DIXIE GIRLS GET FILM CONTRACTS

'KIDNAPED' GIRL DEFENDS HUSBAND

Dorothy Bradley Roman, 18, defended her husband, William Roman, when he was tried at Louisville, Ky., on her parents' charges that she kidnaped her 18-year-old son, who had just married her. Roman, 21-year-old Illinois banker, is shown holding their 18-month-old son, William, Jr., as he and Dorothy left the court house. The jury's verdict was that the kidnaping was a joke. President Defends AAA As Supreme Court Opens Case

Political Profiteers Trying To Stir Up Strife Are Accused In Chicago Speech

COURT TO RULE ON LEGALITY OF ACT

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—(AP) President Roosevelt declared today that "political profiteers" are seeking to stir up city people in opposition to the New Deal farm program which he defended at almost the same hour that it approached a crucial test in the Supreme Court. The program was aimed, he said, "to stop the rule of lout and class that these farmers sit idly by and let them sit idly by."

Prize-Winning Fruit Display Being Planned

Committees Working On This County's Contributions To Orlando Exposition

Laying their plans early, committees in charge of the Seminole County exhibit at the Central Florida Exposition in Orlando next February are confident of making such a display of fruits and vegetables from this section that this county will win first prize. They plan to profit from last year's experience and place the exhibits in such a manner that the judges will be impressed with the excellence of the products shown, rather than to make the display simply one of esthetic beauty, though attractiveness will not be sacrificed.

Equality With Both Britain And U. S. Demanded By Delegate From Nippon

PRESENT TREATY EXPIRES IN 1936

DELEGATES FROM FIVE NATIONS GATHER TO PREPARE NEW PACT

LONDON, Dec. 9.—(AP) The United States today proposed a 20 percent reduction in the world's great navies, but Japan immediately rejected the plan. Its representative, Admiral Nagano, chief Japanese delegate, who said such a cut of existing treaty tonnage would only prolong the ratification process by which Japan is limited to the three-fifth naval power maintained by either the United States or Great Britain and therefore not acceptable to Japan.

While the President addressed the American Farm Bureau Federation here, the Supreme Court at Washington opened oral arguments in the House Mills case in which the constitutionality of the AAA is challenged and defended. Evidently striking at his opponents' contention that the AAA is unwarranted encroachment of federal power into the domain of the states, the President said that if states acting separately are powerless to attain balanced agriculture, putting the whole American economy as a "swimming pool." He declared higher farm prices conferred "net benefits" on consumers, although he hit many retail prices as too high.

From here the President went to Notre Dame University at South Bend, Ind., where an honorary degree was to be given him late this afternoon.

He leads me where the people are still

Where is there any peace In the maddened whirl of a frightened land? Girding itself with noise?

Bread And Hyacinths

On a Christmas Eve some years ago, we happened to be delivering baskets to needy families, and at one house we were invited to come in and get warm.

His eyes were as big as saucers and his stubby fingers trembled with eagerness. It was obvious that a present of one's own to unwrap was a breathless occasion in this house.

The boy turned his face to his mother with surprised questioning eyes hoping that there had been some mistake, and she tried to save an awkward situation by saying quickly, "Oh, ain't that nice? Just what you needed."

We do not mean to belittle the usefulness of the gift nor the charity of those who had given their time to fix the boxes. Cotton stockings and woolly blankets, flour and meat, the useful gifts are vitally necessary and indispensable.

A basket of groceries can be transformed from an every day bread and meat affair to an exciting holiday gift by the addition of a vivid spray of red Brazilian pepper berries and some pine cones.

Above all, the unwanted and broken toys in the attics of the lucky children who are always getting new ones can be mended, freshly painted, and given to children who rarely have a plaything.

As a perfect recipe for how to have a really merry heart-warming Christmas that will give a golden shining quality to your New Year, we suggest the beautiful exciting game of playing Santa Claus and trying to slip in a hyacinth or two along with the very necessary loaf of bread.

Seeing America First

A new gypsy class is coming into being in the United States, according to a survey just completed which shows that already no less than 250,000 persons have stopped paying rents anywhere to live on wheels all the year round.

Today, twenty-two companies, chiefly in Ohio and Michigan, are busy manufacturing all sorts of models of motor vans. Theodore Pratt, the magazine's investigator of this new social trend states, "There can be no doubt that the growing appeal of outdoor life, the construction of great camps, the steadily expanding network of fine roads, are temporarily or permanently converting all sorts of people into motor gypsies."

To take care of these modern American nomads "trailer-cities" have been and are being erected on real estate developments. Other units are municipally owned, and there is a federal chain of camps for both trailer and other motor tourists set out chiefly in the great parks.

The largest trailer camp in the United States, according to this authority is at Sarasota. Covering thirty-one acres of ground, this one elaborate plant at one time last winter sheltered over 2,000 such tourists.

THE COMPASS

AN IN OUR DAY By Arthur Dunn

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 8.—At breakfast I read the morning paper including Walter Lippmann's column. His refrain was that the government should "get projects and responsibilities that can never conceivably be permanent functions of the federal government."

Before the morning was over I was witnessing the effects of the federal government getting rid of providing relief. While waiting to see Mayor Walmsley, I observed in the reception room a shabby young woman with a nervous Indian in her arms.

The baby was two weeks old—nothing of them had come that day. The diet of the family for the past three days had been mostly sweet potatoes, and the doctor had told her not to eat them while nursing the child.

The family had been on relief since August, but the last check of $5 had come some days ago and been entirely exhausted for fuel and rent. Unless the landlord would pay $3 at once, they would be thrown out.

The mayor's secretary stood by, listening, and said "The next part about it is, Mr. Dunn, that everything this woman tells you is true. We have 3000 cases like hers in New Orleans right now. We can do nothing for us have no money we can use for the purpose."

Directly after lunch I called at the address she gave me, in a shabby tenement. I found a people living in one small room—the mother, her husband, the two baby, two other children and a widowed uncle with a baby of her own.

"I called on the administrator of the WPA. Yes, they were getting men on jobs as rapidly as possible, but it would take two or three weeks to complete the task. "But," I protested, "people can't survive so long before two or three weeks. How do you care for them in the mean time?"

"We can do nothing," he said, "it is up to the governor and we have to bridge the period." I related this to Mayor Walmsley. He told me that while work was done, he could do nothing about it, for the legislature had taken away his power to either raise or spend money, but he would put the situation up to Governor Allen, at once.

The afternoon paper headlines heralded a rise of $1 to $1 1/2 per share in the stock market, adding millions of dollars to the buying power of people, most of whom didn't need it. The same paper also carried a story promoting against the destruction of thousands of tons of sugar-cane grown in Louisiana in excess of federal allotment.

That evening, as I sat in the hotel somewhat musing on the events of the day, I conversed in imagination with a visitor from Mars. He had been entertained at luncheon by the chamber of commerce, and was glowing with enthusiasm over the wonders of Earth.

STRATEGY REVEALED

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—President Roosevelt revealed in his Georgia speech the strategy of the 1936 campaign for re-election. Whoever in 1932, Mr. Roosevelt equaled to the discomfit of the nation, he will in 1936 appeal to the endorsement of the people.

The change of tactics from 1932 to 1936 is natural and inevitable. Mr. Roosevelt, to argue that conditions are bad and that something must be done about it is to admit that the Roosevelt Administration, though in power nearly three years, hasn't remedied the condition. It was easy enough to blame the Hoover Administration in 1932 when Mr. Roosevelt, as the politician saying goes, "swayed with alarm," but now he must, of course, "point with pride."

The President's optimism about present conditions, his statement that the federal relief administration can go out of business and liquidate and that there are more than 3,000,000 persons in work-related jobs will carry a certain amount of hope, but it will not prove convincing unless the expenditures are reduced with a corresponding decrease in the transfer of relief to the states and the states increase their debt.

Mr. Roosevelt, for example, says that bankers told him in March, 1935, that the United States could stand a public debt of between $5 and $7 billion dollars and that he has no intention of plunging the country into anywhere near that debt figure. But he was talking only of federal debt.

The federal debt is 28 billions and the state and municipal debt is another 26 billions, having risen considerably in the depression, so that the total governmental debt is already in the neighborhood of 54 billions and will continue to go up if the states and cities must do such the people who are being transferred back to their relief rolls.

able assets, of which $1,750,000,000 at least should be credited to the Hoover Administration and not to the public debt of the succeeding administration in this kind of a comparison.

This means that, instead of subtracting from the $5,500,000,000 increase in public debt under the Roosevelt Administration a six billion figure, the amount subtracted should be nearer four billion. The remainder obtained would reveal for the Roosevelt regime a net increase in the public debt of about $4,500,000,000 in two years and a half, as compared with about $2,250,000,000 for the Hoover administration in its entire four-year period.

Had Mr. Roosevelt spoken of the government of the United States and its debts irrespective of what administration incurred them, he could have said that there were $4,500,000,000 recoverables and that the present public debt of $29,500,000,000 would be reduced to $25,000,000,000 some day if the debts pay out at 100 cents on the dollar and if the public debt isn't increased either by further expenses or by losses arising out of the enormous contingent liability which Uncle Sam now has in farm and city mortgages and in other government enterprises.

The President made no mention of these contingent liabilities, yet in any balance sheet of private business they would loom large and important and be a considerable factor in determining whether a business deserves credit. The federal government, according to the latest treasury figures, has about $4,150,000,000 in these contingent or guaranteed liabilities which are an obligation of Uncle Sam if not paid by the borrowers.

The authority has been granted to run this total up to about $4,000,000,000. But assuming that the contingent debt doesn't rise any higher than it is today, it is a safe assumption that there will be government losses here and on the $4,500,000,000 of other recoverables. The Hoover administration had no such contingent liabilities.

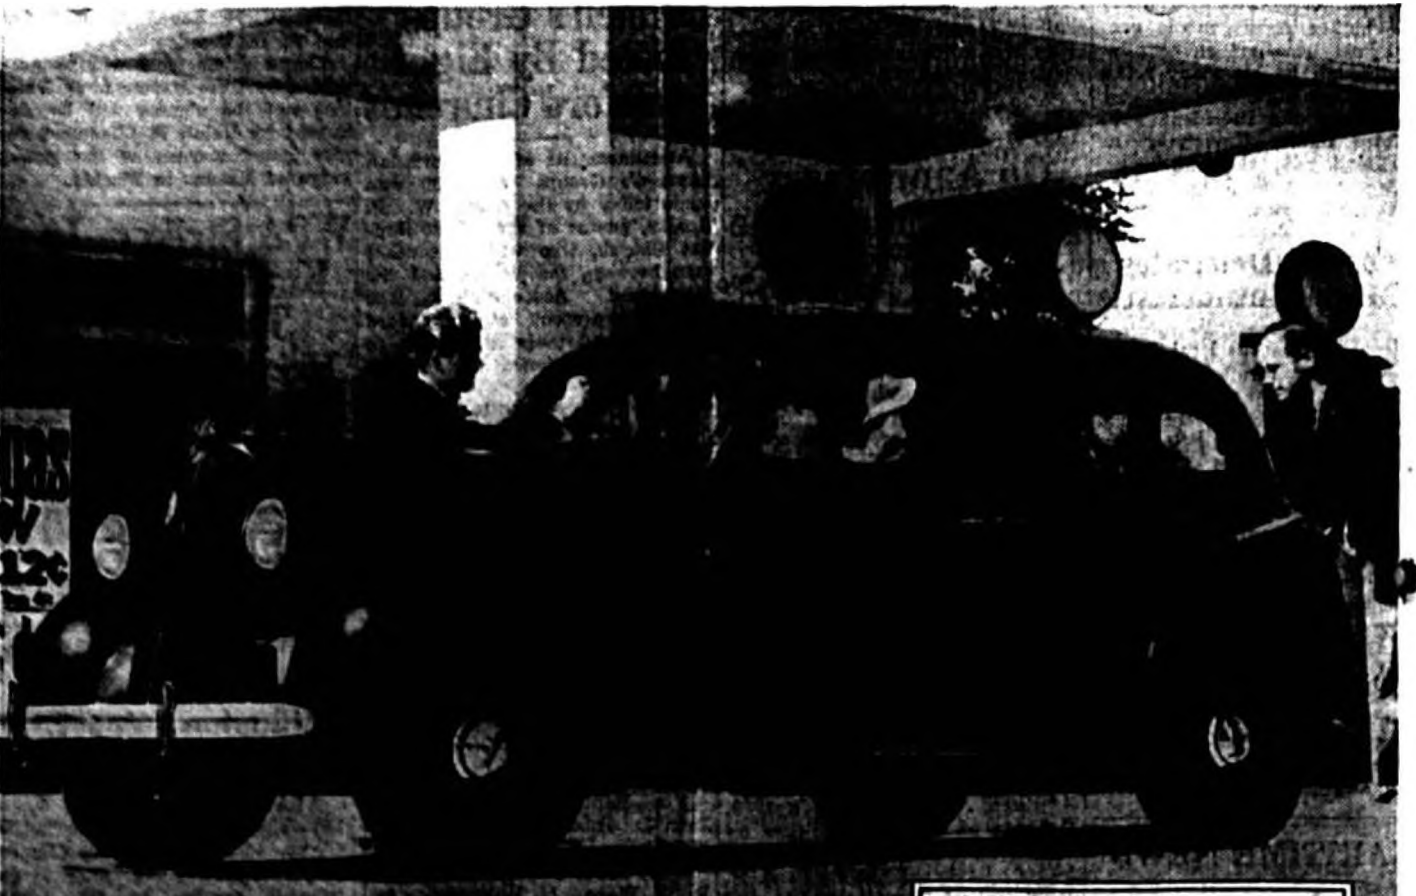

The President is right in one thing—the credit of the government is sound today because business is improving and wealth is increasing in value. His promise of decreasing deficits is welcome news. Financial experts have never been doubtful about America's capacity to absorb even the Roosevelt debt, provided the spending did come to an early end and business was given a chance to earn the profits on which taxes can be collected.

New Year's Ball Planned For Mayfair

Plans were made for the annual New Year's Eve Ball to be given at the Mayfair Hotel at the regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. J. Holly in Mayfair.

As welfare chairman Mrs. E. E. Lewis reported $2.00 spent for groceries to feed a needy family, and as Attractions Day chairman Miss Jeannette Laing stated that wreaths and cards were placed on Veterans' graves on that day.

Mrs. F. E. Koumdiat, rehabilitation chairman, announced that $2.00 had been sent to the Lake City and Bay Lines Hospital and that arrangements had been made with the Legion to place a Christmas tree on First Street for cigarettes and other gifts to Veterans. She also stated that the Auxiliary had assisted in sending a negro Veteran to the Bay Pines Hospital for treatment.

During the social hour Mrs. Holly's granddaughters, Nancy Mae Walker, entertained with songs and dances. Refreshments were served by the ladies, assisted by Mrs. H. B. Lewis.

Those present were Mrs. J. O. Huff, Mrs. H. C. Washburn, Mrs. F. E. Koumdiat, Mrs. J. L. Laing, Mrs. Leslie West, Mrs. H. B. Lewis, Mrs. W. J. Holman, Mrs. J. H. Callough, Mrs. E. J. Holly, Miss Jeannette Laing, and Miss Aranka Takach.

Handicraft Class Will Meet Tonight

The Handicraft class under the direction of the W. F. A. will hold its first class tonight at 7:30 P. M. at the Junior High School with Mrs. Alma Schmidt as charge. Instructions will be given on how to make the various articles which will be on display at the school.

Early Enactment Of Townsend Plan Seen By Orlando Speaker

ORLANDO, Dec. 9.—E. R. E. Clements, national vice president of the Townsend Club, predicted early enactment of the Townsend Plan at the coming congressional session.

Speaking at a dinner tonight attended by some 1,000 people here Sunday afternoon, he said he believed the plan proposed by Dr. F. C. Townsend, an "impossible" bill.

The main meeting was the first of the series of the first state-wide gathering of Florida Townsendites.

Clements, vice president of the plan, said that 50,000 young men out of a total population of 100,000 in the United States are unemployed and that the Townsend plan would provide for them.

Telegraph Office Is Now Open At Market

An independent branch telegraph office was opened by the Western Union at the State Market today, with a direct connection to the Jacksonville relay office, thus removing the relay of messages at the local office when filed at the market.

The sender of a telegram from this branch a transmitter is one of three in the city. The Manager L. Tharp of the Western Union stated.

The branch office at the State Market is in charge of Mr. Chandler, who has been with the telegraph company for 15 years. It is fully equipped, accepting and paying money orders, thus saving a lot of down-town Western Union office. The present office hours are from 8:00 A. M. to 6 P. M. with the exception of the noon hour but these will be extended as the season becomes busier.
