HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Friday, April 3, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY

April 3, 1981
Friends could prove very helpful this coming year, both career-wise and financially. Their inside tips could help you get a better job or add to your income.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Persons who are supportive of you will continue to be so, but those who are against you may be a bit more vehement than usual.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
You have the marvelous ability to see both sides of an issue, but today you may weigh and balance things so tediously you become indecisive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
No one will think less of you today if you 'less up to situations which you feel you can't handle.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Respect others for their talents and abilities, but don't compare them unfairly to yourself today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Persons who usually take what you say as gospel may challenge your remarks today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Should it be necessary to make a choice today between paying an old obligation or buying something new, you'd be wise to wipe out the past debt first.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Be careful in your commercial dealings today. If there is a misunderstanding, you may wind up paying far more for something than you should.

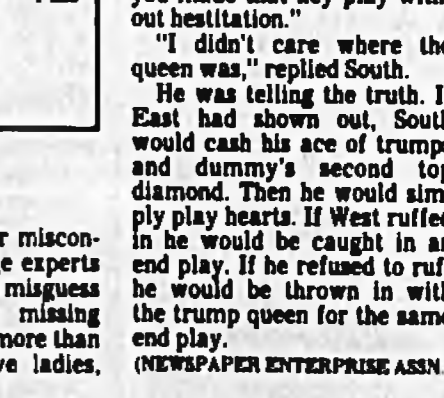

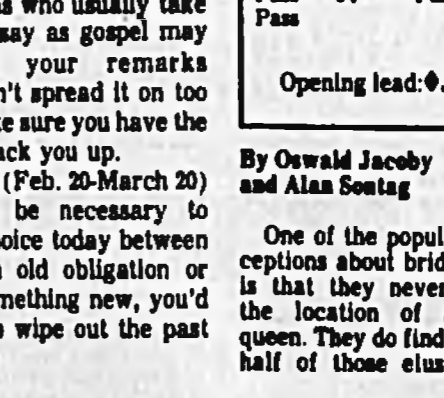

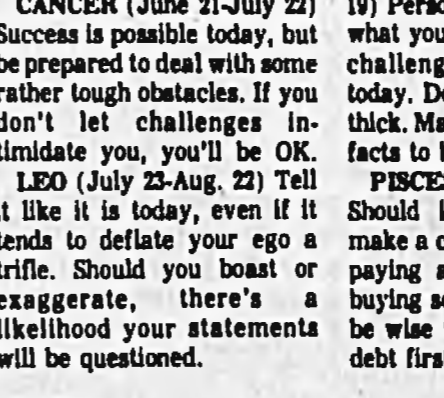

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Keep pace with your duties and responsibilities today. If you permit them to pile up, they could exceed your capacity to handle them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Don't let yourself get caught in a situation today where you feel compelled to side with one friend against another.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Success is possible today, but be prepared to deal with some rather tough obstacles.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Tell it like it is today, even if it tends to deflate your ego a trifle.

Water, Water, Water For Cystine Stones

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am 19 years old and have problems with kidney stones. These kidney stones are made of cystine. My doctor says they are caused by stomach acid buildup. I have had two operations on these stones already. I certainly do not want to ever have another operation of this sort.

to manage some types of stones, particularly calcium stones. But there is agreement on what to do about cystine stones. All agree that it is important to drink a lot of fluids—at least water—around the clock.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I'm 16 and am a competitive swimmer. I'm 5 feet 2 and weigh 100 pounds. I swim 5,000 yards in less than two hours every day.

Cystine stones, which are rather rare, do not show on ordinary X-rays like a calcium stone will. This is an inherited trait and often there are other members of the family who have similar problems.

DEAR DR. LAMB—Standard tables indicate you would need about 2,400 calories a day if you were normally active.

Cystine stones are more apt to form if your urine is acid. That is why your doctor is giving you bicarbonate tablets. The bicarbonate is absorbed and alkalinizes your urine regardless of your diet.

Inflation At 16.2%

Minority Teens' Jobless Rate Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rising fuel costs pushed wholesale prices in March to an annual inflation rate of 16.2 percent, while unemployment among minority teen-agers rose to 37.3 percent, the government announced today.

Despite the hike in the jobless rate for minority teen-agers, the overall unemployment rate in March remained at 7.3 percent, the Labor Department said.

Wholesale prices rose 1.3 percent for the month of March.

Home heating oil went up in price for the single month by an enormous 9 percent at the wholesale level, and gasoline by 7.5 percent, as the effects of President Reagan's decontrol of the price of domestic oil traveled through the price pipeline to the dealer.

Food prices, which for February had dropped by 0.6 percent, bounced back up 0.8 percent in March. Fresh vegetables increased 19.4 percent during February.

The department estimated the surge in fuel prices accounted for more than half of the total rise in its index of finished goods for March.

The Producer Price Index reached 265.3 in March, which means it cost $265.30 to buy the same thing that cost $100 14 years ago.

The department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said the unemployment rate for minority teen-agers rose 1.9 percent in March, to 37.3 percent.

But it said overall teen-age unemployment experienced its first decline in several months, dropping slightly to 19.1 percent.

The 37.3 percent rate for blacks and other minorities, aged 16 to 19, was the highest since December when it was 37.5 percent. Some 367,000 minority youth were out of work in March and actively seeking employment.

One year ago, the rate for minority youths was 33.4 percent.

The bureau placed the number of "discouraged workers" — those who want to work but are not looking for new jobs because they don't think they can find one — at 1.1 million for the first quarter of 1981, up 60,000 from last quarter and 165,000 above a year ago.

Discouraged workers are not included in the unemployment figures.

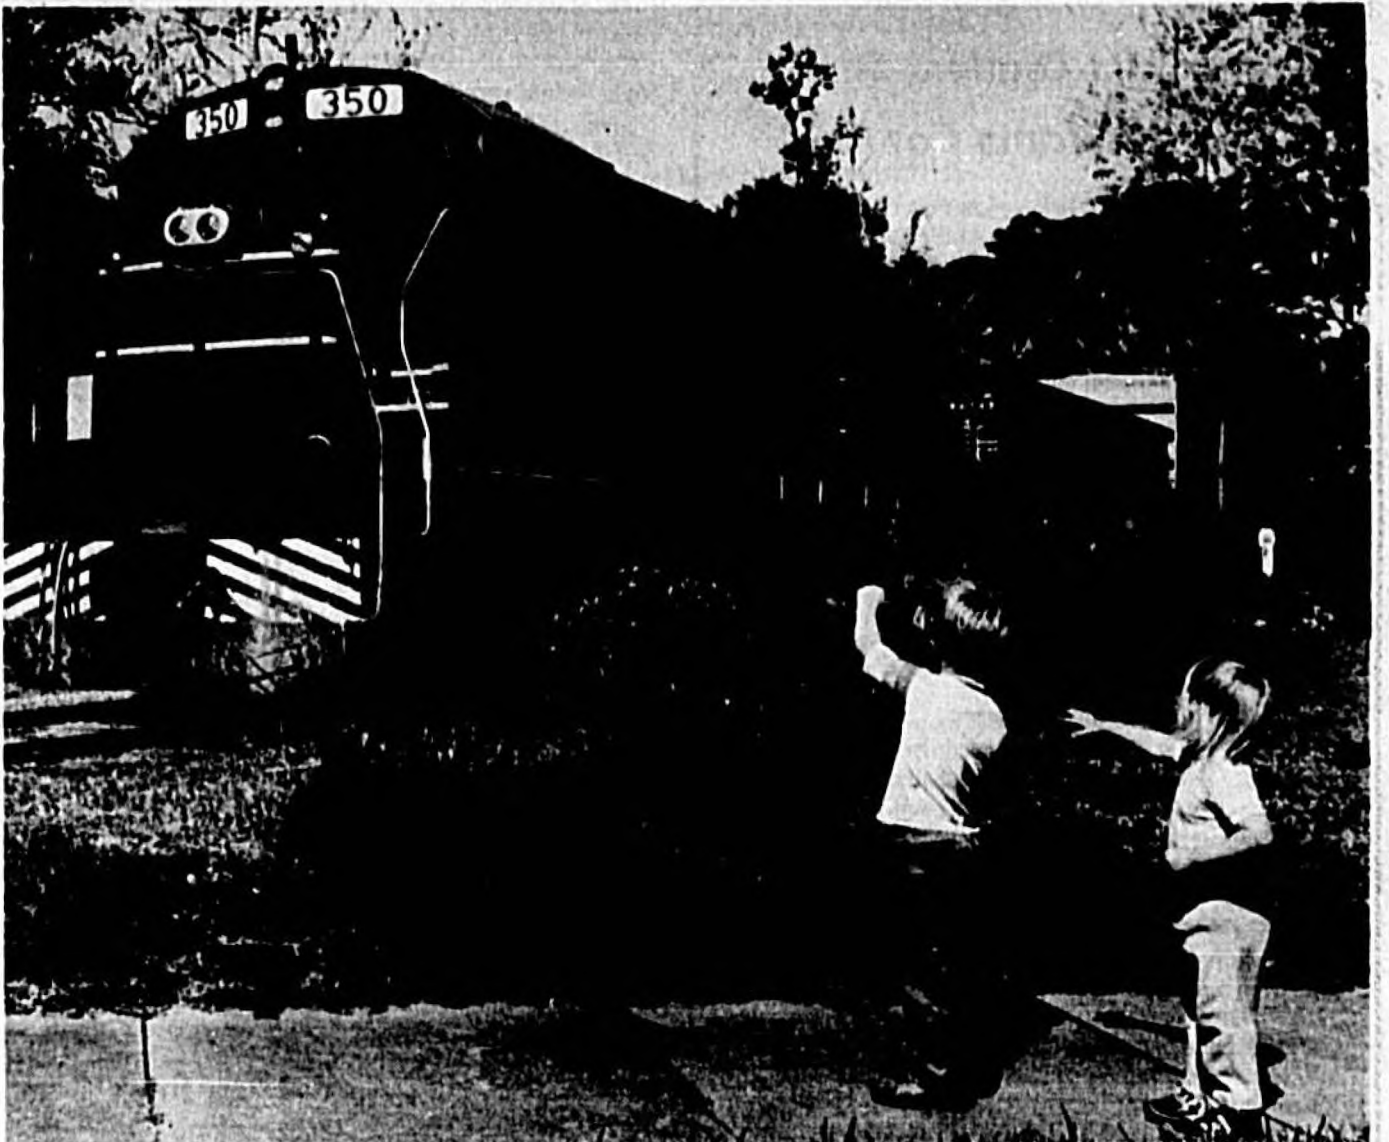

The 37.3 percent rate for blacks and other minorities aged 16 to 19 was the highest since December's 37.5 percent. In March, the rate jumped 1.9 percentage points from February's 35.4 percent. A year ago, the rate was 33.7 percent.

The Labor Department said 367,000 minority youth were out of work and actively seeking employment.

The Labor Department also reported the number of unemployed black men aged 20 years and older went up in March by 0.6 percentage points, to 13.7 percent.

Little change was noted in most other categories and industries from the February figures.

Total employment increased by 485,000 over the month to 98.4 million, and the number of unemployed increased by 10,000, bringing the new total to 7,764,000 out of work.

WAVE OF THE FUTURE?

Lance Williams, 3, and sister, April, 2, children of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Williams of Sanford, wave to their friendly neighborhood Seaboard Coast Line railroad engineer as freight crosses Park Avenue at 16th Street. This happy pastime for generations of youngsters may actually be a symbolic good-bye as the future of train transportation seems uncertain.

Lake Monroe Postmaster Robert Mann shows that plenty of three-cent stamps are available at his post office today, but how long the supply will last he doesn't know.

Where Are All The 3-Cent Stamps?

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

If you are looking for three-cent stamps, don't go to the Sanford, Geneva, Fern Park or Casselberry post offices. These post offices are either out of threes or have a shortage.

"You can get the precious stamps that make up the difference between 15-cent stamps on hand and the new for First Class mail rate in abundance at the Altamonte Springs, Lake Monroe, Oviedo and Longwood post offices. At Lake Mary post office three cents stamps are available, but one-cent and two-cent stamps are not.

It's hard to explain why so may persons in the past month have been buying three cent stamps. The increase in the postal rates can't be the entire reason, according to Robert Mann, postmaster at the Lake Monroe post office.

"I think people are hoarding them," he said. To back his contention, Mann tells a story about one patron who bought a book of 20 15-cent stamps just before the rate change to 18 cents. However, right after the rate change, he said, the same patron bought 100 three-cent stamps.

"Remember during the gas shortage when every car in the area, junker and otherwise, had a full tank of gas?" Mann said. "I think the same thing is happening with three-cent stamps. I've got plenty this morning, but I don't know how long they'll last."

James Covington, postmaster at the Sanford post office, said, "We can't figure it out." Since January the Sanford post office has sold 100,000 15-cent stamps, but during the past month, since the rate change, 120,000 three-cent stamps have been purchased.

"Next week I think people may be buying more 15 cent stamps to go with all the threes they've purchased," Covington said.

Bruno Zawrotniak, clerk-technician at the Sanford facility said the shortage of the three-cent stamps is a temporary situation and there are sporadic lines of patrons who want three-cent stamps.

"We are encouraging them to buy 15-cent stamps. We are trying to do the best we can. If a patron has two-or-three pieces of mail with a 15-cent stamp already affixed, we will run the mail through the postage meter for them for the additional three cents," he said.

As new three-cent stamps arrive daily at the Sanford post office, they are sold on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Longwood Postmaster Jean Brown said her post office has "plenty of threes. We happened to have enough ordered," she said.

"We have furnished the Lake Mary post office with some. We reviewed what we thought we would need and ordered enough ahead of time. Calls for threes now have kind of calmed down. It's not too much more business than we normally have," Mrs. Brown said.

Sam Musgrove, Oviedo postmaster, also has plenty of threes on hand. "We've got books and we've got rolls. We anticipated and ordered in advance," he said.

Musgrove said the Oviedo post office has sold 30,000 three-cent stamps in the past month and the Orlando sectional center has gone through 3.5 million three-cent stamps in the past month.

"The problem is not the postal service," Musgrove said. "We didn't know what the new rate was going to be. The Postal Rate Commission was asked to approve a new rate of 20 cents. It was not responsive to the postal service's needs and it approved an increase to 18 cents," he said, explaining the reason many post offices have plenty of five-cent stamps on hand and not as many three-cent stamps.

A spokesman at the Geneva post office said that facility is out of threes now, but will have some later. "We used up all the threes we had on hand and have ordered more from Orlando," the spokesman said.

Ron Masten, assistant postmaster at Altamonte Springs, said that facility has had no shortage. It has never been out of threes. "We ran low one day and had to sell threes off rolls," Masten said.

Postmaster Robert Kelly of Casselberry said he has sent an emergency order to Washington for more three-cent stamps. "We expected the rate to go to 20 cents and have 60,000 five-cent stamps in our safe," he said. "If the rate had gone the way it should have, we were prepared."

Margaret Estis, postmaster at Fern Park, said, "Sure we have a shortage. We aren't out of threes right now, but there have been a couple days when we were out. All we have to do is have a patron get here one time and our post office will be out of threes and that's bad news," she said.

"I don't think people are hoarding stamps, per se," Mrs. Estis said. "If people have a half-coil (about 50) of 15-cent stamps, they are buying a full-coil of (100) threes, when a half coil would do. I think the demand for threes is slackening off and next week we will be back to normal," she said.

Postmaster Miram Darby of Lake Mary said she has three-cent stamps today, but has no one or two-cent stamps. "A lot of people are still buying threes," she said.

State Attorney Accused Of 'Cop Out'

Lake Mary Vows To Conduct Own Track Probe

By BRITT SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

Lake Mary city councilmen think Seminole-Brevard State Attorney Douglas Cheshire has "copped out" on their request for a grand jury investigation into an unsuccessful attempt to have a horse racing track built in the city, so they plan to conduct their own probe.

At their Thursday night meeting, councilmen effectively told Ray Fox, the council member who has been pressing for an investigation, to "sic 'em." By a unanimous vote, the council instructed Fox to make whatever queries he thinks necessary.

The vote followed a strong statement by Fox in which he said Cheshire had "copped out" and "made a political rather than a legal decision" when he needed "competent evidence" before empanelling a grand jury. Cheshire said a probe based on "rumors, hearsay, and innuendos" would amount to little more than "a witch hunt."

In mid-March, the council had asked Cheshire to probe the ownership of Harness Racing Inc., which planned to build the proposed Sunshine Park race track, and Mid-State Development Corp., which would have operated the facility.

In addition, the city also asked that the probe include "whether any elected or appointed official or his staff had a financial interest in either of these organizations, as well as a determination of whether there was any conflict of interest with any elected or appointed official in regards to the passage of state law 80-88 "which paved the way for possible construction of the track."

In response, Cheshire said he was "ready, willing and able to meet your request providing you . . . can provide this office with more specific information and allegations."

Specifically, Cheshire wanted whatever information the city has in regards to the matter, or the names of anyone who may "have specific knowledge of the allegations such that this office may obtain sworn statements or records."

"If we knew that," Fox said, "we wouldn't need the State Attorney. We could proceed on our own through our attorney and bring lawsuits as required."

"I take affront at Mr. Cheshire's response," Fox said. "We wondered if there wasn't some wrong-doing involved in this thing and asked the State Attorney to find out. That's his job. He (Cheshire) seems to be dragging his feet," he said. "It looks like a cop out to me."

What bothers Fox and his colleagues is that 80-88 was "pushed through the legislature in its final hours and nobody really knew what they were doing," Fox said.

Also, it was widely rumored that an unnamed prominent legislator would write the insurance on the track if it were built in Lake Mary.

And "it struck me as rather strange that after I asked for an investigation the first time (in January, a request turned down by the governor's office) Harness and Mid-State suddenly dropped their plans," Fox said.

"And they had already spent a lot of time and money trying to get this track built. That seems very strange to me. I think, and the council concurs, that it should be looked into."

Warning Of 'Ruined Lives' Fails To Deter Budget Cutters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some said it would mean "ruined lives and shattered hopes," but the Senate overwhelmingly approved a package of budget cuts that would reach into nearly every facet of government except defense.

The Republican-controlled Senate, after days of beating back Democratic efforts to amend it, Thursday accepted a package containing $36.9 billion in fiscal 1982 reductions.

The vote was 68-10, with Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., joining nine liberal Democrats in opposing the measure.

President Reagan was reported pleased with the Senate action by Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who saw him in his hospital room Thursday night.

The spotlight now turns to the Democrat-controlled House, which begins drafting its own budget package next week.

"This resolution means the Senate for the first time in years has come to its senses," said Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M. He said it would begin to reverse a trend of excessive government spending.

But Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said the budget "makes no sense in economic terms or in human terms."

"In its wake . . . will be the ruined lives and shattered hopes of millions in our society," he said. "The cold and dry statistics in the budget resolution do not begin to tell the real story of this budget."

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said the American people may have voted last November to eliminate fraud and waste and curb the federal bureaucracy.

"I do not believe, however, that they voted for a cruel abandonment of America's commitment — indeed, America's obligation — to help those most in need," he said.

Among the reductions are a $1.5 billion cut in the food stamp program, a nearly 25 percent cut in elementary and secondary education programs that would be funded through block grants, a phase-out of public jobs, a $1 billion cut in Medicaid, elimination of the Economic Development Administration and eight regional commissions and termination of the minimum benefit payment under Social Security.

The Senate did not, at Reagan's request, tamper with basic Social Security payments, despite attempts to reduce them.

Total savings under the Reagan plan include the $36.9 billion in Senate-approved cuts, as well as $8 billion in reductions to be achieved administratively and an additional amount in Carter administration programs that were never accepted.

Reagan, recovering from a gunshot wound suffered in an assassination attempt Monday, had proposed slashing the budget $48.6 billion.

The Senate's action will serve as instructions to its spending and authorizing committees. The measure contains recommendations, or options for the panels to consider, but the committees themselves will decide where the cuts actually will come.

In the House, Democratic leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, predicted the measure approved by that chamber would approach the administration's total figure "very closely."

But he hinted Reagan would not get as much of a military increase as he wants, and that the tax cut approved by the House would be smaller — reducing the size of the deficit below Reagan's projected $45 billion.

Everything But
The Chicken Stink

TYLER, Texas (UPI) — A couple was awarded $195,000 in damages by a federal jury because fumes from a nearby chicken hatchery gave their home a distinct aroma.

Valmac Industries Inc. was ordered by Judge William Wayne Justice to pay the award to R.E. and Myrtle Johnson, who live across the road from the hatchery.

The Johnsons said the chicken droppings and the firm's practice of burning dead chickens made their environment unpleasant.

It took the jury two hours to reach the verdict after hearing three days of testimony.

In Assassination Try

FBI: Exploding Slugs May Have Been Used

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's brush with death appeared even more harrowing today with the FBI's disclosure that .22-caliber slugs that struck him and three others may have been special "Devastator bullets" designed to explode and fragment on impact.

The bullet was immediately sent to the FBI for analysis. Richard Loughery, chief executive officer of the hospital, told a news conference earlier the FBI "informed us late this afternoon that there is a great possibility the bullet lodged in the neck of Officer Delahanty is an impact-sensitive explosive bullet."

cluding the mangled slug that was removed from Reagan's left lung, to see if they are of the "Devastator" type. "The president's bullet was intact. So it exploded or something happened when it struck the car to make it inoperable in terms of its explosive properties," Young said.

He said the rimfire ammunition, "developed for defensive use," carries a small explosive charge and is designed to fragment on impact. But, he said, the bullets don't "have a lot of penetration" and are used mostly by police to stop someone rather than kill.

While new details of the assassination continued to surface, Reagan, who told associates, "I found out it hurts to get shot," was reported making "just super" progress at George Washington University Hospital.

Dwarf Gets Job, But It May Be Short-Lived

76ers Race Past Pacers For Sweep

By United Press International In equine terms, one might say the first round of the NBA playoffs was an easy harness race victory for the Philadelphia 76ers — and the next round will be more like a rodeo. The 76ers, aiming for their second straight appearance in the NBA finals, trotted past the Indiana Pacers with two comfortable victories, sweeping the best-of-three series Thursday night with a methodical 96-85 triumph to move into the Eastern Conference semifinals.

Many Feel Dizzy May Have Vertigo

DEAR DR. LAMB—I get dizzy when lying in bed and when I turn on my side, I almost pass out. I mentioned this to a doctor at the VA Hospital and he became angry and simply had a fit. He said that it is impossible to get dizzy while lying down. My main problem is I often get the feeling of being taken up in a rapidly traveling elevator. At other times I feel as though I am walking a few inches off the ground or floor. I fall down a lot and have hurt myself very badly four different times. I'm a 57-year-old male. I do not smoke or drink. Can Valium have anything to do with this?

DEAR READER — Your story will need to be clarified, but it sounds like you are describing true vertigo—the illusion of motion or the illusion of things moving around you. That is different from dizziness associated with a sensation of fainting or preceding an actual faint. Vertigo can indeed occur when you lie down and vertigo occurring in specific positions is called postural vertigo. If that is what you are describing, you should be referred to an ear, nose and throat (ENT) specialist. He will be familiar with your complaint.

Dizziness or faintness is usually caused by inadequate circulation to the brain and does occur when a person is upright as opposed to lying down, but vertigo is a different condition.

Vertigo occurs when your system of orientation to your environment is disturbed. This can be caused by disorders in your ears, particularly the little balance canals for sensing head position, visual disturbances that affect perception of position, disturbances of nerve signals from all over your body that sense body position and finally, disturbances in coordinating all these signals from the ears, eyes and body by the brain. The general mechanisms of dizziness are discussed in The Health Letter number 9-10.

Dizziness and Vertigo, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long-stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

There is a list as long as your arm of things that can cause vertigo. These include disorders of the balance canals in the ears or even various diseases that affect the brain. You may need special tests such as electronystagmography which measures eye movements in response to stimulation of your balance canals. Rarely Valium does cause vertigo but that does not mean it is causing your problem. With the combined attention of a good ENT specialist, and, if needed, a neurologist, the nature of your problem should be solved.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a 61-year-old woman and noticed blood in my stool twice in the past week. I am wondering if it could be caused by cancer or something serious. Should I see a doctor? I don't know which doctor to see. The ones I did go to have all left town. Otherwise I am in excellent health.

DEAR READER— Don't delay another day. Make an appointment with a doctor you would like to have for your family doctor and see him as soon as he can see you. Unexplained bleeding from any location requires immediate attention. In your case it could be hemorrhoids but it could be cancer. There is simply no way to tell without an examination. If it is a cancer, the earlier it is found the better chance you will have for a cure.

WIN AT BRIDGE

took my ace. Then I played my ace and king of trumps and led my singleton spade. West went up with his ace and led the seven of clubs to give East two club tricks and my partner an opportunity to comment on my play at trick one. Apart from the result, how bad was my play?

The answer is that your play lost against the actual distribution and would also have lost if West had led the top of three or four clubs. It would only have won for you if East held six clubs and the ace of spades. If you ducked and East gave his partner a ruff, he could only get in to give a second ruff if he held that spade entry.

In the acronym ARCH, A is Analyze the lead. You did that. R is Review the bidding. You failed to do that.

If you had, you would have seen that East, who was not vulnerable, failed to bid two clubs when he had the chance. Give East six clubs to the king-queen and the ace of spades and he surely would have bid.

C is Count your winners and losers and it is How can I make this hand? You did that, but finally took the play that was less likely to get you 10 tricks.

Students Entertain Seniors

About 35 students of Lakeview Middle School entertained the Sanford Senior Citizens at the regular meeting in the Sanford Civic Center. The choral presentations were under the direction of Junette Rastom, director of music at the school. Over 125 members applauded with enthusiasm as the young folks sang selections from popular Broadway musicals.

President Jessie Brisson presided at the business meeting which followed the program. Members were urged to get out and vote in the election for the Silver Haired Legislature which will be held on April 14. Voting sites are at the Knights of Columbus and the Pine Street Baptist church, both meal sites for the Congregate Meals. Voting will take place in the various meal sites in Seminole County. Mrs. Bobbi Hardy is a candidate for election and is sponsored by the Sanford club.

At the earlier March meeting Executive Director Joe Maher showed slides and gave an informative talk on the services of the federation and the part it plays in making transportation, meal sites, meals on wheels and home services available to seniors in the county.

Doris Rogers, tour chairman, announced two special days, April 9 or 12, for buses to Lakeland for the Holiday on Ice show where the special presentation shown at Lake Placid in 1980 will be featured. Some of the Olympic skaters will perform. A special spring tour which will go in June will cover the Pennsylvania Dutch Country, the 1000 Islands, and Ottawa in Canada with stops in Vermont and Connecticut.

The Sweet Adelines, Inc. is an International Organization for women who sing barbershop harmony. The Sweet Adelines in the United States are divided into regions with Region Nine covering Florida, Georgia and Alabama.

The competition theme "The Last Roundup" was chosen not just for the Western motif and music, but because this is the last time these singers will meet for regional competition since Florida will soon be a region separate from Georgia and Alabama. The group has been working for months getting ready for this competition for over 2,000 women. They have been gathering "goodies" for ditty bags, planning and printing programs, and have been practicing, practicing, practicing.

SOS Chapter placed fifth in last year's competition and Nancy Lewis, director says she feels they will be among the top contenders this year.

The "Honey and Spice" Quartet with Chloe Ingria, lead; Bonnie Ramsey, tenor; Karen Davis, baritone; and Debbie Love, bass, will represent the SOS tonight.

Saturday, the chorus competition begins at noon and will continue until about 4 p.m. There will be five winners from the 30 choruses competing.

Beta Sigma Phi

Theta Epsilon Chapter

Life, learning and friendship is Beta Sigma Phi's motto—an ideal that each chapter and member tries to live up to.

The Theta Epsilon chapter held a model meeting for prospective new rushees at the Sanford home of Tracey Wight.

To depict "Life" in Beta Sigma Phi, a large chain link bracelet was displayed to represent the Beta Sigma Phi achievement band.

As vice president Sue Schwegman introduced each officer and committee chairman, a charm or star representing her office or committee was placed on the achievement band. Guests were then told what that particular office or committee included.

"Learning" is a great part of sorority life. Members can learn and enrich themselves through cultural programs, becoming an officer, doing committee work or service for the community.

In order to promote "friendship", members and guests then were lead in games that let everyone become better acquainted.

After a combination business meeting and program refreshments were served. Secret Sisters were then honored with mementos.

Zeta Xi Chapter

The cannons roared and the bells pealed out the beloved sounds of Tchaikovsky's 1812 Festival Overture, part of the program on classical music, presented by Kathy Bukur to members of Zeta Xi chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. Tchaikovsky, loved for his classics such as Romeo and Juliet and Swan Lake, was in the limelight of both listening and discussion.

A religious example was also played and members were reminded by the sounds of the famous Wedding Chorus that opera plays a role in our life even when we aren't conscious of it.

Mrs. Bukur ended her program by advising where members could tune their radios to hear classical presentation with commentary and she selected an easy listening album to play softly for the duration of the evening.

Committee reports were given and members were reminded of the Founder's Day Luncheon April 25 at Aggles. Social committee called for a meeting in April to plan end of year party and scrapbook committee will meet March 31.

Election of new officers for 1981-82 was held with the results as follows: president, Bonnie Jones; vice president, Virginia Powell; recording secretary, Norma Leopp; treasurer, Donna Thomason, and corresponding secretary, Myra Michels.

Members in attendance were served refreshments.

Gamma Lambda Chapter

Gamma Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met at the home of Wanda Bronson. After members repeated the opening ritual, President Darcy Bono discussed the international communications.

The city council report was given by Wanda Bronson. The vice president reported on the arrangements being made for the forthcoming rush.

The service committee reminded members who are to play Bingo with the patients at the Lakeview Nursing Center.

The March social will be dinner at a local restaurant and then an annual bowling contest among members. The program for the evening was to review the chapter's By-Laws. Wanda Bronson had the members discuss what, if anything, could be done to improve them.

Son Hurt At Parents' Love For Ex-Wife

DEAR ABBY: During my 12-year marriage to Diana, my parents grew to love her and regard her as their daughter. We have two children.

The problem is that now that Diana and I are divorced, my parents continue to treat her as their daughter, but I am treated like an outcast!

They believe Diana's accusations that our divorce was caused by another woman. (It was not.) They constantly invite Diana to visit them — with or without the children — but I am invited only occasionally, even to family gatherings. (Diana is always there.)

Now that I am seeing a woman about whom I am serious, my parents insist that she broke up my marriage, and they refuse to even meet her! This is very unfair to me as well as to my fiancée.

What can I do? I am terribly hurt by my parents' lack of trust in me. I still love them and don't want to give up all hope of restoring our once loving relationship, but must I forever have to fight against my ex-wife for my parents' love and acceptance?

HURT IN NASHVILLE:

DEAR HURT: I hope not. But there's nothing you can do, except leave the lines open for communication. Let your parents know that you love them, miss them and (like Delta) you are ready when they are.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "CAN'T GET STARTED": Heed the words of Goethe: "If you think you can do it, begin it! Begin, and the mind grows heated. Begin and the task is completed."

PILOTS SELL EASTER EGGS

Childbirth Educators Offer Home Training

Childbirth education, until fairly recently, was taught almost exclusively in hospitals throughout the area. Similar programs are being offered by more and more childbirth educators in their homes. The American Society For Psychoprophylaxis in Obstetrics (ASPO) recognizes the value of both methods of teaching.

There are many ways of dealing with the discomforts of labor and delivery. Most commonly used in Central Florida is the Lamaze method, often referred to by its misnomer "natural childbirth".

This method aims to keep the laboring woman's brain so busy that it fails to register incoming uterine "pain" signals. It accomplishes this by training the pregnant woman to respond to her contractions in several ways.

Learning Lamaze at home is not a new idea. Most major (and many smaller) cities have offered it for years. There are many similarities between hospital and home-taught courses. At present, both are taught by ASPO certified instructors.

For information on home instruction, contact Claudio Colamarino, RN, 830-8528.

Treasure Hunting:

Florida Has Plenty— Anyone Can Find It

By CINDY MOOY
Herald Staff Writer

Anyone who has read Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island" or heard tales of Spanish conquistadors or miners panning for gold has dreamed of finding a pirate's chest of doubloons and jewels buried in the sand.

For Stuart Auerbach of Maitland, however, treasure hunting is not fantasy. He has made it his profession. And with the knowledge that there is plenty of treasure still to be found in the world, he has made it his business to guide the "average person" on expeditions in search of it.

Auerbach is director of Adventurers International which arranges for guided expeditions, mainly in Florida and the Caribbean, for the serious amateur treasure hunter.

"Florida," said Auerbach, "is a treasure hunters' paradise," because of its 400-year history of Spanish and English explorations, three Seminole Indian wars and the Civil War. Though he is a certified underwater diver, he believes there is more treasure to be found on Florida's land than in its coastal waters.

"People used to bury stuff because they didn't trust banks," Auerbach said. "The Seminoles always took coinage, they never took paper money when trading because paper rots in the ground."

"Treasure hunting — I hate that term," Auerbach said. "It gives you an image of a bearded, bulky, tattooed guy who's out for money and is tearing things up." He prefers to think of the people on his guided tours "adventurous spirits."

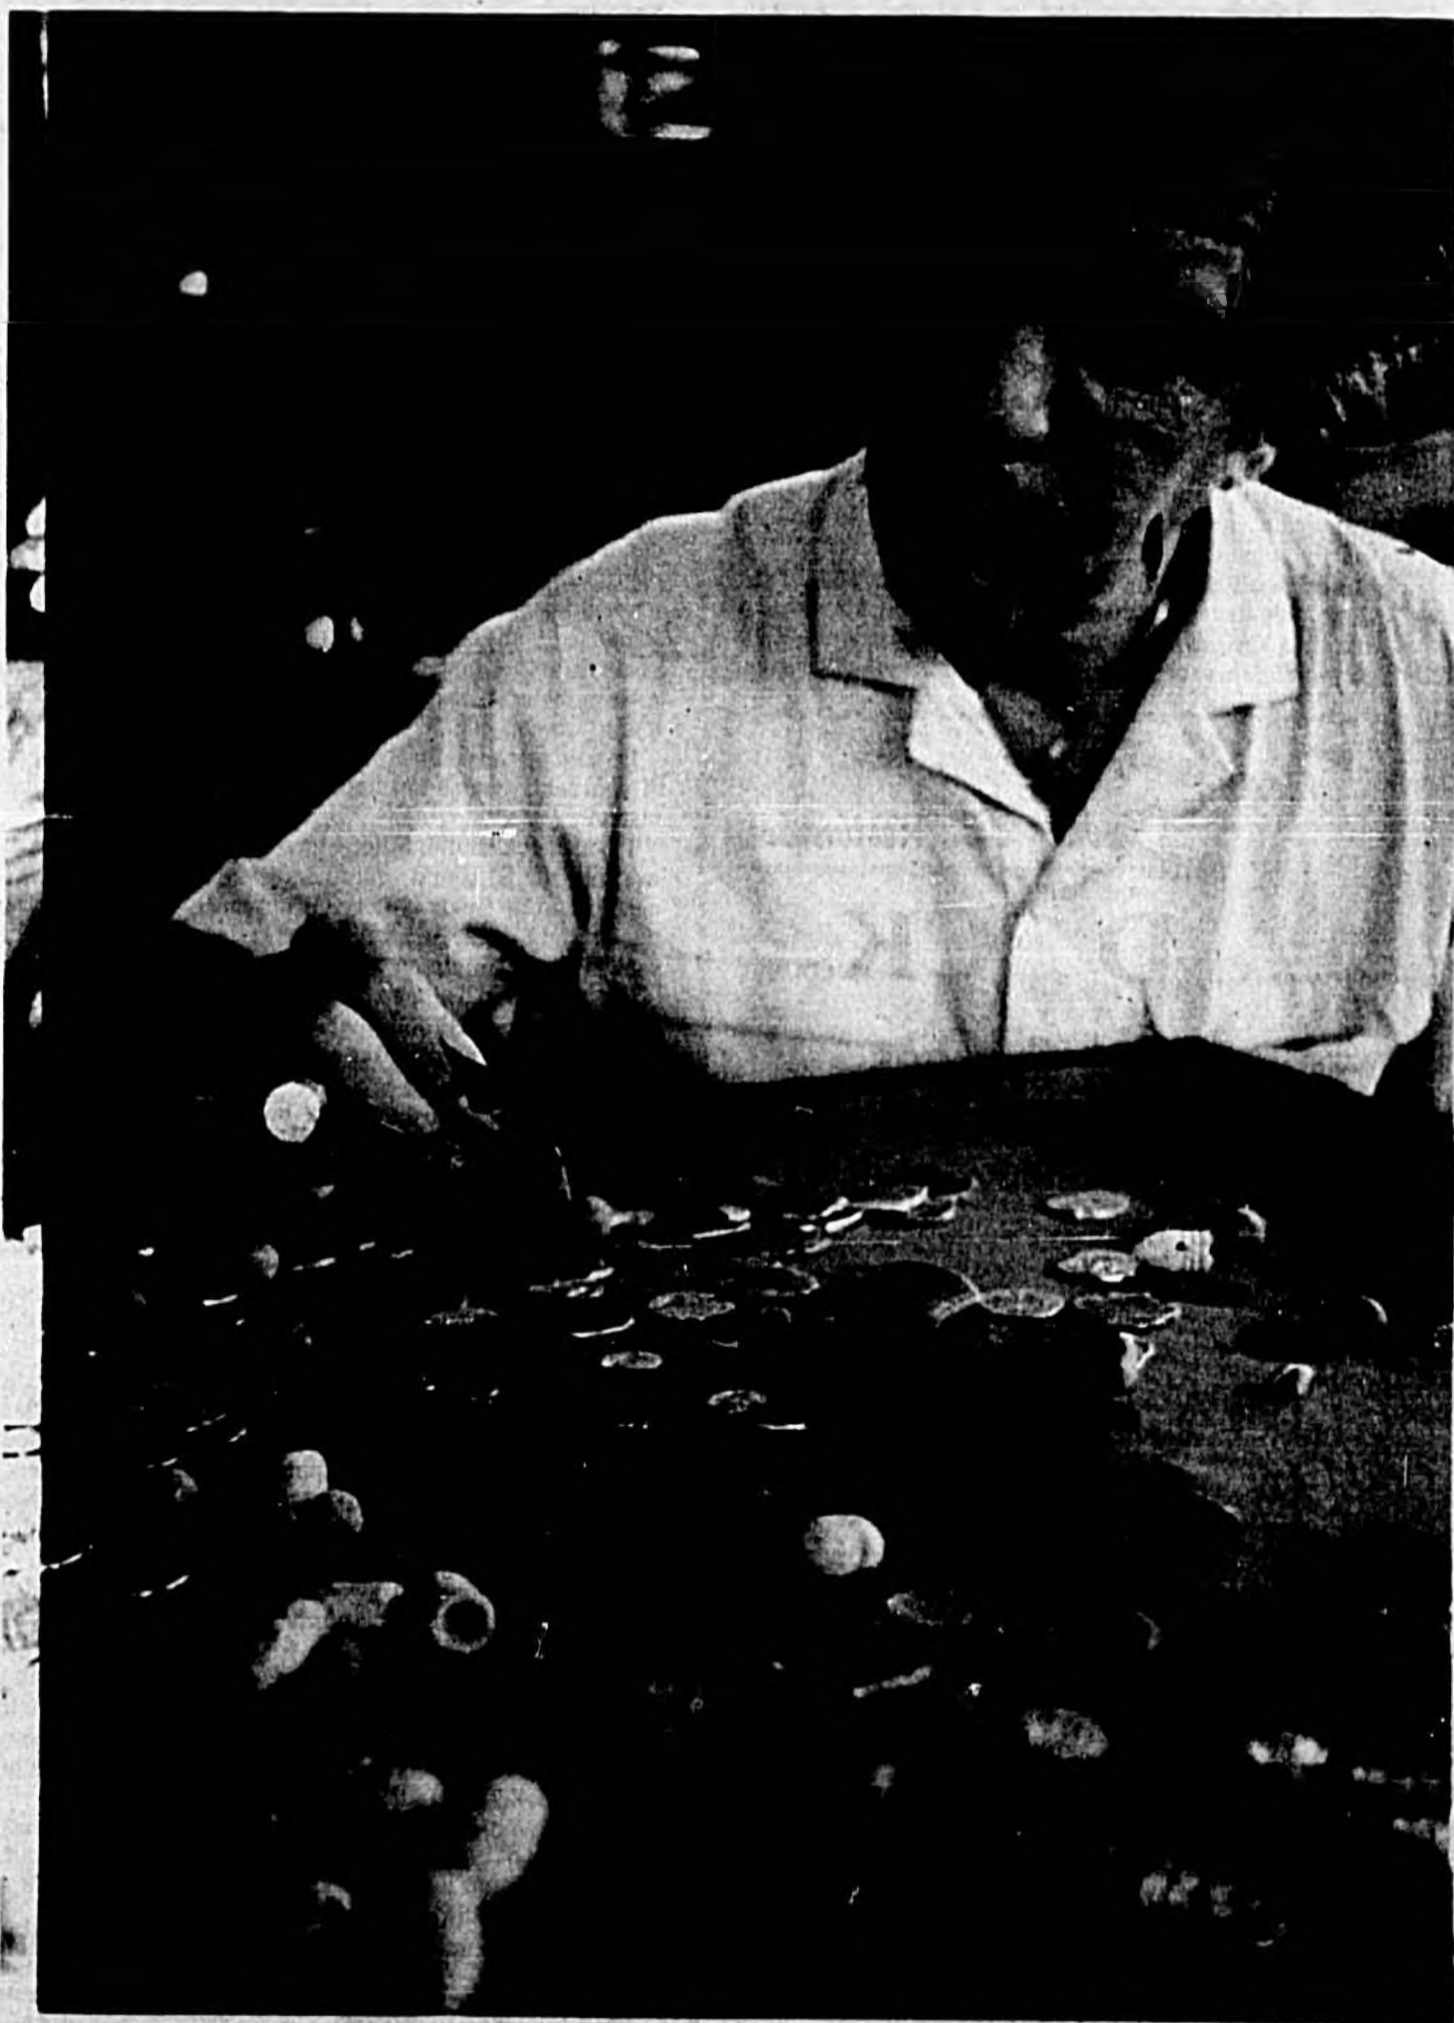

"They can't be pirates or buccaners, but they can go on adventures," said Auerbach. "These are people who want to dig back into the past. I prefer to call them adventurers or explorers."

Adventurers International expeditions are not all of the "roughing it" type, but they don't follow the typical path of the tourist either. The trips are loosely structured and guests can "have as much adventure as they want." The tour may trek up a mountain to look over the edge of a volcano or eat a peaceful lunch behind a hidden waterfall, Auerbach said. Auerbach sees to it that his adventurers meet the natives, not other tourists, on their trips. On a Caribbean island, they eat what the natives eat — like mountain chicken (huge frog's legs) or goat's water (a thick goat's stew).

On trips into the Everglades, where Auerbach works closely with the Seminole Indian historical society, guests eat with the Seminoles their staple, a porridge-like food called sofkee.

Not sent out on wild goose chases and closely supervised by professional guides and archaeologists, the adventurers use metal detectors to sweep the ground in search of artifacts. In the spirit that the fun is in the

You can't be a pirate these days but Stuart Auerbach of Maitland is an adventurer who leads others toward treasures like pieces of eight and doubloons represented by these replicas in a display case in his office. As director of Adventurers International, he takes other explorers in search of treasures in Florida and the Caribbean.

searching and making the find, historical and cultural artifacts found on expeditions are turned over to museums and historical societies.

Findings made are usually old coins, military buttons, weapons, bullets, and cultural artifacts. Auerbach said he gets a thrill watching the face of "someone from Minneapolis, Minn., or Baltimore, Md., find a musket ball that originated in England."

"We even discovered a huge cannon (in the Everglades)," Auerbach said. "It is exciting to dig down six or eight feet, hitting solid iron, then dig it out of the ground."

"But without meaning to sound corny," he added, "the best treasures I've found are the people I have met."

Armed with metal detectors, people on the tours come from all over the world and every profession. They often include whole families and about 80 percent are repeaters who have come back for more. One long-time adventurer is a 75-year-old woman who Auerbach said has climbed mountains in the Caribbean keeping up with the youngest of the group.

One of his regulars, on his ninth trip to Everglades, found a medal struck during the presidency of Andrew Jackson. Auerbach said the medal is believed to be one of only four that was struck and was turned over to the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D. C. If authenticated, its value could range from $100,000 to $250,000, Auerbach said.

Auerbach's next scheduled expedition is one-day trip to a Seminole Reservation in the Everglades on April 25. The charge is $30 for Adventurers International members and $35 for non-members. The price includes round trip bus transportation from Maitland, entry fees to the Reservation, Seminole Indian guides and a catfish dinner with the Seminoles. Metal detectors can be rented for $13.50. Two tours of the Bahamas are scheduled for June 22-28 and Sept. 1-8.

A member of the Explorer's Club and other archaeological and adventure organizations and past president of the Seminole War Historical Society, Auerbach works closely with museums, sometimes as a consultant, and with foreign governments when searching for treasures.

"I am very historically oriented," Auerbach said. "I believe items of cultural and historical value deserve a place in museums. A private collection is not the place for these things."

Auerbach said he has no private collections of his own, except for a coin collection locked in a bank vault. Displays in his home and office are mostly replicas of treasures he has found.

"My goal is to try and bridge the gap between amateur and professional archaeology," Auerbach said. Just as he uses professional treasure hunters and archaeologists as guides for expeditions, he would like to see archaeologists use trained amateurs to save artifacts.

"People with a tremendous interest in history are blocked from Archaeology for a number of reasons," Auerbach said. "An amateur may stumble on an area, but if he's not trained and doesn't know what he's doing, he could destroy the place."

"It's not because he's a bandit, but because he is tremendously fascinated by old things," Auerbach said. Because of the zeal of the serious amateur, "we could lose some valuable history," he said.

He added he also fears much of Florida's history is being "paved over."

He said he would like to see the state develop a program of courses to teach amateurs to help save some of that history.

Trained to use metal detectors by the army, Auerbach worked with 60-pound equipment that "broke your back" clearing mine fields in Lorea in the early 1960's. Back in the United States, he used his expertise with detectors to search for artifacts on his own.

His interest in history and knowledge of metal detectors lead him on expeditions and into research in museums and libraries in Europe and into collecting different types of metal detectors.

When he began to be sought out for his knowledge of metal detectors and their use, Auerbach decided to go into business of selling the devices. His reputation for exploring also grew when people started asking to go along with him. "My friends had friends and so on," he said. Then he decided to combine the two businesses.

He now uses a computer and Telex to keep up dated on treasure finds and other information from all over the world.

The metal detectors, now much lighter than they were in Lorea, are transistorized and range in price from under $100 to as much as $750,000. Auerbach has supplied detectors to U. S. Steel, the space program, universities, historical societies, police, Federal drug agency, military of foreign nations and for the last search made for Amelia Earhart.

"The tool is only as good as the person using it," Auerbach said, but he said he can teach anyone the basics in 10 minutes.

Searching vacant lots or beaches is a "clean, fun, really good hobby" for anyone, Auerbach said. "Families love it and age doesn't make a difference." Doctors recommend older people use metal detectors because they get a lot of exercise, walking and bending, Auerbach added.

Planning expeditions of his own, Auerbach said he has knowledge of many treasures he wants to search out, including a map locating what he believes was the first city built in South America.

"My problem is I won't live long enough to do it all," he said.

Auerbach demonstrates the chief tool of the treasure hunter, the metal detector, to Jay Boltz of Sanford. Auerbach learned to use metal detectors in Korea where he cleared mine fields during the war.

TV Gets Twain Story

"You have the two greatest gifts of a writer, memory and imagination," wrote John Hay, soon to be America's Secretary of State, to Mark Twain. The occasion was the publication in Atlantic magazine of the first installment of "Life on the Mississippi."

"The Private History of a Campaign that Failed," to air Monday, April 6 on PBS (check local listings for air times in your area) covers the period of Twain's life immediately following the segment covered in "Life...." "Life on the Mississippi" is based on young Samuel Clemens' (Twain's real name) experiences as a riverboat pilot from 1857 to 1861. He resigned as a pilot when growing hostilities in the Civil War made river navigation too dangerous. Like 50,000 other young Missourians, he joined one of the loosely-organized militias then forming all over the state to drive the Yankees off Missouri soil. Twain wrote "Life on the Mississippi" in 1883. Two years later, in 1885, he wrote "The Private History of a Campaign that Failed," which was first published in Century magazine. It dramatizes his short period of service as the second-in-command of a rag-tag group of teen-agers who called themselves the Marion County Rangers and whose battle experience as a group was limited, at least in the story, to the accidental ambush of a solitary civilian. The first taste of war was enough for Twain; he resigned his "commission" and headed West.

It was not until almost 45 years later, in 1904 or 1905, that Twain wrote the intense short essay called "The War Prayer," which is dramatized in the PBS special as an epilogue to "The Private History of a Campaign that Failed." "The War Prayer" is an anti-war piece of such great power that its author forbade its publication during his lifetime. Twain was a different man when he wrote "The War Prayer": older, more cynical, deeply convinced that human behavior is motivated by selfishness. "The War Prayer," in addition to being a rousing sermon against war and bloodshed, is an indictment of the shortsightedness that prevents people from understanding that victory for their side is achieved at the expense of misery for the

Kelly Pease (left), and Harry Crosby are brothers who learn that war is without glory in "The Private History of a Campaign that Failed."

Wicked Witch Is Really Animals Friend

By RUTH THOMPSON

How much do celebrities care about the good causes they support publicly? Most often the good deeds are deeply felt personal commitments. And nobody has stated it better, or with more gentleness, than Margaret Hamilton.

The beloved veteran actress recently wound up seven years as Cora, the shopkeeper promoting a nationally distributed brand of coffee. But every year she is seen as the wicked witch of the west when the timeless movie classic "The Wizard of Oz," replays on television.

It seems odd that, in the film Miss Hamilton menaces Judy Garland's little dog Toto, because from her own early childhood, she was taught respect, as well as love, for all living creatures.

Before Margaret Hamilton became an actress she was a kindergarten teacher. At least some of the lady's real personality was — and is — evident to youngsters because, she says, they all seem to know she was only play-acting as the witch and are sorry "she melted down."

Perhaps that's why she's such a convincing TV spokesperson for a cause she supports, Friends of Animals. Yes, she wants people to adopt strays from agencies but never to make them a Christmas, or Easter "surprise." She said, "It's not fair to bring an animal who is probably frightened by new surroundings into a strange home on a gala holiday, when people are preoccupied with celebrating. Make it a little later so the dog or cat can have a few quiet days to become reassured and to learn the house-breaking rules expected of it ... when to go out for a walk, or where the litter box is."

Hellman Portrait To Air On PBS

By RUTH THOMPSON
The movie "Julia" covered only one phase of playwright Lillian Hellman's life, but it has often been suggested that she should have a more complete life story told on television. Beginning this week is a five-part production by KERA-TV in Dallas for PBS titled, "Portrait of Lillian Hellman."

Miss Hellman never seems to stop making news. She endorsed movie superstar Elizabeth Taylor as suitable to portray the Regina role in a revival of her play, "The Little Foxes." Tallulah Bankhead had the part in the original stage version, while Bette Davis did the honors in the movie.

The playwright was happy until she discovered that the huge Winter Garden in New York would be the theater where her play was to open. The powerful lady with the pen said no and the play's producers are looking for a more compact Broadway house.

"The Little Foxes," co-starring Maureen Stapleton, is currently being performed in Washington, D.C., before its May 7 Broadway run. You can get a personal glimpse of Lillian Hellman on "Portrait of Lillian Hellman."

Sheriff Wants To Put Jail Inmates To Work

By BRITT SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

Talk about killing two birds with one stone. Seminole County Sheriff John Polk thinks he has found a way to cure, 1) his problem of overcrowding at the county jail, and 2) the local manpower shortage resulting from cutbacks in a federal jobs program — put prisoners to work.

The idea has gotten tentative approval from Circuit Judges Kenneth Leffler and Joseph Davis Jr. as well as the county commission. All that remains is to work out the details of how many prisoners could be used in the work-release program and what type of jobs they would perform.

Polk is to meet with Leffler, Davis and commissioners Sandra Glenn and Bob Sturm sometime this month to discuss those matters.

The sheriff's proposal is a partial response to severe overcrowding at the jail, a situation which has gotten so bad that many inmates are forced to sleep on mattresses on the floor. Things become even more acute Friday through Sunday when an average of 30-35, sometimes as many as 45, people show up to serve weekend sentences.

As a result of the overcrowding, Polk has asked the commission to enlarge the 226-bed jail, less than a year after the $4.9 million facility opened its doors. He wants a 100-bed dormitory-style addition that would house persons serving weekend sentences, trustees, and other minimum security prisoners. Pricetag for the project has not been determined.

Although the sheriff said his plan would "ease a bad situation, it won't solve it. We'll still have too many prisoners. We'll still need the jail expanded."

While Polk's primary objective is to reduce the inmate population at the jail, "I've always been an advocate of making a person serving time actually serve time. A lot of them out here just sit around and watch TV. I figured with the county losing a lot of its CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act) people, we could use prisoners to fill the gap."

Fourteen CETA workers will be losing their federally-funded jobs April 30 as a result of budget cuts by the Reagan administration. Another 10 CETA employees will work their last day June 30.

As proposed, Polk's plan calls for weekend prisoners to spend Friday night in jail, then report for work at a selected job site the next morning at 8 and work until 4 p.m. They would be allowed to spend Saturday night at home and report for a full day's work again Sunday morning.

"They could do any number of things,"

Polk said. "They could work for the parks and recreation folks cutting grass, trimming hedges, repairing fences. They could do custodial work or routine maintenance."

"During the week, we could use trustees to maybe work in the road department, or the garbage loading stations," he said. "Instead of just sitting around, these guys could do something useful and get 'good time' off," up to 11 days per month of their sentence. For example, a hard-working trustee who is serving a three-month sentence could qualify for release as much as 33 days early, the sheriff said.

Ominous New Reports

Soviet Military Circles Poland

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Despite settlement of the last labor dispute, the Soviets unleashed a new propaganda barrage against Polish dissidents and ominous new reports circulated of a rapid increase in Soviet military readiness in and around Poland.

The State Department said Friday that Soviet military activity around Poland has climbed to "unusual levels," which gave the Kremlin the capacity to intervene at any moment.

The White House said President Reagan was briefed on Poland in his hospital room and the State Department repeated that "Soviet intervention in Poland would have the gravest consequences for East-West relations."

Meanwhile, Poland's parliament Saturday postponed a scheduled Monday session because Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski is "indisposed," the official PAP news agency said.

The news agency said the session was put off until Friday because of the "temporary indisposition of the prime minister." It did not elaborate.

CBS News reported Friday that U.S. intelligence "has now picked up the start of a Soviet military airlift into southwest Poland. Sources say large Soviet airplanes have been landing today at Lignica military air base, presumably to deliver helicopters and other large equipment."

In Washington, State Department and Pentagon officials had no immediate comment on the report.

The Boston Globe, quoting high-placed government sources, reported in its editions Saturday that the Soviets were rapidly readying 12 to 15 army divisions for movement near the Polish border.

This followed a warning by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who was preparing to leave for a tour of NATO countries, that the danger of Soviet intervention had increased since the Solidarity labor coalition called off a nationwide strike last Tuesday.

The new Soviet moves came even though the independent Solidarity union announced it had canceled a strike alert in the north central province of Bydgoszcz, the only place the alert had been continued since the union and the government reached an agreement Monday averting a planned general strike across Poland.

The Bydgoszcz alert was lifted after a government delegation arrived for talks with private farmers demanding the right to unionize. That issue led to an incident in Bydgoszcz March 18, when police assaulted and badly beat a group of unionists, touching off the latest crisis.

In Moscow, the official newspaper Pravda conceded labor calm had returned to Poland but accused Solidarity of waging a "struggle against the party and the state" for control of the government.

Seminole County forester Mike Martin arranged the project to rid the county of its "worst eyesore."

Reagan Budget Shifts To House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House budget writers envision a budget package close to the one pushed by President Reagan, but with more funds for social programs and a little less for defense.

The House Budget Committee will begin drafting a budget resolution Monday, three days after the Senate approved Reagan's requested $36.9 billion in spending cuts for the next fiscal year.

Chairman James Jones, D-Okla., held private meetings with committee Democrats Thursday and Friday aimed at reaching a consensus on spending reductions.

Although Jones was still working on the package he will recommend Monday, he said it will include a $600 million Pentagon reduction that would come from cutting waste. The Senate made no reduction in military spending.

Interviews with committee members indicated Democrats will try to restore some funds for nutrition, education, health and energy programs.

But Rep. Delbert Latta of Ohio, ranking Republican on the committee, has said his party members are "solidly" behind the Reagan package and are not inclined to support anything less.

"The bottom line is they can't support anything other than Reagan," said Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif.

Sunbelt Meets Cornbelt

'Goodies' Swap Delights Students

By CINDY MOOY
Herald Staff Writer

They sent a box of oranges to their new friends and got back a can of dog food.

But Josie Yeisley's fifth grade class at Geneva Elementary School considered the can of Alpo and other items they received last week a fair exchange.

The class has been corresponding with another class of fifth graders in Crete, Neb., since last October. The two classes were matched up—both are in small, rural towns—as pen pals through the Weekly Reader Writing Pals program.

After exchanges of letters, Mrs. Yeisley's class in Geneva sent a box of Florida citrus—oranges, grapefruit, tangerines, lemons—to Jan Morgan's class at Crete Elementary School in January as a sample of Geneva's industry.

Last week, Mrs. Morgan's class sent the box back to Geneva, but filled with items representative of Crete and Nebraska.

Along with the dog food (there is an Alpo plant in Crete), came packages of grains from Crete Mills (bulgar wheat, soy bulgar, corn flour, corn meal, corn soya milk, brewer's grits, corn kibbles, corn flakes, export feed) with pictures of the mills; a University of Nebraska Cornhuskers cup; pencils from Farmland plant in Crete; matches from the local bank; copies of the Crete High School and 'Crete News' newspapers; soybeans, potatoes, radishes, an apple, and popcorn—all Nebraskan produce; maps; a picture of the state champion Crete High School girls basketball team; and, for the teacher, a set of steak knives from the Farmland plant.

Though one group of children knows orange groves, palm trees, tourists and sunshine, while the other knows cornfields, college football and snow, matched grade by grade and town size for town size, they are learning they have much in common though separated by hundreds of miles.

Writing about their families, friends and schools, the students have found common interests like football, friends, farm animals, and it seems, said Mrs. Yeisley, everyone has a horse.

Mrs. Yeisley said only one of her students had ever been to Nebraska and many of her students have never been very far from Geneva.

Besides the knowledge of how other Americans live, Mrs. Yeisley is particularly pleased with the enthusiasm for letter writing that the cultural exchange has brought out in her students.

"It's been a great stimulant for writing," Mrs. Yeisley said. "This is the best class of letter writers I've ever had."

Though they receive a grade for writing letters, "Some of them do it on their own," said Mrs. Yeisley. "I have some students who usually won't do other work without being pushed who have written long letters on their own."

"They really look forward to the letters. When the package came, but without the letters, they were excited about the box, but they said 'where are the letters?'"

"When letters did arrive the day after the package, 'they couldn't wait until they were handed out,'" Yeisley said.

Each of the students have one pen pal they exchange letters with regularly. Mrs. Yeisley said one student was a little disappointed after writing a long letter of several pages, then only receiving a very short one in return, but she told him to write back and encourage his pen pal to write more.

Three other classes at Geneva are also corresponding with schools in other small towns across the country. Peggy Packard's fourth graders have exchanged pictures and letters of themselves and their communities with a fourth grade class in La Farge, Wisc. The third graders in JoAnne Wilson's class have exchanged letters, pictures, Christmas and Valentine cards with a third grade class in Minot, N.D.

Pam Ashby's fourth grade class went a step further with a class of fourth graders in Eyota, Minn. They have been sending cassette tapes back and forth along with pictures. Each student in both classes wrote reports on some aspect of their town or state, then each made five minute recording on the tapes. Mrs. Ashby's class plans next to give first hand accounts of the space shuttle on the next tape and will include a recording of "Blast Off, Columbia," a country music song written by Jerry Rucker, the father of one of Mrs. Ashby's students.

In time, the classes may exchange marigolds—each class receives a package of marigold seeds to plant along with the name of their new pen pals. Marigolds are the symbol of friendship.
