British Labor Party Scores Big Victory Over All Opposition

Result Means Ramsay MacDonald Will Be Next Prime Minister In Baldwin's Place

LONDON, May 31.—The victory of the labor party in the British general election grew in proportions this afternoon as returns poured in from all parts of the country. For the first time in history the labor party returned more than 200 members to the House of Commons.

Formation of the new government will be decided at 4 o'clock this afternoon by the labor party in the House of Commons. The conservatives had 210; liberals, 37; and others, five.

Premier Stanley Baldwin, conservative former liberal Premier David Lloyd George, and former favorite Premier Ramsay MacDonald were all reelected to the House of Commons.

As their 615 seats to be filled, our seats were necessary for an absolute majority.

Headquarters of the conservative party practically conceded defeat early in the afternoon, it was a virtual landslide. Conservative evening newspapers endorsed the election trend as "seemingly final."

There will be a large number of women in the House of Commons returning to mid-afternoon. BROWNSTEIN women elected in three constituencies, including Miss Megan Lloyd George, daughter of the former Premier.

MacDonald, son of former Premier Ramsay MacDonald, was elected in the Bassetlaw division of Nottingham by a majority of 80,000.

Ramsay MacDonald, who was elected in the Sefton division of Liverpool, East, conservative candidate over W. A. Thorneycroft, candidate of the Liberal Unionists, polled 415,000 votes against his opponent, 62,200.

Chairman of the conservative Winston Churchill, conservative was reelected in the Epsom division of Surrey by a majority of 19,000, over G. G. Sharp, liberal. The aggregate vote tabulated at 3:30 was:

Labor—5,070,290
Conservatives—3,686,636
Liberals—3,381,802
Others—112,681.

New Professional Takes Up Duties At Sanford Golf Club

In an effort to create interest in golf, in order to continue operations during the summer months, the Sanford County Club has announced the appointment of Mr. Allan Stewart as professional of the club for the season, and the establishment of a rate of $20.00 for the use of the links from the present time until Oct. 15.

Mr. Stewart has had complete experience in the operation of golf courses. He was professional at a club in Michigan for some time and comes to Sanford from the Johnson City Club at Johnson City, Tennessee.

The club-house will be open at all hours during the summer months and a small lunch room will be maintained by Mr. Stewart. He expects to be able to take care of small parties desiring a picnic and will handle arrangements for bridge parties, smokers and other social affairs.

The fee of $20.00 which will cover the use of the grounds for the next five and one-half months is the lowest ever reasonable rate ever asked for a private or public course.

This rate is expected to attract a large number of the local followers of the game and much interest is anticipated in plans of Mr. Stewart for several tournaments to be held during the next few months. Plans are already under way for a tournament of golfers from Central Florida, returning to the Central Florida Oliver, who is approaching the idea.

Agents Raid House In Fashionable Section

NEW ORLEANS, May 31.—(INS)—Dry agents today raided a home in a fashionable residential section here which they described as a luxuriously appointed "king-size" speakeasy catering to high school boys and girls. The raid was made on information furnished by a woman dry agent.

Gaudily striped umbrellas and brightly painted tea tables on the lawn gave the home the appearance of a tea room. The woman dry agent declared that liquor was sold to boys and girls and even children when she visited the place three consecutive nights with her escort.

Negro Witness Dies In Grand Jury Room

Bennett Says Ruler's General Condition Remains Good And He Won't Quit Work

WINDSOR, Eng., May 31.—An abcess has complicated the fatal illness of King George. It was revealed this afternoon. The following medical bulletin was issued this morning by Dr. Maxwell Johnson, 25, colored, who testified before the court of inquiry before him as to his knowledge of the shooting of a negro some time ago. The negro had been told to tell all he knew of the case, and in a quiet way he started into the details when he was seen to look a conspirator on the door. Then he turned to the other side of the chair and lay down. The general condition, remained good. Though the King will never be able to transport public business, he will be able to do it in a quiet place.

The bulletin was signed by H. L. Martin, apothecary to the King's household at Windsor Sir Stanhope Mowatt and Lord Davison of Penn.

Official announcement of the King's new illness was issued to the British press late yesterday.

For the third time in recent weeks the King has been taken to bed.

Little Coast Is All Set To Retain Title On Track It Has Held Seven Times

By Davis J. Walsh
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA, May 31.—The guy who permanently covered Mark Twain's lawn now, the Pacific Coast is again today to extend its lead in the intercollegiate track field championship, an eastern institution but seemingly a western innovation. Seven times in the last eight years has it won this title and today Stanford, champion also in 1926 and 1927, seemed destined to renew the moratorium.

Mark Twain's lawn mower friend, I remember correctly, agreed to let him read some books but insisted that the books must be read in his, the friend's, library; subsequently, the friend wished to borrow a lawn mower and Mark readily consented to the use, provided it did not leave his, Mark's, lawn. That, in substance, is about all the intercollegiate A. A. can do to do about coast domination of its title every year but that the coast must come out and get it.

Today, it comes, it comes, and, according to all accounts by committee, Stanford has retained seven, 75 percent of the strength that rolled up 48 points last year, some of the new men are expected to repeat adequately the old who are lost between seasons.

If they place, from two to three men in the discus, shot put, javelin and broad jump trials, as they have every right to expect, then the finale tomorrow night will be allowed to go by default.

Southern California, headed by Charles Bork, the sprint champion of two years ago, and Jack Williams, the pole vault, will furnish a lot of the so-called contention and may make the impending coast triumph a one-two affair. California also will be in there with a team but the Golden Bear no longer is a title factor. It may finish in the final six, at that.

The East, however, is coming to a belated realization of its ignominy and today will make its most determined stand since 1924 when Yale interrupted California's three-year reign and furnished the lone eastern victory in nine years. Yale, Pennsylvania, New York University, Cornell, Harvard, Georgetown, Penn State and Pittsburgh have what may be termed really representative teams for the first time in several years and their presence in the arena today will underline the general belief that the team that wins must be good. However, Stanford is understood to be off of that.

At least five records ought to go during the general excitement and Stanford men may get two or more of them.

Erik Krenz threw the discuss 234 feet 11 inches and put the shot at 50 feet 1 inch last year to two-line the victory column and record book but today he may have to yield to a team mate in one of these, the shot put. Harlow Rothier, second, to Krenz last year, has done 51 feet 0 3/4 inches and Krenz's record seems to be at his mercy. Krenz, however, has got the discuss out a distance of 163 feet 3 3/4 inches and apparently can't miss the record either in today's trials or tomorrow's final.

Another record under fire will be Craft Hines' javelin effort of 205 feet 7 5/8 inches; so will the 220 yard hurdle mark of 23 2/5 and possibly T. G. Meredith's long standing record of 1:53 in the half mile. Sid Kieselhorst, of Yale, the 1929 champion, ought to nip the hurdle mark. Phil Edwards, N. Y. U. negro, can better 1:53 for the half, if chased hard enough. A lot here depends on the first quarter and Edwards never was notorious for the intelligence of his pace.

As for the javelin record, Emory Currie and Ken Churchill, of California, have done 200 feet and several Stanford men, including Bill Sparling, have beaten 200 feet consistently so one may be pardoned if he fears the worst for Hines' effort.

Bush will run only in the fur-jong, in order to save his leg, and a record always is possible when he goes to the post. The same can be said for any modern pole vaulting contest, particularly one that includes Jack Williams, Fred Sturdy, Ward Edmonds and Vic Pickard among the entries. Sturdy has been flirting with Corra's world record of 14 feet all season; Williams and Pickard did 13 feet, 10 Williams and Edmonds, possibly the best potential vaulters of the lot, is consistent at 13-0.

So much for possibilities. Among the probabilities is that the East today will begin the launching of a new career of self-assertion. It has been the family door mat long enough; it may not be too long before it again takes on the aspect of the family watch dog.

THE BOOSTER NEWS

Volume 1 May 31, 1929 Number 45

The sweet girl graduate will soon be the centre of attraction.

Wonderful swimming party last night—the lady who made the coffee was beautiful—the lady who made the doughnuts was wonderful—in fact the whole affair was splendid!

Policemen used to brag about the full dinner pail, now-a-days they don't make a hit unless they promise a full gasoline pail.

Mr. Frank Harrison, engineer at the power plant, bought a new Whippet recently. If a man is a mechanic or an engineer, he buys a WHIPPET. Constructed perfectly!

He (looking at her golf sticks) "I see you have

(Continued From Page One) and told him that if he wished to join her "family" he would have to take out some life insurance, in her favor. Martin said he "went away, and never came back."

Although they were occupied chiefly in delving deeper into the Park murder, the authorities were also looking into the circumstances of the disappearance a few years ago of Claude P. Burham on whose Mrs. Powers was said to have obtained a $5,000 insurance policy. The case was regarded as closed until the Park murder suddenly revived it.

Another angle was added to the Burham disappearance when it was learned that E. E. Valentine, of Marion, the agent who sold the Burham policy, was slain under very mysterious circumstances some time ago.

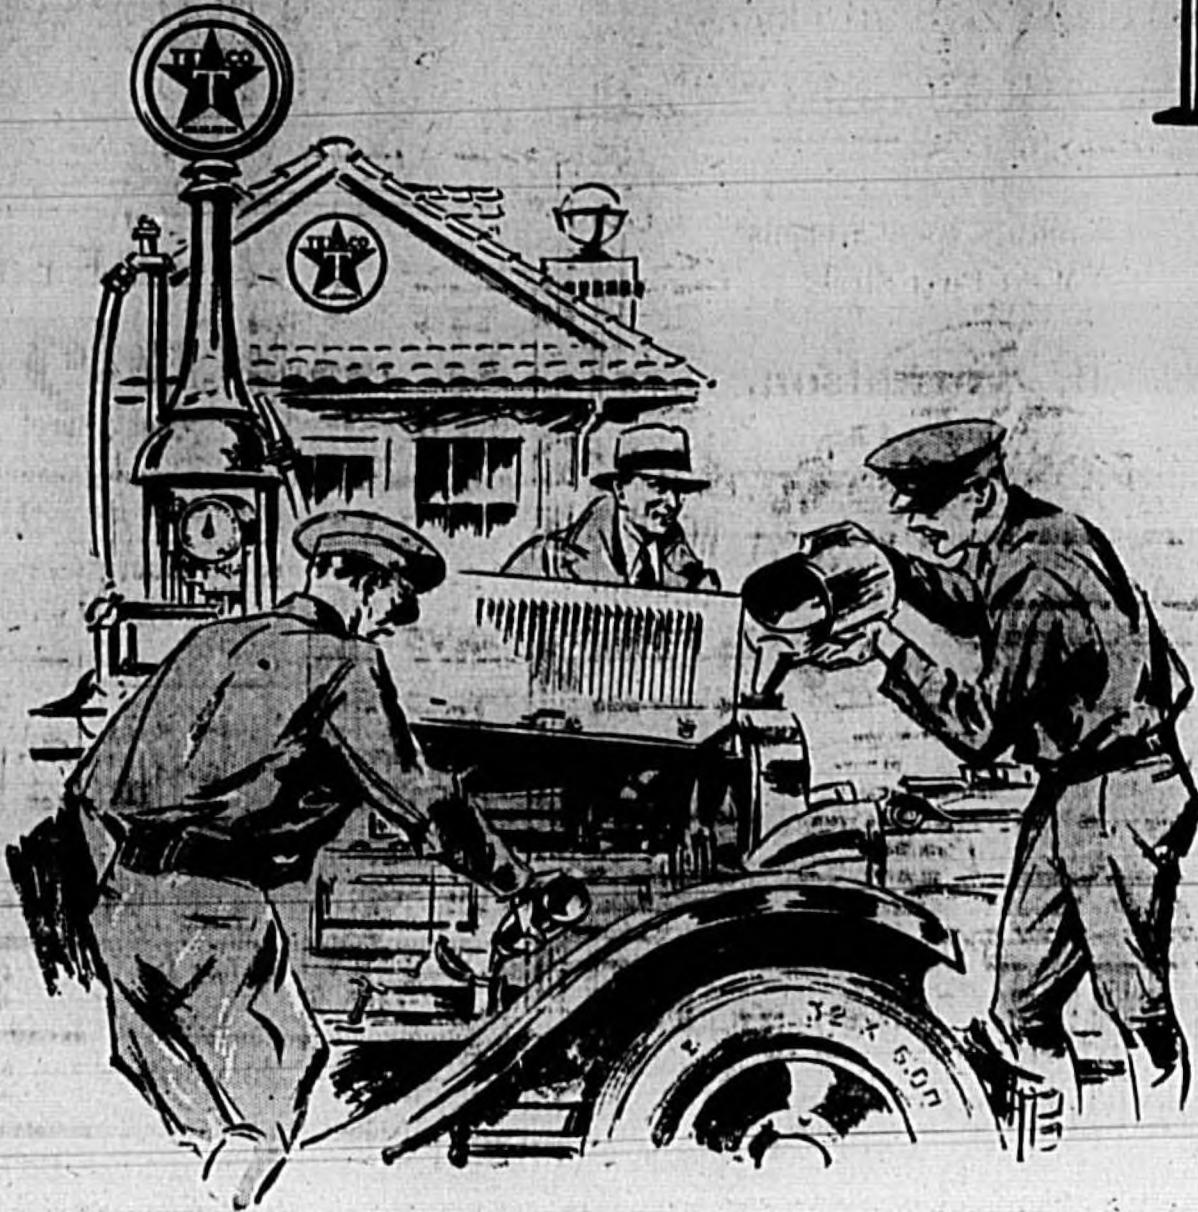

Still another of the strange circumstances in which the enigmatic old landlady was involved was revived by the current charges against her. According to police, two residences here, which had been insured in favor of Mrs. Powers, burned four years ago. Mullis said Mrs. Powers sent him to take an examination for a $12,000 policy, but he was rejected.

But the story is not half told, to use the words of one of the investigators. The police claim that the aged woman numbered among her "blackmail" victims several prominent citizens of Middle Georgia, high in public life. "But we haven't gone into these minor things much," it was explained. "We are now busy making certain she won't beat down the evidence against her on the murder charge."

Shirley Hicks regards the case as "virtually complete." "The evidence," he said "is complete, even to the signed and sworn confessions of both Mrs. Powers and Manchester."

(Continued From Page One) of all Senate roll-calls and for public consideration of presidential nominations, whenever a majority so desires. There is a bare possibility that these two changes in Senate rules will be adopted this week.

Administration leaders meanwhile were concerned with their plans for an all-summer recess. In order to give Congress a vacation during the hot summer months, they must secure final enactment of both the farm relief and the re-apportionment bills, and secure an agreement in the Senate for a vote on the tariff bill early next Fall. Little trouble is anticipated, except over the farm bill which has developed a deadlock in conference. There were indications though that the Senate and House conference will get together this week and agree upon a compromise bill, with the debenture plan eliminated. This would please everybody except Democratic leaders, and a handful of insurgents, but would insure the congressional recess

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

THE SPIRITUAL MAGNET
The Lord hath appeared of old unto me, saying, Yes, I have loved thee with an everlasting love; therefore with loving-kindness have I drawn thee.—Jeremiah 31:3.

FOR ELINOR WYLIE
Live on in beauty
Though your rest be long,
Dust cannot tame you,
Nor your song.

Hills will be greening,
Orchards turning red,
The rain's silver singing
Though you are dead.

Mountains will never
Silence their purple thunder
Nor pushing buds withhold
Their strange wonder.

There will be always
Beauty at last—
Earth cannot keep you
Though your sleep fast.

Edward Gallagher, of Gallagher

Lessons Of Love

Edward Gallagher, who died the other day in New York, was not a philosopher or a great teacher, but the events of his life point to a number of excellent lessons which everyone should know well. The love of a wife, the wasteful dissipation of health and fortune, the worth of a poor friend, are all morals which Mister Gallagher made no effort to teach, but which his passing has left to a skeptical and sometimes treacherous world.

In the heyday of his theatrical career, when he and Mister Shean were splitting sides in Florenz Ziegfeld's New Amsterdam, Mister Gallagher was receiving the munificent salary of one thousand dollars a week; Mister Shean, too, was similarly well paid and, possibly a student of Benjamin Franklin's theory of economics, he saved most of his for a rainy day. Not so Mister Gallagher. It was "easy come—easy go" with him.

His wife, a faithful woman whom he had married before his star began to shine so brilliantly, soon grew tiresome. We do not know how much she had encouraged him in his younger days before big contracts were offered him. We do not know how much she may have pinched and scraped in order to live on the meager salary he received, for his cheap vaudeville appearance. But we do know that as soon as the big contract came, he put her aside and took another, more luxurious mate.

Time passed, and people grew tired of Mister Gallagher and Mister Shean. Mister Gallagher's expenses were increasing in proportion. He must have more money. He asked Mr. Ziegfeld for fifteen hundred a week. This was too much for the glorifier of American girls. Mister Gallagher wasn't worth a thousand. A new show was announced, but there was no Gallagher and Shean act. What became of them? There was the cheap vaudeville route again. Then blow! They dropped from sight.

Mister Gallagher soon became sick and had to go to a hospital. His second wife left him. He spent the little money he had left and soon quit the hospital. He must have work. Again he tried the stage. This time to make a valiant effort to come back. He failed. He just couldn't get over. His voice was rusty and his jokes were flat. The show was too much for him. He suffered a collapse and returned to the hospital.

Broke, sick, paralyzed in a Quoona sanitarium, who came to help him? His friend, Mister Shean, who had been his partner, who had sung with him on many a stage, who had made money, fame, with him? His second wife, for whom he had deserted his first wife, on whom he had avished vast sums of money so that she might strut like a gorgeous peacock before the eyes of envious men? None of these came near him throughout his last long sickness.

It was his first wife, his abandoned wife, who came back when he was down and out, who worked in a night club so that she could pay his hospital expenses, who rushed back from work so that she could be with him during his last lonely hours. It takes more than love to do that. It takes forgiveness.

Early JACKSONVILLE

Sanford citizens who love their Florida histories will be interested in a historical sketch recently broadcast over WJAX in Jacksonville. The facts deal with the early events of Jacksonville beginning at a time when it was an Indian village known as Choya. The life of those times was confined to a large extent to the missions as shown by the following account, which is reprinted from the Times-Union:

"The Spaniards had driven out the French Indians and in turn, an avenging French expedition with the help of Indian allies had massacred the Spanish garrison and discouraged the Castilians at St. Augustine from further attempts at rebuilding. Indeed, the Spaniards were cooped up within the strong walls of the Ancient City, golden sentinels forth. There is no record of white man's activity in Duval county until the coming of the first missionaries.

"The Jacksonville first recorded with the coming of the missionary was written during that time by Fr. Lopez de Mendoza, clear and father superior for both St. Augustine and San Mateo. In that year of 1567, Fr. de Mendoza, despairing of converting the savage Indians and his companions were succeeded by the Jesuits. Six years later, however, the Society of St. Francis sent Fr. Alonso Reynolds to Duval and in 1600 King Philip II of Spain was told there were eighty churches built and more building. By the year 1634 these missionaries claimed 40,000 converts among the Indians. For years these faithful priests and friars were the only white men in our part of Florida.

"Location of many of the missions is lost in conjecture. It is established by the testimony of Florida's first tourist, however, that one was on St. George Island in 1699. The tourist was Jonathan Dickinson wrecked off the coast and saved by Indians and sent North again by the Franciscans. He mentions one town on the island St. Wins (San Juan?) and then records his arrival by canoe at St. Marks (Gulf?).

"Meanwhile King Charles I of England had, in 1630 granted a charter to Sir Robert Heath for the lands from the St. Johns river north to the thirty-sixth parallel of latitude, which charter Heath forfeited and King Charles I in 1633 made it over to the Earl of Clarendon. This grant made by virtue of the discoveries of Cabot and expedition of Sir Francis Drake in 1586 made the land north of the St. Johns river including Jacksonville, a part of Carolina. The Spaniards claimed that their northern boundary was near Port Royal in South Carolina by right of settlement by Menendez, and this dispute began a warfare which lasted for more than fifty years."

RELIGION BY STATUTE

MIAMI REVIEW

Certain religious organizations have pitched camp on Capitol Hill and dug themselves in. They provide one of the most powerful lobbies now infesting the halls of Congress. They are there for the avowed purpose of jamming their iniquitous compulsory Sunday observance measure down the national throat.

We have no grievance against the church—far from it. We give full recognition to its great moral influence for the betterment of the world. We grant that it is worthy of unqualified support at the hands of the people. It is the greatest enlightening influence of all ages. The trouble lies with some of the subsidiary organizations that drap themselves in the cloak of the church to spread propaganda for their pet creeds.

There has been endless public outcry against lobbies in Washington for this, that and the boggeden child aired by Bigots

"Some village Hampden gullies of his country's blood . . ."

It appears we are here, there is nothing more singular about Greenwood, Jackson county, this side, a splendid example of the growth of an industry from the natural, local advantages enjoyed. Quietly there has grown up there a peanut mill with a capacity of fifty tons of peanuts daily. According to the manager, A. D. Harsh, they handle annually from $200,000 to $400,000 worth of peanuts. This industry is doubtless of considerable value to the business of the village, and is certainly worth much to farmers who find here a cash market for their peanuts. —Bonifay Advertiser.

The hostess presented Mrs. Laird with pearl and crystal beads and gave Miss Owen a box of face powder. Mrs. Monroe B. Hutton had high scores at the conclusion of the games and was given a string of purple beads.

A color scheme of purple and pink was developed by the profusion of purple asters, pink roses and hydrangeas which were arranged in bowls and baskets about the rooms where the tables were placed, and by the card table covers which were of pink and purple linens. The nut cups which marked the place of each guest were designed to represent purple suitcases, tied with bows of pink meline.

The refreshments which were served late in the afternoon by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. George A. DeCelles and Mrs. John W. Sned, further accentuate the color motif. ## Boxer thinks Dempsey has poor sport to leave promoter without notice

International News Service
Sports Editor

NEW YORK May 31—It seems the boy friend, John Dempsey, accumulated for himself $10,000 of incidental abuse on reserve, because of the manner in which he was deemed to have left his sweetheart, J. J. Fugazy, the big Irishman from Bagatelle, in a moment of inspired reason the other day. Fugazy, it appears, is not with one thing and without another, the former being abrupt and the latter something like $10,000 that you couldn't buy sleeve garters with in the difference.

This sum was advanced to John so that he could pay himself off by befiting his fancy over a period of one year. The idea was silly in the fact that John being the smart fellow he is, he simply got ultra-intelligent and paid himself off in two months.

In so doing, he was well within the terms of the contract. These demanded that Fugazy and Edwin Cole, the lad who protects millionaires against themselves, provide an outdoor arena in New York City by May 25, which they didn't, starting at a very early date.

Their failure to find the contract, also the 40 grand, at least insomuch as their legal interest in it concerned. Their personal interest may be designated as absolutely unswerving—and they are conferring avidly about it with barristers and other persons who can be relied upon to pull the rabbit out of the hat provided it isn't a freshman's skull cap.

However, they have no great sustaining hope about it, as John is believed to be in Wilmington, Del., today awaiting the first good train west and, besides, the contract says it is his money, any.

The point is that the contract and Broadway say two different things. The latter's story is that Dempsey should have kicked back part of the money and that his failure to do so was not quite the "sporting" thing, although what Broadway can possibly know about sportsmanship hasn't been clearly established.

Anyhow, they say that Fugazy hasn't got a break and won't unless he leaves his leg in a revolving door some day, whereas, according to the story, Dempsey is a millionaire and doesn't need money any more than Stato needs a hat. This only goes to prove that Broadway has got John confused with the Hollywood millionaire of the same name. When he is anywhere east of Needles, Ariz., he is just one of the boys doing the best he can. The fact of the matter is that he has plenty of money in Hollywood and he hasn't been there for five months.

I wouldn't be surprised if he was working his way there now. But no matter. For Broadway hasn't finished with its indictment. The rest of it concerns the allegation that, whereas Dempsey knew weeks in advance of the impending break, he gave Fugazy no warning; that, in fact, he had his effects removed from his matchmaker's office after the premises had been closed for the day, in order that Fugazy might have no inkling of what was to transpire.

In short, there can be no doubt that the developments of recent date have left Dempsey with less popularity—with the so-called "mob" in this town. He did what

Churchwell's Begins Big Store-Wide Sale

This morning at 8 o'clock Churchwell's, one of Sanford largest department stores, opened its doors to the public in the first store-wide sale held by that concern in more than a year. A large crowd was on hand to take advantage of the many bargains which featured the sale's opening day, and according to Mr. J. R. Foy, manager of Churchwell's, he is well pleased with the large amount of business which the firm did this morning.

Churchwell's expect to continue the sale through Saturday night of next week, June 8, and many special features will be introduced during the week which will present real values to the buying public at reasonable prices. As stated above, this is the first store-wide sale for some time, and every virtually every one of them figures to do at all times—make sure that he gets the right change—but the boys have been fit to disapprove of the proceeding. I'm not so sure that Dempsey doesn't finish a winner on that end of it too.

this in the store in one sale and display.

Churchwell's ladies department is particularly stressed in this sale. Fine values in that department are said to be the greatest ever known in the history of the store.
