Towing Of Enterprise To Port Is Begun

Capit. Carlsen's 9-Day Ordeal With Raging Seas Is Believed Nearing End

By ERNEST AGNEW
LONDON on—The crippled Flying Enterprise started under tow toward Falmouth Harbor a tedious three knots today. Her skipper, Capt. Kurt Carlsen, who refused stubbornly to abandon his wallowing ship in the face of a wild storm, was jubilant and confident that he is going to win his long fight against the sea.
The commander of the U.S.

The commander of the U.S. destroyer Willard Keith, which ar rived to watch over the stricken American freighter and her dough ty captain, reported: "The tow is riding smoothly."

Capt. Carisen's nine-day ordeal—nearly seven of their alone in a darkened and sadly listing ship—appeared over, unless the barrel-thick towing hawser breaks or the welling seas tip the vessel over.
For the first time aince a hurricane cracked the Flying Enterprise across the middle and left her helpless some 500 miles off England's southern tip on Dec. 28.

the weather was reported "calm and the visibility is good." Snaking the helpless Enterprise to port is the powerful sea going tug Turmoil, which managed after 30 hours of struggle to secure towline to the bow of the freighter. On the deck of the Enterprisetilting at a perilous 70 to 80 de-grees—the stubborn, Danish born skipper still stands, joined now by the Turmoil's First Mate Kenneth Dancy, watching the grouning hawser case his ship along.

MONDAY, JAN. 7, 1952 TODAY'S BIBLE VERSE

We all are just that. We are children of the King of Kings. Each one resembled the children of a king .- Ju. 8:18.

We hope you have been following the story of Capt, Kurt Carlsen and the Flying Enterprise which has turned out to be one of the truly great sagas of the seas, worthy of any of Joseph Conrad's great novels. Basically here was a man who deliberately chose to risk his life and stay with his ship rather than sacrifice the million dollar cargo of his employers. There are not many like that any more. Most of us would say, "Let the taxpayers pay for it".

Secretary of State Gray, who recently announced his candidacy for re-election, was first appointed to his present pert in 1930. Since that time he has run for reelection and been successful no less than five times. That is a rather remarkable record, we venture to suggest. Anyone having political aspirations for this job should give serious thought to Mr. Gray's record before launching himself precipitately into any such a maelstrom as this would certainly prove to be.

Seabee Anniversary

The Construction Buttalions of the United States Navy celebrated their tenth birthday in December. Few units in our armed forces have won so much respect and glory in such a short time. The "Seabees" were formed in 1941 because the Navy needed a force of skilled journeymen which could build and fight. Their exploits during World War II are legendary.

Although the Construction Battalions were a new group, many of the first Seabees were older than the average servicemen. Marines, with whose operations the Seabees were frequently associated, jested that it was a good idea to be kind to a Seabee since he might be some Marine's father. But often the Seabee bulldozers were operating close behind the advancing Marine and Army troops, and both of the latter groups had a sincere respect and affection for

The Seabees have won new honors in Korea. They have built roads, docks and bridges in incredibly short periods of time. Perhaps one of the reasons the Seabees have been able to accomplish so much has been that they take great pride in the organization. Their attitude can be summed up in the sign hung in many of their workshops. It reads: "The difficult we do immediately. The impossible will take a little time." Those who know their work realize that this is not an idle boast.

Age Of Dependence

In the days when most Americans lived in rural areas the home was an almost self-sufficient unit. Father provided food, and fuel for the fire. Mother served as clothler, baker, cook and housekeeper. The early American family had to look to the outside world for some of its needs, but in an emergency it could exist for long periods without contact with that world.

Living has become more complex today and many of the things people once habitually did for themselves can best be accomplished by delegating them to experts, who in turn count on other specialists to supply their needs. Minor household emergencies, such as a storm which prevents the grocer from making deliveries or the failure of the automatic furnace, help to bring home to us the extent of our dependence upon one another.

This growing dependence on the group may have robbed the individual of some of his freedom and initiative. But because men can now rely on one another's work to provide goods and services which are needed, a better standard of living is enjoyed by all. The emergencies which demonstrate our interdependence also prove how worth while it is for us to develop even better ways of living and working together.

Fewer Marriages

There were 1,580,000 marriages in the United States in 1951, which is a decline of 5 percent from the 1950 figure, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company reports. the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company reports.
