART RECORD FORT PIERCE, May 18—(AP)—The State Farmers' Market here has passed the 1,000,000-unit mark for the 1948-49 season, setting an all-time record. Receipts so far total $3,530,000 as compared with $3,350,000 for all of the 1947-48 season, officials said. North Okla. proper, between the fabulous Great Wall and the Yangtze River, has in fact been corresponding to those of the United States.

Miss Lowry Explains Bridesmaid's Origin

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP Newsfeatures Writer As June, the season of marriage, approacheth, the magazines and newspapers are full of sage words and helpful advice to brides, attendants, bridesmaids, and attendants. Does anyone ever throw them a word or two of counsel? No. So I'm going to, and I'm a well-qualified expert. But no inside remarks, please. In advice articles such as this, the best way to start is to inform the reader about origins. Well, they can't decide what's the origin of bridesmaids (for the purposes of simplicity, we will consider all female attendants to a wedding as bridesmaids although we all know that married women are permitted to participate in everything but bouquet-catching.) The best surmise is that they started because in ancient Rome a bride had ten witnesses—her own friends guaranteed to back her up in case of future trouble—at her ceremony. The attendants' guess is that even earlier than that, they were hand-picked protectors of the marriageable young woman when it was the custom of an eager suitor literally to give chase to the reluctant maid. Anytime it's been down to a custom in which the bride invites anywhere from one to a dozen women to participate in her wedding as attendants. For this gracious invitation, the bridesmaids must buy their own dresses and hats. The bride invariably thanks bridesmaids prettily by presenting them with compacts, cigarette cases, a bracelet or something like that. Being a bridesmaid is not altogether unadulterated pleasure, even if you don't mind buying your own dress. Bridesmaids' dresses are selected by the bride, and the idea is to pick a dress that will blend handsomely with her own wedding gown, for which the bevy form a sort of backdrop. The best wedding guides advise the bride to brook no funny stuff from the bridesmaids in the matter of selection, and then suggest rather weakly that if it's possible to do so, pick dresses bridesmaids might just possibly use on some later occasion. Let me say here and now I've spent a lot of money on bridesmaids' dresses in my time, and I've never been able to wear one on any occasion on a later date. The best use I can suggest for bridesmaids' dresses is to ship them too England for use at vicars' garden parties. I know a girl once who used a used bridesmaid dress as a negligee, which is a fancy name for a dressing gown, but only when she knew she was alone in the house. Don't be altogether flattered if you are tapped for bridesmaid. The wedding etiquette guides suggest that brides try to get girls who are about the same height and good-looking because it makes for a prettier wedding. But they also suggest it's a good idea to include sisters of the bridegroom, members of your own family and, of course, friends. So you may not be picked for your place in the bride's affections, but for your height, your complexion or your kinship. Bridesmaids-elect shouldn't fall into the pitfall of thinking they may meet their own future mates among the handsome ushers or best man. Usually the ushers are married and their wives are hanging around all the time. Those that aren't usually are the 17-year-old brothers of the bridegroom or fellows about four inches shorter than the shortest bridesmaid. On the bright side of the ledger is the fact that the wedding food is pretty good, usually, and if you like champagne, there's some of that around at most weddings. The hardest part of the activities is to learn that peculiar halting step they want you to undertake while marching to the altar with a fixed smile on your face. Bridesmaids are always the subject of considerable attention by uncles and grandfathers of the happy couple, which is a good thing or they'd be wallflowers at the reception-and-dance, because people always come to those in pairs, and they become "extra women" in the account of the married ushers (unless they are married bridesmaids and can reach their husband's side post-haste). This, then, is my advice when you're asked to be a bridesmaid: accept promptly! There's no out unless you want to be a social boor.

BACK FROM THE DEAD, Reid C. Lewis has good reason to smile as he rests in a hospital at Santa Monica, Calif., where he is recovering from a minor operation. Lewis "died" a week ago on the operating table in his doctor's office. The physician, using what he termed "an old scout trick," restored Lewis to life by snapping one of his ribs. (International)

PILOTING HIS OWN motorbike, Teddy Edwards, 6, of Atlanta, Ga., scoots through the legs of his dad, motorcycle policeman Ted Edwards, during the annual School Safety Parade in Washington. More than 20,000 children, from school patrols of many states, took part. (International)

YOU'RE TELLING ME!

Rural Common Sense By SPUDS JOHNSON

HEALTH IMPROVEMENT WORK IN FARM AREAS IS SHOWING PROGRESS

Not long ago, a national rural health conference emphasized some of the things that are needed for improvement of rural health, and now we want to call attention to some comparatively recent developments for rural health improvement in Florida. The activities of home demonstration club members for health improvement are indeed encouraging. Home demonstration clubs are seeing educational motion pictures on disease control and other subjects pertaining to health. Frequently they hear talks on health problems by nurses, physicians, and public health workers, and they usually ask many questions after their speakers conclude the talks. From home demonstration agents, dietitians, nutrition specialists they are learning more about preparation of foods to avoid loss of nutrients and to make them appetizing to their families, more about combining foods to provide a well balanced diet, and more about the functions of the various kinds of foods. Many rural people in Florida have had x-ray pictures made of their chests during the campaigns that have been carried on by the State Board of Health and the U. S. Public Health Service. More clinics for rural people, adults and children, are being held in Florida now than ever before, and many of these have been held under the auspices or in close cooperation with home demonstration clubs. Hundreds of families have had their milk cows tested for Bang's disease by veterinarians of the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry. More and more rural families are getting electricity in their homes, and this not only is eliminating drudgery, but it is providing power for pumping water. Running water, following installation of electricity, results in sanitary sewage disposal. In home demonstration clubs and in 4-H clubs for boys and girls, health is a major consideration. As a result of things they have learned about health in their club meetings, hundreds of home demonstration club women and 4-H boys and girls are undergoing physical examinations at least once a year. All of these developments are highly encouraging and the future looks promising for continued health improvement, but there is much, much more to be done for rural health in our state. It is to be hoped that the forward movement will continue and increase in tempo as time goes on.

Hints To Housewives By Anna Mae Sikes

EGG COOKERY Extension Nutritionist. Eggs have no waste except the shell. Because eggs are so nutritious, they should be used generously in cooking. Of all food foods, eggs are one of the easiest to cook. They can be used as main dishes, binders, thickeners, and leaveners. By following a few simple rules, anyone can serve eggs in many delicious ways. One important rule applies to all methods of egg cooking whether soft-cooked, hard-cooked, fried, broiled, poached, stirred, baked, scrambled or omelet. Always cook eggs slowly with low to moderate heat. Use accurate timing for good texture, appearance, and delicate flavor. High temperature and over-cooking toughen eggs. Egg-nut cakes, souffles and other dishes leavened with eggs will fall, the crust will be thick and tough, and the inside will be heavy and soggy. In dishes, thickened with eggs, such as custards and sauces, high temperature and over-cooking cause curdling or watering. Hard-Cooked Eggs. Cover with lukewarm water, at least one inch above top of eggs. Heat rapidly to boiling point. Reduce to a simmer, boil 10-12 minutes, and allow to stand 10 minutes. Remove eggs immediately and cool promptly under running water. Variations of serving: Have eggs removed, yolk, and serve. Mix with mayonnaise, add spicy seasonings. Roll in salt. For spread, mash into paste. Blend with finely mashed chicken livers and melted margarine or butter. Hard-boiled left-over eggs, or whites and yolks, or chop for garnish. Soft-Cooked Eggs. Cover with lukewarm water, at least one inch above top of eggs. Heat rapidly to boiling point, then remove from heat, let stand 2 to 4 minutes, depending upon individual taste. Add cold water for a second to make eggs easier to handle. The American robin is a member of the thrush family. The blue jay, living wild in Europe, is a member of the crow family. Mine Pensions' Cost Exceeding Income Of Fund

Gap Is Placed At $500,000 Weekly By U.M.W. Executive

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP)—The United Mine Workers welfare fund announced today that it has paid out a grand total of $106,840,139 in benefits and the annual statement showed—between the lines—that money now is flowing out of the fund a good deal faster than it is coming in.

So far this year, outgo has averaged $2,268,000 a week, and it is probably that this exceeds weekly income by at least $500,000.

The report, distributed by George C. C. Lewis on public relations, said $14,169,000 have been paid out of the $106,840,139, including 100,000 miners and members of their families. Benefits for anthracite miners are handled in a separate fund.

The money was spent for $100-a-month pensions, $1,000 death benefits, monthly payments to injured or sick miners, monthly payments to miners' widows and medical care.

Concerning medical care, the report said this program ultimately will provide a prepaid form of hospital and medical care for 15 M. W. members and their families. It added that the medical care program needs to be "developed and extended." When a reporter asked Mr. Lewis if this would require a higher coal tax, he replied, "Yes, you can draw that inference from it."

The figures cover the entire history of the fund, up to May 1. Here is the way the $106,840,139 has been used, according to the report:

$29,784,631 for pensions to 19,188 retired miners.

$12,326,624 for lump-sum death benefits to the survivors of 12,600 miners.

$67,978,462 for disability and sick insurance, also monthly payments to miners' widows.

$2,748,626 for medical care.

The report made three points, among others:

1. That "miners do not hasten to retire when they reach the eligible age."

2. That the reduction of the eligible age from sixty-two to sixty on April 7 has not resulted in "accelerated applications." In the four weeks after the reduction, only five applications were received from the sixty years of age and six from miners sixty one years old.

3. That the fund has created other values "aside from the humanitarian." For example, "widows, orphans and dependents, lifted above beggary, are now self-respecting citizens with purchasing power."

4. That "the reforms made possible by the fund are inducing younger men to go down into the pits."

The report said the medical-care program has helped 12,604 persons so far in its "initial stages."

State Guard Radio Network Developed

ST. AUGUSTINE, May 19.—(AP)—Florida will have a state network of military amateur radio stations under a program now being developed by the Florida National Guard in cooperation with Army and Air Force.

National Guard amateur operators would work from their homes and report into their local station director stationed at an army or air base. The station director would be in contact with a state net who in turn would be notified into the numbered Army or Air Force Military Amateur Radio Stations. In the final check, headquarters MARS stations would be in contact with headquarters in Washington.

Membership in the National Guard MARS is open to any Guardsman or recruit who possesses an amateur radio operator's license. According to National Guard officials, the program provides an unparalleled opportunity for radio "hams" to become a part of the radio communications system that would play a vital part in the defense of the United States in case of emergency.

Parisians Urged Not To Stare At British Princess

PARIS, May 19.—(AP)—Parisians are being asked to refrain from staring at the British Princess Margaret when she visits the French capital to attend the funeral of King Edward VII of England who died last week.

The best way to let the Princess appreciate the true face of Paris will be not to bother her by staring, curiosity and to spare her the assaults of journalists and photographers which spoiled her stay in Capri and Rome, commented the evening newspaper Paris-Press.

"Queens of the stage and screen are accustomed to these exposures. For a young princess, who desires to live the life of a normal, thoughtful life of our country, nothing would touch her more than this simplicity which comes from the heart and this light incognito, whose transparent veil is indelibly woven from kindness and friendship."

Despite the current expression of such delicate sentiments, there is little likelihood that Princess Margaret will be able to window-shop in the Rue La Paz without being noticed.

There are too many tourists here for that. Besides, a number of Paris newspapers did not hesitate to front page the very pictures whose taking they had criticized in Italy.

Most popular was the one showing the princess in a bathing suit as she tripped down the beach to bathe with her shirt-tailed escort at Capri.

The morning newspaper Co Min which said the picture had been taken "by an indiscreet photographer hidden among the rocks," declared on its front page it would cause a scandal in England.

The scandal, it went on to explain, would be caused by the fact that the picture was not on account of the picture showing "the splendid figure of the young Princess," but because her escort, (T. C. Harvey, the Queen's private secretary) was wearing a hat while leading the Princess, which, the paper commented, was "a little off-hand."

Labor Troubles Cut Car Output Sharply In Week

Ford Strike Knocks Out Hopes Of Setting New Record

DETROIT, May 19.—(AP)—Motor vehicle production sagged again last week as labor troubles halted most assembly lines. The factories built 86,327 passenger cars and 19,729 trucks in the preceding week, the firm said.

The auto makers built 838,123 units in April. That was the best month's volume they had registered since before the war. They expected to set a new record for the month. But the numerous assembly line interruptions caused by the Ford strike, General Motors' decision to shut plants, and the Chrysler strike, all had a depressing effect on the industry.

Planning to make 1949 their biggest production year, the car makers expected to build more than 2,000,000 vehicles by July 1. They probably won't come quite up to that figure. However, Ford and Chrysler have no model changes planned for the first half of the year and the change of other models will be made in the second half.

Some manufacturers, with sizable field stocks on hand, may have to gauge their production closely to retail demand. The makers facing this prospect, however, are few.

Love Life Of Germs May Be Key To Reason Microbes Resist Drugs

CINCINNATI, May 19.—(AP)—Love life in germ world may be the key to why certain microbes develop resistance to powerful drugs like streptomycin, some scientists theorized today.

They offered that interpretation to a report made by Dr. Joshua Lederberg of the University of Wisconsin in the 19th annual meeting of the Society of American Bacteriologists.

Lederberg reported evidence that at least one form of bacteria can produce itself actually, not as animals and man do. This is at variance with the long-held concept that microbes reproduce themselves only by cell division—that is, a given germ divides in two to produce two identical copies of itself.

Some scientists who heard the report said the significance was this: 1. The work offers a possible explanation as to why a certain germ, such as the tuberculosis bacillus, becomes resistant to streptomycin after a time in certain cases of the disease.
