President Carter is anticipating reviving registration which may lead to reinstituting the draft. He also is thinking about requiring women to register. Evening Herald photographer-writer Tom Netsel asked readers if women should be required to register and be drafted, and if so, should they be drafted into non-combat positions only. Here's what readers told him:

Winter, finally, was behaving like itself. What had been one of the mildest winters in years in most of the country changed radically this week. The National Weather Service predicted snow today from the Mississippi River east, with freezing rain predicted in parts of the Upper Ohio Valley. Temperatures were expected to remain in the teens and 20s in the northern half of the nation. In extreme northern North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, temperatures were expected to be in the single numbers. The 50s and 60s prevailed across the southern half of the country with the mercury hitting the 70s in the desert areas of the Southwest and Florida. Because of the lack of snow, many ski areas have been unable to open this winter, which means ski equipment and clothing have not sold well at sporting goods stores. AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PUBLIC:

WILL IT COST *YOU $75 TO

A friend who recently returned from Greece swears it cost him $75 to fill his car's gas tank. That works out to about $4 a gallon. It's not quite that bad here yet, but there's no question that gas is expensive now, and will become even more expensive in the future. Also, it could become scarcer than it is now, with long gas lines

, becoming an everyday occurrence. Of course, there's really nothing new about that. Gas has been expensive in other parts of the world for decades. Until now, we have been fortunate enough to have all the gas we could the rest of the world was paying.

Well, the energy crisis is here to stay. It's now ★ a way of life. We won't see 30¢-a-gallon gas or the ★ good old "gas wars" again. We hope you'll never have to spend $75 to fill your tank. But, $1 a gallon → or $4 a gallon, we think you should buy a car that * enables you to afford the gas for your transportation needs.

★ TOYOTA — THE BEST SELLING

ECONOMY CAR IN THE WORLD Toyota has been in the transportation business for over 40 years. That's 40 years of building quality economy cars and trucks for a demanding world market. Toyotas have had to be fuelefficient because they were designed and built in a country where high fuel prices and scarcities have always been a way of life. And the cars have had to last because no one could afford the luxury of buying a new one every two or three years. A way of life has literally created a car that is compact, fuel-efficient and long-lasting. The Toyota. Now, high fuel prices and scarcities are a fact of life the world over - even here. That's why Toyota has become the best-selling economy car in the world.

ECONOMY DOESN'T HAVE TO BE DULL.

Just because we have to seriously consider fuel economy when we buy a new car doesn't mean we have to settle for less in an automobile. suggest you take a look at the Toyota line-up and test drive one. The styling is not boring, it's exciting. It's the kind of car you can be proud to drive. And the performance will surprise you because you will find it hard to believe that a car that gets such good mileage can have such pep. It accelerates and corners like a true thoroughbred. But the most important thing about a Toyota car or truck is its real value. The initial cost is low. especially considering the true quality of the vehicle. You'll be hard put to find a better-built car or truck. And it's easy to own because it stays in your garage, not in the repair shop. If you do require service, be assured that it will be fast correct and fairly priced, as your Toyota dealer's factory-trained specialists and genuine Toyota parts network are recognized throughout the

So don't worry about spending $75 to fill up your tank sometime in the future. Start saving gas dollars right now by buying a thrifty car that's stingy with gasoline – a new Toyota. You'll like the way it looks, the way it rides, the way it performs the way it holds up over the years. And you'll especially like the way it squeezes extra miles out of every precious gallon of gas.

The Moment Of Truth

With each passing day, the United States draws closer to a frightening and unprecedented moment in its nuclear arms competition with the Soviet Union. At some point in the next few years, the Soviets almost certainly will have enough nuclear warheads of sufficient size and accuracy to decimate the U.S. nuclear deterrent in a 30minute surprise attack.

Whether the United States could or would retaliate effectively after absorbing this disarming first strike is an open question, as in the likelihood of such a nightmarish scenario in the Hostages: first place. But the looming vulnerability of this country's starategic weaponry to pre-emptive attack is a fact acknowledged by every secretary of defense since the early 1970s.

The current secretary of defense, Harold Brown, had this to say about the threat to the nation's nuclear deterrent in his most recent annual report to Congress: "The Soviets will have at least a hypothetical capability, in the early to mid-1980s, to destroy a large percentage of our ICBM silos, non-alert bombers, and (missilefiring submarines) that might be in port..." This chilling admission in a document otherwise the United States to find him a new home. notable for its infinitely hedged conclusions should trigger alarm bells throughout the nation and the Free World.

It should also serve as the point of departure for a searching reassessment of this country's ability wants out of Panama as soon as possible and Ro deter nuclear blackmail as well as nuclear war. A long second look at U.S. strategic doctrine and capabilities is doubly appropriate at a time when That the shah is unhappy in Panama is not prospects for the SALT II treaty and any future too surprising. He did not want to go there in Soviet-American arms negotiations are clouded, the first place. That the United States if not fatally compromised, by recent events

Eliminating the vulnerability of U.S. land-based for his not going where he did want to go: to missiles is an obvious imperative. The carter administration's belated response to this problem was its decision to proceed with the long-delayed mobile missile - a weapon designed to survive a Soviet first strike. But even assuming the MX system is ever built, it probably cannot be completed before 1989. The intervening years conatitute an open "window" of vulnerability that may threaten the nation's very survival.

Closing this window is a matter of the utmost urgency. The obvious and least-expensive remedy is the prompt dispersal of some or all existing Minuteman ICBSs among a much larger number of silo launchers. This missile "shell game" would conceal the exact location of American ICBMs and thus reduce their vulnerability to a surprise attack. A dispersal program could begin immediately and might even obviate the need for the $20 billion "racetrack" deployment scheme now envisioned for the MX.

Not surprisingly, the Soviets have chosen to interpret both the SALT I and SALT II treaties as prohibiting the rotation of a limited number of missiles among a larger number of silos. But with U.S security at stake and the SALT II treaty lying moribund in the Senate, the proper choice should be clear even to the Carter administration.

Beyond a quick fix to lessen the threat of surprise attack, there is a pressing need to abandon the outdated strategic doctrine known as believes Mexico is important enough to the "Mutual Assured Destruction," or, appropriately, MAD. The MAD catechism — the core of U.S. nuclear strategy since the mid) 1960s — postulates paternalism. that nuclear war can best be deterred if the superpowers eschew measures to protect their cities, populations and industrial base from JACK ANDERSON nuclear attack. That way, a potential agressor would know in advance that a retaliatory strike would inflict "unacceptable" damage.

On Wednesday, after the state's attorney's office reduced the felony burglary charges against Willie Tremple to misdemeanors. Johnson found him guilty and sentenced him to time served. As Johnson warned him not to break into motel rooms if he needed a place to stay, Johnson gave Tremple the freedom to stay in the county jail if he had to.

Johnson seemed unsatisfied with this solution, but there was no other he could offer. He only wanted to make sure Tremple had a place to stay and would not end up under arrest again. That same afternoon, Johnson worked out a guilty plea for a Canadian man charged by Altamonte Springs police with driving under the influence of alcohol. Johnson accepted the plea,

82-Year-Old Nurse Shows Devotion Through RSVP

Rachael Lee arrived in Sanford in July 1940 with a heart full of love and a desire to help others. And she's spent the last four decades doing just that. A nurse at the old county home on 17-92 for 22 years, Miss Lee worked without a day off for many years.

Inspite of the hard work, her memories of those days are pleasant. "We had our own cows, chickens, and hogs, and even the cane to make our own molasses," the $2 year-old retired nurse recalls — the memories bringing a smile to the face which radiates an inner peace and contentment. Retirement came to Miss Lee in 1962 — and with it an opportunity to enjoy working leisurely in her garden or tending to her flower beds.

Parents Of Deformed Child

Take Manufacturer To Court

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) - An attorney for a couple who say their child was born deformed because of a drug the woman took during pregnancy has accused the manufacturer of ignoring evidence that the drug should have been removed from the market. That evidence included a researcher's warning in 1963 that the drug may cause birth defects, Attorney

George Kokus said. Kokus made the charge in opening arguments Thursday on a $10-million federal lawsuit the couple has filed against Richardson-Merrell Inc. Graham: No Petition Drive

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) - Gov. Bob Graham says he has given up his own plans for a petition drive to propose a constitutional amendment on tax assessments and he expects a drive by the county

Graham said Thursday he is confident that the Legislature, during the upcoming session, will put together an acceptable package of amendments to ensure uniform property assessments statewide, even though he and it couldn't agree on anything during last month's special session.

EAGLE LAKE, Fla. (UPI) - Autopsies were scheduled today to determine the cause of death of a woman and a child killed when a gasoline can overturned inside a van and exploded. Porter May Be Traded

Nets Alive With 3rd Straight Win

By United Press International

It's just a start and there are four teams to pass in the standings, but the New Jersey Nets are very much alive in the NBA's Eastern Conference playoff

The Nets still have the second-worst record in the conference, but, with John Williamson officially back from his 20-game weight-related exile, New Jersey has reeled off successive victories over Cleveland and Washington.

Thursday night, the Nets rode Mike Newlin's 28 points (20 in the second half) and an outstanding second-quarter defensive display to a 98-87 victory over the slumping Bullets, who lost their sixth straight. Behind 22-21 after the first period, the Nets held the Bullets to 11 second-quarter points in running up a 51-33 halftime lead. Washington shot 4-of-18 in the second quarter, scoring just three points in the first 7:30. "The guys were just playing great defense and we dominated the boards," said Newlin, who has become one of the league's most dangerous offensive weapons. "It just feels good to win."

Washington made a move in the fourth quarter, coming as close as four points, but George Johnson blocked five shots in the quarter to settle the issue. "We played a good defense the whole game," said Net Coach Kevin Loughery. "I think George Johnson's play down the stretch really turned the game around." After the game, sources close to the Bullets said the club will trade Kevin Porter to to the San Antonio Spurs, possibly for Mike Evans, a 6-foot-1 second-year guard from Kansas State. Porter, who the Bullets signed as a free agent last summer, cleaned out his locker after the game and left without speaking to reporters. Bullet officials declined comment on any trade. In other games, Kansas City clubbed Utah, 110-88, and Portland tripped Los Angeles, 111-103.

Coubertin of France, called other athletes in the past tennis almost 100 percent of beginners and intermediates have a better forehand than they do backhand, but most high level collegiate players and professionals have better backhands.

There are many great backhands in the professional game today but only a few truly great forehands. Why? — As we examine the mechanics of the forehand the reason becomes more clear. To hit a proper forehand one has to have the ability to move the racket from the ready position to a position that is directly in back of him and toward the back fence. He then has to swing back across the body to high follow through. All of this precise — the faster and deeper the ball comes, the more difficult the forehand is to execute. On a slow surface one has a much better chance to prepare for the forehand and thus usually hits much more consistent than on a fast surface, the following is a step by step look at the forehand.

Step 1. - Face the net by standing just behind your baseline in the center of the court - feet about shoulder width apart, weight on balls of the feet — hold the racket in the cradle position (lightly at throat) with the left hand, the racket hand should be out in front of you with the racket head held up and pointing over the left net-post. You grip the racket in a "shaking hands" gesition. (The palm of your hand should be almost vertical to the ground). The "V" formed by the juncture of your thumb and index finger is squarely on top of your handle. This is the Easter forehand grip. Step 2. — In the set position as the ball approaches the forehand side, you should pivot on your right foot and start the racket back toward the fence behind you. The racket should be taken straight back at just below waist level — the left leg is then brought over so that your left side faces the net. The weight should be on the back foot, and the left arm and hand is held out in front in a balance position. Step 3. - The racket is back, the wrist is firm, the weight is on the back foot, the eye is on the ball. As the ball approaches step forward with the front foot toward the ball - this puts your weight directly in line with the shot. Step 4. — Try to hit the ball a little below waist level and off the front knee. Be sure and keep your head down and your eyes on the ball. Be sure to keep a firm wrist and keep the racket face level. (Do not open or close the face on the basic forehand). Step 5. - Hit the ball in front of you and let your racket travel through the ball and on to the nice high follow through position. Then quickly come back to the ready position.

If there was a small camera in the heel of your racket it
