CHAPTER 1
HELEN BLANDIN stirred, and lifted, blinked her eyes and straightened the pencil in her hand. Missing at the end, she opened her eyes and looked at the clock. John was very late.
Ten minutes after eleven was no time to go to school. Not on a Monday night, with spring housecleaning ahead of her, the month's work to plan—and today's tasks still aching relentlessly in her muscles.
Her head tilted alertly. A fan of light swept across the window; she got up swiftly and snatched on the garage lights, then walked to the side door.
John's smile was both glad to see her, and reproving that she should be waiting. "I'll talk to staying out all night," he threatened as he kissed her.
"I wanted to hear about the meeting."
"That's good, because sure as anything I'm going to talk about it."
She turned to look at him. As he hung his trench coat in the hall closet, the bright overhead light shone down upon his coat of brown hair and threw a grotesque shadow of his pipe-in-mouth profile against one wall. There was, definitely, an air of repressed excitement about Dr. John Blandin.
"I'll get some milk," she said, passing him.
"We should go to bed."
She was already in the kitchen, setting things upon a tray. When she returned to the living room, John was slanted into his armchair, and he lifted an eyebrow ruefully. "You spoil me—even to fresh brownies."
When he had finished a third of the milk and two brownies, Helen slapped her hands flat upon the rubbed wood of the table in front of her. "Now," she said, "you may tell me!"
He grinned at her. "You know I'm excited!"
"It is exciting," he broke in. "You see—we're going to have our screening clinic."
He leaned toward her. "Honestly, Helen! Now. Right away. Complete. No patches, no makeshifts."
"Not at the school?"
"Yes, you see the whole building put into professional service, with proper equipment—and everything!"
Helen rubbed her short and fringed. "The makeshift operation was rather fun," she smiled. "Our Sunday get-togethers to make the drive, out the grass, make certain. I'll miss taking my turn at the switchboard. But tell me about it, John."
While she still thought back over the big project slowly undertaken and slowly developed by a group of earnest doctors, John Blandin finished his snack, and took out his pipe.
"The makeshift served its purpose," he agreed. His brown eyes glinted. "The fun we had found in men together: our strained backs and skinned knuckles make up a big investment. After a time—oh, about twenty years—we were developed the thing into what we wanted it to be. But—his soft voice broke with eagerness, "there's work that should be done now. Helen! We need this thing now! We need it right out here in the County—we're growing so fast out here in the suburbs, what with our shopping centers and our housing developments. Well, I don't need to argue the thing to you. You've been sold on the idea for as long as I have—and that's over three years."
He got to his feet and paced around the room, a slight man with a tense face, and clever hands. His voice trembled with emotion.
"It must be as wonderful to you as to me, Helen, to have twenty years suddenly telescoped into a few months." It came to the table and leaned toward her. "We'd have made it in time," he assured her. "But now—"
"Will it take in the whole County?" she asked. That would be a radical change in plan.
"No, darling. Our prospectus—his upper lip fluttered upon his pipe stem. The word had been a joke for so long. "Our prospectus," he said more firmly, "is not to be changed. We'll serve the four towns as originally planned. Burbank, Shrevebury, Folsom and Landedowne. Of course there will be no geographical limit set upon patients—upon them. They can come from Thebesoo if they like. But doctors from only four suburbs will participate. Moore said something tonight about taking in other communities—but I argue that to get it too big will prevent the situation in the city—with people and the doctors, too, living too far away from the center. It would be better to let the northern part of the County develop its own center."

She returned his smile. "So on," she prodded. "Tell me what was said tonight."
"What was said—" He broke off, and sat thoughtful, considering all that had been said that night at the meeting which he had attended.
"Tell it your own way," Helen conceded, with a smile tucking in the corners of her mouth.
He relit his pipe. "In the past year, Helen," he said quietly, "my private practice I saved from cases of cancer through early examination and tests. How many could I have saved if a well-operating screening clinic had been available in the community? Fourteen? Surely, fourteen. And thirty-five, possibly. So it is worth doing, Helen!"
"Of course, darling." Her pencil point crossed out the most kind, wrote picnic men in its place.
"It's worth," John was saying, "anything it would cost! I've always known that." He puffed smoke about his head. "Even if it had taken twenty years to develop. We need just such a clinic out here in the County. Our only hospital out here is the County Hospital, which is not set up to function as a screening clinic and which is bound to be influenced by politics."
"Huddled," said Helen, writing lemon pie for Saturday night's dessert.
"What," said John considering. "At least nothing of the sort has ever been proven. And just because we don't like Wilkins-Smith..."
"I'd like him better if he were called just Smith."
Helen turned her sheet of paper over, and wrote lemon pie again for the end of the month. "Go on," she urged. "I shouldn't have digressed."

Canal Called State's Most Essential Project

Minor Opposition Heard

Only minor opposition to the Sanford-Titusville Canal proposal cropped up yesterday during the final hours of the hearing conducted at the Mayfair Inn.

Col. E. E. Kirkpatrick called on those opposing the new waterway during the afternoon session which was adjourned at 4:15 p. m.

Judge Ernest Householder represented both the Board of Seminole County Commissioners and the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce before the Army Corps of Engineers and its staff. The Judge spoke near noon for the Sanford-Titusville Canal.

He told the officials "It takes the combined act and gift of God and the realization and work of man for the creation of the Sanford-Titusville Canal connecting the St. Johns River and the Indian River.

Here we sit in an enlightened age of progress and do not want to make it useless," said the Judge.

"As a nation we have accomplished wonders with our natural resources," he said, and "we have conquered our streams and rivers and made them useful for man. We have constructed harbors and tamed our oceans so man could make use of our waters. We have gone over, under and through our mountains, and we have made use of our air and the elements above us for the fastest transportation."

He said "A great discovery has been made in recent years—that Florida is not only a place to make a living, but a place to live. So millions upon millions of our people have their eyes, hearts and desires upon Florida. And the demand for this project is outstanding."

"The people of not only Seminole County and other adjacent counties but of the nation are knocking at your door to recommend and approve this essential waterway improvement," said Judge Householder.

The opening of the canal will give Central Florida direct connection with Canaveral and will mean hundreds of thousands of tons of water transportation to the Central Florida area, commented the Seminole County Judge.

And he concluded "It is the most essential project in Florida today."

Opposition to the Sanford-Titusville Canal came from sportsmen's associations and sportsmen generally.

'58 Women's State Golf Tourney Will Be Played Here

The 1958 Women's State Golf Tournament will be held in Sanford next year at the Mayfair Inn Country Club, according to word received by Frank Mebane Jr., manager of the Mayfair Inn from Naples this morning.

Mebane said that the tournament would be held here during the month of April, 1958 but that the exact date of the meet has not yet been set. He said that the tournament would attract 2000 or more women golf enthusiasts from over the entire state for an entire week.

The Mayfair Inn manager pointed out "We already have received the 1958 Men's State Golf Tournament scheduled here for next year during which an additional 200 or more golfers will be attracted to Sanford for a week."

The two tournaments will advertise the Mayfair Inn and Golf Club over the entire state, said Mebane when he received word that the next year's women's tournament was slated to be played in Sanford.

With the two tournaments attracting Florida golfers to Sanford and the December Mayfair Inn's PGA tournament "will make Sanford, the Mayfair Inn, and the Mayfair Inn Country Club the golf mecca of Florida," said Mebane.

TALLAHASSEE — The House Labor Committee today called a public hearing at 8 a. m. April 10 on Gov. LeRoy Collins' bill to create a new department under the Industrial Commission to handle labor disputes.

Rep. John B. Orr Jr. of Dade, committee chairman, appointed a two-man subcommittee to study the bill in the meantime. Orr said he wanted to defer action at this time because of numerous requests for a public hearing.

The committee also delayed action on a bill by Rep. Cecil Costin of Gulf to guarantee that employees elected to public office may

Red Cross Drive Progresses Slowly, $4,859.72 Total

The Seminole County Chapter of the American Red Cross is continuing its efforts to reach the hundreds of people who have not been contacted for membership and funds such as are now being used in cyclone and tornado relief for many hundreds of people in the Southeastern States, according to a spokesman for the local organization.

Total funds toward the $10,000 quota set by the local organization that have been reached are $4,859.72. "We have not yet reached the halfway mark in our campaign for funds," the spokesman said.

The Seminole County Chapter of the American Red Cross will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2 p. m. for a progress meeting at which time they will hear from unreported districts, companies and individuals.

A noticeable development is the interest of Negro workers to replace the leadership of Prof. J. N. Crooms who died during the early days of the local Red Cross fund campaign.

Through an acquaintance of 42 years of teaching Prof. Crooms knew his people," the Red Cross spokesman said today. One thousand pictures of the Negro professor have been printed with a supporter imprinted on them.

Prof. Roy Allen, principal of Crooms Academy, reports that the Red Cross goal in commemoration of Prof. Crooms will be $1,000.

"I have some serious misgivings about this type of legislation," Orr said. "I would like to have some evidence of substantial discrimination that would warrant our intruding again on business."

Chester Daniels of Sanford, spokesman for the CIO Council, said the purpose of the bill was to "encourage working people of Florida to get into public office. The government belongs to all the people."

Fight Against Up In Refrigeration Charge Ends

A decision of the United States Supreme Court on Mar. 4, ended a three and a half year fight by the nation's growers and shippers opposing increases in refrigeration charges on fresh fruit and vegetables by the railroads.

Luther L. Chandler, Goulds, chairman of the Florida Fruit and Vegetable Association's Special Refrigeration Case Committee, in outlining the effects of the final decision on Florida growers, said action of the Association and The Growers and Shippers League in opposing the increased charges had saved the Florida fresh fruit and vegetable industry some $2,000,000 while this fight was carried on. In addition, the industry will also save about one-half million dollars per year as long as the new present rates remain in effect.

Fringe Area Residents To Form Organization

A specially called meeting of property-holders in the so-called "fringe areas" of Sanford was held last evening, with the result that those attending formed themselves into a temporary committee to organize a group to be named tentatively "Sanford Fringe Area Taxpayers Association."

The purpose of the group was roughly outlined as to guard and protect the interests of property holders in the areas immediately adjacent to the City of Sanford, and especially those areas which might be likely to be annexed to the City of Sanford by legislation now pending before the Legislature.

It was decided to hold a meeting on Thursday, Apr. 18, at 8 p. m. The spot selected for the meeting was the Farmers Auction Market just south of Sanford, on Route 17-92.

Purpose of the meeting will be to complete the organization of the group, and to discuss matters of interest and vital concern to the property-holders in the areas to the East, South and West of Sanford, which fall into the category of areas possibly to be annexed to Sanford. It is therefore hoped by the committee that all interested parties will plan now to attend this meeting.

The committee formed last night consists of the following citizens of the areas designated:

William C. Bule, who was elected temporary chairman, R. W. Lord, John Ohman, B. D. Haggis, W. B. Webb, G. A. Muffley and Mrs. Muffley, Fran Engelen, J. A. Edmonds, Capt. Tom Burgess, C. H. Miller, Ted Michels and Edna L. Heehler.

Wax Reproduction Of 'Lord's Last Supper' On Display

A life-size reproduction of "The Lord's Last Supper" is on display in downtown Sanford at the corner of First St. and Magnolia Ave. under the auspices of the Sanford Police Benevolent Association.

No admission is being charged to view the display in wax sculptured by H. B. Maxey, originator and designer, who followed Leonardo de Vinci's masterpiece.

Fourteen months of exacting work went into the preparation of the exhibit. The 12 figures are seated around Christ at a 16-foot banquet table. The Master and His apostles, including Judas the betrayer, are dressed in the colors and fashions of the times. The table is set with authentic copies of items used as models by de Vinci in his painting.

The exhibit is housed in a special built trailer with an interior walkway along one length. The display is behind glass and the entire room is air-conditioned to maintain a temperature of 70 degrees.

"The Lord's Last Supper", being sponsored locally by the Police Benevolent Association, is being shown throughout the United States and 33 foreign countries. The exhibit is not affiliated with any religious sect. However, it is a serious study of religious art.

Boating Apparel To Be Displayed At Club Meeting

The Sanford Boat and Ski Club will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the Sanford civic center building in Fort Mellon Park.

A manufacturing representative for boating apparel will be on hand at the meeting to show the new lines for the coming boating season. The local Boat and Ski Club is interested in having the club's emblem imprinted on such items as the local members will use.

Dr. A. W. Woodall, president of the Sanford Boat and Ski Club, has issued an invitation to "anyone interested in boating and water safety" to attend the meetings. Members do not necessarily have to own boats, he said.

Ballistic Missile Will Be Ready Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee says the 1,500-mile intermediate range ballistic missile will be ready for use "in a matter of months."

The Georgia Democrat made the statement to newsmen after a two-day briefing by Air Force Secretary Donald A. Quarles and Gen. F. Twining, Air Force chief of staff.

He said progress on the missile has advanced to a point where "we hope to have them operational at a reasonably early date."

"By this, I mean a matter of months, rather than a matter of days," Russell said.

His statement was the first official confirmation that the 1,500-mile missile is so near the operational stage. He apparently referred to the Air Force's Thor missile. The Army is also developing a medium-range missile called the Jupiter.

Russell said Quarles and Twining also discussed improvements which are being made in the six jet B52 intercontinental bomber "to make it a more effective weapon."

He would give no details, but said, "we are constantly striving to improve the range and operational capacity—the speed—of this plane, and we are confident it will be improved."

The chairman said he was also satisfied with the progress being made on the 5,000-mile intercontinental ballistic missile ICBM. He added, however, that this one is not so close to the operational stage.

... With men it is impossible, but not with God; for with God all things are possible.—(St. Mark 10:27.)

There is no limit to God's love for us, His children, or to His power to help us in all mortal troubles large or small. Therefore we overcome all fear and anxiety when, through faith, we ask His blessing and then place our complete trust in Him.

Food Sense—Not Nonsense

IRON—the very word means strength, power.

To create a strong, healthy body, a machine requires iron. For a man, a heavy-duty hauler, less iron is needed; for a woman, a speaker.

The speak of iron needed daily by man, woman, and child comes from the bone for red blood cells. These cells carry oxygen to every tissue of the body. Oxygen is used to "burn" the food we eat, changing it to strength and power.

Nature is stingy with iron in food. Most Americans, therefore, demand that white bread, flour, and cereal, be enriched with iron. Man uses this iron as readily as he does that from other leading sources—liver and heart, whole grain breads and cereals, red meats and deep-green

...ment adds iron to bread and flour

Plastic Wall Tile for Modern Design

Here a kitchen has been modernized and color introduced with the use of guaranteed plastic wall tile. The use of two colors on the wall to give a striped effect is right up to the minute. Tile at the end of the upper storage area shows ingenuity and gives a fresh, bright look.

The use of quality plastic wall tile in home building and remodeling has steadily increased in the U.S.A. with the introduction of new colors, shapes and finishes that increase interest and provide pleasing new designs.

Colors range from bold and bright to soft pastels. Sunny yellows, soft greens, dark greens, turquoise, pale blues, grays, buff and blacks are well represented. Depth of color and color fastness have been built into the tile.

Glossy and soft sheen matte finishes are now available. Varying sizes of plastic wall tile, squares, bricks, rectangles, interesting designs for trim and corners—all these combine to give home owners wide scope in expressing their tastes.

Although ancient ruins of Syria and Persia reveal how decorative wall tile was a highly developed

Poor Posture Often A Cause Of Fatigue

By HERMAN H. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WHEN you're tired, you usually sit down to rest. However, you can get tired just by sitting, too.

If those of you who work in an office, or at any kind of a desk job all day long, feel fatigued and dragged out after work it may be because you sit incorrectly.

Proper Posture

Good posture while sitting is just as important as proper posture while standing or walking. Let me give you a little advice on how to sit properly. It may help keep you from tiring so easily.

When working, make sure you have a firm chair. Height of the seat should be the same as the length of your leg from the back of the knee to the bottom of the heel.

How to Sit

Don't sit on the end of your spine. Instead, sit on the back of your thighs.

Sit tall. Hold your head and neck straight up and sit right in the center of your pelvis or tilted forward slightly.

Your knees should be flexed at a right angle.

As I have told you before, proper posture will become a habit—a good habit—if you practice it long enough. On the other hand, poor posture also can become a habit, a habit that is difficult to break.

No matter what kind of work you do, you can do it more efficiently and more easily if you maintain proper posture while either sitting or standing. At the same time, your body can work more efficiently and more easily.

Bad Results

If you don't sit or stand properly, your blood circulation is apt to slow down, your breathing will become shallow and your lungs won't get the proper exercise.

Eventually you'll become tired. And when you're tired you just can't do your best work.

So, straighten up and sit right. QUESTION AND ANSWER

U. S. Plans To Put Newer Model Weapons In Korea

By WILLIAM GALBRATH

United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON — The United States is planning to put newer model weapons in Korea to partly offset a reported Communist military buildup in North Korea, American officials have disclosed.

The action will be taken under a liberal new interpretation of the 1953 armistice which ended the Korean fighting. There is no intention of declaring the armistice void despite repeated evidence of Communist violations.

Some highly-placed persons have suggested that the United States and its fighting partners in Korea declare the 1953 armistice agreement void because of the Communist infractions.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles earlier this week ruled out such action on the ground it might lead to new fighting in Korea. But he said the Reds have committed "rather serious violations" and this may "give us greater freedom of action in the respects in which it has been violated."

Officials said Dulles meant greater freedom under an article of the armistice providing for maintenance of the "balance of forces" in Korea. The article ruled out introduction of new weapons except to replace worn out material, and said replacements must be of the "same effectiveness and the same type."

The United States claims, however, that the Communists have increased their firepower — primarily by sending into North Korea an estimated 400 to 700 jet and propeller-driven planes in violation of the armistice.

U. S. officials also argue that in many cases it is almost impossible to replace some equipment with items of the "same effectiveness and the same type" because they are no longer being manufactured.

American planners are not too worried. They believe this country, South Korea and the other nations still keeping forces in Korea could repel any Red attack.

Home Owner Is In Secure Credit Position

WASHINGTON, Pa. — The home owner is in a secure credit position today despite the ravages of "tight money" on the building industry.

The reason is the home improvement loan program. At the height of the credit shortage there was plenty of loan money for home improvements.

There are several types of loans which can be obtained from banks and building and loan associations. Perhaps the most popular is the loan through the "open-end" mortgage which is the common form of note since World War II.

Under this plan the home owner can either increase his monthly payments or the length of time he will take to pay off his present mortgage in exchange for an improvement loan.

The advantages are many and obvious. Improvement money is provided when the home owner may not be financially able to take on a new note usually at the same rate of interest he is paying on his mortgage.

Government housing experts have estimated 70 per cent of the mortgages written today have the open-end provision, but prospective buyers should make sure their mortgages include it.

Next most popular improvement loan is the government-backed, FHA "Title" loan under which the owner of a single home can borrow up to $3,500 for a little over three years to repair or renovate his house.

Veterans have another alternative through the G. I. mortgage plan under which they may set aside a part of the government-backed loan for improvements. This loan is easiest to obtain and carries a low interest rate.

The home owner may get an improvement loan for many changes that will enhance his home's life, value and comfort.

A popular improvement is remodeling to create more living space or recreational room, or construction of additions. Interior painting and redecorating also are popular.

Ham Spells Spring Hospitality

It's heavenly to be a hostess when ham helps you have a holiday right along with your guests. Ham is so festive and substantial, it makes a meal. A trip to the oven, and it's ready to serve. Glaze ham, if you will, but it isn't necessary. The flavor of the meat will be just as delicious without it. Modern directions for baking different types of ham are included. Serve with scalloped potatoes and a fresh fruit salad.

HOW TO COOK HAM

(Slow oven 325° F.)

Times given are for hams taken chilled from refrigerator. Cooked-Ready-To-Eat whole hams (10-12 pounds) require 10-12 minutes per pound heating time. Cooked-Ready-To-Eat half hams require 14 minutes per pound heating time.

Boned rolet hams (usually uncooked) require approximately 20 minutes per pound; skinless, shankless hams 18-22 minutes per pound.

Country-style hams usually are soaked in water several hours or overnight and then simmered in water until tender; remove rind, score and glaze.

Boneless smoked shoulder hams are simmered in water 45 minutes per pound.

Small canned hams (approximately 8 pounds) 20 minutes per pound; 8-13 pound canned hams, 15 minutes per pound.

Sanford Does Self Proud Yesterday In Drawing Big Crowd For Meeting

There was no doubt, yesterday, that all of Florida's interest was centered in Sanford when the Army Corps of Engineers held its hearing on the feasibility of the Sanford-Titusville Canal.

Visitors, either to hear the proceedings or to speak out in favor of the project and some few to speak against the proposed waterway, streamed into Sanford from north, south, east and west.

From the thousands and thousands of words used in describing the feelings of individuals, organizations, cities, counties, and industries, there can be determined a possible reaction—that of complete faith in the Sanford-Titusville Canal and its benefits to all of Florida.

There have been times when the value of the proposed canal was boosted in terms of what it might do for the east central section of the state. But the response came from even further. The economy of all of the state will be affected by the new waterway which will serve many and all sections.

John Krider, Chamber of Commerce Manager, left no effort undone to advise every available person who might be remotely concerned with the development of the new canal to connect the St. Johns River with the east coast and the important Canaveral Harbor.

And those efforts paid off in the fact that more than 200 people jammed into the Mayfair Inn ballroom to have their voices recorded on tape carrying the details, facts, and information concerning the views of the many toward a project that has been delved into for more than a century.

If words can be described as "mountainous", it was exactly that, for each spokesman delivered his message, sometimes in voluminous detail, to be considered by the Engineers who will make the final recommendation for the important project that will bring prosperity to both Central Florida and the entire state.

Sanford again "has done itself proud" in drawing such an important gathering here for a meeting that will mean so much to the future prosperity and economy of the area.

An optimist is a man who looks at the buds on the trees and envisions what the leaves will look like; a pessimist looks at the same buds and can imagine how tough it will be to rake the leaves next fall.

Foreign News Commentary

Communism has established a new foothold in eastern Asia.

A Red government has been established in the state of Kerala, India, as the result of the recent national elections.

Thus Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, friend of Soviet Russia and Communist China, will have the opportunity of practicing the Red policy of "co-existence" on his own territory.

The Communists won 99 of the 128 seats in the Kerala State Parliament in the elections. They are assured the support of five independents and thus have a majority. Nehru's Congress Party was able to win only 443 seats.

It must have been a painful blow to Nehru. He gets along fine with the Russian, Chinese and other foreign Communists. But he never has had any fondness for his own Communists.

To make things worse, the new chief minister of the Kerala government—a post corresponding to prime minister—is held by Elanakulam Namboodiripad, a one-time leader of the Congress Party.

The victory of the Kerala Reds gives Communism its first official foothold in a new part of Asia—is any part of Asia, in fact, outside of the Soviet Union, China, Northern Viet Nam and North Korea.

It is ironic that it had to happen to Nehru. While the menace of Communism is serious in some Asiatic countries, the Indian Communists never have amounted to much.

Nehru, a benevolent dictator, is firmly in charge of India as a whole. His Congress Party won 365 of the 488 seats in the ruling lower house of the Indian Parliament in the elections. The Communists won only 27.

But Kerala's 7,500,000 voters refused to go along with Nehru. Their vote for the Communists was largely a protest against the extreme poverty of that part of India.

Kerala is one of the 16 new states formed by Nehru out of the 29 states that once made up India. It is 15,035 square miles in area and has a population of 13,550,031. It lies at the extreme southern tip of the Indian peninsula.

Namboodiripad Newsman Chief Minister Namboodiripad is a member of a high-caste pariahan family, as is Nehru, he is a well-known newspaper man. He is wealthy, and has been a generous contributor to Communist funds.

Namboodiripad was converted to Communism about 10 years ago. He previously had been president of Nehru's Congress Party.

As soon as he took office last Friday, Namboodiripad commuted all death sentences in Kerala and said he would free all political prisoners. He announced that he proposed a drastic land reform program. This will include, if he can get away with it, the nationalization of foreign-owned plantations.

It can be said that the establishment of Communist rule in Kerala constitutes any serious threat at the moment. But Communism is always a threat wherever it gets even a little power.

In India, the danger in the long range view is that communism will spread to other areas of the southernmost part of the peninsula. That whole part of the country is impoverished and rich ground for Red penetration.

Campaign Costs

A famous newspaper cartoonist recently depicted a house with a seriously damaged roof labeled "Campaign Costs." A man representing Congress stands outside looking up at the roof saying, "Well, it isn't raining now." The cartoon is a sharp statement of something the people should be much concerned about.

Around election time last fall there was much talk of the high cost of political campaigns. There was a lot of viewing with alarm. It was generally agreed not only that campaign costs were getting out of hand, but that the laws regulating such expenditures were often evaded because they were unrealistic.

Now, several months later, the public's concern about this matter has died down. Many events have intervened, and Congress is concerned with numerous other, and perhaps more pressing, matters. Yet this is the year to do something about campaign costs; this is the year to revise the laws. The election rains will be falling again next year. The time to repair the roof is now, when it is dry.

Nation's Diversity

It snowed in Minnesota on the Ides of March. It was cold there, and windy, and one town reported twenty-three inches of snow. In California, on the Ides of March, a family had a picnic on the beach. On the same day, strawberries were coming to lush ripeness in Louisiana. In Florida, men and women fished and sunned themselves in tropical splendor and wondered what it was like up in Minnesota.

All this and very much more, a dizzying variety of weather and human activity, took place on the Ides of March—and all in the United States of America. That is the thing we wish to emphasize, the diversity of this great nation. Americans of many accents and regional outlooks live in all sorts of climates ranging from tropical to the near-Arctic.

Yet all of these people, 170 million of them, are Americans. That is accepted now as the natural state of affairs, but it was not always so. Toward the end of the eighteenth century, James Winthrop of Massachusetts gave voice to doubts of various thoughtful men when he wrote: "The idea of a republic one thousand miles in length, and eight hundred in breadth, and containing six millions of white inhabitants all reduced to the same standards of morals, of habits, and of laws, is in itself an absurdity, and contrary to the whole experience of mankind."

History has proven Winthrop to have been profoundly wrong. The people spread across three thousand miles of this continent are proud, despite their diversity, to be citizens of the United States. We stand together as one great nation because we have come to recognize that any differences among us are far less important than the great central devotion to freedom and democracy which unites us.

Our best hope for the future lies in nurturing this devotion and keeping it strong.

The Kiss of Judas

"NOW HE that betrayed Him gave them a sign, saying, Whomever I shall kiss, that same is He: hold Him fast. And forthwith he came to Jesus, and said, 'Hail, master; and kissed Him. And Jesus said unto him, 'Friend, wherefore art thou come? Then came they, and laid hands on Jesus, and took Him.'" —St. Matthew 26: 48-50. ("The Taking of Christ," by engraver Albrecht Durer, courtesy Toledo Museum of Art.)

Herlong Report

The drive for economy in the House this session, spurred by hopes of a tax cut, struck a snag in considering appropriations for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare—but the drive is still very much alive.

We knew the HEW bill would be difficult to slash because it involved various grants and other forms of aid for the states. It takes a lot of courage to vote for reductions when it affects the people back home.

Frequently I get letters asking "why not us?" instead of sending money overseas. I agree that this is a legitimate complaint but I have always opposed all forms of foreign aid.

If we are to have economy in government the people must realize that there has to be a halt in all forms of Federal handouts, both in this country and abroad.

On April 4 when the House took up the HEW bill I voted down the line on 11 separate roll calls for reductions. While the House in floor action restored nearly 80 percent of the slashes it had made while in committee, it still cut $134,446,000 from President Eisenhower's request for labor and welfare activities.

With the sending of the HEW bill to the Senate, the House has lopped $818,497,000 off President Eisenhower's budget, and if the House goes along with Appropriations Committee recommendations on the Commerce Department money bill, the figure will top a billion, reaching $1,039,325,740.

The biggest reduction undoubtedly will be made in the foreign aid bill to come before the House after the Easter recess. Here we hope to make terrific cuts.

It is my firm belief that this drive to reduce the budget will continue but letters from the people back home to their representatives in Congress will go a long way in spurring the effort.

I have commented frequently on the budget in recent weeks but from my heavy mail it is obvious that this is what the people are most interested in right now. I like to hear from my constituents on this subject even though they may be opposed to any reductions.

Congress should investigate the Post Office Department at top level for obviously there is very poor bookkeeping somewhere there.

When Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield ran short of funds last week to the extent of 47 million dollars for operating until July 1, he did his best to embarrass Congress by making threats of curtailing mail deliveries.

Summerfield knew this was the quickest way to arouse the people back home. He didn't say anything about cleaning out some of his top brass nor selling some of the Cadillac cars that are parked around the department each afternoon with chauffeurs waiting to take the top echelon home.

The postmasters, carriers, and others who help bring the mail to your home daily are not to blame for this miscalculation on the part of the Postmaster General. Last year we told Summerfield to split his money into four quarters. But apparently he went right along spending until he ran out and then made an 11th hour effort to "sandbag" Congress, as Clarence Cannon, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, put it.

Holland's bill would exclude 49,000

ball catcher. Syd Herlong already has 33 members of Congress scheduled for Spring training at Daytona Beach for the week of Apr. 22—but so far he hasn't found a catcher this year for his Democrats. Last year, it was the Republican team that was short a catcher and Lou Marsh, manager of the Daytona Beach Chamber of Commerce played on their team. Some sports writers credited him with the Republican victory last year; and after that a rule was passed that Marsh couldn't play on either team—ever again. This year, Herlong might wish that rule had not been made, because from the way things look he'll hit the water behind the bat. This should be a good game. Practice game at Daytona Beach will be Thursday, Apr. 25. Worth driving over to see.

President Can't Make It—Congressman Charlie Bennett reports that the White House has declined his invitation for President Eisenhower to participate in the ceremonies at the opening of the Fort Caroline National Memorial. Also, due to the less in transit of some French Sixteenth Century farm implements, the opening has been delayed from June 30 until some time in the early fall.

Too Slow—Remember the old idiom: He used to sit down by the old ice house and talk and whittle away at a stick or a bit of board taken from a packing box. It took him all day to cut up one small piece of white pine. What has happened to him? We know! He came to Washington. Right now he is in Congress "whittling" away at the budget, $71.8 billion for next year. And Congress is trying to cut off $4.5 billion. Last week they shaved down about $2 million a day for five days. Figure that out. If they worked every day for a year (counting Saturdays, Sundays and holidays) they could only whittle away $750 million. Brother, that sure is slow whittling.

MRS. ROBERT L. WARD

By Marian Jones

JoAnn Fleming and Robert L. Ward were married in a double ring candlelight ceremony Saturday evening.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Elsie Fleming and the late Roy J. Fleming and he the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben F. Ward of New Smyrna Beach, formerly of Ovidio.

The Reverend Louis L. Day performed the ceremony in the First Baptist Church in the presence of a large group of friends and relatives. J. C. Faircloth, a close friend, gave the bride away. Nuptial music was rendered by W. H. Martin, organist, and Mrs. W. H. Martin and Merritt Staley, both soloists.

The background for this beautiful service was formed of baskets of white gladioli, palms, and a prayer bench.

The bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over bridal satin, featuring a fitted bodice of lace, scalloped neckline and long tapered sleeves. The full skirt had alternate tiers of scalloped lace and ruffled tulle, and the back panel of tulle extended into a chapel train. A coronet of lace with points of seed pearls held her fingertip veil of imported illusion, and she carried a Bible topped with a white orchid.

Mrs. Sadye Beth Duda, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Another sister, Peggy, served as maid of honor, and still another sister, June, was a bridesmaid together with Mrs. Edith Dishman and Miss Mary Berger, the latter of Winter Haven.

They were all gowned alike in halter-length dresses of chiffon and nylon net over light blue taffeta. They each wore a headdress of matching color and carried cascade bouquets of pink carnations.

Deborah Ward, a cousin of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a dress of white nylon over taffeta, trimmed in pink rosebuds. Her headpiece was of matching design, and she carried a flower basket trimmed with tiny pink rosebuds.

David Dishman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dishman, was ring-bearer.

Ben F. Ward Jr. acted as best man for his brother. Usher groomsmen were W. A. Ward, Jr., Frank Gore, Donald Hardy and Edward Duda.

For travelling the bride chose a blue silk sheath and blue faille duster and white accessories, with which she wore pinned on her shoulder the white orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will make their home in Ovidio following a honeymoon spent touring the northern states.

A reception was held in the Memorial building following the wedding.

Here the bridal motif was carried out in a color scheme of pink and white. Tall baskets of white and pink gladioli were placed at strategic points.

A miniature bride in a bell shape arrangement graced the table where Bessie Fleming, an other sister, kept the bride's trousseau, later kept by Mrs. W. R. Meek, Jr.

One long table, overlaid with a cutwork cloth, was centered with a large tiered wedding cake, topped with the traditional bride and groom. Mrs. Ben F. Ward Jr. and Mrs. Max Leinhardt presided here.

A small table, also overlaid with a cutwork cloth, held the fustoria punch bowl. Mrs. Edward W. Stoner and Miss Ruth Kimball poured punch. Mrs. Robert Henry Humphrey of Swainsboro, Ga.,

CIRCLE THREE

Circle three of the W. S. C. S. held its April meeting at the home of Mrs. Bill Kirk, 2412 Willow Ave. The meeting was opened with an Easter devotional given by Mrs. Eva Hakey using scripture from Revelations.

A beautiful worship center, arranged by Gretchen Crowell featured a large charcoal drawing of Christ, an open Bible of purple and yellow ribbon book marks and an arrangement of white petunias, all on a white silk background.

The study was conducted by Mrs. John Dominey on "The Return of Christ" taken from Paul's letters to the Thessalonians and Philippians.

The business session was conducted by the chairman, Mrs. Ray Herron. Communion will be prepared by Mrs. Gildewell and Mrs. Anderson for the First Sunday in May. Minneapolis Closes Exhibition Season With Loss To Omaha

Today's Sport Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Thom as has "gits" and so Tony Kubek of the New York Yankees and Rene Valdes of the Brooklyn Dodgers are the front-running pre-season favorites today to wind up with Rookie of the Year honors.

It actually has been a poor year for rookies hoping to crack the big league ice. No more than seven of them are expected to be in major league lineups on opening day.

The seven are Kubek, Vukley, White Sox outfielder Jim Landis, Kansas City second baseman Milt Graft, Giant shortstop Andre Rodgers, first baseman Ed Bouchee and outfielder Bob Bowman of the Phillies and possibly outfielder Bobby Geen Smith of the Cardinals.

Kubek Everybody's Choice
Kubek is everybody's choice as the Rookie of the Year. At this early date, Vukley, a 22-game winner with Portland last season, stands as his top rival. Eddie Jost and Lefty O'Doul gash named him as the top Pacific Coast League graduate.

The Yankees are keeping three others who may make it big, namely infielder Bob Richardson and Woody Heid and pitcher Al Cleotis.

Brooklyn, too, expects much from southpaw Fred Kipp, a 20-game winner at Montreal, while catcher John Roseboro, stymied behind Roy Campanella and Ruben Walker, probably will return to the minors for more seasoning. If Campy falls, Roseboro will return via airmail.

Rodgers has been getting a lot of raves from the Giants but there is a needling question as to whether he will hit. Staying up with him is Curt Barclay, a 15-game winner at Minneapolis.

Four Promising Phils
The Phillies, in addition to Bouchee and Bowman, are expecting hurling help from Don Cardwell and Seth Morehead. Pittsburgh looks to infielder John Powers while the Cards, in addition to Smith, count on pitchers Bob Mabe and Tom Cheney and second baseman Eddie Kasko.

Over in the American League, two fine catchers are standing idly in line awaiting their chances. One is Haywood Sullivan of the Red Sox and the other is Earl Battey, up from Toronto to the White Sox.

Cleveland expects more pitching help from southpaw Bud Dalley, 11-1 at Indianapolis, and Stan Futala, who had a 15-4 mark with the same club. They're also looking for a one-under-par 72.

Mrs. Hagge walked away with her second straight Zaharias Open title Sunday with a 72-78-72—222, four strokes better than her closest competitor, Betty Dodd, with a 229.

Fighting high winds and threatening skies, Mrs. Hagge pulled away from Ruth Jessen who only six extra puts over the final 18 holes, for a one-under-par 72.

Miss Jessen, tied with Mrs. Hagge for the lead at 150 going into the final day, skied to 80 and finished at 240.

Betsy Rawls turned in a 71 to take a 218 and third place. Fay Crocker was fourth with 229, Miss Jessen fifth and Patsy Berg and Joyce Zinke sixth with 231.

Clifford Ann Creed of Opelousas, La., repeated as amateur champion with a 241, followed by Joanne Brund of Laredo, Tex., with a 253.

The Minneapolis Millers closed out their Spring Exhibition Season in Florida yesterday by absorbing a 4-3 loss at the hands of Omaha.

The two teams are regular season rivals of the American Association.

During their stay in Sanford the Millers racked up a highly successful record on the competitive diamond. They won 12, lost six, tied two in 20 exhibition games in Sanford and Daytona Beach.

The final game of the season was not without its mishaps as the Millers shelled hurler Jim Constable, who injured his right wrist and knee in a collision with Orlando Cepeda and shortstop Ed Bresnold was spiked on the left knee on a play at second base.

Neither injury was serious, but it will hinder the Millers as they make their first exhibition appearance in Minneapolis of the season when they meet Milwaukee there Saturday.

The team will leave at 3 p.m. today by train for Minneapolis after their stay in the Florida sun at Sanford. They were originally to fly to Minneapolis by plane in small groups.

Line Score

Minneapolis	210	099	009	3	8	2
Omaha	000	300	10X	4	9	2

Batteries
Minneapolis: Constable, Rodriguez (4), and Jenkins.
Omaha: Stabelfield (6) and Coming hard at outfielder Roger Maris and infielder Larry Raines. Washington's main rookie hope is pitcher Dick Hyde, who had a 15-6 year at Chattanooga.

All in all, it's a rather slim rookie crop

A radically reshuffled Sanford Seminoles baseball lineup left for Winter Park early this afternoon to make an attempt to upset the only undefeated member of the Orange Belt Conference.

The reshuffled lineup will feature pitcher Eddie Barbour behind the plate as catcher, Claude Hilliel at first base, and Bill Tyre at third. In the outfield, Cecil Danbridge will be in left field, team captain Brantley Schirard in center field, and Johnny Yeackle in right field.

The remainder of the team lineup will be the same—Doyl Corley at second, Ronnie Russi at short stop, and Ken McMurray on the mound.

The shaken lineup came after the Seminoles proved that they had the "stuff" with which to shake up the Orange Belt Conference and possibly prove to be Winter Parks most formidable foe for the top of the league. But the game also showed that the team needed an extra spark to move the team into a smooth running machine when the pressure was on.

"We may not keep the lineup and we may change it at any time," Laude said, "but we are looking for the knockout punch that will give us a crack at the conference title. We're good enough to take it, and we're playing to win."

Laude said that with a break, and he included one that the team itself could manufacture, the Seminoles could go on to prove to be top contention for the Orange Belt Conference lead.

It is a general consensus of opinion that Winter Park is great only when they're on top—that if they are upset once they begin to die on their feet—and that is what coach Laude is basing his hopes for conference laurels on.

Here is the reasoning: If the Seminoles can upset Winter Park this afternoon three figures to be a seeline in the Wildcat camp. The loss would throw them into a tie for first place with Cocoa. If the Seminoles took Winter Park and

Kerslake Says Is Just Reaching Peak

WAYNESBURG, Pa. (AP)—Bill Kerslake of Cleveland, for five years king of the nation's amateur heavyweight wrestling, thinks he is just reaching his peak.

"The prime for a wrestler seems to be in his late 20s or early 30s," said the grappler who this past weekend, at 27, won his fifth straight double triumph at the AAU wrestling championships.

Kerslake won his fifth straight AAU Greco-Roman title last week with three straight pins in a total lapse time of slightly more than 10 minutes.

He pinned three opponents and took two decisions to win his fifth straight AAU free-style heavyweight crown.

Kerslake was the only double winner in the four-day meet here at Waynesburg College.

The fastest pinning in the Greco-Roman finals was turned in by Robert Steckle of the Kitchener, Ont., YMCA the only champion not from the United States. He required but 11 seconds to down Lyman Blackmar of Catula, Ga., for the 191 pound class.

Two entries from the Ford A. C. of Dearborn took home Greco-Roman titles. Kahili Taka capped the 160½ pound championship and the 147½ pound honors went to Frank Szeckl.

Other champions were: Richard Wilson of Washington, Pa., representing Toledo University, 114½; Lee Allen, Multnomah A. C., Portland, Ore., 125½; Tom Hall, 3rd Army, 130½; and Barry Billington, UCLA, 174 pounds.

There was a morale decline, chances are that Cocoa could whip the Parkers. Then, they would give Cocoa the lead in the conference and Sanford a tie for second place with Winter Park. It would then be up to Sanford to throw the conference into a three-way tie for the conference championship and a playoff would result. Should all these dreams come true, Laude said, "With a playoff we'll take it as it comes, and we'll do alright."

Game time today was 4 p.m. in Winter Park.

The thinned warriors from Seminoles kept their tommyhawks flying yesterday afternoon as they captured their second track meet in a row by beating New Smyrna Beach 81½, not counting two relays that were listed as "exhibition" in which the Seminoles were unopposed.

Of the 13 events in the meet the Seminoles took 11 first places and a tie for the 12th first place to run to the one-sided victory in which school records fell right and left.

"The boys are all fired up now," track coach and athletic director Fred Ganas said this morning. "It's going to take us a day or so to determine just how many new school records have been broken for Seminoles High by the boys in the last week."

It is known definitely that Ron- Gies set a new record yesterday as he threw the shot put an amazing 42'10", more than a foot farther than the previous record.

"We've got five or six new records besides that this week," Ganas said. "But we want to check them all to make sure."

JACKY FENWICK

By Jacky Fenwick
My broad hinting in Tuesday's column doesn't seem to have done much towards getting me any news to write about!!! If people only realized what writing this column every day involves, I'm sure they'd be sympathetic, and try and help out. I get wonderful cooperation from some people at the Air Station, and from a few people on the outside, and it's always the same ones, over and over! But, now that I've said my say, I'll try to find something to fill this up with today.

The work on the Navy branch of the Florida State Bank has started at the Air Station, and it shouldn't be too long before we can have our husbands do the banking errands for us too! (They'll all probably hate me for reminding you of this, if you haven't thought of this already!)

Finally got the report on the Administration Department's party last Tuesday, at Mullet Lake. The turnout wasn't what they expected, or wanted, but that was partly due to the cold wind that was blowing, which made it a little uncomfortable for everyone. The families had been invited to this one, but only a few made it, due, probably, to the weather that I mentioned. Those that did come were: Mr. and Mrs. V. P. Cara, with their child. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Luther and their baby. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ziegler, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Scott and their child. Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Woodrige, with their child. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hereford and their three children.

Also from the Air Station, some news about transfers and a few of new arrivals. The new arrivals are James McBrayer Jr., AN, who comes to us from the U.S.S.

Bon Homme Richard, Robert H. Gordon, ATI, who was formerly in VA 116, and John A. Ellsworth, who reported from VU 4. Transfers over the past week include those of Douglas P. Geneaux and John F. Ross, who have left for school at the Naval Station at Key West, Florida. Both of these men are designated as "HSB's", which means they are high school graduates, and under some special type of program that assures them their choice of technical schools while in the Navy. A good thing to remember if you've got boys in the family who will be eligible for the service shortly.

Well, our "card group" meets again tonight at Jimi Golds house, which will be last night by the time you read this, and I've just been invited to a plasticware party for Friday. So I know what I'm doing, but I have the vaguest idea what's going on with anyone else in town!

Suppose I can fill up some space by reminding you again about the contest going on at the base to find a name for the E.M. Club a week from this Friday, April 19. And another reminder about the "square-dancing" class at the Chief's Club on Monday.

Just thought of a NEW thing to remind you of!

The meeting of the Enlisted Men's Wives Club on this coming Monday, April 15. The time for this is 8:00 P. M., so don't forget to be there.

Try as I might, I can't think of another thing to "remind" you of! I hate to "rehash" old news when the object of this column is to bring you NEW news, so I'm sending out an "S. O. S." for news!

Challenge For Dr. Mays

SYNOPSIS
A group of doctors in the Midwest suburbs of Burbank try to establish a free screening clinic despite lack of money and opposition from the County Hospital. Dr. John Blandin, a general practitioner, returns from a meeting and tells his wife Helen that enough money has been donated to set up the clinic.

CHAPTER 3
JOHN BLANDIN did "go on," catching up the threads of the County doctors' reasons for wanting the clinic in the first place. Each of the four suburbs in question was as large as many a city, he said, with homes and families in greater proportion than most municipal settlements enjoyed.

Money had been opened to serve these suburban families; doctors had come to live there, too, and had opened their offices, though most of them also affiliated with hospitals in the city.

But the doctors needed a way to reach the County people in the same fashion that the various hospital and clinic services were available—namely—to the people in the city. Three years ago, with this sort of service in mind, the doctors had formed an organization; their initial step had been to establish a night emergency clinic.

At first they rented a small store for a desk and their records, and the necessary bookkeeping. Slight emergencies had come in there, or were brought in the mistaken idea that a doctor would be present. The next step was to have one on hand. That dedicated some equipment, and the makeshift quarters were unsatisfactory for the purpose.

About that time the Country Day School gave up its property at the edge of Burbank. The doctors were asked if they would be interested in the "plant" as a permanent location. A favorable, long-term mortgage was offered them, and was accepted, hesitantly.

In the heart of the new shopping center, the location was ideal. The doctors' plan was to establish an examining clinic, a screening clinic, for well people.

If they could make a housewife take an hour from her shopping to go in for a check-up; if she would then send her husband in and bring her children . . . there were various organizations ready to help them, the State Medical Association, the Public Health Service, the Heart and Cancer and Tuberculosis organizations.

"And with their help the clinic was started. Some day the doctors hoped to have all the equipment and personnel that they needed."

"But now," John announced abruptly, "we can do all we want to do, and it can be free."

Helen jumped. She'd grown a little drowsy during the recapitulation of the clinic's history, which was as familiar to her as the chronological record of her marriage to John Blandin.

"What changed things tonight? What's the clinic going to use for money?"

John stood up. "The same thing the Milburns use, my sweet." Helen leaned back in her chair to study his face. "Oh," she murmured, "not Alice!"

"We want our clinic," he said tightly. "And Alice—Mrs. Milburn—is ready to give us the necessary cash to set up properly, immediately."

"Not just the cash?" cried Helen. "Not just tonight—out of the blue?"

He sat down beside her, and put his hand affectionately upon her forearm. "I'll make it right," he promised. "My idea was that the clinic might get the support of the Women's Club. I had hoped the whole Club would underwrite the clinic as a financial project."

Helen kept her face smooth and her tongue still. Until tonight, John had not mentioned this idea to her; she could have told him—

"But," he was saying, a little frown between his brows, "some politics—female, and thus incomprehensible to me—it had to do somewhat with so many terms on the Club's Board of Directors—anyway, it was politics, and in the course of it—or would it be them?—the Club turned the thing down. But fortunately for us—"

He hesitated. "Fortunately for us," he repeated. "Alice took their refusal as a direct slap at her, since she was the one who was pushing support of the clinic. Just to show those women—that was her term—she has offered to finance the whole thing alone. As she can, of course."

"How much?" asked Helen.

"Enough to buy the building and equip it. Seventy-five thousand, at least."

"No strings?"

"Well, she'll be on our Board."

"Do you think you want Alice Milburn running your clinic, John?"

"She won't run it. We shall, Helen."

"Not with Alice on the Board. She'll dictate policy, if she doesn't do more. You know that!"

John smiled ruefully, and rubbed his hand up the back of his neck and head. "I know all that," he admitted. "I've given the matter some thought."

"But the money talked, of course."

"Seventy-five thousand? Maybe a hundred? Sure, it yalled. Alice is honest, and intelligent. She agreed readily when I suggested that her attorney should represent her on the Board. And if we do a good job of running the clinic, sticking to our purpose, she'll let us alone."

"I know Alice Milburn. The lavender-and-old-lace lady is honest, and she is intelligent. But where a personal prejudice is concerned, she can also be a snake in the bouquet of sweetest roses. She—she—" Her cheeks were poppy red. "I'm sorry, John," she said contritely. "It's definitely decided then?"

"Yes. We chose a Board. Three doctors; I'm one of them. A representative from each of the sponsoring organizations. Mrs. Milburn, or her attorney. And one other—we called him a 'sit-ten.'"

"Choose him?"

"Tentatively. We must ask him to serve—it's Joseph Radman at the bank."

Taxpayers Can Count On Relief By Next Year

By VINCENT J. BURKE
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Richard M. Simpson R-Pa. said today taxpayers can count on substantial tax relief possibly this year but certainly by next year.

Simpson, a high-ranking Republican on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, disclosed that he plans soon to introduce a bill to provide for billions of dollars worth of reductions in both personal income taxes and levies on corporation income.

Simpson said his bill would provide for a "modest increase" in the 300 personal exemptions and for some revisions in the taxation of capital gains. He said the measure is aimed at providing $3,500,000,000 to $6,000,000,000 in tax relief.

Simpson took issue with those who contend that big tax cuts must await sharp reductions in federal spending. He has been outspoken in his criticism of President Eisenhower's record-high spending budget.

"If we want to cut spending," he told a reporter, "the way to do it is to cut taxes. That will force the government to cut back spending to live within its income."

"I don't think we will ever get a substantial tax cut if we wait for a big federal surplus to develop."

He blamed the administration's record high spending budget on the fact that a sizable surplus was in prospect.

"The spenders in government saw a chance to enlarge their work areas and they proceeded to increase spending."

Simpson said he thought taxpayers would actually get relief totaling between $3,000,000,000 and $5,000,000,000 by next year. "I'm bullish on tax relief," he said.

Camerman Killed While Filming Manmade Slide

EMPIRE, Colo. (AP)—Highway crews Tuesday recovered the body of a cameraman killed when a manmade avalanche he was filming crushed him and his station wagon beneath tons of snow and rock.

Workers dug out the body of John Hermann, 26, a movie cameraman who was filming the slide on Blue Creek Mountain for the Walt Disney studios.

The body of Wayne E. Whitlock, 20, of Empire, who also was killed in the slide, was recovered Monday night. Authorities said both men were suffocated when a round from a 75 millimeter howitzer touched off the slide.

Beland Wyatt, 16, a Salt Lake City high school student who had been assisting Hermann, was caught on the outer fringe of the slide but escaped injury.

Wyatt said Highway Department maintenance men fired three rounds from the howitzer at the key point of a mass of rocks and snow on the mountains.

Howitzers frequently are used to shoot down potential slides before the accumulation of snow and rock builds up to a point where it is dangerous for traffic on the highway below. This time, however, the shot triggered a much bigger avalanche than had been expected.

Taking Life Easier Helps Hypertension

By HENRY H. HUNTER, M.D.
HYPERTENSION, or high blood pressure. Often they make pressure a widespread ailment on this day of the income tax deadline, is our most common chronic complaint. It causes more disability and death than any other single disease.

Actually, there is no need to be unduly fearful of this disorder. By recognizing the symptoms, obtaining prompt medical attention and by following your doctor's advice (among other things to take life easier) you can as a rule live a fairly normal life without much danger.

Extensive Examination
Now I don't want you performing a diagnosis on yourself. Even a doctor has difficulty diagnosing high blood pressure from symptoms alone. He must conduct an extensive examination before he is able to determine definitely whether you have hypertension.

While the following symptoms might or might not mean that you have hypertension, they usually indicate that something may be wrong. Very often it is high blood pressure.

Common Symptoms
Most common and most incapacitating symptom is frequent headaches. Although a headache may occur at any time of the day, generally those due to hypertension are around when you wake in the morning.

Headaches can be especially dangerous to a person with high blood pressure. A feeling of lightheadedness or dizziness may be an indication of hypertension. Generally, though, this particular symptom in itself isn't cause for too much worry.

Early Signs
Both physical and emotional fatigue frequently are signs of early hypertension. He is breathing, especially when it is accompanied by perspiration, palpitation of the heart and a rumbling of the bowels.

While these symptoms may mean that you have high blood pressure, they don't reveal the extent of your trouble. That's a job for your doctor.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
Q. T.: I had my gallbladder removed about eighteen months ago. Three weeks ago, I developed a pain in my stomach, under my shoulder blades and in the right side. What do you think could be causing this?

Answer: It is impossible to tell from the description given, the cause for the pain.

Not infrequently, following the removal of the gallbladder, pains due to spasm of the bile duct may occur. It is possible that a stone may have formed in the bile duct.

You are in need of a careful study to determine the exact cause for your difficulty.

We may soon become a nation of millions of millionaires thanks to the modern miracle of television. The first televising of the recent International Bridge Tournament between the United States and Italy proved that the game is an appealing one to millions of viewers watching play on their home screens. Plans are underway to let the TV cameras film at other top card tournaments.

Chocolate Peppermint Pie with No Bake Corn Flake Crust

April is the month the breakfast cereal and dairy industries are sponsoring the Fourth Annual Spring Cereal and Milk Festival to promote the food value of cereal and milk. "You never outgrow your need for cereal and milk" is the theme of this festival.

A nation-wide survey found that almost half of the adult population seldom or never drink milk, one of the richest sources of calcium. In addition to calcium, the cereal and milk serving provides top-quality protein, quickly available food energy, essential B-complex vitamins, and the minerals iron and phosphorus. Recent research found that on the average, the adults observed consumed five ounces of milk per cereal serving. Thus cereal becomes an important milk carrier, especially for adults.

The ingredient use of cereal and milk is another way to include this valuable team in the daily diet. Entrees, muffins, breads, confections, and desserts can all be made with cereal and milk as ingredients. Chocolate Peppermint Pie with Corn Flake Marshmallow Crust is a delicious way to include cereal and milk in the daily diet.

Chocolate Peppermint Pie with No Bake Corn Flake Marshmallow Crust
3 tablespoons butter
1½ cups marshmallow creme
¼ teaspoon salt
3 cups corn flakes, pre-sweetened or regular
1 pint chocolate ice cream
1 pint peppermint stick or mint ice cream
½ cup chopped peppermint candy
Combine butter, marshmallow creme, and salt in large pan. Place over low heat. Stir constantly until mixture is smooth and hot. Add corn flakes; stir carefully until all cereal flakes are coated. Melt marshmallow creme over sides and bottom of buttered 9-inch pie pan. Chill. Fill with a layer of chocolate ice cream, top with a layer of peppermint stick or mint ice cream. Smooth top. Place in freezer to become firm. Garnish top with chopped peppermint stick candy. Yield: 8 servings. Note: This ice cream pie can be served without fruit.

Construction Plans In Immediate Future

Navy Reveals News

The Navy today issued a statement to the joint Washington delegation in which news of the retaining of the Sanford Naval Air Station here was released.

Congressman A. S. "Syd" Herlong Jr. in a telephone release of the statement, said that Admiral W. V. Davis, Chief of Planning for the Navy said "The original plan to replace the Sanford Naval Air Station, was based on the need for modern facilities suitable for the operation of the high performance jet aircraft situated in an area not threatened by encroachment of the surrounding population."

The statement from the Navy continued "In view of more urgent requirements elsewhere in the Navy Aeronautical establishment which prevents the immediate release of the subject facility, the decision has been made to adapt and expand the existing facilities at Sanford to accommodate the current requirements rather than to build a replacement activity in the Sixth Naval District."

John Krider, Manager of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, revealed the message first at the local Chamber of Commerce office, with Mayor David Gatehel, Chamber of Commerce President Clifford McKibbin, and Jaycee President George Andrew Spear listening in.

The entire Washington delegation, including Senator Spessard L. Holland, Senator George Smathers, and Congressman A. S. "Syd" Herlong made the appeal to the Navy Department to expand the local Navy Base instead of move it to some other area. Their appeal was based on economy in government operations in that a $20 to $30 million establishment was already existing here at Sanford.

Congressman Herlong said that he had been advised that construction would include new and lengthened runways, new hangars, and new barracks as well as other needed facilities at the Sanford Naval Air Station.

Cost of the construction planned for the immediate future will come to approximately $3 million. "It is in the immediate future," said (Continued On Page Ten)

Chief Travasos' Navy Experiences Many, Interesting

A Navy Chief, with over 20 years service, and with the experience of visiting islands throughout the Pacific Area during World War II, retired this morning at the Sanford Naval Air Station.

However, it will be "a swapping of jobs" with Chief John W. Travasos as he leaves tomorrow for East Hartford, Conn. to work with the Pratt-Whitney Co.

Travasos has been an Aviation Mechanic throughout his Navy Career.

His log book of flight time recorded during World War II shows a running account of 1,671.3 hours of time in the air during a period of nearly a year.

"I was in the U.S. Marine Corps for four years," Travasos said, "but I never was promoted to a rank higher than a private." He enlisted in the Marine Corps in June 28, 1932.

An alert was sounded last night at 7 o'clock which called out the Sanford National Guard Unit, Company B, 154th Armored Infantry Battalion for a simulated mission in Fort Mellon Park.

Major Roy D. Green, Asst. G-3, Operations, for the 4th Armored Division, said "This could be a local, statewide or even further alert."

Fifty minutes after the alert was sounded, 35 men and two officers had reported to the Sanford Armory with full gear and equipment ready for duty.

At 8:37 last night, 47 men and three officers had reported, the field kitchen and CP had been set up, guards were posted and two road blocks maintained.

The huge armored tank was in operation and stationed at the Sanford Ave. entrance to Seminole Boulevard.

"This was a test with a simulated mission," said Major Green who was on hand with Captain Volie A. Williams Jr., Assistant

Major Green said last night "The results as I see them are that within one and a half hours after the alert was sounded the mission was under control."

Guards were posted around Fort Mellon Park. They could be seen silhouetted against Lake Monroe as they paced the seawall. Both ends of Seminole Boulevard were controlled by roadblocks with machine guns and mortars set up in strategic locations so that any direction approach could be predicted.

Captain Joseph D. Bryan is commanding officer of the local National Guard Unit.

Major Green, commenting on the success of the alert and mission said "The mission very probably would have been accomplished with full strength in another hour."

Members of the National Guard Unit were reporting rapidly during the evening with some of them coming from as far as Apopka.

"We will appreciate any donation to make the Annual Easter Egg Hunt a success," said Kimbrell.

Judge Advocate General, of the Division to watch the local unit in action.

Lt. John Keeling, one of the Company "B" officers said that machine guns had been set up along the last front in the Fort Mellon Park area, however, the "nest" could not be seen even through reporters were walking close by.

"In addition," said Lt. Keeling, "We have mortars set up in that area" as he pointed to a section of the park, seemingly open. In that instance, too, the battery of mortars could not be seen.

Rations had been drawn by the kitchen detail and the unit was prepared to feed the full complement of men and officers for a full day without having to secure additional supplies.

No Regular Mail Delivery Tomorrow

There won't be any regular mail delivery tomorrow, due to the holdup on Post Office Dept. appropriations, now being debated in Congress.

Sanford Postmaster, Joel R. Field last night pledged he would not dismiss any of his 39 employees under the present curtailment. Regular employees will continue to work full time. However seven substitutes can expect, as of tomorrow, to get in less than full week's work. Field said he did not know how the situation would develop but that career substitutes would be called on first, then the temporary substitutes.

"Substitutes will be scheduled only as needed to supplement the regular force. It is doubtful any temporary substitute will be employed over this weekend and the cut back will be sharper if the third class mail embargo goes into effect Apr. 29," Field said.

Beginning Monday, window service at the main post office will be from 8:30 a. m. until 5:30 p. m. Monday through Friday. There will be no window service on Saturday. Mail will be sorted and put into boxes on Saturdays and special delivery mail will be delivered. One change in service that Field points out specifically to persons having mail to send where the time element is important is that Saturday pickups from street boxes will, as of tomorrow, be on the same schedule printed on each box for Sunday. Sunday pickups will remain the same.
