U.S. takes Kirin Cup

KAPALUA, Hawaii — The United States won four final-round matches to take an 8-4 victory over Europe and the title in the Kirin Cup World Championship of Golf.

The U.S. team was in command for the entire tournament, finishing first after the qualifying rounds with 29 points. Europe was next with 16 points, while Australia-New Zealand had 14 and Japan 13.

The Americans picked up nine points in the final qualifying match Saturday morning against Japan. Led by Ben Crenshaw's 5-under-par 67, the U.S. squad won four matches, tied one and lost one.

Four die in gang wars

LOS ANGELES — Despite calls by gang members for a holiday truce, authorities Monday reported four people killed and 13 others wounded in yet another weekend of gang violence in the Los Angeles area.

In the last of the weekend gang killings, an unidentified 15-year-old boy walking down a sidewalk in Hawaiian Gardens was fatally wounded about 8:30 p.m. Sunday by a shotgun blast fired by one of five men in a slow moving sedan, Deputy Dan Cox said.

Homicide detectives believed the shooting was gang-related, Cox said. No suspects had been arrested by early Monday.

Also killed over the weekend was a teenager hit by a stray bullet in a mall filled with Christmas shoppers. Three gang members were arrested early Sunday in the shooting.

Pillsbury sold for $5.7 billion

MINNEAPOLIS — The Pillsbury Co. announced Sunday it has agreed to be acquired by Grand Met PLC of Great Britain for $66 per share, or $5.7 billion.

Pillsbury's announcement ended its more than two-month effort to fend off Grand Met, which first made a $60-a-share bid for the U.S. company on Oct. 4.

The agreement also follows Pillsbury's defeat last Friday in Delaware Chancery Court, where a judge ruled against the company's "poison pill" takeover defense and blocked it from spinning off its Burger King fast-food subsidiary.

Under the agreement, Pillsbury will be acquired by Grand Met, which will buy all outstanding Pillsbury shares at $66 per share, or about $5.7 billion. Company officials said any shares not purchased in the tender offer will be acquired by Grand Met in a later merger for the same $66.

City race heats up

Commission candidates exchange criticisms the day before election

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The race for District 1 city commissioner grew more heated Sunday and today, the closing days of the campaign.

The election is tomorrow. The polls will be open in the Sanford Civic Center from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. tomorrow for the voters in District 1.

The candidates, James Sweeting III, 29, of 400 Pine Ave., and Lon Howell, 42, of 1109 Park Ave., today each criticized the other's campaign.

Sweeting reacted angrily to an advertisement, printed in Sunday's Sanford Herald, which was highly critical of him, and Howell criticized what he called Sweeting's expensive proposals, and for not precisely complying with his challenge to take a drug test.

Sweeting said of the advertisement signed by A.A. McClanahan, who represents District 4 on the city commission: "I think it is unfortunate that one of the city commissioners has injected himself into this campaign. If Howell is not independent enough to make his own statements, then how is he independent enough to represent the citizens of District 1?"

Sweeting said today that McClanahan "was rejected by the voters in 1984 when he was defeated by John Mercer." Furthermore, Sweeting said, McClanahan was "highly critical of Mercer for making telephone calls on behalf of a commission candidate, and now he goes far

Post office employees working overtime to handle holiday rush

SANFORD — It should be a very merry Christmas for friends and relatives of Sanford residents, as this year cards and packages have been mailed in plenty of time for a holiday delivery. That's the news from U.S. Postmaster Fred Rader, who works in the 221 N. Palmetto office.

"People are getting more educated each year on the importance of early mailing," Rader said. "I think they realize our problems. That we have limited personnel, and if one's sick we're in trouble."

Yesterday, and the Sunday before, the post office opened its doors from 12:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. to handle all the baked goods, sweaters, and Florida oranges that have been sent across the country.

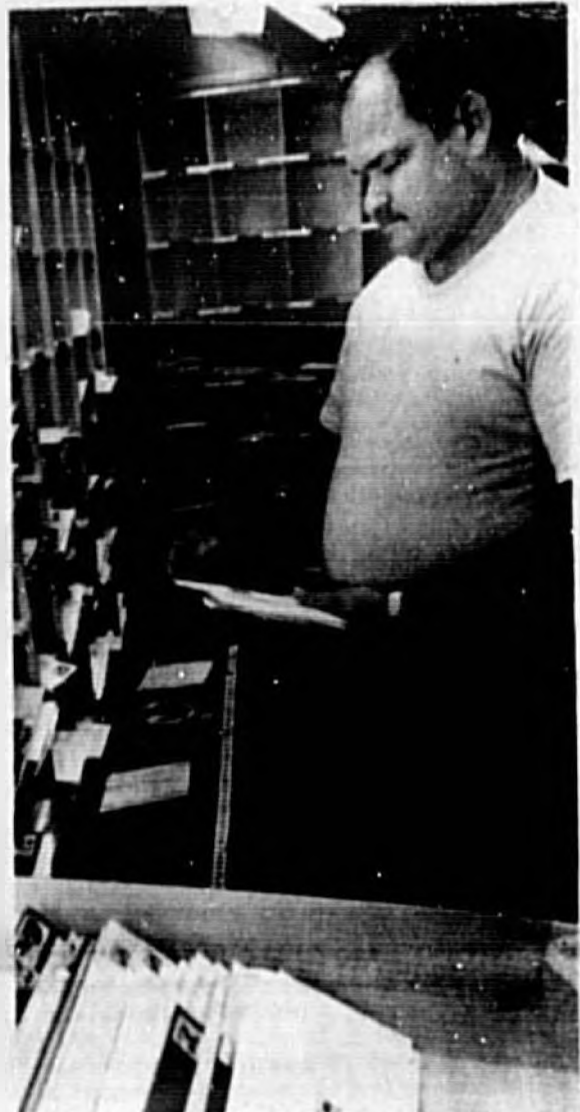

Rader estimated that between 300 to 400 parcels were mailed yesterday.

Today's post office hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Rader advises anyone mailing this late in the season use either express or priority mail.

Thomas Blekicki, supervisor at the Sanford Post Office, stands among some of the parcels that were delivered Monday. Local postal workers have been working extra hours to handle the Christmas rush of cards, letters and packages.

Frank Arostegui of DeLand sorts through some of the thousands of letters and cards.

Local Santa an award winner

WINTER SPRINGS — Each year the State Veterans of Foreign Wars organization chooses one of its members for a prestigious award named for a fictional character.

The G.I. Joe Award is given to the member of the VFW who has given the most assistance to a volunteer effort. For the past two years that honor has been earned by John Stevens, a member of the Winter Springs VFW Post 5405, for his work in the restoration of used toys to present as gifts to the needy.

"We're hoping he gets it this year as well," said Evelyn Hart, the post's Rehabilitation Chairman. "If he does, the award will become a permanent part of this post."

On Sunday, the VFW Post gave away the toys that Stevens has been fixing up all year. Boys and girls, who might otherwise have had a Christmas with no gifts, received like-new dolls, fire engines, baseball gloves and teddy bears.

Hart described Stevens as a "real Santa Claus." She said that beginning on December 26 every year, he begins collecting broken and abandoned toys.

Commission meetings may be televised

LAKE MARY — Live from Lake Mary!

That may very well be the introduction to each commission meeting starting Jan. 5 when Storer Cable of Altamonte Springs begins live broadcasts of the meetings.

Storer Cable had been videotaping the Thursday evening meetings since last October and broadcasting them Monday night starting 8 p.m. on Storer's Channel 22.

Last October, when Storer had signed a renewal franchise with Lake Mary, the contract stated that within 18 months of signature the cable company would be airing the meetings live, according to Tony Pupo, general manager for Storer Cable.

"We are doing that about four months ahead of schedule because we were able to get the electronics installed and tested. We believe it's an important service to give our subscriber. It is good for shut-ins and those who can't get to the commission meetings," Pupo said today.

Storer Cable has been broadcasting Altamonte Springs' meetings live since 1979.

Pupo said viewing the meetings can be an educational process.

"Quite a few teachers in local schools give assignments to their students to watch the meetings," he said.

"We're real committed to this. We think this is an important service to keep abreast of local issues," Pupo said.

Because the city already has its own microphone and PA system, the live meetings will be done at no additional cost, according to Pupo.

Storer Cable needs only to tie into the existing system. The company installed lighting for the hall when it

Lippizaner injures two at halftime show

TAMPA — A Lippizaner stallion galloped into an Orlando high school band Sunday during the halftime show at the Tampa Bay stadium, injuring two students.

About 200 members of the Colonial High School band surrounded three Lippizaners and their riders in a rectangle for part of the halftime show during the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and the Detroit Lions game.

Band members separated, providing an exit for the horses, when one bolted slightly to the left of the opening, galloping into about four band members, a witness said.

The students were taken on stretchers to the hospital.

James McDay, 14, of Orlando, was treated for head injuries and released from St. Joseph's Hospital in Tampa, a hospital spokeswoman said. Another band member Joy Kidd, 16, also of Orlando, was treated for leg injuries and released.

The horse's rider was not injured, the witness said.

The white Lippizaners, usually used for dressage exhibitions, were part of a traveling show sponsored by Baseball & Boardwalk.

The high school band performed after winning a band competition sponsored by Baseball & Boardwalk.

Former Navy doctor blasts prison care

STARKE — A prison doctor who served 30 years in the U.S. Navy says health care in Florida's correctional system is in a worse state than it was in Vietnam during the chaotic years of the war.

Dr. Lloyd Stetzler said the state's prison health-care system is disorganized and demoralizing to the medical professionals who work in it.

"The delivery of medical care in this system is worse than anything I ever saw in Vietnam," said Stetzler, who served as a doctor, surgeon and medical administrator in the Navy.

"And I saw some pretty horrifying things over there. It's more chaotic, more frustrating, more demoralizing than you can imagine."

Stetzler's criticism came at the conclusion of the second day of federal hearings Friday at Union Correctional Institution into allegations of poor inmate medical care and interference by non-medical administrators in prison health-care decisions.

Stetzler, chief health officer at Baker Correctional Institution west of Jacksonville, was called by the court to testify about the quality of medical care at the facility.

Federal investigators have documented at least two preventable inmate deaths caused by poor medical treatment at Baker in the past year.

Stetzler was hired four months ago, after the deaths, to improve the prison's medical care.

No winner in Lotto drawing

TALLAHASSEE — Nobody matched all six numbers in this week's Florida Lotto drawing, so the jackpot rolls over to push the Christmas weekend total to $15 million.

The winning numbers were 15, 27, 30, 33, 34 and 38. Though nobody got all six, Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul said 250,000 winners split $4 million in smaller prizes.

The breakdown was:

- 117 players matched five numbers, worth $9,200.50.
- 9,631 players matched four numbers, worth $163.50.
- 242,177 players matched three numbers, worth $6.

Last Tuesday the lottery awarded $28.6 million to a group of five retired couples from Delray Beach who regularly ate breakfast together.

"We've awarded 16 grand prize jackpots to Florida Lotto players in the eight months since Lotto began," Paul said.

Enquirer may be kept in family

LANTANA — Paul Pope, the 21-year-old son of late National Enquirer publisher Generoso Pope, said he wants to buy the gossip tabloid and has the financial backing to do so.

"I'm ready to do whatever it takes to keep it in the family," Pope said Saturday.

He also appears to have the support of National Enquirer employees, who applauded whenever his name was mentioned at a meeting Saturday with representatives of the newspaper's trustees.

Nearly 125 employees questioned representatives of The Blackstone Group about their future during the meeting at the Airport Hilton in West Palm Beach.

Blackstone is one of three trustees for the elder Pope's company, GP Group, which publishes the Enquirer and the Weekly World News.

Generoso Pope died of a heart attack Oct. 2. His will mentioned that the company was to be sold, though a trustee said that was a suggestion, and "not an instruction."

Governor may speed Richardson decision

United Press International

MIAMI — A lawyer for James Joseph Richardson, accused of poisoning his seven children 20 years ago, said Sunday Gov. Bob Martinez has agreed to speed his consideration of Richardson's clemency request.

Lawyer Ellis Rubin said he spoke with the governor at a Saturday night party in Miami honoring Rabbi Irwin Lehrman.

"The governor advised me that he was giving the petition for clemency serious consideration and that he would probably look at it closely either (Monday) or Tuesday," Rubin said.

"I asked him if he could, if he reaches a decision that is favorable, we hope it would be before Christmas. He said he would give it his best shot, or words to that effect."

Martinez was unavailable for comment Sunday.

Richardson, a black field worker who earned a living picking fruit near Arcadia, was sentenced to die for the 1967 murder of his children, who died after eating a meal laced with the poison parathion.

Richardson's lawyers said the murders actually were committed by a neighbor and babysitter, Betsy Reese, the only adult present when the children ate the poisoned food.

Rubin and lawyer Mark Lane said they had recovered a box of files stolen from the state attorney's office nine years ago. They said the documents and other evidence could prove Richardson was framed by former DeSoto County Sheriff Frank Cline, 12th Circuit State Attorney Frank Schaub and Assistant State Attorney John Treadwell.

A former cellmate recently recanted his testimony that Richardson confessed to the killings, and nurses at the home where Reese lives say she has repeatedly confessed. The former Arcadia police chief has also sworn he was pulled off the case when he began to suspect a cover-up.

The stolen files have been turned over to Martinez, who expects to receive a report this week on a Florida Department of Law Enforcement investigation into the case.

If Martinez and three cabinet members agree that Richardson should be granted clemency, he could be released immediately.

Richardson, who turns 53 Christmas Eve, spent five years on death row before his sentence was commuted to 25 years in prison. He is scheduled for parole in 1993. Though Richardson was accused of poisoning all the children, he was tried and convicted of only one murder.

Rubin said Schaub had threatened that if the state lets Richardson go, he would seek to indict him for the other six children's deaths.

"I told him that's the best way to free James Richardson that I know of. We're prepared to go to trial next week," Rubin said.

"I would like to give it to a grand jury whether he does or not," Rubin added.

Richardson's lawyers have asked the Florida Supreme Court to grant a new trial. Ellis said that even if Richardson is granted clemency, he will pursue an attempt to gain a new trial.

"I asked him, 'If the governor should let you go, do you want to drop this?'" Rubin said. "His answer was, 'I want my name cleared. I want to be able to walk in my own shoes again. I want the truth to come out. I want the people who put me here to go to jail, just like I went to jail.'"

Three suspended officers on aggressive warning list

United Press International

MIAMI — Three of the eight Miami police officers under investigation in the fatal beating of a drug suspect were flagged on an internal department list intended to identify overly aggressive officers, it was reported today.

Detectives Pablo Camacho, Ronald Sinclair and Nathaniel Veal Jr. are named in a July 1988 "Early Warning System" memo listing 22 officers who had five or more "control of persons" reports in two years. The Miami Herald reported. Officers must turn in the reports any time force beyond normal handcuffing is used to make an arrest.

The three officers, along with detectives Charlie Haynes, Tom Trujillo and Andy Watson, were relieved of duty with pay pending an investigation into Friday's fatal beating of Leonardo Mercado, 35.

Two supervisors in the undercover narcotics unit, Lt. Michael Christopher and Sgt. Manuel Orosa, also were relieved of duty because of the way they handled the investigation after the beating.

Camacho's name appears at the top of the warning memo, which is updated every six months. He had eight control of persons reports, more than any other policeman but one in the 1,040-officer department.

When an officer is listed in the memo, Internal Security officers send a notice to his or her supervisor. The supervisor reviews each incident cited in the memo, then recommends what action should be taken. Options include a transfer, stress school or counseling.

Police declined to release details of the incidents that led to Camacho, Sinclair and Veal being named in the memo.

Seafood check reveals substitutions

United Press International

FORT LAUDERDALE — When consumers ask for red snapper, they often get a less-expensive cousin, despite industry claims that seafood substitution is an isolated problem, according to a report published Sunday.

Laboratory checks of seafood in south Florida showed 90 percent of fish were mislabeled, according to a check conducted by the National Marine Fisheries seafood inspection lab in Pascagoula, Miss., published in the Fort Lauderdale Sun-Sentinel.

Two of 20 samples labeled as red snapper turned out to be genuine red snapper, tests conducted for the newspaper revealed. Four were identified as lane snapper, a cheaper cousin. The government lab could not positively identify 14 other samples, although officials ruled out red snapper, lane snapper and seven other types of snapper.

"There's always been a problem with substitution of red snapper because it's a very valuable fish," Mary Snyder of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration told the newspaper.

Snyder said food inspectors cannot begin to address the widespread practice. "You're always going to get people substituting something less valuable for it to make more money."

Food substitutions violate federal and state consumer protection laws. If convicted, violators could face up to three years in prison.

FDA regulations stipulate only one species and genus of fish, Lutjanus campechanus, can be labeled red snapper. Labeling any other fish as red snapper, including close relatives, constitutes misbranding and is illegal under the federal Food, Drug and Cosmetics Act, the paper reported.

Substitutes largely affect consumer prices. Lane and vermilion snapper costs $1.24 and $1.23 a pound, while genuine red snapper commands $2.35 a pound, the newspaper reported.

But substitute seafood also poses potential health risks, said Don DeSilva, a professor of marine biology at the University of Miami.

"There are a number of red-colored snapper, including mutton snapper that can be poisonous," DeSilva said, noting the fish feed on poisonous reefs.

"True red snapper doesn't hang around coral reefs ... and so it is not picking up the poisonous organisms," he said, adding lane and mangrove snapper also are risk-free.

Store owners took issue with the government when asked about substitutes found in their store, the newspaper reported.

"It's red. It's a snapper. It's red snapper. That's how the logic of it works," Chris Stadelman, seafood manager at the Xtra Supermarket in West Palm Beach told the Sun-Sentinel.

Inspectors, however, say not all red snapper substitutes come from the snapper family. Other fish, including ocean perch, tilapia and barracuda, have been discovered under the red snapper label, the paper said.

"It's a rip-off," said Frank Jackalone, executive director of the Florida Consumers Federation, a citizen's lobbying group.

New Medicare plan is good

The Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act of 1988 was probably the 100th Congress' crowning achievement in health care, but legislators are now bracing for an avalanche of complaints when beneficiaries begin on Jan. 1 to start paying for the program themselves.

By the time Congress adjourned in late October, half a dozen bills had been introduced by lawmakers wishing to see the new payment schedule delayed, altered or repealed outright. Much of this opposition comes from elderly recipients who do not understand the benefits they will receive for very modest increases in Medicare premiums.

The new law will protect 32 million Medicare beneficiaries from the costs of catastrophic illnesses by capping the amount they must pay for hospital care, doctors' bills and other medical services. For the first time, Medicare coverage is extended to all prescription drugs, routine mammograms and limited home care for the severely disabled.

To pay for his expansion, the Medicare premium that 98 percent of beneficiaries pay for the optional Part B program will increase by $4 a month, making the total annual premium $373.20 in 1989. The supplemental premium will gradually rise from $4 to $10.20 a month by 1993, bringing the total yearly payment to $511.20.

In addition, there will be a supplemental premium geared to taxable income. The 60 percent of beneficiaries who owe less than $150 a year in federal income tax will pay no supplemental premium at all. The other 40 percent will pay up to $800 a year in supplemental premium in 1989.

Estimates obtained by the American Association of Retired Persons, which strongly backed the new law, indicate that, on average, married persons with a joint income of $10,000 or less will pay no supplemental premium. Those with an annual income of $20,000 will pay $23 a year, and the $800 ceiling will be paid only after joint income reaches about $90,000. These amounts should hardly strain the household budgets of retirees who, as a group, own more wealth than young workers.

There are some people with good reason to be unhappy about the supplemental premium, including those whose employers already provide similar coverage and Medicare beneficiaries enrolled in separate health-maintenance organizations, which already offer many of the benefits.

But the vast majority of senior citizens will receive high-quality health care at fair prices, coupled with protection from financial ruin during protracted illnesses. The new program is, in fact, a deal that is hard to beat.

Health-care reform? I'll drink to that Say what you like about the medical profession, it is refreshingly unrepentant. Although health care has consumed a growing share of the national wealth for each of the past 40 years, some doctors seem eager to justify every expended penny.

How else to explain an article in the Journal of the American Medical Association arguing that alcoholics should not be required to stop drinking to become eligible for liver transplants? Any delay in treatment would be unfair, the authors contend. It would also reflect a "moralistic" judgment about the nature of alcoholism, which they emphatically (and wrongly) deny is a controllable vice.

Thus, between 1963 and mid-1987, at least 56 patients with alcoholic cirrhosis received liver transplants in Pittsburgh and Denver (the two cities studied). A few patients drank right up until admitted to the hospital. Twenty-one died within six months of the procedure. Two who survived continued to imbibe.

Only in waning 20th century America would the term "moralistic" be considered a stinging rebuff to critics of such extravagantly generous treatment. For make no mistake: Not everyone who might be a candidate for a liver transplant receives one. According to the Office of Health Technology Assessment, 30,000 to 40,000 people die annually of liver disease. Last year, there were 1,159 liver transplants.

If alcoholics are to be indulged with such treatment despite making no effort to stop poisoning themselves, where can we possibly draw the line between necessary and unwarranted procedures, between treatment the public is expected to subsidize and that which it is not?

Or is the cost of medical care simply fated to rise forever?

Since 1946, the daily cost of a hospital stay has climbed nearly 12 percent each year, compared with average annual inflation of 4.2 percent. During the same period, the price of a visit to a physician rose by 5.5 percent annually — meaning we pay 150 percent more today, in real dollars, just to stop by the doctor's office.

One more telling datum: Forty years ago society spent twice as much on education as on health care. Now health care is the budgetary king, hands down.

Former Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm — he of the infamous but misrepresented "duty to die" remark some years ago — is one of many people who've tracked the galloping growth of medical costs with increasing alarm.

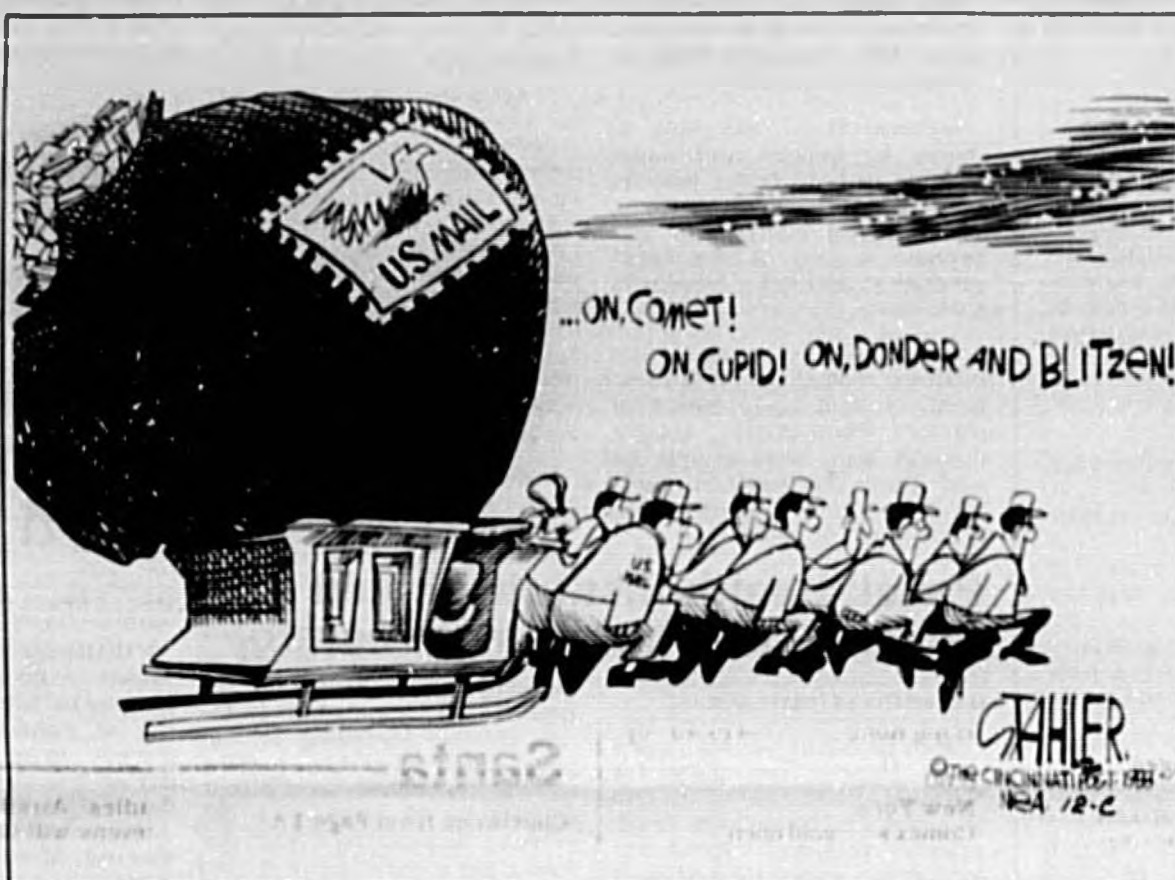

"Health care has become a fiscal black hole down which America is pouring a greater and greater share of its wealth," he recently noted. "With an annual price tag of $511 billion — more than 11 percent of the gross national product — America has a system that produces medical miracles for a few, denies basic and preventive health care to many, and makes American products uncompetitive on the world market."

Perhaps he exaggerates, but not by much. One-tenth of the price tag of every U.S.-produced car is directly related to corporate health care costs — a far greater burden than that borne by automakers abroad.

GEORGE F. WILL

Cold War started at Yalta

WASHINGTON — Estonia, the mouse roaring at the bear, is the most rambunctious element of what President Reagan before he became President Pangloss called the Evil Empire. The ferment in Estonia and elsewhere in Eastern Europe gives George Bush an opportunity to change the subject and seize the initiative.

It is an opportunity to stop talking arithmetic and start talking politics, an opportunity to stop talking the dry numbers of arms control and take up the rich rhetoric of freedom, and Soviet obligations incurred 44 years ago this coming February.

Estonia's parliament has asserted a right to reject laws made in Moscow if they abridge local autonomy. After an icy Gorbachev speech of denunciation, Estonia asserted it again, by a vote of 150-91.

Messrs. Jefferson and Madison, call your offices. Fax to Estonia your Kentucky and Virginia resolutions. Provoked by the Alien and Sedition Acts, in 1798 those two states, in resolves written by Jefferson and Madison respectively, declared the Acts unconstitutional. Virginia suggested the doctrine of "interposition," whereby state authority would be interposed between the central government and the individual. Kentucky baldly asserted that each state "has an equal right to judge for itself."

These assertions of states' rights rested on a "compact" theory of the Constitution, a theory that implied a right of secession. The theory was refuted by logic and defeated by arms on this ground: The Union derived from an irrevocable act of consent "four score and seven years" before the battle of Gettysburg, with the Declaration of Independence, not the Constitution.

Confronted by nations such as Estonia, the Kremlin cannot make an argument based on consent. The Kremlin wishes that all nations in the Soviet Union's seething ethnic stew would go off the boil before the lid comes completely off the kettle. But the Kremlin must especially wish that Estonia would pipe down. It is such an embarrassing reminder.

It is a reminder that the Soviet regime is the only regime that suffered no rupture as a result of its alliance with Hitler. It is a reminder of how the Second World War began, with Germany and the Soviet Union as accomplices in conquest. It is a reminder of how that war ended and the Cold War began, with Soviet duplicity regarding self-determination for East European nations.

In his U.N. speech, Gorbachev, a forthright anti-pluralist, deplored the modern world's "endless multitude of centrifugal forces," and his domestic reforms are severely centralizing. But centrifugal forces along the eastern edge of the Soviet empire should be encouraged by U.S. diplomacy, especially the public diplomacy of broadcasting to a region where radio remains a powerful force.

George Bush's choice as head of the U.S. Information Agency should have a mandate to nurture nationalist articulation in Eastern Europe. The choice of Jeane Kirkpatrick or Henry Catto or some other intellectual controversialist would be a welcome signal. It would indicate that the Bush administration does not intend to be merely an accomplice of Gorbachev in advancing "perestroika" as it is convenient for the Kremlin to define it.

There is a tendency to explain Gorbachev's actions in terms of immediate and short-term domestic exigencies. But that probably does less than justice to his longheadedness and to the diplomatic patience of a chess-playing nation.

Perhaps the Cold War, far from being liquidated by the nation that provoked it, is being restored to its original and most serious terms. The Soviet struggle for hegemony began before the Third World had a name, when the object was domination of the developed world, the key to which was Europe. Everything Gorbachev has recently done may derive from different intentions. But most of the big things he has done, from acceptance of the "zero option" in the INF agreement to unilateral red ctions of conventional forces, would make sense as part of a plan to advance, through patience and pleasantry, what cannot be advanced by intimidation and competition. Small Soviet gestures can have large, lingering echoes in the West in the form of decreased readiness.

The next President should change the subject from the arcane of arms control to the one subject that will reveal whether Gorbachev is just "the most Leninist Leninist," completely flexible about means but implacable about the traditional goal of hegemony. The new subject should be the centrifugal forces in Eastern Europe.

Enough, already, about glasnost and perestroika. It is time to hear a third word. President Bush should say the word that brings into focus the origins of the Cold War and some of today's centrifugal forces: Yalta.

Estonia's parliament has asserted a right to reject laws made in Moscow.

Khomeini ravages his own people

WASHINGTON — Since Iran and Iraq declared a truce in July, the Ayatollah Khomeini has turned on his own people to feed his insatiable appetite for savagery.

The Iranian economy is in shambles, the people are unhappy and Khomeini leads a revolution. So, with his henchman, Speaker of the Parliament Hashemi Rafsanjani, he is handling internal problems the only way he knows how — terrorism against his own people.

Our sources intercepted a highly confidential report from the Iranian Supreme Judicial Council to Khomeini. It boasts that about 12,000 Iranian prisoners were executed between the cease-fire in July and mid-November.

Khomeini and Rafsanjani aren't particular. Their orders for torture and mass executions include men, women and children. The stories of the women are particularly horrifying. Often their only "crime" is to defy Khomeini by appearing in public unveiled. The paranoid Ayatollah can't afford to lose any semblance of control over his people — religious, moral or political.

We have the names of dozens of women and young girls who have been executed in the last several months. We have listened as women who escaped from Khomeini's prisons have described his unique brand of terror. Some have no skin on their feet from repeated floggings. They have seen their babies hurled against walls. Some women have been raped as punishment for violating Khomeini's standards of modesty.

We don't normally turn to pop icons for political commentary, but singer Madonna was on the mark when she said, "You know what I wish for the Ayatollah Khomeini? I wish he would die and come back as a woman, under his regime."

This is what life is like for Iranian women: Khomeini's fanatical Revolutionary Guards "marry" women scheduled for execution and rape them before they die. Even Shiite mullahs and Iranian officials engage in this practice.

Khomeini makes examples of women who aren't Islamic enough for his tastes or who side with opposition groups. Four women were recently hanged in public in the city of Amol. No charges were specified.

Rafsanjani and Khomeini engineered a law last May 14, which says "women who appear unveiled on the streets and in public places will be sentenced to 74 lashes." Unveiled or "malveiled" women face harassment, arrest and torture if they show more skin than pleases Khomeini. Roving motorcycle gangs of young men run down women who do not meet Khomeini's standard.

The leader of these gangs, according to our sources, is Hadi Ghaffari, a parliamentary deputy. He recently spearheaded the opening of a special prison in Tehran exclusively for the whipping and torture of women rounded up by gangs. He tells the male and female guards that Khomeini believes "whipping is a form of worship."

In one verified case, a 17-year-old girl was tortured by Ghaffari and then given 70 lashes for "inappropriate dress."

Don't mistake these hoodlums for religious purists. Their principles have a price. A woman can buy her way out of prison. If her crime is letting a lock of hair slip out from her head covering, the going rate to be turned loose is $125. If the crime is more serious — wearing fingernail polish — the bribe is more than $900.

Stocks open lower

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened slightly lower Monday in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 17.71 Friday, was off 2.67 to 2148.04 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 572-291 among the 1,336 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 11,200,000 shares.

Stock prices rebounded Friday from a week of sluggish trading with a session that began and ended with a burst of activity linked mostly to an event known as the "triple witching hour."

The "hour" typically signifies the quarterly expiration of stock-index futures, index options and options on individual stocks.

Analysts said the event sometimes causes market volatility as program traders and other arbitrageurs close out speculative positions and open new ones.

In addition to trading linked to the expiration, there was significant trading of takeover and dividend-related issues, analysts said.

Dollar mixed; gold higher

United Press International

The dollar was mixed Monday in light trading on major foreign currency markets as traders pulled out of trading ahead of the Christmas holidays. Gold was higher.

In earlier trading in Tokyo, the dollar was almost unchanged against the Japanese yen in extremely slow trading, closing 0.08 yen lower at 124.02 yen.

Dealers in Japan said there was no upward momentum for the dollar because many institutional investors were keen to sell the dollar if it moves further upward.

Very few players actively engaged in trading in the absence of fresh market-affecting news, they added.

In Europe, the dollar began the week in Frankfurt at 1.757 West German marks, up slightly from 1.750 marks on Friday.

The dollar began the day in Zurich at 1.4785 Swiss francs, down slightly from 1.4795. In Paris, the dollar opened at 5.9925 French francs, down from 6.015.

The dollar opened in Brussels at 37.00 Belgian francs, down slightly from 37.01, and began the day in Italy at 1,293.50 Italian lire, down from 1,299.15 lire.

In London the British pound began the week at $1.4785 compared with $1.4795 Friday.

Bush gets nod from electoral college

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Although President-elect George Bush has spent weeks making plans to move into the White House, he won't officially be elected president until Monday's vote by the electoral college.

A little-understood group, the electors are a result of a 201-year-old constitutional compromise. They will gather in all 50 states to fulfill their obligation to deliver a majority of Electoral College votes to Bush and Vice President-elect Dan Quayle.

Many of the gatherings will be held in state legislative chambers or other elegantly appointed quarters and — at least in the states won by Bush — will be marked with considerable pomp. Swank luncheons are planned in some states.

The results — almost certain to be a 426-112 win for Bush over Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis as dictated by the Nov. 8 election — will then be sent by registered or certified mail to Washington, where they will be counted during a joint session of Congress during the first week of January.

Although no one expects anything but the 426-112 margin this year, that is not a certainty because the electors, who are usually extraordinarily loyal followers of their candidate, are in most states free to vote as they wish — and eight times in U.S. history renegade electors have cast ballots for other people.

The last time that happened was in 1976 when Jimmy Carter defeated Gerald Ford, but an elector in Washington state, which was carried by Ford, cast his ballot for Ronald Reagan, who was not a candidate.

Some of the oddities this year are likely to come more from the nature of the people playing roles in the constitutional process.

For example, in Massachusetts, Dukakis will put the finishing touches on his presidential run, swearing in the 13 Democratic friends who will deliver the Bay State's electoral votes to him.

In nearby Connecticut, the eight electors who will vote for Bush include Prescott Bush Jr., the oldest brother of the president-elect.

And in New Hampshire, outgoing Gov. John Sununu, Bush's new chief of staff, will wear two hats. He not only will swear in the four electors, but serves as one himself.

Although populous states such as New York and California have relatively large numbers of electors, the voting in the tiny states often more closely resembles a gathering of a few old friends.

In New Hampshire, all four electors are given a role in the election ceremony, choosing a president of the event, a doorkeeper and two tellers.

"Everybody gets a job," said Robert Ambrose, New Hampshire's deputy secretary of state. "They don't have a lot to do, believe me."

Bush carried 40 states Nov. 8, while Dukakis won 10 and the District of Columbia. In at least some of the Dukakis states, Bush has sent the electors invitations to his inauguration.

Ever since its inception, the Electoral College has been a source of controversy and numerous efforts have been made to radically change it through constitutional amendments. But, no drastic change has ever succeeded, normally opposed by senators from small states that enjoy increased power under the system.

The system surfaced in the constitutional convention of 1787 when the founding fathers were faced with the question of how the president should be chosen.

Some factions wanted direct popular election, but others — fearing the voters would not act responsibly — favored election by Congress or state legislatures.

The compromise was the Electoral College in which each state was allocated electors equal in number to its House and Senate members, and those electors then voted for the president and vice president. That solution was a great win for the smaller states because each of them — which are now mostly Republican strongholds — was guaranteed three electoral votes, no matter how small they were.

It was left to the states to determine how electors were chosen and originally there were a number of methods. But eventually a system evolved in which the candidate who carried a state in the popular vote election was generally given all of that state's electoral votes.

Only in Maine, where two electors are chosen by the popular vote and two are determined by the party that carries the state's two congressional districts, is there a formal variation from the winner-take-all system.

The first attempt to revise the system came in 1797 and has been followed by others in almost every session of Congress.

Most of the recent plans would, in various ways, have the system more accurately reflect the popular vote. Carter pushed a direct popular election system in 1978, but it died in the Senate where opponents threatened a filibuster.

Three times in the nation's history, a man has been elected president who received fewer popular votes than an opponent.

In 1824, Andrew Jackson received more popular votes and electoral votes than John Quincy Adams. But, because there were two additional candidates in the race, Jackson did not have a clear majority of electoral votes and the election was decided by the House of Representatives, which chose Adams.

In 1876, Rutherford Hayes received 47.9 percent of the popular vote to Samuel Tilden's 50.9 percent. But, because Hayes carried more populous states, he won the presidency by winning 185 electoral votes to Tilden's 184.

Twelve years later, in the election of 1888, history repeated itself. Grover Cleveland won 48.6 percent of the popular vote and Benjamin Harrison captured 47.8 percent. But, Harrison's vote translated into 233 electoral votes to 168 for Cleveland and Harrison won the White House.

One hundred years later, there is little suspense in the voting, although it remains a continuing piece of history unique to the United States.

Judge to rule on Eastern sale

United Press International

WASHINGTON — A federal judge is expected to rule Monday whether billionaire developer Donald Trump can buy Eastern Airline's northeastern corridor shuttle operation for $365 million.

Eastern's unions have asked U.S. District Judge Harrington Parker to halt the sale, calling it an attempt to strip the airline of its assets and claiming it would violate federal labor laws.

The profitable shuttle, to be renamed the Trump Shuttle, operates hourly flights in the busy corridor between Washington, New York and Boston. The sale would include the shuttle's 17 Boeing 727 aircraft and gates and landing slots at three airports.

When the sale was announced in October, Trump said he would refurbish and upgrade the operation, but would keep prices competitive with the Pan American shuttle, its principle competitor.

Trump said he also would consider diverting some of the shuttle's weekend flights to Atlantic City, N.J., where he owns two casinos.

beyond what he criticized Mercer for doing."

McClanahan said today that he was critical of Mercer in 1984 for calling a friend of McClanahan's and telling the friend not to vote for McClanahan because of the circumstances surrounding his moving from one district to another in order to run for the city commission.

Howell said today, "I had no idea McClanahan was going to place the ad. As a citizen of Sanford, he has as much right to express his views as any other citizen."

McClanahan, who was elected to the commission in 1986, said he placed the advertisement without Howell's knowledge.

"It was done strictly as a concerned citizen of Sanford with the right of free speech, a right I defended in three conflicts and the Bay of Pigs fiasco," McClanahan said.

Sweeting also criticized Howell for his campaign tactics. "I have tried to run a positive campaign and make my views known to the voters. I think it is important that the city have independent leadership," he said.

"In the last six weeks," Sweeting contended, "Howell has put forth only one proposition — that both candidates undergo a drug test. He refused to stand up and debate the issues with me."

Howell accused Sweeting of "talking out of both sides of his mouth. He agreed with the statement by mayoral candidate John Morris that Sanford's taxes have risen in the past four years. Yet he proposes several programs that will increase taxes more."

Howell cited Sweeting's proposals for establishing two police substations, a drug rehabilitation center, using public and private money to build low income housing, establishing a paramedic system in the fire department, and buying a new communication system for the police department as proposals which would increase taxes.

"It's easy to increase taxes when you don't pay any," Howell said, noting that Sweeting is not a property owner.

Howell also criticized Sweeting for not making public the results of a drug test, as Howell challenged him to do Friday. Howell challenged his opponent to have a test for presence of illicit drugs at Central Florida Regional Hospital as an example to the youth of Sanford by showing commission candidates were not drug users. Howell made public his test results Friday afternoon.

Sweeting called the challenge "in poor taste and demeaning to my character," but said he would have his private physician perform the test. He said the results of the test might not be available before election day.

In the Dec. 6 election, Sweeting received 277 votes, or 41.8 percent of the total from District 1. Howell received 204, or 30.8 percent of the total, putting the two candidates into the runoff.

The third candidate, Jay Malone, received 181 votes, and later said he supports Sweeting in the runoff.

Sweeting, 29, of 400 Pine Ave., is an attorney; Howell, 42, of 1109 Park Ave., is a district salesman for a boot company.

if they need it, I wash the dolls' clothes, iron them and comb out their hair," he said.

Stevens is quick to point out that he does not accomplish his task alone. Other members of the post (his "elves") assist. "Brownie" Brown has helped him overhaul more than two dozen bikes this year alone.

Stevens also praises members of the community who have come to his aid throughout the year.

"Mrs. Chester Daniels of Sanford calls me five or six times a year to come out to her place to pick rummage items that she and her friends and neighbors have collected for me," he said.

According to those who manage to keep up with him during the Christmas season, Stevens is up at the crack of dawn every morning collecting, fixing and delivering the toys to indigent children.

"You'll never get him on the phone until after Christmas," warned Hart. "And even then it's not easy."

Stevens said he drives more than a thousand miles a year stopping at garage sales, thrift shops and rummage sales to find items. He isn't sure of the exact number because he doesn't keep track.

"I just love to do this for the kids," he said.

Jill Hall, president of the post's

Ladies Auxiliary, said that Stevens will not accept a penny of financial assistance from Post 5405.

Stevens said he has throat cancer. His vocal cords have been removed and he speaks through a device that converts vibrations to intelligible words. He travels to Gainesville monthly for treatments.

When he goes, he brings along bags of toothbrushes, razors, playing cards and other small items for his fellow patients.

"He's always on the lookout for a sale," joked Hall.

Prior to Sunday's food and toy give away, Stevens and his elves gave the toys one final check before piling them into boxes to send them to their new homes.

"The biggest problem I have these days," he said smoothing back the yellow yarn hair of a Cabbage Patch doll "is finding a place to store all this during the year."

The post has a small shed that fills up quickly. Stevens, who lives alone in a small apartment, needs more room to accommodate the loving donations from the community.

The next G.I. Joe Award will be presented at the annual VFW convention in June. Post 5405 members are keeping their fingers crossed that John Stevens will win again.

Stevens is too busy to speculate.

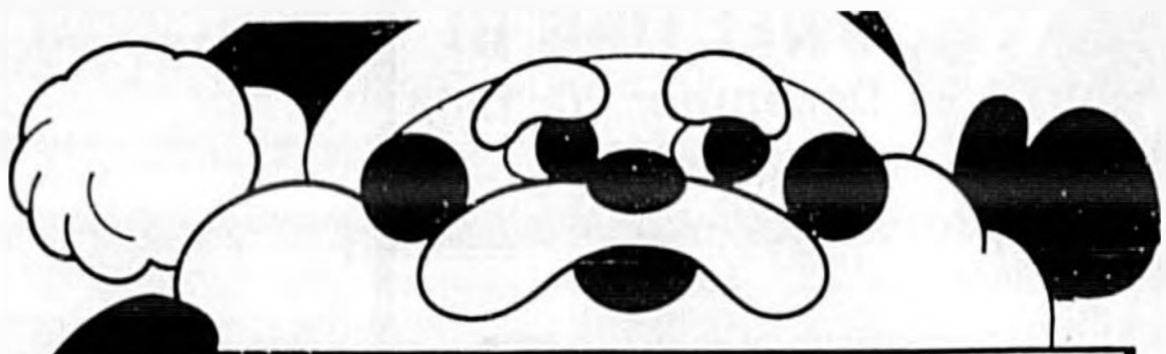

"Look at this baseball glove one of the guys fixed up. We'll put it with that bat and ball over there..."

Sri Lankans vote amid threats

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — Voters cast ballots Monday for a new president of strife-torn Sri Lanka amid fears of violence by leftist Sinhalese rebels who vowed to block the poll. Election eve bloodshed claimed at least nine lives and left 59 people injured, police said.

Polling stations opened at 7 a.m. across the tear-shaped Indian Ocean island, but no incidents were immediately reported and there were no indications of the early turnout. Voting was to continue until 4 p.m. and the outcome was not expected until late Monday or early Tuesday.

Massive security precautions were in force and troops were seen patrolling the near-empty streets of the capital in South African-designed, mine-proof armored cars.

To avert a low turnout that might undermine the validity of the election results, the government Sunday decreed that those found preventing people from voting could face a minimum sentence of more than 10 years in prison and a maximum penalty of death.

Leftist rebels of the Peoples Liberation Front, known by its Sinhalese acronym JVP, have vowed to kill anyone who participates in Monday's poll, claiming the government will rig it in favor of Prime Minister Ranasingha Premadasa of the United National Party.

The JVP is blamed for killing more than 2,400 people since July 1987, most of them UNP politicians and supporters and public employees.

Papandreou wins 'vote of confidence'

ATHENS, Greece — Prime Minister Andreas Papandreou, struggling to overcome a political crisis, won a crucial vote in Parliament on his 1989 budget proposal Sunday in what he had called a vote of confidence determining whether he would stay in office.

Before his resounding victory over party rebels, Papandreou had told television viewers in an address Saturday he would consider the vote on his budget a "vote of confidence for me and my government," and would quit if the 300-member Parliament rejected the budget.

In open voting late Sunday, broadcast live on the state-run channel E.T. 2, the premier won a comfortable majority, with 156 deputies voting "yes," 138 voting against the budget and two abstaining.

The voting in Parliament began on schedule at 10 p.m. Sunday, after several speakers spoke for and against the budget. Papandreou, still recovering from heart surgery in London 12 weeks ago, sat in his seat in Parliament through the debate and the voting.

The vote indicated Papandreou's strength in Parliament has not substantially eroded despite a political crisis rocking the country and a rebellion within his ruling Pan-Hellenic Socialist Movement, known as PASOK.

Mexican politician on hunger strike

MEXICO CITY — A conservative politician who finished third in the presidential election last July demanded electoral reform and an end to electoral fraud on the fourth day of his hunger strike Sunday as thousands of supporters rallied nearby.

Manuel Clouthier, presidential candidate for the conservative National Action Party, vowed to continue his fast until President Carlos Salinas de Gortari — who assumed office Dec. 1 — responded to his demand for reforms.

Clouthier also is calling for an end to electoral fraud through his hunger strike that began Thursday near the Monument of Independence on Mexico City's main avenue. He has been joined by some 60 hunger strikers.

"I am good, in a very good physical condition," Clouthier told reporters as some 5,000 supporters rallied outside his tent shouting "end fraud," "our president is Clouthier" and "reform the electoral laws."

Clouthier said his supporters have begun simultaneous hunger strikes in many cities and more such strikes were likely if Salinas failed to respond to demands by his party, known by its Spanish acronym PAN.

Soviet visit may help ease tensions

TOKYO — Japan is cautiously optimistic that Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze's visit beginning Sunday may ease 15 years of tense relations that have kept the economic and superpower giants from sharing in the recent East-West political thaw.

Shevardnadze, who left Moscow Saturday, arrives in Tokyo Sunday for his first visit to Japan in nearly three years with speculation running high that the Soviet Union's new-found "glasnost," or openness, may produce a Kremlin initiative on solving a 43-year-old territorial dispute between the estranged neighbors.

The conflict involves a group of four islands off the coast of Japan's northernmost island of Hokkaido, which the Soviet Union claimed immediately after World War II.

Although the two countries established formal diplomatic ties in 1956, the Japanese government has said it will not sign a peace treaty with Moscow or further its diplomatic relationship until the Soviet Union returns the islands.

In 1973, Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev agreed in Moscow that the islands remain an unsettled issue from the war, and the Kremlin has refused to discuss the issue since.

From United Press International reports

Snow complicates quake relief

United Press International

MOSCOW — Snow began falling in Armenia, further complicating earthquake relief efforts and forcing officials to speed up evacuation plans for women and children. Soviet news reports said Sunday.

At a meeting of the special Politburo relief commission headed by Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov, authorities decided planned evacuations must be carried out with more urgency because of the worsening weather.

"The evacuation of women and children must be sped up since the weather forecast predicts wet snow and wind for the next two days," Radio Moscow said.

Soviet television said late Sunday heavy snow and cold had struck the Armenian republic, already ravaged by a Dec. 7 earthquake that killed about 55,000 people and left some 500,000 homeless.

The official Tass news agency said 7,460 more people were evacuated from the quake zone in the 24 hours ending Sunday morning, bringing the 48-hour total to more than 17,200 people. Authorities hoped to evacuate 4,000 more women and children throughout the day.

Tass, describing the Politburo commission meeting in the Armenian capital of Yerevan, said, "It was pointed out at the commission's working meeting that the evacuation of children, women and old men was nearing completion."

The report said by midweek, only those involved in reconstruction work would remain in the worst hit areas.

Radio Moscow said the search for possible survivors was winding down 11 days after the 30-second quake that devastated much of northern Armenia.

"The first stage of rescue operations are drawing to a close in Armenia," said Radio Moscow, implying there was little hope of finding more survivors.

It quoted officials as saying discussions were starting to focus on rebuilding. Teams of foreign relief workers have been flown home and are to be replaced by builders and town planners, the radio said. Soviet newspapers said architectural plans for the reconstruction of the badly hit towns of Spitak, Leninakan and Kirovakan would only be adopted after public debate.

The official farming daily newspaper Selaskaya Zhizn Sunday described an eerie scene in the devastated town of Spitak where thousands of black coffins have been stacked in the stands of the local football stadium.

The newspaper said many survivors with injuries have developed gangrene and amputations are common. Infection is also a major cause of death.

The official Tass news agency said a total of 23,390 bodies have been recovered from the rubble so far — about half the number officially thought to have died. Another 15,252 people have been rescued by relief teams. Only one person, a 62-year-old woman dug out of the ruins of Leninakan, has been found alive since Friday.

Tass said health facilities and hospitals have been restored in the worst hit areas. Hospitals have re-opened in both Spitak and Leninakan north of the capital Yerevan.

Deputy Foreign Minister Valentin Nikiforov said the Soviet Union has received a total of $100 million in aid from 77 countries, the first large scale international relief effort allowed by the Soviets since World War II.

The Soviet trade union newspaper Trud said millions of workers declared Saturday a "subbotnik" or special work day, donating their wages to the Armenian relief effort.

Prime Minister Ryzhkov, once known mostly for his silence in public, has emerged as the hero of the Armenian earthquake calamity after publicly rebuking inept Soviet bureaucrats and walking through rubble-strewn streets with bereaved survivors.

"Ryzhkov has shown the brave side of suffering in his public commiseration with the shocked survivors," a Western diplomat said.

Gandhi calls for thaw with China

United Press International

BEIJING — Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi was formally welcomed Monday by his Chinese counterpart, Li Peng, and called for a "new beginning" in relations that have been strained by border disputes for three decades.

The leaders of the world's two most populous nations stood together on a red-carpeted podium inside the cavernous Great Hall of the People as a 19-gun salute boomed across adjacent Tiananmen Square and a military band played the national anthems of both countries.

After inspecting an honor guard, Gandhi and Li sat down in the Eastern Hall for formal talks that come amid subtle shifts in the power triangle between China, India and the Soviet Union.

"Together our nations constitute more than one-third of humanity," Gandhi said. "We should be looking more toward each other. The time has come."

"I hope this visit will bring us a new beginning," Gandhi said.

In his welcoming statement to Gandhi, Li stressed the similarities in population, size and economic development between the two countries and expressed his hope for better relations.

"China and India are two countries in Asia with the most ancient civilizations and have the largest populations of developing countries in Asia," Li said.

"There is no reason for our two countries not to get along," he told Gandhi.

The first Indian prime minister on Chinese soil in 34 years was scheduled to spend much of his first day in China in private talks with Li.

Gandhi was also scheduled to meet with senior leader Deng Xiaoping and Communist Party General Secretary Zhao Ziyang during his five-day visit, which also will include trips to Xian and Shanghai.

India and China are not expected to settle intractable border disputes that have bedeviled their relations since they fought a monthlong war in 1962, but the visit still has considerable political and symbolic importance.

The positions of the Asian giants are no longer static, partly due to the trail-blazing diplomacy of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, who called for a Sino-Indian rapprochement during a visit to New Delhi three weeks ago.

Gorbachev is concerned that the Soviet Union's strong ties to India, which faithfully sides with the Kremlin on most foreign policy positions, could be weakened as he moves to end more than a quarter of a century of hostile relations with China. The two communist giants are expected to hold a summit in early 1989.

But China, which has long used its ally Pakistan as a counterbalance to India, could feel less compelled to provide military and economic aid to New Delhi's arch-foe once the Kremlin's troops have left neighboring Afghanistan.

Moreover, India and China have plenty to gain from the building of links in areas such as trade — currently less than $100 million annually — and exchanges in culture, science and technology.

Officials said Gandhi is scheduled to sign cooperative agreements in these fields Wednesday and authorize the opening of direct air links between Beijing and New Delhi.

Sino-Indian relations thawed in 1954 during the Beijing visit of Gandhi's grandfather, Jawaharlal Nehru, the first prime minister of the newly independent India.

Quebec compromises on sign law

United Press International

QUEBEC — Quebec provincial officials, in an ongoing controversy over whether French or English should be used on signs, decided Sunday to ignore a provision of Canada's constitution and still require exterior business signs be written in French.

The provincial government, however, softened Quebec's politically sensitive language laws by saying that signs inside businesses could also be written in English.

The Supreme Court of Canada ruled Thursday that Quebec's language laws requiring all business signs to be written in French was unconstitutional and violated the rights of English-speaking people in the province.

Those rights are protected in Canada's Charter of Rights, comparable to the Bill of Rights in the U.S. Constitution. However, Canadian provinces legally are entitled to opt out of specific parts of the Charter of Rights — as Quebec did Sunday.

The decision by Liberal Premier Robert Bourassa, requiring French on exterior business signs but allowing English indoors, was a compromise unlikely to satisfy many in Canada supporting language equality between French and English.

It also was unlikely to satisfy Quebec nationalists who would like the Liberal Party provincial government to take a hard line against the Supreme Court ruling by adopting a French-only policy in all instances.

"To govern is to choose" said Bourassa. "We are convinced we took the best choice."

"What I am saying to the English speaking minority of Quebec — of course we are asking for an enormous concession but we must ask for them to look at the other side," he added.

Bourassa said French would continue to have "predominance" over English on inside signs, but exact regulations were not announced.

Quebec's sign law has become a symbolic rallying point for nationalists who want the province to separate from Canada, and for non-nationalists who just want to keep Quebec dominantly French-speaking.

In Montreal, thousands of people rallied before the government's announcement.

Doctors back from Armenia

GLENDALE, Calif. — Two Armenian-American doctors who returned Sunday from a weeklong tour of earthquake-ravaged towns in Armenia praised relief efforts there and urged continued international cooperation to help the survivors rebuild their shattered lives.

Vartkes Najarian, of Glendale, Calif., and Garo Terzagian, of Orange, Calif., members of a State Department-sponsored relief team that arrived in Armenia Dec. 11 said after a brief initial period of chaos, local officials and international relief teams appeared to have met most of the immediate needs of victims.

Speaking before a crowd of 2,000 mostly Armenian people packed into a high school auditorium, Najarian said there appeared to be adequate food and water and temporary shelter was being arranged for an estimated half-million people left homeless by the Dec. 7 disaster, which killed at least 55,000 people.

What is now needed, he said, are water purification devices, prosthetic supplies for the thousands who lost limbs in the quake, psychiatrists to treat trauma and manpower and supplies to help rebuild destroyed homes, schools and industries.

Terzagian criticized the lack of disaster preparedness that led to a slow and inadequate response immediately following the tragedy, but praised Armenian doctors and other relief workers for making the most of what resources they had.

Jackson leads thousands in march

NEW YORK — Some 2,500 activists converged on Columbus Circle for a massive housing rights march led by Jesse Jackson Sunday, the same day a homeless man was found dead in what was believed to be the city's sixth weather-related death of the cold season.

Bundled in coats and scarves to ward off freezing temperatures, the protesters, who included hundreds of homeless men and women, marched to Fifth Avenue with signs reading "Housing is a Human Right" and "Homes Not Shelters," past posh eateries and plush shops crowded with holiday shoppers and tourists.

"We must march together. We must make homelessness illegal in our nation," Jackson told the candle-holding activists at a rally following the march.

"We understand why the Armenians are homeless — an earthquake came through — but in our society, we don't have the same problems as the Armenians," the civil rights activist said. "We have the resources. We must build houses for the homeless. Our character is at stake!"

The former Democratic presidential candidate met earlier Sunday with Soviet officials to map out plans for a star-studded international telethon to aid Armenian earthquake victims.

Also Sunday, a homeless man in his 40s was found dead on a street on Manhattan's Lower East Side. He was believed to be the city's sixth weather-related fatality of the cold season, police said.

Jurors may still rule Steinberg insane

NEW YORK — Jurors still may consider an informal insanity defense in the trial of accused child-killer Joel Steinberg despite the lack of a formal plea that would require him to be examined by a prosecution psychiatrist.

Defense lawyers in Steinberg's second-degree murder trial, which was delayed Friday until Monday because of a sick juror, have indicated they may use an informal insanity defense, relying solely on testimony from witnesses rather than psychiatric experts.

His attorneys told acting state Supreme Court Justice Harold Rothwax they would not move forward with the formal defense, which would have required Steinberg to submit to an examination by a prosecution psychiatrist.

Steinberg, 47, a disbarred lawyer, is accused of beating to death 6-year-old Lisa Steinberg, who he raised with his longtime lover, Hedda Nusbaum, 46, in their Greenwich Village apartment.

Nusbaum, bearing scars of beatings, has testified that Steinberg told her she was a member of a sadomasochistic cult and accused her and Lisa of trying to hypnotize him through staring. She testified Steinberg admitted he "knocked" Lisa down because "the staring business had gotten to be too much."

She also testified that Steinberg handed her the child's unconscious body at about 7 p.m. on Nov. 1, 1987, then left the apartment to dine with a friend.

When Steinberg came home he and Nusbaum smoked cocaine for several hours, she testified. Nusbaum, claiming he beat her into slave-like submission, said Steinberg did not give her permission to call for help until 6 a.m. on Nov. 2.

Medical experts have testified that immediate medical attention might have saved Lisa's life.

Myerson case goes to jury

NEW YORK — A federal judge turning the fate of 1945 Miss America Bea Myerson and two others over to jurors in her divorce-fixing trial said he would sequester the panel unless a verdict is reached Monday.

The government summed up its case in the nearly 3-month-old trial Friday as a "scheme to buy justice in the courts of New York" following defense summations accusing prosecutors of "overzealousness and manipulation of events."

U.S. District Judge John Keenan said he would give the jury of six men and six women the case "before lunch" Monday, after delivering his charge on the law.

From United Press International reports

Pillsbury sold for $5.7 billion

United Press International

MINNEAPOLIS — The Pillsbury Co. announced Sunday it has agreed to be acquired by Grand Met PLC of Great Britain for $66 per share, or $5.7 billion.

Pillsbury's announcement ended its more than two-month effort to fend off Grand Met, which first made a $60-a-share bid for the U.S. company on Oct. 4.

The agreement also follows Pillsbury's defeat last Friday in Delaware Chancery Court, where a judge ruled against the company's "poison pill" takeover defense and blocked it from spinning off its Burger King fast-food subsidiary. Under the agreement, Pillsbury will be acquired by Grand Met, which will buy all outstanding Pillsbury shares at $66 per share, or about $5.7 billion. Company officials said any shares not purchased in the tender offer will be acquired by Grand Met in a later merger for the same $66.

The Pillsbury board of directors said the terms of the offer and the merger are fair and in the best interests of the Pillsbury stock holders. The board recommended that stock holders accept the offer and tender their shares.

The offer is conditioned upon, among other things, there being tendered a number of Pillsbury shares that would represent at least a majority of the shares outstanding, a company release said.

The tender offer has been extended and withdrawal rights will expire at midnight EST Jan. 3, 1989, unless extended.

Ian A. Martin, chief executive of U.S. operations of Grand Met, said the merger would "greatly expand Grand Met's established presence in the U.S. market place."

"We are very pleased with the terms of the merger agreement which was supported by the boards of both Grand Met and Pillsbury," he said. "Pillsbury is a perfect fit to enable Grand Met to achieve its strategy of becoming a world leader in foods and retailing, as well as the drink's sector."

Philip L. Smith, chairman of Pillsbury, said, "We are pleased that we have succeeded in protecting the interests of our shareholders, employees, franchisees and communities, and that we have reached a negotiated agreement that works to the advantage of everyone."

Last month, Smith voted against Grand Met Chairman Allen Sheppard to again reject the $60-a-share offer, saying it was "financially inadequate."

One dead, nine injured in blaze

United Press International

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — A fire apparently started by a careless smoker Sunday swept through a downtown hotel used to house disaster victims, killing one person, injuring nine and forcing the evacuation of more than 100 residents, authorities said.

Two residents remained unaccounted for 12 hours after the blaze at the Morningstar Hotel was reported at 9:30 a.m., police said.

The missing were not necessarily inside in the four-story brick building because some tenants left the area without registering at a Red Cross station set up in a nearby homeless shelter, said city police Lt. Richard Kilgore.

The fire, believed to have been started by a careless smoker on the third floor, was brought under control by 3:30 p.m., but firefighters were expected to remain on the scene through the night to extinguish any sparks that flared, Kilgore said. Firefighters, working in the bitter cold wind-chill temperatures in the single digits, were able to conduct several room-to-room searches for missing tenants, but no other residents were found, authorities said.

The blaze also forced the evacuation of a neighboring Presbyterian church amid fears a wall of the hotel would collapse on it. No damage was reported at the church and many worshippers stayed to help residents who lost their rooms, said Driscoll Bell, the local Red Cross director.

"If it was going to happen, it was the right time," Bell said. "The church was getting ready for a service. They opened their up church facilities (after the fire). Food prepared for a reception was given to the victims."

The hotel, built in 1924, primarily housed victims of other fires and disasters.

Closing arguments in polygamous clan trial

United Press International

COALVILLE, Utah — Closing arguments were scheduled Monday in the murder trial of three polygamous clan members accused of slaying a state lawman during a shootout at their mountain farm.

Lawyers indicated they expected to complete their arguments and send the case to the jury to begin deliberating the guilt or innocence of Addam Swapp, 27; his brother, Jonathan Swapp, 21; and brother-in-law, John Timothy Singer, 22.

The three are charged in 3rd District Court with second-degree murder in the Jan. 28 shooting death of state Corrections Lt. Fred House, a dog handler who was fatally wounded when he tried to send an attack dog against clan members.

House and several FBI agents in the pre-dawn hours of the 13th and final day of the standoff slipped into one of four buildings on the clan's farm, about 40 miles east of Salt Lake City, according to testimony. They remained hidden in the cabin until the Swapp brothers, considered the leaders of the family, walked outside the main house to milk goats.

House sent his dog after the men, but the animal hesitated. When House stood exposed in the doorway to command the dog, he was hit by incoming fire.

Addam Swapp was also wounded. When lawmen swarmed the farm, family members surrendered.

Investigators later determined the fatal shot was fired from the bedroom window of Singer, and from the wheelchair-bound man's rifle.

All three murder suspects were last May convicted by a federal jury.

Peres has hope for U.S.-Israeli talks

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres said Sunday he welcomed statements made by PLO chief Yasser Arafat denouncing terrorism and recognizing Israel's right to exist but questioned whether the change in language reflected a change in position.

Speaking on CBS's "Face the Nation," Peres reiterated Israeli disagreement with the United States over its decision to meet Friday with representatives of the Palestine Liberation Organization after Arafat's statements Wednesday at a news conference in Geneva.

But Peres, reflecting his deep split with governing partner Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir over the issue of Middle East peace, noted: "I believe that one must come to terms with reality. There is no sense in closing our eyes to the changes."

"I admit that there are some changes," Peres said. "I welcome the changes. I welcome the fact that they have changed their language. Now the question is: is that a change in the language or is that a change in the position?"

Despite his conciliatory tone, Peres noted, "I'm ready to sit with every Palestinian who is not engaged in terror, who is seeking peace and who wants to negotiate a peaceful solution with Israel." But he refused to name Arafat specifically.

"I have my doubts about Arafat," Peres said.

Shamir, in his first public comment on the U.S. decision to open a dialogue with the PLO, denounced the American move Saturday as a painful blow to Israel and predicted U.S. officials would "quickly see that they have erred."

His sentiments were echoed Sunday by former Israeli ambassador to the United Nations, Benjamin Netanyahu, a member of Shamir's right-wing Likud party who holds a seat in Israel's Knesset, or parliament.

"We feel sorely let down," said Netanyahu, whose brother died in 1976 in the hands of members of a PLO splinter group in the dramatic rescue of Israeli hostages at the Entebbe, Uganda, airport.

"They say they renounce terrorism, but they do another thing," Netanyahu said of the PLO on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley." "It's called lying — They say one thing and they do another."

Shimon Peres

"I think that's the critical point about our disappointment with the American position," he said. "Because on the issue of terrorism, you didn't say you will recognize the PLO... if they say they will abandon terrorism. But, if you ascertain in the future that they have abandoned terrorism."

But Bassam Abu Sharif, senior advisor to PLO chief Yasser Arafat, maintained that the statements made by Arafat reflected a real change in the Palestinian position.

"The offer is the following," Abu Sharif told the ABC News show. "We want peace. Peace could be obtained if we build it on justice. Two states in Palestine living near each other under peaceful terms."

Yet, when asked about Arafat's statement last month that the PLO opposed Israel's existence as a Zionist state, Abu Sharif said, "We have never said we want to destroy Israel. But, definitely, we as human beings are against racism."

The PLO charter, which Arafat has not revoked, does, however, call for the destruction of Israel.

Undersecretary of State for Political Affairs Michael Armistead, asked on the CBS News show, why the United States did not insist that the PLO change its charter.

Three Arabs killed, 21 wounded in occupied territories

United Press International

JERUSALEM — A third day of widespread violence in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip left three Palestinians dead and at least 21 others wounded in one of the worst periods of unrest since the start of the year-old uprising.

Merchants closed their shops Sunday in the occupied territories and Arab East Jerusalem in observance of a three-day general strike called following clashes Friday in Nablus, the West Bank's largest city, that left five Palestinians dead and 21 wounded by army gunfire.

Eight Palestinians have been killed and more than 70 have been wounded in the three-day spate of violence, which came on the heels of the U.S. decision to open a dialogue with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The United States announced Wednesday that PLO chairman

Yasser Arafat had met its conditions for lifting a ban on talks between America and the PLO.

Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin has defended the army's stronghanded reaction to the Nablus violence, saying radicals were trying to increase tension in the territories following the U.S. decision.

But Palestinian sources said the army's tough response to the Nablus disturbances, and not the announcement of a U.S.-PLO dialogue, triggered the violence.

Despite the violence, Israeli authorities in the West Bank allowed 262 high schools to reopen Sunday. An estimated 40,000 students returned to classes for the first time since the last school year ended in mid-summer.

Authorities, who have viewed the schools as breeding grounds for violent demonstrations since the start of the uprising, barred schools from reopening in September. In the past year, schools have been ordered closed for more than six months.

The opening of the high schools was the final step in the Israeli Civil Administration's plan to allow more than 300,000 elementary and secondary students to resume their studies. Elementary schools opened Dec. 1 and junior high schools resumed classes shortly thereafter.

"We hope the students and their parents will understand the importance of studies and this will continue without problems," said Olivier Rafowicz, a spokesman for the Civil Administration, which governs the territories for the military.

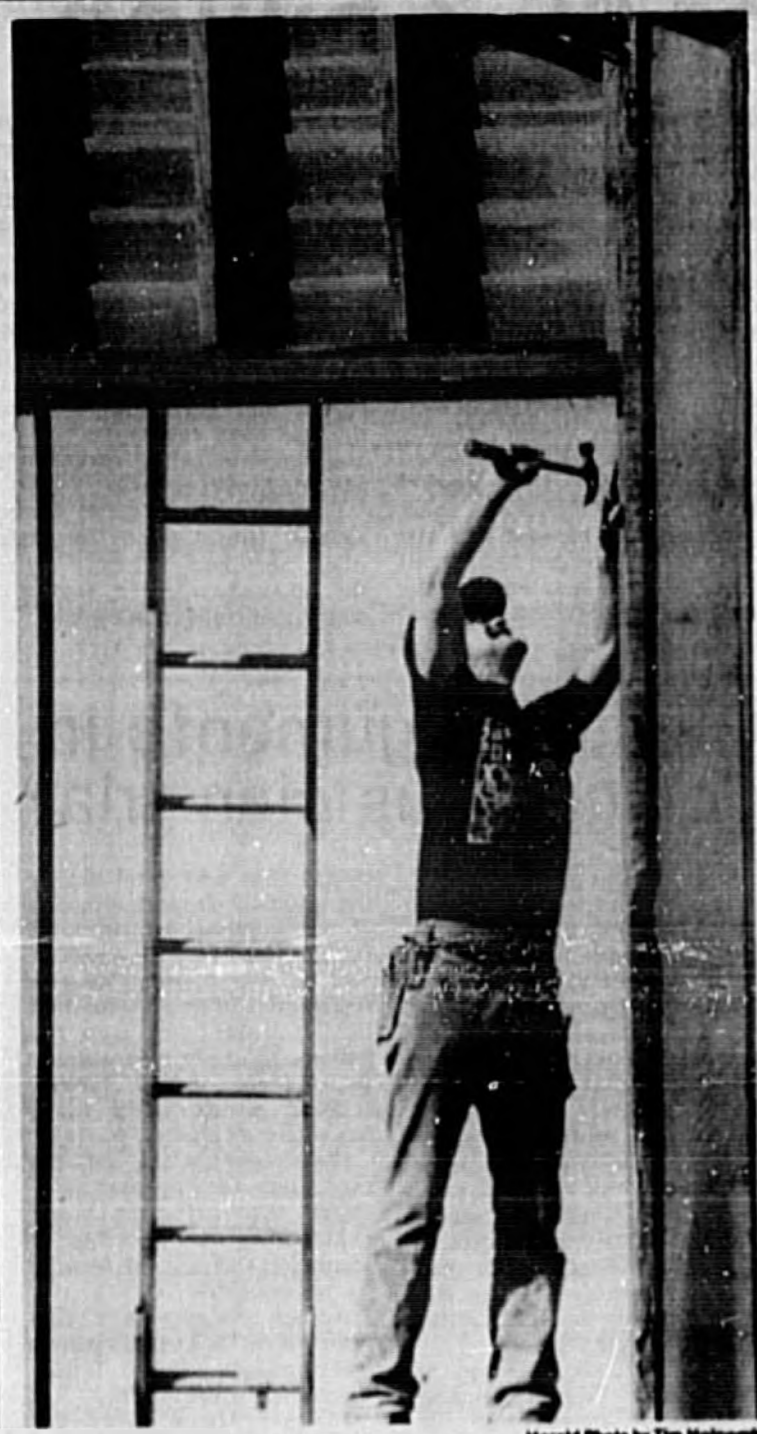

Maj. Gen. Amram Mitzna, commander of the Central District, said he had ordered a special investigation into the latest disturbances because of their gravity, the Ha'aretz newspaper reported.

On Sunday, soldiers raiding the West Bank village of Deir al Ghusun shot and killed Ibrahim Badran, 24, when he tried to throw a stone block from a rooftop onto a military patrol, the army said. He was shot in the head and in the chest, Palestinian sources said.

In the Gaza Strip, soldiers shot and killed Zuhair Ismail Fayyart, 24, and Mohammad Farahat, 40, during clashes in Rafah, located along the border with Egypt at the southernmost tip of the impoverished coastal strip, the sources said. Palestinians burned tires, hurled stones and blocked roads during the clash, they said.

One person died in Rafah, the army spokesman said, but he could not confirm how the Palestinian was killed because the body was taken from the hospital by the family before the army could take it for an autopsy. The army had no information on the second death.

Hammer up

When it's time to get the job done, some laws have to be broken — even the law of gravity. Tim Martin of Steve Agnew Construction would probably scoff at Sir Isaac Newton's ideas if he weren't so busy building a new sign at 655 Fulton St.

IN BRIEF

BASKETBALL

Celtics rising, Lakers fading

The NBA teams of the 1980s are headed in different directions. And, surprisingly, it is the Larry Bird-less Boston Celtics who are on an upswing and the defending champion Los Angeles Lakers who are suddenly slumping.

At Boston, Robert Parish hit 14 of 16 from the field en route to a season-high 34 points Sunday night to spark the Celtics to a 117-104 triumph over the New York Knicks.

For the Celtics, it was their third straight triumph and gave them a victory over the team trying to steal their Atlantic Division throne. The Celtics have won the last five Atlantic titles and eight of the previous nine. But, with Bird out injured, the Celtics have stumbled this season while the upstart Knicks have shot to first place.

At Landover, Md., Jeff Malone scored 34 points and the Washington Bullets erased a 20-point deficit to send the Lakers to their third straight defeat, 115-110.

The Lakers' three consecutive losses have come to teams that were under .500 at the time Los Angeles played them: New Jersey, Boston and Washington. The Bullets are tied for the NBA's fourth worst record.

TENNIS

W. Germany takes Davis Cup

GOTEBORG, Sweden — West Germany captured its first Davis Cup title with a bang, but the event ended with a whimper Sunday as Stefan Edberg won a lackluster singles match and Mats Wilander and Boris Becker declined to play.

Edberg saved Sweden from the humiliation of a whitewash with a 6-4, 8-6 victory over Carl-Uwe Steeb.

Wilander, the world's No. 1 player, pulled out of his reverse singles match with Becker, pleading a recurrence of the shin splints he has suffered since winning the U.S. Open. All week Wilander and Swedish team manager Hans Olesen denied the injury was a problem on the soft clay court at the Scandinavian.

The Swedes forfeited the match, giving West Germany a 4-1 victory. They said neither of the other two team members, Kent Carlsson and Anders Jarryd, was fit to play.

VOLLEYBALL

Vorwerk top pick in draft

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. — Anna Vorwerk, a 1988 All America from the University of Hawaii, was selected Sunday by the Los Angeles Starlites as the No. 1 draft choice in the Major League Volleyball's college player draft.

Other first-round picks by the women's volleyball league included Mary Eggers of Illinois to Chicago, Laurie Wetzel of Washington to New York, Janet Cobbs of North Dakota State to Minnesota, Ann Boyer of UCLA to Chicago (trade with San Jose) and Dawn Davenport of Texas to Portland.

Major League Volleyball's third season begins Feb. 17 and concludes May 20 with the playoff championship match.

Tocchet leads Flyers' comeback

The resurgence of the Philadelphia Flyers can be traced in part to the return of right winger Rick Tocchet.

Tocchet scored two goals Sunday night, including his 20th of the season and the 100th of his NHL career, to pace the Flyers to a 5-1 win over the Winnipeg Jets.

The Flyers, who struggled through November, are 8-1-1 in their last 10 games. The victory boosted Philadelphia's record to .500 for the first time since Nov. 9.

In other games, Quebec stopped Boston 4-2 and New Jersey downed Chicago 5-3.

Fickle finger of fate zaps Giants, Raiders

United Press International

The chance to decide your own fate, all any coach would ask for entering the final week of the season, proved too much for several NFL teams Sunday.

The New York Giants missed their chance to win the NFC East by losing to the New York Jets 27-21. Later Sunday, the Giants found themselves out of the playoffs when the Los Angeles Rams upset the San Francisco 49ers 38-16 to make the playoffs as a wild card. The Philadelphia Eagles won the NFC East with a 23-7 victory over Dallas.

The Seattle Seahawks won the the AFC West with a 43-37 victory over the Los Angeles Raiders. The Seahawks, 9-7, won their first division title in 12 NFL seasons and will play Cincinnati in the conference semifinals. The

Quote of the week

"It's heart-breaking because we had control of our own destiny. They deserved the victory and we didn't. That's what makes the playoffs so prestigious. The cream rises to the top." — Giants' defensive end George Martin.

Raiders could have won the division with a victory.

Bucs tame Lions, 21-10

United Press International

TAMPA — Vinny Testaverde threw three touchdown passes after breaking the NFC single-season record for interceptions Sunday, helping the Tampa Bay Buccaneers clinch third place in the NFC Central Division with a 21-10 triumph against the Detroit Lions.

The Buccaneers, 5-11, overcame four first-half turnovers while the Lions finished at 4-12, including a 2-3 mark under interim coach Wayne Fontes.

Mark Carrier and Testaverde combined on two scoring passes, including a 27-yard strike that returned the momentum to Tampa Bay with 10:12 remaining after the Lions had pulled within 14-10. Carrier and Bruce Hill each caught 31-yard TD passes as the Buccaneers grabbed a 14-0 halftime advantage.

Youth takes the spotlight

Oviedo to host 16-team Classic beginning Tuesday

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

Youthful and inexperienced teams will fill the Central Florida Classic this week with games starting Tuesday at both Oviedo High School and Seminole Community College.

No team comes into the tournament as a dominating force, but all the teams have the talent to play every game tough. In the bracket to be held at Oviedo High School, only three teams have winning records.

Host Oviedo, 4-2, will open against South Dade, from Homestead, and Dale Phillips hopes his team can come up with a strong effort. The Lions were handled by Lyman this past week and they are hoping to bounce back in their journey.

"We're very apprehensive about the tournament, we had a good start but our last game (against Lyman) we played lousy and we definitely don't have any momentum coming in," Phillips said. "We don't know what to expect from South Dade. I know they return everybody from last year and that they're very small and very quick."

Oviedo has been led by the play of junior Robbie Crager, a 6-6 center, and junior Brad Bolton, a 6-4 forward, along with point guard Danny Phillips, a 5-8 junior.

South Dade, 2-4, will bring in a very young team coached by Jose Arias. South Dade returns every player from last year's squad which took quite a beating. South Dade, though, will hope to get on track in the tournament.

"They're speed might hurt us," Phillips said. "We're a lot better against bigger and slower teams."

Dade will be led by Donald Brooks, a 6-3 junior who is averaging just under 20 points per game, Cal Burdick, a 6-3 forward, and Ed Lynn, a 5-9 guard, are the other top threats for Dade.

In the opening game Bishop Moore will take on Brooksville, scheduled for a 4:30 start, Bishop Moore, 4-2, is coming off a big win over Lake Brantley and has built up a little momentum coming into the tournament.

"We feel pretty good," coach Vernon Hair said. "We're real young and still figuring each other out. The win over Lake Brantley, though, boosted our confidence and we're ready for the tournament."

Brooksville, 2-3, is the youngest team in the tournament with only one senior in the starting lineup. Jason Saughter, a 6-6 senior center, leads the team in scoring and rebounding.

"We're real young and aren't real sure of ourselves quite yet," Coach Ernie Chatman said. "We don't have a lot of experience, we lost a couple of players from last season and we've replaced them with a lot of youngsters."

In the second game Lake Mary and Cocoa Beach will look up in a game that should be quite a battle. Both teams have decent size to go along with their quickness.

Lake Mary, 3-2, will look for high scoring Bernard Mitchell to get on track and lead it during the tournament. The Rams have had their ups and downs early in the season but hope to put everything together over the break.

"We're going in trying to win the tournament," Richardson said. "We're getting better and better. I think we've been getting a good draw in the tournament and kind of dropping the ball, hopefully we can turn that around this year. Once we get the bugs out we'll be fine."

To win the tournament Lake Mary must first beat Cocoa, who finished third in the tournament last year and advanced to the state tournament in class 2A. The Tigers, 3-3, hope to do better in the tourney this year and continue on with their post season success.

"We're locked into 20 games in our conference and this tournament is a nice chance for us to get away and see some other teams," Cocoa Oviedo's Vince Hollis puts up a shot over Lyman's Octavius Holiday and J.J. Miller. Lyman went on to win the game in impressive fashion. Both teams will compete in the Central Florida Classic this week.

Brantley boot

Johnson leads Hawks over Wymore, 56-51

By DEAN SMITH
Herald correspondent

CASSELBERRY — Senior forward Steve Johnson scored 24 points, including four three-pointers, and the Lake Howell defense held Wymore Tech to 21 second half points as the Silver Hawks came from behind to defeat the Bobcats, 56-51, before 221 fans Saturday night at Lake Howell High.

The victory moved Lake Howell to 3-4 on the season while Wymore loses for the second straight night to a Seminole county school and falls to 4-3. Because of the luck of the draw the two schools must play each other again Tuesday afternoon in the opening round of the Central Florida Classic. Game time is 4:30 p.m. at Seminole Community College.

"It was not the best game we have played this year, but it was one of our best," said Lake Howell coach Steve Kohn. "We played real good defense, if we had rebounded better we probably would have played better."

Johnson held the leading scorer for the Bobcats, junior guard Cory Chandler, to six points, on two 3-pointers in the first quarter, which was 16 points below his average. "Steve is a good defensive player and we thought his size, six foot, five inches, would give Chandler a problem getting off his jumper," said Kohn.

The game got off to a slow start as both teams were cold at the start. Wymore finally got on the scoreboard at the 7:00 minute mark when Sean Timms scored a layup off a pass from Herich Murray. The Silver Hawks tied it up 30 seconds later when Johnson scored the first two of his ten first quarter points when he hit a jumper off a feed from Joe Scutero. The two teams continued to trade baskets the rest of the quarter and the score was tied 14-14 after one period. Included in Johnson's points were two 3-pointers. Sophomore center Thomas Demps scored the other four Silver Hawk points.

Wymore came out hot in the second quarter and outscored Lake Howell eight to two the first 3:30 of the quarter. Timms made two free throws for the Bobcats before Ryan Thomas hit a jumper for the Silver Hawks. Rodney Paul hit a jumper and Terrance Gaines hit two layups after steals to give Wymore a 22-16 lead. Johnson and Josh Kohn hit 3-pointers around another basket by Gaines to make it 24-22 Wymore. The half ended with Wymore ahead 30-26.

Soccer's balance of power spreading

By CHRIS FISTER
Herald sports editor

At one time in boys prep soccer, it was safe to say that either a team from Miami or Tampa would win the state title in both Class 4A and 3A.

South Florida teams have won the Class 4A title eight times since 1977 with Tampa-area teams taking the title three times. In Class 3A, the Tampa area owns six of the titles.

The two areas of dominance are still hotbeds for soccer, but the balance of power is beginning to spread throughout the state. North Florida claimed its first ever soccer title a year ago when Tallahassee Leon won Class 3A while Orange Park, another team from the North, was runnerup in 4A.

Central Florida is also making its mark with Lake Mary advancing to the final four two years in a row. The Rams and Lake Brantley have each finished second in the state in recent years.

A good barometer of boys soccer will be the Pizza Hut Tournament which begins on Dec. 27 at Orlando Boone and Orlando Bishop Moore. Teams from just about every area of the state will be on hand.

In the most recent FACA state rankings, Miami still is showing its strength with Miami Killian, defending state champion, ranked No. 1 in Class 4A and Miami Sunset No. 2.

Also, Miami Senior moved to No. 5 in this week's poll.

"There are some very strong teams in the Miami area this season," Miami Senior coach Marcos Moran said. "Killian is very powerful and Sunset is killing everyone they play. But we know other areas are playing strong soccer as well. Central Florida is really looking good with teams like Lake Mary and Lyman."

The Tampa area has been pretty much up for grabs thus far with Tampa King and Galtier looking to move in on what has primarily been Tampa Leto territory. Tampa Jesuit, runnerup in 3A last year, has also suffered an early defeat.

Lake Mary moved up a notch, from fourth to third, in the recent rankings after a victory over previous No. 5 Lakeland on Friday. Winter Park also moved into the top 10 this week as the Wildcats remained unbeaten by defeating a strong Lake Howell side.

Tallahassee Leon is looking to keep North Florida in the spotlight as it maintains the No. 1 ranking in Class 3A. Leon is 8-0 this season and has put together an impressive 35-match winning streak.

North Florida also hopes to do well in the new Class 2A this season with Jacksonville Bolles and Jacksonville Bolles and Episcopal looking strong. Bolles recently handed Orange Park its first defeat of the season.

Orange Park's John Karsten (right) battles a Tallahassee Leon player in last year's Pizza Hut Tournament action. The two North Florida teams made a name for themselves a year ago as Leon won the Class 3A title and Orange Park was runnerup in Class 4A.

Another area inching its way toward prime time is the Fort Myers-Naples area. Fort Myers Bishop Verot is one of the top contenders in Class 2A this season while Naples Barron Collier is after its first 3A crown.

"We're playing some pretty good soccer down our way," Bishop Verot coach Kevin Kutza said. "One of our big goals now is to start looking outside of our area for some good competition. We'd love to get a game with Jesuit or Clearwater Catholic or to maybe someday get invited to a tournament like the Pizza Hut."

A new area on the state scene is Lakeland and it is already making an impact in only its third year of competitive soccer. Lakeland High School is currently ranked No. 9 in the Class 4A poll with its only loss to powerful Lake Mary. Lakeland Santa Fe has moved into the Class 2A top 10.

A little north of the South Florida powers is the Boca Raton area and there are a few good ones in that part of the state led by unbeaten Boca Raton High and defending region champion Boca Raton Spanish River.

Miami may still be the kingpin in boys soccer, but South Florida could be bowled over at any time by the vastly improved regions throughout the state.

Wounded Greyhounds upend Satellite

From staff reports

Already missing two of its top attackers, Lyman's Greyhounds saw two more of its top offensive players go out with injuries in their game Saturday at Satellite Beach.

Alan Newsome, who entered for one of the injured players, however, came through with the only score of the game off an assist from Bernard Harden as the Greyhounds pulled out a 1-0 victory, handing Satellite its first loss of the season.

Lyman will now take this week off and looks to heal its injuries in time for the Pizza Hut Tournament. The Hounds open play on Tuesday, Dec. 27 vs. Tampa Jesuit.

"I was looking to get a game in this week but now I'm glad I couldn't get one," Lyman coach Ray Sandidge said. "We need this week to heal the wounded. By the end of the game Saturday, we were down to 12 players."

Newsome's goal came midway through the second half with Harden contributing greatly to the score. Harden took the ball on the wing, beat three defensive players and passed off to Newsome who blasted in a shot from 15 yards out.

Lyman took 16 shots on goal for the game compared to 10 for Satellite. Goalkeeper Kelly Walden made four saves in recording the shutout.

"Satellite only had one really dangerous chance," Sandidge said. "Most of the time, they'd get within 20 or 30 yards and just shoot."

It will be a light week for Seminole County boys soccer teams with only two games on tap. Lake Mary goes to Daytona Beach Seabreeze on Wednesday while Lake Howell hosts Orlando Colonial Wednesday.

Tournament time

From staff reports

Christmas break means tournament time for Seminole County prep athletes with three tourneys on tap this week. Starting today will be the Burger King Classic girls soccer tourney at Lyman and Lake Mary and, in girls basketball, it's the Lake Brantley Christmas Tournament also beginning today. In boys basketball, the Central Florida Classic opens Tuesday at Oviedo High and Seminole Community College.

The Burger King Classic brings together some of the most devastating girls soccer teams in the state. Seven of the 16 teams are ranked in the top 10 in either Class 4A or 3A including Lake Mary (No. 2 in 4A), Largo (No. 5 in 4A), Lake Brantley (No. 7 in 4A) and Lake Howell (No. 8 in 4A) along with St. Thomas Aquinas (No. 1 in 3A), Clearwater Catholic (No. 2 in 3A) and Orlando Bishop Moore (No. 4 in 3A).

In girls basketball, Lake Brantley is hosting its first Christmas tourney and has an eight-team field. Apopka, one of the top Class 4A teams in the state, is seen as the favorite.

Middle school runners show their stuff

From Staff Reports

The Middle School Cross Country Meet was held this past week at Lyman High School with the athletes competing in races of one mile, one and a half miles and two miles.

The sixth grade girls race was won by Michelle Pierce of Greenwood Lakes as she posted a 7:18.3 clocking. Jackson Heights won the girls team race. Cami Burnette won the sixth grade boys individual race with a 6:40.6 finishing time as Tuskuawilla won the team race. The seventh grade girls race, 1½ miles, was won by Ivette Rodriguez of Teague at 10:49.1 with Jackson Heights claiming the team trophy. The boys seventh grade race, a two mile effort, was won by Jeff Shaw of Teague with a nice 11:56.7 clocking to lead Teague to the team title.

The eighth grade girls, 1½ mile run, was won by Stacy Simboli who finished at 11:40.3 while Jackson Heights made it a clean sweep of the team titles. Anthony Lawrence won the boys two mile for the eighth grade, finishing with a 12:16.8 effort as Jackson Heights won the team title.

Edwards, Miami sting Oak Ridge

By JIM RICKENBACKER
Herald Correspondent

KISSIMMEE — The Oak Ridge boys played enough string music to impress nationally ranked Miami Senior Saturday night in the Great Florida Shoot-Out, but forward Doug Edwards turned out to be a virtual one-man band in the Stingarees' 71-63 victory over Orlando Oak Ridge before 3,801 fans at Osceola High School.

Edwards, billed by many as this state's upcoming Mr. Basketball, started fast and never slowed, finishing with 40 points to propel No. 3 ranked (USA Today) Miami Senior (7-0) past the Pioneers (8-1) — ranked third in the latest FSWA state poll behind top-ranked Miami Senior and Miami Carol City.

"I got tired in the fourth quarter because they (the Pioneers) kept constantly pushing, but I felt like I needed to take control," said the 6-foot-9 Edwards, alluding to Oak Ridge's second-half resurgence.

"We needed production from other players but didn't get it," said Miami Senior Coach Shakey Rodriguez. "Oak Ridge keeps coming at you, and to their credit they came back after a shaky start. They played through early foul trouble, and we lost our aggressiveness after the first period. They became the aggressor and we became tentative."

That the Pioneers did, rallying from a 39-26 halftime deficit on the strength of guards Greg Hall

(17 points), Patrick Gordon (14) and Brian Dixon (10) in addition to 6-foot-6 forward Alonzo Harris (17). Hall hit a three-pointer and followed up with 10-foot shot off the glass shortly before Harris' three-point play left the Pioneers trailing, 53-52, with 40 seconds remaining in period three.

Hall, in his first year of varsity competition, passed off to 6-7 center Willie Fisher (season-low six points) and connected on another bank shot that ignited the capacity crowd as well as the 200 wind-chilled fans that watched on closed-circuit television from a parking lot.

The Stingarees adjusted defensively, however, and ran off three consecutive baskets to turn a 60-58 advantage into a 66-58 lead with 2:55 remaining. Edwards scored 10 of his 22 second-half points in the final quarter.

The Pioneers, who missed three front ends of one-and-one situations in the fourth period, could get no closer than five points.

"We missed some shots in the last period because we were tired," said Oak Ridge Coach Ron Smith, whose team blasted eighth-ranked Boone Friday night. "Our kids showed so much heart. A lot of teams would have given up after the start we had."

PREP BASKETBALL: CENTRAL FLORIDA CLASSIC

This year's Classic could be up for grabs

By DEAN SMITH
Herald correspondent

The 1988 Central Florida Classic, being hosted by Oviedo High School, opens Tuesday afternoon with a field of 16 teams from throughout central and south Florida. The tournament will be played at two sites again this year, Oviedo High School and Seminole Community College.

There will be four games played at both Oviedo and Seminole Tuesday starting at 4:30 p.m.

The 4:30 game on Tuesday at Seminole Community College will feature the Bobcats of Eatonville Wymore Tech, 4-3 on the season, and the Silver Hawks of Casselberry Lake Howell High School, 3-4. The two teams played last Saturday night at Lake Howell with the Silver Hawks posting a 58-51 come from behind victory. Steve Johnson, a 6'5" shooting forward, led the way for Lake Howell with 24 points, including four 3-pointers. Wymore's leading scorer, junior guard Cory Chandler, was held to six points but is averaging 22 on the season. Terrance Gaines led the Bobcats in that game with 21 points.

At 6:00 p.m. Dunedin will take on the Fighting Seminoles of Sanford-Seminole High School. Seminole's record of 3-5 does not look that impressive but when you figure they have played Oak Ridge, ranked number two in 4A, Kissimmee Osceola, number three in 3A, and Daytona Beach Mainland, all on the road, the record looks much better. The Seminoles have been playing much better of late and have a two game winning streak coming into the tournament. Seminole has been led by juniors Bernard Eaddy, Brandon Cash, and Robert Moore. Eaddy and Cash are just now starting to get in shape after the football season coach Bob Ebersbach said, "We usually grow during this time and use it just as an experiment."

In the third game Lyman and Jacksonville Raines will square off with both teams relying on their quickness. Both teams have been in tough competition this season and could cause a major stir in the tournament.

Lyman, 2-3, has been using its guard play to pull it through so far and will hope its inside game will become a factor over the break. The Greyhounds are also hoping most of its athletes can come alive after participating in another sport during the fall.

Hawks

The Bobcats extended the lead to six when Gaines made two free throws. The Silver Hawks then tied the score when freshman point guard Josh Kohn made back to back 3-pointers. Timms put Wymore back ahead with a bucket before Lake Howell made four free throws, two by Demps and two and Moore is a rugged rebounder at 6'2".

In the 7:30 p.m. game it will be Satellite Beach taking on Lake Brantley. Satellite is 2-4 on the season but brings the biggest team into the tournament. They are a high scoring bunch as they average 79.3 points per game and scored 96 in a game against a very good Cocoa team last week. The team is led by senior guards Steve Estes, 15.3 points, and Jason Schwiager, 12.3, and junior center Tom Hinley, 15.1. Lake Brantley on the other hand got off to a great start winning its first three games, but has since lost three in a row. The team has not been shooting well but hopes to get things back on track for the tournament. Seniors Bo Pamplin, 17.0 points and 9.0 rebounds, and Troy White, 12.0, 6.0, lead the way for the Patriots.

In the 9:00 p.m. nightcap it will be Ft. Pierce Central taking on Orlando Evans High School. The Cobras of Ft. Pierce are a very young ball club returning only one member from last year's 20-16 ball club. They are led by juniors Patrick Riggins, 14.0, and Eric Nixon, 10.0. Evans is 4-2 on the season with the losses coming at the hands of Oak Ridge and Winter Park, both state ranked, and figures to be the tournament favorite. They are led by seniors Delmar Potat, 15.0 points and 9.0 rebounds, and Derrick Sharp, 18.0 points.

The tournament will continue Wednesday with four more games at both sites. There will be losers bracket games at 4:30 and 6:00 with winners bracket games at 7:30 and 9:00. Thursday will see three games each at Oviedo and Seminole Community College, starting at 6:00 p.m. with the final four games being played Friday at Seminole Community College starting at 4:30 p.m.

Raines, 3-3, won the tournament two years ago and has always been a force when entered in the Classic. Last year the Vikings were ousted early by eventual champion Winter Park.

"We don't know much about the teams in Central Florida but we like the tournament because it gives us a chance to see some more of what the state has to offer," Raines coach James Humphrey said. "We've had three tough games, two to ranked teams, and I hope we can do well in the tournament."

The tournament will begin at 4:30 with the last game scheduled for a 9 p.m. tipoff. The tournament will also be held at SCC with the same times scheduled.

The Houston Oilers lost to the Cleveland Browns 28-23 and will have to return to the cold of Cleveland Stadium in the AFC wild-card game next Saturday. The Oilers could have played Indianapolis in the Astrodome in the wild-card game with a victory. The Cleveland-Houston winner faces Buffalo in the conference semifinals.

The Bills could have clinched home field through the AFC playoffs with a triumph over the Colts, but suffered their first loss within the AFC East as Indianapolis won 14-10. Cincinnati, a 20-17 overtime winner Saturday against Washington, now has home-field edge over Buffalo.

The New Orleans Saints did all they could, beating the Atlanta Falcons 10-9, but fell out of the playoffs because the Eagles won. The Saints' triumph gave San Francisco the NFC West title.

And the playoff situation won't be finalized until Monday night when Chicago plays at Minnesota. If the Vikings win, they will host the NFC wild-card next Monday against the Rams. If the Bears win, Los Angeles will be the wild-card venue. Chicago already has the home-field edge in the NFC playoffs.

At East Rutherford, N.J., Ken O'Brien threw a 5-yard touchdown pass to Al Toon with 37 seconds left for the Jets, 8-7-1. The Giants missed two field goals, surrendered eight sacks, fumbled a punt and allowed a 37-yard kickoff return that set up the winning points.

At San Francisco, Jim Everett threw four touchdown passes, three to tight end Damone Johnson, to guide the Rams to the NFC's final playoff spot.

At New Orleans, Morten Andersen kicked a 30-yard field goal with five seconds remaining and Dalton Hilliard rushed for 127 yards and a touchdown to lead New Orleans. The Saints, 10-6, posted their second consecutive winning season after 20 years without finishing above .500.

At Cleveland, 38-year-old Don Strock overcame three first-half interceptions to spark a 21-point, second-half rally that carried Cleveland to the playoffs for the fourth straight year. Strock, subbing for the injured Bernie Kosar, lofted a 22-yard touchdown pass to Webster Slaughter with 6:23 to play for the go-ahead score.

Houston and Cleveland finished 10-6, but the Browns earned the wild-card home field based on a better division record.

"I'd rather lose this one and win next week," Houston Coach Jerry Glanville said. "Field conditions weren't a factor. I can't blame the loss on bad footing. I blame Cleveland."

Strock hit on 25 of 42 passes for 326 yards and two touchdowns, including six completions to Slaughter for 136 yards. Houston's Warren Moon was 20 of 35 for 287 yards.

Testaverde completed 12 of 23 passes for 189 yards and was intercepted three times. When James Griffin stepped in front of a pass intended for Frank Pillow to end Tampa Bay's opening possession, it gave Testaverde 33 interceptions for the season, topping Fran Tarkenton's previous NFL mark set with Minnesota in 1978.

Rusty Hilger, woeful in the opening half, hit Jeff Chadwick for a 19-yard score in the third period and Eddie Murray added a 27-yard field goal for the Lions. Hilger hit on 16 of 39 for 211 yards and was intercepted three times.

A crowd of 37,778 turned out in bright sunshine on a crisp 50-degree day, the coldest temperature ever registered for an opening NFL kickoff at Tampa Stadium.

Trailing 14-10 early in the final period, the Lions couldn't gain a first down after they were backed up to their own 5-yard line. Bobby Futrell's 22-yard punt return gave Tampa Bay possession at the Detroit 29 and three plays later, Carrier caught a pass in the left flat, spun away from Bruce McNorton and completed a 27-yard scoring play to provide the final margin.

The Lions matched their first-half total of four first downs on their opening drive of the third quarter, marching 58 yards in 11 plays before Murray's 27-yard field goal. Hilger connected with James Jones and Pete Mandley for consecutive 13-yard gains as Detroit pulled within 14-3 at 4:34 of the second half.

Hilger and Mandley combined for completions of 24 and 19 yards on Detroit's next possession. Rookie tight end Pat Carter's 19-yard TD catch was nullified by an illegal formation penalty, but after an incompletion Hilger found Chadwick behind nickel back Rod Jones to make it 14-10 with 3:06 left in the third quarter.

The Lions were outgained 139-2 in the opening period and didn't register their initial first down until four minutes into the second quarter. Testaverde directed a 56-yard drive on Tampa Bay's second possession, capped by his 31-yard TD strike to Hill nine minutes into the game.

An illegal contact penalty against free safety Devon Mitchell on 3rd and 7 sustained the march and Hill beat the beleaguered McNorton on a post pattern for the score. Hill's 14-yard catch earlier in the drive gave the second-year pro more than 1,000 yards in receptions for the season.

Hilger appeared tentative in the first half, completing just 5 of 15 passes with two interceptions.

Give the gift that keeps on growing

Christmas shopping can be quite a challenge to your brain as well as your budget. In addition to the consideration of cost, there's always that old question of what to give.

For some of those on your list, plants might offer a nice solution. A healthy, vigorous plant usually is a welcome addition for either home or landscape. But, before you rush to a nursery, you should consider what to look for and what to avoid in plant selection.

Whether you're shopping for a gift plant for a friend, or for an addition to your own collection, you should choose your purchase carefully. Plants come in a wide range of grades, conditions and standards, and it's sometimes hard to tell which ones have the best chance for survival.

Usually, better plants will cost you more money. But, this isn't a hard and fast rule. When nurseries have sales, they often offer top quality plants at bargain prices. The important thing is to be able to tell what quality is.

Look for compact, rather than spindly, plants. An abundance of foliage is usually a good sign.

GARDENING

CELESTE WHITE

A spindly plant without a good supply of leaves may be the victim of various leaf spot diseases or insect problems, which have caused leaves to fall. Make sure the leaves have a good, uniform color. Check tips of leaves for brown or yellow discoloration. Inspect the trunk and branches to see that they are well-formed, without cracks, peels or scars.

Carefully examine each plant for any signs of insect or disease problem. Some things to look for are: speckling on the leaves, which indicates spider mite injury; curled or distorted leaves, caused by aphid injury; and small bumps on stem and undersides of leaves, resulting from a scale attack. Common disease problems often show up in yellow or brown leaves, rotting stems, and brown roots. Check the soil to make sure it has good color, and hasn't been too heavily compacted. Pick each plant up and make sure that roots aren't growing out of the bottom of the pot.

Other considerations include where the gift plant eventually will be grown. If the plant is to be kept indoors, you should determine whether it requires special lighting. If the plant is to be grown outdoors, determine whether it's adaptable to the climatic conditions of its eventual planting site. Your nurseryman should be able to help you in making such decision.

The following are some suggestions of the most common gift plant selections:

Poinsettia: This most popular Christmas flower is the most obvious suggestion. Purchased potted and in bloom, the flowers will last for 2 to 3 weeks. After the bloom dies and the danger of frost has passed, the plant may be transplanted outside where it will provide beautiful blooms during each Christmas season in the future.

Azaleas: Usually forced to bloom in pots during the Christmas season, these also may be transplanted to the yard. Azaleas are popular for landscaping, and come in several colors.

Christmas cactus: This perennial plant will grow and flower for years to come with proper care. It can be purchased at most variety stores and nurseries, and can be moved outdoors during the warmer weather.

The Christmas Cherry or Pepper: Another unusual potted annual, this ornamental is available in a variety of colors, the most popular being red. Almost none of these plants are suitable for eating, and those that are edible taste very "hot." Once the plant bears, it will die.

Chrysanthemums: Although available in several varieties, the large flowering varieties are not disease-resistant and require almost constant attention. If the homeowner wants to keep them beyond their original flowering period, however, these plants are relatively inexpensive and produce beautiful flowers.

Homophones are dead ringers for each other

Someone "horn-mad" is furious or enraged. Don't move your car after the light turns green, if you want the driver behind you to become horn-mad.

"Literate" refers to intellectuals or people of letters. Students of this column, of course, are bound to be literate.

Q. I've heard of "homophones," but what exactly are they?

A. Homophones are words that have the same pronunciation but different meanings (for example, "one" and "won" are two). Only the context will uncover whether the speaker meant "tail" or "tale."

"Render," which rhymes with sends, gives or delivers. For spelling help with "render," take Elvis Presley's advice: "Return to Sender."

For something sharp or severely felt, try "acute." It may also refer to an accent mark, but that's a different angle on "acute."

LANGUAGE

Q. A guy on my morning train is always saying he "read where" something happened. Isn't that wrong?

A. Yes, it's wrong. The correct expression is "read that." You may want to tell the guy; just say you read that using "read where" is a mistake.

"Foundry" refers to melting and casting metals. A clue for spelling the first syllable may be easily found.

Dullness of mind and senses shows "stupor." It's smart to remember that a close relation to "stupor" is stupid.

Q. When I have two choices, should I write that "either is possible" or is it "either are"?

A. The pronoun "either" means "one or the other." Because it's only one, "either" takes the singular "is." In fact, "either" and "neither" work the same way—either is singular.

Something unlawful or not allowed is "illicit." Be sure it begins with ill—forgetting to double the "l" is considered illicit.

Use "syllable" for each part of word pronounced in a single uninterrupted sound. When you say "syllable," you should hear three syllables.

Q. If done is the past of "do," why is it wrong to say something like "I done it"?

A. Don't mistake the past participle for the past tense. The past tense of "do" is "did," which works as a one-word verb: "I did it." A past participle, such as "done," needs an auxiliary or helping verb: "I have done it." Be done with "I done it."

"Taunt" mocks or insults. It's proper to spell the ending like "aunt," but it's considered rude to taunt your aunt.

"Stucco" refers to plaster or finish for surfacing walls. If you're stuck on its pronunciation, here's a tip: the start of "stucco" sounds like "stuck."

Citizens giving judges hand in juvenile cases

SANFORD — Everyone from housewives to lawyers and doctors has volunteered to help alleviate busy court dockets.

The 28 Seminole County residents graduating Tuesday from the Prosecution Alternatives For Youth Program will hear cases involving delinquent youths accused of their first or second misdemeanor or first felony.

The 2-year-old program, funded through the state Department of Human Services and Seminole County Commission, combined the previous Juvenile Arbitration, and Juvenile Alternative Services Program.

Hearing officers are trained through a 10-week course and will give convicted youths the chance to "pay" for their crimes through sanctioned levies.

Smoking 'fool' wants help for emphysema

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm one of those damned fools who just had to smoke cigarettes. After 50 years, I'm in all kinds of trouble with emphysema...

First, tobacco smoke is associated with bronchitis, infection of the airways. Smoke actually paralyzes the tiny cilia (hair cells) that propel mucus and infection from within lung tissue...

Second, cigarette smoke itself actually destroys the tiny cilia. The reasons are complex but, basically, in smokers, the microscopically small sacs coalesce to form larger, less efficient compartments...

Third, smoke is irritating and causes increased pulmonary mucus secretion. This mucus blocks breathing passageways, leading to poor air exchange. In addition, excess mucus encourages the growth of bacteria, predisposing the patient to bronchitis and pneumonia.

The cardinal rule in treating emphysema is: Avoid all pollutants, including cigarette smoke and other contaminants such as dust and smog.

Medicine to open airways (bronchodilators) and antibiotics (to fight infection) can be useful. Emphysema patients are best helped by learning new, more efficient ways to breathe - for

Tibetans protest in Beijing

UPI report

BEIJING — More than 70 Tibetan students marched through the heart of Beijing Sunday shouting slogans and waving banners to protest human rights violations and the killing of anti-Chinese demonstrators in their strife-torn Himalayan homeland.

An American reporter for a Hong Kong newspaper was detained by police and held at a downtown police station for two hours after speaking to the protesters. Police seized the demonstrators' banners but there was no violence or arrests reported.

The during student march came a week after three people were killed and 13 others injured when police fired on a group of 30 Tibetan Buddhist monks and nuns demonstrating for human rights in the Tibetan capital of Lhasa.

More than 70 Tibetan students staged the illegal demonstration in central Tiananmen Square, the official Xinhua News Agency said in a brief dispatch released late Sunday.

The students, most from the Central Nationalities Institute in northwestern Beijing, said they were protesting the killing by police of Tibetans in anti-Chinese demonstrations in Lhasa Dec. 10.

Tibet, occupied by Chinese forces in the 1950s but recognized as Chinese territory, has been rocked for more than a year by violent protests against Chinese rule by Tibetans demanding autonomy and the return of their exiled spiritual leader, the dalai lama.

Protest leaders said they planned the march Saturday evening and gathered early Sunday in front of the Monument to the People's Heroes in central Tiananmen Square.

The group strode across the huge plaza waving banners reading "Respect Human Rights." "Peacefully Solve the Tibetan Problem." "Oppose All Violence." and "Oppose Armed Repression."

They said about 40 police officers moved in and seized the banners and exposed their camera film, but allowed them to parade once around the square before crossing to the Zhongnanhai government compound on the north side of the plaza.

Police reinforcements lined up in front of the compound — home to the Communist Party headquarters and many top leaders — as the students stood at the gate shouting slogans.

"Everyone knows the (Tibetan) protesters have no weapons, so why were they shot?" said one student leader, who declined to be named.

He stressed Sunday's march was not related to pro-independence unrest in Tibet but rather was intended to protest the handling of the anti-Chinese demonstrations by security forces.

The students stated their aim was to protest the "killing of our people" and to demand the government "protect human rights" in Tibet. They charged police killed at least 12 people in the latest of the pro-independence riots that have rocked Lhasa since fall 1987.

The students abandoned their march when school principal Ren Shiqi came out to talk to them and supplied buses to take them back. Ren also offered to meet with leaders after the group returned to campus. There were no reports of arrests.

The Dec. 10 protest, staged to coincide with International Human Rights Day.

Study raises questions about Pill cancer risk

United Press International

BOSTON — Contradicting previous findings, a new British study suggests some women who take birth control pills may have an increased risk of developing breast cancer.

Researchers at the Royal College of General Practitioners found that while oral contraceptive use does not increase the risk for breast cancer among women overall, it appears to more than triple the risk in women ages 30 to 34.

The findings, coupled with other studies that produced similar findings for other subgroups of women, have led some researchers to rethink a question they had considered answered: Does the Pill increase the breast cancer risk?

"The view was previously that the weight of the evidence was that the Pill does not increase the risk (for breast cancer)," said Dr. Samuel Shapiro, a research professor at the Boston University School of Medicine. "The shift is to the question being open."

Victoria Leonard of the National Women's Health Network in Washington called the British findings "disturbing" and expressed concern they would discourage women, especially teenage girls, from using oral contraceptives.

Unplanned pregnancies carry significant health risks, she said.

She added that based on the British report and other recent studies, her group was considering asking the Food and Drug Administration to change the labeling on birth control pills to warn women about the potential risks.

An estimated 13 million women in the United States use oral contraceptives.

Most experts stressed that none of the studies that have found an increased breast cancer risk among subgroups of women taking the Pill have been reproduced. But the finding that there is no increased risk for women overall has been found repeatedly, including by the new study.

"Right now the main message comes from the finding that there is no increase in risk overall, which should be very reassuring," said Dr. Diana Petitti of the University of California-San Francisco School of Medicine.

Dr. Louise Tyrer of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America in New York said the new study has not prompted any change in her organization's position on the use of oral contraceptives.

"Women should not abandon their present method of contraception if it's oral contraception. They should discuss the matter with their personal physician," said Tyrer.

But Tyrer and some other experts were hesitant to discuss the British study pending a Jan. 5 hearing the FDA has called to discuss the issue.

"The scientific community will be looking at the weight of the evidence at (the hearing). After scientific scrutiny we will be able to make a more reasoned decision," said Tyrer.

Dr. Clifford Kay, the principle author of the new study published in the British Journal of Cancer, acknowledged that while the data came from a study involving 18,000 women who were followed for some 20 years, the actual number of women from whom the breast cancer risk was calculated was small.

Kay also said he interpreted the findings to mean that oral contraceptive use might speed the development of breast cancer in women who would have developed the disease eventually even if they never used the pill.

"You can interpret that as very bad news. I interpret it in very good terms, that that is an acceleration of cancer, rather than a cause," he said.

But he added: "Because of the very contradictory nature of the studies, we do not know if the pill does cause breast cancer."

Kay said he was uncertain why his findings differed from numerous previous studies.

TWO LETTERS CAN SAVE YOUR CHILD'S LIFE

When confronted with drugs, the two most important letters in the alphabet for your children to know are "NO." Children learn the alphabet at an early age, but they are also exposed to drugs early in life. Statistics indicate that 17% of today's youth use alcohol or drugs on a daily basis. Teach your children to know their alphabet when it comes to drugs.
