McFellin tops Winter Springs list

WINTER SPRINGS — Longwood City Administrator James McFellin is one of six top candidates for Winter Springs City Manager.

McFellin has also applied for city manager positions in Colorado and Texas.

Before marking one year on the job in his Longwood post, McFellin said he was looking for another position. McFellin and Mayor Paul Lovstrand have been at odds several times during the administrator's tenure. Lovstrand has repeatedly stated he has lost confidence in McFellin but stopped short of suggesting he be fired for lack of majority backing from other city commissioners.

Of the 211 applicants for the Winter Springs position, the top candidates are: McFellin, Eustis City Manager Michael Stearman; Randall D. Byrne, Grand Blanc, Mich.; George Forbes, Boulder City, Nev.; David L. Greene, DeSoto, Mo.; and Jeffrey Minor, Okemos, Mich.

In January, Dick Rozansky was fired after 14 years as the city manager. He was the only city manager Winter Springs had ever had.

Former Winter Springs Police Chief John Goryubik was appointed acting city manager until a new one is hired. State law prohibited Goryubik from holding two offices so he resigned as police chief. He did not apply for the city manager post.

Three generations sky-dive

DAVIS, Calif. — When it comes to keeping up with her daughter and granddaughter, Pat Kirk is kept jumping — this time from an airplane.

The 65-year-old made her first sky-dive Wednesday, with her daughter, Suzanne McKinley, 46, and granddaughter, Brenna McKinley, 21, nearby. "It was wonderful. I can't believe I waited until I was 65 to do it!" Kirk exclaimed after the trio hit the ground safely.

Kirk, of Edmonds, Wash., had been tossing around the idea of sky diving since last year when her son-in-law suggested a three-generation jump.

"It seemed like the whole family was doing it, so it was just a matter of time," she said.

Mrs. McKinley, of Fort Bragg, Calif., was making her fourth jump. Her daughter was making her third.

The three women jumped tandem-style — with a "jumpmaster" strapped to each of them. But Mrs. McKinley said she couldn't help but worry about her mom as the plane took off from Yolo County Airport.

"When I saw her in the plane, I thought, 'My God, what have we gotten her into?'" she said.

The most recently reported three-generation jump occurred on May 12, 1992, when 77-year-old Dorothy Clinch, her son and his son-in-law took the plunge in Omaha, Nebraska.

Murder case: No bail

Last person to see Lake Mary girl alive remains behind bars

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A Seminole Circuit Court Judge has denied bail for a man charged with murder in the disappearance six years ago of a Lake Mary girl.

Judge Alan Dickey denied bond Wednesday for Anton Daryl Meyers, 32, who was indicted for first degree murder in the disappearance May 25, 1987 of Kathy Engels, 14. Meyers was the last person ever found to see Engels alive.

Meyers' attorney Ed Leinster requested that reasonable bond be set claiming the evidence against Meyers was not great and the testimony of questionable witnesses was presented to the grand jury, after which his client was indicted. Three witnesses who testified before the grand jury were prison inmates. The attorney also argued some of the case evidence is circumstantial and no body has ever been found.

Leinster presented his arguments at a June 23 hearing. Assistant State Attorney James Braedyn argued against bond. Dickey withheld his ruling at that time in order to review case law and the investigation file.

In his eight page order with supporting exhibits, Dickey stated, "In a capital case or a crime punishable by life imprisonment, the defendant is not entitled to bond as a matter of right if the proof is evident and the presumption is great."

Transcripts of interviews with two inmates, prisoners to whom Meyers made statements, "can be fairly characterized as a confession. If those statements can be considered by the court, the defendant's proof of guilt is evident and the presumption is great for the purposes of this motion."

County searches for ways to cut water use

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners accepted a regional task force's recommendations to find ways to cut down on water use in the county, but will discuss further recommendations to eliminate new septic tanks and to strengthen stormwater cleanup standards.

Commissioners have tentatively included $125,000 in their 1993-1994 budget for the study, expected to cost $200,000. County Manager Ron Rabun said the county will look to the cities to participate in the study funding.

But in his task force report, chairman Donald Newnham, Altamonte Springs Public Works director, added other areas of concern. Among Newnham's suggestions were the requirement of on-site retention of heavy downpours for possible use in irrigation or groundwater recharge. He also recommended increasing pollution controls on stormwater to protect rivers and lakes.

Newnham also included a suggestion for eliminating the future use of septic tanks to help recover wastewater for treatment and eventual reuse and to cut down on yardsize, reducing demands for irrigation.

Commissioners were concerned at the financial implications of the proposals and called for another discussion session.

"We're talking about major expenses here," said Commissioner Dick Van Der Weide.

Teen to help pay for fire damage

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The youngest of three defendants charged with setting the fire which caused over $4 million damage to Tuskawilla Middle School was ordered to pay $2,500 restitution Wednesday.

Seminole Circuit Court Judge O.H. Eaton, Jr. ordered Jason Best, 16, to pay the money by the time he is 19. Eaton sentenced Best to community control with juvenile sanctions early in June after the youth pleaded guilty to arson and burglary. Best is in the custody of the department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) until he is 19.

The two other defendants charged in the school fire, Leon Micah Conway, 18, and George Tye Smith, 18, pleaded no contest to arson and burglary. Conway was sentenced as a youthful offender to four years in prison followed by two years probation. It was recommended he attend the state boot camp. If he completes the program, whatever prison time

Officials cite problems, grill jet ski race organizer

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — When Bill Stone requested a special event permit from the Sanford City Commission, he didn't expect problems. The event was approved, but with stipulations.

Stone is the organizer of the "Hot Water Tour" of jet ski races. One event was held last weekend. His new application was for Aug. 8, at the same location, behind the Holiday Inn, on Sanford's lakefront.

During Monday night's work session discussion of the request, City Manager Bill Simmons explained a number of complaints he had received regarding the past weekend's events.

"It just didn't occur as scheduled," he said. "Parking and vendors were supposed to be limited to the Holiday Inn side of Palmetto Avenue, but people were all over."

"The vendors, none of whom had an occupational license, were in competition with other marina tenants and that is not allowed," he said. "The jet ski operators also didn't follow the no-wake restrictions as they went through the approaches."

Simmons also suggested the commission stipulate that the number of off-duty police officers hired to oversee the event, be increased from two to four, and they start their day at 7 a.m. rather than 9 a.m. as originally requested for the previous event.

Motorcycle safety class under fire

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — It's all a matter of perspective.

The way Fred Roberts sees it Seminole Community College is "giving away" the motorcycle safety class. The college sees it as a money-saving proposition.

The board of trustees at SCC has started to look at the concept of turning the management and instruction of their motorcycle safety program over to the Central Florida Safety Council. They will vote on the option at their meeting on August 10.

According to Roberts, who operates the Lifetime Schools Motorcycle Safety Programs and formerly served as an adjunct instructor at the college, the "greedy bastards" at SCC are more interested in making money than they are in providing quality safety instruction.

The Central Florida Safety Council, he said, has "never ever conducted a motorcycle safety class."

A cooperative agreement expected to be signed by the college and the safety council specifies that the agreement is based on each party's "successful history of providing traffic

Fire bomb kills one, injures four

POMPANO BEACH — Someone tossed a fire bomb into a grocery store, burning one person to death and injuring four others, police said.

Police have no suspect or motive for the attack at the B&B Fish Market, said Pompano Beach police spokeswoman Sandra King.

The bombing occurred about 10:30 p.m. Tuesday with three customers and the store's two owners inside, she said.

"A man simply opened the door to the market and threw inside a fire bomb, which exploded," she said.

Customer James Smith, 47, a career soldier who escaped unscathed from the fires of Desert Storm, instinctively dropped to the floor and was caught in the flammable material.

He was burned over 80 percent of his body and died Wednesday at Jackson Memorial Hospital, she said.

Two other customers and the owners, Ayoub Basim and Mamou Shehadeh, were treated for minor burns and smoke inhalation at local hospitals.

Officers suspended

OAKLAND PARK — Three Oakland Park police officers were suspended for alleged misconduct that may involve sex, lies and videotape of high-school girls arrested in a recent prostitution bust.

Oakland Park police vice squad Sgt. Glenn Osani and detectives Forrest Santalucia and Brian Rupp — who cracked the prostitution case in May — were suspended without pay since Monday, said Police Chief Edward Overman.

Overman declined to say what the allegations are, but local news outlets Wednesday reported the misconduct as allegations that two of the officers had sex with the teen-agers while the third videotaped the acts from a hidden room.

To their surprise, two high-schoolers, aged 16 and 17, came to their room and offered an hour of sex for $150 each. The detectives arrested the girls but not before having sex with them, according to television reports.

Woman arrested in baby snatching

TAMPA — A woman who snatched a 3-week-old infant drove to a hospital and phoned her boyfriend to say, "I just had a baby — come and get me," sheriff's deputies said.

Lisa Archie, 20, allegedly tried to convince her family the baby boy was her own, but an acquaintance became suspicious after noticing the child looked a little too developed to be a newborn.

The anonymous tip led to Archie's arrest early Wednesday on kidnapping charges, and little Jahmonte Hammond was returned to his mother unharmed.

"I just want to know why she did it — why did she take my baby?" 22-year-old Tony Hammond asked Wednesday as she was reunited with her child.

The spokesman credited quick news reports about the kidnapping Tuesday night with eliciting the tip that led to the arrest.

Junior scores perfect on entrance exams

WINTER PARK — Some teachers and classmates of Michael Fransella think he is the perfect student.

He proved it by scoring perfect scores on both the Scholastic Aptitude Test and the American College Testing Assessment.

"It really doesn't surprise me," said Lynne Burmeister, who was Michael's pre-calculus teacher last year. "He's really a very strong student. The other students were just in awe of his papers; his #1 bills."

The 17-year-old will enter his junior year at Winter Park High School next month. He took the tests in June, earning perfect scores of 1,600 on the SAT and 36 on the ACT.

"I expected to get a good score but not a perfect score," Michael said.

Several national education organizations, including the U.S. Department of Education, don't keep statistics on students who ace both tests. ACT and SAT administrators say they only keep statistics about their respective exams.

Floridians face peonage charges

RALEIGH, N.C. — A Florida family has been accused of enlisting homeless people to work as farm laborers at camps in North Carolina and two other states and of preventing the workers from leaving, federal authorities said.

The indictments charge Willie Bonds Sr., his wife, Carrie Mac Bonds and their son, Willie Bonds Jr., with conspiracy to hold workers in a state of peonage, distribution of crack cocaine and two violations of the federal Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Worker Protection Act.

A U.S. Justice Department statement said the Bonds, of Lake Wales, Fla., operated labor crews in Benson, N.C., Georgia and South Carolina.

The Bonds allegedly recruited homeless people, providing them with drugs, food, cigarettes, alcohol or housing, and then forcing them to work under threat of violence until they paid off debts.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Experts want dentist investigated

By Associated Press

MIAMI — Medical experts are seeking a criminal investigation into whether a dentist deliberately infected patients with AIDS, but state law prohibits action if it isn't likely to end in a prosecution.

"I can't prosecute a dead man," Martin County State Attorney Bruce Colton told The Miami Herald for a story published today. "As much as I want this question answered, as much as it needs to be answered."

Three of six patients who were infected by Dr. David Acer have died. In three years, Florida disease control experts have been unable to determine how Acer, who died in 1989, infected them.

Colton said the investigators turned to him for help, hoping a criminal investigation — and the threat of perjury — would loosen some tongues.

"I don't think they believe some of the people they've talked with have been totally candid about what went on in that office," Colton said. "They just feel like they've done everything they can. They don't want to leave any stones unturned."

While a criminal investigation may be impossible under law, Colton said his office would be willing to review the evidence already collected "to see if there is something they missed, or questions they didn't ask."

John Witte, the top disease control investigator for the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, met with Colton on June 11.

An assistant investigator, Tom Liberti, said the meeting was "merely an inquiry about all the options left to us through the legal system."

"You have to understand, this is an epidemiologic investigation. When we start these things, criminal behavior is obviously not the first issue," Liberti said. "But that was when we only had one victim. Then there were three, then four. Now there are six. At some point you have to wonder."

State Attorney General Bob Butterworth received on Monday a letter from a University of Miami professor and AIDS researcher urging the state to open a criminal investigation. Butterworth's office said he has no jurisdiction, but promised to forward the letter to Colton.

"No one has looked at this case from a criminal perspective," said Douglas Feldman, an associate professor and AIDS researcher at UM. "They're not asking the right questions. They don't subpoena records. They're looking at this from a medical, scientific angle."

State will pay $4 million for land; Disney wants 15

By Associated Press

LAKE BUENA VISTA — Walt Disney World wants an upgraded Interstate 4 interchange built on land it owns at a busy roadway that funnels traffic into its tourist, commercial and residential properties.

Disney says the state should pay $15 million for the 20-acre parcel. But Florida's Department of Transportation, set to begin construction, is only offering $3.5 million to $4 million.

The dispute is headed to court. The tourist giant has been pressing the state for years to improve the crowded interchange at I-4 and State Road 535, one of the busiest in the area and the main access to Walt Disney World Village, its Pleasure Island attraction and hotel resorts.

Disney, however, wants Orange County Circuit Court to throw out state appraisals that say the land is worth $3.5 million to $4 million.

Court documents filed by Disney lawyer Gordon Harris said the state is trying to make Disney pay more than its fair share for roads that will benefit all motorists and other commercial and residential properties.

But a lawyer for the DOT disagrees.

"It's Disney trying to use the taxpayers' money without paying their share," said Larry Gendzier.

Gendzier said the plan for the new interchange was designed by Disney Development Co., and he said motorists heading to and from Disney developments would be its main users.

"That interchange, for the most part, will benefit one large developer," Gendzier said.

The existing interchange cannot handle extra traffic that will come with new developments proposed for the area, traffic experts say. The major one is a 300-acre commercial, hotel and residential development proposed by Disney, called Little Lake Bryan.

The East Central Florida Regional Planning Council has approved Little Lake Bryan with the requirement that the interchange be improved.

Heriah Paul of the Humane Society of Seminole County holds a playful new addition to the collection of animals at the society.

The small gerbil, and at least six others, will supply many hours of entertainment and fun to a happy, healthy household.

Construction manager has questionable past

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — A Department of Corrections construction manager has a questionable history as a home builder.

Homeowners in Tallahassee have won $80,000 in civil judgments against Robert L. Fountain Jr. And in 1990 and 1991, Fountain got poor job performance evaluations from the Department of Corrections. But he's still on the job.

Fountain, 57, said the homeowners exaggerated the problems with the houses. "I know I didn't do anything wrong," he told the St. Petersburg Times in a story published Wednesday.

He was hired by the department in 1989 shortly after several homeowners filed complaints about his work. It appears, however, the complaints were confidential at the time, said Construction Industry Licensing Board officials.

Corrections Secretary Harry Singletary said department officials might not have hired Fountain had they known about the construction license revocation in 1989.

But now, Fountain is protected by career service rules that make it difficult to fire state employees.

"We don't have, based on career service, any grounds to discipline him unless his performance slips," Singletary said. "Today we've got to evaluate him based on what he's doing now."

Singletary said Fountain is a good employee who has overcome his earlier job performance problems.

Fountain makes $28,000 a year overseeing private contractors or inmates doing the work. He is one of about 15 such construction managers, who do not need construction licenses.

Records show Fountain kept a $20,846 deposit a Tallahassee doctor gave him to build a $208,000 custom home. Dr. Joseph L. Webster Sr. requested the money back after financing for the home fell through.

Fountain refused, saying he had done drawings, obtained permits and done preliminary site work. A circuit judge ordered him to give back the money plus $7,600 interest, and the Department of Professional Regulation fined him $1,000.

plaint alleging dozens of construction problems with a $300,000 home and a $40,000 addition Fountain built.

The Construction Licensing Board found 29 defects including mismatched brick and windows, structural problems with the roof trusses and plumbing lines installed above the floor.

In its final order in May 1991, DPR said Fountain had "substantial knowledge of the principles and practices of constructing such residences" but was "grossly negligent" in his supervision of the project.

Fountain's construction license was revoked and he was fined $10,750. The fines weren't paid because Fountain fled for protection from creditors under federal bankruptcy laws.

Chase before arrest

Two Sanford men were arrested Sunday night on charges they threatened three men with a handgun. George C. McCray, 22, and Timothy B. Blanch, 18, both of 2007 Adams Ave., were arrested by Longwood police after they were identified by the three victims.

The victims reported they were stopped at the intersection of U.S. Highway 17-92 and County Road 427 when a van containing two men drove up next to them and exchanged words. One of the victims reported to police that he told the two men "I guess you have a problem" before the van driver, later identified as Blanch, displayed a handgun and threatened "I'll kill you right now." One of the victims reported a chase ensued north on US 17-92 at speeds of 80 to 85 mph until the van pulled alongside and gunshots were heard. Police were called and the van was stopped near the intersection where the victims reported their first confrontation occurred. Police report finding a .22-caliber handgun in the glovebox of the van.

SANFORD — Beginning Monday, Aug. 2 and continuing each weekday for the next four to six weeks, the U.S. Highway 17-92 drawbridge at the St. Johns River will remain closed to large boat traffic throughout much of the week.

The bridge will remain in the lowered position to allow a barge to float pile-driving equipment near the middle of the channel, said Steve Wigle, of the Florida Department of Transportation. Boats lower than about 14 feet can safely pass under the closed bridge, but the span will remain open for taller vessels during the times the Rivership Grand Romance is scheduled to pass, he said.

The bridge will be opened as needed to accommodate tall-boat traffic on weekends and during the hours of 6 p.m. and 6 a.m. Automobile traffic will be unaffected except when the bridge is opened.

FDOT is replacing the 56-year-old swing bridge with a higher, fixed structure similar to the nearby Interstate 4 bridge. The $12 million project will be completed in about a year, Wigle said.

The bridge opening schedule for the next two weeks is:

- Aug. 2: no openings
- Aug. 3: 12 p.m. and 1 p.m.
- Aug. 4: 12 p.m. and 2 p.m.
- Aug. 5: 12 p.m. and 2 p.m.
- Aug. 6: no openings
- Aug. 9: no openings
- Aug. 10: 12 p.m. and 2 p.m.
- Aug. 11: 12 p.m. and 1 p.m.
- Aug. 12: 12 p.m. and 2 p.m.
- Aug. 13: no openings

Low turnout of prospective jurors for riot beating trial

By JAMES ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — The trial of two black men accused of the riot beating of white trucker Reginald Denny began Wednesday with fewer than half the expected number of jury candidates showing up for selection.

Only 118 of an expected 250 prospective jurors appeared at the downtown Criminal Courts building, and Superior Court Judge John Ouderkirk excused 79 for hardship reasons.

Trial for Damian Williams, 20, and Henry Watson, 28, is expected to take three months, and jury selection could take three weeks. Some 250 more jury prospects were summoned for Thursday. Twelve jurors and six alternates will be selected.

"We have a low response rate today," Ouderkirk said before individually questioning candidates pleading hardship for personal reasons.

Williams and Watson are accused of attempted murder, robbery and other felonies in the April 29, 1992, attack on Denny and seven other victims at Florence and Normandie avenues in South Central Los Angeles.

A news helicopter televised Denny being dragged out of his big-rig cab, beaten and hit in the head with a brick in the opening hours of riots that followed the acquittals of four policemen in the beating of Rodney King.

If convicted, Watson and Williams could face life in prison.

A poll of Los Angeles residents last week found six in ten think it is possible for the men to get a fair trial. 74 percent think they should be found guilty and 45 percent say it is likely there will be renewed violence if there is a conviction. CBS News polled 1,103 adults July 20-22. Results have a 3-point margin of sampling error.

A small group of people protesting the prosecution demonstrated outside the courthouse Wednesday morning, and about two dozen police officers, riot helmets at the ready, stood at ease inside.

But in its day...

The Ritz Theatre in downtown Sanford stands as a forlorn shadow of its former self, when movies such as 'The Golden Voyage of Sinbad' graced the screen and played to a packed house.

Renovation attempts over the years have, to date, been unsuccessful, but preservationists still dream of the comeback of the Ritz.

Asian-Americans complain about movie 'Rising Sun'

By JOHN HORN
AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES — Asian-Americans around the country are organizing demonstrations linked to today's opening of "Rising Sun," complaining the movie reinforces stereotypes of Japanese as sinister businessmen.

The crime drama, starring Sean Connery and Wesley Snipes, depicts Japanese businessmen using listening devices to eavesdrop on rivals. Elsewhere, the businessmen are surrounded by white prostitutes and Japanese gangsters.

"It's a ruthless portrayal of the Japanese," Guy Aoki, president of the Media Action Network for Asian-Americans, said Wednesday.

"We're consistently portrayed as trying to take over America. There wasn't a positive character in the film."

Carole Hayashino, acting director of the Japanese American Citizens League in San Francisco, said "Rising Sun" may incite anti-Asian violence.

"When you take that book and transfer it to the screen, visually and emotionally it becomes a more powerful piece — and we are concerned about how it might play out," she said.

"Rising Sun" director Phillip Kaufman said such objections are alarmist. "They're saying people are going to be killed for 20th Century Fox to make a few dollars — that's pretty extreme rhetoric," he said.

20th Century Fox rejected a request by protesters that a disclaimer be added to the beginning of the movie. "Since this movie is a work of fiction, no disclaimer is necessary," Fox spokeswoman Andre Jaffe said.

Connery, in an interview published this week, said he understands the movie may offend some people. But, he said, the Japanese are not squeaky clean. The government, he said, has "bribery and corruption on an astronomical scale."

Some 40 Asian-American groups are planning to join forces and picket theaters showing the film. Demonstrations are planned for New York, San Francisco, Chicago, Washington, Los Angeles and possibly Seattle.

School project quality program

For most middle school students, a trip to the beach is fun and frolic. For a group of 45 seventh graders, it's an opportunity to expand their knowledge.

The students, representing five Seminole County area middle schools, have been participating in a camp at Seminole Community College.

Called SCAMP, it stands for science, computer and math programs. It is sponsored by SCC through a grant from the Florida Department of Education.

Students meet six hours a day, four days a week, for twelve days. They receive training on how deal with some of nature's most perplexing problems.

SCC Biology Instructor Barbara Hunnicutt heads the group. She is taking them to beaches, wetlands, lakes and retention ponds, and teaching them various skills in problem solving.

This group of 45 will be better prepared for the future. They may find it easier to focus on a particular goal for their continuing education.

Hunnicutt, officials at SCC, and the state FDE should be commended for setting up this program. Unfortunately, it was limited as to the number of students which could become involved in SCAMP.

While no additional classes are planned in the immediate future, efforts of a similar nature don't need to stop here.

The SCAMP program stands as an example of what can be done to help educate the children of today, to become better people for tomorrow.

Projects such as these should be considered for smaller groups. No state funding may be forthcoming, but schools and teachers may do well to consider using this hands-on approach in education. Combining real-life events with learned skills can go a long way.

There is no reason why this must only be done at the school level. Parents taking youngsters on a weekend outing could create similar educational opportunities.

Eventually, everyone will be combining their level of education with the way their lives unfold. The SCAMP project has begun by helping 45 students. Schools as well as parents can do likewise.

Celebrating 70 with a former foe

ST. PETERSBURG, Russia — Life is full of surprises. I've always thought the odds were ridiculously long that I would spend my 21st birthday sailing through Cook Strait between North and South Islands, New Zealand. But it was the middle of World War II, and I was on a troop ship, and I did.

But who, even with that much warning, would have dreamed that I would celebrate my 70th in Leningrad, now renamed St. Petersburg? For 45 years, after all, I regarded myself as at war with the Soviet Union, and would no more have asked the Communists permission to set foot on its soil than I would, in the midst of World War II, have asked the Nazis for permission to go skiing in Bavaria. Even after the Soviet regime collapsed, reports on the food and the hotels in Russia were sufficiently discouraging to hold my powerful travel impulse at bay.

But a recent opportunity to tour Russia and Ukraine under circumstances approaching Western standards proved irresistible, and here I am — rounding out the biblical threescore and ten in this old imperial capital of the czars. I will have some observations about Russia (both Moscow and St. Petersburg) and Ukraine (based on visits to Kiev and Odessa) in columns to come; meanwhile, let me share with you a few thoughts on turning 70.

One's first impulse, surely, must be gratitude to one's Creator, for being allowed to live so long in reasonably good health. I would certainly rather credit Him than attribute it all to pure luck, or my own shrewd management — especially when I reflect on how bad that management has often been. (I still smoke four cigars a week, and haven't joggled since my Air Force days, 50 years ago.)

The second thought that comes to mind is that at 70 you're not coasting — you're slipping. I know there are gaffers my age who claim they haven't slowed down at all, and don't intend to; but I regard them with a beady eye.

Memory is, famously, "the second thing to go." But it is soon joined by so many other small disabilities that you spend little time worrying about it. One set of joints or another (the thumbs, in my case) start sending in painful reports of normal arthritic wear and tear. You always assumed your two eyes were pulling in harness, but now discover that one is doing four-fifths of the work while the other is enjoying a free ride.

Here I am, rounding out the biblical threescore and ten in this old imperial capital of the czars.

Your dentist, if he has managed to save your teeth at all, now turns you over to a specialist called a periodontist, who has far more ambitious (and painful, and expensive) plans for your gums.

Thus far we have been discussing, with the exception of memory loss, conditions that others may not notice. But old age is a playful crone, and she enjoys making modest fun of you. More often, nowadays, I find food spots — or even food! — on my necktie. I also tend to drool more. Maybe nobody notices these things either, but I suspect they are just too tactful to mention them.

Of course, there are compensations. If there are children and grandchildren, so much the better. I am lifelong bachelor, but I am a godfather in no less than 12 families, and have shared the pleasure of watching these youngsters grow up and start families of their own.

In one respect, moreover, I have been supremely fortunate. My adult life has been dedicated to the American conservative movement, and I have been privileged to see it grow from an almost invisible blastocyte into the large and powerful entity it is today, with an impressive record of achievements and a still greater potential for the future.

On to 80!

Flood-insurance critics: recede

You would think the carpers and critics would give the poor people who live along the Mississippi River time to dry out before they begin wailing about the evils of living near water and about what a terrible drain on the treasury it is every time the government has to pay off a flood-insurance claim, but they just can't seem to contain themselves.

Here is Rep. Doug Bereuter, R-Nebr., a harsh critic of the National Flood Insurance Program, writing in the Baltimore Sun:

"Some homeowners along the lower reaches of the Mississippi River system refer to (the program) as the 'carpet renewal' policy, since they are hit with river flooding every six or seven years and use the government payments to replace their water-damaged carpet."

Here is a Sun editorial writer on the same subject: "For some Americans wailing and reading about the unprecedented floodwater damage in the Middle West, sympathy and generosity are going to be tempered when they get the bill. ... Hurricane activity is (also) expected ... to be greater than usual this year, and hurricanes can generate enormous flood damage."

I'm beginning to believe they love disasters, these critics. Every time one comes along, they're ready and waiting, armed with propaganda and sky-is-falling pronouncements. Here is Beth Millemann, executive director of an activist group called Coast Alliance, writing in the Baltimore Sun (do they have an eco-freak on that editorial staff, or what?) just days after Hurricane Andrew leveled south Florida last August:

"The grand-daddy (of) federal subsidies is the National Flood Insurance Program. With $220 billion worth of policies, it is one of the largest domestic liabilities after the Social Security system. But because of its financial instability, (it) may shortly become the 'savings-and-loan' of the seas."

Are the critics really concerned that the taxpayers are going to be inundated with flood claims? Conservatives like Bereuter, perhaps. But the loudest mouths, I believe, have a secret agenda. They think seacoasts and river banks are communal lands, like Stalin's farms, and that property owners and business interests should just leave. All their arguments and their "facts and figures" seem to be directed toward this overriding goal.

Trouble is, their arguments and "facts and figures" are sophistic and spurious, and some are pure hogwash. To wit:

— The taxpayers might take a $220 billion bath.

This could happen only if every policyholder was flooded at once. Imagine a Pacific tidal wave stretching from Seattle to San Diego that washes across the continent into the Atlantic. If that happens, you've got your S&L of the seas.

— The flood insurance program is a winner for rich property owners and a loser for everyone else.

Let a former federal insurance administrator answer this one. Write C.M. Schauerle in a letter to the Washington Post: "The NFIP has not cost taxpayers a penny since 1985. All claims ... are underwritten by the ... policyholders."

Howell subject of controversy

Call for resignation

Since Commissioner Howell admits falsifying the document to get his child enrolled in a Volusia County school, shouldn't he now do the honorable thing and resign? His integrity is already shot full of holes. Mr. Howell takes such a cavalier attitude about the matter that it shows his priorities are messed up.

When Mr. Howell admitted that "I made a mistake in signing a piece of paper; if I lose my seat because of it, fine and dandy," points to two things. 1. He was right that he did make a mistake in signing a piece of paper, the one to run for city commissioner; 2. that he could care less if he kept his seat or was an embarrassment to Sanford and his constituents.

Everyone can sympathize with a parent of a child with disabilities but to continue to lay the blame at the child's feet is unconscionable. Mr. Howell obviously knew what he was doing when he signed that paper. It's quite obvious that he thought that he wouldn't get caught. Throughout all of this Mr. Howell has shown that his bad attitude is only exceeded by his arrogance.

This and recent problems with the city commission show a complete lack of leadership and moral fiber. The mayor should ask for Mr. Howell's resignation. Unfortunately cronyism runs deep in the politics of Sanford and the only way that things will change for the better is if people will take a stand against this type of politician.

In closing, I'd like to know if the role model Mr. Howell is communicating to his son is one that says it's okay to cheat and falsify as long as you don't get caught? Resign Mr. Howell, resign.

Loss of trust

I am a registered voter of District 1. This is now the 90s. Not all of us out here are as stupid as you (Commissioner Lon Howell) may think.

Also we know the reason you admitted to making a false statement (to get your homestead exemption) to the Volusia County school to show you lived in Seminole, not Volusia County.

But then again, in another article of your's, you stated your friend and children would be moving here on July 19 or is that another false statement?

You were elected to help the city. How do you expect us to trust you with anything?

Your seat as a commissioner doesn't seem to mean much when you can make statements such as "If I lose my seat, fine and dandy."

The old saying goes one lie leads to another and so on. They all get you in the end.

Support

Please give Lon Howell a break! Sanford City Commissioner Lon Howell has once again come under public attack by his political enemies, this time for admittedly misleading Volusia County school officials as to his residency. Were it not for his reasons for doing so, such criticism as he has been subjected to would be understandable and deserved. But what is at stake here is the life and well-being of an 11-year-old child who had problems prior to his father (Lon Howell) gaining custody of him. I challenge anyone faced with the same situation involving their own flesh and blood to deny that they would have responded in any less pragmatic way. Indeed, if he had put his political future above that of his child, and his son had reacted badly, his detractors would be the first to condemn him for child neglect and misplacement of his paternal priorities. They would have accused him of being an unadulterated political animal, and rightly so.

Lon knew well the risk he was taking politically by determining to save his son by any means available and necessary; yet he made the only choice a father should make in such a situation...he chose to save his son! Anyone so callous and unfeelingly heartless as to seek to exploit the near-tragic situation involving Lon and his son does not deserve to hold or even be considered for political office or any other position which requires at least a basic sense of compassion for the least of our brethren.

Lon Howell was elected to his present term by a substantial majority of voters in his district. I suspect that support has only been strengthened by the facts brought to light in this case. In any event, his constituents are best qualified to judge whether or not he is serving their interests as their district commissioner, and this will be made known when he next stands for re-election.

I hope and believe Lon will weather this latest storm in both his life and political career, and continue to grow as a public servant. Remember, it was he who was most instrumental in pushing to have Ralph Russell named Chief of Sanford's Police Department. Now, even those who objected to the process used in that selection are beginning to concede that Lon's choice and his advocacy were a stroke of genius. If there were an award for "Most Improved Elected Official," Lon Howell would win it hands down!

Some criticism Write a letter

While I enjoy Julian Stenstrom's column in the Herald, I resent repeated publication of his letters to the editor. He has an opinion on the closing of the Navy base? Fine. Who doesn't? But let him tie it into his column, rather than using letters to the editor space.

If the Herald and he wish to enter into an agreement wherein Mr. Stenstrom writes a second column, that is between the two of you. These too-frequent letters, however, seem inappropriate.

Give someone else a chance. BUT, hopefully, not Ricky Sheaffer. I'm sick of him, too.

Please leave space for letters from the community at large. If no one but Stenstrom or Sheaffer writes, perhaps you should recruit letters in that space. You might publish a question and seek responses.

For example: Should city commissioners in Sanford be required to live in their district or be elected at large, as they are in Lake Mary?

Has your family been directly affected by the city's decision to stop funding after-school care at local elementary schools?

What do you think about living in Sanford? To what do you attribute the increase in crime in Sanford?

You get the idea. Mr. Stenstrom and Mr. Sheaffer are to be commended for their interest in Sanford, but the Herald editorial staff should take some responsibility for publishing a more varied view.

I look forward to seeing this, my first ever, letter to the editor — and my last, for a long while.

GM reports $889 million profit in second quarter

By ALAN L. ADLER
AP Auto Writer

DETROIT — General Motors Corp. said today it earned $889 million in the second quarter, a dramatic reversal of a $703 million loss in the same quarter a year ago.

The earnings amounted to 92 cents a share, slightly higher than the consensus prediction of Wall Street analysts. Last year's loss for the quarter amounted to $1.18 a share.

The report from the nation's largest automaker followed by one day the announcements by Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. that they earned a combined second-quarter profit of $1.46 billion.

Combined U.S. Big Three earnings for the quarter were $2.35 billion. The April-June period typically is the industry's strongest, because of high production for the spring and summer buying seasons.

Second-quarter sales rose 3.9 percent to $36.7 billion from $35.3 billion a year ago, GM said.

Chief Executive Jack Smith said the results show "that the GM team can be innovative, responsive and effective. But we must keep the momentum going in our long journey to regain the position of traditional financial strength."

Last year's second quarter loss included a one-time restructuring charge of $749.4 million, or 97 cents per share, for its Hughes Aircraft business.

GM's overall profit reported today also includes part of earnings from its Electronic Data Systems and GM-Hughes Electronics subsidiaries.

In its critical North American operations, GM said it lost $95.4 million, down from a loss of $761.4 million in last year's second quarter. However, before interest, taxes and retiree health care costs, GM earned $675 million in North America in the quarter, a $973 million improvement from last year.

GM has said its financial goal in North America this year is to break even before interest, taxes and retiree health care. That would represent a $4.5 billion turnaround from 1992.

For the entire first half of the year, GM profit totaled $1.4 billion, or $1.34 a share, on sales of $64.3 billion. That compares with a loss of $21.74 billion or $35.14 a share, on sales of $60.7 billion, in the first half of 1992. All but $870 million of the 1992 loss was a one-time accounting charge for future retiree health benefits.

safety programs within the central Florida region.

Roberts said it is not that the safety council doesn't have a successful history.

"They don't have a history," he said.

Gloria Pickar, dean of the open campus at SCC, would not comment on the Central Florida Safety Council's record.

"I don't think it would be appropriate for me to comment until the matter has been addressed by the board of trustees," she said.

Pickar said that the college has elected to pursue having an outside contractor teach the class rather than continuing to employ adjunct instructors, because they were losing money by running the classes themselves.

"It was just not cost effective," she said. "This is more cost effective and it allows us to continue to offer these classes."

Roberts figured that the college was making $10,000 per month with the motorcycle class (based on 80 students per weekend taking the class) and if the new contract is signed which will pay the college $25 per student, they will make about $2,000 per month.

The reason for the change, Roberts said, is that it is "not a cooperative agreement. It is a conspiracy" by the Central Florida Safety Council to corner the market on motorcycle safety classes in the area.

Roberts said he will continue his fight with the SCC board of trustees, though the odds are against him.

"I don't think I'm going to win this one," he said. "I got them to delay a month and I'm getting the word out in the motorcycle community, but I don't expect that anything will change."

First woman Marine pilot says it's no big deal

By CAROLYN PIONE
Associated Press Writer

Marine pilot Sarah Deal scoffs at suggestions she's a groundbreaking feminist.

As the first woman designated to be a Marine pilot, Deal admits it has crossed her mind that she's making history. But she doesn't dwell on it.

"I just want to fly. I've always been interested in flying," Deal, a second lieutenant, said Wednesday from Memphis, Tenn., where she was finishing air traffic control training.

Deal, 23, grew up in Pemberville, about 20 miles south of Toledo, and graduated from Kent State University in 1992 with a degree in aerospace flight technology.

She didn't think she would be able to fly for the Marines. But she was "intrigued" by the challenge the Corps posed, and joined anyway.

"It could be considered an added bonus, but it was not my interest to be the first. It was just my intention to fly, and I'm ecstatic about that."

"People are making such a big deal about this."

Deal will be the only female Marine going to flight school in Pensacola, Fla., next month.

In April, Defense Secretary Les Aspin ordered the service chiefs to drop restrictions on women flying combat missions. The Marine Corps lags behind the Navy and the Air Force in combat-ready women because female Marines have not been trained as flight instructors or helicopter pilots.

Deal won't know whether she will fly combat aircraft until she begins flight school. But she's matter-of-fact about the possibility. Most Marine aircraft see combat, she said.

Simmons said, "and by the time our officers arrive, people have already parked all over the place and traffic flow becomes a serious problem for them."

Co-sponsored by the Holiday Inn, the city also required insurance to name the city as well as the Holiday Inn as additional insured entities.

During the regular commission meeting Monday evening, Stone was on hand, and heard the same list of complaints voiced in the earlier meeting.

"I've been setting up ski shows for 15 years," he responded. "about one year here, and previously in California. I have never run into these problems before."

The commission asked him to explain the vendors. "They aren't selling anything," Stone said. "they were only showing displays of their product lines."

Simmons commented, "I would be willing to bet if I went over there and talked to some of them, even though they weren't selling, they would be happy to tell me where to go to make a purchase and how much it would cost. That, to me, is selling, and it's a violation."

Stone disagreed, claiming the products were associated with jet skis, and were not in competition with other merchants.

"The fact is," Simmons said, "that they were selling water equipment, and that is competition."

Stone asked if the commission would go along with two off-duty police officers if they started at 7 a.m. "With the costs involved," he said, "it would save us considerable expense to have only two."

Commissioner Bob Thomas asked Police Chief Ralph Russell to comment on the request.

Russell said in his opinion, two would not be enough to handle the crowds, that four would be

Special event paperwork trimmed

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — People seeking use of city facilities for special events no longer have to bring the matter before the city commission. The city has fine-tuned the application processes.

Permits will be required whenever city property is to be used, which are designed or planned to attract more than 100 participants and/or spectators.

Properties would include parks, city streets and waterfront areas.

In the past, the City Commission has had two to three special event requests to consider at practically every regular meeting.

With the final adoption of the new ordinance Monday night, only appeals will need commission action.

The ordinance places the decisions in the hands of Mike Kirby, director of Parks and Recreation.

Organizers of a special event are required to file a written application for a permit no less than 30 days in advance. Application forms may be obtained from Trent Schake, Special Events Coordinator, who's office is located in the Recreation wing, first floor, of the Sanford City Hall.

Depending on the event, the forms must include a list of all sub-contractors, vendors, and food and beverage dispensers.

Leasing of buildings and reserving of park facilities for family or company outings are not classified as special events.

The leasing of such city owned structures as the Civic Center or Cultural Arts Center, is handled by Linda Tucker, Administrative Aide with the Parks Department, on the second floor of City Hall.

While the special event permits are not needed for the two buildings, insurance is required: Premiums are based on policies set by the Florida League of Cities.

After the special event requests are submitted to Kirby, they are evaluated by various members of the city staff and departments which would be involved, such as the police and fire departments. Where applicable, the departments will provide written rules and regulations controlling the use of the particular property.

If the request is accepted, the applicant will be notified as soon as possible.

If the request is denied, the applicant will have the right to appeal the decision, to City Manager Bill Simmons. If Simmons agrees with the denial, the applicant can bring it before the city commission and ask for approval.

needed. The commission voted to go along with four officers.

Stone promised the commissioners he would do what he could to keep vendors and parking on the Holiday Inn side of Palmetto Avenue if his request for another event was approved.

The commission eventually voted unanimously to allow the jet ski race event on Aug. 8, providing the stipulations were followed.

Water

The task force, comprised of county and city representatives along with north Orange County representatives, have spent the last year reviewing the five-year study completed in 1991 which showed the county's water supply threatened by overuse and saltwater intrusion into drinking water supplies. Oviedo has already begun to limit pumping due to saltwater contamination.

The study found if current pumping trends continue, saltwater could rise to within 58 feet of Sanford's State Road 46 wellfield by the year 2005. A countywide pumping rate of 28 million gallons per day would deter the saltwater threat, the study found. When the study was released, 52 mgd was already being pumped on average each day for homes.

Studies performed by the St. Johns River Water Management District show Seminole County has water problems, but not as severe as suggested by the study, said Barbara Vergara, groundwater director for the district. Based on current trends, one assessment suggested the water level under Sanford will drop by 10 feet by the year 2010.

The district is currently conducting a study of the area water supply and needs for the next 20 years. The study is expected to be completed next year.

One district study suggested if a proposed massive central Orange County wellfield were developed, the water level at Sanford would drop by another five feet, Vergara said. Orange County has since dropped those plans.

The task force suggested continuing the county's study to determine the impacts of reusing highly-treated sewage and stormwater for irrigation and other uses or returning it to the ground. The task force also recommended that its existence should continue as a regional agency to continue to review information remains on his sentence would be converted to probation time. He will be on probation until he is 24. Last week, Judge Alan Dickey found that Conway did not have the ability to pay restitution. Conway is in the Central Florida Reception Center where he may remain for six to eight weeks awaiting assignment to a correctional facility.

Smith is expected to receive a similar sentence in September. A restitution hearing for Smith may be scheduled after the sentencing.

Judge Eaton said it did not make sense to impose a $4 million judgment because the youth could never hope to repay it. The judge asked Best's attorney, Peter Warren Kenny for a suggestion of a reasonable amount the youth could pay.

Best is residing at the Edgewood Boys Ranch and attending school fulltime. His grade point average is 93 out of 100 and he will spend at least 10 more months at the Ranch, according to the attorney. Kenny said ranch residents are not allowed to have jobs.

When he is able to get a job, Kenny said Best would probably be working for the minimum wage of $4.25 an hour, for 40 hours a week or less during the summers and about 10 hours a week while finishing high school. After taxes and living expenses, Kenny estimated the youth would not have any money left with which to pay restitution for the fire.

However, assistant state attorney Jerry Jones told the court county taxpayers paid $100,000 and insurers paid the remainder of the $4,077,321.88 cost of the fire and asked that Best pay at least something back for the damage he helped cause.

Judge Eaton said he thought $100 a month restitution would be reasonable, "to remind him (Best) what he cost the citizens of this county. It's a token amount, but he could do it. He needs to take some responsibility for his actions."

If the youth is unable to get a job and earn the money, the judge said he could borrow it to satisfy the debt by the time he completes his community control.

The April 1991 Tuskawilla Middle School fire destroyed equipment and the media center and forced about 1,400 students to attend double session classes at Seminole Middle School in Casselberry. The school reopened for the 1991-92 school year.

The defense claims since no body was ever found there in insufficient evidence to make the convicts' statements admissible.

"Of course the credibility of those witnesses will be a matter for the jury to decide, the standard in this motion being in the light most favorable to the state," Dickey said in the order.

The judge said he relied on testimony from Engels' grandfather, Charles Hooper, police investigators, Kathy's friends and their parents that sufficient circumstantial evidence exists that Engels is dead.

Hooper dropped Kathy off at a friend's home about 10:30 p.m. May 24, 1987 in Carriage Cove Mobile Home Park. Later, she called her grandparents and got permission to spend the night. It was later learned that her friend, Lorna Brown had not obtained permission from her parents for Engels to stay overnight. According to a statement by Lorna's father, Robert, he found Kathy and Meyers in his daughter's bedroom between 2 a.m. and 3 a.m. May 25 and made them leave.

When Kathy did not call the next morning to be picked up, her grandparents began looking for her and called police. None of her clothes were missing and money in her bank account was untouched. Although she and her grandparents were close, they have received no calls since she disappeared.

Meyers told police he dropped Kathy off at a Lake Mary 7-11. Meyers said the store was open. However, investigators later learned the store in question was closed.

Other circumstantial evidence considered by the judge in refusing bond were scratches and an imprint of what appeared to be a sneaker on Meyers' right side when police went to question him.

The judge also took into consideration Meyer's prior criminal record in denying bond. Meyer served time in prison for an unrelated sexual battery.

New museum puts special stamp on American history

By RANDY SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — More than a century ago, a cold, homeless terrier puppy sought solace in a pile of mailbags in Albany, N.Y. Workers took pity and let him stay, launching the pooch on a nine-year career traveling 143,000 miles around the world with the mail.

Thanks to the art of taxidermy, the dog maintains a stately place in U.S. Mail history — in a glass case amidst three early mail planes, a stagecoach and railway mail car at the Smithsonian Institution's new National Postal Museum that opens to the public Friday.

"The museum is much more than just a collection of stamps," said James H. Bruns, director of the new facility.

For example, the history of the mail is intimately linked with transportation, he explained, and the 90-foot high central gallery highlights that relationship.

The movement of mail led to the development of post roads and stage routes, steamship routes and air mail as it tied Americans together throughout the nation's history.

Museum visitors are guided along a simulated forest pathway like one followed by mail carriers before the nation had roads.

They are challenged to plot the best route for mail over rivers and mountains — using 19th century transportation.

They are introduced to the joy and heartbreak of letters from soldiers at war.

And, with the Smithsonian's collection forming the backbone of the new museum, visitors are given a chance to see some of the world's rarest stamps and the world's largest library of postal history and materials.

A part of that history is the little dog Owey, who was befriended by mail clerks and allowed to ride along on trucks and railway cars first to New York, then other cities, and eventually on a steamer trip around the world.

But there is more in the 75,000 square-foot museum that occupies much of the former Washington City Post Office adjacent to Union Station.

The three-year renovation to create the museum cost $15.4 million provided by the U.S. Postal Service, which will share the museum's operating costs with the Smithsonian Institution.

Perhaps most moving is "the smallest gallery with greatest impact," in the words of museum curator Nancy Pope — a section devoted to letter-writing. Included is a wartime wife's letter almost pleading for her husband to write that is still alive, and returned marked "deceased."

There is a series of letters from the Maddens of Virginia, chronicling the lives of this family since the 1700s.

There is a last letter to a mother from a young man killed in Vietnam, the letter found in his helmet after his death.

There are also moving letters home from immigrants to the new nation, telling of their successes and failures, concerns and hopes.

Another gallery contains a 1931 Ford mail truck and Charles Lindbergh's application to be an airmail pilot.

The displays on mail and American history include Benjamin Franklin's rate chart and envelopes sent by Civil War soldiers and prisoners of war.

Of course, there is a display on the highly romanticized Pony Express, though in reality it was but an 18-month experiment that lost money, evry, hoofbeat of the way.

Special mail problems in cities and rural areas are discussed, including the development of rural free delivery and experiments with pneumatic tube delivery in cities.

Art in cards and letters is featured in an exhibit. Rareties on display include a signed envelope carried on the burned German zeppelin Hindenburg, the famous 1918 airmail stamp with the Curtiss Jenny biplane upside down and an envelope carried by aviator Amelia Earhart.

Even the uniform worn by Cliff Claven, the erudite letter carrier from the television show "Cheers," is on display.

The deficit-reduction plan's final shape depends on enough votes

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Top congressional Democrats begin learning today whether there are enough votes to push a compromise deficit-reduction plan through Congress containing a gasoline tax boost of about 6 cents a gallon.

House-Senate negotiators said Wednesday that they had framed the broad outlines of a new version of President Clinton's budget-cutting plan.

"We have no differences in policy. We have no differences in numbers," said Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

But the bargainers said the precise amount of the gasoline tax boost, as well as other items like Medicare cuts and tax breaks for the poor, would be determined by whatever could attract the most votes.

"That choice has to come from the leaders who will decide what can pass and what can't pass."

Moynihan said. He spoke after Democratic congressional leaders met privately with Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen and other administration aides in the Capitol.

Though their goal had been to nail down the compromise today, Moynihan and other bargainers said the vote-counting and final adjustments to the package could take an extra day or so.

Moynihan said that "for purposes of illustration," leaders might initially seek support for a package containing a 6.5 cent increase in the 14.1 cent-a-gallon federal gasoline tax. House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., said the number most frequently mentioned by bargainers was 6 cents.

Liberals also were looking to expand several anti-poverty programs and protect Medicare from cuts, while conservatives were eager to find savings in those programs.

According to aides speaking on condition of anonymity, lawmakers were considering increasing tax credits for the working poor by $21 billion, $7 billion less than Clinton wanted.

Plan: Pay $75 monthly for an extra year of life

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Picture this: If you sign up with Health Plan A, your monthly premium will be $375 a month and your life expectancy will be 75 years. Health Plan B will cost you $450, but it may also give you an extra year of life.

Such comparisons are the dream of medical researchers, entrepreneurs and politicians who say the public needs more information about the quality of the health care they buy.

"Right now all you and I get when we choose a health plan is what the premiums cost. That's it," said Dr. Robert Brook, director of health sciences at the Rand Corp., a Santa Monica, Calif., think tank, and a medical professor at the University of California, Los Angeles.

The art of measuring doctors, hospitals and health plans by their performance is still in its infancy, but the Clinton administration's health reformers are promising to give it a big push.

They envision giving consumers detailed report cards on the health plans they will be choosing from, even if the information stops well short of life expectancy.

"We're trying in every aspect of health reform to put consumers in the driver's seat," said Robert Boorstin, a White House spokesman.

Boorstin said these report cards would include such information as how long patients must wait for an appointment, whether they can see the same physician each time, what percentage of babies are delivered by Caesarean section and how many people quit a health plan.

Those statistics and others may give Americans a rough idea of a health plan's quality.

But the report cards won't tell people definitively what the best plan is for someone with, for example, prostate cancer — or someone who wants to avoid it.

"We are at least five years and maybe even longer from developing measures to tell what your probability of dying is if you join Plan A or Plan B," said Brook.

The report cards will only be as good as the data they are based on. Brook said routinely monitoring quality of care could cost from $1 billion to $5 billion a year.

Janet Corrigan, vice president of the National Committee for Quality Assurance, a Washington-based group that has drawn up 60 standards for managed care plans, said immunization rates, Pap smears, mammograms all can be readily measured.

But "it's harder to design performance measures for how well a health plan cares for the chronically ill or mental health or substance abuse," said Corrigan. Most medical records now are gathered for billing and management purposes, not to judge quality, she noted.

Dr. Raisa Lavizzo-Mourey, who co-chaired the White House reform task force's working group on quality assurance, called medical report cards "the wave of the future."

Lavizzo-Mourey, deputy administrator of the U.S. Agency for Health Care Policy and Research, said the initial report cards will stick to relatively simple issues such as patient satisfaction and access, but they will rapidly get more sophisticated.

Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., a crusader for consumer information, thinks the public has a right to see what is in the National Practitioners' Data Bank, which records malpractice awards and disciplinary actions against doctors.

The government has published hospital death rates for Medicare patients since 1986. New York discloses coronary bypass surgery mortality rates for its hospitals and surgeons. And Pennsylvania recently compared costs and outcomes at its bypass surgery hospitals.

The corporate world, staggered by medical bills, has jumped on the report card bandwagon.

FBI has gained new targets since Freeh was agent

By CAROLE FELDMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The FBI that Louis Freeh is coming back to lead has some new enemies — carjackers, Asian gangs, fanatical bombers — and new problems with resources and morale.

But in the 12 years since Freeh left the agency, the FBI has developed some new, high-tech ways to catch lawbreakers.

And the headlines are turning favorable: "Suspects Arrested in World Trade Center Bombing"; "FBI Thwarts Plot to Blow Up United Nations and Tunnel to New York"; "Agents Thwart White Supremacists' Attempt to Ignite Race War in Los Angeles."

True, they were only arrests, not convictions, but they still helped to lift the image of the nation's premier law enforcement agency.

"The FBI has had a little bit of its glamour restored," said Sanford J. Ungar, dean of the American University School of Communications and author of a 1975 history of the FBI.

There is added satisfaction inside the bureau because a former special agent was nominated to be director. Freeh's confirmation hearings begin today. Already his nomination has garnered bipartisan support, and he is expected to easily win confirmation.

Freeh would head a bureau with 10,479 special agents, a budget of just under $2 billion — and its share of problems.

The botched attempt to force the surrender of a religious cult in Waco, Texas, the long debate over Director William Sessions — fired this month by President

Clinton — and pending charges and countercharges of racial discrimination have created tensions and morale problems within the bureau.

More recently, questions were raised about why a federal informant inside the alleged New York bomb terror group two years before the Trade Center blast apparently provided no warning to avert that attack.

"There may be frustration, there may be disagreement, but an agent is an agent," said Larry Heim of the Society of Former Special Agents. "This past year, there was no slacking of the effective law enforcement by the FBI."

Critics say the FBI is spread too thin, its mission is unfocused and it does not have enough resources for its new responsibilities.

When Freeh was a special agent, from 1975-1981, the FBI had three national priorities: white-collar crime, organized crime and foreign counterintelligence. Since then, three have been added: violent crime, terrorism and illegal drugs.

Congress keeps expanding the FBI's jurisdiction, adding carjacking and other street crimes once handled by state and local authorities. The bureau also has jurisdiction over divorced parents who do not pay child support.

"One of the problems that has emerged is the federalization on a wholesale basis of crimes that should be state crimes," said Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., a former FBI agent who chairs the House Judiciary subcommittee overseeing the bureau. "We're not supposed to have a national police force in the United States."

FBI Head
Louis Freeh

Freeh is going to have to deal with the problem of burgeoning FBI jurisdiction, bureau spokesman Charlie Mandigo acknowledged. "Not only does it stretch the resources, but it also arguably is not a good use of federal resources."

But the FBI has new technology to carry out its new responsibilities. Sessions overhauled the fingerprint files, pushed the use of DNA fingerprinting and improved bureau computers.

Federal prosecutors and the FBI have new asset forfeiture, drug kingpin and career criminal laws and have found new uses for older laws like the Racketeer Influenced Corrupt Organization Act, which allows the bureau to go after whole crime organizations, not just individual criminals.

Dems push for Senate vote on Clinton's national service plan

By ROBERT NAYLOR JR.
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Senate proponents of President Clinton's plan for students to trade public service for college tuition are trying again to force a vote following House approval of the legislation.

Lacking agreement between Democrats and Republicans on scaling back the $2.1 billion program, Democrats hung their hopes today on breaking a Republican stall that thwarted a final vote Tuesday.

Negotiators for both sides met Wednesday but failed to resolve all their differences, aides said. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Sen. Dave Durenberger, R-Minn., sponsored a Senate amendment incorporating the concessions the Democrats were willing to make. But it did not have the OK of Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, the GOP floor manager of the legislation, who wants a much smaller program than Clinton has proposed.

The Kennedy-Durenberger amendment proposed spending $300 million in the first year of the program, $500 million in the second year and $700 million in the third year.

Senate negotiators agreed to shorten the term of the program from five years to three years and to tax the stipends received by wealthier students.

Clinton's National Service Trust proposal emerged essentially unchanged from the House on Wednesday on a 275-152 vote.

The president praised the vote, saying the action "proved that government can work — without partisan rancor — in a spirit of community and for the common good."

"Now that House Republicans and Democrats have joined in this great act of civic service, I urge Republican senators to put partisan politics aside and do what is right for this country," he said in a written statement.

Majority Democrats in the House were primarily responsible for passing the proposal. While 248 Democrats favored it, only 28 Republicans did. Five Democrats opposed the bill, and 147 Republicans voted against it.

Under Clinton's proposal, college students could earn up to $10,000 in tuition assistance in return for two years of community service. They also could receive stipends of at least $7,400 a year and health-care and child day-care benefits.

The House reduced the tuition assistance figure to $9,450 from $10,000. The program would be authorized for five years and would be up for review after that period.

Republicans objected that participants in the service program would have a better college aid program than military people do.

"This is going to hurt military recruitment and it's going to have an adverse impact on the military preparedness in the long run in this country," said Rep. Dan Burton, R-Ind. "I think there should be no comparison whatsoever between the benefits for those who risk their lives for this country and people who go out and work in a park someplace."

Under the Montgomery GI Bill, military people who put up $1,200 of their own money may accumulate up to $5,250 a year for three years to spend on college tuition.

game with a two-run single and Jay Johnson driving in the go-ahead run with a ground out.
Playtime Darts had a chance to add to the lead when Shannon Split led off the top of the fifth inning with a double, but was stranded at second base as the next three hitters flew out.
Illusions came up with the game-winning runs in the bottom of the fifth inning. Johnny Haddock led off the inning with a single and, an out later, Red Garner singled. With two out, Bobby Garner singled in Haddock to tie the score and John Stewart singled home Red Garner with the go-ahead run.
Haddock led Illusions' eight-hit effort with a pair of singles and two runs scored. Rotundo had a single and two RBI. Dean DuBose and Red Garner each singled and scored a run while Bobby Garner and Stewart each had a single and an RBI. Ricky Wells also singled.
Bubba Split had three singles and had two RBI to pace Playtime Darts. Craig Split and Dan Sacco each singled and scored a run. Shannon Split had a double. Kevin Julian hit a single. John Dunn scored a run. Jay Johnson contributed an RBI.
In the championship game, DuBose and George Porzig hit back-to-back run-scoring singles in the bottom of the first inning to stake Illusions to a 2-0 lead.
Heilig Meyers seized the lead with four runs in the top of the fourth, exploiting a pair of Illusions' errors. Keith Acree led off the frame with a double. Sam Raines followed with a single and Robert Stevens drew a walk to lead the bases.
Dale Peters then hit a ground ball that was misplayed by the Illusions shortstop, allowing Acree to score. Willie Walton tied the score when he drew a bases-loaded walk to plate Raines.
Mike Edwards put Heilig Meyers ahead when he hit into a fielder's choice, scoring Stevens and moving Peters to third base. When Sammie Edwards flew out to third base, Mike Edwards tagged up and went to second, drawing a throw that bounced past the Illusions' second baseman and allowed Peters to score.
Heilig Meyers added to the lead with a pair of runs in the top of the fifth inning. Sonny Eubanks led off with a single, went to third on Mike Merthie's single, and scored on a sacrifice fly by Mike Broderick. After Acree singled Merthie to third, Raines hit into a fielder's choice that scored Merthie.
Illusions got a run back in the bottom of the fifth when Bob Garner reached on an error, moved to second on Rotundo's single, and scored on John Stewart's double.
Acree highlighted the seventh-inning offense of Heilig Meyers with a double, single, and a run scored. Raines contributed a single, one run, and an RBI. Eubanks and Merthie each singled and scored a run. Mike Edwards had a single and an RBI.
Stevens and Peters each scored a run. Walton and Broderick both had an RBI. Calvin Bryant contributed a single.
Stewart collected a double, single, and an RBI to lead Illusions. DuBose chipped in with a single, a run, and an RBI. Bobby Wells singled and scored a run. Porzig had a single and an RBI. Brian Jones, Ricky Wells, and Rotundo each hit a single. Bob Garner also scored a run.

While it was good enough to win the title, Heilig Meyers' effort in its playoff win over Illusions Wednesday night wasn't flawless. This errant throw that eluded first baseman Sonny Eubanks on a ball hit by Mike Rotundo (No. 23) was one of four errors committed by Heilig Meyers.

Roulhac of Bennette. "He's only 5-feet, 6-inches tall, but he hit a shot that the coaches were talking about all weekend."
Most of the team consisted of rising sophomores who were freshmen at Lyman last year: Nelson Cartagena, Jason Kellman, Hunter Marks, Andy Mayer, Shawn Wade, Robert Houey, and Jeff Propp.
Along with Bennette, who attended Howard Middle School in Orlando last year but has moved into the Lyman district, other rising ninth graders on the squad were Jeremy Simons (from Forest Lake Academy) and Chris Ramirez (Milwee Middle School).
Simons is the younger brother of Charles Simons, who played on the Lyman varsity squad last year as a freshman.

Ready added that participating in the summer camp had the extra benefit of increasing parent participation in the Lyman basketball program.

"It takes a lot of doing from the parents and the kids to make this happen," Ready said. "We had a couple of fund-raisers and things like that, but most of it (the financial support) came from the parents. The parents put a lot of effort into it to make it happen."

It also seems that the positive impact that last year's camp had on the varsity squad wasn't lost on the junior varsity parents.

"When the parents (of the junior varsity team) found out that the varsity was going again this year, they said that they wanted their kids to go as well," Ready said. "That's exactly what we wanted to hear."

streak and he was cheered in opponents' parks when he entered the game. Fans sent him hundreds of letters and all sorts of good luck charms.
Nothing worked until Wednesday.
Through it all, Young continued to be upbeat for the most part and answered all of the difficult questions put to him.
Green said he did his best to get Young a victory, moving him from the bullpen into the starting rotation and back again. The tough-luck Young pitched his best game on July 7 against San Diego, but Andy Benes tossed a one-hitter to beat New York 2-0.
"You've got to be a good pitcher to pitch in the big leagues as long as he has," Marlins manager Rene Lachemann said. "To get the opportunities he's gotten, you have to have good stuff."
The Marlins, who didn't even exist as a team when Young's streak began, twice rallied to tie the score at 2-2 and 3-3 before taking a lead in the ninth.
Young, who had been a starter much of the season, went to the bullpen just before the All-Star break and lost his 27th straight last Saturday to the Dodgers at Los Angeles in relief when he walked in the winning run.

Eyedrops help control glaucoma

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with glaucoma and would like information on the topic. My doctor realizes I'm a very nervous individual and have a tendency to panic. Therefore, he never provides much information.

population that most experts recommend periodic eye examination for all people, starting in midlife.

DEAR READER: Perhaps if your doctor supplied more information, you'd be less anxious. In my experience, withholding facts from apprehensive people merely worsens their apprehension. Like children waiting to get punished, we sometimes anticipate something far worse than the act itself.

At any rate, glaucoma is a common disease of unknown cause, marked by an increase in the pressure of the fluid within the eyeball. There are several types of glaucoma; all are caused by an imbalance between the production and outflow of this fluid.

Glaucoma may cause no symptoms, but as the pressure rises, patients experience headache, blurred vision and halos around lights, which progress to nausea and loss of vision. Untreated glaucoma can lead to total blindness.

This eye disorder is diagnosed by measuring the pressure within the eyeball. Patients with glaucoma should be under the care of ophthalmologists or, in severe cases, eye doctors who specialize in glaucoma.

In most patients with glaucoma, the pressure can be controlled by using eyedrops that promote fluid drainage from within the eye. Drops containing pilocarpine, timolol or betaxolol are the most common. Occasionally, diuretics in pill form may be necessary. Patients who don't respond to medical therapy may have to consider surgery.

Glaucoma is more prevalent in blacks and in persons with diabetes. However, the disease occurs so frequently in the adult

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

We all know the saying that variety is the spice of life. But from whose writing did it originate? The variety of bridge deals can trip up the unwary. Today's deal caught my eye because it seems to exhibit one play technique, whereas it actually exhibits another. How would you plan the play in six spades against a club lead?

South has a problem in both major suits. Probably his first reaction is to try the heart finesse. If it wins, he can take the safety-play in spades: cash the king, cross to the ace and lead back toward the jack. But if the heart finesse loses, South knows he must play the spades for no losers. So he cashes dummy's ace and finesses his jack. As you can see, though, this line of play fails, since both key honors are offside.

However, there is a better plan available. Suppose East does have three trumps including the queen. There is no need to take the finesse, because he can be endplayed.

After winning trick one, cash the spade king and play a spade to dummy's ace. If West discards, lead a third trump, win East's exit and hope West has the heart king. And here, when West's spade queen drops, draw the last trump and take the heart finesse for an overtrick. Yet suppose the spade queen doesn't appear. Cash your other top clubs, discarding the heart six from dummy. Then play on diamonds. If East refuses to ruff in, exit with a trump. He will have to lead a heart into dummy's A-Q or concede a ruff-and-discard.

The original writer of "Variety's the very spice of life" was William Cowper.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 30, 1993

Your probabilities for success in the year ahead are stronger than they were last year. You could also have more opportunities than usual. If you find the formula to make one work, you can make them all work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone you promised to help has taken what you said seriously and is expecting you to honor your word. Unfortunately, you might not even remember the commitment. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N. Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be optimistic concerning events that affect you today, but don't be unrealistic and expect results that are unattainable. Position yourself somewhere near the middle.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) If you hope to gain the support from others today, you must be perceived as one who truly believes in the cause he/she espouses. If you aren't, you might get lonely out on your limb.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your faculties to probe and detect might not be operating effectively today, so instead of garnering information from others you might be the one who reveals more than you should.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An acquaintance who is a historic taker might try to appeal to your compassionate instincts today in order to get you to part with something he/she wants. Be on guard.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're rather indecisive today and this could prove to be counterproductive if you let someone who can't think clearly for his/herself make judgments for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today you might have to cope with negative imaginings which could hamper you from putting forth your best efforts. Act first and worry about it later.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your behavior will be closely observed by friends today, so don't be nice just to persons or pals who you think can help you in some manner. This could make a bad, lasting impression.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Usually you're a rather fierce competitor, but today you might become too easily disenchanted if the opposition stiffens. Don't quit at the first sign of resistance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Failing to carefully listen to what others have to say today could cause you to read meanings into their comments which weren't intended. Misunderstandings are possible.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Check all financial receipts and business documents with extra care today. The probabilities for small mistakes are much higher than usual.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This might not be a good day to offer unsolicited advice to others. Even if your comments are requested, weigh everything you have to say with extreme care.

...BETTER GO GET THAT SODA. DON'T WANT ARIEL TO THINK I'M SPINNING ON HER... ARE YOU SURE NO ONE WILL BE ABLE TO FIND IT? TRUST ME, IT COULDN'T BE MORE SAFE.

The Parent Resource Center will sponsor Single Parents United Support Group meetings on the first and third Tuesday of each month. The meetings for August will take place on Tuesdays, Aug. 10 and Aug. 24 at the Ascension Lutheran Church in Casselberry, from 7-9 p.m.

This support group is designed to provide support and information for single parents who want to learn more about community resources, child care, support and parenting issues.

The support group is free. Child care and transportation can be arranged. For more information or to register, contact the Parent Resource Center at 425-3663.

Hunger Hotline helps

A toll-free Hunger Hotline helping people locate emergency food in their community is now available statewide through the Florida Association for Community Action (FACA). This hotline, 1-800-329-FOOD (3663), directs callers to local resources like soup kitchens, churches and food pantries.

Details on food stamps centers, government surplus food distribution and a variety of meal programs for specific groups like senior citizens and farm workers are also available. Additionally, Hunger Hotline volunteers can refer callers to nearby agencies offering free information on shopping wisely, feeding children on a low-income budget, nutrition for breast-feeding mothers, etc.

Supported by a grant from the Department of Community Affairs, the hotline is the first of its kind in the state. It operates weekdays, 8 a.m. until 5 p.m., from FACA headquarters at 901 N.W. 8th Avenue, Suite A-2, Gainesville, Florida, 32601.

At the movies: 'Robin Hood: Men in Tights'

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

Does the movie world need another Robin Hood? The answer is yes, when the perpetrator is Mel Brooks.

A dozen years ago, Brooks produced a TV series about comedic happenings in Sherwood Forest. "When Things Were Rotten." Praised by critics, it vanished fast: the concept was good, timing was bad. In the wake of Kevin Costner's movie as well as a TV version, Brooks returns to the same territory with "Robin Hood: Men in Tights."

It's his best movie spoof since "Blazing Saddles" and "Young Frankenstein."

The familiar figures are giddily askew. Robin is dashing, but he can slunk a leap onto his horse ("White men can't jump," scorns his black aide-de-camp). Maid Marian is sexually aggressive despite her Everlast chastity belt. Prince John is a neurotic coward with a mole that changes position on his face. The Sheriff of Nottingham (he's called Nottingham) exudes evil, except when he is prat-falling or riding his horse upside-down.

As for the Merry Men, they are a mad bunch: one is blind, another is an exchange student studying stand-up comedy. All join in a stout-hearted song. "We're Men - We're Men in Tights" - including the politically incorrect line, "We may look like pansies, but don't get us wrong or we'll put out your lights."

"Robin Hood: Men in Tights" is totally Brooksian. He directed, produced, co-wrote the script (with Evan Chandler and J. David Shapiro) and the lyrics. He also appears briefly as Rabbi Tuckman (his version of Friar Tuck).

The Brooks comedy is not shy and obtuse, as in "The Naked Gun" and "Hotshots." He is more basic and earthy, employing sight gags and references to body parts and functions.

Many of the jokes misfire, but the average is better than in Brooks' last few films. The klinkers are redeemed by inspired moments, as when Robin serenades Marian with a full-throated "The Night Is Young and You're So Beautiful."

The straight actors fare better than the comics. Uncannily resembling Errol Flynn, Cary Elwes is perfect as Robin, and Amy Yasbeck conveys a witty Marian. Roger Rees nearly steals the show as the fumblingly nasty sheriff.

Richard Lewis has little to do but cower as Prince John, and Tracey Ullman is merely grotesque as the cook-sorceress Latrine. Don DeLuse scores in a hilarious takeoff on Marlon Brando's Don Corleone.

The Twentieth Century Fox release is rated PG-13, possibly because of the raunchy dialogue. Running time: 104 minutes.

Bittersweet reunion ends 30 years of separation

DEAR ABBY: My parents divorced when I was 4 years old. The divorce was very nasty, and I saw my father only a few times before he decided to move out of the state to avoid paying child support.

It wasn't until I became a father myself that I had a desire to see my dad again. I then read a letter in your column, stating that the Salvation Army locates long-lost relatives. I saved that column, but waited for about five years before I wrote to them about locating my father.

To my great surprise, two months later, the Salvation Army contacted me at my home in Sacramento, saying that they had found my dad and he wanted to communicate with me! They told me that he was ill, so I hurriedly flew to Salt Lake City to visit him in the V.A. hospital. I spent the weekend there and we had a very nice time catching up on the 30-year gap in our relationship. Among other things, we made plans for him to transfer to the V.A. facility near Sacramento, so I could keep a closer eye on him.

Four days later, I received a call from the hospital, informing me that my father had just passed away!

In retrospect, I suppose I should feel grateful for having had the chance to visit my dad before he died. Actually, I agonized over the fact that I didn't try to find him sooner.

In closing, I want to thank you, Abby, and the Salvation Army, for the wide variety of benefits that you and they provide. I also want to urge anyone who has a desire to locate a lost relative to do it today. Tomorrow may be too late.

WILLIAM W. FOSTER, SACRAMENTO, CALIF.

DEAR WILLIAM FOSTER: Thank you for sharing your bittersweet experience. Because you cared enough about others to write this letter, be assured that many family members will be reunited.
