U.N. Puerto Rico Debate Sparks Rows In Gallery

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) - Verbal sparring Monday at the opening of the U.N. Decolonization Committee's annual debate on the status of Puerto Rico touched off shouting arguments in the gallery among groups for and against independence for the Caribbean

Puerto Rico's Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo. leader of the pro-statehood party, told the panel his island's politics were none of its business. He vigorously denounced the island's independence movements, saying the independence groups had polled only 6.4 per cent of the vote in the 1976 gubernatorial elections, while his own party received 48.3 per cent. The debate resumes today.

IN BRIEF

Food, Clothing Prices Rise Just A Bit In July

NATION

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Inflation eased in July as consumer prices, particularly for food and clothing, rose just 0.5 percent in the best performance of 1978, the government reported

Food costs were unchanged last month after rising by an average of 1.6 percent each month during the first half of the year. The prices of beef, pork, fresh vegetables and eggs staples of the American diet - all turned downward.

The encouraging report from the Labor Department had been anticipated by the administration. President Carter and his economic aides have consistently maintained that inflation would taper off during the second half of the year after soaring at a double-digit pace during the first six months.

Author Bruce Catton Dies

FRANKFORT. Mich. (UPI) - Bruce Catton, whose books on the Civil War won him popular acclaim and a Pulitizer Prize for history, died Monday of an undisclosed respiratory illness.

Catton, who was 78, wrote more than 15 books on the Civil War and always credited his early career as a reporter for his success as a Civil War author.

Postal Talks Extended 15 Days

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The threatened postal strike that has given the nation a scare was called off at the 11th hour, after Director Wayne Horvitz of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service said contract talke between the U.S. Postal Service and three postal workers unions will be extended for another 15 days.

Union leaders had demanded the U.S. Postal Service return to the bargaining table, but Postmaster General William Bolger insisted the contract dispute go instead to compulsory arbitration. Horvitz said he will appoint a mediator in the next day or two to bring the two sides together for 15 days of talks. If they fail to bring accord, the mediator will decide the remaining unresolved issues and his decision will be final.

Giving Credit Where Due

Apparently unable to decide between two tuition-relief plans for parents of college students. the Senate recently passed both: one providing college tuition tax credit and one providing a direct

As President Carter rightly pointed out, the country cannot afford both.

Notwithstanding the Senate's confusion, the obvious choice, it seems to us, is the tax credit plan, sponsored by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y.

This would permit a family to deduct from its income taxes half of what it pays in college tuition up to $500 per dependent student per year. The grant bill, sponsored by Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., and favored by President Carter, would provide direct tuition grants for college students of families earning up to $25,000 per year.

Depending on income, the grants would range from $250 to $1,800 per year. The costs of each are similar: $1.2 billion for the Pell bill and $1.4 billion for Moynihan's.

That's where the similarity ends. The grant program would necessitate eligibility applications from students and financial disclosure forms from their parents.

A new layer of bureaucracy would be needed to process the paperwork, determine eligibility and preside over disbursement of millions of checks

Parents and students would be cast in the unflattering role of supplicants. Contrast that with the simplicity of the tax

Any family with a dependent child enrolled in a college or university need only take a deduction. A few extra lines on the long or short tax form

The sought-for relief would be automatic and not a single additional employee should be Virtually all of the program costs would go where they should: to help defray the escalating cost of a college education.

President Cartor objects to this wonder of workability on the grounds that a few students from wealthy families might benefit. And they might. But what of it? - This is an education program, not a welfare program. Its purpose is not the redistribution of

- In any case, the vast majority who would be helped by a tuition tax credit would be from the ranks of the hard-pressed middle class - those too illy for most existing education programs and too poor not to need them.

If Washington were a more logical place, this choice would be effortless The straightforward tuition tax credit would be written into law and the cumbersome, bureaucratic direct grant scheme would end up in a wastebasket where it belongs. We are advised, therefore, to expect the tuition grant approach to prevail. Pity.

DEFENSE

The faces up front, with the exception of big rookie Al Baker, are familiar but hard to identify. Herb Orvis complained once too often and is gone. Doug English is the only reliable tackle on hand. There's a quartet rotating at end. The linebackers, on the other hand, are Lion steadies — Paul Naumoff and Charlie Weaver outside, Ed Neill in the middle, but look for ex-49er Dave Washington to squeeze in. And the quality is positively exhilarating at the corners, where holdover James Hunter, top rookie Luther Bradley already draw raves as best pair in NFL. Lem Barney might extend career at safety. Tom Skladany solves all punting worries. Rating

Hinted By Candidate

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - House Speaker Don Tucker says he will have a staff member look into allegations by Rep. Don Hazelton that the official Hazelton is trying to in his campaign.

Hazelton says Treasurer Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter is intimidating the insurance industry into helping finance his reelection campaign.

He demanded that Tucker set in motion a House impeachment investigation.

Weeding Out Bad Apples?

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Bruce Smathers says Sen. Robert Graham, one of his opponents for governor, is "waffling" on the real issue of teacher testing.

Ex-Secretary of State Smathers said

Monday Graham's support of teacher testing is "rhetoric." While Graham is endorsing festing for new teachers, "he is still waffling on testing those teachers already in our classrooms," Smathers said. "Is he demanding, like I am, testing to weed out the bad apples already in our schools, as well as those who will apply in the future?...Or is he still a pawm of the teachers unions?"

Candidates Work With Cattle

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Sen. Robert Graham and Rep. Wayne Mixson, his running mate, are spending today working with beef cattle and plowing.

The two Democrats are at the Florida A&M

University farm for the 96th of Graham's scheduled 100 work days "to help me better understand the concerns of the working people

Legislative Snookering

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) -Legislature was snookered when it passed the generic drug law supposed to help consumers, says Sen. Jim Glisson, Attorney General Robert Shevin's gubernatorial running mate.

"The really incredible aspect of this situation and the one I feel is most embarassing as a legislator is that these merchandiages. chandisers are making more money now at the expense of consumers than they did before this so-called consumer prote passed," Glisson said Monday.

He joined other officials in demanding a State Board of Pharmacy investigation of reports drug stores jacked up the price on cheap, bulk quantity "generic" drugs and earned $100 million in windfall profits.

Concerned About Retarded

CLEARWATER (UPI) — Republican governor's candidate Jack Eckerd says the state needs to treat the retarded in community centers instead of institutions "in the name of humanity and economy."

It cost the state about $3,900 a year to meet the needs of a retarded person in a community center, Echerd said Monday, compared to $30,000 in a Sunland training center.

"And it can be far more humane to keep a retarded person in the community with his family than warehouse that person for the rest of his life in some far-away institution," he said.

Eckerd toured a community care center operated by the Upper Pinellas Association for Retarded Citizens.

Tanzler-Smathers: Big Money

TALLAHASSEE, (UPI) - With the TALLAHASSEE, (UPI) — With the gubernatorial primary just two weeks away, campaign reports show Democrate Hans Tantier and Bruce Smathers coming from the back of the pack to raise and spend hig messy. Tantier received more than $41,500 in contributions from $2 Jacksonville city employees who tenk out personal leans to help the city's mayor in his sid to become governor. The gifts ranged from roughly $300 to $2,000 and enabled Tantier to list total contributions on Monday of $342,749.

The 'Funny World Of Fred & Bunni'

By JOAN HANAUER UPI Television Writer NEW YORK (UPI) - Everyone knows Lawrence Welk, but how many people out there in champagne music land ever heard of Lance and Louie Welk, the brothers who never made it past the beer and pretzel stage? You can see them on "The Funny World of Fred and Bunni," to be broadcast by CBS Wednesday, 8-9 p.m., Eastern time. Fred is Travalena, a one-man variety show who specializes in imitations, although he also sings and tells jokes. Travalena and guest Pat Harrington (without the mustache he wears as Schneider on "One Day At A Time") do a number in which they play Lance and Louis, the forgotten Welks. Every time Harrington exclaims, with Welkian accent, "onja Henie's tutu!" Travalena, who's supposed to be playing the other brother, There's no way to tell much is rehearsed and how much is real, but the combination of the double Welk accent and the break-up provides one of the funniest few minutes on television in a long

Overall, the show is pleasant and entertaining, relying heavily on Travalena's talents as a mimic and innovator. y be part of a new television trend is the nbination of animation with live actors — starting out with the Bunni of the title, a gorgeous cartoon strip of a girl. Every so often a funny little green cartoon man with a Peter Lorre accent pops up on the screen and the show has its house critic in a bright yellow star with a Paul Lynde voice that

The big number of the show comes when Travalena imitates Barry Manilow, Henry "The Pons" Winkler, Frank Sinatra and Paul Williams in a musical number. Thanks to the magic of rvision gimmickry, all appear on stage together, although not all the imitations are as successful as Travalena's Sinatra, which time fan of impersonators - here's a whole hour of imitation without one Jimmy Cagney, Jimmy Stewart or Ronald Coleman. Sandy Duncan and Vicki Lawrence are Travalena's other guests, and both are fun to have around, but the only guest in sanger of stealing the spotlight from its star is Harrington.

Travalena's talent makes him a candidate for many more rvision appearances, and the cartoon touch is provided by the quitous Hanna-Barbera production firm, with Joseph Barbera as executive producer.
