Another Crisis Is Seen Arising Over Stabilizing Dollar

Germany Asks Parley For Colonial Territory In Africa For Relieving Condition

LONDON, June 16.—(A.P.)—Another crisis in the World Economic Conference is regarded in some circles to have been reached today with a hitch arising out of reported plans to stabilize the American dollar with the British pound, while in the meantime Germany asked the world for an African colonial empire.

While the French gracefully accepted the American demand for the appointment of James M. Cox as head of the monetary committee they viewed with apprehension late reports of a change in plans to peg the dollar.

Secretary Woodin's statement that the United States has not agreed to any currency stabilization proposals, meanwhile, had important influence on the conference. The reason assigned for the impasse was that Washington approval was not forthcoming.

At the close of yesterday's meeting it was known that some stabilization was considered an "understanding" which reportedly had been reached under which the dollar will be tied to a definite value within 48 hours as the first major objective of the conference.

Germany's memorandum asking for expanding territories was prepared by Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, minister of economics, who said there were two possible ways of increasing Germany's capacity to meet her international debt first, by giving her an African empire where large public works schemes could be carried through or second, by opening other territories "to this people which has not enough space in which to live."

The document was largely a plan for debt alleviation and set forth German views of the world crisis, saying Germany is "at the head of the battle against the complete destruction of the world" and "if Germany perishes, all other peoples will perish with her."

SMITH TESTIFIES FOR MITCHELL IN BANKER'S TRIAL

Arthur Brisbane Also Takes Stand In Behalf Of Defendant

NEW YORK, June 16.—(A.P.)—A dramatic gesture that brought former Gov. Alfred E. Smith to the stand to testify that Charles F. Mitchell's reputation was "of the best" completed the banker's defense yesterday to charges of bilking the government of $850,000 in income taxes.

Rebuttal witnesses next were introduced by both sides, among them Mitchell himself, and court adjourned until Monday. Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard said the attorneys would sum up on Monday and Tuesday and that the 12 men of moderate means comprising the jury would receive their case on Wednesday.

The appearance of the former Democratic presidential nominee to climax the case the defense opened a week ago Monday came as a surprise. With him as character witnesses were a Republican former governor, Charles S. Whitman; Arthur Brisbane, journalist; Supreme Court Justice Morgan J. O'Brien and others.

Smith was called upon by Max D. Steuer, defense attorney, to outline the career that took him from "The Sidewalks of New York" to the governor's mansion at Albany and the presidential nomination in 1928, although United States Attorney George Z. Medala objected that every man in the jury box "must know all about the life of Governor Smith."

The former governor said he had known Mitchell five years, their relations were "mostly social."

Beauty Contest Will Be Held At Milane Theater For Clearwater Honors

A Willys-Knight sedan is the prize which will be awarded to that Florida girl who, in the opinion of judges, deserves the title "Miss Florida" at the end of the third annual beauty contest to be held at Clearwater beach on July 4. A cash prize of $100 and another of $50 will go to second and third place winners.

Local girls will have an opportunity to enter this contest at Clearwater. It was announced here today by Jos. I. Marentette, manager of the Sparks owned Milane Theater.

Mr. Marentette stated that the contest will be held at the Milane Theater on the night of the local contest, and their opinions will be polled at the conclusion of the performance. The Clearwater contest will attract a large number of girls to the town on the night of the contest. Dorothy Hayes, who represented Sanford as the winner of a local beauty contest.

RECEIVER WILL PAY DIVIDEND OF 3 PERCENT

Nearly $40,000 To Be Released In July To Depositors Of Old 1st National Bank

Nearly $40,000 in cash will be released in Sanford shortly after July 1, cash that represents a three percent dividend on all claims filed and proven against the First National Bank of Sanford which suspended operations on July 12, 1929.

This statement was made today by J. W. Harwell, receiver of the bank, who said that it had been authorized by the Comptroller of the Currency at Washington.

With four dividends aggregating 32 percent having already been paid, the additional payment will bring the total dividend to an unusual 35 percent.

It is understood that the bank for the sum have been liquidated and forwarded to the Comptroller for verification and signature. After this is done and the checks are returned by Receiver Harwell, notice will be made through the press as to the date of the payment.

The depositors who filed claims and have received a receiver's certificate, will receive notice, accompanied by the certificate, to be signed and returned to the receiver. The certificate may be made and the certificate returned to the receiver.

Mr. Harwell stated that the fact that the certificate is to be returned may be taken as an indication that another dividend may be expected at some future date. He would make no prediction as to the date or amount.

From a copy of the receiver's report of May 31, 1933, as posted on the box of the office in the Atlantic Bank Building, it is noted that not only has the receivership paid $44,000.00 to secured creditors, but that unsecured creditors have been paid $2,700.00 as reported by the 32 percent previously paid.

Mr. Harwell succeeded A. E. Rawlings as receiver of the bank in January 1931. Mr. Rawlings had administered the trust for approximately 18 months, while Mr. Harwell has been in charge for nearly 30 months.

President Faces Job Of Making U.S. Well; Congress Adjourned

CITY COMMISSION DISCUSSES WAYS TO SECURE FUNDS

Only $700 Remains In Treasury For Operating Purposes

Faced with a statement of the financial condition of the City of Sanford as of yesterday, a statement which indicated that the city has but $700 remaining in its treasury for operating purposes, members of the Sanford City Commission last night met in adjourned session to discuss their problem.

During their meeting, they mentioned in various ways in which they might raise funds, either by a general excise tax, a tax on additions, a garbage collection tax, or a gasoline tax. However, almost all the suggestions were held in abeyance in that "the people are used to such" or "We couldn't do that because it would be illegal."

The Commission entered another discussion of a compulsory W. A. Laffer's recent plan of building the water meter and rate charges and then refunding one-half of the refund provided a person pays his taxes.

Jack "Buddy" Wilkinson, 15-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Wilkinson of this city, suffered the loss of his left hand late yesterday afternoon when an aerial bomb similar to one used on the lakefront in attracting attention to the regatta earlier in the day, exploded in his hand.

The youth, who also suffered powder burns about the chest and head, was resting comfortably at the Fernald-Laughton Memorial Hospital this morning. Four physicians were called shortly after the tragic accident to assist in amputating the hand.

The accident occurred in the back yard of the Wilkinson home at Twelfth Street and Oak Avenue. Buddy Wilkinson was one of several boys who were playing in the yard when Forrest Wallten, (Continued on Page Three)

Legislative Session Has Handed Him Every Implement For Effecting Recovery

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(A.P.)—Triumphant in Congress as no recent president ever has been, Roosevelt faces now on his own real test—his power to pull the country out of its slump.

The legislative session which ended today has given him all the implements he asked to combat deflation, unemployment, debt burdens, and a myriad of the interlocked causes of the depression.

The men who are to translate into action many of the daring new activities of the government are at their posts ready to function or already are deep in the task.

The extraordinary session of the 73rd Congress which adjourned since this morning will go down in history as the most remarkable session of a postwar Congress in the annals of the republic.

This opening session of the new Congress not only marked the advent of a period wherein the Democratic party took over complete control of the government but, convened to provide drastic measures to combat the economic depression, it has enacted major legislation of the widest scope and so far as the United States is concerned, of unprecedented character.

Called by President Roosevelt on Mar. 9, the 73rd Congress has sat for three months and in that time has crowded through a score of bills reaching into almost every phase of American activity. Subservient to the White House to a degree heretofore hardly known—a cause of sharp criticism in many quarters—the new Congress has conferred on President Roosevelt powers so vast that they are yet almost unrealized.

It has often been remarked since the session opened that the President was being clothed with the powers of a dictator and any impartial assessment of what the Congress has done cannot fail to arrive at the conclusion that, as a result of the transfer of its powers by the legislative branch, the Chief Executive has been put into a position of authority greater than any previous President.

AKERMAN GIVES EXTORTIONER 15 YEARS IN PRISON

Defendant Says Judge Was Imported So As To "Railroad" Trial

ATLANTA, June 16.—(A.P.)—Obdul C. Boyles yesterday was sentenced to 15 years in prison on conviction in federal court of attempting to extort $20,000 from Joseph F. Cannon, wealthy North Carolina textile manufacturer.

Boyles was indicted on three counts of sending extortion letters through the mails in Cannon, demanding payment of money under a threat of kidnapping the manufacturer's son, Joe Cannon, Jr., and his grand daughter, Anne Cannon, Reynolds. He was found guilty of all three counts.

Before passing sentence Judge Alexander Akerman, of Tampa, Fla., who presided over the case, asked Boyles if he had anything to say.

Boyles stated he understood Judge Akerman had been "imported" here to try his case because of a reputation for passing long sentences and that he resented "being railroaded to prison."

The judge assured Boyles he had not been "imported especially" to try his case, but that he was here to assist with many cases.

Referring to Boyles' inference that he was being "railroaded," the judge said:

"Before you get back you will think it is a long slow train."

Judge Akerman told Boyles that kidnapping and threats of kidnapping must be stopped.

"Sometimes," he said, "I feel that the courts are helpless in trying to curb such business."

"This man," the judge continued, "is an enemy of society and such criminals should be put in a place where they can no longer prey on society."

Speaking calmly the defendant admitted he had a "terrible" record in court, but that this was "the most cleverly arranged case I have ever seen."

GLOOMY OUTLOOK FOR SCHOOLS IS GIST OF MEETING

Terms Of Six, Five, 1 Or Even 3 Months Seen By Officials

ORLANDO, June 16.—(A.P.)—School terms of six, five, four or even three months in the coming years in various counties over the state were predicted by county officials yesterday in a district meeting attended by state and county school officers.

W. S. Cawthon, state superintendent of education would not commit himself on the amount of money that would probably be made available from state sources. "There should be in the neighborhood of $3,000,000," he said, "but that is only a guess and it might well prove that last year's estimate was too high. It is possible that we will receive $2,500,000, and be able to far exceed that by automobile tags selling at smaller prices than we are getting just where we will be."

"I would advise the county school boards not to expect more than $2,000,000 in making up their budgets. We have a hard year ahead of us and we shall have to trim our sails accordingly. It is possible for us to go farther in school matters than the legislature will allow us to go."

While Supl. Cawthon placed his guess at $3,000,000, the majority of county officials present estimated that figure by at least a million, perhaps more. A goodly number of those taking part in the discussion stated that the only plan they could see tonight was to open the school terms in the fall at an arbitrary date and operate as long as the money lasted.

Some county officials present expressed the opinion that the school system may lead Denmark to colonize Iceland.

A government committee studying Denmark's surplus population, grown critical because the country's chief field of human export, the United States, is closed, proposed a thorough development of the northern island.

The population of Iceland is only 100,000. It can support 500,000 people easily, according to reports. Iceland herself would not be developed at all.

Up to 1918 Denmark owned Iceland. In that year, the mother country gave the island her freedom in much the same way as the dominions are free of Great Britain.

The royal house of Denmark still rules Iceland and its international affairs are in charge of Danish legations and consulates.

The development of agriculture is still somewhat neglected in Iceland, it is stated. Furthermore, Iceland is not as icy as its name indicates. Its temperature this winter has been generally milder than Denmark's.

RECEIVER WILL PAY DIVIDEND OF 3 PERCENT

Nearly $40,000 To Be Released In July To Depositors Of Old 1st National Bank

Nearly $40,000 in cash will be released in Sanford shortly after July 1, cash that represents a three percent dividend on all claims filed and proven against the First National Bank of Sanford which suspended operations on July 12, 1929.

This statement was made today by J. W. Harwell, receiver of the bank, who said that it had been authorized by the Comptroller of the Currency at Washington.

With four dividends aggregating 32 percent having already been paid, the additional payment will bring the total dividend to an unusual 35 percent.

It is understood that the bank for the sum have been liquidated and forwarded to the Comptroller for verification and signature. After this is done and the checks are returned by Receiver Harwell, notice will be made through the press as to the date of the payment.

The depositors who filed claims and have received a receiver's certificate, will receive notice, accompanied by the certificate, to be signed and returned to the receiver. The certificate may be made and the certificate returned to the receiver.

Mr. Harwell stated that the fact that the certificate is to be returned may be taken as an indication that another dividend may be expected at some future date. He would make no prediction as to the date or amount.

From a copy of the receiver's report of May 31, 1933, as posted on the box of the office in the Atlantic Bank Building, it is noted that not only has the receivership paid $44,000.00 to secured creditors, but that unsecured creditors have been paid $2,700.00 as reported by the 32 percent previously paid.

Mr. Harwell succeeded A. E. Rawlings as receiver of the bank in January 1931. Mr. Rawlings had administered the trust for approximately 18 months, while Mr. Harwell has been in charge for nearly 30 months.

Growers Will Attend Market Plan Meeting

Scores of Local Growers and Officials of Shipping Organizations Expected to Gather at the Court House Tonight at 8:00 O'Clock

Scores of local growers and officials of shipping organizations are expected to gather at the Court House tonight at 8:00 o'clock to hear H. H. Stockfield, of New York City, explain the details of his tele-type F. O. B. marketing system for fruits and vegetables.

The meeting has been called by F. E. Durner, president of the Seminole Agriculture Club. He invites all persons interested in F. O. B. sales to attend. Mr. Stockfield will be accompanied by A. E. Pickett, Orlando man who is chairman of a committee now investigating this system.

Bids Will Be Called For Public Buildings

Administration Approved Plans Today Calling For Bids on the $250,000 Public Building 45 Days From Now in Addition to a Like Amount on Which Bids are Being Sought

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(A.P.)—Administration approved plans today calling for bids on the $250,000 public building 45 days from now in addition to a like amount on which bids are being sought.

Detailed lists of the specific projects for which bids are to be asked had yet to be formulated. Assistant Secretary Treasury Robert said the government would need to have $100,000,000 of new building under way before October.

Local Quartet Given Compliment On Song

Members of the Sanford Klwanis Club Quartet were being congratulated today for their part in a Seminole County program which was broadcast over station WDBO at Orlando last night, and heard by scores of persons in this area

The program included short talks by Karl Lehmann, trade body secretary who spoke of the industrial and agricultural development of this section, and the ideal location. He also referred occasionally to a bulletin of "Good News from Seminole County," recently released by the trade body.

Members of the quartet were Dr. H. W. Ricker, F. B. Lammason, B. C. Moore, and J. M. Stimpel. Mrs. Frances Hickson was accompanist.

Final Warning Given Local Owners Of Dogs

Chief of Police Roy G. Williams Today Announced That Approximately 15 Local Dogs Will Be Shot and Killed Early Next Week Unless their Owners Bring them to the City Hall Tomorrow Morning Before Noon to have them vaccinated against rabies

Chief of Police Roy G. Williams today announced that approximately 15 local dogs will be shot and killed early next week unless their owners bring them to the City Hall tomorrow morning before noon to have them vaccinated against rabies.

Dr. C. W. Baker, veterinarian has been at the City Hall every day for the past two weeks attending to this annual task of vaccinating dogs. Each dog owner is required to pay a yearly license of $1.25 for each dog, and unless the dog is chained at home or wears a muzzle, police have authority to do away with any dog found unvaccinated at the end of the required time.

Administration Pleased With Mild Reaction To Recent Announcement

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(A.P.)—Administrators of the farm act, pleased with what they regarded as the mildness of the reaction of commodity markets to authoritative announcement of their intentions to apply maximum processing taxes to wheat and cotton, moved yesterday to throw the vast machinery of this agricultural bill board into early operation.

A formal announcement by Secretary Wallace is scheduled for Friday but it was learned that while he is prepared to make it at any time, he has decided to wait until the industrial control public works bill passed by Congress has been signed by President Roosevelt. That bill probably will not be signed until Congress has adjourned.

The public works measure includes provision for an appropriation of $100,000,000 for advanced payments to farmers who agree to reduce their acreage of basic crops.

Funds are to be advanced from this appropriation to begin the acreage reduction program for cotton which will be aimed to take up to ten million acres of production of the crop now growing.

At the same time it was reported that the Wallace plan for processing taxes contemplates that the rate is to remain as constant as possible and to interfere as little as possible with orderly marketing.

The maximum tax that can be levied represents the difference between current farm prices and "the parity" price which is based on pre-war average farm prices. Market prices for some commodities average 20 percent above farm prices, representing the addition of transportation and other marketing costs to the sum realized by the grower.

Wallace and his aides yesterday referred to news of their program as "preparatory" but made no effort to deny that they intended to put the high processing taxes into effect. Opening market prices for both cotton and wheat fell at the opening in reaction to the reports. Later prices of wheat recovered for a small loss for the day while cotton closed about $2 a bale under Wednesday's quotations.

Some administrators have been fearful of the effect of the tax on current sales although they remain the prospect of a smaller potential supply of the commodity.

Colonization Of Iceland By Danes Seen Possibility

COPENHAGEN, June 16.—(A.P.)—The American immigration quota system may lead Denmark to colonize Iceland.

A government committee studying Denmark's surplus population, grown critical because the country's chief field of human export, the United States, is closed, proposed a thorough development of the northern island.

The population of Iceland is only 100,000. It can support 500,000 people easily, according to reports. Iceland herself would not be developed at all.

IMBEZZLEMENT ALLEGED

MARTIN, June 16.—(A.P.)—Two informations alleging imbezzlement were filed in criminal court today against J. P. Murlough, former tax collector of Polk county.

Murlough was removed by Sheriff and his posting confined recently by the Senate. His bond was set at $10,000.

Roosevelt To Leave Tonight On Vacation

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(A.P.)—President Roosevelt leaves the capital tonight by special train. A brief stop tomorrow at Groton School to see his son Franklin, Jr. Following on to Marion he expects to be aboard the schooner Amberjack by nightfall for a cruise up the North Atlantic coast. Today he called for sons to sign the last batch of bills.

Relatives Of Young Men Working In C. C. C. Are Urged To Write Letters

Write to your sons as often as possible" appealed Captain E. M. Fallon, commanding the 45th Company of the Civilian Conservation Corps at White Springs, in a letter addressed to Mrs. Helen T. Morse, local welfare director.

Let me urge at parents and relatives of the 37 local boys now at the reforestation camp.

"These boys are working hard as it is possible to do so for their relatives or dependents," he said, "and it encourages these youngsters when they do not receive regular letters from home."

"We had a boy the other day who came in the office," he continued, "It certainly was a sad thing to hear his story. He had no letter from his mother and while he bravely tried to keep from showing it, he imagined all kinds of terrible things had occurred that kept them from writing and that they did not want him to know it. The chances are that it was just an oversight, or carelessness on the part of the folks at home. These boys are able to bear a great deal of trouble when it is actual, but they have yet been found that imaginary and worry has not placed him in a condition that he

Important Bills Are Signed By President

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(A.P.)—President Roosevelt took command over the nation's industry today as he signed the powerful industrial supervision bill. He also made law the Glass-Steagall bank reform-deposit insurance measure devoting the main part of his time through the day to formal approval of several measures.

In signing the industrial bill the President said "it is the most important and far-reaching legislation ever enacted.

Races Postponed When Rain Upsets Regatta Program

Because a fresh shower of rain drenched an already sopping wet group of boat owners who had gathered at the lakefront yesterday afternoon to stage a regatta, it was decided to postpone the races until tomorrow morning.

The group had, at about 1:30 o'clock, decided to postpone the races until 8:00 o'clock. But when that hour arrived, a fresh shower came out of the leaden skies, so the visiting boatmen returned to their homes.

The skies cleared shortly after 8:00 o'clock, and a crowd estimated at about 500 persons listened to a concert by the Sanford Concert Orchestra which played from a platform at the rear of the Court House. Generous applause was given to the entire program which included songs by Olin Troop, and two instrumental selections by Adelaide, Arlene and Jakey Kleiber.

A large number of persons visited the City Hall to attend a script dance with music by the Orlando orchestra, so that the day's program, although early and often interrupted by rain, held a measure of interest for upwards of 500 persons.

Mattress' Fate Held In Northern Wastes

NOME, June 16.—(A.P.)—The wreckage of a Noring Sea today held the fate of Jimmie Matters. Matters' son, supply, had been rescued in the air, would have been abandoned last night. Searching planes were held in abeyance because of the frequency with which last planes have turned up Alaska. A landing at an isolated settlement might not be reported.

At the same time it was reported that the Wallace plan for processing taxes contemplates that the rate is to remain as constant as possible and to interfere as little as possible with orderly marketing.

The maximum tax that can be levied represents the difference between current farm prices and "the parity" price which is based on pre-war average farm prices. BIBLE VERSES FOR TODAY

SEALED FOR REDEMPTION, Give not the Hold Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption.—Ephesians 4: 30.

Someone glancing at a choppy lake and overcast skies yesterday morning, called it Sanford's Regatta.

It is encouraging to learn that the proposed water tax is not designed for the purpose of liquidating bonds.

Professor Sprague of Harvard is the latest addition to the President's "brain trust." If this thing keeps on there'll be some questions about the colleges being able to open in the Fall.

The value of credit is shown in the recent sell-out and over-subscription of a billion dollars of federal bonds in the face of proposed additional issues which may run as high as ten billions. Let's hope our government's credit will always be that good.

One of America's richest heiresses, ($60,000,000, they say) has announced her approaching marriage to Alexis Mdivin, a prince of the little white horse country, in southern Russia. Somebody ought to talk to that about trading at home.

Senators voting for the Cotten-Belmont substitute, increasing veterans appropriations more than the President's compromise, are in reality voting against the veterans. For President Roosevelt will veto the substitute, and the veterans will get no increase at all.

There is quite a difference between President Roosevelt and Mr. Hoover's "Gabriel Over the White House", who kept saying like a South American parrot, "Those debts have got to be paid." President Roosevelt is a sensible creditor and knows that ten million dollars is better than nothing.

Republican senators are critical of President Roosevelt because he accepts a small payment on the $19,000,000 debt payment due from England yesterday. If a man owed you a hundred dollars, and you had no security for it, and he came to you and said, "I can't pay you the hundred dollars I owe, but here's ten dollars on account just to show you my heart is in the right place", would you take it, or what would you do?

Since the present stock boom began when the inflation amendment was passed, the value of listed stocks has increased over twelve billion dollars, and most raw materials and agricultural commodities by several hundred millions more. All this in spite of the fact that the surpluses in circulation has actually DECREASED during the same period of time by more than a billion dollars. This would certainly seem to indicate that it is not so much that amount of money as the readiness of its turnover which controls prices.

President Hoover vigorously opposed the price stabilization features of the McNary-Baughman relief bill which ultimately cost the government around $300,000,000, but he finally approved it because of industrial features included in other parts of the bill. Now President Roosevelt may want to swallow the Cotten-Belmont features of the Cotten-Belmont bill, just as Hoover would have done, because McNary-Baughman is the bill he would like best. And significant guarantee (?) may there be a solemn to Roosevelt on the price stabilization (?) did Hoover.

Speculative Prices

Prevailing optimism throughout the United States, continued news stories of factories re-opening, unemployment decreasing, and rising payrolls are convincing testimonials that the depression is fairly well over. The announcement Wednesday by Secretary of Labor Perkins that during the month of May there was a 4.8 percent increase in manufacturing employment and an 11.8 percent increase in payrolls furnishes additional evidence. But because we have been ballyhooed before during the past three years, we are becoming increasingly cautious about accepting such figures at their face value.

Since the day of the enactment of the inflation amendment, there has been an almost constant rise in the values of listed stocks, bonds, and basic raw materials. The power granted the President to expand currency, or otherwise manipulate our monetary system, has not been resorted to, and yet one can hardly deny that the psychological effect of this concentration of such extraordinary power in the hands of one man has been the basic cause of rising valuations.

Realizing that the value of their money which they had in banks, safety deposit boxes, or old socks, might be depreciated, investors, or hoarders, began what has been called a "flight from the dollar." They began to buy stocks, speculative bonds, and raw materials. The average housewife, if she has been at all frugal and far-sighted, has laid in an extra supply of groceries which she could see from day to day were going up in price. Of course, as everyone bought, prices rose higher and higher.

The aggregate of all this buying has been considerable. The height to which prices have risen has also been considerable, and has occasioned in some quarters the belief that the "recovery" has been too fast to be thoroughly sound. Figures produced by E. H. Collins, a New York financial writer, indicate that the 1,200 stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, which had a total value of only $10,700,000,000 on March 1, have increased by $12,770,000,000 up to the first of June.

The 800 bond issues listed, valued at $30,785,000,000 on March 1, have increased in value by $2,212,000,000. July wheat was quoted at 48 cents a bushel on March 2. At the close of last week it was quoted at approximately 76 cents a bushel, a rise of 30 cents a bushel. Mr. Collins has figured that this amounts to an increase in the value of current wheat of $285,000,000. Corn valuations have increased some $244,000,000 since March 1. Cotton has added another $206,000,000 to the purchasing power of the country.

Of course, these price increases may be purely speculative. The tangible values of these commodities may not be a cent more than they were two or three months ago. But actually a thing is worth what you can get for it. And you can get these prices now whereas you could not on March 1. Considering stocks and bonds, and the three commodities of wheat, corn, and cotton alone, you can get fifteen and one-half billions of dollars more for them now than you could a few months ago.

If you can get that much more for these things in the open market, you can also borrow proportionately more on them from banks and investment houses. As a matter of fact the New York Herald Tribune reports that during the week of June 7, the credit of weekly reporting banks in ninety cities increased $59,000,000 not including New York City where there was an increase of $37,000,000. Since April 10 the loans and discounts of these reporting banks outside of New York have increased $509,000,000, as compared with an increase of $511,000,000 in New York, or a total of over a billion dollars for the entire country.

However speculative this improvement may be, there is a decided advantage to the country in getting this jump on the depression. It has provided a breathing spell in which Congress, acting on the advice of the President, could lay the groundwork for fundamental changes in our economic structure which are expected to provide for permanent recovery. None of the correctives has been put into effect yet, and the President now is in the position of a small boy who is trying to keep his toy balloon in the air by blowing under it. If he really wants to keep it up in the air for any length of time, he had better get a string and tie it up there.

We believe that is what the President hopes to do. The measures being advocated at the London Economic Conference are in reality strings which could be used to support the inflation which we have been enjoying. Whether or not this spurt is to be of any permanent advantage to us depends upon the speed with which the strings of permanent support are applied. If there is delay, a reaction will set in and prices will fall again.

Church Membership Increases

Membership among churches of the United States is on the increase. Statistics gathered from 217 religious institutions show they gained 129,252 adherents, thirteen years old and over, during the past year. The gain was one of the largest annual increases on record and brought the total enrollment in churches to the biggest figure in the history of the country.

There may be many explanations for this unusual trend towards the churches at the very time when the world is supposed to be hardening against spiritual things. Some skeptics may say that economic necessities, which have forced people to give up diversions costing money, have turned them to the churches where they may enjoy free companionship and participate in social activities at slight expense.

Others may contend that man, in this time of adversity, has looked to religion to give him the strength and courage needed to survive the battle for existence. Such an argument to be logical would conclude that, as soon as conditions improve and man no longer feels the urge for succor, the enrollment will fall off. In other words, the increased enrollment in the church is a matter of selfish convenience, so the incredulous would believe.

We think a more reasonable explanation for the increase in converts to the church may be found in the abundance of leisure which has been unwillingly thrust upon most of us. In the mad rush of life as everyone experienced it during the heyday of the boom period there was no moment for the consideration of spiritual things, but when men have time to think, they turn their thoughts to God.

WILL THEY PAY?

BY DORSEY RICHARDSON

DOYER'S GOVT. This is the latest installment of a series of explanations of the position which may follow on the heels of the depression. It will tell you in brief what happened to the war debt about 1919, especially, the value of your life-time savings, your business and your job. It will answer many of the questions that this most perplexing of all economic problems has given rise to.

England has warned the United States that the December 15 payment on war debt account must be the last under the existing debt funding agreement. She has intimated that it is beyond the capacity of Great Britain to pay at the current rate, and has pointed out what she conceives to be the dangers of our insisting upon full payment.

On international balances, the best estimates indicate that Great Britain is currently taking in no more than she is paying out. If anything, she is running a deficit. Therefore, she has no day to day international surplus which she can turn over to us in payment for her debts. She must do one of three things: First, she may ship us gold. That was done in December, and a glance at the remaining gold reserve of the Bank of England will show that further shipments of gold might reduce the coverage of the British note issue below the danger point. She may borrow abroad. This may take the form of short-term borrowing or long-term bonds. She could sell long-term bonds only if it were clearly seen how she could meet the interest and principal payments in the future.

If these bonds were merely issues made for the purpose of funding each installment of the American debt as it came due, and paying the proceeds to the United States government, the bonds certainly could not be sold. She could borrow temporarily by means of "selling" sterling in the market. But, as there is no commercial demand for an excess amount of sterling, the result of this operation would be similar to that of forcing silver goods on any other market. Sterling would depreciate—and world prices dependent on sterling purchasing power would further decline.

In order to obtain the international credit with which to make our dollar debt payments, Great Britain has really only one course, which is to insist that France and the Allies and Germany pay their annual installments to her. These installments are approximately equal to what England pays to the United States. The only other possibility would be the liquidation of foreign assets, which we shall mention later, and the sharp increase in the favorable balance of Great Britain so that she would have surplus international funds from her commercial transactions. Great Britain believes that the possibility of obtaining such a surplus depends entirely on world economic recovery, and that recovery is dependent on the removal of the dead weight debt burdens of reparations and war obligations.

We have said that the only immediate source to which England can look for surplus international funds is the resumption of payment by the Allies and Germany. How can this be accomplished? For fourteen years the world has experimented disastrously with a solution. The only workable answer was the stimulation of foreign lending to Germany, which made temporary payment of reparations possible. When this lending ceased, reparations stopped, and no one seriously holds that they can or should be resumed again under present conditions. The only way in which Germany could resume reparations would be by building up a mountainous export balance of credit every year, out of which interest on her commercial debt and reparations installments could be paid. This would mean that the world would have to buy more and more German goods—and the whole tendency of almost every country's policy is to buy less and less of any country's foreign goods and insist upon the world taking more of its own goods.

And then again, there is the very practical question as to whether Germany will pay further substantial reparations. Certainly there has been every disposition on the part of France, Belgium and to a less extent the other Allies to force Germany by every possible means to pay the amount in reparations. But the impossibility of collecting foreign reparations payments from a country that is unable and unwilling to make them has at length been recognized as a fact, however unpleasant, and last summer at Lausanne, the Allies agreed to accept approximately seven hundred and fifty million dollars in German bonds—if and when they could be sold at a fair price—as full and final payment of German reparations. True, it was stipulated that this agreement would not be ratified until the Allies had come to a "satisfactory agreement" with their own creditors. I. e., had negotiated revised debt settlements with the United States, but every one concerned recognized that the German reparations question was settled once and for all time.

Great Britain's position is that Germany will not pay and that therefore there is no use in going through the motions of attempting to make her pay. Equally, the British know that France in consequence has no intention whatever of paying her war debt to Great Britain and the United States in full—and that the cessation of German reparations put an end to substantial French debt payment in point of fact. Hence, Great Britain is faced by a wholly practical choice. She can depreciate the pound further by buying foreign exchange, contract her purchases from abroad and endeavor to stimulate exports artificially, and by every other possible means try to scrape together the necessary dollars to meet her debt installments to us, or she can insist upon a downward revision of her debt that will amount to cancellation, and in case that is refused, she can default.

Whitman, Brisbane, and Justice O'Brien, who have known Mitchell for 30, 11 and 15 years, respectively, all said his reputation was "very good."

Mitchell was recalled briefly to testify concerning a $33,000 payment he made his wife December 19, 1929, the day before he claims to have held her 18,300 shares of National City Bank stock at a loss so great he was left with no taxable income for that year.

Medalle had read a transcript of the former National City chairman's private examination in which he said the check was for miscellaneous expenses which he was unable to recall specifically.

Mitchell said yesterday, however, that he remembered now the money was to repay part of $100,000 he had borrowed from her. She received the money in 1926 as the result of selling a Fifth Avenue home which was in her name. A prosecution rebuttal witness, John P. Allan, revenue agent in charge of income tax investigators here, testified that a report made by Ambrose W. Hussey, former agent who checked up on Mitchell's returns, did not show the omission of $66,466.66 from the National City Company's management fund.

The omission is the basis of one of the charges against the banker. His defense is that the money was an advance to be repaid, although he has acknowledged that he has not returned it.

Allan also testified Russey's report did not show Mrs. Mitchell was listed as the purchaser of the 18,300 shares of National City Bank stock, although the sale of the shares was noted.

The defense had introduced evidence that Mitchell's return was approved in Washington on the basis of Hussey's report.

Mitchell said yesterday, however, that he remembered now the money was to repay part of $100,000 he had borrowed from her. She received the money in 1926 as the result of selling a Fifth Avenue home which was in her name. Economists assured the administration, however, that the import taxes would not operate as a tariff, since importers could be left in relatively the same position with respect to domestic prices because the processing would have an equalizing effect.

Wallace has authority to put the processing taxes into effect at the beginning of the marketing season for any crop, which, by custom, is July 1 for wheat and August 1 for cotton.

NAVAL PROGRAM PROVIDES FOR 32 FIGHTING SHIPS

Part Of Public Works Funds Will Be Allocated For Building

WASHINGTON, June 16.—A naval building program designed to float 32 new ships in three years, but leaving the fleet still shy of London treaty limits by thousands of tons, was announced yesterday by Secretary Swanson.

He said President Roosevelt has agreed to allocate $238,000,000 of public works funds in the industrial control bill to naval building and is anxious to have the work done as soon as possible.

"It is a program to put labor to work and they will get more from shipbuilding than anything else," Swanson said. "Eighty-five percent goes to labor."

The naval chief said a minimum outlay of $46,000,000 on the new ships was contemplated during the first year. In addition, department officials said $40,000,000 was available for work on 17 ships now under construction, making possible a building expenditure in the next 12 months of over $86,000,000.

The 32-ship program: Twenty destroyers—Sixteen of 1,500 tons and 4 of 1,850 tons—31,400 tons. Two aircraft carriers of 15,000 tons—20,000 tons. Four submarines of 1,400 tons—5,600 tons. Two g-m-class of 2,000 tons (not covered by London treaty)—4,000 tons.

After hurried compilations following Swanson's discuss on of the new program, the Navy said that completion of this 111,000-ton plan and of the 17 ships now under construction would leave the fleet still light of London treaty limits by 177,000 tons, divided among 88 ships as follows: Aircraft carriers (two) 25,200 tons; destroyers (29) 39,200 tons; and submarines (18) 20,000 tons.

Swanson said all 32 ships would be laid down during the first year and that the program "will be pushed with all the vigor we have."

It was estimated the division of work on the new ships between private yards and Navy yards would be approximately on a fifty-fifty basis.

President Roosevelt's Daughter Popularizes New Eating Custom

WASHINGTON—By serving her salads as an appetizer at the beginning of the meal instead of following the meat course, Mrs. Curtis H. Dall, energetic daughter of President Roosevelt, with type Roosevelt vigor has taken a leading part in popularizing this long established California custom in the East.

During the past year the West Coast custom of serving salads at the beginning of the meal has been spreading rapidly Eastward and already has become the vogue in many sections of the South and Middle West.

Most of the larger hotels have adopted the plan. Fruit and vegetable salads have long been recognized by dietitians and doctors as necessary in a balanced diet. In communities where salads are served first, statistics show they usually are eaten. When served in the old fashioned manner with or following the meat course, they often are left untouched, the result being that the diner, already satisfied, misses important vitamins which he should have to balance his meal.

After seeing her salads first, Mrs. Dall solved the problem of getting her children to eat their daily portions of vegetables without protest. At the beginning of the meal, when they are hungry, she found her children not only ate, but loved their vegetables in salad form.

The custom of serving salads first, Mrs. Dall said, appeals most favorably to adults, and especially to men, and because of the great popularity of the custom she has made it a frequent feature of her meals.

Sums Appropriated For Carrying On Of Building Program

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Congress yesterday followed up its unprecedented grants of power to the Chief Executive by appropriating $1,400,000,000 to carry forward his emergency reconstruction program.

The Senate adopted the House-approved conference report on the largest peace-time money measure in history, and dispatched it to the White House. The report was approved without a roll call.

The largest item in the bill was an appropriation of $3,300,000,000 for public works under the industrial recovery program, including $50,000,000 for starting the Roosevelt-Mercer Shoals-Tennessee Valley project.

Other appropriations were: $150,000,000 for the government's subscription to the deposit insurance fund under the Glass-Steagall bill. $50,000,000 for subscription to the paid in surplus of Federal and banks under the emergency farm mortgage act.

$50,000,000 for subscription to preferred shares in Federal savings and loan associations under the home owners loan act. $10,000,000 for farm credit revolving fund. $150,000,000 for payments to Federal land banks to meet reductions in interest from 5 to 4 1/2 percent on farm mortgages.

$2,000,000 for administrative expenses in the establishment and supervision of production credit corporations and associations under the consolidated farm credit administration. $1,500,000 to establish a new Federal-State employment service.

$265,000 for administration of the securities control act by the Federal Trade Commission. $125,000 additional for expenses of the American delegation to the London economic conference. $250,000 for completion of the George Rogers Clark memorial at Vincennes, Ind.

$212,000 for payments to white settlers who lost lands to Pueblo Indians in the Southwest.

City Commission Discusses Ways To Secure Funds

(Continued from page 1) Let us set up under the City charter but all of the a large number of the plan failed to move Commission Letter from his opinion that his plan has merit and could be worked out in some manner.

"However," he said, "if it is not possible, we'll have to work out something else. We've got to devise ways and means which will find more persons paying a share in the general operating cost of the city. I wonder if we couldn't work out a plan whereby the man who is unable to pay his taxes couldn't work out his taxes by helping beautify the lakefront or repair streets or something of that sort."

The nearest thing to a solution which met with the approval of all of the commissioners came when it was suggested that a five cent per month levy be made on all gas, water, electric and telephone meters or bills, with the extra levy to be returned to the person who would pay his taxes.

THE COLLECTION OF CHINESE ART STORED IN CITY

Shanghai Is Repository For Treasures Safe From Attack

SHANGHAI—The finest collection of Chinese art in the world is stored in 20,000 wooden boxes in this city, safe from the possibility of Japanese attack. It was not until the last Manchurian war, Pa Yi, was expelled from his father's palace in the Forbidden City in 1924 that these beautiful objects were revealed to the world.

A Chinese commission was appointed at that time to take charge of the treasures on behalf of the government, which ruled that the antiques were not the private property of Pa Yi, but the art heritage of the people of China, and the Palace Museum was established within the purple walls of the Forbidden City where these works of art were displayed for the first time. Only one foreigner, Dr. John C. Ferguson, American connoisseur of Chinese porcelain, was asked to serve on the commission.

Dr. Ferguson in a recent lecture before the Royal Asiatic Society here, said that while bronzes, jade, painting, and calligraphy have been cherished by Chinese collectors for centuries, porcelain only recently has come to be regarded as one of the fine arts of the country.

"From the beginning of the production of good porcelain in the Tang Dynasty 1300 years ago," Dr. Ferguson continued, "two classes of porcelain have been made; one for common daily use and one as objects of art. We have found only one illustrated catalogue of an early collection of Chinese porcelain, the collection of Hsiang Yuan-pien, who lived in the Sixteenth Century."

Two copies of the catalogue of Hsiang Yuan-pien's collection were discovered in Peking in 1900, after the looting of the palace there by the Boxer relief forces. One copy was taken to London by Dr. Bushell, where a limited edition of 200 copies was reproduced from it, and the other copy is owned by Dr. Ferguson. This album of Hsiang Yuan-pien's was so well illustrated and the descriptions of different types of porcelain were so exact that it provided a key to the study of early Chinese porcelains which until 1900 were almost entirely unknown both to foreign and Chinese collectors.

"Despite the evidence of Hsiang's album," he said, "many students doubt whether such porcelains as he described ever really existed. The pictures revealed such incredibly beautiful work, such fantastically intricate shapes, that connoisseurs questioned its authenticity."

"It was not until eight years ago, when we first had access to the palace collection, that we discovered pieces there which had required no less skill to create than the most fantastic in the Hsiang album. For the first time, we began to conceive the real beauty and skill of the early Chinese potters."

When Dr. Bushell reproduced the Hsiang album in London 20 years ago, the colors of the porcelains were only approximately correct, but it has now been possible to learn the exact shades and glazes from the Palace Museum collection. Dr. Ferguson therefore has undertaken to reproduce his copy of the Hsiang album, with the aid of the palace pieces to guide an artist in painting the exact colors, and this work has been privately published by him in Peiping.

VARIETY IN POINTS

Summer prints in Stahl silks give a wide variety for individual expression. No longer do stylists say automatically you must wear large florals or small conventional prints, light backgrounds or dark backgrounds. This summer you may wear almost any sort of print you like and most of them are lovely. There are ray florals in dull red and white on a dark blue ground which are smart trimmed with red and white flowers to match those in the print and topped with a three-quarter length jacket of the same fabric. A smart suit for tea has a jacket and skirt of deep yellow and white flowers printed on a light grey ground. It is worn with a blouse of solid yellow silk with gloves to match.

and but field played as usual, and out, while the Feds, whom the highly critical Daytona Beach sportswriters Wednesday proclaimed the finest team in the Central Florida League, turned in another brilliant performance.

The Crackers had chances at scores in the first, second, and fifth innings. They placed a man on first in the third, fourth, sixth and ninth innings, but he advanced no farther.

Over-anxiousness, according to Umpire Ravenel, cost the Crackers a run in the first in that Baker, who had singled, was sacrificed to second and reached third on Bates' single, was called out because he left third base for home just a little bit ahead of Newcomb's catch of Wright's high fly.

The Feds scored early, and often. They were paced by the veteran Bert Chapman who at Daytona Beach last Tuesday smacked a home run with two men aboard in answer to a shrill cry from the grandstand that reached his ears as "Old Bert Chapman sin't what he used to be!"

Chapman yesterday smacked out three hits, two singles and a double, to drive in three runs, while in the seventh he furnished a little extra fun by out-running, between second and third, and seven Crackers before he gave up and allowed himself to be tagged out.

The Feds scored in the second on Maxwell's single, Harrison's walk, Newcomb's sacrifice, Chapman's single scoring two, and finally Culbreth's single scoring Chapman. Those runs were earned, but after that the Feds earned only one of the other six runs they scored for the Crackers tossed the pill everywhere but in the right place.

Two runs came over in the third. With one out, Abbott singled to center. What was an easy double play went haywire when Baker dropped Shebal's toss. Harrison forced Abbott at third as Maxwell went to second. Maxwell scored and Newcomb tossed the ball far away from first base. Chapman's second hit forced Harrison before Dennis went out in the infield.

Tedder's two-base error put Bamer on second in the fourth, and with Culbreth out and Barnes on first by a walk, Bonner scored on Abbott's sacrifice before Maxwell fled out.

Harrison opened the fifth with a single. He went to second on a wild pitch, to third on Chapman's double, and he scored when Taylor dropped Dennis' short fly.

The last Fed run came over in the eighth. Bonner was up on Wright's error. He stole second and scored on Culbreth's single to center. Culbreth scored after stealing second, on Barnes' double to right. Abbott, Maxwell, and Harrison were out in order.

The game had its moments in that there was some belief that average fielding turned in by Abbott and Bonner. Baker made a great catch of Newcomb's shrill in the fifth; the Crackers appeared to have a new lease on life despite the defeat and the seven errors, and Cal Dennis again demonstrated his ability as a starting hurler.

Sunday the Feds on in Leeburg for a final game of the first half with that outfit. The minor will not the hurling assignment for that tilt while it is almost certain

ORLANDO 1, COCOA 0
ORLANDO, June 16.—The first hurling duel of the 1933 season as far as Orlando is concerned was staged here yesterday afternoon to come to a brilliant ending when Eddie Moore scored from second base on an infield out to give the Tigers a 1 to 0 verdict over the Cocoa Indians.

The defeat virtually eliminated Cocoa as a first half pennant contender. The game brought out a new Orlando nine that played with a spark of vigor which stamped it as one of the best in the league. The Cocoa Indians also turned in a good performance in the field.

Albrook allowed but three hits, singles by Headley, Wall and McCully. Baker gave up but five hits, all singles. Both had perfect support at critical times, with Eddie Moore and W. R. Smith leading the Tigers, and Pepper Martin turning in an amazing performance at first where he had 19 put-outs and one assist with but a bobble.

The game was won in the sixth. Moore opened that inning by smacking a hard grounder to Prince at third. He handled the ball cleanly but with an easy out at first, he tossed over Headley to second on the error. Moore went to second on the error. Malby popped to Prince, bringing Smith to the bat. He bounced one to Baker and it looked like the fireworks were over. But Moore, getting off with the crack of the bat, rounded third and continued on at the plate while Smith went out at first. Moore was safe on a great slide.

The box score:
Cocoa: Hayward, 2b 4-0-0-2-0-0-0; Harral, 1b 4-0-0-2-0-0-0; McCully, c 4-0-1-2-0-0-0; Wall, rf 4-0-0-0-0-0-0; Pearson, cf 4-0-0-0-0-0-0; Headley, 3b 2-0-1-2-2-1-1; Prince, 1b 2-0-0-2-3-0-0; Baker, p 2-0-0-2-0-0-0.

ORLANDO, June 16.—A scheduled Central Florida Baseball League game between Daytona Beach and Leeburg was rained out here yesterday afternoon before the teams had a chance to take the field. No announcement was made as to when it might be played but it is understood that it may be played on Saturday, June 24.

Among those on hand before the game was Bill O'Brien, Daytona Beach first baseman who was taken to a hospital last Tuesday afternoon after O'Brien's fall had struck him in the ribs. It was first believed that O'Brien's ribs were broken but x-rays developed that he has nothing worse than a strained cartilage. He will be able to play next Thursday, his physicians stated.

CHARGES WILL BE PROBED AGAINST ANDREW MELLON

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(AP)—Attorney General Cummings said yesterday that charges that Andrew W. Mellon, former secretary of the treasury and William L. Mellon, of Pittsburgh, his nephew, evaded income payments were being investigated by justice department agents.

The attorney general said agents were in the Pittsburgh area looking into charges brought by Representative McFadden, Republican, Pennsylvania, and the case for two suits for recovery of income taxes brought by David C. Olson and A. R. Knight, of Lansdowne, Pa.

Olson was formerly counsel for the state banking committee. Cummings said the department was not taking any hand in the suits. "We have begun the investigation of the Mellons and their companies in Pennsylvania," he said. "We are not concerned with suits that have been filed but are seeking the facts."

Second Diamond Ball Game Planned Tonight

The second diamond ball game of the season will be played on the Lakeland field tonight at 8:00 o'clock when the Firestone team, winner of the opening game last Monday night, will meet the McCall Detachment team.
