New Money Plans Excite Interest Here And Abroad

World Currency Proposals Don't Make It Easier To Get

By CLAUDE A. JACGER
 An General Financial Editor
 NEW YORK. There is something fascinating about any proposal for new money.

Maybe it is because it always evokes a hope that money is going to be more plentiful.

In any event, the American proposal for a new world currency to be called "Unitas," and the British suggestion of an international money to be known as "Sterne" seem pretty exciting.

Actually it is the firm objective of both proposals to make money more plentiful.

But before your hopes are raised too high, just remember this:

You won't get any units or sterne bills to carry around in your wallet. If these proposals make money more plentiful, you will get your share by hard work just as before, and you will get the same old dollar.

What Money Is
 What the economists keep telling us—and they tear their hair because they say nobody pays much attention—is that most people have the wrong idea about money, think money is wealth.

Money, they say, is not wealth. If there were a lot more money around, that would not mean that it would be any easier to get, or that you could buy any more. And the reason is: Money is not wealth, but a medium of exchange. Actually, in this country, we do about 90 percent of our business with bank checks. Money, or currency, is just the small change we could do all our business with checks, but that would be a nuisance.

But checks are reckoned in terms of money. We have to use a unit of value to exchange our work for groceries, and further, more, our general system of exchange in terms of money enables us to work smoothly and efficiently.

International Complications
 Now the situation gets complicated when you begin exchanging American money for British money, or Argentine or some other kind, because there is no international money.

In normal times, exchange between countries has worked out pretty satisfactorily by measuring their relative currency values in terms of gold. But by spells, things work very badly, as during those black years decade ago.

Brazil, for instance, was burning its coffee, although it wanted and needed American manufactured goods. Millions of Americans, meanwhile, were out of work and could not get a cup of coffee. American factories to make that Brazil wanted were idle. What was the matter? The exchange system, among other things, had broken down.

New Plans Aims
 The Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau is driving at with the unitas plan, and what Lord Keynes of the British Treasury is talking about with the sterne plan is a method of ensuring a smooth flow of goods and services after the war, so we can all work and produce for ourselves each other.

A special mechanism seems to be called for on many counts. In the first place, most of the world's monetary gold has come in the United States. Officially reported reserves of money gold in the world, and that is most of it, come to only about 28 billion dollars, and that 22 billion is in the vaults of the U. S. Treasury.

Also, monetary systems in large parts of the world overrun by Axis and Japs have been all but destroyed.

Maybe it will be possible to get back to the prewar system gradually and not have any "inter-war" depression.

But there is at least a difficult question to be dealt with. And furthermore, the old system has broken down since 1929, so many have had more satisfactory methods can be devised.

Morgenthau's Proposal
 Morgenthau proposes an international clearing union which would be a sort of world bank, which would handle international transactions on a various people clear trans-

23 Convicts Escape From Georgia Prison

REIDSVILLE, Ga., Apr. 16. (AP)—Led by the notorious escape artist Forrest Turner and Leland Harvey, 23 convicts escaped early today from Taitnall State Prison after overpowering three prison guards, taking their keys, dismantling the telephone switchboard and pulling the switch which cut out all prison lights. The men fled in two prison trucks and a car belonging to the guard.

Two of the 23 fugitives were captured some 25 miles away after the truck overturned. Others were pursued with bloodhounds. Governor Armiel said the escape apparently could have been prevented either through collaboration of guards or employees of the prison or by negligence and offered a reward of $100 each.

Intricate Bombing Device Takes Skill To Operate Effectively

HEADQUARTERS UNITED STATES ARMY AIR FORCES FLYING TRAINING COMMAND FORT WORTH, Tex., April 16. (AP)—The enemy undoubtedly has captured several of the famous Norden bomb sights and for that reason the secrecy surrounding the intricate device has been relaxed somewhat, according to Colonel John P. Kenny, commandant of the Air Force Bomber School at Midland, Tex. But he added that there was no cause for alarm because it would take Axis scientists two years or more to duplicate the bomb sight.

The Norden sight has several thousand parts. Cadets learn enough about it to make superficial repairs, but bomb-sight men defy cadets or any one else to take one apart and put it together again without months of careful training.

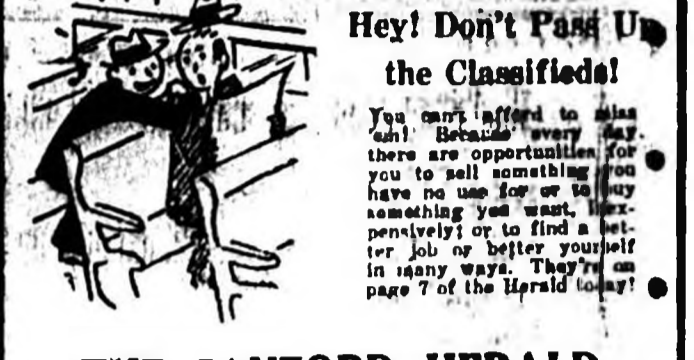

The bomb sight, mounted directly behind a special piece of thick glass in the bombardier's compartment in the nose of the plane, has three ball-like elements all encased in black metal. One element, containing the telescope and its adjusting machinery, is located to the bombardier's right; the second, containing the gyroscope, to his left on the same level; the third, directly under the gyroscope.

Mechanism Is Complex
 Taken apart, the sight becomes a great confusion of mirrors, prisms, lenses, gears, bearings and countless other tiny parts.

Once you get the slight trained on the target—and it takes a good bombardier only twenty-five seconds of level flying to do that you literally can't miss. That was demonstrated twice at 6,000 feet and twice again at 500 feet. It was uncanny. No human could even approach such accuracy.

Here, roughly, is how the bombardier uses the sight:
 Before beginning the run on

During the past twenty-five seconds, the maximum time allowed in most combat runs, he becomes extremely busy. He must concentrate on his job even if anti-aircraft shells are bursting on all sides. Success of the entire mission depends on how well he

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

MANY A BUSINESS WOULD FAIL IF IT DID NOT TAKE STOCK ONCE IN A WHILE. TAKE STOCK OF YOURSELF. MAY BE YOU HAVE ALLOWED DEADLY FAULTS TO TAKE DEEP ROOT. GET RID OF THEM: Search me, O God, and know my heart, try me and know my thoughts; and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting.—Psalm 139:23, 24.

Post-War Plans

As long as some of our national leaders in government and education are giving serious thought to post-war problems—and it is a good thing that some plans are being made for the development of a prosperous, peaceful and orderly world when final victory is achieved—a little careful planning along the same line here in Sanford might be worthwhile.

Come the peace and those things which are now supporting our economic life may vanish overnight into thin air. The Naval Air Station, unless it is made permanent, will be closed, and the 1,500 or more men stationed there and their families will go away. Employment on the railroads, non taxed to capacity by military transportation, will drop until private enterprise is fully restored.

Agriculture which is now in its most prosperous state since the late twenties will doubtless continue to flourish for some time after the war, but possibly after a year or two that too will feel the effects of a post-war slump. Those businesses in Sanford which are able to survive the war at all will certainly be in no condition to weather another depression.

And so it is worthwhile for those who can to think about what is going to happen here at home after the war is over and what we can do now toward improving the conditions with which we may be confronted later. It will not relieve our financial burdens or neip our unemployment problems to complain that these things might have been avoided if we had only thought about it in time.

We should have a great many public improvement projects lined up on an "if, as and when" basis so that immediately when the labor is available and the money provided work can be started at once on construction well planned in advanced of a nature both socially justifiable and economically sound. Such projects might well include our long deferred hospital, a swimming pool, if one has not been constructed in the meantime, and a substantial low cost housing project.

And we should continue our efforts toward the deepening of the St. Johns River and the construction of the canal to the Indian River. These projects not only would provide some employment but when finished would justify our long time boast of being "The Port of Central Florida" giving us preferential freight rates and bringing yachts bound for the lower east coast right to our front doors.

Most important of all perhaps we should begin planning at once to capitalize on the enormous tourist business which is bound to flourish once the war is over. People who have been staying home for several years, saving their money and working hard, will take vacations and they will travel. Some will go to California and South America but most of them will come to Florida.

And there will be more of them than in the best years after the last war. Transportation will be easier and faster. And many business men will be able to send their families to Florida for the winter while they themselves run down for week-ends.

Sanford should be ready to help entertain them.

Two Able Men

It is natural for people who pride themselves on their "sportsmanship" to appreciate courage and resourcefulness even in their enemies. And it is all right among military men, and even among civilians, provided they don't lose their grip on normal standards of human decency.

This is said with special reference to the general credit given to Marshal Rommel for the fight he has made. As a professional tribute this is all right. But mere courage and resourcefulness should not be allowed, either in war or peace, to obscure the larger moral issues. The better a man fights in a bad cause, the worse it is for the victims and for everybody in the long run.

The thing fought for is more important than the fighting itself. Brilliant but wrong-minded men like Rommel are fighting for the destruction of modern civilization and its replacement by a hard, cold, ruthless form of barbarism that would make brute strength and clever cunning masters of the world.

There should be no admiration for 'killing in a bad cause. Over against the false hero-worship given by the Nazi Germans to cunning men like Rommel should be set the true and humane courage and understanding of a man like the great author, Thomas Mann. He forsook brutalized Germany, abandoned everything he possessed, and came to America to fight with tongue and pen for righteousness and humanity.

Nothing Wrong

A girl had just applied for induction into the WAACS. She passed the physical with flying colors. But after taking the psychopathic examination, she was still evidently a doubtful case so the doctor asked: "Lady, are you sure there isn't something the matter with you that you haven't told me about?"

"Well, doctor," she said, "I guess I might as well tell you. You see just before I was born my mother had a serious accident—swallowed a phonograph needle. But it didn't have any effect on me—didn't have any effect on me—didn't have any effect on me—didn't have any effect on me.—(Coronet)

OLD TRICKS—Harold Icken, Secretary of the Interior, is up to his old tricks. He cost the State of Florida and he Federal Government $80,000 would have settled the matter. After the $800,000 was spent then he agreed to the original proposal which had been made years before and the matter is practically settled at this time and the quarantines will soon be lifted, according to information given me by the agriculture Department. Mr. Icken has recently pulled another fast one. He sent representatives to Florida that with the present price lines and those which they had planned and other means of transportation there would be no necessity for the quarantines in the Atlantic States. After the quarantines were lifted. After $1,000,000 had been spent and $1,000,000 had been spent in the State it was found that the quarantines were still in effect.

this population. Why did he not repudiate it earlier? I can answer that question. He knew that if the Committee had the truth the canal would be approved. The fact of the matter is that the press pulled the members of the committee and I don't know what would be a better word for it, but it was a deliberate effort to favor of the canal. I don't know what this information means they voted. Some members went so far as to say they would have changed their votes if they had known the I am sure the Senate will not be impressed by any statements, but they tried to do this.

MEDUSA WITH THE SNAKY LOCKS

LOGIC LACKING IN ENGLISH

By JAMES W. GIBSON

The estimable "M. Pam Frit," who occasionally translates for the Baltimore Sun from the French-language press, gives the following rendition of a conversation between two Frenchmen who have been studying English:

"Hello, my old. I haven't seen you in the age of a zoon, say, Mark Twain. How goes it, your English."

"One makes not progress, ah?"

"Not much. Take! I am writing, for example, some poems. I construct a verification, of title, 'Winter Days,' beginning—

"No blossoms on the bough—
"The weather, he is rough."

"Again, nothing. So I make a discard as an afterthought, and compose a rhyme on a topic of homeliness, entitled 'The Staff of Life—

"When the oven is hot all ll scoop up a lot of passengers you don't want. Besides," he added as an afterthought, "Somebody might get hurt."

HOG STEALING—Jesting and fun-making have their places and even members of Congress are not boys grown up and they like to have their fun. Congressmen Dick Kleberg, of Texas, owner of one of the largest ranches in the world, has been carrying on a sort of feud with Congressman O'Brien of New York, who is a morning recently. Congressman O'Brien was busy with a delegation in his office. Mr. Kleberg sent his secretary down to Mr. O'Brien's office with some papers and insisted that Mr. O'Brien see the secretary at once. So in the presence of the delegation Mr. O'Brien admitted Mr. Kleberg's secretary and after having looked at the papers he found nothing in them whatever but was surprised to find that Mr. Kleberg demanded a reply immediately. Mr. O'Brien dictated this reply to Mr. Kleberg: "The Honorable Richard Kleberg, Representative of the Four Congressional Districts, State of Texas, Dear Dick: and then signed his name, 'Joseph J. O'Brien,' leaving a blank space between the name and the signature. Mr. O'Brien was smiling to himself when he saw the letter. 'Dear Dick: I am in receipt of your inquiry as to whether I was ever indicted for hog stealing and in reply I reluctantly admit that I was indicted, convicted and served time.' Of course Mr. Kleberg was filled in the letter but Mr. O'Brien made a mistake of stamping the letter in blank and could not deny it was his signature.

Lightning Strikes Twice In Same Place

CAMP BLANDING, Apr. 16, (Special)—Lightning struck twice in the same place with good news for Private Ted De Young, of Lincoln Park, Mo., who was promoted to Private First Class 10 days after he became Ted De Young, Sr.

Pvt. De Young was informed of the birth of a son, Ted De Young, Jr., on March 21, and received his promotion to Private First Class on Apr. 1.

He is a member of the 247th Station Hospital at Camp Blanding.

Post-war prefabricated houses, designed to fit individual needs will cost only $500 to $800 per unit and will be produced for intensive production of thousands of units, scientists predicted.

THE LITTLE MORON COLUMN

Have you ever heard about the little moron who...

Struck one match, it didn't light; struck another, it didn't light; struck the third, it lit! So he said, "This is a good one, I'll keep it."

Slept on the curb to keep his mind out of the gutter. Had a bad cold, so he stuck his head out the window so the wind could blow his nose.

What the two little morons did on their honeymoon: Nothing! Lost a quarter in one block and looked for it in the next block because there was more light.

Sewed his fingers together so he could wear mittens. Divorced his wife because he found her in bed with Arthritis. Killed his wife and buried her under the floor so he could sing, "I'm Walking the Floor Over You."

Cut off his left arm so he'd be all right. Asked another moron why he shot the duck. The fall would have killed him.

Tried to get in a show free because his name was Crime, and "Crime doesn't pay."

Jumped out of a ten-story building to show people he had guts. Exclaimed, "Gee, I'm glad I don't like liver, 'cause I'd eat a lot of it and I hate liver."

When ordered to halt by his Captain, he kept on going. When the Captain asked him why he didn't halt, he replied, "My name's Time, and Time Marches On."

I Did Not! A patient in an insane asylum was trying to convince an attendant that he was Hitler.

"But, who told you that you were Hitler?" inquired the attendant.

"God did," replied the inmate. "No, I didn't either," came a voice from the next bunk. (Our Navy)

Britain Submits Record Budget Of 23 Millions

Public Will Pay 56 Percent As Luxury Levy Is Increased

LONDON, April 16, (Special)—Mr. Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, presented to Parliament this week the largest budget in Great Britain's history, calling for an expenditure of 16,764,000,000 ($23,024,000,000) during the 1943-44 fiscal year.

While the expenditures soar to new levels, the British people will pay in taxes a larger portion of their fixed war-time budget than they have of any previous budget of the war.

The income tax, which is shared by nearly every family in the country, has not been increased, but, with heavier new taxes on luxury items, the British people will pay nearly 56 percent of the total government expenditure.

This compares with the 52 percent contributed to the smaller budget of the current year and 48 percent in 1941-42.

The new taxes will hit beer and whiskey, tobacco, entertainment, telegrams, long-distance telephone calls and luxury articles which have already vanished from most shops.

The present purchasing tax of 66.2-3 percent is jumped, beginning tomorrow, to 100 percent on items such as silk dresses, silk and brocade fabrics, fur coats, ornaments, cut glass, hairwaving and hair-drying appliances, electric shavers, leather coats and bags, musical instruments, phonograph records, platinum, gold or silver jewelry or watches, imitation jewelry, cosmetics and vanity cases. A great many of these items are already practically unobtainable.

The increases in the cost of telegrams and long-distance phone calls amount to between one-fourth and one-third of the present charges. The increase on telegrams was made because they would economize man power by discouraging the use of the service in question.

The consumption of beer, whiskey and cigarettes has mounted steadily, in spite of sharp increases in price. The increase on beer is 20 percent. Whiskey sold at 12 shillings 6 pence ($2.50) a bottle before the war, and for the last year has been selling for 20 shillings ($4.00). The new tax will add 2 shillings 4 pence (47 cents) to this price. Beer goes up 1 shilling 6 pence (33 cents) a bottle. Cigarettes costing 9 pence (15 cents) for ten will be taxed another penny and a half; those selling for 8 pence (14 cents) will be taxed 2 pence (3 cents) additional.

One concession is the removal, beginning May 3, of the present purchasing tax on a number of utility household items, including sewing, bed linen, mattresses, blackout material and haberdashery, including handkerchiefs.

Wood emphasized that the tax increases are aimed at cutting down consumption of non-essentials. While the United States apparently is trying to cut consumer buying by stimulating voluntary war savings, the British have taken another step in the anti-inflation policy of throttling consumer buying power by taking money away from the people in the form of taxes. Wood said this policy has met and to a great extent defeated the threat of inflation.

Sanford Sailors Win Boxing Bout From Banana River

At this point, it looked like a walkaway for the boxers from the local station, but then, into the ring hopped Sparrow, the newlywed, (158) from Banana River, who proved too fast for gamely resisting Sudden of Sanford (143).

During the next bout, Mato of Sanford was unable to continue because of a prior injury (his shoulders were taped) and the 160 pound class bout decision went to Rodriguez by forfeit, which made it two for the invaders.

Into the ring then bounced Ruark (154) from Banana River, a red headed aggressive and with muscles like a physical culturist. He stands cheerful lustily as Spangler, (158) and pride of the Sanford Station rose to meet him. The two huskies tore at each other for three mauling rounds, and the local service men belittled with joy when Sparrow got the hard earned decision. The next bout was a clean cut affair in which Serencia (154) with a dazzling offense and defense, outpointed LeRoy (158) of Banana River.

In the last bout, a draw, Strippling (174) of Sanford, faced Marsh, (181) of Banana River, of which Lieut. Morris I. Gross, is director. Honorary referees were Capt. A.W. ## Navy Fears U.S. Waters May Be Mined

Increased Effort By Axis To Interrupt Flow Of Supplies This Summer Seen

(By Associated Press) The Berlin radio declared today that German submarines are ready to attack a merchant ship north coast, a report confirmed by any Allied source.

WASHINGTON, Apr. 19. (AP)—Naval experts said today that German submarines might resort to extensive use of mines in American coastal waters this Spring or summer as part of an offensive against United Nations shipping.

Undersea raiders employed mines over here last summer to a limited extent. The use of mines is much more likely this year, say the authorities, because of the increased effectiveness of United States off-shore anti-submarine weapons.

Ceiling Prices May Force Black Vegetable Market

JACKSONVILLE, Apr. 19. (Special)—Fear that present vegetable ceiling prices will tend to encourage a black market in the vegetable market is being expressed here.

Market makers and growers are very much confused because of frequent changes in the ceiling prices, Wilson said. "Sales of cabbage and beans through State markets since the ceilings have been lowered are not representative of the actual value which should be moving at this time, and the prospect as to the potato movement is not any brighter. Considerable produce is being sold to buyers in the fields instead of at the markets, and it will take an army larger than that now fighting in Africa to check all field sales."

Conditions at specific markets he described as follows: "The Spring vegetable season at Palm Bay opened earlier than usual this year. Quality of produce is unusually good and some growers are receiving record prices. Top prices during the opening day, Monday, was 12.25 per box. Total sales for the first two days was $3,008, with the average price at $5.54 per bushel. A medium volume is expected this week and a light volume of beans. (Continued on Page Two)

OPA Considers Plans To Sell Cotton Stock

Price Ceilings Are Placed Over Meal At $10 A Ton Under Current Level

WASHINGTON, Apr. 19. (AP)—Government authorities are considering a proposal that price ceilings on cotton be withheld and the Agriculture Department's Community Credit Corporation be given an opportunity to stabilize prices through sales of its cotton stocks.

Today the OPA established specific price ceilings on dressed cotton, both raw and soft, used for feeding animals, fixing prices at approximately $10 a ton under current levels. Meat rationing will continue on a weekly basis in May, OPA officials announced.

Wheat, straw, cheese, butter and Allied products went on the ration point system Mar. 29. OPA expressed hope that the weekly allotment would be temporary and that as soon as meat stocks, both on a national and store-to-store basis became adjusted to rationing it would be possible to put rations on a monthly basis, giving the public more flexibility in purchases.

This is still the hope of officials, but they said that the meat inventory situation still is not good enough to permit people to spend meat coupons two or three weeks ahead of time if they choose.

Details of the May meat rationing are due to be announced early this week, but are expected to be about the same as they were in April—18 points per person per week, with the unused coupons in each month of the year being valid until the end of the month.

If the same system is worked next month, small families will have the first four weeks remaining to make large purchases such as a ham or a big roast, but will have no coupons for the rest of the month.

Essential Workers Frozen To Their Present Jobs

WASHINGTON, Apr. 19. (AP)—Acting orders from President Roosevelt, War Manpower Commissioner McNutt Saturday clamped a modified "job-wage freeze" order on about half of the nation's essential workers.

An exception was made for shifts from one essential employer to another where either old or new work is to be performed in an area where the War Manpower Commission has put into effect a "job freeze" plan.
