U. S. Action Is Hinted By Hull As He Blasts Vichy

French Government Accused Of Carrying Fight For Nazis In Levant

French Assets May Be Frozen

Welles Answers German Attitude Toward Ship Sinking

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP) President Roosevelt today ordered the immediate freezing of all German and Italian assets in the United States. At the same time he ordered the freezing of the assets of all invaded or occupied European countries not previously covered in freezing orders. An executive order said the action was taken in view of the unlimited emergency declared recently.

United States Secretary of State Hull caustically accused Vichy of doing Germany's fighting for her in Levant; by the acerbity of his words he raised the possibility that the United States might act soon to back up the warnings against Vichy's collaboration with Berlin.

Among the possibilities were the freezing of further funds to the Vichy government from the $1,000,000,000 in assets of the United States in the hands of Vichy banks, and the freezing of the assets of Vichy banks in the United States.

Welles, undersecretary of State, declared today in a discussion of Berlin statements that Americans "have never been impressed by what they regard as a 'sister of threats'."

He made that statement in reply to a newspaper's question concerning the attitude of the United States in the German spokesman's threat that any ship carrying contraband to England would be sunk.

The United States last night formally declared French resistance to the British in Syria and stated that Germany had ordered the Vichy Government "to be the most fighting force in the world."

In a statement Thursday attacking the so-called "German-Laval group" in France, Secretary of State Hull declared that "the attitude of the present government of Vichy is a matter of the deepest disappointment and concern."

He directly accused Vichy Premier Jean Laval, former Vichy ambassador to London, of "betraying France to the enemy."

Reverend Remains At Home In Illness

Target Of Nazi Attack On Cyprus

The naval base at Famagusta (above) is listed as the object of a bitter Nazi aerial attack on Cyprus. Famagusta is the only harbor on the island where larger ships can dock at the quay. Capture of Cyprus would put German forces in a strong position to attack the Free French and British in Syria.

British, Free French Close On Damascus

London Claims Vichy Defenders Abandon Kissou, 10 Miles From Besieged City

By Associated Press.—British imperial and Free French forces closed in on 4,000-year-old Damascus today at the end of the first week of their campaign to take Syria and Lebanon out of Vichy's control and nullify them as assets to the Nazi war plans.

London asserted the Vichy defenders of the Syrian capital had abandoned the town of Kissou, 10 miles away and were falling back close to the walls of the fortified city.

The fall of Damascus is expected within a few hours. The battle of Levant had disorganized thousands of miles distant in a heightening clash of views between Washington and Vichy.

Free French forces invading Syria with the British were reported last night to have surrounded Damascus in an effort to force surrender of the ancient capital without a fight.

Although the French defenders were believed to be still in possession of a ring of forts around the city, the Free French forces apparently were waiting the outcome of parleys for a peaceful occupation.

An Associated Press dispatch direct from Damascus said the capital apparently would be declared an open city and thus not be defended. In this dispatch the Free French forces were believed to be still held at Kissou, 10 miles south of Damascus.

Informed quarters here emphasized that the peaceful occupation at Damascus would be preferred by the Allies, and it was said that in at least one instance already in the Syrian campaign a post held by the Free French forces was peacefully held under a flag of truce.

The British reported further slight progress Friday along the coast road to Beirut where Australian troops were operating with the support of the R.A.F. and the British Mediterranean fleet.

A communique mentioned that motor transports and gun positions had been bombed and machine-gunned by British aircraft in the sector, indicating a continued resistance.

TALLAHASSEE, June 14.—(AP)—When they make their payments on June 15, Florida retailers will be able to close their books on the one-half percent gross receipts tax which they have paid for six years.

The 1941 legislature repealed it, effective July 1, and Comptroller Lee said payments would not be required on business during June.

The original law provided for payments on one month's business as a privilege license to do business. The succeeding month's collections averaged about $175,000 monthly.

New Nation May Be Sixth Junior Partner Of Original Tri-Partite Pact

Japan's Ties With Italy Re-Affirmed

Japanese Minister Says "Solid Collaboration" To Hold

ROME, June 14.—(AP)—Political circles today said that Croatia would sign a three-power pact, joining other southeastern European nations which have lined up with the German-Italian-Japanese treaty.

Croatia, horn of the Axis conquest of Yugoslavia and set up under Axis auspices, would be the sixth junior partner to the original Tri-Partite Pact, following Hungary, Rumania, Slovakia and Bulgaria.

Yugoslavia, before the conquest by the Nazis, signed the protocol, but the government which did so was overthrown.

In Rome, reaffirmation of Japan's ties with the Axis has been given Premier Mussolini by Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, it was announced today.

Matsuoka's message was in praise of Mussolini's speech in which he asserted the Japanese "would not remain indifferent in the face of American aggression against the Axis."

The Japanese foreign minister added Italy's "solid collaboration with Germany, which cannot be disturbed by any country or man, will bring to a finish the common mission which was the original purpose of the German-Italian alliance and which afterwards was clearly specified further by the Tri-Partite Pact."

The origins of the true state of relations between Russia and Germany thickened last night as the Soviet officially admitted that the Red army and newly arrived German veterans are facing each other across their eastern European frontier—and Nazi war films made their appearance in Moscow.

Films showing the work of Adolf Hitler's war-hardened divisions and airforce were run off before Russian officers, Moscow dispatches said, a few hours after the Soviet had stated that large German forces were being sent to eastern Nazi territories and that Russian reservists were going through maneuvers across the border.

Such movie showings are calculated to inspire awe over the military power of the Reich. Germany's Blitzkrieg movies, notably of the Polish campaign and of the war on Germany's western front, have been shown frequently.

Lane Says Kiwanians Have Had Best Inter-City Meetings Since 1921

Edward F. Lane, chairman of the inter-club committee of the Kiwanis Club, said today that the Sanford Club had held five meetings with other clubs in Central Florida since Jan. 1, a record which he described as the best for such meetings since the club was organized in 1921.

At the same time Mr. Lane announced that the Orlando Kiwanis Club will present a program at the Sanford club's luncheon next Wednesday. Warren Roberts, editor of the Orlando Morning Sentinel, will have charge of the program.

Purpose of the inter-club meetings as outlined by Mr. Lane is to "promote a better feeling between the various Kiwanis clubs in this district and to break down the barriers between clubs. An instructive talk and some form of entertainment is generally given at the meetings.

MILK VENUE FOR TODAY

GOD WILL PROVIDE: Take no thought for the morrow, for what shall we eat? What shall we drink? What shall we wear? For all these things shall be added unto you.—Matthew 6:31, 32.

With Stone as Chief Justice the Supreme Court will be heard on the 15th.

Tomorrow is Father's Day—a day of appreciation for the old man.

Hitler says an invasion of the United States would be "an act of God." Perhaps he intends to sell us a Trojan horse.

Of course we can't expect to have business as usual in these trying times but most of us would appreciate your usual business.

We saw by the papers the other day where Al. Smith visited the White House and shook hands with the President. The energy must really be getting vigorous.

Now that it has been definitely established that a German submarine sank the Robin Hood, it was only to be expected that Hitler would insist that the British did it.

Roger Babson insists that wartime restrictions can't kill business. May be not, but they can make it like a blind man's bluff that has been left in the woods to die.

Most young Americans are willing to sacrifice their lives if necessary for national defense. But going away with that Sunday afternoon joy ride is going a little bit too far.

SILLY QUESTION: "Did you miss your train, Bill?" "No, I didn't like its look so I chased it out of the station."—Eric Railroad Magazine.

This is Flag Day. Celebrate it by remembering the color of allegiance. I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States, and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

Nation and Fascism as well as Communism, say some large city editors, are alike because they are both "isms" and "isms" are bad. In the common vernacular, "ism" means the end—Karl Marx, Lenin, Hitler, Stalin, etc. They just want to sleep and none of them have's waked up yet.

Commenting on the new Civilian Control, the Tampa Tribune says: "The Government is certain to meet with wide approval because the man who had made the man of ability, experience and integrity, we have seen here that Florida citizens are ready for better days."

Used to be the House divided into only one section by government lines, but now it's divided into two sections by the lines of the Federal Reserve Bank. The Federal Reserve Bank is the only one in the world that is not a bank.

Somebody remarks that "a man who is not a man" is a man who is not a man. This is a very good definition of a man who is not a man.

The American Alternative

The concern with which the British view the possibility that the French fleet may be turned over to Hitler by the Vichy government gives rise to the question as to what would be the position of the United States if the British were defeated and their fleet also came into the possession of the Germans.

The French are now said to have something like 70 warships in fighting condition including five battleships and thirteen destroyers. These, added to the German fleet, the Japanese fleet and what is left of the Italian fleet, would give the Axis powers a substantial naval superiority over the British and virtually spell the end of British resistance.

There is no reason to believe that the Churchill government would give up the fight even if the British Isles were lost and the war had to be carried on from the dominions across the sea, but it must be remembered that neither was it the Daladier or Reynaud governments in France which surrendered. These governments were overthrown when the Germans broke through at Sedan and soon stood at the gates of Paris.

In the same way if the Germans gain mastery of the seas, the only place where the British have thus far shown any superiority, and were enabled to cross the English Channel in substantial numbers and carry the fighting for the first time to British soil, it is not at all unlikely that a Vichy government would be established in London and that sooner or later the British fleet would fall under the spell of Nazi domination.

The United States would then find itself in much the same predicament which England is now in. The combined navies of our enemies would outnumber ours in the ratio of about two to one. We would have another powerful battlefleet in the blue print stage but in the meantime we would have to defend ourselves in two oceans at the same time with a one-ocean navy.

It might very well be that even so Hitler would have no desire for war with this country and would prefer to settle down on his conquests aboard and carefully digest them, but it is hardly likely that he would do so while we continued to build up our naval might to the equivalent of his, to train our young men in the arts of war and to continue our elaborate defense program.

He would of course expect us to conform to the "new order" to prove our peaceful intentions by discontinuing our armament program while he consolidated his position in the Cape Verde and Canary Islands, at Dakar, in Iceland and perhaps in Greenland and certain strategic South American and Caribbean bases, while the Japs moved in on British possessions in the Far East and the Dutch East Indies.

Our alternative would be to acquiesce peacefully to Nazi domination or fight without allies a combination of powerful enemies. At present we have another alternative: to join our fleet with the British, thus equalling it not surpassing Axis naval power and rendering more unlikely the defeat of Britain and the fall of the Churchill government.

Louised Up Again

News that Sam Byrd, of Sanford, Mount Olive, N. C., New York City, and points north, south, east and west, is doing a new radio show for New York's big WOL station, comes just in time to explain Time magazine's comment on "Fight Camp." Sam first gained fame as "Duke Lester" in Tobacco Road, has been trying ever since to live it down. But Time's review of "Fight Camp" shows how hard it is.

"This week," says Time, "U. S. radio script-writing took a short shuffle away from the tradition of 'heart-throb and supermachines and toward the amiable vulgarity of Ring Lardner. The show is WOR-Mutual's 'Fight Camp,' a good-natured yarn about a sturdy widow named Ma Corbett (Blanche Ring) who conditions pugilists with one hand while keeping them away from her pretty daughter with the other."

"The Dialogue of 'Fight Camp' is not the sort usually provided by soap operators. Characters inquire of one another: 'What manhole did you crawl out of?' and express such opinions as 'This guy'll louse us up.' Its first episode revolves about the widow's search for a fighter of sufficient prowess to prevent her establishment's going broke."

"Fight Camp" was obviously inspired by the career of Madame Hyacinth Bey, a one-time concert singer of French-Armenian extraction whose late husband was secretary in the Turkish Embassy, before he and Madame went into the fight-training business at Summit, N. J., some 20 years ago.

"Fight Camp" will provide spots from title to title for real fighters like Billy Conn and Joe Louis, who appeared on the first show. Mutual hopes to induce someone like sports-loving Gillette Safety Razor Co. to sponsor the show. Of his new venture, Red DeLoach says: "It may be loused up with a little corn, but I don't think every apple-knocker in the country will be able to tip the plot after one installment."

Rome Reports Croatia To Join With Axis Powers

Official Rome news today widely quoted for their propaganda effect and hostility to British gatherings of diplomatic and military attaches in London where Germany's political pressure has been greatest. The Moscow magazine Bolshviki says that the central committee of the Communist party, regarding the foreign policy of the Italian government Friday as one based on independence.

"Soviet foreign policy" said the magazine, "is conditioned only by the interests of the people of the U. S. S. R."

Fans Toss Ball Club Back Into Directors Laps

(Continued from page one) The source of the story is that right suggestions of giving away a car at the ball game were discussed but discarded as risky in the face of the uncertainty of the league continuing through the remainder of the season. Selling of season tickets was also considered.

Charles City team manager, said this morning he had been in communication with John Gansel, Orlando National's president, and was instructed to try to get an agreement from the latter that the team would play in the Florida League. The Gansel plan calls for the team to play in the Florida League and to be eligible for the championship.

U. Of F. May Get It's First Negro During Summer

TALLAHASSEE, June 14.—(AP)—Florida may admit the first negro to its state-supported university at Gainesville this summer, but a temporary General Watson said Friday, strict segregation could be accomplished.

Watson outlined for the state board of control "the law of the situation" and the "practical side" presented by a Summer School admission application from Preston S. Peterson, identified by the board as a negro.

By law, and a United States supreme court decision in a Missouri case, Watson said a negro citizen is entitled to admission to the state university in the absence of other and adequate college facilities for the training desired.

Peterson said he wanted to enter the Summer School and work for a master's degree in business administration. On the practical side, the temporary general said separate dormitory, dining hall and classroom space could be provided, and invited for suggestions separating them from other students.

Watson said perhaps he had admitted to the U. of F. Alvin Lee Navy cadet, but none remained there because negroes have not found their own way to college. He said he had no objection to a negro in any school, but he had no objection to any school that made their desire to remain.

This does not mean that they were miseducated, he said. It simply means that some of the negroes in any school have not been in any school, and the numbers there, they were isolated and found themselves in an unpleasant atmosphere, and did not remain. The principle, attending to the admission of Peterson to the University of Florida in this case, in his opinion, will work out the same results.

Eager Troops Are Out To Collect $50 Rewards

FORT BENNING, GE., June 14. (AP)—Eight snipers of the second armored division turned up their machines of war last night in hopes of literally scattering three divisions of American soldiers all over the Tennessee landscape.

Their song, "We're Off to Fort Benning," was inspired by Brig. Gen. George B. Patton's county offer of $50 to the man who captures Maj. Gen. William N. Haskell, plus $5 for each man in the victorious squad. General Haskell started it by offering $25 for General Patton, so confidence in the army's ability to stop the first-moving tank division.

They are 11,000 men and some 2,000 vehicles in the columns of steel, noised Friday night in their start toward Saturday through Georgia to Chickamauga park near Chattanooga.

They sought to add cheer to the battle of Tennessee, by announcing today their plans to try out a new "secret" weapon that would double the night driving maneuverability of the entire division. This device is so complicated, announced the second division, that only a dozen men in the United States knew enough to build it.

63-Year-Old Woman Is Given Diploma

ST. PETERSBURG, June 14.—(Special)—Among the 450 graduates to receive diplomas from the St. Petersburg Senior High School last week was a 63-year-old woman, Mrs. Mary Russell Day.

Prevented from completing her high school education as a young girl because of illness, and employed for the past 18 years, she took the first opportunity and enrolled in the local high school when she came here as a permanent resident last year.

She would have graduated from Newburyport, Mass., high school with the class of 1923 if she had been privileged to continue her schooling, but was forced to wait 40 years to realize her ambition.

Asked why she decided to enter the class so late in life and after she had retired from active work, she said she did not want to let anyone say she had not completed her education.

Her official record that Florida will benefit tremendously as a result of her education.

Outstanding Features Of Legislation Are Presented In Review Of Session

TALLAHASSEE, June 14 (Special)—The 1941 session of the Florida Legislature has written a new chapter in the history of the state. In fact, one might say that it has written a whole new book. Some of the new legislation is definitely good.

Some is of doubtful value, and some can be judged only after it has been tested in actual operation; but good or bad, for better or for worse, it marks new departures from the old ideas and systems.

The three outstanding features of legislation passed at the session, which closed Friday night, are the changes in the tax system, the new gas tax distribution, and the creation of the Florida Improvement Commission.

While the revamped tax system does not contain all the changes raked by Governor Holland, it still constitutes a radical change from the old and was the subject of the bitterest debate of any measure before the Legislature with the possible exception of some labor legislation.

The Governor lost his plea for a State tax commissioner, to be appointed now and later created by a constitutional amendment. However, he worked out a compromise which gives the State comptroller practically the same authority over county officials which he had requested to give to a State tax commissioner. So the loss is a minor matter, and he can ask the 1943 Legislature to act on the creation of this office, but probably with less chance for success than he had this year.

The new laws require the assessment of all real and personal property, intangibles and railroad property, to be made at full cash value. All tax rolls must be submitted to the comptroller for his approval and cannot go to the county equalization boards until the rolls have been approved by him. He also has authority to supervise the assessment and valuation of property, is charged with the duty to see that they are uniform and equal throughout the state. He also has supervision over the collection of such taxes.

Under the former system, the State was prohibited from issuing bonds except to suppress insurrection or repel invasion. The Constitution still says that. But while the law specifically states that the obligations assumed by this commission shall not be State debts, a State agency is created with full authority to contract debts on "self liquidating" projects for public use and benefit with no other limitation on the amount or the scope of projects to be constructed.

It is frankly understood that one of the first projects to be considered by this commission is the proposed $2-million dollar, four-lane highway down the East Coast, with a branch to Tampa. Several toll bridges, representing investments of several million dollars, will probably be thrown into the pot, and promoters in every section of the state are scratching their heads trying to think up projects which will be of "public use and benefit" and which they can sell the commission.

Making a frank appraisal of this commission, one must conclude that it offers splendid possibilities for developing a state. And at the same time, if improperly or unwisely handled, its actions may be more dangerous to the welfare of the State than any disaster which has ever struck it and that includes boom, hurricane and Mediterranean flies.

While a few objections were offered to appropriating $20,000,000 to defray expenses of a State commission to be maintained at Washington, the benefits every section may receive through its creation seem to assure that it will be a most profitable investment.

A maximum of $40 per month was set on old age pensions, and finances have been provided which will at least double the present amount available for this purpose. Adequate provisions for the care of the aged has, therefore, been made, and while many fantastic proposals were made, the Legislature showed sound judgment in selecting the best available and rejected.

Whatever the State does for the aged, it is a most profitable investment.

The creation of the Florida Improvement Commission, controlled

New Offensive By British In Africa Is Seen Possible

Drive To Take Libya From Enemy Is Intimated By London Observers Of War

Allied Assault Fails In Salum

Imperial Troops Attack Axis Forces In Gambut Sector

Quiet for weeks, the North African battlefield flamed into action today as British troops punched across the frontier into Libya and attacked Axis forces in the Gambut sector west of Bardia, 10 miles from the Egyptian border.

London intimated that Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander-in-chief of the British Army of the Nile may have launched a new offensive to wrest Libya from the Axis.

The Germans asserted a British attack in the Salum area "collapsed" under the combined resistance of Axis troops and airplanes.

In the Middle East, heavy fighting developed in the central sector of British advance into Syria, and Lebanon despite British efforts "to avoid unnecessary bloodshed" in conflict with the Vichy French, the British reported.

The Allies captured Khasouh, 10 miles south of Damascus, and 10 miles south of Beirut, in spite of the strong opposition offered by the Vichy troops, a British communiqué said.

British and Free French took on heavy defenses of Damascus at Khasouh, 10 miles south of Beirut, in spite of the strong opposition offered by the Vichy troops, a British communiqué said.

At the same time a column advancing up the central front captured Jezzine and forced French troops in the coastal city to fall back to within 12 miles of Beirut, the Lebanon capital and chief port.

The advances were made despite reports indicating the Axis is attempting to throw both sea and air forces into the battle to support the faltering French.

The capture of Sidon, Jezzine and Khasouh, all key defense points, the British had straightened out their line of penetration to a uniform depth of about 50 miles all the way from the coast to Damascus and apparently meant the fall of the two capitals could not be long delayed.

After taking Khasouh, 10 miles south of Damascus, where the French made a stand of several days, the British and Free French rushed on to Nabha and Damsq, the river only 12 miles in five miles of the gates of Damascus.

At the same time a circling column fought a flanking battle to the north and east of Damascus, passed Adirah and reached a point within five miles of the capital from that direction.

Jezzine was taken by troops striking inland from the coast. In that position they threatened to cut Damascus from the west and Sidon from the east.

The British, who had been held at bay by the heavy French artillery fire from the hills, at once moved up to the Neba Ed Damsq, the river only 12 miles from Nabha, where the French re-entrenched. Here, Gen. Henri Dentz, has his headquarters.

"It was a fine trip," Mr. Johnson said today, "and all the boys had a good time."

Boys who made the trip and their stations aboard Mr. Johnson's cruiser are as follows:

Billy Stapler, second mate in charge of log; Ellsworth Hoover, runner in charge of supplies; Albert Tucker, deck officer in charge of deck; Oliver Stoper, first engineer in charge of motors; Alderson Taylor, first cook; Carl Rosier, second cook; and Eugene Allen, third cook. U. S. Battle Now Going On, Says Speaker

Hutchison Declares Domestic Struggle Has Significance In World Fight

Declaring that "the battle of the United States is now in progress," Brigadier General Joseph C. Hutchison told a Flag Day audience at the ball park yesterday afternoon that "we cannot afford to mark time" because "the outcome of our present domestic struggle will determine the outcome of the gigantic struggle now being waged against the enemies of enlightened civilization."

An indifference to the defense of the United States in modern warfare "is injurious to our cause as well as to the cause of the simple reason that today our entire country is the battle ground and the cause of the aggressor is benefited in the same ratio that our citizens show no difference to the dangers confronting us," Brig. Gen. Hutchison asserted.

He urged his listeners to take stock of what they had in America, and asked them if they would trade with any other nation.

Two courses open to the American people in the world conflict were pointed out by the speaker. He said:

"We cannot compromise. Hitlerism and again, slavery, of which we are the victims, are things which we cannot half help England. The folly of half measures has been spread on the pages of history too frequently during the past few months to excuse us for making a similar mistake."

Saying "America's greatest security is a united people," the Flag Day speaker declared that the quotation "United we stand, divided we fall," is no new thing as it was in the "struggling" (Continued on Page Two)
