License plate needs support

GAINESVILLE — Supporters of a proposed sea turtle license plate for Florida received good news this week. Two legislators agreed to sponsor bills in 1995 that would make the sea turtle tag a reality.

According to David Godfrey, program director of the Gainesville-based Sea Turtle Survival League, who is coordinating the license plate effort, his group needs about 4,000 more people to sign a petition in support before the Legislature takes up the measure in early March. Before approving a new license tag, the Legislature requires 8,500 signatures from Floridians who pledge to purchase the plate when it becomes available.

The sea turtle tag would operate like the current manatee and panther plates. The tag would be available through the Department of Motor Vehicles in each county, for an additional charge of $17.50, which would be earmarked for marine turtle protection.

For more information about the license plate effort, or if you want to "adopt a turtle" through the Sea Turtle Survival League, call (904) 373-6441.

Help line for Persian Gulf vets

Persian Gulf War veterans seeking information on medical care and benefits are being encouraged to call a new toll-free "helpline."

The Veterans Affairs Department said Wednesday the line is part of an outreach program set up to assist Gulf veterans, particularly those who are suffering from undiagnosed illnesses, the so-called Persian Gulf Syndrome arising from service in the 1991 war.

The phone service is headquartered at a new Persian Gulf Information Center at the St. Louis VA regional office, and will be staffed with Persian Gulf War benefit specialists from 7:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. CST, on weekdays. Recorded messages providing information will be available at all other times.

The line, 1-800-PGW-VETS (1-800-749-8387), goes into service on Thursday.

The VA said it is also providing information on benefits, medical care and research on an electronic bulletin board system, VA ONLINE, can be accessed by people with a computer and a "communications" package. Through 1-800-US-VETS (1-800-871-8387).

New hotel

HEATHROW — A new Marriott Courtyard Hotel is coming to the Lake Mary Heathrow area. Sterling International Realty, Inc. is handling the real estate transaction for the proposed new hotel, near the intersection of Interstate 4 and Lake Mary Boulevard.

According to Roger Soderstrom, founder and managing partner with Sterling, some 1.7 acres were involved in the sale from L&M Properties. The sale price was not immediately disclosed.

The 85-room hotel is expected to be completed and operational by this summer.

Struggling in poverty

Seminole County not as bad as elsewhere

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — While it would appear that many in Seminole County are struggling just to keep a roof over their heads, officials say that things here are not as bad as elsewhere.

National statistics show that a quarter of American children under the age of 6 are living in poverty, while nearly three in five of them have working parents.

In Seminole County, 3,461 families have household incomes of less than $5,000 per year. At the other end of the spectrum, 1,823 households have incomes that top $150,000 per year.

Seminole County census figures show that 20,513 people of the 284,180 people in the county in 1989 were considered below the poverty level. Of those, 6,532 were children under 18, 1,912 were under the age of five.

Significantly, also, there were 3,198 families with children under the age of 18 who were living below the poverty level and 1,879 of those were headed by women. There were 1,140 families with children under the age of five living below the poverty level and 928 of those were headed by women.

Most of the people who are living below the poverty level in Central Florida are probably women and their children, Stuart Doyle, spokesman in the public relations office of the department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS), said.

However, overall statistics show Seminole County is the most affluent county in the state.

Lake Mary examines changes in codes

By NICK PFEIFAUER
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — It takes a great deal of work to make proposed changes to city ordinances. That's apparent in Lake Mary.

Thursday afternoon, the Lake Mary City Commission began examining suggested modifications during a work session meeting. Although there were six separate areas of concern, the work session didn't go beyond the first item, dealing with sign ordinances.

The proposals for code changes came about as the result of the city's Land Development Code Task Force, and through joint meetings between the city and Planning and Zoning Board.

The sign ordinance changes have been put in the form of three separate ordinances for which public hearings will be required before the commission votes.

Ordinance 735 creates a new chart to designate what is known as the Lake Mary Sign Code.

According to the initial proposal, it would establish regulations for the fabrication, erection and use of signs and other outdoor advertising displays within the city of Lake Mary.

Ordinance 736 deals specifically with the regulation and design of ground signs along the Lake Mary Boulevard Gateway Corridor.

Ordinance 737 would repeal restrictions on messages which can be placed on them.

None of the three proposals were finalized at the point where they are ready to be presented during a formal commission meeting.

Items of concern during Thursday's work session dealt with differences which may or may not come about between sign regulation.

First class graduates from model program

Apprenticeship in electronics brainchild of local corporation

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — The intense brightness of the Siemens Stromberg Carlson modular training plant in Lake Mary sparkled with corporate celebrations Friday afternoon.

Top corporate administrators mingled with the educational elite at the local and national levels on the stage, while parents and other special guests settled into trendy ship-covered chairs.

The first graduates of the Siemens Electronics Technician Apprenticeship Program (ETAP) crossed the stage from students to highly skilled workers amidst cheering applause.

This is a major milestone in education, proclaimed Anton Haselbauer, president and CEO of Siemens Stromberg Carlson. This is the new direction in work training.

The men and women who earned their associates of science degrees from Seminole Community College had, bodily gone where no one had gone before, setting up the best implementation partnerships between business and education.

Fourteen men and a woman were applauded for their pioneering spirit in building the pilot program.

We literally helped build the training center where we learned, said graduate Steve Frett. That experience helped bring us together as a group and helped us form strong bonds.

Frett said that the bonds the group formed together prepared them for the world of business in the future. The stress of university and employment will be reduced by having worked together.

Florida unable to mediate complaints

TALLAHASSEE — A Florida business has done you — the consumer — wrong. So you file a complaint with the state. What did you get for your trouble? Probably, just a chance to vent and little else.

State officials were unable to mediate 63 percent of the consumer complaints they received between 1992 and 1994, according to a review of the state Division of Consumer Services.

"It was kind of high," said James Carpenter, interim director of the state Office of Program Policy Analysis and Government Accountability, which conducted the study and issued a report.

Most unresolved complaints were a result of the firm going out of business, the review said. In other instances, Consumer Services did not have jurisdiction and forwarded the complaint to another state agency.

The review said Consumer Services needs to begin tracking complaints it refers to other agencies.

"Part of the problem is the way the state has organized itself regarding consumer complaints," Carpenter said.

The Department of Business and Professional Regulation and the Attorney General's Office also have jurisdiction in some consumer matters. The report said the state should consider centralizing all consumer protection functions within a single agency.

USF narrows provost candidate focus

TAMPA — In its search for a new chief academic officer, the University of South Florida has narrowed its focus to two educators, one from the University of Connecticut and the other at Arizona State University.

In its vote Friday the search committee eliminated interim Provost Michael Kovac.

Winning nearly unanimous endorsements were former University of Connecticut Provost Thomas Tighe and the dean of the liberal arts school at Arizona State, Gary Krahenbuhl.

University of Missouri-Kansas City Provost Marvin Query won no votes from the group.

The committee decided to invite Krahenbuhl and Tighe back for more interviews with USF President Betty Castor later this month. She is expected to choose the next provost, a university's chief academic officer and top lieutenant, sometime in March.

Castor would not say absolutely that either Tighe or Krahenbuhl will get the job but that she will choose the person she believes can best represent USF's academic mission.

Police bust up computer chop shop

BOYTON BEACH — Police have discovered a high-tech chop shop of the '90s — a place where stolen computer equipment was upgraded before shipment to South American black markets.

An estimated $1 million worth of stolen computers, fax machines and copiers were recovered this week in two Dade County warehouses.

Police say the discovery exposed a sophisticated burglary ring that operated from Miami to Palm Beach County and the Treasure Coast.

Thieves targeted computer manufacturers, such as a Boca Raton company where $400,000 in modems and computer hardware was taken in March. Also hit were offices of doctors, lawyers and others expected to have computers.

"The smaller businesses were targeted first," said Dave Eberhart, a Delray Beach detective. "Then larger companies would be hit for the hardware to upgrade the stolen computers before packaging and shipping overseas."

Stolen computers were upgraded in one warehouse and packaged for shipment in another next door, Eberhart said. Police are still seeking the ring's leaders.

Legislators looking ahead

TALLAHASSEE — The ink is barely dry on the 1994 ballot, but attention is already focused on raising money for the 1996 elections.

More than a dozen individual legislators already have opened campaign accounts and are accepting money — big money.

Want to help sponsor dinner with a Republican state senator? Fork over $10,000.

If you'd settle for buying the senator a drink or two, the privilege would cost a mere $5,000.

That's the invitation sent out by state Senate President Jim Scott to lobbyists, asking them to sponsor and attend a fundraiser in Tallahassee on Feb. 22. That's when legislators gather for committee meetings.

Tickets for those who want to skip the food and drink and just put in an appearance are $250 per person.

Several other legislative leaders have also scheduled fundraisers before this year's legislative session begins on March 7. Most of the money is flowing into the coffers of the state Democratic and Republican parties.

Republicans rule the Senate by one vote and Democrats have a five-vote majority in the House.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Brrr-ace yourself for cold weather

By JOHN PACCINI
Associated Press Writer

It was expected to be electric blanket, fireplace and hot cocoa weather overnight in Florida.

For the thin-blooded Floridian, a fast-moving cold front Saturday was like Jack Frost passing his hand over the peninsula with dropping temperatures overnight into at least the 40s, even in the Florida Keys.

"Low temperatures will be in the mid-40s, but with the wind-chill factor it will feel much colder," said Bill Locke, meteorologist for the National Weather Service in Miami. "That's cold to Floridians. If it drops to 30, we think it's cold. The mid-40s?"

Well, that's time to get out the heavy coats.

The front actually extends up into the South and Blue Grass country of the mid-Atlantic states — where residents are getting a real blast of winter with heavy snow expected in some areas.

"They are expecting it will be one of the coldest of the year," Locke said.

The front moved through at a clip Saturday leaving behind windy conditions and cool weather overnight.

In Florida, heavy, but short-lived rain, was experienced throughout the state as the front moved through. Sports events, like the PGA seniors golf tournament on Key Biscayne, braved the blustery weather.

Winds in Miami gusted as high as 40 mph when the front went through. Sustained winds between 10-15 mph were expected overnight throughout the state.

In southwest Collier County, strong winds damaged several mobile homes, Locke said. Also in Collier, shelters were opened up in the evening for the homeless.

The seas were rough with wind gust and small craft advisories for most of Florida waters.

In North Florida, temperatures were expected to dip Saturday night and Sunday morning into the lower 30s. Central Florida was predicted to drop into high 30s, while temperatures in South Florida were to be in the low 40s.

Patchy frost was possible in wind protected areas over the north and central Florida, but the citrus rich areas should be OK, Locke said.

A trough of low pressure will be moving over the state during Sunday night, which may help keep a bit of a wind and possibly some clouds over the central and southern peninsula, according to the Weather Service.

Monday night, however, will be colder with near freezing temperatures and frost at least into the Central Peninsula.

Sanford native, educator honored

SANFORD — Dr. Oswald F. Bronson has come a long way from his Sanford roots.

The Sanford native has served as the president of Bethune-Cookman College in Daytona Beach since 1975.

Recently, he received an award as a distinguished alumni from the college he now heads. A 1960 graduate of B-CC, Bronson was honored during the honors convocation ceremony at the college on Jan. 20. The ceremony marked the 90th anniversary of the learning institution.

Dr. Wendell P. Holmes Jr., chairman of the college's board of trustees, praised Bronson for his work on behalf of the college.

"Here is a man you can respect, admire and look up to," he said. "And also a man you can be proud of."

The way we were: Seminole High, 1944

By GRACE M. STINELOPER
Herald Correspondent

I have several Seminole High School newspapers, The Celery Fed, in my possession which enlighten us about those bygone teen-age years of ours. Today I'll tell you about some happenings in the lives of Sanford teenagers from the May 28, 1944 edition of The Celery Fed.

An article on the front page written by Lucy Ward tells of the origin of the school newspaper. The first editor, Dan Hansel, had spoken to the present staff the previous month. He recalled that the first edition was mimeographed and that they didn't have enough material to fill the paper. They did manage, however, to publish an edition monthly. The Celery Fed name originated from a contest for which the winner was paid $5.

I looked in the 1928 Balmagundi and did indeed find a picture of the first staff. In addition to Dan, they were Jack Steed, head of the paper, Bob Mason, circulation manager, and Bob Highleyman, cartoonist. Printers were Dick Maxwell, Jack Peters and John Higgins. They were all members of the Boys' Hi Y Club. Dan had also recalled that Jack Hall and Pat Miller had worked on the paper.

The article went on to give some information about Dan Hansel. He was born in Gainesville and came to Sanford Nov. 19, 1921. His mother was Mrs. Pearl Hansel who was SHS lunchroom manager for many years. As a center on the SHS football team, he was known as "Rare" and after he graduated in 1929, he coached a team in Michigan. There is a hole in my newspaper, but I believe that I can piece together that he graduated from the University of Florida and later spent six months as an engineer in the jungles of Nicaragua. He entered foreign service in 1943 from the U.S. Engineering Office in Miami and spent several months in Mexico. His home at the time was in Miami where he lived with his wife and two children. I am almost sure that he is deceased; perhaps one of you will let me know.

I did not know Dan, but I knew his mother, Mrs. Pearl Hansel, quite well. At another time I'll give you my memories of her.

SMTC maneuvers

There is an extensive report on the SMTC maneuvers held April 7, 1944. I was able to find out what the initials stood for and more information about the group in the 1944 Balmagundi. It was the Student Military Training Corps which was organized October 1943 by the sixth period boys' gym class at the suggestion of Principal Herman Morris. These 20 boys trained under the guidance of an army instructor from a nearby army base and received their cadet commissions in a few months. A recruitment campaign was held and the full battalion, composed of approximately 75 boys, began its training in February 1944.

In the newspaper, look place near Silver Lake, The Offensive Group, under the command of Capt. Sonny Raborn assisted by Captain Neil Powell, embarked from the school about 3 p.m. Thursday afternoon and marched to their campsite where they immediately set up camp under the direction of Lt. Bob Gut. Major William Shoemaker arrived to find all in readiness. Evidently the article was written by a member of the Offensive Group as its activities are reported in great detail, while very little is said about the Defensive Group, not even who their leaders were.

It was reported that the Defensive camp was put in readiness of an attack by 4:30 p.m. The men were stationed either in foxholes or trees. By 6 p.m. the men in the trees were so cold and cramped that many left their posts and some even fell asleep. When they were attacked at 6:30 p.m., they were unprepared but quickly rallied.

Attempted murder trial hinges on issue of sanity

By BARBARA BLUMBY
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — He sits quietly at the defense table, shoulders slightly slumped and eyes downcast, rarely glancing at anyone as it witnesses testifying, attorneys presenting their case, jurors or the judge who will decide his fate in the attempted murder case.

Sometimes the state 31-year-old man in slightly wrinkled clothes, slowly and mechanically fills a plastic cup with water, picking up and putting down the pitcher in the deliberate, methodical manner of a person two-and-a-half to three times his age.

Even as his mother testified last week about his teenage drinking and family problems that prompted them to seek psychiatric help for their adopted son, the defendant showed no emotion, continuing to stare at the table or floor in front of him.

Once during her testimony, the defendant raised his head and slowly turned to look at her with no expression on his face, then in an almost robot-like manner, turned his face forward again and resumed his seemingly blank stare.

Eric Kaplan is on trial for shooting into Rep. Bob Starke's home in Sept. 1988 and wounding his wife, Judith Kaplan, a Democrat, who is running for the House seat held by the popular GOP representative.

The defense is attempting to show Kaplan was insane at the time of the shooting and is manic-depressive.

Kaplan claims his actions were guided by an unidentified force or power. The defendant did not tell anyone about the voice because he thought if he did, he would die, his attorney Chandler Muller asserts. Kaplan, who was raised Jewish but converted to Buddhism a few years ago, claims the force driving him said no one would be hurt in the shooting and afterwards, he would win the election and benefit mankind.

The defense claims Kaplan abandoned a portion of the plan which involved fire bombing the Starke home when his father discovered him in a family-owned warehouse siphoning gasoline into soda bottles and told him to stop. Asked what he was doing, Kaplan said he was using the gas to remove paint. Kaplan claims voices told him to shoot into the house to scare the occupants out, then set it on fire.

Kaplan's father, Bernard, said he did not mention the warehouse incident to investigators when questioned earlier because he did not think it was important and he was not asked about it during the deposition.

A psychiatrist is treating Kaplan with a drug used for manic-depressive illness. However, Dr. Robert Kirkland testified Friday, he had not observed the lethargy Kaplan has exhibited at the trial during earlier consultations.

"He hasn't appeared lethargic when I've seen him," Kirkland said.

Assistant state attorneys Tom Hastings and Steve Plotnick contend Kaplan fabricated the bright, white light delusion with a blue halo long after the shooting to use the insanity defense.

Prosecutors claims Kaplan is highly intelligent and has concocted a story to escape culpability for the shooting. Kaplan earned a psychology degree from the University of Florida a few years ago.

"I believe, he believed it was the proper thing to do for the good of mankind," Kirkland said, of the shooting incident. Under cross-examination, the doctor said Kaplan was never 100 percent delusional although sometimes he was more in control than others.

Tests and staff reports done on Kaplan at a forensic hospital where he was sent after being declared incompetent to stand trial last year showed no signs of bi-polar (manic-depressive) disorder.

During his hospital stay, Kaplan denied he was suffering any mental illness. He was found to have narcissistic traits and anti-social personality disorder. Kirkland told the jurors it is not unusual for persons suffering from mental illness to deny there is anything wrong with them.

Kaplan had major disagreements with his first defense attorney almost from the beginning and was declared incompetent because he could not work with him to prepare his defense. The competency question was separate from the sanity issue.

Attorney James Russ explored an insanity defense which Kaplan vehemently opposed. He filed a complaint with the Bar Association against Russ, which was dismissed and attempted to take over the case himself. Muller replaced Russ as defense counsel.

Testimony in the case will resume at 10 a.m. Monday.

Couldn't escape

Gary A. Durranoe, 44, of 1208 S. Elm Ave., Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police Thursday in a parking lot in the 1000 block of French Avenue. According to the arrest report, a man at that location phoned police when he believed he saw a man trying to steal his 1987 Chevrolet. The report said the man started the car, but was unable to negotiate out of the parking lot because of traffic congestion, and was subsequently stopped by the vehicle's owner until police arrived. Durranoe was charged with grand theft, auto.

Good luck on chamber move

The Lake Mary/Heathrow Chamber of Commerce has announced plans to move. They want to relocate from their present location in a shopping center to a new facility to be built at the intersection of Lake Mary Boulevard and Interstate-4.

The move is expected to take place sometime around the end of May, 1985.

With the work which can be done by the chamber, this new location should be excellent. With the impressive appearance of the building in which they will be located, they will, without a doubt, attract a great deal of attention and thus, be able to operate more functionally.

Before moving to their present location, the chamber, then associated only with Lake Mary, had small headquarters in a shopping center near the intersection of Lake Mary Boulevard and Country Club Road. It was near the hub of historic downtown Lake Mary.

Since that time, however, the modern city is moving farther and farther westward. For most people, Lake Mary extends clear to I-4, with the center of town going in that direction as well.

Actually, much of the property which has been developed along the boulevard is still not within the city limits, but appearances for people who merely drive through the city have a tendency to prove differently.

Our point is to suggest that people refrain from complaints made several years ago when the chamber moved to where it is now. People even went so far as to complain to the City Commission, that the chamber was no longer within the city, and should not receive city support.

Let's face facts. Chambers of commerce no longer are restricted to city limits. With the addition of the name "Heathrow," the Lake Mary group has shown that expansion of its involvement is not only possible, it's necessary.

Much of the money used to operate a chamber comes from its membership. If the members were restricted to only those within a certain jurisdiction, the funding, and thus the progress, would be much smaller.

Lake Mary's chamber has members in Sanford. Sanford's chamber has members in Lake Mary. There is nothing wrong with that. When one area progresses, it actually helps many others. Chamber activities are beneficial to everyone.

Rather than complain more about this new planned move, we suggest it be commended. Located where it will be, it will draw more attention, and be more centrally located to everything.

Go ahead and make your moving plans, chamber. You have our support and we hope everyone else will agree.

Seminole Neighborhood Policing

Seminole Neighborhood Policing changed the culture of the organization. It transformed the "us" and "them" mentality by affirming that our neighborhoods are of concern to all law-abiding citizens from the clergy to law enforcement officials.

Seminole Neighborhood Policing (SNP) is a dynamic concept that has been actualized. SNP is the result of the participation and cooperation of practitioners in law enforcement and community members. The needs of neighborhoods and delivery of services were paramount in redesigning the organization.

Law enforcement officers were requested to share their ideas for improving their respective jobs. Community members were asked to identify the needs of their neighborhoods. Different neighborhoods have different needs. However, there are certain generalizations applicable to every neighborhood. Research about the broken window syndrome confirms that if a window in a building is broken and left unrepaired, eventually all of the windows will be broken and this is irrespective of neighborhood. The same is true of cars that appear to be abandoned, in less affluent neighborhoods the speed of dismantling is faster. Thus the physical care given a neighborhood is an indicator of community organization or disorganization.

There are 27 community service areas in Seminole County. SNP provides full service personalized policing. The same deputy sheriff works in the "same area on a permanent basis from a decentralized place in a proactive partnership with citizens to solve problems. This model removes anonymity, law enforcement officers and citizens become acquainted with each other and work cooperatively to make their neighborhoods safe.

SEMINOLE OPINION

Undersheriff Steve Harriett (former police chief of Sanford) and administrative assistant to the sheriff took me to see a community service office in operation. We went to the District III office at 3677 Lake Emma Road, phone number (407) 444-0667. This office has been operational since May 25, 1984. The landlord has made the facility available to them without cost. This is a significant contribution from the community to the police. District III is located in Lake Mary Center.

Lt. Paul Jaynes is the commander in charge.

They provide direct law enforcement services for the greater Lake Mary, northern Longwood and Marham Woods area. Jaynes advised that before the re-engineering of the Sheriff's Office many of the employees were pigeonholed in repetitive jobs that only permitted them to perform limited functions. This did not permit full use of skills, capacities and efficient use of time.

Investigator Neal Fowler was also enthusiastic about his current assignment. Formerly he was a property investigator and his duties were quite limited in scope. Now he is a general investigator and works closely with community service deputies and handles whatever the situation warrants. The statistics that have collected prove that crime has decreased with their increased visibility and knowledge of the people and the neighborhoods.

Deputy Sheriff and School Resource Officer Turner Clayton stopped by the office to determine if the small hand radios had arrived for his students. Clayton is the school resource deputy at Greenwood Lakes Middle School. He is in the process of organizing the school version of the Neighborhood Watch. He has 82 volunteers. They will serve as monitors to alert him to problems. Clayton is a 20-year veteran in law enforcement and highly endorsed the changes. He interacts with the youth at school and in their neighborhoods.

Next week - Seminole County Jail Project.

Fighting lavish pensions

WASHINGTON — In a town of power lunches and black-tie dinners, Rep. Howard Coble, R-N.C., eats pork brains and eggs for breakfast.

The down-home, high-cholesterol breakfast beckons from another era. But so does the anachronistic Coble, who has given heartburn to colleagues by calling for an end to lavish congressional pensions. Even some firebrand GOP reformers have had little appetite for adhering to what might be called the Coble Diet.

Coble, a cigar-chomping congressman from Tobacco Road, comes from the back-slapping — rather than the bomb-throwing — school of Southern politics. A former insurance claims supervisor, Coble has few airs, and is unaffected by the teasing he gets for his "rumped" looks. "You could give me a thousand-dollar suit, and it would still look like I slept in it," Coble says proudly.

For a decade, Coble has been politically out of fashion by leading a one-man crusade to pare the $20 million a year congressional pension plan. As a freshman in 1985, Coble introduced a bill to cut them down to the same size as pensions for other federal workers. Not one of Coble's colleagues would stand beside him at a press conference.

But one colleague approached Coble afterwards. "He said, 'What you need to learn up here is to get on the train, keep your mouth shut, and ride with the rest of us,'" Coble recalls. "You never forget something like that."

The gravy train is still rolling — and the short, balding 53-year-old Coble is still trying to derail it. Since his modest reform plan died, Coble has introduced a series of bills to abolish congressional pensions altogether. It had just three co-sponsors last year: Reps. Bill Zeitz, R-N.H., Mac Collins, R-Ga., and Tom Petri, R-Wis.

Now numerous members of Congress, responding to the dinnerbell of good publicity and public opinion, are belatedly coming forth with reform plans. "It's unbelievable because it was a lonely journey before," Coble told our associate Ed Henry. "Now everybody is on the road to Damascus."

The difference is that Coble has put his pension where his mouth is by boycotting the plan. He will not join the ranks of more than 400 former members — pensioner politicians who collect an average of $45,000 annually. Some former members collect more than $100,000 a year and make millions in retirement.

"The thing about all of these people who are getting the praise for (reform efforts), most of them are taking the pension," says Coble. "They're not really giving anything up. They're getting good ink about it, but then they're going to walk off with their suitcases filled with pension money."

House Speaker Newt Gingrich knows how difficult it is to resist that temptation. When Gingrich came to Congress in 1979, he too refused to participate in the pension plan and even co-sponsored Coble's first bill.

But Gingrich has never endorsed Coble's plan or any other to abolish congressional pensions, which are far in excess of those offered to many corporate executives. In fact, Gingrich broke his original promise not to partake of the pension when he quietly opted to begin accruing pension benefits in 1980.

Zeitz told us it's a "travesty" that Coble's work has gone virtually unnoticed. "A guy who stuck his neck out when he did, at a time when it was unpopular, deserves a hell of a lot of credit," said Zeitz. "Now anybody can get behind this stuff because it's in vogue."

For a decade, Coble has been politically out of fashion by leading a one-man crusade.

Vietnam memories: Letting go

You may have missed it the other day on the news, but we are once more friends with an old enemy. Yup, it's official: on Jan. 26, the United States and Vietnam signed a treaty to normalize relations and re-open long closed diplomatic missions in each other's capitals.

Now, there are basically three positions one can take on the matter. You don't really have an opinion, which personally I think is a shame. You are in favor of anything which defuses potential problems around the world, and that might be a bit naive of you. Or, you are madder than spit that our draft-dodging cosmetic pinko president could have anything to do with those sneaky underhanded unrepentant Viet Cong murderers who have never fully accounted for some 1,600-odd missing servicemen. It is to this last group that I write my words today, (and boy, I finally should get some mail out of this one ...).

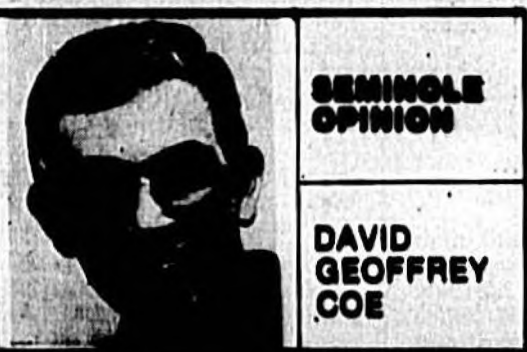

First off, I wasn't in Vietnam. When my number came up, I was a junior in college, and as the exception existed, I had no problem with going along with it. I make no apology for it, and no, I wasn't a hippie either. Suffice it to say, although I thought it a stupid war for a variety of reasons, I would have gone had Uncle Sam made me.

Secondly, yes, a great many of my peer group died fighting a war which I doubt we could ever have fully won, had our government been willing to pursue it. The question of tactical nuclear weapon usage aside (which we thankfully never did use), our country in general never had a clear enough stake in the conflict to support it wholeheartedly, and therefore, we eventually were forced to pack up all our toys and go home. Such is the way things played out nearly 20 years ago now; and it is merely a point of history now. Except, for those 1,600 plus, missing-in-action American soldiers.

Yes, it would be nice, and a comfort to their families to finally know what fate took those we left behind. No, we probably never will know what happened to them. Hopefully, they all are long since with their maker, rather than what many have feared, the forced slave labor of petty warlords across Southeast Asia. But, as I said, we probably will never know.

Vietnam was many things to this country: the first televised war, the first war where the opposition managed to change the government's position. Relatively speaking, however, it was a minor conflict. Idi Amin tortured hundreds of thousands on a whim; Pol Pot murdered several million of his countrymen a few years later. Vietnam managed to stop him in mid-stream, and we have had relations with the Campuchea for years now without having it with their rescuers. A bit bizarre that.

During World War II, the Germans and the Japanese were responsible for the murder and/or war-related deaths of quite a few million people, most of them civilians. For Germany, it was the second time in 25 years they tried to take over the world. But look at who's the top ten economic and societal powers in the world today. We look up to the Germans for their progressive humanitarianism, and the Japanese for their business savvy. Let me restate it though: 50 years ago, they were responsible for roughly 10 million people dying needlessly. And how many people even remember that Italy was one of the bad guys?

I suppose the message I'm trying to impart here today to all the Vietnam vets and all those who lost (or possibly lost) someone in that terrible little war is this: Yes, we all should remember those who died, and those who went missing. And yes, it is now time to get on with life in the present. Assuming (and I do) that all those 1,600 died long ago, little is accomplished by hanging onto your doubts and anger for what might have been, or possibly should be. In a perfect world, we would have known what happened to all those missing. This world is far from perfect. The corpses have all rotted down to a few buttons and perhaps dog tags in long forgotten mosquito-ridden swamps. And I'm afraid that goes for any that might have been left alive after the war had ended.

What possible purpose, 20 years later, would there be to withholding such information if it is known? And what possible purpose is there for continuing our hatred of an insignificant little country that can barely take care of its own problems, let alone find the remains of our war missing? I'm not saying the hurt should be forgotten, but let me ask you all this. Would the people you are grieving, have really wanted you to carry this uncertainty around with you like a torch for all these years? Personally, I think you do their memories a great disservice.

I'm sure that this was excellent practice as many of these boys were drafted after graduation just a few weeks later and landed right in the middle of World War II.

boards and banner signs, within the city limits as compared to the special area along the boulevard, which is governed under separate boulevard ordinances.

Planner Susan Deines said she expects the sign ordinance proposals will be going back to the city staff for additional input and possible revisions before being taken back to the commission.

An originally presented, the city staff and P&E Board had already recommended approval of all of the changes.

In order to continue studying the various code change ordinances, the commission has scheduled another work session prior to the next regular commission meeting on Feb. 16.

Items originally proposed for discussion this past Thursday include changes to (1) Land-use and arbor requirements, (2) Retaining wall regulations, (3) Fence regulations, (4) Economic development incentives, and (5) Target industry district.

During discussions at various commission meetings and work sessions in the past months, several commissioners have voiced the belief that special attention should be paid to such romances.

The Gremelin reports that Nancy Brower was carrying the torch for Bobby Gut and that Al Raburn was using his technique on Mary Ann Whalabel who seemed to like it. To Livingston had gone head-over-heels for Jimmy Allen who wasn't disappointed. Mary Edna Landress had finally gotten Douglas Brothie back while Sonny Raborn and Sylvia Metah were still that way about each other. David Thrasher walked five miles from S&TC camp to see Shirley Thrasher. (I wonder if he was reported AWOL?)

Charlotte True and Paul Pesold had been seen together quite a few places while Emil Dalbo was still that way about Dot Crumley. Harold McIntosh and Margaret Dingfelder were seen cutting the rug while Jean Hoteler was all of a flutter while George Temple was home.

I'll leave you with this, exactly as it is stated: Bob and Beaufie, Beaufie and Bob, Bob and Beaufie, Beaufie and Bob! Monotonous, ain't it? (I know who Beaufie is and that she married Sonny, but who was Bob?)

Doyle said. "There are a lot of people at the lower end of the spectrum," said Doyle, "but there are almost as many at the other end of the spectrum as well. Overall, I'd say it's not so bad in Seminole County as it is elsewhere in Central Florida."

Central Florida and Seminole County statistics are based on 1980 figures. Robin Wells of the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council, said.

"Those are the most recent figures we have," she said. "I don't imagine the overall trends have changed, if the figures have."

Still, regardless of how many (or few) children and their families live below the poverty line, the numbers of homeless seems to be rising.

traveling between the Lake Mary area and the mall. Commissioners have explained that it will take a great deal of effort and much planning in order to have the roadway maintain fully operational status, while still maintaining a good physical appearance.

"I don't think these people count the homeless in their statistics," said Mother Blanche Bell Weaver, director of the Sanford Rescue Outreach Mission on 18th Street in Sanford. "We see more and more homeless families here every day."

Weaver said the number of children in her center for the homeless is "staggering, sometimes."

Sanford city officials have said in the past that they have had difficulty receiving funding for assistance for the homeless because the homeless are not counted in census figures.

Doyle said many of those below the poverty level are similarly unaccounted for in Census Bureau statistics. "I don't think they get counted," he said.

has trained the students to "world class standards."

While the students and dignitaries filed out of the room after the ceremony, Ron and Jan Yde stood briefly and smiled.

Their son Chip Yde had just graduated (magna cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa). They were, understandably, proud.

"This program has been great," said his mother. "When he graduated from Lake Mary High School (in 1982) he didn't have a vision. He wanted to be a waiter at Chili's. But this program has done so much for him."

His father added, "He was always a good student, but at 17, he didn't have a focus. (I) really badgered him to get into this program. He didn't want to at first. And we are all very glad he did."

Planting

planted bald cypress, water oak, sweet gum and slash pine seedlings in an area of the interchange of I-4 and Lake Mary Boulevard.

The planting project, coordinated by Matt Burke, landscape coordinator for the Seminole County Road Division, started as a concept suggested by local resident and artist, Don Reynolds.

Reynolds, who lives in the Markham Road area, said he had watched as the interchange had been completed and had thought it would be a good spot to do this type of project. Reynolds spoke to urban forester Mike Martin about his idea, and Martin, knowing Reynolds' talent, asked him to put the idea on paper.

In the meantime, Burke had applied for and received a grant through American Treeways. American Treeways (ATW) is a joint partnership program sponsored by the American Association of State Highway and Transportation, Federal Highway Administration, National Association of State Foresters, National Tree Trust and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Forest Service, created "to bring together public and private partners to beautify our nation's transportation corridors." The grant provided 3,000 seedlings, of various native species. Through the Florida Division of Forestry, Martin donated 1,000 slash pine seedlings.

Saturday was the first of at least two more days of planting. The predicted rainy weather for the morning did not materialize, although the brisk wind and temperatures did. Still, the volunteers were able to plant 400 water oaks, 300 bald cypress and all of the pines, in two hours time. Other volunteer groups will be used in the subsequent plantings.

"This is fun, I like this," said Nikki Lampert, of Heathrow, a sixth grader at All Souls. "It's better than watching Ninetendo and it's helping nature."

"I think it's cool," said Ben Hoff referring to the planting, and not the weather.

Kathy Kelly, language arts teacher at All Souls, said this Don Reynolds' conceptualization was the the Saturday was done in the lower elevation area, main inspiration for the project. The planting which is the eastbound on-ramp.

has some tie-in with their studies, but relates more to the mud walk, at the Environmental Center, she will take her fifth grade class on in May. Dr. Margaret Curran, All Souls principal, said, "Twenty years from now they can drive by and say 'I planted those trees when I was in fifth grade.'"

Participating in the event, with the students from All Souls, were Mark Langford and Letra and Phyllis Robertson, from a home-school group.

Martin said the slash pine seedlings, once established, would grow approximately one to two feet a year, depending on the soil and rain conditions, reaching a mature height of 40-45 feet. The bald cypress will take a little longer but could do well with consistent rainy seasons. Martin was overseeing the student planting process, to make sure all of the seedlings were handled correctly. This is one of the last urban forester projects Martin will work on. He was recently promoted to senior forester in charge of the new Little-Big Moon State Forest, in Oviedo.

Burke said a county crew prepared the planting site Friday. The soil was tilled in what Burke described as a "sweeping motion" to minimize the "tree and mower conflict" when future maintenance is done in the large median area.

The original plan was to plant in the median further south, but the water level was too high.

Martin said, so plans for further planting will have to be "re-thought." Martin said he hopes other groups will get involved, with time and donations, so that all areas of the interchange can be completed.

The ATW grant is sponsored by Tensas, Burke said, and the seedlings were donated by Champion International Corporation and Louisiana-Pacific Corporation.

For the house that love built

As part of a $2.5 million capital campaign, to build Ronald McDonald House of Orlando, local McDonald's restaurants are selling valentines for a $1 donation. A message may be written to someone special, on the valentine "gift from the heart," and it will be posted in that McDonald's. All dollars raised will go to the building fund. The promotion will run through Valentine's Day, Feb. 14. Shown at the McDonald's in Lake Mary, employee Tracy Patrick accepts a donation from Andrew Kasebaum, 7, accompanied by his mom, Rhonda.

Clinton preparing budget as promised

WASHINGTON — President Clinton is preparing to send Congress a budget that keeps his pledge to provide a middle-class tax cut while downsizing government by targeting 400 programs for either elimination or sharp cutbacks.

Clinton's $1.6 trillion spending blueprint for the fiscal year that begins next Oct. 1 won't officially be released until Monday, but many of the details became known Friday.

The document proposes to slash spending by $144 billion over the next five years. It would then spend $85 billion of those savings to provide tax relief to the middle class and use the other $59 billion to further reduce the deficit.

Republicans, however, immediately attacked the spending program as a pale imitation of their own budget program in the "Contract With America," which calls for $100 billion in tax relief over the next five years and enough spending cuts to achieve a balanced budget by the year 2003.

No GOP support for wage increase

WASHINGTON — President Clinton's proposal to increase the minimum wage attracted not one open GOP supporter on its debut day in Congress, but the White House is holding out hope that Republicans will come around.

GOP congressional leaders promised a fair hearing for Clinton's plan and nothing more. House Speaker Newt Gingrich said he was "personally very skeptical" of Clinton's proposal Friday to boost the $4.25 hourly minimum wage by 50 cents over two years. He said it could "kill jobs," particularly for minority teen-agers, and could destructively widen the wage gap between the United States and Mexico.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., chairwoman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, agreed to hold hearings on the proposal but worried that boosting the minimum could turn out to hurt low-skill workers.

Simpson trial

LOS ANGELES — The abrupt end to the tearful testimony of Nicole Brown Simpson's sister was an unfair way to cap off the court week, and may have been staged by prosecutors, O.J. Simpson's attorney says.

"I saw it coming, and we kept trying to say it's not fair," Johnnie Cochran Jr. said Friday after Denise Brown's dramatic testimony about how Simpson abused and humiliated his wife.

When asked what he felt was unfair, Cochran answered: "If it was planned, is that fair?"

Salary cap is history

WASHINGTON — The salary cap is history, thanks to a push from President Clinton. Now, following the big breakthrough, fans finally may see a deal that puts baseball back on the field.

The National Labor Relations Board, unexpectedly moving up its timetable for a decision, told owners Friday that it would issue an unfair labor practice complaint against them.

Just hours later, owners capitulated on the salary cap, the single issue that led to the cancellation of the World Series last year and threatened to create chaos this season.

"It's putting pressure to clear the decks and get a deal done," Colorado Rockies chairman Jerry McMorris said.

Florida (1-0) took the lead for good in the bottom of the sixth, as designated hitter Shane Spears doubled in third baseman Matt Duncan.

Reliever Andrew Checketts, who gave up a game-tying two-run double to Adam Finnieaton in the sixth, earned the win for Florida, pitching 1 1/2 innings of scoreless relief. Danny Wheeler earned the save by throwing the final 2 1/2 innings. Alan Westfall took the loss for Miami.

Catcher Brandon Marsters gave Florida a 3-1 lead in the fifth with a two-run homer to left.

Rams take 6A-4 crown

By RYAN ANDERSON

LAKE MARY — Capitalizing on mistakes, strong defense, and the record-setting goalkeeping of Greg Velho, the Lake Mary Rams captured the 6A-District 4 boys' soccer championship with a 2-0 shutout of the Oviedo Lions Friday night at Don T. Reynolds Stadium.

For Velho, who also blanked Mainland and Deltona during the tournament and has an active streak of 286 consecutive scoreless minutes, the shutout was the 43rd of his career, adding to his state record.

Ironically, the last player to score against Velho was Oviedo's Scott Thelen with six minutes remaining in a game played Jan. 25.

The Rams (24-3-1) advance to Tuesday night's 6A-Region II title game against District 3 champion Tallahassee-Leon.

"We did a good job on defense and scored a couple of timely goals, and that's really what it comes down to in this conference," Lake Mary Coach Larry McCorkle said. "It seemed like a round peg trying to fit into a square hole for a while there, but we came together when we needed to."

"We've been to the championship before, and I think that really helped our guys."

While the Rams are old pros at playing in district championship games, the Lions were making their first trip to the championship game in school history.

"I think for the most part, we were evenly matched," Oviedo assistant coach Kord Kutchins said.

Lake Mary senior goalkeeper Greg Velho posted his third consecutive shutout Friday, blanking Oviedo in the 6A-District 4 championship game. For Velho, it was the 43rd shutout of his career, adding to his state record.

Pats fall in sectional

ORANGE PARK — Jill Ford netted a hat trick Friday night to lead the Orange Park Raiders to a 3-2 win over the visiting Lake Brantley Patriots in the 6A-Section I girls' soccer championship game.

The game-winning goal came with 11 minutes remaining in the game, when Ford buried a free kick to break a 2-2 tie.

Christie Monica and Maggie Tullis each scored for the Patriots. Ginger Sellick assisted on Tullis' goal.

Orange Park, which outshot Lake Brantley 27-17, led 2-1 at halftime.

Friday night's game was the "rubber match" between the two teams this season, Orange Park (24-1-3) having defeated Lake Brantley in Altamonte Springs on Dec. 3 and the Patriots (24-3) beating the Raiders on Jan. 6 in Orange Park. In both cases, it was the first loss of the season for the team coming out on the short end of the score.

The Raiders advance to the Class 6A state semifinals, which will be played this Thursday at Lockhart Stadium in Fort Lauderdale.

Also earning semifinal berths Friday night were Clearwater-Countryside (Section II), Burger King Classic runner-up Boca Raton-Spanish River (Section III), and Hialeah-Miami Lakes (Section IV).

LAKE MARY — When you're hot, the three-point shot can be a deadly weapon.

With its array of long-range bombers on target early, the Lake Mary Rams took a quick 10-point lead and hung on to beat Seminole's Arrow Force III, 77-70, in a Seminole Athletic Conference boys' basketball contest at Lake Mary High School Friday night.

The win was the third straight for Lake Mary, which now stands 14-10 overall and 4-4 in the SAC. Seminole fell to 18-8 overall and 6-2 in the conference.

Lake Mary got off to a hot start, hitting four of seven three-point tries in the first quarter. Meanwhile, Seminole was having a difficult time getting the ball to fall, having several inside shots rim out. The result was a 25-15 lead for the Rams after one period.

Arrow Force III controlled most of the second and third quarters, actually taking a four point lead, 47-45, with 3:00 left in the third period. But two steals and layups by Jason Junker in the

Lyman completes hoop sweep of Lake Brantley

By TONY DeBORMIER
 Herald Sports Editor

LONGWOOD — Three months and 20 games later, the Lyman High School girls' basketball team is beginning to play at the collective level of skill it exhibited at the beginning of the season.

On Friday, the Greyhounds gave one of their most complete efforts of the New Year, blistering the Lake Brantley Patriots, 73-34, in the first half of a girls' boys doubleheader.

The Lyman boys followed that with a heart-stopping — for Greyhound coach Norm Ready — 74-67 win over the Patriots.

For Lyman girls' coach Steve Carmichael, Friday's effort was a long time coming.

"We've had a long season with all the injuries we've had," said Carmichael. "We won our first game, lost a close one at DeLand, then we lose Kate Brown and Idoshia Wess in the third game of the season. "The next thing we know, we're 2-8. We've been fighting our way back all season. Now we're 10-12. And I think we're definitely the best

10-12 team in the state." Angle Rhodes had a game-high 18 points for the Greyhounds. Carolyn Cruger added 13 while Jamie Gioia

Special nights to remember Awards night draws 'VIPs', Italian night set

It was a night for "celebrities" to turn out in droves when members and guests of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce gathered in a mysterious "Casa Blanca" setting at Timacuan Country Club. The occasion was the annual awards night and banquet.

Guests were afforded the opportunity to portray their favorite Hollywood celebrities or other famous personalities from the pages of history books.

The patrons feasted on culinary specialties of the house including tossed green salad with house dressing, tender medallions of filet mignon, boneless pork loin, breast of chicken, sauce Bernaise, sauce Dijonnaise, oven roasted new potatoes, vegetable medley, chocolate mousses and beverages.

A husband and wife team, Phyllis and Cal Conklin, were the recipients of the prestigious Luis Perez Humanitarian award and the Topper Award respectively. A plaque was presented to Robbie Robertson, outgoing chamber president while Bobby Douglas, chairman of the education committee, received the Executive Committee award. The Ambassador of the Year award went to John Furman while Jeff Blake and Mickey Norton were inducted in the Seminole County Sports Hall of Fame.

The food, fun and festivity for the 170 guests attending were pretty special. Karen Stowell, the chamber special program assistant, said, "The costumes were delightful."

Dave Farr, executive director of the chamber, arrived representing "Phantom of the Opera," complete with top hat. His wife, Joyce, was sick and unable to attend.

Brent Adamson, chamber president, outfitted as World War II's Gen. George C. Patton, escorted his wife, Patty, attired as the fiery and flirtatious Carmen Miranda. Robbie Robertson portrayed a dashing confederate general while his wife, Lisa, stole the scene as a

We salute Mrs. Wright for her many achievements in the field of education and as a teacher and administrator in Seminole County. Recently honored as "Principal of the Year" by her peers, the honoree was given many accolades for her dedication to the children of the Sanford and Seminole communities.

Present and former co-workers of Mrs. Wright spoke of her being a first class educator and Christian person. She exhibits self confidence, always wears a smile and is able to deal with changes and challenges. She is loyal, has great leadership abilities, and a partnership with her peers that is unquestionable. She is an energetic innovator, yes, she has come a long way. These were just a few of the statements ascribed to this dynamic, lovable and distinguished principal of Goldsboro Elementary School.

Miss SHS pageant draws raves

The Miss Seminole High School pageant last Saturday night was really something to rave about with pride. The show went off amazingly well and the gracious principal, Gretchen Schapker, was on hand to lend her support.

photographed while on a vacation in New Hampshire. The other was a church on the New Jersey shore. Both pieces show clear and still water and the reflections of the land in the water. Lorraine explains that she and her husband traveled much of the time and she would take pictures to share with her elderly Sunday School group when she returned home. Lorraine says that she really did not know a great deal about teaching Sunday school, but she did know how to party and they would always find an occasion to celebrate. The Sunday school crowd would so enjoy these photographs which inspired Whitehouse to paint. Her works are gorgeous.

Stan Higgins is the resident calligrapher and is also newly wed to his beautiful wife, Arleen. Before he retired, Stan was a technical writer for Westinghouse headquartered in Pittsburgh. He graduated from college in electrical engineering and was the editor of his college newspaper. He is currently editor of the newsletter for Chambal and producer of "The Good News," Church of the Good Shepherd-Episcopal in Maitland. His calligraphy, displayed by his wife, a retired interior designer, encompasses a beautiful collection of Christmas and all-occasion cards, announcements, certificates and awards. He has taken numerous calligraphy courses over the years most notably from the well-known Arnold Bank, former teacher at Carnegie-Mellon University. His work is precision plus.

Frank Zahn is a sculptor, a wood carver and his work is magnificent. With many different kinds of wood — wild cherry, aromatic cedar maple, walnut and bass wood, to name a few, he perfects the most beautiful creatures, birds and fish, dolphins, turtles and long-horned sheep, greyhounds and flowers and branches and are just superb creations.

Frank has been sculpting since the age of 17 when Proctor and Gamble sponsored a contest and offered a $25 first prize. Recalls Frank, "That was a lot of money in those days and that was 1932." The contest rules required that ivory soap be sculpted and that is what he used. He still has several pieces of soap that he carved from the same year and he graciously displayed those pieces as well as the wooden items. Probably the most outstanding piece in the collection is the aquarium; in it, he has a frog and fish, a snail and turtle, sea shells, a crab and a lobster. All the specimens are of different woods such as poplar and ash and black willow.

Mary Gober is an artist with such varying degrees of originality and styles; differing periods of time are also represented in her work. Her husband, who is retired from the military, was stationed in England for three years and she signed up to teach while she was there. While she was waiting to be interviewed for a teaching position, she became intrigued with the idea of painting for the purpose of painting. She began to paint and her first piece, a still life, is beautifully exhibited in the game room of Chambrel. She decided to take lessons at that point and found the most marvelous teacher who gave her advice that worked for her and which she still uses today: "Get out of your way and see what comes out," and, "Stand and look awhile and you will be inspired." As an example of how this advice came to play an important part in her life as

Linda Bapp, Verna Jackson, Marion Cummings, Gladys Green, Leslie Higgins, Nozabe Morace, Sherry Kilner, Kay Coffman-Williamson, Deputy Tim Glascock, Jane Eppa, John Colium, Lynn Colium, Robert Lundquist, Gene Williams and Larry Brown.

Judges were: Renee Buggs, Steve Harriott, Jim Kelly, Mickey Searcy and Dara Trujillo.

BSP to name queen

Four local chapters of Beta Sigma Phi will name their annual Queen of Hearts next Saturday, Feb. 11, at a luncheon at Sweetwater Country Club in Longwood, according to Jackie Dymond. Each chapter selects a "Valentine Girl" to vie in the competition. And one will be queen.

Helen Hamner, president of BSP City Council and chairman of the event, will probably have a few surprises in store.

Entertainment set for Italian Night

Those attending the Sanford Women's Club Italian Night on Friday, Feb. 17 are in for a big treat. According to Libby Pre-vatt, the clubhouse will depict a quaint Italian cafe while the stage area will be decorated as a swanky, metropolitan nightclub.

The entertainment will include Mike Hartman, a vocalist with a passion for singing. Mike, a former singer with the Orlando Singers, has his own accounting firm in Sanford and was recently installed as Senior Deacon in the Sanford Masonic Lodge #88. He is also a history buff who enjoys a good game of golf.

Mike sings in the choir of the First Baptist Church of Sanford and also in the church ensemble. His accompanist will be Sylvia Gray, pianist for the First Baptist Church choir.

Mouth-watering spaghetti, crunchy garden salad, crusty garlic bread, dessert, wine and beverages will be served from 4 to 7:30 p.m. with carry-out service available at the clubhouse, 300 S. Oak Ave. Tickets are: $5 adults and $3 children. They are available from any club member or at the door.

Patrons will be served by pretty members of the Sanford Junior Woman's Club who haven't disclosed, as yet, what they will be wearing. Also door prizes will be awarded.

Come one, come all. Mary Dale Jones is chairman, ably assisted by Betty Halback, Shirley Mills, Fran Mitchell, Libby Prevatt, Thelma Smith, Peggy Teten and Jean Williams.

Singles lament being left out on holidays

DEAR ABBY: I was touched by the letter from "Single in Long Beach." He really hit the nail on the head concerning the way many single people are treated during the holidays.

I am a single woman. At Thanksgiving, I was home alone watching five hours of "Gone With the Wind" and assembling and decorating my Christmas tree, since no friends had invited me to have dinner with them and their family. I received one phone call from a single friend in Kentucky, who told me she ate alone at the Winn Dixie deli.

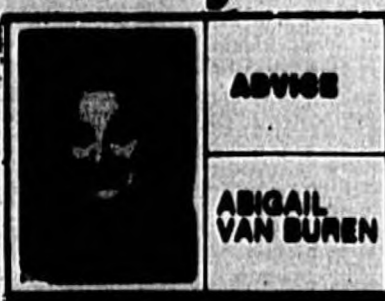

Why do others think singles have "better things to do" or "would feel uncomfortable" without a partner at a holiday dinner?

I, too, like "Single in Long Beach," would have been happy to bring an additional dish, as well as help with the cleanup afterward.

Thank you for giving me the opportunity to get this off my chest.

on holidays.

I learned long ago that no one is responsible for my loneliness but me.

Why doesn't "Single" invite a friend and his family, another single, or an older couple to his home for the holiday? If he doesn't like to cook, most grocery stores and many restaurants cook turkeys with all the trimmings for carry-out.

If entertaining isn't his "thing," he could visit patients in nursing homes or hospitals, or lend a hand to churches and organizations that serve meals to the homeless. They appreciate all the help they can get.

Loneliness is a choice, not a necessity. Choose instead to help some of the many people who need you.

Rashed speaks at Hurston festival

The Sixth Annual Zora Neale Hurston Festival of the Arts and Humanities Banquet was held on Saturday evening at the Radisson Plaza Hotel. The guest speaker for the occasion was the famous Phyllis Rashed who for many Thursday nights was seen on TV as part of the first family, the Huxtables. She played the very beautiful, gracious and loving mom known as Claire Huxtable on "The Cosby Show." Rashed is an accomplished singer and has appeared in Broadway hits such as "Dream Girls," "The Wiz," and the hit musical "Jelly's Last Jam." She has won many awards including the "People's Choice Award" and has been nominated for an Emmy.

Rashed considers herself an instrument for the Lord. She spoke of the well-known book "The People Could Fly" and reminded everyone that they can express their love, joy and should long for a fuller experience of life. She encouraged one to be like an eagle among people, create, do things, be sure that your mind is rooted in God.

People attending this year's festival had the privilege of seeing the Broadway actress, Miss Elizabeth VanDyne portray Hurston in one of her plays.

Fashion, beauty highlight meeting

Beauty was on everyone's mind at the January meeting of the Lake Mary Women's Club, Wednesday, Jan. 27. The guest speaker for the day was Image Consultant Sharon Richardson. Connie Howard, a fashion consultant, was also there modeling a new line of clothing.

Sharon was at the meeting to offer new insights on one's image. If you look good, Sharon said, you feel good, and that helps your self-esteem. And in this image-conscious society, first impressions mean more than ever.

Looking good isn't just a matter of buying the right kind of make-up and applying it properly. Makeup is only part of your image. The color you wear is very important. When you wear a color that clashes with your natural skin tone, you look tired and worn out. A color that compliments your skin tone makes you look good. The intensity of the color is also important. A dark pink might look good on you, but a bright pink may not look as good.

To demonstrate, Sharon did a color consultation for Karen Seal. Using Karen as a model, Sharon held up color swatches to show the difference between cool and warm colors, and between intensities.

After the color consult, Sharon talked about body shapes. It is important to know what kind of body shape you have so that you can pick out fashions that look good on you. For instance, if you're an athletic type, with shoulders that are larger than your hips, you shouldn't wear anything with shoulder pads.

Core wardrobing is also very important. Most people wear 20 percent of their wardrobe 80 percent of the time. You should have a basic core wardrobe in the colors and fashions that suit you and you should be able to mix and match these fashions to create new looks.

In other news from the woman's club, Ruth Basin, Lois Webb, Rosemary Traeger, Lois

Recently, a major conference was held to discuss the future of our planet. In 80 years the Earth is going to be in a bad way, unless something is done now. How will we house and feed all the extra millions? Countless animal species will become extinct. I just hope Fred Allen wasn't right when he said, "A conference is a gathering of important people who singly can do nothing, but together can decide that nothing can be done."

Bridg, of course, is only a tiny part of the world, but it is a big part of many of our worlds. We would feel much poorer without it. Today's deal is beautiful. It was defended by Edgar Kaplan, the editor and publisher of The Bridge World magazine.

The deal occurred back in the dark ages, when a jump to two no-trump by South would have shown 15-15 points. Nowadays, might operate at both ends of the spectrum. In certain instances, you'll be prudent; in others, recklessly extravagant.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do not get involved in an arrangement today if you feel you must withhold certain information or certain information might be withheld from you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your initial assessment of a critical development today will prove accurate. If you allow yourself to overanalyze it, you may insert irrelevant factors.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone you will be depending on for help today might not come through for you. However, effective backup may come from a person you'd least expect.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Resist the impulse to acquiesce to a skillful promoter's proposition today. It might have more sizzle than steak.

wisely, this response is treated as invitational in competition (and by many players in an uncontracted auction).

Sitting East, Kaplan placed South, from the bidding, with the Q-J of spades and heart king. And as the diamond finesse, if needed, was working, Kaplan realized the defenders had to take the first five tricks. Partner could hold the club ace, but was most unlikely to have A-Q-x in clubs. So, after winning the first trick with the spade king, Kaplan continued with the club king and another club.

Placing East with both top clubs, South put up his queen at trick three. After winning with the ace, West played a spade. Kaplan won with the ace and cashed the J-7 of clubs; two down.

Do kids look forward to the intercession?

Melinda Phillips is ready for a break from school. "We get lots of little breaks," the eighth grader said, "but we don't get any real time off."

Intercession is coming up, but Phillips said the three weeks span in which the elementary and middle schoolers don't attend classes isn't nearly enough.

"We need our summers off," she added. "At least next year I'll get my summers back."

Kelly Knotts said she "couldn't care less" about getting time off from school. "What am I going to do at home?" she asked. "I'd rather be at school so I don't have to be at home with my little sister...and I don't have to do the dishes."

Knotts said her mother doesn't have three months off in the summer so they "can't go off somewhere for that long any-how."

Justin Kabe said he thinks year round schools prepare students for "the real world."

He noted, "When we get done with school and get out into the real world we have to learn to work 50 weeks a year. Why not start now?"

Krenisha Vogel attends a private school in Orlando that is not on the year round calendar.

"I don't see anything wrong with the year round concept," she said. "But I do like going off for the summer when no one else can."

Shane DeLaney said he didn't like not having his summers off, but he also didn't like having "breaks in the action" every few weeks at school.

"Seems like every time we get started, we have to break and then get started again," he said. "What a pain in the...neck."

Color blind: respecting the heritage of others

LONGWOOD — Black, purple, yellow, green, white, brown.

What does a bunch of colors have in common? Everything. When mixed together, they all turn to the same color.

Artists see no color. TV sees no color.

Why does society see color? A long time ago, society was brought to believe that blacks were to follow whites.

It was wrong then and it's still wrong now.

Blacks are every bit as smart, they have just as many feelings and feel all the pain as one human could.

Is racism wrong? Is racism right?

Should Hispanics stay with Hispanics? Should blacks stay with blacks? Should whites stay with whites?

Why does society judge by color?

Maybe society isn't the word. Maybe the word is "you." Can you actually wake up and feel good about your tasks the day before? Can you actually judge someone for themselves or does it stay with judging them by color?

The only thing color does is show special characteristics. It expresses their culture as well as themselves.

Everyone should be proud of their heritage but should also respect others.

Racism is just racism, but color is for life. Lyndsey Holliday is a sophomore at Lyman High School.

POP CULTURE™ by Steve McGarry

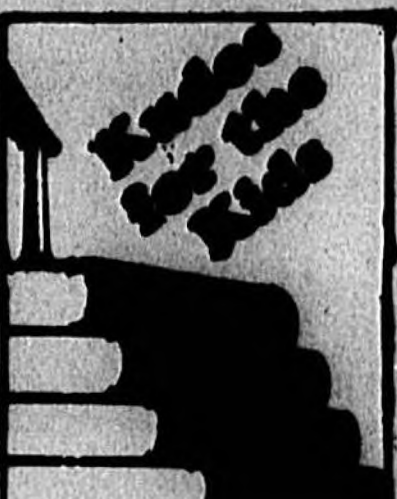

The four members of Boys II Men — Nathaniel "Alexander Vanderveer" Morris, Wanya "Squint" Morris, Shawn "Stan" Stockman and Michael "Bass" McGarry — honed their vocal talents when they were students together at Philadelphia High School of Creative and Performing Arts.

1. What was the title of their debut album?

2. Name Boys II Men's first chart-topping single.

3. Which New Edition and Bell Biv DeVoe member launched Boys II Men's career?

Students all over Seminole County are doing well in their academic and extra-curricular endeavors.

They are achieving high honors at school and in the community and should be recognized for their efforts.

We'd like to give each of them a chance to show off their accolades here and give each of them a much-deserved pat on the back.

Good work, kids!

Health Academy facility set to open this Fall

By Lindsey Hodges
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Yes, Academy students, it's coming.

Instead of the Academy of Health Careers students having to use Seminole High School facilities, they will be able to use the long-awaited Academy building.

Students have been making use of the existing Seminole High School classrooms, lockers, bathroom, auditorium and various other facilities, while waiting for the Academy building.

Starting in the 1995-96 school year, the Academy of Health Careers students will be heading from the bus to the Academy building.

Other Seminole High students will be able to take advantage of the building too. Some classes and classrooms will be open to the students of Seminole High School. Students need to understand that the Academy of Health Careers and Seminole High School are united. The Academy is not trying to seclude itself from everyone else.

The building is crucial to obtaining the proper knowledge that the Academy was established to give.

Academy students will still find themselves roaming the halls of Seminole High. The building will not hold most elective courses like Band, Chorus, Dance or many other classes. Students wishing to take foreign languages will still be wandering through the 500 wing.

The building has many classrooms, but cannot accommodate the variety of classes offered through the Academy and Seminole High.

Researchers test in-line skating versus running

By TRUDY TYNAN
Associated Press Writer

AMHERST, Mass. — University of Massachusetts senior Deidra Smith likes to call herself "Lab Rat No. 13." The environmental science major is one of 39 students who have been either running or skating laps for the past semester as part of research aimed at determining the aerobic value of in-line skating.

"In-line skating has become an extremely popular mode of recreation for the public over the past five years, but there has been very little research on the physiology," said exercise science Professor Patty Freedson, who heads the project.

"Running, cycling and swimming have been considered the exercises one should do to keep cardiovascularly fit," she said. "But sometimes people find those activities boring, and it is difficult to maintain good compliance. We wanted to study in-line skating, because it is, well, fun."

She found in an earlier study that skating at 13.5 miles an hour, a typical pace for a recreational skater, burned as many calories as running 7.6 miles an hour.

One other comparative study by researchers at the Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit found that, at recreational speeds, in-line skaters had to expend about 10 percent more effort than runners to burn the same amount of calories.

"It makes sense," said Frank Fedel, who headed the hospital study. "A runner is always working, but an in-line skater has that moment of rest during the glide."

Since September, both groups of UMass students have been going through 40-minute workouts three days a week — the skaters at a rink just off campus and the runners at the university's old basketball gym. They wear heart rate monitors and their exercise is regulated so that both runners and skaters get their hearts beating at 85 percent to 90 percent of maximum rates.

Researchers recently began measuring and comparing the changes in the students' bodies, muscle tone, endurance, leg strength and general fitness.

Results of the study, financed with a $70,000 grant from skate manufacturer Rollerblade, won't be completed for several months. But both runners and skaters say they benefited from the workouts.

Calorie consumption jumped 50 percent when skaters boosted their speed from 14 miles an hour — a point where a typical recreational skater is working moderately hard — to 17 miles an hour because of the wind, Fedel said.

"At 17 miles an hour, a novice or intermediate skater is working very hard, but at 10 to 14 miles an hour, aerodynamics aren't a factor," he said.

The good news for skaters is that they tend to underestimate the effort they are actually expending, he said.

That's in part because their heart rates rose more quickly than those of runners expending the same effort, he said. Fedel said he is doing further studies, but he suspects that the heart rate increase also stemmed from the glide and the heart having to pump blood to relaxed muscles.

Szoke: 'I do it myself'

College's programs at the core of his success

By SHAWN BRIDGES
Herald Staff Writer

Part 2 of two parts

SANFORD — Mary McKee has to stop for a moment to get all of the dates in the right chronological perspective. It is hard for her, she said, to realize, in the short amount of time she has been working with George Szoke, how far he has come.

Moving quickly through the vocational rehabilitation program at Florida Hospital, Szoke was ready for further mental stimulation. In April of 1989, Szoke entered the Diversified Cooperative Training program at Seminole Community College. Different from the DCT programs offered at the high school level, SCC's program is the only one of its kind to be found on a Florida community college campus. In the program, Szoke was taken through work explorations and testing. "They do a series of testing, putting bolts and nuts together," McKee said. The testing analyzes a client's physical capabilities, interests and basic aptitude. For Szoke, "a recommendation was given, as to where these all meet, and even after that the need for math remediation was apparent." At that point, Szoke was referred to the C.O.R.E. lab.

McKee is the program manager. C.O.R.E. stands for "Curriculum for Occupational Requirements and Exploration." McKee said it is the "teaching and reteaching of academics" and is often simply review for people who have reached a situation in their lives where they must re-enter the work force or make a change in their jobs, due to extenuating circumstances. Many of these people just need to brush up on basic language and mathematical skills.

In Szoke's case, language skills and addition, subtraction and division were still "intact." McKee found that he needed the most help in fractions and multiplication.

"I was always good at math," Szoke said. "Not a genius, I'm not trying to brag." But, as Szoke said before, he lost a lot of long term memory during the operation, and math was one of the areas that suffered. "The people at the C.O.R.E. lab, they're great. They took the time to help me. To learn, for me now, is very different. It takes much longer."

Szoke entered the C.O.R.E. lab in August of 1989. The lab is set up as an open classroom, with students coming in on their own schedules. This allows them to work their tutoring around work schedules, school schedules, rehabilitation schedules and such. Szoke progressed quickly, McKee said, so that at one point they had to slow down. "He was so motivated, and moving so fast that we were afraid he would reach a peak before he was ready to go to the next stage," so McKee added keyboarding, "which was good for him anyway," because it helped with his hand coordination.

In the meantime, Szoke was considering taking some college level courses. "In the past, I have done a great deal of drafting," Szoke said he was also "always very computer-literate." His vocational rehabilitation counselor "suggested I take one course, see how I did." Because of his prior experience in drafting, he wanted to take engineering drawing but ended up enrolling in the Architectural Design I.

Tony Ruggiero is Szoke's instructor in the Architectural Design and Construction Technology program at SCC. The program, in the Applied Technologies Department, is a two-year course of study, yielding an associate of science degree. According to Ruggiero, it is geared toward "production" people, those who work for and with an architect or a designer on a project. "Basically, what we are trying to do here, is offer opportunities to folks who may not have the opportunity to wait for a four-year degree," Ruggiero said. "What I've seen, being out in the industry, is that the production people are the ones that are needed. The production people are the folks that are doing the auto-CADD, they're producing the drawings. They may not have had eight years of school, but they know the process."

"Nobody has what we have here," Ruggiero said, referring to the fact that, when he graduated from college, in a similar four-year program, he had no experience on computers. "I offer three semesters of CADD."

"George is right in the middle of this thing," Ruggiero said. "He's just progressed so much. He doing stuff that's just amazing."

One of the amazing things Szoke has done is the presentation of a plan for the revitalization of the Seminole Plaza Shopping Center, which was made to the developer of the property and the mayor of Casselberry. The project no only included the design of the conceptual shopping center and the building of a model, but a verbal presentation as well. Szoke struggles with verbalization. "There's a big difference between how I think and how I speak. For me, it is easy to think in much harder words, to say them, I would sound totally stupid." But his instructor said, "he did a wonderful job, as good as anybody else did."

"He's a success story for everybody. Everybody that has been involved with him has tapped his energy," Ruggiero said.

McKee said Szoke is a delight and an inspiration. "When I come across something, and think, 'oh, I don't think I can do this,' I think of George."

McKee said Szoke has gained a great amount of independence. His studies are going well. He has added classes, such as speech and archery, to his curriculum and Ruggiero feels he will do well to pursue a management position in the field of construction. And as his rehabilitation progresses, Szoke has been able to add some of the pleasures of the past into his life of the present.

Szoke had a captain's license, certified for 100 tons. He can not get that license back, because of the physical requirements. But he has returned to the pastime of fishing and has been re-certified of scuba diving, but only to a depth of 30 feet. "I always loved the water. Was more comfortable in the water than out."

"Since the surgery, I have done everything I've tried. Might take me five, ten times as long, but I do it myself," Szoke said. "I will get over this. I don't have much choice. But it's up to me."

"I have to thank the C.O.R.E. lab, I have to thank Tony, I have to thank Florida Hospital for basically standing behind me, for giving me a chance, because I'm not stupid," Szoke said. Medically, Szoke only has to return for MRIs every six months.

One thing that Szoke has not lost, through all of his trials, is his sense of humor. The long-haired and bearded survivor quips that the prep for the surgery was the last haircut he would have for a long time. "They shaved my head, then to add insult to injury, they drew on my head, what I don't know their lunch order."

Of his accent he says, when asked "what country are you from?" "You don't recognize the accent. NEW JERSEY!"

First time home buying easier Purchasing power rises slightly end of year

By NICK SPERANZA
Herald Staff Writer

The purchasing power of both move-up and first-time home buyers during the fourth quarter of 1994 rose slightly, despite rising mortgage interest rates, according to the National Association of Realtors' (NAR) Housing Affordability Index, released this past week.

Florida statistics have also shown improvements, but not as markedly as depicted by the national averages. Florida statistics will be revealed in the near future.

On a national average, the NAR index, which measures affordability factors for all home buyers, was 131.8 in the fourth quarter of 1994 compared to 129.0 during the same time period a year earlier.

The index is based on the figure of 100. When the index measures 100 it indicates that a family earning the median income has exactly the amount needed to purchase a median-priced resale home, using conventional financing and 30 percent down payment. Since the median is the midpoint, the composite index shows that half the families in the nation had at least 131.8 percent of the income needed to qualify for the purchase of a home, estimated at a median price of $107,900.

With the index at 131.8 therefore, the typical family, estimated to have a median annual family income of $39,323, could afford a home costing $142,000.

According to national averages, this specific median income family would pay an estimated $625 per month for their $107,900 home, for principal and interest.

NAR Executive Vice President Almon R. Smith noted that the affordability gap between first-time buyers and move-ups has continued to widen, with the 1994 fourth-quarter gap at 35.1 percent, compared to 34.9 percent a year ago.

"Higher mortgage interest rates have just compounded the problems many first-time purchasers face when trying to enter the home ownership circle," Smith said.

"The down payment hurdle is a great enough obstacle to first-time buyers. Higher interest rates have just added to this group's frustrations with trying to purchase their first home," he added.

The NAR has released a comparative listing of earnings plus affordability, based on the national averages for the fourth quarter of 1994.

• A family earning $20,000 per year would have sufficient income to qualify for a $72,200 home, using a $57,800 loan.

• A family earning $30,000 would qualify for a $108,300 home using a $88,800 loan.

• A family earning $40,000 would qualify for a $144,400 home with a loan of $115,500.

• A family earning $50,000 per year would qualify for a $180,500 home, after qualifying for a $144,400 loan.

The National Association of Realtors is the nation's largest professional association representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Chiropractic: Business of healing

By NICK SPERANZA
Herald Correspondent

Chiropractic is a system for curing human ailments by manipulation of the spine, for the purpose of adjusting subluxations (dislocations) of the vertebrae.

This system is based on the theory that all diseases, in traceable to the malfunctions of the nerves being squeezed to organic malfunctions of the nerves being squeezed by subluxations.

Chiropractic practice includes the use of all recognized diagnostic methods and is conducted with regard for environmental, nutritional and psychotherapeutic factors. It includes various procedures designed to restore or maintain normal nerve function.

Chiropractic was founded about 1835 by Daniel David Palmer, a Canadian who had been practicing magnetic healing in the United States.

In 1896, he opened the Palmer School of Chiropractic in Davenport, Iowa.

By 1962 there were eight accredited chiropractic colleges in the United States, each offering at least four years of post-high school training.

Locally, Dr. Jim Hirsch of the Hirsch Chiropractic Center, has been in Sanford since 1978. He believes that there are no mysteries about chiropractic care.

"It's as natural as the body itself," said Hirsch.

He added, "Many times people come to our office having never been to a chiropractor before. Many are surprised to find that we don't prescribe pills or shots to submerge pain. Chiropractic de-emphasizes the use of drugs and re-emphasizes our body's own natural ability to heal itself."

The central nervous system provides the communication network traveling from the brain, through the spine to all parts of the body.

"If one of the spinal vertebrae pinches a nerve the instructional message is cut off and the affected parts disfunction," Hirsch said.

Chiropractic goes to the source of the problem by adjusting the vertebrae in the spine that are blocking nerve messages.

The great Christmas car give-away

For the eighth consecutive year, Mincer Motors, 1809 French Ave. in Sanford, gave away a car last month, as the result of a Christmas give-away. Mincer Motors advertised in the Sanford Herald prior to the event, calling for people to write a letter, 150 words or less, on why they needed to win the car. The only requirements were that persons must be 18 years of age or older, have a valid Florida driver's license, and provide insurance and the license tag. A large number of letters were received. Above, winner, Susan Smith of Sanford, a single parent with three small children, took possession of the Toyota on Jan. 4, after being informed that she had submitted the winning letter.
