Armed bank robbery suspects go to court

From Staff Reports

Robert Daniels, 24, of 1705 West 14th Street, Sanford, Willie Sanders, 28, of 1502 West 15th Street, Sanford, and Eljah Stafford, 20, of 913 West 12th Street, Sanford, made their initial court appearance at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in the courtroom at the Seminole County Correctional Facility. Each is charged with one count of armed robbery.

The three suspects are accused of robbing the Republic Bank, 1980 Howell Branch Road, Winter Park shortly after 1 p.m. Wednesday. Stafford and Sanders went inside the bank while Daniels waited outside in a car. The bank's security camera photographed Stafford and Sanders during the robbery.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies arrested Stafford and Sanders after a vehicle pursuit along State Road 436, County Road 427 and U.S. Highway 17-92. The suspects' vehicle was finally stopped in the parking lot of the Albertson's supermarket at State Road 436 and Highway 17-92 in Longwood. Deputies Tony Tomra and Dennis Lemma apprehended both suspects in the parking lot.

A few minutes after the robbery, Lieutenant Jerry Ruggins of the Sheriff's Office apprehended Daniels during a traffic stop. See Suspects, Page 4A

Meet The Merchants of First

By RUSS WHITE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Don Knight has sold thousands of shoes the past 44 years in Sanford. County singer Mel Tillis came into Knight's Shoe Store on First Street one day. So did Buster Crabbe, the great swimmer who became an actor.

Most of Knight's customers are longtime city residents who receive far more than footwear from Don Knight.

He's a friendly man with a warm smile for everyone, a hometown product who loves the city, and has helped make Sanford a better place to live and work.

Margie Davidson, who owns A Second Image, is another.

And this week, Cathy Bossert and Elaine Taylor will open the Palmetto Emporium at the corner of First and Palmetto.

County clerk delivers usual revenues check

By RUSS WHITE
Herald Staff Writer

Each year at this time since she became Seminole County's Clerk of the Court nine years ago, Maryanne Morse has been able to treat the county with unused revenues, "excess fees" generated by her office in the past fiscal years.

On Thursday, Morse presented The Board of Seminole County Commissioners with a $474,952.59 check.

This brings the total profits of her office the past nine years to $4,707,363.08, a nifty 8.0 percent return on investments. In 1994, she returned $1,027,520.17.

Prior to Morse's arrival, the county clerk's office frequently came up short in funds and needed money rather than being able to return excess fees to the commissioners and a general county fund.

"Our responsibility is to run each department as efficiently as possible," Morse said. "This is a fee based office, and what comes in - 84 or 85 out of 8150 for a speeding ticket or whatever fee there is from child support payments - is used to meet payroll expenses, buy office supplies and the like.

Morse said that the latest transfer comes after her office paid to complete a comprehensive Domestic Relations/Family Court software package; two new Unix-based mid range computers; and the purchase of a software site license to allow future growth and customer-access to the County and See Revenue, Page 4A

Who's carving the pumpkins tonight?

By MARIA OREM
Herald Staff Writer

What is Halloween without pumpkins? For Sanford residents Mike and Barb Kinkaid, pumpkins have become an art. And not just any old pumpkin will do.

Neighbors

Barb is the carver and creator of some unique jack o'lanterns the couple displays each year at their home during Halloween to the delight of trick or treaters.

"I want to showcase these tonight," Kinkaid said.

The colossal pumpkins came all the way from a farm in New York and driven back to Florida in the couple's truck. Grown from seed in the Adirondack region, the two "Lumina" pumpkins have white skin and dark orange flesh inside.

Kinkaid said she found the pumpkins slightly more difficult to carve than conventional pumpkins.

"The sharp contrast between the white skin and the thick dark orange flesh inside is surprising," she said. "Symmetry is the key. I look for shape and size when selecting speci-

Boogey on down with funky Boogie Nights

Mark Wahlberg has hooked up with a new funky bunch in Boogie Nights (Three and a half stars), a film chronicling a rag tag "family" of pornographers in the late '60s, early '80s. The film is the second feature — and second this year — by writer, director and co-producer Paul Thomas Anderson (Hard Eight).

David Frazier
Screen Tests

This bold, garish, slam-bang cinematic vision is Anderson's slice of life from a taboo underworld. Public knowledge of the porn business seems limited to video store backrooms, adult shops or anti-porn paraphernalia, but Anderson takes movie audiences behind the scenes and into the lives of these unique entertainers.

Burt Reynolds plays a "blue" film visionary director who discovers Wahlberg, who plays a dishwasher in a California nightclub. Since home life is not so great for Wahlberg's character, he decides to join Reynolds' motley crew of outcasts. The film goes through the various members' ups and downs, but these folks are truly at their happiest when they are making their own brand of "art."

You would think that a film about this touchy — pardon the pun — subject would have Jack Valenti's ratings board on heightened alert and special interest groups readying their pocket signs, but Anderson is faithful with his sex scenes. It is not to say that Anderson's film is sanitized by any stretch of the imagination. It's violent and the language is pretty descriptive. But it is done with adept style. And to say that the film is accurate depicting the period it is set in is an understatement; the film embodies the '70s and '80s with its use of slang, costuming, fads and even the hairstyles.

Boogie Nights also sheds new light on the career of "the Bandit" Burt Reynolds. Here the role fits him and he plays up the humor and the drama in the part. It could be considered a best supporting performance. Others in the cast are Wahlberg (Traveller), Julianne Moore (The Lost World: Jurassic Park), John C. Reilly (Hard Eight), William H. Macy (Fargo) and beautiful newcomer Heather Graham.

Boogie Nights is an experience. Although a little sluggish at times, this film boogies.

Admirable this movie called A Life Less Ordinary (Three stars). Scot director Danny Boyle heads his Train Spilling team (producer Andrew Macdonald, writer John Hodge, cinematographer Brian Tufano, production designer Kave Quinn, costume designer Rachael Fleming and, of course, star Ewan McGregor) into a romantic comedy with both audacious and ambitious results. The storyline by screenwriter Hodge, however, does not live up to the presentation of it.

Hodge, basically, rewrites Excess Baggage and molds it to his liking. The storylines of Baggage and Ordinary have a rebellious rich girl (Cameron Diaz) constantly trying to spite her tyrant, tycoon father (Ian

Holm) and ends up getting kidnapped by a passive captor (McGregor). They end up falling in love. The difference in A Life Less Ordinary is that the couple is being pursued by two unorthodox angels (Delroy Lindo and Holly Hunter) trying to keep them together or else they lose their wings. In the case of storyline, Ordinary seems conventional, but Boyle brings a brash, bold style to that conventionality. He turns a standard romantic comedy into an adrenaline rush.

The presence of McGregor and Diaz elevate the film's story as well. The two have chemistry. But the outstanding point is McGregor, who gives a comic performance worthy of consideration. He is an affecting kidnapper that earns our laughs and sympathy.

Someone who was at the screening of the film said to me that Boyle was not true to the story. However, it should be said that the story was not true to the effort Boyle puts into the film's direction.

McRae is the president of American Indian Association of Florida and has been appointed a member of the Government Council of Indian Affairs. In the resolution the BCC stated 'the very fabric and framework of the concepts upon which the founders of this country developed our form of government are based in part upon the political and government structure of the Iroquois League.' The resolution urges all residents to recognize the impact American Indians and Native Americans have on the well-being of county and state.

Information sought on location of poor house

To round out lost information on the early days of the "Old Folks Home," now the Museum of Seminole County History south of Sanford, the museum is seeking the location of the first one, the "County Poor House" which existed before the turn of the century.

On a Sanford Business Directory the old structure was listed as being located on Mellonville Avenue, 3N of Geneva Drive. The present building was built around 1924-25 and is south of Sanford at Five Points.

Also to complete the list of occupants who lived in the house(s) and the museum is searching for names and the approximate years lived there. The museum fields many questions, the latest one as to where the Big Tree Restaurant was located, probably existing in the 1920-30's.

Anyone having information on the above or other pertinent information regarding the museum, please call Karen Jacobs at the museum 321-2480.

 County," Wert said. "This is a great opportunity for us."
 Ecotourism is nature oriented attractions such as airboat rides, canoe trips along the St. Johns River and the Wekiva River, camping and hiking in the parks and trails.
 In the past year, Wert said an office has been marketing ecotour concept, mostly in central Europe and other parts of the United States. Countries interested in the concept include Holland, Germany, Belgium, Ireland and the United Kingdom.
 "We go to trade shows and fairs," he said. "In Holland we've developed the Eco-passport package and tour operators are selling it."
 The goal, he said, is to attract 10 percent more visitors from Spain, Holland, Ireland, and England.
 Wert said the past year has been very good for ecotourism and his office would continue to step up efforts to attract tourists.
 "We want to give people another reason to come other than the major attractions," he said.
 In reviewing last year's performance, Wert said hotel tax revenue was up about 11 percent over the same time last year. Information inquiries tripled for the same period jumping to 30,000 calls. "That's a major increase," he said, adding that the information office in Heathrow (Convention and Visitors Bureau) had increased its hours of operation to seven days a week.
 Wert also noted the benefits offered by the Orlando Sanford Airport. Based on 60 flights each week the airport projects 1.1 million passengers by the end of the year, he said.

 There will be added emphasis on the Seminole County sports training facility at Lake Sylvan, which currently serves professional soccer teams and some lacrosse. Wert said college lacrosse teams from the Northeast are interested in using the facility for winter practice. Columbus Crew, a professional soccer team from Ohio, will be practicing here early next year, Wert said.
 "We're still looking for more use for the facility," he said.
 Five hotels are under construction in the Lake Mary/Heathrow area: Hilton Garden Inn, 120 rooms; Homewood Suites, 112 rooms; Holiday Inn Express, 101 rooms; Main Stay Suites, 100 rooms; LaQuinta Inn, 120 rooms.
 In its efforts to promote the county, Wert's office offers booklets, brochures and a five-minute video, which was recently updated. For more information, call 328-5770.

 a marvelous street." Taylor says. "People are trying to build new towns with this concept - which is so contrived. Sanford is so genuine."
 On a clear October afternoon, the door to Knight's Shoe Store is open, and Don Knight stands outside greeting a customer.
 He's been at the store 44 years, working at first for John Ivey and then taking over the business in 1989. The store is in a building that was erected in 1910.
 "I guess we're old fashioned," Knight said. "We've been selling shoes the old-fashioned way for many years, and we've had a lot of traffic. We have a loyal clientele. We're a family shoe store. Always have been."
 "From the very start, what I've liked the most is the opportunity I have to talk to people, to get to know them and help them find what they're looking for. I'm a people person."
 Because of this - and the fact Knight owns the First Street building and rents to others - Knight's Shoe Store has been able to hold its own despite the plethora of shoe store chains in malls and shopping centers.
 Shaking his head, Knight jokes about Philip Knight and his $7.4 billion Nike empire. "No relation," Don Knight says. "Wouldn't you know it."
 It amuses him, too, that when he first put a pair of athletic shoes in his storefront window, someone broke the glass and took the shoes.
 "This happened three times," he said. "That's why we have one shoe in the window. If someone wants to take it, they'll have to come back and buy the other one."

More folks buy "bread & butter shoes" or Sunday church shoes than sneakers at Knight's Shoe Store but there's no shoe Don Knight won't try to order.
 "We had a ninth grader who needed a pair of size 17 athletic shoes," he said. "We have men's shoes through size 18, but this kid needed even bigger. We got them for him. No problem."
 Knight, 61, plans to keep selling shoes on First Street for many more years. By the year 2000, he said he expects more variety of businesses on First Street and in the city.
 A lot has happened to Sanford, he said, since he was a youngster helping at his dad's celery farm or when he earned 15 cents an hour at McReynolds Drug Store. "The best deal to that job was I could get free ice cream cones," he said.

Don Knight has referred a couple of shoppers who want Halloween costumes to Marge Davidson's A Second Image. She's a busy woman in October. The store hours are extended, people are ready to party.
 "That's the nifty part about what we do at this store," Davidson says. "Almost everyone who comes in is feeling good and ready to party."
 For 17 years, Davidson has operated her costume rental business. Yes, October is the grand month for the shop but every day is Halloween for Sanford's little Marge. "People party all the time - not just for Halloween," she says.
 It has been an odd Halloween season, Davidson said. "Usually there's a hot theme. Each year something

Hallowe'en or All Hallow's Eve

An ancient celebration combining Druid autumn festival and Christian customs, Hallowe'en (All Hallow's Eve) is the beginning of Hallow-tide, a season that embraces the Feast of All Saints (Nov. 1) and the Feast of All Souls (Nov. 2). The observance, dating from the sixth or seventh centuries, has long been associated with thoughts of the dead, spirits, witches, ghosts and devils. In fact, the ancient Celtic Feast of Samhain, the festival that marked the beginning of winter and of the New Year, was observed on Nov. 1.

Trick or Treat or Beggar's Night

A popular custom on Hallowe'en, in which children wearing costumes visit neighbors' homes, calling out "Trick or Treat," and "begging" for candies or gifts to place in their beggars' bags. In recent years there has been an increased participation by adults, often parading in elaborate or outrageous costumes and also requesting candy.

Wekiva River Players to present Joseph And The Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat

from Staff Reports
 The Wekiva River Players will present Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice's Joseph And The Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat on two weekends beginning Friday, Nov. 7.
 Joseph is the story of Joseph, son of Jacob, the father of Israel. The biblical story comes alive as it is told in this musical.
 The Wekiva River Players production has a cast of 25 people of which 45 are children singing in a children's chorus. The cast includes several Lake Mary residents.
 As with all of the shows presented by the theater company, proceeds from the box office will go to benefit a local charity. The Doggy Creek Sing, a charity offering therapeutic camps for children with chronic diseases in the southeastern United States, has been chosen to benefit from all six performances of Joseph. Ten percent of all ticket sales will be donated to this worthwhile cause.
 Joseph will be staged at a new location, the Winter Park Ninth Grade Center Auditorium, Huntington Avenue, Winter Park. Friday's and Saturday's shows, Nov. 7 and 8, 4 and 15, will be at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday's shows, will be at 2 p.m.

Pastor speaks on the Test of Life

Editors note: The following article was retrieved from "The Link," a church bulletin published by the First Presbyterian Church of Sanford where the Rev. Bruce Scott is the minister.

SANFORD - Apply the following tests to yourself as a Christian. How do you fare? Are you alive or dead?

Test 1: Cells. As a believer, I am one of the "cells" that make up the church. But am I an interested, active, serving member of my local church? Or have I placed myself on the sidelines? Am I merely attending once in a while at my convenience? Have I ceased to function as part of the body?

Test 2: Food. Am I regularly taking in healthful spiritual food? Do I listen carefully to Sunday School lessons? Sermons? Am I reading the Bible? Good and serving? Or have I been content to stay immature?

Test 3: Growth. Am I a growing Christian? Am I putting what I know about the Bible and the Christian life into practice? Have I tested my faith by witnessing and serving? Or have I been content to stay immature?

Test 4: Reproduction. Have I been planting the seed of the gospel through my life and witness? Do my classmates or co-workers, teachers or boss, and friends or family know that I am a believer? How long since I have led someone to Christ? Dead Christians don't witness.

Jesus said that the church at Sardis looked alive but was dead (Rev. 3:1). As we avail ourselves of God's help, that won't happen to you and me.

Reflections:
* If I were to give myself the four tests mentioned in this article, would I find much spiritual life?

* Have I done anything to help my church grow in the past few weeks? If it were up to me alone, what would be the outlook for the future of the church?

HERALD STAFF WRITER

SANFORD - Christian singer, Crystal Orhan-McMillen, will be a busy young lady in the next few months. The numerous engagements she has scheduled are sure to uplift and encourage all in her presence.

She has been asked to sing at the Home Interior Fall Festival on Sat., Nov. 1. The event will be held at the Ramada Inn Orlando at the corner of John Young and Highway 50.

During the course of the afternoon (2 to 5 p.m.) she will perform a variety of Christmas songs. A large array of beautiful displays, such as bows and swags decorated in the festive holiday spirit, will fill the room. Floral classes and decorating tips will also be offered as well as numerous accents of pictures, ceramic figurines and home decor for one to purchase.

Displays of fall and Christmas merchandise will be offered. A raffle will take place at a specified time during the day. A gift drawing will also honor hostesses.

In addition to the fall festival, Orhan-McMillen will perform in the musical, "Hark the Herald Angel," on Dec. 7 at the 10:45 a.m. service at the First Baptist Church of Longwood. It is located at 801 State Road 434 in Longwood.

The 8 year old young lady will also sing at the Christmas Eve Candlelight Communion Service at the Church on Dec. 24 at 7 p.m. The service will highlight the holiday festivities for the church.

During the church's Walk Through Bethlehem, Orhan-McMillen, will participate in the children's program. Performances will be Dec. 5 to 7 and Dec. 12 to 14. Times vary each day.

Rams romp to title

By KELLIE WERNER
Herald Staff Writer

Game of the week:

Seminole (6-1, last week beat Deltona, 24-12) at Oviedo (5-2, last week beat Lake Mary, 40-16), 7:30 p.m.

OVIEDO — The Seminole Athletic Conference picture is shaping up nicely.

Tonight's match-up between Oviedo and Seminole could have a big effect on that picture.

It's still too soon to tell, but basically the conference is down to Seminole and Oviedo. An Oviedo win could give it the outright conference title while a Seminole win puts them right in the mix as well.

Even though the conference doesn't do anything for a team's post-season playoff hopes, the players get very worked up about these contests.

"These kids have been playing Pop Warner, freshman and junior varsity against each other since they were little," said Oviedo coach Greg Register. "These games are tradition. My players are even a little more excited because it's Homecoming."

Tonight's game should find both teams evenly matched in addition to evenly dressed. It's appropriate that they are squaring off on Halloween, as both of their school colors are orange and black.

Both teams run the wing-T offense, although they are played very differently. Look for Seminole to continue its running dominance, despite the fact that Joe Knight is nursing a knee injury he sustained last week against DeLand. Clarence Lattimer, who has already proven himself at the junior varsity level, will move up to the varsity squad in Knight's absence. If Seminole coach Jim Worthington decides to try the passing attack, quarterback Garrett Goldsmith and wide out Erick Smith should combine for good yardage.

Oviedo runs a slightly different offense and tries to mix up the passing and throwing. Last week, quarterback Josh Cullen found three separate receivers for three touchdowns and also showed off his running ability with a 55-yard touchdown run. When Cullen isn't running the ball, Jamie Scott does.

The key to tonight's game is simple. He who runs the ball best, finishes first. The offensive lines will be put to the test, as will the defensive back fields. Seminole may have the edge there.

"We're just going to play hard and try to keep improving," Worthington said. "The players just have to try and stay emotional even-keeled. We need to be more consistent throughout the entire game."

It might be a little difficult for the players to remain unemotional with the conference possibly on the line. Sometimes a little excitement is good, if the teams can remain focused on the game.

Seminole, however, is in the most need of maintaining their emotions as they will need all they have for next week's big match-up with Mainland. That game's winner will exit the field as the District 5A-Class 5 champion.

Jacksonville White (7-0, last week beat Jacksonville First Coast, 20-0) at Lake Mary (0-7, last week lost to Oviedo, 40-16).

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary coach Doug Peters needs to realize you don't schedule one of the best teams in the state for Homecoming. Ed White is a Jacksonville powerhouse, always in the state playoff mix and the Rams have struggled terribly all season.

Ever since the Rams gave up golden opportunities in their first two games, not much has gone right and it all fell apart last week as the Rams appeared outmanned against Oviedo.

Now the Rams are still looking for their first win, despite having one of the best offenses in the county. The Cory Cooper to Tim Spivey connection is still the county's best and Robbie Randall is picking up yardage by the bunch but the rest of it hasn't worked. The Lake Mary offensive line has got to give Cooper time or the junior might not make it to his senior year.

The Rams' defense has been a big disappointment all season and is the main reason the Rams are just playing for pride.

Ed White is ranked eighth in the state for Class 5A and has won 24 straight in the regular season. Quarterback Andre Johnson runs the offense and Travis Felder is the leading ground gainer. White doesn't throw the ball much but, at 7-0, they don't have to.

Lake Mary girls rout Oviedo for 6A-3 crown

By JEFF BERLINICKS
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary girls' volleyball coach Cindy Henry had a scary thought last night, appropriate for Halloween Eve.

"We can always play better," Henry said.

That is scary because the Lady Rams absolutely dominated as they took the Class 6A-District 3 title with a commanding 15-7, 15-5 win over Oviedo, the eighth-ranked team in the state.

Lake Mary was never threatened but most of its players probably have their arms and shoulders packed in ice this morning after all the slamming they did at the net.

The win means Lake Mary will host the first round of the regionals next Tuesday against Edgewater High while Oviedo will go on the road to play Winter Park. The winner of the finals last night got home court advantage for the regionals and Lake Mary knew the importance of that.

"We never lose at home," Henry said. "We've got such tremendous fans and they are like a seventh Jackie VanLooven (left) and Stephanie Dale (right) helped Lake Mary dominate the net as the Rams swept four straight games to claim the Class 6A-District 3 crown at Lake Mary High School Thursday night. The Rams, ranked No. 3 in the state, took down DeLand 15-10, 15-7 in the semifinals and No. 8 ranked Oviedo, 15-7, 15-5, in the championship match to earn a home game against Class 6A-District 4 runner-up Edgewater next Tuesday.

K & L Lawn took a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning and ADAFCO never recovered as the league leaders won 13-7.

Sanford Central Baptist Church took a 10-1 lead after two innings only to see All Souls Catholic Church of Sanford battle back to take an 11-10 lead heading into the bottom of the sixth inning. Central Baptist

Stooges leads

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Stooges ended SEI Head Coach's two-game winning streak. Stooges' boys won a home for third place and Franklin Hill took the title by a narrow margin.

PORT ORANGE — Coach Carl Brown will lead his Lake Mary girls' basketball team into action tonight when the Rams compete in the Atlantic High School Tip-Off Classic in Port Orange. The tournament will continue on Saturday with games at 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. each night.

Orlando Magic set opening night roster

Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — With its season and home opener set for tonight (Oct. 31) against the Atlanta Hawks (7:20 p.m.), Orlando Magic General Manager John Gabriel set the Club's opening night roster Thursday afternoon.

In the process, the Magic placed rookies Johnny Taylor (right shoulder strain) and Jason Lawson (pulled groin) on the Injured List, along with veteran center Tim Kempton (low back strain).

Orlando's active roster includes: #1 — Anfernee Hardaway (6-foot-7, guard-forward), #4 — Rony Selkaly (6-foot-11, center), #5 — Mark Price (6-foot, guard), #10 — Darrell Armstrong (6-foot-1, guard), #11 — Brian Evans (6-foot-8, forward), #12 — Derek Harper (6-foot-4, guard), #21 — Gerald Wilkins (6-foot-6, guard-forward), #24 — Dan Schayes (6-foot-11, center), #25 — Nick Anderson (6-foot-6, guard-forward), #33 — Derek Strong (6-foot-9, forward), #45 — Charles Outlaw (6-foot-8, forward), and #54 — Horace Grant (6-foot-10, forward). The coaching staff includes head coach Chuck Daly and assistants Brendan Suhr, Tree Rollins and Tom Sterner.

One bad note for the Magic is that star guard Penny Hardaway may miss tonight's game with tendinitis in his right knee.

GHOSTS & GOBLINS GALORE

As part of the Orlando Magic's Opening Night Festivities, a Halloween Carnival is scheduled from 5:30 p.m. to 7:15 p.m. and will be located on the north side surface lot in front of the Orlando Arena.

The carnival will include five game booths, Solar Bears Radar Slapshot Cage, face painting clowns, Sportsplex Climbing Wall, StarShooter Basketball game, Terror on Church Street characters, WDBO costume contest, K92 FM pumpkin decorating contest and much more.

Season tickets go on sale for Atlanta Braves spring training season

Special to the Herald

LAKE BUENA VISTA — Season tickets for the inaugural season of the Atlanta Braves spring training at Disney's Wide World of Sports complex will go on sale through the Wide World of Sports Box Office beginning tomorrow.

The Atlanta Braves will spend February 12 through March 31 at the Wide World of Sports complex as they prepare for the 1998 season.

In addition to participating in daily workouts and training sessions at the complex, the team will play host to at least 16 spring training games (one game could be added) against other major league teams. The spring training schedule will be finalized by Major League Baseball in December.

On March 28, 1997, a sellout crowd watched the Braves defeat the Cincinnati Reds 9-7 in the Rutherford (7-0, last week beat Tallahassee Godby, 38-0) at Lake Howell (2-5, last week beat Lake Brantley, 29-8), 7:30 p.m.

WINTER PARK Despite a 2-5 start, the Silver Hawks are still in the thick of the Class 6A, District 3 playoff hunt after a big win over Lake Brantley last weekend. Lake Howell can even lose tonight and remain in contention if it gets some help from Lake Brantley next weekend against Oviedo.

Tonight's game is virtually meaningless but a win would be a big confidence builder. It would also be a near-miracle.

Rutherford is the top-ranked 5A team in the state and has been running over opponents all season. To make matters worse for the Silver Hawks, defensive standout Beau Hickman is out for the year and two-way star Kawika Mitchell is questionable. Lake Howell is loaded at running back, but the real difference will be on defense where the Silver Hawks are banged up.

Last week, without Hickman or Mitchell, Lake Howell contained Lake Brantley's running attack and a big play by defensive back Larry Cummings clinched the win. They'll need more than one big play tonight.

Rutherford has a high-powered offense and gives away points grudgingly. Blake Hardin is one of the state's best passing quarterbacks and the rest of the Rams are nearly as talented with several all-state candidates on the team.

For Lake Howell, the most important thing is to stay healthy for Lyman next week and hope Lake Brantley stays healthy for Oviedo.

Lake Brantley (4-3, last week lost to Lake Howell, 29-8) at West Orange (5-2, last week beat Edgewater, 33-22) 7:30 p.m.

WINTER GARDEN Last season, Lake Brantley needed some help to make the state playoffs. This year, they need an act of God.

In 1996, the Patriots snuck in after an overtime win over Lake Mary, a lake Howell upset over Oviedo and a win in the three-way tie-breaker. Once they got there, they even won their first game.

This year it's different. Lake Brantley needs to beat Oviedo next week and have a string of upsets unfold to stay in the hunt. The Patriots got themselves into this hole after a loss to Lake Howell last week in which their top two offensive performers - running back Ryan Pagan and quarterback Brian Criwell - were unavailable at crunch time.

Criwell suffered a broken ankle in the third quarter of the loss and Pagan missed the game completely with a pulled hamstring. Criwell is gone for the year and Regan Russell has taken over the reins at Lake Brantley. Pagan is probable for this week for what is a meaningless game, but he and Russell will have to be in sync against Oviedo next week for any chance at a playoff bid.

West Orange, led by quarterback Troy Hunter, has a potent offense. Reggie Thomas is the main man in the backfield and was a all-conference and all-district selection last season.

There is really no reason to risk Pagan and his tender hamstring until the big night next week when it all comes down for the Patriots.

Lyman is off this week.

player for us. This is a comfort thing since we have three losses and none of them at home.

Don't count out Oviedo yet. The Lady Lions proved their toughness in the semi-finals, also played last night, against a determined Lake Brantley team. The Lady Pats made it clear at the start of the season that they were tired of always coming in behind the Oviedo and Lake Mary juggernaut and took the first game, 15-12 before Oviedo fought back with 15-13, 15-11 wins.

The loss was tough for Lake Brantley which expected the season to last a little bit longer. The game marked the last appearance in a Lake Brantley uniform for seniors Laura Maglio, Sara Winchell, Rachel Sitkoff, Nikki Bendure, Megan Heimers and superstar Carrie Arago who will be seen playing at a big-time university somewhere next fall.

Lake Mary clinched a championship berth with a shaky 15-10, 15-7 win over Deland, a newcomer to the district. The Lady Bulldogs kept it close but Lake Mary pulled away to clinch a rematch with Oviedo.

It was never close. Lake Mary jumped out to an 8-1 lead and coasted from there. If it wasn't a matter of Jackie Van Loooven's unreturnable serves, it was Jeannie Mans slamming a ball past a helpless Oviedo defender.

When Sarah Smith wasn't serving into an Oviedo void, Stephanie Dale was finding ways to put points on the board. Jennifer Brock, Lindsey Manz and Kelly Harbour and Angi Woodall also had big nights as Lake Mary coasted.

The Lady Rams are ranked third in the state Class 6A standings and with a bullet. Last year, Lake Mary lost in the Final Four but have just about everybody back and a trip to George Jenkins High School in Lakeland is looking more and more definite with each match.

Self-talk key to kids' self-esteem

CONSUMER FOCUS

BARBARA HUGHES/GREGG

How can adults help children think good thoughts about themselves? Even though parents and teachers can be supportive, their words can only go so far. Ultimately, children have to believe in their own abilities--and supply their own positive messages--if they're going to be able to handle life's frustrations in a healthy way.

Children have their own internal dialogues going on, much the way adults do. In fact, even though parents aren't always aware of it, children talk to themselves from the time they master the meaning of words. And the messages they send, "I can" or "I can't", "I am" or "I'm Not", have tremendous impact on every aspect of their lives, from how well they do in school to how freely they take on new challenges and dream big dreams.

"Self-talk can become part of a negative cycle that damages self-esteem or a positive one that strengthens it," says educator Douglas Bloch, co-author of Positive Self-Talk for Children (Bantam). "When a child does poorly on a test and says to himself, 'I'm so stupid, I'll never get this', he sets himself up to fail again. But if he says, 'I'll pay better attention next time and ask questions if I don't understand, he's apt to try harder and improve.'"

Positive self-talk can increase confidence. The idea of self-talk as a tool that can help or hurt individuals is not a new one. In recent decades mental-health professionals have recognized the conscious use of self-talk as a powerful source for changing the way individuals think, feel and behave. When used in adult therapy sessions, this technique has proved highly effective in treating depression and other mental disorders.

Its premise is simple: What you say to yourself affects your thoughts and actions. Negative self-talk can lead to negative moods and a sense of hopelessness, whereas positive self-talk can lead to a happier, more optimistic outlook on life. Without a doubt, a child's ability to silence the inner critic can help him maintain a healthy sense of self-worth. But experts note that the benefits of this type of internal communication go beyond enhancing self-esteem.

Positive inner speech can help youngsters confront and deal with their fears. A child who is afraid of the dark might learn to tell herself, "I'm six, and I'm a brave girl." In the face of adversity, kids who give themselves strong positive messages are apt to feel, "I can handle this."

In addition, positive self-talk fosters a child's sense of autonomy and independence. It helps kids develop their own strong self-images--instead of depending on the opinions of others.

Positive self-talk boosts school performances. But the one place where children's internal dialogue can really make a difference is in the classroom. In one study of 487 youngsters ages 8 to 18, for example, those using positive self-talk reported much less anxiety over typical stresses (such as grades and evaluations by teachers) than those who routinely assumed the worst. Given the dramatic impact of self-communication on children, it's important for parents to be aware of the kinds of messages their kids send themselves. But they're not always easy to figure out.

How can parents get a sense of whether their child's inner voice is building her up or tearing her down? With young children, try using a third party, such as a favorite doll or stuffed animal, to find out what is one your preschooler's mind. Children often project their own thoughts onto these beloved creatures, so you might ask why Teddy or Bunny said he was bad. You can then convey messages you'd like your child to internalize--for instance, "Teddy is a good bear who just has to remember to not hit."

To decipher the self-talk of a school-age child, try asking him to draw a picture of himself and exploring what he thinks about this person as he sketches. Or ask your child to look in a mirror and talk about the boy he sees.

Here are additional suggestions for helping kids accentuate the positive:

Model positive self-talk in your life. One mom often told her three kids the story of how she learned to play tennis. "At first, every time I went onto the court I'd say to myself, 'I'll never be able to do this, I can't hit the ball.' And sure enough, I'd miss. But then I started to practice and tell myself, 'I'm getting better.' When I played, I'd say, 'I can hit the ball as well as anyone.' Now, as her children know, she plays in the

Parents, follow through with promised consequences

In our final segment on kids and drugs during Red Ribbon Week, we need to talk about what consequences a parent can impose on a teenager who has been involved with alcohol or other drugs. Many parents can't get past "grounding" as the only consequence and feel that is impossible to monitor and therefore not really effective.

According to May Nordine, Executive Director of Family Plus, Inc., in Minneapolis, "Children want and need more from parents than parents want and need from their children." Therein lies a parent's power. In order to develop effective consequences, parents can start from that premise and create a "Want List" of things their kids want from them. This becomes the foundation from which you develop consequences. Love, spiritual guidance, food, medical attention, shelter, understanding and discipline are not "wants"; they are parental requirements. The "Want" list might include things like designer jeans or tennis shoes, help with buying or maintaining a car, a CD player, money for special occasions, etc. If you, as a parent, intend to develop consequences powerful enough to influence your child's decisions on drug use, the "Want" list is your bargaining tool.

The things kids want focus on privileges, possessions, and power. When parents start withholding these privileges, we get our kids' attention. You never withhold love, but you have every right to withhold possessions which you purchased or services which you customarily provide.

Consequences will only be effective if they are both swift and certain. If your teen talks you out of a consequence or threatens to run away if you impose a consequence, the teen has the power. Don't negotiate a consequence. Kids control their decisions about using, but parents can greatly influence those decisions by establishing clear, concise consequences before the teen is faced with his or her decision.

One creative parent gave this example of an effective consequence. One evening she came home from work and was greeted by the smell of marijuana coming from her son's bedroom: His door was closed, so she asked him through the door what he was doing. He said he was just talking to a friend on the phone. His door was locked and she didn't know what to do, so she just went to bed.

The next morning she told him that she had smelled marijuana coming from his bedroom and if she ever smelled it in her home again, his bedroom door would be removed-permanently.

When developing consequences, be sure that they are observable and that you can assure that the consequence will be honored. If you ground your child, you have to be there to monitor him or her.

You also don't necessarily have to tell your child in advance what the consequence will be. It's enough that they know there will be a consequence to any drug use. But most important, a promised consequence must be followed through on. This is the foundation of an effective behavior change.

The same ibuprofen that millions of people take for aches and pains seems to offer some protection against Alzheimer's disease, say scientists at Johns Hopkins. New studies will look at the risks that go with long-term use of these drugs.

More on Alzheimer's: California researchers believe they've found a genetic link in 50 to 70 percent of cases, a defect in the genes that regulate energy metabolism in the human cell. It's not yet clear whether the defect is a cause or a result of the disease.

Between-periods bleeding in some women turns out to be menstrual flow that collects in cesarean-section scars and leaks out several days later, according to a study at Oregon Health Sciences University. But have it checked.

Colicky babies seem to be calmed by the "white noise" sound of certain household machines like vacuum cleaners or clothes dryers. Sounds are available on CD, or you can do it yourself.

Mom-in-law pushy about sharing love

DEAR ABBY: Help! My husband ("Carl") and I have been married for 18 months. I have a 4-year-old son from a previous marriage and an infant daughter from this marriage. Before I met Carl, he had a one-night stand that resulted in a child (a little girl I'll call Sally). He and the mother of the child agreed a long time ago that Sally would be legally adopted by the mother's new husband (but Carl hasn't signed the papers yet). Carl made the decision to have nothing to do with his daughter. I totally support him in that decision.

Carl and I have a loving and strong relationship. The problem is my mother-in-law.

At our wedding reception, Carl's mother brought along pictures of Sally and showed them to members of my family. Somehow, the photographs got propped up against our wedding toast glasses next to our wedding cake. My husband confronted his mother. She turned it around and tried to make him feel guilty for ignoring the child. To this day she has never apologized for it.

My mother-in-law showed pictures of Sally to my son and told him she was his sister. She has asked me to visit the child and not tell my husband. She also has called me a "twit" (and worse), and told me that my husband was her son, and he loves her more than he loves me.

ADVICE

Carl and I have asked her not to see Sally, but she insists she doesn't need our permission to see her family.

I am upset and very hurt by her attitude and actions. As a family, what should we do?

GERI IN TEXAS

DEAR GERI: Your feelings are valid. Your mother-in-law seems determined that all the children Carl has produced should be blended into one big happy family, regardless of his or your feelings.

It would be in everyone's best interests for Carl to sign the adoption papers as soon as possible. It will then be up to the child's mother and adoptive father to decide if they still want your mother-in-law involved in their and their daughter's lives.

If you distanced yourself from this woman, it would be understandable in the light of her behavior.

DEAR ABBY: In reply to the advice you gave to "Feeling Unloved in St. Cloud, Minn.," whose husband wouldn't touch her unless he had a drink first -- I'd like to share the other perspective:

While she likes to tie quitting drinking to her husband's reluctance to show his feelings, she is only partially correct.

One of the greatest fears people have is rejection. Rejection by the one you love is even worse. She should know that -- she feels it! Imagine what it is like for her husband, who awakened several times in the night to find his wife out of the bed -- and in another bedroom. Talk about rejection!

The reason he doesn't come to her bed for sex is he doesn't want more rejection. Only when he takes a drink does the fear subside.

If she wants sex, why doesn't she go to his bed? I've never yet seen a man refuse a woman's advances. She should be glad he hasn't moved out. Most men would nowadays.

Someday when she's a widow, she can look back at all the nights she didn't hear and feel him in bed next to her. I know, I'm a "Minnesota Twin" to this guy.

MINNESOTA TWIN IN BEAVER CREEK

DEAR MINNESOTA TWIN: Thank you for stepping up to the plate to tell this unhappy wife where she's striking out. Several other readers have voiced the same opinion.

One-track minds can miss diagnoses

DEAN DR. GOTT: In 1995, my 69-year-old husband was admitted to a hospital for chest pain and shortness of breath. He was examined by a cardiologist, who ordered a heart catheterization. Nothing abnormal was discovered, and he was discharged.

Six months later, my husband was found to have inoperable lung cancer. His oncologist says that had a chest X-ray been performed during the hospitalization, the tumor would have been discovered and could have been cured. My husband's doctors claim that Medicare didn't authorize a chest X-ray, so it wasn't performed. What can be done to convince the government "experts" that some X-rays are necessary?

DEAN READER: As much as I rant and rave about government interference in medical care, I cannot place the blame on Medicare for the tragic sequence of events that you describe. In my view, your husband was the victim of what I call the "checkbox syndrome." When you go to a shoe store, they're going to sell you shoes. The cardiologist, in his discretion, was thinking only of heart problems when he ordered the heart catheterization. This is simply an accepted procedure. Medicare doesn't prohibit it, and even if it did, a chest X-ray costs only a few dollars far less than a heart catheterization. I'm not sure as to why the X-ray was neglected. Someone dropped the ball.

I am also puzzled that the tumor was not identified during the catheterization, when a doctor look at the heart and, by necessity, part of the lungs — with a fluoroscope. Having directed the responsibility to your husband's doctors, I must point out, in all fairness, that diagnosing the tumor six months before may not have made any difference in the outcome. Once a lung cancer has reached the stage where it causes pain and shortness of breath, it has usually spread and would not necessarily be amenable to cure. Thus, by the time your husband experienced symptoms, the day may have already been cast.

Nonetheless, this observation doesn't absolve your husband's doctors, who should have ordered a chest X-ray during the initial hospitalization. Later, they compounded their error by claiming that it was the fault of Medicare. I don't buy that. We all make mistakes and, from time to time, sell ourselves out. We ought to be selling something else.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Viruses and Cancer." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope in P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10258. Be sure to mention the title.
