Speakers bureau

SANFORD — The City of Sanford has once again prepared a list of guest speakers who are available for meetings and gatherings throughout the area. The Speaker's Bureau is a community outreach program aimed at providing insight on the wide range of city programs and services.

Speakers are available on almost two dozen subjects ranging from code enforcement, fire prevention and water reclamation to the Soap Box Derby and Golden Age Games.

For information, or to obtain a listing of city officials who are included in the Speakers Bureau, contact the project coordinator at 330-5849.

Straddle dancing

FERN PARK — Members of the City/County Investigative Bureau (CCIB) arrested five customers and four dancers Thursday night at the House of Babes on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Fern Park. Each was charged with a violation of the Seminole County adult entertainment ordinance. Undercover officers said the arrests were a result of "straddle dancing" by the women for the men. All nine of the persons arrested had been released from the John E. Polk Correctional Facility by this morning after posting $115 bond each.

Eagle killed

MAITLAND — An American Bald Eagle, suffering from gunshot wounds, was taken to a Center for Birds of Prey in Maitland last month. A Winter Park veterinarian eventually reported the eagle had suffered from 19 shotgun pellet wounds. The eagle was subsequently euthanized on Dec. 22.

Now, the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission (GFC) is offering a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest of the individual or individuals responsible for the shooting and subsequent death.

The incident reportedly took place, probably in mid-December, in a rural area off Campbell Road, in the Campbell City area of Osceola County. It was found by a volunteer with the Florida Audubon Society and transported to Maitland.

Shooting a bald eagle is a criminal violation under state and federal law.

In addition to the state reward, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is presently considering another reward.

Anyone with information which may help investigators is asked to phone the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, 24-hours a day, at 1-800-342-9620. Callers may remain anonymous if they so choose.

SANFORD — Darcy Fausa didn't get much of a chance to explain to a judge what it was like to live as a slave to Joseph "Crazy Joe" Spaziano — or tell him that the former Outlaws biker bragged about his criminal activities.

Fausa was restricted to telling Judge O.H. Eaton Jr. on Thursday that she was threatened and abused by Spaziano when she lived with him for 18 months starting in late 1973, and that Spaziano "was very well-established with the DiLisio family."

But Fausa has told other investigators that some 20 years ago she saw Spaziano and Anthony DiLisio carry what appeared to be a body wrapped in plastic into the woods and dump it.

Spaziano, who was convicted of murder on DiLisio's testimony in 1976, is seeking a new trial in the slaying of 18-year-old Laura Lyn Harberts, an Orlando hospital clerk. DiLisio, 38, said in 1976 that Spaziano bragged about torturing and killing women and showed him two bodies.

DiLisio formally recanted his testimony in Eaton's courtroom on Tuesday. He now claims he hardly knew Spaziano, and that he concocted the trial story at the urging of police and his abusive father.

Fausa — who has said she was considered Spaziano's "property" — told the judge that Spaziano and the young Tony DiLisio smoked

SANFORD — The Martin Luther King Jr. Commemorative Celebration is a time for remembering the man and his ideals. More than 25 years after Dr. King Jr. stood before thousands in Washington, D.C., and declared "I have a dream," we must ask ourselves, has that dream of coming together as one people, one nation, standing up for what is right, come to fruition?

Followers of Dr. King still believe that love is the most durable power in the world. They remind us that 1 John 4:8 says, "God is love."

SANFORD — Of course supporters of the Seminole County schools have always known the schools here are among the best in the country.

Now there is real proof. According to Money magazine, that prestigious financial publication, the school district is among the top 100 school systems in the country in terms of offering high quality education in a moderately priced community.

In the January 1996 edition of the magazine, 100 school districts of the 16,665 school systems nationwide are featured. The districts that were singled out for inclusion on the list rate high academically and are in communities that offer reasonably-priced housing. Dede Schaffer, coordinator of the school district's community involvement department, said,

"The school systems in the list rank in the top 20 percent of all systems academically, based on their students' performance on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) and the American College Testing Program's Assessment (ACT) college entrance examinations and on the number of SANFORD — The Veterans of Foreign Wars fought hard around the world to ensure that democracy was not defeated.

At home they work hard to be sure the principals for which they fought are revered and understood by all.

Among the ways Sanford Post 10108 does that is to host an annual audio and essay contest among the students at Seminole High School. The theme of this year's Voice of Democracy competition was "Answering America's Call."

Recently the contest winners, their families and their teachers were honored at an awards dinner.

The contest winners were each given framed certificates and cash prizes for their efforts.

The first place winner, Christopher Titshaw, earned $100. The second place winner, Brant Germain, earned $75.

The third place winner, Steve Sperry, earned $50.

The Voice of Democracy Essay contest drew a large number of entries this year, organizers said.

Seminole High teachers Jane Epps and Mary Stokes assisted and encouraged the participants, they said.

16 months for smugglers

MIAMI — Two men who pleaded guilty to the death of a Cuban refugee who died aboard their crowded speed boat during a smuggling operation will spend 16 months in federal prison.

Abel Miranda-Fuentes, 21, and Jorge Nimer-Role, 27, pleaded guilty in November to involuntary manslaughter to avoid being charged with murder in the death of Yalina Gort, 22. They were sentenced Thursday.

Gort was among two dozen refugees onboard a 30-foot Wellcraft which raced out of Matanzas, Cuba. Coast Guard officials found Gort dead when they stopped to assist the boat May 14 about 35 miles south of Key West.

According to the autopsy report, Gort died of multiple injuries from blunt trauma caused by repeated bouncing on choppy seas.

It was the first case of suspected smuggling after the United States adopted a new policy earlier that month to repatriate refugees caught at sea.

Both men were sentenced to the maximum 16 month in prison, to be followed by three years of probation.

Fla. sues sweepstakes company

TALLAHASSEE — The state of Florida is suing a California-based sweepstakes operator, accusing the company of deceiving consumers into making pricey pay-per-minute telephone calls.

Attorney General Bob Butterworth filed a civil suit in Leon County against Direct American Marketers Inc. in Irvine, Calif. The suit said the company has conducted numerous sweepstakes in Florida using mail solicitations to lure recipients into calling a 900 number costing $3.99 a minute.

"Recipients are deceived into believing they have won thousands of dollars and are encouraged to call to verify their winnings," Butterworth said in a statement.

The cost of the call can run as much as $30 or more, he said. Direct American Marketers is considered the nation's largest business using 900 numbers as part of their sweepstakes pitch by the California attorney general's office.

The company denied any wrongdoing and had offered full refunds to any dissatisfied consumers, said Linda Goldstein, a New York lawyer representing Direct American Marketers.

In most instances, Butterworth said, only one cash prize ranging from $7,500 to $15,000 is actually awarded in each sweepstakes and virtually all recipients end up as losers.

The suit also accuses the company of operating an illegal lottery.

Metro-Dade approves Homestead lease

OMESTEAD — Metro-Dade County commissioners have approved a controversial lease with a private group to develop Homestead Air Base into a civilian airport.

The deal, approved at a commission meeting that went into the early morning hours Thursday, would hand over the base to Homestead Air Base Developers Inc. for up to 60 years to develop a civilian airport and for up to 70 years to develop shops and hotels.

No rent is due from the developers until the group begins building on the land and an appraiser sets the rent.

Area residents, who opposed the lease because the commission did not solicit competing bids, showed up in force at Thursday's meeting.

The lease still must be approved by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Last refugees to leave base soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The last of what once numbered 48,000 Haitian and Cuban migrants at the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, will leave by Jan. 31.

The final group of 1,500 Cubans will be sent to the United States or returned to Cuba, Pentagon spokesman Kenneth Bacon said Thursday. Their departure will leave Guantanamo Bay with no migrants for the first time since July 1994 when thousands of Haitians picked up at sea by the Coast Guard were sent there temporarily.

Thousands of Cuban asylum-seekers ended up at Guantanamo Bay in August 1994 after the Cuban government allowed people to leave on makeshift boats and rafts.

At the peak in October 1994, more than 48,000 Cubans and Haitians were camped at Guantanamo Bay. About 8,300 U.S. troops were used to manage the camps. The Haitians were returned to their home island, across the Windward Passage, after democracy was restored in September 1994. The last of the Haitian migrants left Guantanamo on Nov. 1, 1995.

Bacon said Guantanamo Bay will retain a capability to house up to 10,000 migrants in case such a need arises.

INS broadcasts message to warn would-be illegal emigres

By EVAN PEREZ
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — What fences and armed guards won't do to plug the porous U.S. border with Mexico, the Immigration and Naturalization Service hopes infomercial-like broadcasts will. Federal immigration officials have begun using the government's foreign broadcasts to issue warnings that the agency is stepping up its campaign to deport and even jail repeat violators of American immigration law.

Once used to fight communism, the U.S. government's broadcast service sends INS' message directly to what it says is a major source of the 300,000 annual illegal immigrants to this country — Latin America. INS has begun to use the U.S.

Information Agency's program called Worldnet, which is beamed to Latin America, to air warnings in Spanish to would-be emigres.

The 30-minute broadcast, first aired Dec. 20, features INS deputy commissioner Chris Sale fielding questions from Latin American reporters, as well as pictures of border patrol agents chasing undocumented immigrants.

That program was being rebroadcast Thursday.

"What this represents is an educational outreach program," INS spokesman James Michie in Washington said Thursday. "We are trying to emphasize to people that we have immigration laws. There is a right way to come here. If people choose to come through legal means they will be welcome. But those who choose the illegal way will run into difficulties."

But the broadcasts, also carried on Voice of America, were met with a combination of skepticism and derision among immigration advocates who call the tactic racist and ineffective.

The INS said half of the estimated 4 million illegal immigrants living in the United States were "overstays," those who came here with visitors permits and student visas but remained longer than authorized.

One 1992 estimate by the agency showed most illegal residents come from Latin American countries Mexico, El Salvador and Guatemala, followed by Canada and Poland.

"Canada and Poland tomorrow, right? We're educating them, yeah right," said Cheryl Little, a Miami attorney who heads the Florida Immigrant Advocacy Center. "This is a racist policy."

"They're not cracking down on European overstays," Dan Kesselbrenner, of the Boston-based National Immigration Project, said. "They're catering to this anti-immigrant fervor."

Michie dismissed the charge that the agency was unfairly targeting Latinos, noting illegal immigrant smuggling operations from Asia often use Latin America as a stopover.

He said the agency wants to expand its broadcasts but had no firm plans on which region of the world is next. Latin America, he said, was the natural place to start.

"It's not just Latin Americans. It's people from all over the world who find their way to Latin America," Michie said.

Peterson: deadlock leaving states groping in the dark

By BILL BERNSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Congressional dawdling over a federal budget has Florida lawmakers groping in the dark for their own spending plan. U.S. Rep. Pete Peterson said Thursday.

Congress is irresponsible to let ideological disputes hang up the debate for so long, Peterson told the state House Appropriations Committee.

"You don't have anything to work from. You are going to have to use Braille actually in order to get you through your own budgetary cycle," he said.

Florida lawmakers have problems planning for a budget in their March 5-May 3 session without knowing how federal money for big-ticket health-care and welfare programs will be allotted to the states, said House Appropriations Chairman Buzz Ritchie, D-Pensacola.

If state budget writers make the wrong assumptions about federal plans, Floridians could face paying up to $40,000 a day for extra sessions to adjust the state's $39 billion budget.

"We feel like a branch office," said Ritchie. "We don't know what the home office is going to do. All of us are asking for some resolution to this dilemma."

"We have been irresponsible. We have placed you in a position of failure," Peterson told the panel.

Sen. Bob Graham predicted earlier in the week that public opinion would force President Clinton and Congressional leaders to work out their differences.

But Peterson said more deadlock and another partial federal government shutdown is quite likely because of polea-part differences over how involved the federal government should be in health care and welfare.

"It's because this is not a budget debate. You can call it what you want, revolution or policy change. Essentially it's an ideological battle," he said.

Team and local officials deadlock over stadium

TAMPA — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers are at an impasse with county officials on a stadium financing plan. The team says it won't resume talks until there is a plan, and officials say they can't meet the demand.

Bucs general manager Rich McKay outlined the team's position this week in a letter to Hillsborough County Administrator Dan Kelman.

"Until the county and/or the city agree to provide the necessary financing ... no date for completing negotiations ... can be given," McKay wrote.

County commissioners say they can't do what the Bucs demand. They don't have the money and they don't know how much of the tab team owners Malcolm Glazer and his sons are willing to cover.

"Look, the money they're looking for just doesn't exist," said Commissioner Ed Turanchik. "I think this market cannot handle a $192-million team. My feeling is the Bucs are just delaying until they find somewhere else to go."

Turanchik said enough money may be available now to renovate the stadium without imposing new taxes or requiring large payments from Glazer.

"It seems that most of the fans are content with Tampa Stadium," he said. "So we're talking about paying $200 million or so for a new stadium to add club seats?"

Tuesday, for the third time in six days, Bucs vice presidents Joel and Bryan Glazer met with officials seeking to build the team a $200-million, 65,000-seat stadium along the Interstate 4 corridor in Osceola County.

Osceola Commission Chairman Charles Owen and Bucs officials discussed funding options.

Ritz Theater grant looks hopeful

From staff reports

SANFORD — A grant to continue to restore the Ritz Theater in downtown Sanford has been upgraded to the "recommended" list for funding, according to Secretary of State Sandy Northington. Northington made the announcement Wednesday during an Advocacy Rally in Tallahassee.

Pausing in her announcement of the list, Northington gave Rep. Marvin Couch credit for cham-ping the project which has been turned down on three separate occasions.

Despite disappointments, the group has raised their local cost-share for the grant in the amount of $121,306.30 through donations, live theater productions, the sale of memorial bricks, and other projects.

Additionally, during each grant cycle, representatives for the Ritz project have paid their own way to Tallahassee, in order to lobby for funds.

Attending this week's rally, sponsored by the Secretary of State in support of the Arts, Historical Resources and Libraries, were Helen Stairs, president of the Ritz Community Theater Project, Inc., her husband Karl, Wanda Kelly, executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, and Kay Bartholomew, director of the First Street Gallery.

The foursome attended the function wearing "Ritz" hats, holding vintage Ritz placards, waiving red and gold pompons, and rattling bells.

The grant request of $66,490 is to clean and paint the exterior of the Ritz Theater, replace the stage, install sprinkler systems, treat and tent for termites, and replace doors and windows.

"We came home excited and hopeful that at least some funding will be granted, of course, depending on the budget passed during the legislative session," commented President Helen Stairs.

CDC: Suicide rate among elderly jumps

By A.J. HOUSTON
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA — The suicide rate of Americans 65 and older jumped 9 percent between 1990 and 1992. It's a trend that experts say may reflect a growing acceptance of suicide in America and increasing isolation of the elderly.

Elderly Americans make up about 13 percent of the country's population but account for about 20 percent of all suicides, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported Thursday.

The rate climbed from 17.6 suicides per 100,000 people in 1990 to 21.8 in 1992. It dipped to 19.1 in 1991 but was still the highest rate of any age group, the CDC said.

The increase followed a long decline in suicides among the elderly between 1940 and 1990, said CDC medical epidemiologist Dr. Alex Crosby.

The reasons for the sharp jump aren't clear. But experts suggest that today's elderly have lost some of the religious and family concerns that once would have prevented them from considering suicide.

"Their sense of well-being is being eroded," said Dr. Dan Blazer, a psychiatry professor at Duke University Medical Center who studies suicide among older people. "Overall, the emotional and social well-being of an older person now is not as great as it was even in 1985."

The CDC's report covers the period that saw the rise of the right-to-die movement, living wills, Dr. Jack Kevorkian and his assisted-suicide machine, and the 1991 publication of a suicide manual that became a best seller.

"The Kevorkian attitude is, 'If you're old, let it go,'" said Dr. Lanny Berman, head of the American Association of Suicidology.

Living longer with chronic illness and the increasing social isolation of the elderly also play a role in the growing numbers of elderly Americans who take their own lives, Crosby said.

The CDC expects the rate to worsen because older Americans are the fastest-growing age group and the suicide rates for younger adults also are rising, Crosby said.

"This is a flag for us to pay attention," Crosby said. "We need to start doing something about this problem." He said more prevention programs, such as peer counseling, are needed for the elderly.

The study reported that nearly 74,675 Americans age 65 or older killed themselves from 1990 through 1992 — 19 percent of the 384,282 suicides in that period.

Men committed 81 percent of suicides among the elderly. Their rate rose from 34.8 suicides per 100,000 in 1980 to 38.4 suicides per 100,000 in 1992.

Suicides among elderly women dropped from 6.04 suicides per 100,000 in 1980 to 6 per 100,000 in 1992, which Crosby said was statistically insignificant.

Guns were the most common method of suicide, used by 74 percent of men and 31 percent of women.

Survey: Nearly 4 percent of U.S. population riding Internet wave

By KAREN SCHWARTZ
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — Half of all the people who surf the Internet got their feet wet for the first time in 1995, a survey has found. And nearly 4 percent of the U.S. population now rides the wave.

Internet users spend an average of 6.6 hours a week on the Net, said Thomas E. Miller, who directed The American Internet User Survey released Thursday.

The survey found 9.5 million Americans, or 3.6 percent of the population, use the Internet, including 1.1 million children under 18, Miller said.

Fifty-one percent of the people surveyed said they first tapped in last year. America Online is the most popular Internet access method, serving 30 percent of users, and a quarter of all Internet users have more than one access method.

The Emerging Technologies Research Group randomly surveyed 1,000 U.S. adult Internet users by phone in November and December. Only people age 18 and older were interviewed, but those with children were asked about their youngsters' habits.

The survey, which was sponsored by 30 corporations with interests in the Internet, has a margin of error of 3 percentage points.

The survey found the average Internet user is 36 years old, and use of the Internet closely follows college education. The average household income of an Internet user is $62,000.

Overall, 31 percent of Internet users were under age 30; 27 percent were age 30-39; 26 percent were 40-49; and 13 percent were 50 or older.

Thirty-five percent of all Internet users are women. Women who use the Internet are more likely than men to use it at work and academic locations, the survey found. And women are twice as likely as men to use Internet exclusively for business.

More hours on the Internet meant less time spent on other pursuits: Nearly a third of Internet users said they spent less time watching television, while a fourth said they spent less time on long-distance telephone calls. Fifteen percent said they spent less time watching videos and 10 percent said they spent less time listening to the radio.

Interestingly, 12 percent and 13 percent said they decreased the time they spent reading newspapers and magazines respectively, but a similar number, 9 percent and 11 percent, said they increased the time they spent reading, primarily because they were trying to learn more about the Internet.

Debunking the image of the Web surfer, the survey found nearly two-thirds of Internet users visited fewer than 50 Web sites in any depth. The Web is a popular portion of the Internet that allows anyone with a personal computer and modem to tap into information, graphics, pictures and sound from businesses, organizations and individuals.

Only 23 percent of Internet users had visited more than 100 Web sites in any depth. In addition, the interviewers found that Web users often had little recall about the sites they had seen, remembering a truck, for instance, rather than a brand name.

"We feel that the image of the Internet as an advertising and marketing medium needs some adjustment," Miller said. He said people use it more like the Yellow Pages, to look up information, than television, which brings unsolicited ads to them.

Personal use of the World Wide Web far outpaced business use, with 52 percent of all Web sites visited for personal reasons, 35 percent for business and 13 percent for academic reasons, a finding Miller said was surprising.

"At the heart of this is a simple desire to master the information explosion," Miller said. He said many of the people interviewed described themselves as "victims" who were bombarded by the mass media.

The Internet is different because it gives back control. "The user can define where to go in the tidal wave of information they see day in and day out,"

Carry the dream

Monday has been officially designated as Martin Luther King, Jr. Day. It has been so named in honor of a man who many believe was the most prominent black leaders of the 20th century.

Dr. King was not only a civil rights leader, but a minister and recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize in 1964.

He was born Jan. 15, 1929 in Atlanta, Georgia, and was assassinated in Memphis on April 4, 1968. After his death, many states and territories began observing his birthday as a holiday.

Finally, in 1983, the U.S. Congress approved a bill which made the birthdate of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. a legal public holiday. It was signed by the president and became public law as of Jan. 20, 1986, designated for the third Monday in January of each year.

In some parts of the nation, especially in areas in the south, this has not been an easy holiday to accept. Even though segregation has been outlawed on paper, there are still some people who have it firmly planted in their minds.

This point can be proven by looking at people who turn out for the observances held during this holiday. At most events, the audience or spectators will be possibly 90 percent (or more) African Americans.

Of course there are a few who believe Dr. King's birthday celebration is strictly for the black race, and even go the point of harassing people of other races who may wish to attend.

But this is not a racial celebration. It must never be allowed to be that. Dr. King's civil rights efforts were for the betterment of all mankind.

Make it a point this year to get involved. Attend one of the many observances being held here in Sanford and throughout Central Florida for Dr. Martin Luther King's birthday anniversary this weekend. It may give you an entirely new look at today's society and dealing with your fellow men.

WILLIAM RASPBERRY

Case for mentoring before marriage

WASHINGTON-It was a lovely wedding, complete with professional quality singers and a small chamber group. The bride was gorgeous, the groom handsome, the minister witty and wise. And the setting—the chapel of St. Rose of Lima in exurban Gaithersburg, Md.—was Christmas-card picturesque.

But what remains on my mind is the conversation with Sidney and Bobbie McNairy after the wedding of Gordon and Nancy (Martin) Taylor.

The McNairys had been the church-appointed "mentoring couple" for the newlyweds, a role I'd never heard of but one I now think should be universal. (So does Michael J. McManus, but I'll get to him later.)

What the McNairys brought from their own 30-plus years of marriage was a practical side of marriage that is often beyond the reach of the more-or-less perfunctory counseling pastors tend to offer these days.

"I wanted to underscore the importance of family, because I've learned how important that can be," Sidney McNairy told me. "I remember telling Gordon that it might even be necessary to put family before career development. Everything else is secondary."

Bobbie McNairy said she spoke to them of mutual patience and "the importance of taking into account that Nancy is a professional woman of the '90s, with her own income and career, also the need to make a special effort to make time for each other."

Their advice covered everything from handling family finances and settling arguments to how to make the children grow up as regular churchgoers.

"I was really reluctant to do this," Sidney McNairy said, recalling when the Rev. Bob Dutton first approached him about the mentoring role. "To be frank, I didn't think I had that much to contribute, and I also thought it would open up a lot of issues within me that I hadn't dealt with. But after I was horse-tied and dragged into the process, I found it taught me as much as it

The church-appointed "mentoring couple" for the newlyweds, is a role I'd never heard of but one I now think should be universal.

taught the young couple. I would welcome the opportunity to do it again. I wish every young couple could have the benefit of listening to a couple who've been successfully married."

That wish has become a near obsession for Mike McManus, whose syndicated column "Ethics and Religion" appears on the religion page of some 80 newspapers across the country.

"I guess my ace column on the subject was the one in which I pointed out that America has more people attending church and the highest divorce rate of any modern nation," he told me the other day. "It seemed to me that American churches have become blessing machines and wedding factories that don't really help couples bond for life."

Thus he was ripe for his encounter with David Olson, a psychology professor at the University of Minnesota, whose premarital inventory for engaged couples is said to predict with 86 percent accuracy which couples will ultimately divorce.

Among the key questions in Olson's 125-issue inventory: Does your partner give you the silent treatment in arguments? Have you discussed the role of the father in bringing up children? Is there a problem between you that you think will go away after you're married?

JACK ANDERSON

Did JFK victimize an American hero?

WASHINGTON -- President Clinton left out one uncomfortable detail in his stirring tribute to Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, the father of the modern Navy, who died earlier this month.

As we were the first to report, Burke's office was once burglarized by the administration of Clinton's boyhood hero -- President John F. Kennedy.

With 2,000 mourners gathered at the largest military funeral in more than a decade, Clinton spoke movingly about how Burke "stood watch over our freedom for more than four decades."

The president recounted how Burke earned his nickname -- "31-knot Burke" -- by pushing his division of ships to its speed limits during World War II, fighting an amazing 22 battles with the Japanese fleet in just four months.

After the war, Clinton added, Burke served a record three terms as chief of naval operations from 1955 to 1961. In that post, he was credited with speeding up production of nuclear-powered submarines, developing the Navy's ability to fight at night and bringing guided missiles into widespread use. He won 13 medals, including the Navy Cross for bravery and the Presidential Medal of Freedom in 1977.

"Every life is a lesson, but his life particularly so," Clinton said. "For in 94 years on this earth, at sea and on land, Arleigh Burke gave nothing less than everything he had for his cherished Navy and beloved country."

Clinton failed to mention, however, that Burke's country returned the favor by rifling through his private files in 1963. As we reported in 1977, Burke believed that government gumshoes broke into his private office and stole important personal documents that later turned up in a secret file of the Naval Investigative Service.

Included in the papers was a raw transcript of an interview that Burke had granted to Greek reporter Elias Demetracopoulos in August 1963. At the time, Burke was the Colin Powell of his day: The retired admiral was emerging as the most articulate conservative critic of the Kennedy administration's military policies, and many Republicans were urging Burke to run for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination.

The Navy said it obtained the document from "another agency." Burke was convinced that meant the CIA.

In the interview with Demetracopoulos, Burke bluntly declared that the armed forces had nothing to do with the disastrous 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba. He implied that the CIA was solely to blame for the fiasco.

This was major news at the time because the CIA wanted to keep its role in the Bay of Pigs secret, and Kennedy was nervous about the incident becoming a campaign issue in 1964. Burke was a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff during the invasion, and he had several heated arguments with Kennedy about how to handle the mess.

Only Burke, his secretary and Demetracopoulos knew of the interview before it was published in October 1963. And none of them released the raw transcript, which was edited in Burke's own handwriting. It was a copy of this raw transcript, complete with Burke's handwritten remarks, that mysteriously turned up in the Navy file.

Demetracopoulos learned about the Navy file by sending a routine Freedom of Information request to the government. The journalist said he had only received a "clean" copy from Burke and had not seen the version with the hand-written corrections.

The thunder of silence

This letter was written to save lives. All sarcasm directed toward big government and hypothetical legislative processes is intentional.

Since 1948 an important medical study has been conducted in Framingham, MA which has identified a correlation between high cholesterol and heart disease. The most important discovery is that the group of subjects examined, no person who consistently had a total cholesterol reading below 150 has ever suffered a heart attack.

For all adult Americans, the range of total cholesterol is represented by a density function called a bell curve. This means that people have cholesterol readings clustered near the peak of the bell than near the edges. Knowing that total cholesterol below 150 is a safe level, it is possible to use yearly coronary death rate and average cholesterol statistics along with a mortality function represented by a ramp to predict the death rate for any national average cholesterol. A reduction in cholesterol to 190 from the current 205 will save 200,000 lives yearly. A more dramatic savings of 500,000 lives per year will require a reduction of average cholesterol to 187.

The yearly death rate of 923,000 due to heart disease is a national scandal because heart disease is now preventable. What will happen if the same number of people were killed by firearms this year? Congress would attempt to pass legislation to confiscate every registered firearm owned by private citizens. What will happen if 923,000 people died on our highways in 1995? Congress would not dare to confiscate our automobiles but certainly would attempt to lower the speed limit to 35 mph. Finally, what will Congress do when the latest statistics are released regarding heart disease deaths? All we will hear is the thunder of silence.

This amazing disregard for the sanctity of human life by our government indicates a serious leadership vacuum in this country. The leadership attribute we must expect from all our elected representatives is to improve our quality of life at the lowest possible cost while maintaining our national sovereignty. Heart disease is a quality of life issue because it is a life or death issue with life extended by use of preventive medicine.

The first action by Congress to mitigate this disaster is to establish truthful guidelines regarding safe total cholesterol levels. The current guideline recommending diet modification or treatment only when cholesterol readings are above 240 is not laughable, but very sad commentary about the arrogant disregard of prevention of disease as a cure.

Congress must surmount pressures from special interests and take the offensive against foods containing saturated or hydrogenated fat which are so dangerous to our health. A tax based upon total content of either type of fat in processed foods or beverages must be enacted. A tax causing a voluntary improvement in diet creates less social upheaval than an outright ban on dangerous foods. Citizens would rightfully object to formation of a federal food police. Imagine the outburst of resentment if an FEA margarine bust as a result of a false tip by an informer is attempted against a family enjoying a Sunday breakfast together.

Taxes collected on hard fats should be used to supplement the Medicare portion of FICA. The explosive growth of Medicare will decrease as wellness among the elderly increases resulting in a stabilizing cap on Medicare FICA taxes collected from wage earners.

Good Neighbors

When we started our family we knew for sure there would be joy and happiness, and work in full measure.

We'd share our good times with all those we knew; the grandmas, the grandpas, aunts and uncles too.

But the work involved cleaning, changing and fixing meals we knew full well was our part of the deal.

Some say love or mature responsibility, but all we know was we'd do our best; the best of our ability.

And then a puppy adopted us; for real, he's not just a loner. Without a permit of any kind, our neighbors became co-owners.

Early each morning, again late at night, our puppy leaves his calling cards far from our line of sight.

It works just fine from our point of view; we get the joy, they get the do-do.

We can cut our lawn in our bare feet or wearing shoes while our grumpy neighbors keep singing the blues.

So, just to keep the peace, we began to walk the dog, bought a leash and all; still the neighbors are in a fog.

It's not our fault, it's Mother Nature, so don't even bother to write your Legislature.

Big cities solved this problem a long, long time ago. Pooper Scoopers, that's the ticket for dog owners in the know.

If I don't teach my kids to use your yard as a commode, how about taking your pets far away from my abode?

It's only fair. On land or sea or foam, you get the fun, you get the work. Please keep your dog at home!

Crime is a role model

Crime is a role model coming from many sources.

We have a society where the privileged protect the privileged; a legal system overlooks white collar crime and acquits criminals able to afford an expensive defense; deregulation of the savings and loan institutions contributed to a tragic debacle to our economy; the takeovers and mergers of companies by Wall Street gurus have destroyed loyalty; Political Action Committees (PACS) put strangleholds on urgently needed solutions; wealthy corporations infiltrate grass-roots movements to destroy solutions reflecting the needs of society; polls are used to purposely manufacture public opinion; wasteful research devoted to the creation of "artificial wants" and profit motives rather than meaningful, humane endeavors; corrective laws for environmental problems are diluted by the industries that caused it; an educational system, unevenly funded, produces deprivation and affluence; deliberate destruction of workers' unions is condoned; a workforce is denied a share of the profits they helped create; a media intimidated by advertising dollars, produces fiction; a health care system out of control with greed and purposefully subjecting citizens to hidden dangers at impossible prices.

We have a society where 10 percent of the people own 86 percent of the financial wealth. Deprivation and slavery for such a large majority of our society is destroying the economy, environment, education, family, needs of children, infrastructure, ethics, morals, responsibility, etc.

Yes, crime is a role model coming from many sources.

Are contrived arguments about the need to reduce the deficit really a disguise to divert attention from true intent -- to remove citizens in need of a safety net from the genetic pool? Why is government ignoring remedies such as: freezing health care costs instead of allowing them to double by the year 2000; making monopolistic corporations responsible and accountable to the national community instead of the predatory loopholes disguised as "free market force; recognizing that citizens without incomes cannot buy what being produced by less and less workers; talking about procedures to implement a true democracy and letting the people make the decisions instead of the predatory lobbyists.

In Florida, there is an initiative to place on the '96 ballot, the question of whether Florida citizens want single payer health care reform. It's a start. (A self-addressed stamped envelope to: 6041 Diana Road, Venice, FL 34293 will get you a copy of the initiative which you can copy for your friends, which they can copy for theirs.)

Marijuana together and visited in each other's homes.

Fausa said she didn't tell her story then because Spaziano threatened her.

"I was not to say anything about anybody he knew or what went on because if I did, he knew where my family lived" and he would harm them, she told the judge. "And that was on many, many occasions."

Fausa's brief appearance was punctuated by angry outbursts from Spaziano lawyer James Rusa, who succeeded in excluding some of her testimony and declared that she was "not up there to totally dump the toilet on Spaziano."

Fausa said she lived with Spaziano from November 1973, when she was 19, until his arrest in Chicago in 1978. She left the state with him when police were investigating Herbert's murder and the rape and knifing of a 16-year-old Orlando girl.

Fausa told Rusa she maintained a sexual relationship with the later "against my will, yes, by force." She was also forced by Spaziano to work as a stripper, she said, and smoked marijuana with him.

Spaziano, wearing a dark suit and glasses, sat back in his chair at the defense table and stared when Fausa walked in and pointed him out from the witness stand.

Fausa said she told the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, which investigated DiLisio's recantation, of the alleged body dumping by Spaziano and DiLisio.

Neither prosecutors nor Spaziano lawyers brought up those issues Thursday, when the 4-day-old hearing was recessed until Saturday.

In the hallway outside the courtroom, Herbert's parents said they were puzzled by DiLisio's recantation as well as the extensive, and expensive, efforts by unpaid criminal defense lawyers seeking a new trial for Spaziano.

"When you see the resources that the defense has here, it kind of puzzles you," said Art Herbert.

DiLisio was "very, very believable at trial," Herbert said. "If he lied then, and he's not lying now, who's to say... He's very skilled at it."

Gloria Herbert said, "It's been 20 years. Many people have died. DiLisio's father isn't here to defend himself. The fact is that our daughter is dead and Spaziano is still here."

The top scoring school districts on the list compare favorably with selective private prep schools, Schaffner said.

According to the editors at Money, the school districts on the top 100 list have several things in common that set them apart from other school systems in the country. Those items include widespread community support for public education, involved parents, enthusiastic teachers, innovative but not trendy administrators and high expectations for all students.

It has been the goal of the Seminole County school district to meet all of those criteria, Schaffner said.

Considering therapy for menopause

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am a 45-year-old female whose periods are becoming further and further apart and I am experiencing hot flashes. My gynecologist has just put me on Loestrin to regulate my periods and stop the hot flashes. I do not need birth control, and this is regulating my periods and stopping the hot flashes. My concern is: I read that women over the age of 35 should not take oral contraceptives. My doctor says that research is finding it is OK to take these. Could you please clear this up?

DEAR READER: Any medicine has side effects. Therefore, anyone taking medication must analyze the risk/benefit ratio.

For example, when a person chooses to take a couple of aspirin for headache, he or she is balancing the risks (excessive bleeding, allergic reactions and gastric irritation) and the benefits (getting rid of the pain). Because with a dose of two aspirin the risks are very small, our hypothetical patient chooses the greater benefit of being pain-free.

The same principle holds true for female hormone supplements, either in the form of birth-control pills or medicine to relieve the unpleasant symptoms of menopause, such as hot flashes and moodiness. On the one hand, these drugs do what they are supposed to do. On the other, they have side effects (risks), notably a tendency to form blood clots, liver damage, hypertension, breast cancer, and uterine tumors — depending on the age of the user.

The situation is further complicated by "external" factors: Women who smoke are more likely to suffer adverse consequences; elderly women are more prone to develop growths; hormone supplements appear to protect older women against osteoporosis and heart disease.

Most women are not disabled by symptoms of menopause; hot flashes, for instance, wane and eventually disappear in a matter of months. For such women, hormone therapy is not necessary, because the risks of treatment outweigh the benefits.

In contrast, women with severe and prolonged menopause can definitely be helped by supplemental hormones. In such cases, the benefits exceed the risks. Moreover, if a post-menopausal woman has a strong family history of osteoporosis or heart disease, she may justifiably choose hormone therapy to prevent these conditions. In such instances, the benefits again outweigh the risks.

However, if a woman has had breast or uterine cancer (or has a strong family pattern of these tumors), she should certainly think twice before taking supplemental hormones.

You and your gynecologist have some work to do. The two of you need to sit down for a frank and detailed discussion concerning the advantages (and hazards) of therapy. Only then can you make an educated decision about whether hormone treatments are in your best interest.

MEDICINE

DEAR DR. GOTT: My sister and I have had a life-long problem with irregularity. After eating all the right foods, we finally found an herbal tea to regulate us. It is made up of mild lubricating herbs. Is it safe to continue with this product?

DEAR READER: Many natural products make excellent laxatives: cascara, fiber, extract of buckthorn (Movicol), psyllium (found in Metamucil, Correctol and others), prunes, and apricots, to mention a few. In addition, many herbs may stimulate evacuation. Even additional fluids can ameliorate constipation.

In your question, you don't mention the active ingredients in the herbal tea. Therefore, I cannot give you more than a general recommendation: Most herbal teas are safe, if used in moderation. You should check with your family physician about the specific product that you mention.

WIN AT BRIDGE

A signal of the times?

By Phillip Alder

If I were given five dollars every time I saw a driver make a turn without signaling, I would have to work only about two hours a day and would live like a millionaire. Is this just a New York area problem or is it nationwide?

It is the same at the bridge table, when players refuse to make their signals as clear-cut as possible. Today's deal is a classic example.

A good policy for competing against the strong no-trump is to enter the auction, find a fit and get out as quickly as possible, because a makable game contract is so unlikely. South had this in mind when he bid two hearts. However, North was worried that they might be able to make four of a major. East was happy to double everything.

West started with the three top clubs, dummy ruffing the third. What should East discard?

At the table, East selected the diamond four: his higher spot-card as an encouraging signal. However, the four looked low to West. So, when South called for dummy's spade king, West won with the ace and continued with the club jack, hoping fatally to undermine declarer's trump holding.

Happily, South ruffed in the dummy, discarded his two diamond losers on the queen-jack of spades and conceded one heart trick. His nine tricks were two spades, five hearts and two club ruffs in the dummy.

East, of course, should have discarded the spade two at trick three. This would be much clearer to West, who would switch to diamonds after winning with the spade ace.

LONGWOOD — Courtney Harris and Lori Hammett each scored 15 points Thursday to lead Lake Mary past Seminole 62-42 in a battle for first place in the Seminole Athletic Conference. "Anytime we play Seminole, everyone comes ready to play," said Lake Mary coach Carl Brown. "This was a big win for us. We just need to do our job from here on out." For the second time in 48 hours, the Rams took the lead in the SAC basketball standings.

The Lake Mary boys defeated Oviedo 57-53 on Wednesday to grab the top spot in the SAC boys race. The Seminole girls team was in first place in the SAC prior to Thursday's loss to Lake Mary.

It looked like the Tribe had a strong chance of retaining the league lead as Dana Merrick gave them a 7-3 lead on a layup with 2:07 left in the first quarter. The Rams then charged to within 7-6 at the end of the period, and raced to a 12-7 advantage to start the second quarter.

Lake Mary, which later built leads of 25-9 and 31-13, enjoyed a 31-15 edge at halftime. Harris had 11 of the Rams' 25 second quarter points, while Hammett had six and Maggie Reedy had four. Freshman Aahlee Ballance extended Lake Mary's lead to 37-17 to open the third quarter.

"It was a nightmare," said Seminole coach John McNamara. "We had a bad game, and we just got whipped."

Seminole trimmed the deficit to 39-24, but Lake Mary held a 42-28

Johnson era begins for Miami Dolphins

By STEVEN WINE
 AP Sports Writer

DAVIE — Six days after Don Shula called it quits, Jimmy Johnson's two-year vacation from coaching came to an end.

The Miami Dolphins introduced Johnson as their coach Thursday at a news conference in the same room where Shula announced his resignation last Friday.

"I thought this was going to be a much longer process than it turned out to be," owner H. Wayne Huizenga said. "It's hard for me to believe."

Johnson, 52, and Huizenga needed just one four-hour meeting Wednesday to reach a deal.

"I saw somebody who wanted to win as badly as I wanted to win." Johnson said. He added with a smile, "That's what got me excited to the point where I even forgot about asking for money."

Johnson signed a four-year, $8 million deal, less than expected but enough to make him the highest-paid coach in the NFL.

Shula, who set an NFL record with 347 victories, was the league's highest-paid coach this past season with a salary estimated at nearly $2 million. Pat Riley of the NBA's Miami Heat is believed to be the highest-paid coach in professional sports and reportedly will make $3 million this year.

Shula, who is known to have mixed feelings about Johnson, left Thursday for a vacation in Phoenix and was Franklin never slowed down, taking down Ken Rummel Chevrolet 13-1 in five innings.

In the second game, Crazy Wings fell behind 3-2 after one inning before coming back to take a 9-4 lead heading into the bottom of the fifth inning. But Beer:30 finally got its offense cranked up, scoring five runs in the bottom of the fifth inning to tie the game at 9-9 and then took the lead with two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning.

Crazy Wings got one run back in the top of the seventh inning and had the tying and go-ahead runs on third and first base with only one out. But Beer:30 pitcher Jerry Camus snagged a line drive head for center field and threw on to first base for the game ending doubleplay as Beer:30 won 11-10.

In the late game, M.A. Erectors scored 12 runs in the top of the fourth inning to take a 19-0 lead and needed just one run to end the game by the 20-run mercy rule.

But Playtime Darts/Nice-N-Easy came alive and scored three runs in the bottom of the fourth inning and seven runs in the bottom of the fifth inning to cut the lead to 21-10 and keep the game going. M.A. Erectors then put the game away as Ron Green's three-run home run keyed a unavailable for comment. The team issued a release with comments from a dozen players and others, but no statement by Shula.

Huizenga said he spoke with Shula daily about the search for a new coach, and Johnson said he talked with his predecessor Wednesday.

"Don heartily supports this decision," Huizenga said.

"I asked Don for input," Johnson said. "He wants to give input. He'll do whatever it takes for this organization to be the best. I would think he'll be a fixture here with the Miami Dolphins forever."

Shula, frustrated by a team with high salaries, low morale and a disappointing 9-8 record, retired last week to end a 26-year era in Miami. The new era began with the hiring of a coach who led the Dallas Cowboys to Super Bowl titles in 1992 and 1993.

"I don't think this team needs a major overhaul at all," said Johnson, the championship ring on his left hand reflecting the glare of TV lights. "There's talent on this team. This team can win. There will be changes - that comes with the territory. We'll try to make it a situation where it's not a rebuilding time."

Several players welcomed the news.

"It's a positive step," quarterback Dan Marino said. "He's a guy that may get us to the point where we can win a championship, and that's everybody's goal."

Backup quarterback Bernie Kosar, who played with Johnson for the Cowboys and Miami Hurricanes, said he believes Johnson will help the Dolphins reach their potential.

"Just talking to him and sitting across the desk from him, and seeing the intensity and the way he's focused already on this coming year shows he's not going into this planning to do it halfway," Kosar said.

Johnson followed coaching great Tom Landry in a tumultuous transition at Dallas seven years ago. Change came more smoothly in Miami, almost as if scripted by Huizenga.

"I'm here to announce today we do not have any tickets available for the Dolphins-Cowboys game coming up this year," Huizenga joked before introducing his new coach.

The teams do indeed play in 1988 at Joe Robbie Stadium.

By all accounts, the relationship between Huizenga and Johnson is off to a good start. Their contrasting hair styles - bald vs. coiffed - have already become a running joke, and at the news conference Huizenga held up a doctored picture of Johnson with a shaved head.

SAMBULA — Apollo's David Russell continued his dominance of the Lake Model championship races at New Smyrna Speedway by winning the 13th Annual Red-Eye 100 Saturday night at the local speedplant.

An alert call by the crew and heads up pit strategy put Russell in victory lane for the third consecutive time in Lake Model extra lap races.

A six car pile up on lap 67 of the Red-Eye put the field under a red flag period. Three wrecks took 45 minutes to sort out the pile up and haul the mangled race cars from the track.

With the track clear Bruce Lawrence and Russell were side-by-side on the front row for the restart. As the field came around under caution, Russell dove to the pits to put on four fresh tires, while Lawrence remained on the track.

Russell came out of the pits lined up behind Lawrence and, at the drop of the green, wasted little time in taking the lead. Russell went inside Longwood's Ronnie Burgett for second, then going down the backstretch blew around Lawrence into the lead.

"The crew put me in position to make that move and go on to win the race. This was almost the same strategy they used when I won the last two big races," said Russell, who pilots the Golly Soft Drink/Russell Automotive Chevrolet Camaro. "They got on the radio and told me about the pile-up in turn three. When we knew they were going yellow the crew told me to come in for fresh rubber."

The same call by the crew in the closing laps of the Governor's Cup in October and the Craker 200 in November also put Russell in victory lane.

"Our successes have been such a great team effort," said Russell, a three-time FASCAR Late Model champion. "It's not only the crew, Robert Hamke gave us a great race car and Dennis Boyd built us one great engine."

Ronnie Roach outduelled fellow pole sitter Tony Ponder to take the early lead in the 100 lap classic.

While Ponder was challenging Roach for the number one slot, Orlando's David Rogers, Lawrence and Ormond Beach's Jack Cook were battling to fill out the top five.

The following lap, Ponder slipped out of the groove allowing Rogers, Lawrence, Cook and Russell to slip by.

On lap 21, Roach attempted to avoid a tangle in turn two, spun to the high side of the track and brought out the caution.

On the restart Roach was put on the tail end of the field as Rogers assumed the point.

LYMAN HOUNDS PATS

ALAMONTE SPRINGS — Angel Rhodes had 17 points and Leslie Guldry 11 and Lyman outscored Lake Brantley 19-2 in the third period in the Greyhounds' 66-42 victory over the Patriots in a Seminole Athletic Conference girls' basketball game Thursday night.

Kate Carlough netted a game-high 20 points for Lake Brantley (2-15, 0-7 in the SAC), which will be at Bishop Moore on Monday night.

Lyman (8-9, 2-4 SAC) will travel to SAC leading Lake Mary

On lap 33, as Lawrence got around Rogers for the lead, Russell, who set the evening's fast qualifying time, moved around Cook for third place.

Lawrence, riding on a rail, was pacing the field by about 10 car lengths in front of Russell and Cook, who were dueling for the runner-up spot.

On lap 67, going into turn four, Rogers suddenly boiled from the racing groove and impacted into the outside retaining wall. A split second later Morgan Hoover and Tony Newsome duplicated the action. Ricky Wood coming into turn three hit a slick spot, crashed into Ponder and came to rest on top of Hoover's mount. Also involved in the melee was Scott Reeves.

None of the drivers were injured but all six cars went behind pit wall out of competition.

A blown water hose on Mark Silke's car dumped water on the track causing the demo derby type of action.

"I never saw the fluid on the track," said Rogers. "But the minute I hit it I knew it was there. This is one of those typical race situations, you're there and there is nothing you can do about it."

The race continued without further incident with Russell taking the checkers about four car lengths ahead of Burgett.

"I finally had a chance to get in the race," said Burgett, Friday night's feature winner at Orlando Speedworld.

"When I got around Bruce (Lawrence) there were only about two or three laps left in the race. We had a good car, with a little more time we could have caught David (Russell)."

Lawrence finished third ahead of Roach and Tank Tucker.

When asked if not for pitting for tires might have cost him the race, Lawrence said his third place finish could be attributed to a nagging power-steering problem.

"Our power-steering went out about the time of the accident and the car was just a monster to handle," said Lawrence, the 1980 winner of the Red-Eye. "The same thing happened to us a few months ago in the Governor's Cup race and we just can't seem to find the problem."

The race took 1:30 to complete, there were five caution periods and the winner's purse was $3,000.

Burgett and Lawrence were the only drivers to finish on the lead lap. On lap 77 Cook blew an engine and his bid for a fifth Red-Eye victory went up in a cloud of smoke.

Other feature winners were: Chuck Vold (Sportsman), Jimmy Winks (Modfeds), Conrad Greiner (Mini-Stocks) and Rusty Eberole (Limited Late Models).

Johnson likes the talent he inherited from Shula. Along with many other prognosticators, Johnson made Miami the preseason favorite in the AFC, and even after the team barely made the playoffs, he picked them to reach the Super Bowl.

Instead, the Dolphins were blown out at Buffalo in the first round, and Shula decided five days later to retire.

"On the outside, I felt they had the opportunity to go all the way," Johnson said. "I was wrong. On the inside, it's going to be my responsibility to make the adjustments so we can achieve that."

Johnson may keep a couple of Shula's assistant coaches, including Gary Stevens as offensive coordinator.

The third coach in the Dolphins' 30-year history, Johnson hopes to avoid the growing pains that came with rebuilding teams in his previous jobs. He went 4-7 his second year at Oklahoma State, 8-5 his first year with the Miami Hurricanes and 1-15 his first year in Dallas.

Johnson returns to Miami with his mystique intensified because he's unbeaten since 1983, spending the past two seasons in television. He won as many NFL titles in five years as Shula won in 33. Only two other active coaches have won a Super Bowl: Bill Parcells and George Seifert.

Miami TV stations interrupted their broadcasts of President Clinton's news conference to carry Johnson's live in South Florida. The new coach acknowledged that memories of trips to the White House after his three championships were on his mind.

"When three different presidents grabbed my hand and said, 'Congratulations Jimmy, you were part of the very, very best,' that gave me a special feeling, and I want that feeling again," he said.

Colleagues and fans lauded Johnson's hiring. "Jimmy Johnson is an outstanding coach who is replacing one of the all-time great coaches," said New York Jets coach Rich Kotite. "The rivalry between the New York Jets and Miami Dolphins has always been a great one and with Jimmy taking over at Miami, it certainly promises to continue that way."

Pittsburgh coach Bill Cowher was guarded. "I've had a lot of respect for Don Shula," Cowher said. "Jimmy is a good coach, but it will not change the balance in the NFL. Don Shula also was a good coach."

Miami fans were elated. "I think it's great," said Javier Sievers of Miramar. "I think Don Shula was running out of gas. I think Jimmy Johnson is a guy who is going to spark up the Dolphins."

What is the value of education?

According to the Bureau of the Census (1982 data) high school dropouts will earn about $800,000 over their working lifetime. In comparison, a high school graduate will earn about $2,000,000 over the work life cycle. This difference of $1,200,000 can be used to drive home the benefits of completing high school when addressing a young audience. Assuming that the average school year is 180 days long, implies that every day that students earn $370 per day, for each day they stay in school. There are very few legal jobs where a student could be making that kind of money per day.

Completing a bachelor's degree means an extra $400,000

CONSUMER FOCUS

over the work life of a person. That works out to be about $900 per day spent attending college. The variability of earnings of college graduates is large, however, with engineering and health professionals having earnings substantially higher than history and humanities majors.

The estimates provided above are very conservative indeed as they assume that earnings will stay constant — at current levels — throughout a person's life. This is usually not the case as earnings of persons with more education grow faster. For instance, from 1972 to 1982, income for high school dropouts grew by 4.1 percent per year while those for high school graduates grew by 5.5 percent yearly. For persons with bachelor's degrees, earnings grew by 6.6 percent yearly. Given that inflation between 1972 and 1982 was about 5.5 per year, high school dropouts' earnings did not even keep pace with inflation. High school graduates matched the inflation rate, and college graduates outpaced inflation by over one percent per year.

Projecting these patterns of earnings growth and inflation, the real present value of a high school diploma is $364,000. Which, when divided by the number of days of school attendance typically required to complete high school, results in $674 per day!

Woman's depression was all in her thyroid, not her head

DEAR ABBY: I recently suffered from a serious depression. I was so depressed that thoughts of self-destruction were almost impossible to get out of my mind. I cried all the time and was paranoid about everything and everybody. I felt I couldn't do or say anything right. I thought I had nothing to live for. What a helpless feeling!

My mother and two of my friends insisted that I have my thyroid gland checked. My doctor didn't think a thyroid evaluation was necessary because I didn't have the usual physical symptoms. She wanted to prescribe anti-depressants. However, when I insisted, she agreed to do the thyroid function test.

A couple of days later, she called and prescribed medication to treat my thyroid problem. She also congratulated me for insisting on the test.

If I had not asked for the thyroid test, I would be taking anti-depressants and still be physically sick. Perhaps others who struggle with depression are really suffering from thyroid disorder.

FEELING BETTER IN ATLANTA

DEAR CONCERNED: I would like to think that those who are on anti-depressants have been first evaluated for physical disorders. However, if they haven't been, perhaps your letter will give them the courage to insist on testing to determine if there is a physical cause for their depression — which can be caused by a thyroid condition. Depression can also be caused by certain prescription medications, chronic fatigue syndrome, fibromyalgia (pain in the muscles, ligaments and tendons), and even lack of sleep.

Before any anti-depressants are dispensed, a complete medical evaluation — including blood tests that would reveal a thyroid problem — should be performed by a qualified physician.

DEAR ABBY: I am a single mother. Please tell your readers that not all of us on welfare are freeloaders.

I have been on welfare since August 1992. For the past two years, I have tried to get off.

My grandmother sees the stress I'm dealing with every day, and she sometimes takes me to play bingo. The few times I've gone, I have heard remarks such as, "How can people on welfare afford to go to bingo?"

Abby, I have applied for jobs — sometimes three or four times at the same place — but I am not called. I have no car, so it would be almost impossible to get to some jobs. On AFDC, I receive $490 a month and $140 in food stamps. I pay $400 for rent and another $60 for utilities. I have no phone, so my mom lets me use hers as a message phone.

Many jobs require people to speak Spanish. I speak only English. Until people who trash us walk in our shoes a while, I wish they'd lay off.

ELIZABETH B. IN FRESNO, CALIF.

DEAR ELIZABETH: Although some individuals may take advantage of the system, I'm sure the vast majority of those on welfare would gladly work if they could find jobs that paid a living wage.

DEAR ABBY: My husband needs to be on oxygen all the time. He has a portable tank for when we go out, but it's too cumbersome for him to manage by himself.

When we are in a restaurant and he needs to use the restroom, what should I do? Should I take him to the ladies' room with me? Should I go to the men's room with him? Should I ask the waiter or some other male service person to accompany him?

What is the polite or socially acceptable course of action? Please don't use my name.

FLORIDA WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Have your husband ask a male employee if there is some man who could help him to the bathroom and assist him to return.

DEAR READERS: This was sent to me unsigned. How I wish the author would come forward and take a well-deserved bow. What a lovely tribute to a mother-in-law.

MY OTHER MOTHER

I thank you for the countless loving things you've done.

You've given me a gracious man with whom to share my life!

You are his lovely mother, I am his lucky wife.

You used to pat his little head, and now I hold his hand.

You raised, with love, a little boy

And then gave me a man.

Girl is playing a life and death game at age 14

DEAR MARY: My husband walked out on me and our daughter when she was in first grade. It's been eight years now and we've never heard from him. I know that the way I reacted was wrong, but I felt so rejected and depressed that I started going to bars every night and bringing anyone home who would help me make it through the night. There was a period of time when my daughter found a different man at the breakfast table every morning. I finally got my act together and for a while things were fine for my daughter and me. But now I've found out that she is sleeping with anybody who can pay for it while I'm at work or she's visiting "friends" on the weekends.

I feel guilty because in my heart I feel that she learned that kind of behavior from me when she was a little girl, but I'm also outraged and ashamed to realize that my daughter is basically a prostitute at the age of 14!

I don't know where to turn or what to do. We aren't even speaking at this time and I'm ready to see if I can find some kind of group home for her to live in. I don't know where to turn for advice or help.

HELPLESS MOM
DEAR HELPLESS: While it's true that you and your daughter have major problems that have got to be dealt with, you must first get your own emotions under control and start talking. It is certainly possible that your behavior after your husband left is impacting her behavior now. If you haven't done so already, talk to her openly and honestly about the mistakes you made at that time and how much you regret its impact on her life.

Meanwhile, she must be medically evaluated for sexually transmitted diseases as soon as possible. Get a referral from her physician for a psychiatric evaluation. Initially, plan for the two of you to go together. I realize that all of this requires her cooperation, which you may or may not get. In attempting to get her to cooperate, do not use the authoritarian approach; it sounds like she's well past that. Enlist her cooperation by letting her know how concerned you are for her health and hope that she will see that she is literally playing a life and death game.

Grace completing construction

By Mary Rowell
Herald Columnist

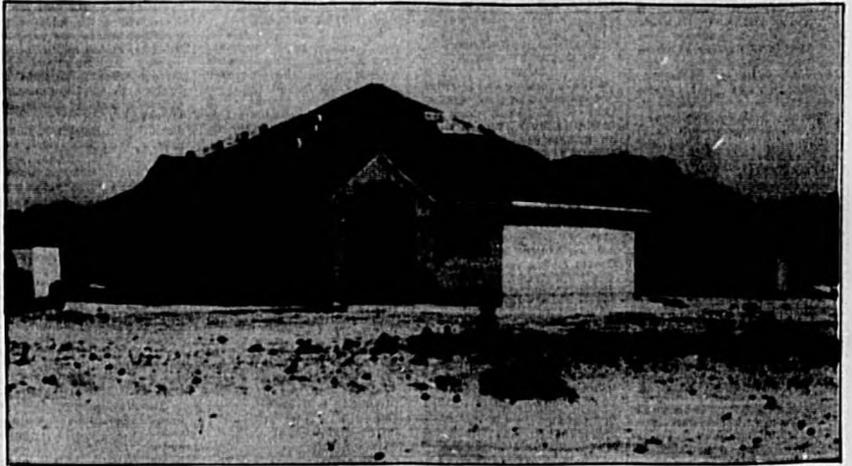

LAKE MARY — When Grace Christian Church of Lake Mary first began meeting in April of 1987, they had plenty of faith and lots of love. They were a church, but they didn't have a building.

Grace is now very close to having their building completed. The land has been cleared, the foundation laid and the framework put up. Even the baptismal is in.

Building a church isn't like constructing an office complex. With an office, you hire people and they construct it.

With a church, members of the congregation step in and help. Some of the work that has already been completed has been done by church members. A lot of the work that still needs to be done will be completed by church members.

Among the many who have worked on the church grounds are Mitch and Jimmy Fortner, who helped excavate the site; Richard Burton helped lay forms; Larry Oglesby will be painting and staining the woodwork (and there's a lot of it); and Dave Weirich will be setting the tilework in the bathrooms. The irrigation system and the landscaping will also be done by church members.

If the weather holds and evrything goes according to plans, Grace will hold services in the new building by late March or early April.

Currently the church is meeting every Sunday at 10 a.m. in Wilson Elementary School. Church members won't have trouble finding the new church. It's right next to the school.

For more information on Grace Christian Church call 321-7600.

Acappella to perform

Nationally recognized recording artists Acappella, will perform at Edgewater High School on Sunday, January 21 from 3 to 5 p.m. Tickets may be purchased in advance at the cost of $8 and $11 at the door.
For more information contact Concord Street Church of Christ at (407)423-4301.

Blackwood Brothers to perform locally

By Susan B. Wessman
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Grammy and Dove Award Winners, The Blackwood Brothers, will be in concert on Wednesday, January 17 at Westview Baptist Church, 4100 Paola Rd. Admission is free. A love offering will be taken.

The group formed a quartet in 1934 in Choctaw County, Mississippi. Evangelist Roy Blackwood, eldest of the family and Doyle, James and Roy's oldest son, R.W. composed this original quartet.

Among the names associated with this group was Jimmy Hamill, now with the Kingamen Quartet and Elvis Presley, who later became the famous Rock 'n Roll legend.

The group reformed in 1956 and in the 1970's to lead the Blackwood Brothers towards World Evangelism in nearly 60 countries. Cecil, the sole owner of the Blackwood Brothers Quartet, Inc. and the director of the Blackwood Brothers Evangelistic Association, has sung baritone on approximately 200 albums and recorded for RCA for nearly 21 years.

They have performed on shows such as "Arthur Godfrey Talent Scouts," "Tomorrow Show," on NBC, "Tennessee Ernie Ford Show," "Hoe Haw," "Trinity TV Shows," "PTL" and the "Barbara Mandell Show." Cecil's life goal is to win souls for the Lord and to bless all people around the world.

GARAGE SALE GUIDELINES

1. Advertise what people want! Children's clothing, dishes, collectibles, tools, books and antiques are the most popular items.
2. Make it convenient to shop at your garage sale! Be sure there is adequate parking space. Post signs with directions to parking areas. Make arrangements with neighbors.
3. Make it easy to pay! Have plenty of change and a system for handing. Make sure one person is on duty at all times at a centralized location preferably with a calculator or adding machine.
4. Provide prices. Do not make every person ask, "How much is that?" Prices make for quick, effective sales or a good place for customers to start bargaining.
5. Get an early start. Set up displays the evening before, if possible.
6. Departmentalize. Separate the inexpensive items from the more costly areas. Group furniture, clothing, toys, lawn equipment and other items with similar merchandise.
7. Specialize. Establish one area for "Under $5", another for "Under $1". Consider having a batch of items that are "FREE with purchase of $3". Remember the youngsters, too. Encourage this with small, low-priced items that are appropriate for this purpose.
8. Time your sale carefully! Have it at a time when most people are at home and unconcerned with special events.
9. Combine your efforts! Incorporate your sale with a neighbor for more variety and greater impact.
10. Be specific! When advertising your sale in the newspaper, list individual items. Don't simply say, "several things available." Each time you list an item, you are broadening the list of potential customers.
11. Be generous! If you have items left over, give them to a charitable organization. If you see that some items are not moving well during the sale, mark them down during the last hours. Remember, the prime reason for holding the sale is to turn your unwanted items into cash!
