It is almost impossible to over-value what this university already means to Central Florida in terms of growth in quantity and quality. It is bringing to this institution of higher learning not only the pro-fessors capable of guiding this pursuit but the stud-ents who will spread the fame of FTU and its home who must take round-about routes to reach FTU.

The initial year of any such institution of higher learning has built-in hazards. There might very well be an over-emphasis on specialisation on the developing of the super-scientist, on the establishment of a tradition which could produce lop-sided experts.

Yet this is definitely not what is needed either in the world of education or in the world of practical affairs. Experience in learning is not a one-sided affair.
What is required to face realistically and with

Yet in this delightful lakeside city, with the bread expanse of Lake Monroe receiving and discharging the northward bound water of the historic St. Johns River, not truly hazardous. Especially not when letters from the north ranging as near as Virginia (or isn't that near?) or as far as New Hampshire (surely far enough) when the advent of Thanksgiving and Christmas heralded the bleakness of bare trees, sleet and cold rain, or the blanket of white snow that turns all too soon into slush or ice.

turns all too soon into slush or ice.

To those who have been accustomed to this season breaking under blue skies, the golden Florida sun gilding trees which give shade and spotlighting the brilliant hibiscus, the budding and blooming poinsettias such a scene may be just too hum-drum to be noticed.

Yet when drives along the less-travelled roads, more often than not bordered with groves where grapefruit, oranges and tangerines pro-vide their own accent of color, are indulged in with no need for snow-tires or snow shovels, gratitude is easy to come by.

Sure, there are days when rain falls—and the temperature drops. But these are minor and almost not worthy of notice when our friends still unconverted to the happiness which Central Florida offers for living, working and playing, tell their weather-bound troubles.

And, of course, now is on hand that other savory bonus of Sanford living—the tree-ripened citrus. For the eyes, the natural beauties, for the mouth and tongue the other pleasure of the senses—gourmet eating. And for us a deep appreciation of both!

The Lions hold a record of one win and eight losses. Frostproof has a considerably better record as they stand with eight wins and one loss. The Lions squad has been working exceptionally hard for the last week on both their delensive and offensive attacks. Head Coach Herman Lofton feels that the Lions' offense has been doing a fine job and that the offense will be up to par for tonight's contest. It's the Lions defense that has been troubling Lofton. Lofton says that if the defense works and does its best in this last game, then Oviedo will have a good chance to have a final record reading two wins and eight losses.
