Thousands turn out for Sanford celebration

Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County did not lack for July Fourth festivities this weekend. Several thousand people watched the fireworks in Sanford on Sunday, filling Fort Mellon Park from the Sanford/Seminole County Chamber of Commerce to Mellonville Avenue. The more than 30 minute-display drew comments such as "this is incredible" from the crowd. "It's been a long time since I've seen a fireworks display that was so good," said Longwood resident Rusty

Miles. "I can't remember seeing a display anywhere of equal or better magnitude in 10 to 12 years. It was excellent."

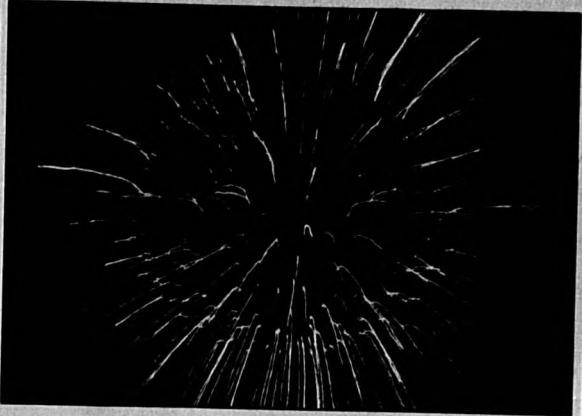

The festivities, sponsored by Sanford Main Street started at 5 p.m. at Fort Mellon Park, featuring two live bands and a variety of vendors and booths. Many businesses along First Street also remained open.

As dusk turned to nightfall, members of the audience were still dancing to Swing music or eating hot dogs and ice cream.

The fireworks display was musically choreographed with the assistance of MIX 105.1 and Power 105.9. Songs ranging SANFORD - There are fish stories, and then there are fish stories. But this one really bites.

A trio of young anglers looking for some catfish action got quite a surprise late Thursday night while wetting a line in a private lake at the Lake Forest subdivision off of SR 46 in Sanford.

Armed with a Shumano bait caster rod and using chopped up brim for bait, 13-year-old Aaron Wood and buddies Dakota Hill and Briteny Burney got a hit shortly after 10 p.m.

"It put up a pretty good fight and at first I thought it was a good size bass," said Wood. When he landed the "it" with the help of friends Hill and Burney, "it" turned out to be a species of carnivorous South American piranha. The jaggedtoothed fish measured 15 inches in length and weighed in at just over three pounds.

The State Roads 436 and 434 intersection is the second most dangerous intersection in Florida according to crash statistics released this week by State Farm Insurance.

"That's an intersection I try to avoid," Bessmer said. "You definitely have to watch your I's and Qs there and at a number of other busy, high-speed

It was only a matter of time that someone began ranking dangerous intersections. We now know what the 100 best movies were, the 50 best actors and actresses, the 10 most wanted criminals and 50 best pro basketball players.

The intersection story is based on crashes at particular sites. Obviosly, every busy intersection in the state is a dangerous site. The 436 and 434 intersection is 95,000 vehicles a day busy. Drivers change lanes, run yellow lights, turn without signaling. "The problem is there are more drivers than room on our roads," Chief Deputy Sheriff Steve Harriett said. "Accidents can happen anywhere - especially with so many people trying to get from Point A to Point B without allocating the proper See Traffic, Page 5A

Six years ago, the Hall of Fame quarterback Johnny Unitas came to Orlando to speak about prostate cancer. A hundred or more people came to hear him. Most were middleaged men and their spouses.

Unitas spoke for an hour. He said that he was a prostate cancer survivor, and that he was giving talks throughout the country to advise men 50 years or older to get an annual prostate cancer checkups.

After he spoke, Unitas noticed a dozen or more people with pictures of him and two with footballs. They had waited for him to finish so they could collect autographs.

Politely, he signed each request.

"If signing a few autographs helps men become aware of getting prostate cancer checks, I'll gladly sign," Unitas said. Tim a survivor. They found my cancer early."

Delilah's Antiques and Collectables took 2nd place in the Sanford Mainstreet Fourth of July window decorating contest. Co-owners Rose mary Leone and Judy Criss accept the award from Mainstreet's Kim House and Cathey Bossert.

Chris Quiles and Ben Meherd found themselves in a sticky situation during the July 4th festivities in downtown Sanford.

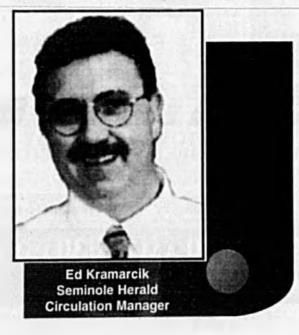

Fourth of July celebrating is exhausting. Just ask T.J. Tooker, who was all tuckered out during the Altamonte Springs festivities.

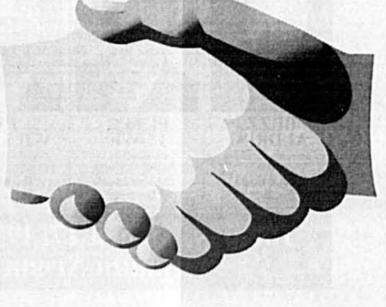

Passing Fancies took 3rd place in the Sanford Mainstreet Fourth of July window decorating contest. Manager Fred Badke accepts the award from Mainstreet's Cathey Bossert and Kirn House.

thing has some big teeth." "We usually fish for bass in that lake and some people swim in it," he said. "We just decided to chop up some bait fish and try for catfish this time."

Although not native to Florida waters, piranha have shown up from time to time. Most biologist credit their appearance in Sunshine State lakes and ponds to irresponsible aquarium owners who purchase the exotic fish from pet stores and then toss them into local waters when they outgrow home aquariums.

Woods' buddy Hill put the unusual fishing story into the perspective only a 13-year old can.

"I'm going down to Blockbuster to rent the movie Piranha," he chuckled.

Celebration

Unfortunately, with the crowd came traffic jams along the lakefront and Mellonville Avenue after the display. But, the Sanford Police Department did not report any accidents.

Residents continued to celebrate the holiday with private fireworks displays long after the fireworks at Fort Mellon Park ended.

Sanford was by no means the only place in Seminole County to celebrate the holiday.

In fact, Saturday's "Red Hot and Boom" Independence Day celebration at Cranes Roost in Altamonte Springs drew a crowd that even backed up traffic on Interstate-4.

The festivities at Cranes Roost started at 6:30 p.m., featuring acts such as Jordan Knight, Joey McIntyre, 98 Degrees and C-Note. Radio station WXXL 106.7 provided stage coverage through video screens. The 25minute fireworks display began at 9:30 p.m.

Traffic

In a single day, sheriff's deputies issued 188 citations to aggressive drivers at various sites. Many ran red lights at intersections such as the one at 436 and 434. Other citations were issued for wrecklessly weaving from lane to lane.

Sanford Acting Police Chief Mitch Tindel said that the department has a supervisor and four officers assigned soley to traffic division. "We brought back the division after the study a couple of years ago," he said. "Our main concerns are at the busy intersections along 17-92, at Lake Mary Bvd., Airport, 25th Street and 1st St. (State Road 46)."

Tindel said that Sanford officers worked with the sheriff's deputies on the latest aggressive driver patrol. One of the hot spots was at State Road 46 and Airport Blvd. Drivers speed more than 50 miles on both sides of SR 46 as they approach or go over the overpass.

Drivers making a left turn off SR 46 to Airport Blvd. have little time or sapce to move into the turn lane. If three cars are in the lane, a fourth either has to stop outside the lane itself or keep driving because of cars speeding from behind them.

The Appliance Store Business Focus This Week:

The Appliance Store, Inc. was started after years of service calls and repairs on major appliances. The majority of the repairs were made on either washers and dryers that people had owned for 15 or 20 years, or else the cheap new ones they had bought just 15 or 20 weeks ago.

Today, all the discount stores carry the cheap washers, dryers and refrigerators. The common misconception among people is they believe these cheap appliances will last al long as their old ones did simply because they are new. NOT TRUE!

The top of the line name brand appliances are expensive, NOT because of the features but because of the mechanical components.

It seems as if there are dozens of used appliance stores that carry everything from televisions to furniture ... and washing machines ... If they plug it in and it works, it gets sold as used, "as-

Brown patches don't always signal disease

Not every turfgrass problem is necessarily a disease problem. Improper practices are many times responsible for the brown areas that are frequently found in many lawns.

Unfortunately, the climate in Florida frequently favors disease development. Many of these diseases require similar environmental conditions to begin, as well as increase in severity and organisms that cause diseases are already present in the turf

In such a hostile environment it seems almost impossible for the plants to survive but, simple cultural practices that enhance plant vigor and increase tolerance to disease are the key to proper turf health.

Diagnosis: Diseases cannot be diagnosed by the shape or color of the spot. Disease symptoms can be confused with improper cultural practices, pesticide damage, nematodes or insect injury. Proper diagnosis of turf diseases require laboratory analysis. Brown areas that increase in size and spread to new areas may be induced by disease causing organisms.

Contributing Factors: Diseases can be expected to occur on poorly maintained turf. Imbalances in nitrogen and potassium levels, as well as thatch accumulation, will result in less vigorous, more susceptible turfgrass. Periods of high humidity, over-irrigation, rain, heavy dew or fog will favor the incidence of many of the fungal diseases of turf. High moisture is needed on the plant surface for infection to take place.

Mowing: Improper mowing height and frequency can weaken the grass and lower its tolerance to disease. Dull mower blades inflict greater tissue damage than sharp blades. The damage is first evident as unsightly white to brown discoloration of the turf 1 to 2 days after mow-

The damaged tissue also provides an avenue through which pathogens may infect the grass. When a disease is active on a particular area of turfgrass, increase the mowing interval and collect clippings to avoid spreading the disease to other areas.

Irrigation: Irrigating early in the morning allows the grass to dry thoroughly before evening. This irrigation schedule reduces the time moisture is present on the leaves. Never water plants late in the afternoon, this will keep moisture on the plants for the longest period of time and will contribute to the development of the disease. Turfgrass that enters the night period moist from irrigation is more inclined to become diseased.

Do not water turfgrasses lightly on a daily basis, wait until the turf begins to show signs of wilt before irrigating.

Fertilization: The susceptibility of turfgrass to disease is also affected by nutrition. Properly fertilized grass is more resistant to disease and recovers faster if it should become diseased. In general, moderate fertilization and use of slow-release fertilizers should be practiced.

Chemical Control: Turfgrass disease can be chemically controlled with proper use of fungicides. A uniform application over the entire planting is usually necessary and will be most effective if done early in disease development. Most fungicides are effective for a relatively short time, often not more than 14 days. Sunlight, rain, irrigation water, and mowing affect the rate at which the protective chemical is broken down and removed from the plant.

Repeat applications re often necessary to control a disease during periods when weather conditions favor disease.

Fungicides should always be used in accordance with the manufacturer's instructions on the product label. Information on the label includes the diseases for which the fungicide is effective, proper rates, cautions with respect to mixing with other chemicals, frequency of application, and safety precautions.

Some of the fungicides are effective only for control of specific diseases so it is important to obtain an accurate diagnosis in order to select an appropriate fungicide. Fungicides should be applied as needed for disease control as soon as possible after diagnosis.

Parents are the real role models

By Richard Mercil, Jr. Special to the Herald

I Wanna Be Like Mike. Or do I? Who are good role models for

Due to television, radio, newspapers, and even the Internet, superstar athletes like Michael Jordan, Mark McGwire, Dan Marino, and Shaquille O'Neal are constantly in the spotlight. They are envied for their lifestyles, and their paychecks. Because of their tremendous athletic skills, these adults playing children games are put in the position of being role models. Our children look up to them and aspire to become just like

Some athletes are good role models. Certain players give regularly to charities or present themselves as upstanding citizens. However, many do not. Orlando Magic guard Penny Hardaway recently blasted Central Florida fans, media, and team management for not treating him properly, like the superstar he thinks he is. New York Yankees slugger Darryl Strawberry was recently arrested for drug possession and solicitations. Is this the kind of behavior that we want our children to

The best role model a child can have is a good of Mom and Dad. Moms and Dads have the greatest influence over their children because they are with them for the vast majority of their formative years. The essence of a human being's personality is shaped in the first three years of life. Positive or negative behaviors are learned through child-

As a psychologist, many times I have seen parents come into the office asking me to "fix" little Johnny's annoying habit of using bad language or Susie's tendency to ignore parental commands. After a short while, it's easy to see where those behaviors come from. Dad has the tendency to use the colorful language in making a point while Mom hasn't listened to anything Dad has said. Helping Johnny and Susie to correct their negative behavior begins by making Mom and Dad aware of how much influence they have over

Children are just as likely to learn negative behaviors form their parents as whey are in learning how to throw a baseball or play the piano, Also, negative behaviors sometimes get more attention form adults than the positive ones do. Children like attention, they'll do a negative behavior again. And again.

Take a hard look at how you behave or what you say in front of your kids. Sometimes parents assume that their children aren't paying attention to them. The kids are busy playing video games anyways, or so you think. However, children are definitely paying attention to you.

Ask yourself if your behavior is the type you would like you kids to imitate. If it is positive and healthy, then congratulate yourself on a job weil done. If that thought made you cringe, begin working towards becoming a good role model. Save the inappropriate or negative behaviors for behind closed doors, away from the kids.

Children are far better tape recorders than the ones that need electricity. Remember that how you behave and what you say in front of your kids will likely be repeated in front of you, a teacher, or Grandma.

Unsettling year of changes puts marriage on the rocks

DEAR ABBY: My husband, "Earl," and I married when I was 23 and he was 26. We had dated for five years long-distance. We moved to an area where he could get a job - 15 hours from my home in Connecticut, but only two hours from his home in South Carolina. Since I am a teacher, I have more

During the first year, Earl quit his job to go to college. He also began an affair, which resulted in his moving out of our apartment and moving in with his girlfriend, who was also married. Because of state law, we had to be separated a full year before filing for divorce.

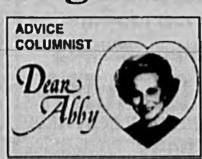

The year is just about to end. I have moved to New Jersey and Earl has gone back to his original job. After six months of not seeing or hearing from him, he called my family to get my phone number. Now Earl is saying that he has realized his mistakes and is straightening out his life - yet he is still living with his girlfriend! He suggested that divorce is "not needed" and that "possibly" things may work between us.

Abby, I am not a silly schoolgirl thinking her knight has returned, but should I ever (even if not now) give Earl the chance to re-establish the relationship that was so strong between us for 51/2 years, as purely friends? My friends doubt whether could ever trust him as a friend, but should he be given the chance? SOON TO BE A has to say. But remain skeptical until he leaves his girlfriend. Even if he wants to revive the marriage, do not agree until the two of you have had many months of marriage counseling.

DEAR SOON TO BE: You have nothing to lose by listen-

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend and I have been together for two years. We live together. I am 29 and he is 31. I love him and think we have a great relationship.

His mother passed away last summer. The nursing home she was in took all her savings and she didn't have funeral insurance, so the costs for everything rested on the two of us. While he has two older sisters and one older brother, two of them didn't even come to the memorial service or help pay for the funeral costs. We chose to have her

We had very little money at the time, but a minister friend of mine held a lovely church memorial service in her honor, and my father held the repast at his home. My divorced parents made sandwiches and drinks for my hoyfriend's family, and one of my boyfriend's sisters graciously paid for 75 per-cent of the cremation costs.

A few days after the service, his sister returned home and his mother's ashes were left with us. None of the children want them, and for the past year my boyfriend has stored them in our bedroom closet. I am uncomfortable with them being there. I really liked his mother a lot and have a problem seeing that box of ashes every morning when I get dressed for

How should I broach this with my boyfriend? HAUNTED IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR HAUNTED: Since the remains make you uncomfortable, suggest to your boyfriend that his mother's sales deserve a more dignified resting place than a box in a bedroom closet. Then go with him to investigate the cost of placing her ashes in one of the local cemeteries, and discuss payment plans.

Another option: According to the Funeral and Memorial Societies of America, as of 1996 it's legal in all 50 states to scatter ashes. Perhaps you can find an appropriate and meaningful spot for her remains.

More defensive trump promotions

By Phillip Alder

Mao Tse-tung said and wrote some penetrating things. For example: "The policy of letting a hundred flowers blossom and a hundred schools of thought contend is designed to promote the flourishing of the arts and the progress of science."

We are looking at the ways defenders can turn low trumps into winners. One of the most satisfying is through trump promotion. If declarer could get in and draw trumps, he wouldn't have a loser, but because the defenders are in control, they can generate an extra do next?

How do you produce a trump promo-tion? You lead a card through declarer when both he and your partner are out of that suit. The declarer is left with two losing options: ruff low and be

(Obviously, you might also lead a suit through the dummy when both that hand and your partner sitting over the dummy are void of this suit.)

In today's deal, defending against four spades, West leads the heart nine in answer to his partner's overcall. East wins with the heart queen, then cashes the heart ace. What should he

ASK DR. GOTT

Double vision could be serious

DEAR DR. GOTT: For the past few months, I have experienced headaches and blurred vision - sometimes even double vision — while exercising strenuously. What could cause this? Need I worry?

DEAR READER: When blood flow is inappropriately shunted away from parts of the brain, a variety of symptoms may appear. The fact that you may experience double vision (diplopia) during exercise suggests that the nerves to your eye muscles are not receiving enough blood; consequently, they are malfunctioning. The cause could be ominous. Let me explain

About six months ago, a healthy 40year-old man came to the office with symptoms identical to yours. He experienced headache and diplopia at a specific time: an hour after he had started playing volleyball at his usual Thursday night session. I could find nothing wrong, so I referred him to an ophthalmologist. The specialist could find nothing wrong either, but he suspected multiple sclerosis, a neurological disease that often causes strange and unusual complaints. So he ordered an MRI scan.

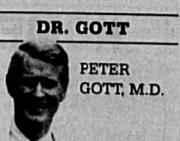

To our astonishment, the test revealed a large aneurysm (swelling) of a major artery in the brain. When the patient exercised, his blood pressure rose, the aneurysm temporarily enlarged and pressed on the nerves to his eye muscles. This middle-aged man was a walking time-bomb; the aneurysm could rupture at any time, leading to death or profound disabili-

I am happy to report that the patient had his aneurysm successfully repaired. He is now back to full activity, including volleyball, with no headache or diplopia.

Get to your doctor now. You need further testing, which she can organize - as well as a referral to an ophthalmologist, at least. Let me know what happens.

To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Headaches." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have Meniere's disease. Can I control my symptoms

DEAR READER: I doubt it. Meniere's disease is a disorder of the inner ear, marked by deafness, balance problems and a hissing or buzzing (tinnitus.) Nobody knows the cause and there is no cure. If you already consume a balanced diet, additional foods or supplements are probably unnecessary.

The symptoms of Meniere's disease may result from other, readily treatable conditions. Therefore, I suggest that you check with an ear-nose-andthroat specialist. If you truly have Meniere's disease, she may be able to offer specific therapy.

Jarrett captures first Pepsi 400 win

Special to the Herald

DAYTONA BEACH - Dale Jarrett extended his domination as NASCAR Winston Cup points leader by edging Dale Earnhardt as the Pepai 400 finished under the caution at Daytona International Speedway.

Since getting involved in wreck in the Daytona 500 to open the season and finishing 37th, Jarrett has finished in the top 10 in each of the last 16 races, including three wins.

Saturday night's win was Jarrett's third at the Daytona International Speedway and his first in the Pepsi 400 after 14 attempts.

His previous victories at the World Center of Racing came in the 1993 and 1996 Daytona 500. Jarrett earned $164,965 for the winning the Pepsi 400, the 17th race on the 34 race

1999 Winston Cup schedule. Jarrett, driver of the No. 88 Quality Care Ford Taurus, used a splash-and-go gas stop with 16 laps left to secure the lead and hold off a charging Earnhardt, who took two tires on his final pit stop.

"It would have been awfully close on gas," said Jarrett. "I think we could have made it because being out front I could kind of dictate what was going

Jarrett outran Earnhardt and Jeff Burton, who had also taken on two tires during his final stop, back to the caution flag after Jeremy Mayfield, Wally Dallenbach and Jimmy Spencer tangled on the front stretch with two laps left.

Earnhardt and Burton came out of the pits in eighth and ninth place after their pit stops, but hooked up together and quickly came to the front with the fresher tires, as did Ward Burton, who put on four tires and came from 28th to seventh over the final 11 laps.

"I told the guys before the last stop that if we didn't get right side tires I didn't know if we would finish at all," said Earnhardt, the seven-time Winston Cup champion who placed second for the sixth time in his career at Daytona in the GM Goodwrench Plus Chevrolet.

"It really didn't hurt us, maybe on position. I wasn't aware of Jarrett's problem, if he was going to run out of gas or be close. I think if it had stayed green, we could've got Jarrett." After taking the caution flag stop for four seconds to get gas but was probably only in for less than three, ran around the track on the flat apron to try to keep what little fuel was left in the tank flowing to the pick-up.

Rounding out the top five in the race were Jeff Burton in his Skinner in the Lowe's Chevrolet and Bobby Labonte, who fin-ished second in last year's Pepst 400, in the interstate Batteries Pontinc.

Burton scored his third top 10 finish in Winston Cup races

, Finishing sixth-through-10th were roukle Tony Stewart in The Home Depot Pontiac, Ward Burton in the Caterpillar Pontiac, Bobby Hamilton in the Kodak Chevrolet. Ernie Irvan in the M&M's Pontiac and Terry

Laborte in the Kellog's Chevro-

Rusty Wallace, who led the most laps in the race, just like he had in the Daytona 500 in February, wound up 11th.

Daytona Beach's Mark Martin, who suffered a broken left wrist in Friday's 'Happy Hour' practice, drove the whole race and finished 17th after starting 43rd.

Defending Pepsi 400 and 1999 Daytona 500 champion Jeff Gordon finished 24th (which was changed to 19th after a review of tapes on Tues-

NASCAR veteran Dave Marcis completed 159 laps Saturday night and broke Richard Petty's record for most laps completed in the Pepsi 400. 1 29 races. Marcis has completed 4,161 laps for 10,402 miles.

The victory by Jarrett marked the eighth win of the season for Ford and was the first for the Taurus at Daytona International Speedway in a points race.

Jarrett averaged 159.231 mph as three cautions slowed the 160-lap race for nine laps. Jarrett was one of nine drivers who swapped the lead 17 times during the two-hour, 21minute event.
