Plane from Las Vegas missing

CORONA, Calif. — A chartered flight with 10 people aboard was missing Sunday after the twin-engine plane disappeared from radar while en route from Las Vegas, Nev., to Orange County's John Wayne Airport, officials said.

Ground crews began searching a hilly area south of Corona near Pleasants Peak after the Cessna 402 disappeared from Federal Aviation Administration radar at noon, Civil Air Patrol Lt. Col Ed Crankshaw said.

The names of the pilot and nine people aboard the chartered flight were not immediately known.

Policeman shoots wife, self

SAN JOSE, Calif. — A veteran San Jose police officer shot his estranged wife Sunday outside a Roman Catholic church and then killed himself with a single shot to his head from the last bullet in a two-shot derringer, investigators said.

Officer Miguel Rosas, 49, died on the sidewalk outside St. Joseph's Church in central San Jose while a parish priest administered rites of absolution.

His wife, Josefina Presas Rosas, 38, was taken to San Jose Hospital, where she was reported in critical but stable condition after undergoing surgery.

The Rev. Jerry Helfrich, pastor of St. Joseph's, said he heard a woman shout that she had been shot and then turned to see Rosas fire his suicide shot.

Baker: U.S. must back Contras

WASHINGTON — Despite a peace plan that could leave their future in doubt, the Bush administration has signaled a readiness to risk an early foreign policy clash with Congress by seeking new aid to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

In one of the strongest signals to date of administration intent, Secretary of State James Baker indicated Sunday that President Bush will ask Congress for humanitarian aid to replace a $27 million package that expires March 31.

"I think we have at the very least a moral obligation to seek humanitarian aid for the Contras when it expires on March 31," Baker said, "and I believe President Bush has already indicated that he would be doing so."

Waltrip wins Daytona on fumes

DAYTONA BEACH — Even with two laps left in Sunday's Daytona 500, Darrell Waltrip was sure his 17-year victory drought at Daytona International Speedway would continue.

Trying to stretch his Tide Chevrolet the final 53 laps without a pit stop, the three-time Winston Cup champion saw his fuel pressure gauge drop to zero twice on lap 199 of the 200-lap race. But both times Waltrip, who inherited the lead with four laps remaining after Ken Schrader and Dale Earnhardt went in for fuel and Alan Kulwicki went into the pits, saw his fuel pressure gauge rise back above the zero mark.

That told Waltrip, the leading money winner in NASCAR history with nearly $9 million in earnings, that he had enough fuel to come home first in the 31st running of stock-car racing's biggest event.

Lake Mary seniors avoid the 'bingo trap'

By SANDRA BOUCHANINE

LAKE MARY — Some senior citizens in Lake Mary say they want to get out of the "bingo trap" and they're looking for excitement and a building where they can meet.

More than 20 senior citizens recently formed an organization and voted to call themselves the "Lake Mary Seniors."

"That says it all," Organizer Paulce Stevens said after the seniors opted for the name.

The seniors recently gathered at the First Presbyterian Church on Wilbur Avenue to organize and discuss their dilemma: Too much time on their hands with little to do and no one to do it with.

Stevens wants to help solve that problem. She wants to get the older but lively group out of the bingo rut and into activities that require thinking.

"I'm not against bingo as long as I don't have to play it. I try to get seniors channeled into things that aren't boring. I would like to see them do trips, take nature walks. I'd rather see that because they have to think," Stevens said.

Stevens is president of Seminole County Art Association. Her gregarious personality and no-nonsense attitude seem to instill enthusiasm and a sense of pride that many senior citizens tend to lose. She has also worked 10 years with the Community Mental Health Center in Seminole County as an outreach worker in art communication.

As a member of the Area Agency on Aging Artistic Committee, she is concerned about the quality of life for senior citizens and for the people of Lake Mary. Stevens has been a resident of Lake Mary for the past 20 years but has lived in the state for almost 39 years. She is a member of the Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce and was selected by the chamber to be chairman of senior affairs.

To chase or not to chase

Each high-speed police chase must be evaluated individually for bystander safety, police say

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — With national attention focused on several high-speed police pursuits that have ended in the deaths of innocent persons, local police say there are times when the importance of capturing the fleeing suspect must have top priority.

However, Lt. Chuck Williams of the Florida Highway Patrol said that troopers within the last five years have worked under a policy calling for careful weighing of several safety factors before deciding to begin or to continue a high-speed chase.

Although 255 persons died in police chases nationwide in 1987, Williams said, the last Central Florida death involving a state trooper occurred in 1976 on the South Orange Blossom Trail, Orlando, when a car ran a redlight and slammed into a trooper's car and killed the trooper. Although the trooper was in pursuit of a fleeing car at the time, Williams said, the other driver who ran the redlight caused the crash.

The most recent FHP pursuit incident in the area involved a 15-year-old driver last year who, while being pursued on Interstate 4 near State Road 436 at a speed of 80 mph, crossed over into the oncoming traffic lane. His car collided with a woman's vehicle and she was seriously injured, Williams said. In that case, Williams said the pursuing troopers acted properly.

Sanford police have to go back to the early 1970s to document a fatal case when a Sanford officer in a high-speed chase collided with the car of an off-duty Sanford policeman. The off duty officer and his wife died in the crash. Police Chief Steven Harriett said.

Sheriff's Capt. Roy Hughey said he doesn't recall a Seminole County sheriff's car being involved in a fatal crash during such a pursuit.

Sheriff's deputies follow a policy of typically trying to get a detailed description of the fleeing car along with its license number, and then they back off from a high-speed chase, Hughey said.

"It's a judgment call," Hughey said. "Our policy is to use common sense. We're not going to kill a car load of people or more to capture one speeding driver. The same is true in a pursuit of a murderer or robber. He may have committed a serious felony," he said, but it isn't worth "five or ten people being killed in a pursuit collision."

The law enforcement officer's first instinct has been to capture the fleeing suspect, but awareness of public and officer safety factors and potential liability for the state brought establishment of a specific policy five years ago for vehicular pursuits for the FHP, Williams said.

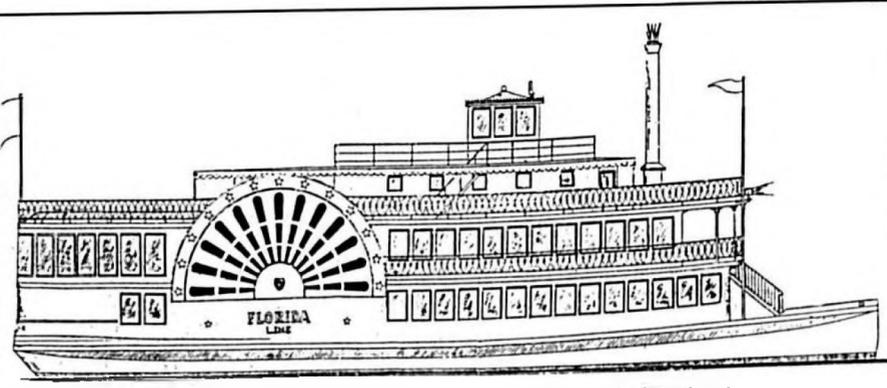

The seriousness of the offense committed by the suspect and whether or not his continued freedom is a great risk to life and safety is a primary factor, Williams said. The time of day, road conditions and the amount of traffic are also considered, Williams said.

Harriett agrees with those considerations, and added that the experience of the police officer is also considered.

"No one wants to take unnecessary risks," Harriett said. "We've always had our policy informally. Our policy in general is to use good judgment. The pursuit should warrant the risks. Law enforcement officers can not say we will not chase violators of the law. We will pursue law violators. We will use good judgment and will be prudent as we do that."

Once a pursuit is engaged by a trooper, his supervisor closely monitors the situation and may call a halt to the pursuit, which would have been initiated at the discretion of the trooper. The same is true for police or sheriff's department chases.

"We break off quite a few of them," Williams said, of high-speed chases. See Chase, Page 5A

The Grand Romance, bigger and better than the Rivership Romance, isn't built yet

Grand Romance due to set sail by the new year

SANFORD — Agents at the Rivership Romance have already sold out space for New Years Eve. But the ship that will pull out of Lake Monroe harbor Dec. 31 hasn't been built yet.

American River Cruises, Inc. is building a $2.7 million paddlewheel replica to replace Rivership Romance. The Grand Romance will take over the daily cruise route along the St. Johns River this summer.

The new ship, which is being built in Freeport near Panama City, will set out on a nine-day journey in June from the Gulf of Mexico, through the Florida Keys, on to Sanford through Jacksonville.

While the Grand Romance is five feet wider and nearly 30 feet longer than the Rivership, its passenger capacity will double and its dining capacity will triple, said Shawn Briggs, director of

Prince Charles snubbed by eagle

WEST PALM BEACH — An African tawny eagle presented for Prince Charles' review went AWOL during a wildlife exhibit Sunday, snubbing the future King of England to visit a nearby patch of trees.

The errant eagle was supposed to land on a podium at the polo field where the prince attended a charity luncheon to benefit endangered wildlife. The eagle was recaptured 10 minutes later at the far end of the field by handler Steve Haddy.

Charles admired a more cooperative Florida panther, a cheeta, a falcon, a baby ocelot and a tiny gibbon, but was discouraged from petting them.

"We don't want to present these animals as something that are pets," said TV naturalist Jim Fowler, who conducted the exhibit.

Charles asked Fowler about the health of an aardvark he had seen at a similar demonstration a year ago, and queried him about the various animals' habitats.

"He's very alert and very knowledgeable about all this. I think he is genuinely behind the Friends of Conservation," Fowler said.

Fowler said the conservation group hopes to enact stricter laws protecting endangered animals and said, "A guy like him can have a lot of effect on people."

After the exhibit, Charles attended a private luncheon where he was offered a salad of mushrooms and scallops, wild rice and stuffed capon, along with champagne, fresh strawberries and chocolate raspberry terrine.

In a charity match Saturday in Vero Beach, the Windsor Park team defeated a Greenwich, Conn., team 10-7.

In a speech to the Friends of Conservation on Saturday, the prince noted that Africa's black rhino population had dropped from about 15,000 to fewer than 9,000 since 1980, and that there are only about 25 white rhino left.

"Now the reason for that, and I'm sure most of you know, is the extraordinary interest in grinding up rhino horn and turning it into aphrodisiac — at least that's what they think in the Far East. I could have done with some, I must say, out there on the polo ground this afternoon," the prince said.

He urged the group to help fund aerial surveillance to deter rhino poachers. Charles also urged conservationists to work more closely with African natives.

"They are the people who know the country and know it's particular characteristics best of all. They have learned those invaluable truths from their forebears which so many laboratory educated scientists and expensively trained experts will never actually know."

"That is why so many terrible and costly mistakes are made all over the developing, and sometimes the developed world, because the experts think they know best and never actually consult the local people."

The prince was accompanied Sunday by Kent and his wife, Jorie, and his distant cousin, King Constantine of Greece.

The prince is spending the weekend with the Kents at their estate, Sunsouth, in Lake Worth. He leaves Florida Monday for a jaunt to the Caribbean.

TV viewers to vote on killer's guilt

ORLANDO — A television show on convicted murderer Tommy Zeigler will conclude with the audience invited to vote on whether he murdered his wife, her parents and his store employee, the show's producers say.

David Frost will host the two-hour show "Final Report: A Matter of Life and Death" on March 1, only a few days before a judge rules whether Zeigler should die for the crimes, the Orlando Sentinel reported Sunday.

The broadcast will conclude with a call-in poll to see if the audience believes Zeigler, 43, shot dead his wife, Eunice, and her parents, Virginia and Perry Edwards, and fatally beat an employee of his Winter Garden furniture store, Charles Mays, on Christmas Eve 1975.

The show will air during a scheduled weeklong resentencing hearing for Zeigler before Orange Circuit Judge Gary Formet. The state Supreme Court ordered a new sentencing last year; Formet must now decide whether to reinstate that death sentence or consign Zeigler to life in prison.

Formet said he was not happy about the broadcast, but vowed it would not interfere with his ruling.

"Well, there's not much I can do about it whether I like it or not," he said. "I can assure you that it won't influence me. I won't watch it. I'll tape it so I can watch it afterward."

The show will be broadcast on more than 130 stations nationwide, according to supervising producer Marion Goldin. The case is of national interest more than a decade after the killings, she said, because Zeigler "was a young man who had almost everything. He had a wife, a family, a business. He was a man of means with no criminal record."

"He is a man the audience can identify with," she said. "Of course, we realize the man stands convicted of four murders and is on death row."

The show will feature live and taped interviews with lawyers, witnesses, family members and Zeigler himself.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Lotto prize $19 million

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — No one picked all six winning Lotto numbers in Saturday night's drawing as Florida's grand prize jackpot climbed to an estimated $19 million, a second-week state record, lottery officials said Sunday.

"This is the highest second-week jackpot estimate we've ever projected," said Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul. "Lotto's strong sustained popularity in Florida allows us to estimate a $19 million grand prize with just one rollover."

The Lotto drawing Saturday night produced more than 309,000 winners of more than $4.6 million in cash prizes, although no ticket sold matched all six winning numbers. In the five-of-six category, 193 players won $6,161 each.

Ana F. Englehardt of Orlando called in to lottery headquarters Sunday on the player information line to get details on filling her claim.

Her husband said they will use the $6,161 for a down payment on a car for Ana.

A north Florida couple turned in a winning Lotto ticket to claim $20.1 million on Feb. 13. Stephen and Karen Roche of Orange Park, near Jacksonville will receive their first installment of more than $1 million

Wednesday by electronic transfer.

The winning Lotto numbers Saturday were: 9-19-31-32-38-41.

Other winners and their payouts were:

—193 people who selected five of the six winning numbers receive $6,161.

—13,444 four-of-six winners receive $129.50

—296,965 three-of-six winners receive $5.50

Saturday night's estimated Lotto jackpot was $9 million.

The grand prize jackpot is estimated each Sunday, based on Lotto sales projections for the next seven-day period, funds from rollovers and projected long-term interest rates.

Lucky 7 popular lotto pick

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Lotto players in pursuit of big winnings should avoid multiples of seven and five and low numbers, a computer analysis of a typical week shows.

Lottery Department officials reviewing ticket sales for the week of Jan. 7 found the most popular six-number combination — and therefore the combination that would give the smallest payout — was the first half-dozen multiples of lucky seven.

More than 14,000 people played the numbers 7-14-21-28-35-42 that week, the Orlando Sentinel reported Sunday.

Other popular numbers were 1-2-3-4-5-6, played by 8,800 people, and 5-10-15-20-25-30, played by 8,193.

All winners get an equal share of the jackpot, so obviously it is better to win with numbers no one else has picked. One person winning on Jan. 7 would have pocketed the entire $9 million, for example, while two winners would have collected only $4.5 million each.

If the 7-14-21-28-35-42 multiple had come up during the sample week, however, things would have gotten somewhat more complicated.

In a typical $9 million drawing, the Lottery Department invests $4.5 million to be paid out in annuities totaling $9 million over 20 years. But in a case where there are so many winners the annuities would be less than $1 million, the department would simply give winners lump-sum shares of what it would have put aside for the annuities.

On Jan. 7, that would have meant 14,074 people dividing $4.5 million. Those winners would have collected a grand prize share of $319.74 each.

Lotto watchers suggest several strategies to avoid that sort of costly division, including avoiding obvious choices like multiple sevens and numbers that have won before.

"The fact that one combination of numbers has already won — it's kind of dumb to play those numbers again, because your chances of winning are the same, but the chance of having to split it is much greater," said George Marsaglia, a statistics professor at Florida State University.

Marsaglia also advises against playing low numbers. Because so many people play dates — anniversaries, birthdays or whatever — the chances of having to split a prize are lower when playing numbers over 31.

Housing funds running out

United Press International

MELBOURNE — For the second year in a row, lower-income Floridians are on the verge of depleting a housing assistance program's annual budget in only a few months.

The Emergency Assistance for Housing program provides one-time grants of up to $400 each to lower-income families without homes or facing eviction. In four months, 20,000 financially troubled families have all but exhausted the program's $8 million budget, the Orlando Sentinel reported Sunday.

Margaret Quimby, Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services grant program manager, said the program has only about $500,000 left to use in certain areas of the state. Quimby said it will be entirely broke within a few weeks.

When that happens, she said, "We just simply have to close down that program and say, 'Sorry, we don't have any more funds.' It's terrible."

In 1987, the program was given $2 million for its first year of operation. That money was gone in less than three months.

This year, the state and federal governments each put $4 million into the program.

"We knew we didn't have enough money to take care of all the people out there who would qualify. It's for people who fall on hard times once in a while," said Rep. Harry Goode, D-Melbourne, who chairs a House subcommittee on housing and the homeless.

Critics charge the money would last longer if requirements for receiving a grant were tougher. To qualify, recipients must be homeless or holding an eviction notice; must earn below the federal poverty level; must not have enough cash to cover the emergency; and must have children living with them.

"There's no opportunity to ask, 'Are you living in a place you can't afford? Can you pay rent next month?'" said Jim Brower of the Orange County Human Services Council.

Brower wants the program to follow Federal Emergency Management Administration guidelines allowing case workers to see if an applicant is really facing an emergency or simply guilty of chronic mispending.

The newly formed Florida Coalition for the Homeless, representing hundreds of local aid groups, also plans to push for tighter restrictions on who gets the money.

Bundy's parents arouse sympathy

United Press International

TACOMA — Expressions of sympathy have poured in for Louisa and John Bundy, countering the frenzy of a public finally satisfied by the death of their only son, serial killer Ted Bundy.

Since Bundy's execution in the Florida electric chair Jan. 24, the couple has received about 400 cards and letters, a few each day, all extending sympathies for their ordeal, a copyright story in Sunday's Tacoma News Tribune said.

Many of the letters were sent in care of newspapers and television offices, addressed simply "Ted Bundy's mother, Tacoma, Wash."

Many of the sympathy cards, overflowing on a table, were from Florida residents who wanted to redeem their state's reputation as bloodthirsty. When Bundy was executed, crowds outside the penitentiary waved frying pans and shouted "Burn Bundy Burn."

Others were from long lost friends, strangers moved by the Bundy's trauma, and from mothers whose sons also took a wrong turn.

Ted Bundy was executed for the 1979 rape and murder of a Florida schoolgirl. He later confessed to at least 29 killings, and is suspected in the deaths of others from Seattle to Miami.

The tragedy for Louisa and John Bundy began in the mid-1970s when Ted was linked to the deaths and disappearances of eight young western Washington women.

Bundy disciple being questioned

United Press International

LEXINGTON, S.C. — A man accused of kidnapping one teenager and killing a second girl may be a disciple of notorious serial killer Ted Bundy, who confessed to killing 29 women before he died in the Florida electric chair, authorities said Sunday.

"I think he is a serial type individual similar to Ted Bundy," said Lexington County Sheriff James Metts. "He may be a disciple of Ted Bundy. I think he was fascinated by Bundy's works."

Metts said law enforcement officers found a lot of Bundy material in a warehouse owned by Richard Daniel Starrett, 29, a Martinez, Ga., engineer charged with the two South Carolina cases and suspected in sexual assaults in several other states.

Starrett, a fire safety engineer at the Savannah River nuclear weapons plant in Aiken, S.C., also had a lot of pornographic and detective materials and information about law enforcement investigations stored at his house, the sheriff said.

"I believe he emulates Bundy," Metts said. "He tried to copycat him in a lot of crimes. That's simply my perspective on that. He had books about Bundy's life and some of the articles about him."

Before he died in Florida's electric chair Jan. 24, Bundy confessed to 29 killings and was suspected in deaths of other young women. He died for the 1979 rape and murder of a Florida school girl.

Metts said Starrett made no mention of Bundy when he was questioned.

Man jailed after woman's nose bitten

CASSELBERRY — A man who allegedly punched his girlfriend in the face and bit her nose, was jailed by Casselberry police, despite the woman's wish not to press charges. Police said because of the severity of the damage to the nose of Donna Becham, 27, of 1101 Pine St., Altamonte Springs, they charged Roavell Lewis, 23, of the same address, with aggravated battery. The incident occurred during a fight between Becham and Lewis at the ABC Lounge, U.S. Highway 17-92, at about 12:20 a.m. Sunday. Lewis was arrested at the lounge and Becham was treated at the scene by Casselberry paramedics.

Wife battery brings arrest

WINTER PARK — A rural Winter Park woman told Seminole County sheriff's deputies her husband hit her in the face and head, causing a lump and cuts. That brought the arrest at 1:30 p.m. Sunday of Michael Stephen LaFever, 27, of 2610 Eastbrook Drive. LaFever was arrested at home on a charge of battery. Bond is $500.

Man arrested after attack reported

LONGWOOD — A 22-year-old Longwood man is charged with battery and resisting arrest without violence after an alleged attack on his brother-in-law, who said he was hit by the suspect. Grievance hearing set tonight

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The former executive director of the housing authority's hearing on his appeal of his Sept. 8 termination is scheduled for tonight.

Legal counsel for Elliott Smith will present depositions from housing authority personnel to dispute claims of incompetence made against him by authority commissioners.

James Sweeting III, attorney for the authority, said the board will sit in quasi-judicial capacity in reviewing its decision to fire Smith. The authority commissioners will vote either to affirm their Sept. 8 decision, or to modify or rescind the motion.

Marilyn Dvores, attorney for Smith, said she has filed a letter of protest with the city because housing authority and city commissioners refused to be deposed. She said the letter also criticized the commissioners' unwillingness to allow an impartial board to review the case.

In September, the commissioners voted 3 to 2 to dismiss Smith on grounds of incompetence. The board denied Smith's request to postpone the initial grievance hearing in October, but decided to grant him the review at a special meeting last month.

At a regular meeting of the authority last week, the commissioners voted to table until after the hearing discussion of turning authority management over to professional firm.

Woman killed in hit-and-run

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A 78-year-old tourist was killed at about 9:15 p.m. Sunday as she and her husband tried to walk across State Road 436, Altamonte Springs. The driver of the westbound car that struck her left the scene, but surrendered to Altamonte Springs police early today.

Dead is Verna Hass, of Taylor Ridge, Ill. Facing a possible charge of leaving the scene of an accident with injuries is Robert Morgans, 21, of 517 Green Springs Circle, Winter Springs.

Although Morgans allegedly failed to stop at the accident scene because he was reportedly afraid, police spokesman Jeff Hawkins said today the collision was an accident. Morgans has not been jailed. The state attorney will decide when and what charges are filed, Hawkins said.

Hass, who was staying at the Day's Inn with her husband who was with her when she was killed, was crossing the road near Douglas Avenue when she was killed.

Hawkins said she and her husband, whose name Hawkins did not have, were apparently trying to return to the Inn from the Perkin's Restaurant when the accident occurred.

A witness followed Morgans' fleeing Ford EXP and took its license tag number. Through that number, police located his parents, who reportedly said Morgans was aware of the accident, but was afraid. Through his parents police urged him to surrender and he did at about 3 a.m. today.

Hawkins said Hass was dead at the scene. Her husband was not injured.

Educators debate merits of 'choice'

about 250 educators in January. "Some may disagree on the best way to give parents more options ... and on how choice programs can be used to build better schools. "But ... choice will be a critical element in education reform for years to come," he said.

President Reagan first gave impetus to the idea of "choice" in the wake of a 1983 report that sounded the first serious alarm about the poor academic achievement of American students and sent educators, administrators and parents scrambling for ways to improve the educational system.

But, Richard Kraft and Paul Deering of the University of Colorado said in an issues paper for the National Association of State Boards of Education, "educational choice has existed as long as there have been social classes, with the wealthy sending their children to private, elite schools, while the children of the poor or middle class were sent to the public school."

Reagan's initially wanted to give vouchers to parents so their school-age children could buy an education at any public or private school.

Washington — President Bush has moved the concept of choice — letting parents choose their children's schools — closer to center stage, but the idea is still being hotly debated by educators.

"I think 'choice' is going to be a big word for 1989, both on the part of the president and the education secretary," said Tim Callahan of the National Association of State Boards of Education.

Bush spoke out on the idea of letting parents select their children's school during his presidential campaign, picking up a theme begun in the eight-year Reagan administration.

The president also told a joint session of Congress in early February, "We must reward excellence and cut through bureaucracy. We must give choice to parents, students, teachers, and principals."

Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos has pledged loyalty to the issue but readily admits its complexity and controversial nature.

"The word 'choice' means many different things to different people," Cavazos told

Tuchman was brilliant

Despite Barbara Tuchman's long and extraordinarily successful career as a historian — nine major books, several of them best sellers, two of them Pulitzer Prize winners — academic historians tended to belittle her achievement. She was not one of them, hadn't trained in their graduate schools, and didn't admire their often unreadably turgid prose. For the most part, they praised her scholarship and her wonderful story-telling skills, but she was, too many of them said condescendingly, a "popularizer." We can all thank her for that.

Tuchman came to understand history, she wrote in 1981 in "Practicing History," "as accidental and perhaps cyclical ... human conduct as a steady stream running through endless fields of changing circumstances ... good and bad always coexisting and inextricably mixed in periods as in people ... crosscurrents and countercurrents usually present to contradict too-easy generalizations." She chose to make vivid, almost palpable, past battles, diplomatic follies, personalities, public ceremonies, private ideologies.

That was not an easy achievement. Tuchman was an "amateur" and a thinker on the broadest scale in a field that has become dominated by professional specialists; she also was a woman — a housewife and mother — working, at first, in an era that hardly tolerated, much less supported, such pursuits. Nonetheless, by her death the other day at the age of 77, she had collected 22 honorary degrees and reclaimed for the benefit of millions of readers a tradition of "amateur" historians who wrote beautifully, persuasively and provocatively of the past, out of sheer love for the endeavor. History, one feels sure, will honor Barbara Tuchman as another in that distinguished line.

Reagan deserves credit for the taxing situation

All sort of watchdog groups try their hand at calculating what are the "effective" income tax rates paid by American corporations — the real rates, if you cut through all the fancy footwork and just divide a company's taxes by its profits. Because there are so many different ways to massage those numbers, rarely do any two analysts come to precisely the same conclusion. But there was broad agreement before the federal Tax Reform Act of 1986 that in many industries, effective tax rates were shockingly low. And there is general agreement now that in 1988, the first year in which the new tax laws operated, effective tax rates have significantly increased.

Averaged out, the effective tax rate paid by the nation's top 1,000 corporations went up from 21.5 percent in 1987 to 24.7 percent in 1988 — according to one of the most respected of the watchdog groups, Tax Analysts. It has produced an additional $7.6 billion in federal revenues. And the improvement appears to be due almost entirely to tax reform; higher corporate earnings seem to have had only a small impact.

To the extent Congress and the Reagan administration got the blame for the inequities, both deserve credit for seeing the error and enacting the reform that seems to be correcting the problem.

Foes clash over diplomat choice

WASHINGTON — According to Foreign Relations Committee insiders, Senate confirmation of Lawrence Eagleburger as deputy secretary of state, the No. two post, has turned into a test of wills between two old adversaries.

At odds are the ranking Republican on the committee, Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, and Henry Kissinger, the former secretary of state.

Eagleburger retired from the State Department in 1984 after a distinguished 27-year career. He was long considered one of the consummate professionals in the foreign service. His nomination was seen as a signal from Secretary of State Jim Baker that he will hold foreign service careers in high regard.

What concerns Helms, according to committee sources, is not Eagleburger's abilities, but rather what he has been doing in the last four years since his retirement. Eagleburger has been president of Kissinger Associates — the very successful consulting company headed by the former secretary of state.

Jesse Helms has loathed Henry Kissinger for many years.

At the same time, Helms and other conservatives are concerned about the future course of U.S. foreign relations under the moderate, pragmatic Baker. What they fear the most is that Kissinger will be the power behind the throne, pulling the foreign policy strings of the new administration.

Giving rise to this fear is President Bush's already-announced intention to more deeply involve his new national security adviser, Brent Scowcroft, in foreign policy decision-making. Scowcroft's most recent job? Vice chairman of Kissinger Associates.

Reportedly, Helms wants to use the Eagleburger hearings to hold Kissinger's feet to the fire.

Helms is demanding that Eagleburger reveal a great deal about the inner workings of Kissinger Associates, including the identity of its clients and the nature of its work for them.

In the past, Kissinger has been loath to reveal the names of his clients. He says that his company has agreements with its clients not to reveal their identities. Now Kissinger says he has received permission from most of his clients to allow Eagleburger to name them if asked by the committee.

In a prepared statement, Kissinger says Eagleburger "can submit to the committee any information needed within reason."

According to the committee sources, the problem lies in what Kissinger and Helms consider reasonable. Apparently, to Kissinger, this means only the names of the clients — plus some more detailed information on those for whom Eagleburger has performed specific work. Helms is demanding much more. He wants the specifics of what the company did for each client to be made available.

There is also disagreement on whether the information should be made public. Committee sources said Kissinger initially demanded that the information be kept private. But he later relented when informed that much of the information would have to be included in Eagleburger's financial filings, which have to be a part of the public record.

Other committee members are said to want to question Eagleburger very extensively about some of his other financial dealings since his retirement.

Conservatives fear that Kissinger will be the power behind the throne.

Bush squanders an opportunity

WASHINGTON — The budget that President Bush has sent to Congress is a lot like the campaign that elected him. It substitutes clever tactics for sound long-range strategy. It discomfits the Democrats more than it serves the country.

In the broadest terms, it confirms the suspicion that Bush has nothing very much he hopes to accomplish here at home. If he makes his mark in the history books, he intends to do it in foreign policy — not in domestic affairs.

Those may seem sweeping conclusions, to draw barely a month into the new administration. But if there is one rule that experience has demonstrated in the postwar period, it is that the largest accomplishments in domestic policy are likely to come immediately after a President's first election.

There are exceptions: Eisenhower got the interstate highway program through Congress toward the end of his second term; the Environmental Protection Agency was created two years after Richard Nixon took office.

But the Presidents who have left large thumbprints on the direction of domestic policy, such as Lyndon Johnson and Ronald Reagan, have done their most significant work in their first year in office. That is when the voters' decision registers most strongly in Washington and the chances are best of breaking the inertial forces in the capital.

But to break those forces, one must have a goal. Bush slid through the autumn campaign without defining such a goal, and none is discernible in the budget he unveiled last week.

Budget director Richard G. Darman acknowledged as much when he told reporters last week that the document he produced should not be read "as a description of the next four or eight years." Darman may be right in claiming that it is more detailed and comprehensive than any other newly elected President's fiscal blueprint. But it's all fine print. There's no bold headline in the whole 193 pages. It's a backing-and-filling budget, which tackles head-on neither the deficit problem nor any other policy issue. It seems more designed to meet the arbitrary 1990 deficit target set by the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings law than any long-term objective of the man who is supposed to be leading America.

In defense policy, it offers a one-year freeze on inflation-adjusted spending, but is silent on the policy choices that clamp down may require. By holding out the promise of a more liberal Pentagon allowance in subsequent years, it tempts the military planners to postpone the hard decisions and nickel-and-dime their way through this one lean year.

In domestic policy, it offers two big "Nos." and a lot of little "Yesses." It says no to cost-of-living allowances for military and civilian government retirees, and it tells the hospitals and doctors they will have to swallow some $5 billion of the rising costs of Medicare.

On the increase side, there are dubs and dabs of money for a variety of social programs ranging from acid-rain cleanup and AIDS research to low-income feeding and health programs. These are modest down payments on what was, even in Bush's campaign rhetoric, a modest program of domestic improvements.

They're all good causes. But there's not a hint that Bush or his associates have a real passion to do any one thing well or an idea that could lead to a breakthrough on any of the intractable problems facing the country's schools, cities, transportation systems or trade practices. Most of all, the budget tacitly concedes that Bush will settle for tiny, marginal improvements in the federal deficit. Even those depend on optimistic, if not totally implausible, economic assumptions. He simply has not summoned the will to break the back of that chronic drain on our economic future.

For all that, Bush and Darman have crafted a set of budget tactics which throw the Democrats on the defensive. The "flexible freeze" that served to disguise budget choices during the campaign has taken on a new wrinkle. Bush specifies his preferred add-ons, and leaves it to the congressional Democrats to single out the places where compensating cuts in discretionary domestic programs should be.

The Democrats are screaming foul, but they know they've been had. Essentially, Bush has borrowed the idea Sen. Pete Domenici (R-N.M.) put forward three years ago of requiring budget-makers to "trade in the trade up," cutting or discarding ineffective or outdated programs to pay for new ones of greater importance. It was a sound idea then and it still is.

But Bush has changed the rules to let the President designate winners, while Congress bears the onus of naming the losers. Congress hates making such choices, of course, and would prefer not to. But to avoid choices, the Democrats will have to find more revenues, and that could mean t-a-x-e-s.

The Democrats will have to find more revenues.

To what lengths the Big Story

Mike Wallace and Peter Jennings have confirmed the public's worst fear about big-time journalists: In a ranking of what's important, The Story always comes first.

Not even the lives of American troops, apparently, must outweigh this lapdog fidelity to The Story.

Witness, if you like, the disturbing evidence for yourself. It will appear in Part 7 of the public television series "Ethics in America," scheduled to air early next month. You'll see Wallace and Jennings stumble into moral quicksand, flail for balance, and sink ignobly out of sight.

The two network heavyweights appear on a panel with soldiers and politicians to discuss dilemmas stemming from an imaginary war between "North and South Kosan." Although South Kosan is our ally, North Kosan invites Jennings behind enemy lines to view proof of atrocities by the other side. Jennings accepts, only to discover the North Kosanese cannot produce the evidence and prefer that he come along on an ambush of South Kosanese. Again he agrees. Alas, his hosts encounter American troops instead.

What should Jennings do? Treat the event simply as another news story and mechanically film the slaughter?

"Well, I guess, I guess I wouldn't..."

"If I was with a North Kosanese unit that came upon Americans, I think I personally would do what I could to warn the Americans."

Enter bulldog Mike Wallace, who will have nothing to do with such heroics.

"... I'm astonished, really, to hear Peter say that. ... I'm a little bit at a loss to understand why, because you are an American, you would not have covered that story."

At this point the moderator intervenes: "Don't you have a higher duty as an American citizen to do all that you can to save the lives of soldiers rather than this journalistic ethic of reporting the facts?"

"No," replies Wallace, "you don't have the higher duty to, no, no."

Now even Jennings recants, saying he has "chickened out" and that Wallace is right. "I would have liked to have made his decision," says the ABC anchorman.

Perhaps other journalists watching the show will agree, but if so I think they are wrong. While the United States may never again be party to a struggle with the moral clarity of World War II, in which reporters identify totally with one side, that doesn't mean battles have become mere international spectator events. Jennings and Wallace first err, I believe, in agreeing to accompany a North Kosan patrol. By doing so, they link their fate with the success for at least survival of a unit committed to killing Americans — a morally ambiguous position at best, unless a reporter consciously supports the other side.

Their second mistake is to reject the notion of a higher duty. Surely they would recognize such a duty if it were their families about to be butchered, not nameless American troops.

Finally, Jennings and Wallace fail to see the simple indecency of broadcasting into American homes the slaughter of U.S. troops from the perspective of the enemy.

To be fair, both network reporters might have reached a different conclusion if they'd enjoyed more time to reflect. By the end of the show, as a matter of fact, even Wallace succumbs to second thoughts.

Unfortunately, the public holds no such ambivalence regarding the media. When the Pentagon barred reporters from the 1983 invasion of Grenada, many people cheered. They simply don't trust us. And their opinion isn't likely to change.

Enter bulldog Mike Wallace.

Dollar, gold both drift higher

United Press International

The dollar drifted slightly higher in thin and subdued trading Monday on major foreign currency markets. Gold also edged higher.

Currency dealers said the market was light as traders in Europe stepped to the sidelines to await testimony in Congress Tuesday by U.S. Federal Reserve Board Chairman Alan Greenspan.

The market is expecting Greenspan to repeat his recent pledge to tackle inflationary pressures through a tighter monetary policy.

Traders said the activity also was affected by the Presidents Day holiday in the United States. In Tokyo, the dollar edged slightly higher against the Japanese yen in light trading, closing at 125.75 yen, up 0.03 from 125.72 yen Friday.

Elsewhere in Asia, the dollar closed higher in Singapore of 1.9245 Singapore dollars, up from 1.9235 and ended the day in Hong Kong at 7.8035 Hong Kong dollars, up from 7.8015 on Friday.

In Europe, the dollar began the week in Frankfurt at 1.8345 West German marks, down slightly from 1.837 marks on Friday.

The dollar began the day in Zurich at 1.5605 Swiss francs, unchanged and also opened unchanged in Brussels at 38.69 Belgian francs.

In Paris, the dollar opened at 6.2565 French francs, up from 6.2525 and began the day in Italy at 1,350.50 Italian lire, up from 1,345.00 lire.

In London, the British pound began the day at $1.7688 compared with $1.776 on Friday.

On the bullion markets, gold opened $1.50 an ounce higher in Zurich at $382 and opened $2 higher in London at $382.25.

The London morning gold fixing was $382.15, up $1.90 from Friday's close.

In Asia, gold closed at $382.25 on the Hong Kong Bullion Exchange, up $3.40 from Friday's close.

Silver opened unchanged in Zurich at $5.95 an ounce and opened 2.5 cents higher in London at $5.955 an ounce.

Bullion traders noted trading was dull and activity idled by the U.S. Presidents Day holiday.

Seniors

hoping for their own building one day, but there is no money coming from the federal or state government to build additional senior centers.

"They (senior citizens) want a lot of things and politically, if they can band together, that's when the money starts to flow," Stevens said. She said there is only one senior center in the county which is in Casselberry.

"There's a senior club in Lake Mary at The Forest (an adult community) but not everybody goes to it," Stevens said.

Already there are three interest groups on her side, she said. The Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce, Community Improvement Association and the city commission and mayor all support the idea of a senior center building, according to Stevens.

"Business is very eager to cater to seniors," Stevens said. "We'll be networking with other centers. Once they know we're here, we'll be flooded (with correspondence)."

The seniors introduced themselves to one another and talked about what they liked to do. Some of them expressed that younger people didn't want to associate with them.

"The younger people don't want to accept the older people to do things with them," said one senior who is a retired golf course superintendent. He said this was especially true with the sport of golf.

"What they don't understand is that we can do it and better, with more experience," Stevens said.

Another lady warned the seniors about falling into a "bingo trap."

"That is bad. You have to have varied interests," said Hester Weir, a resident of The Forest, an adult community on North Forest Boulevard.

Another senior confirmed that the group was interested in more than just playing bingo.

"We're simply not the bingo types. We want to do things," said Mary Cooke, another resident of The Forest.

Walter Stockton who is in charge of the single people (solo group) at The Forest suggested planning activities which include travel.

Stockton is also Kiwanis Club and Community Concert treasurer.

"I've been retired nine years and I don't have time to go to work," he joked.

Some of the residents also suggested that they would like to have informative lectures and invite speakers to attend their meetings.

The group adopted bylaws defining its purpose: To enrich the lifestyles of persons over 55 years old by providing an opportunity for companionship, communication and "access to enlightening information on matters pertaining to senior citizens."

Stevens said that improving lifestyles wasn't something that applies only to senior citizens.

"We also need to enrich the quality of life of all citizens in Lake Mary," she said.

They also elected pro-tem officers. Elected officers include President, John Nordon; First Vice President, Ruth Cline; Treasurer, Walter Stockton; Secretary, Nellie McCarthy.

Any person over 55, or their spouse, even if they are younger, are eligible for membership. Dues are $3 annually.

The group plans its kickoff on March 29 when it conducts "Wellness Day," Stevens said the group has already raised $100 to rent the Community Improvement Building (C.I.A.) on Country Club Road for the affair.

The next meeting is at 10 a.m. on Feb. 15 at old city hall.

Chase

He added that FHP policy calls for no more than two FHP patrol cars to participate in such a chase. State troopers will not, he said, join in a pursuit initiated by another police agency, although they may provide support in the form of road blocks. That is because of a lack of dependable inter-agency radio communication in such cases, and to also reduce the number of cars speeding through an area, Williams said.

Herman Jacobson, merchant, is dead at 83

Herman Jacobson, a long-time Sanford merchant, died Sunday evening at Central Florida Regional Hospital following a long illness. He was 83.

Jacobson, a native of Poland, was a resident of Sanford for 63 years, arriving here in 1926 from Providence, R.I., according to his daughter, Sara Jacobson.

He operated the H & A Department Store on Sanford Avenue until 1954, when he and his wife Rose opened Ro-Jay's women's apparel shop on First Street.

Jacobson had been active in various city boards and committees. He was also an active Elk's Club member.

Jacobson is survived by his wife, Rose Jacobson of Sanford; two children, Sara Jacobson of Sanford, and Sam Jacobson of Jacksonville; three grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

Private services for close family members will be held prior to cremation, Sara Jacobson said. A contribution to the Alzheimer's Foundation in lieu of flowers is requested.

tours and charters. The new ship will be regulated by Coast Guard standards to carry up to 650 passengers, with dining capacity of 500.

American Cruises, Inc. is a seven family-member business with 35 employees. The new ship will add 15 employees to the company payroll.

Rivership Romance grosses about $2 million in revenue annually. While winter is the peak season for northern tourists, American River Cruises president Nanci Yuronis said the ship serves a host of European travelers during the summer.

The Romance is popular with international tourists because it offers relaxation after several days of touring attractions in Orlando, Yuronis said.

The Rivership Romance brings 50,000 people to Sanford annually, Briggs said. "We have the potential to attract three times that with the new ship," he said.

Dave Farr, Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce executive director, said most local residents don't realize what part the Rivership Romance plays in the Sanford economy. "Not many people know what tremendous numbers of people come to town every day just to ride it," he said.

Farr said he frequently greets groups of English tourists who come to Sanford by motor coach to ride the Rivership three to four of those groups arrive in town weekly, he said. The chamber office receives at least six calls daily inquiring about dinner cruises on the ship, he said.

The family first went into business in 1982 when they put Bay Queen in the water. In 1985, the company first leased the Romance, which was built in 1975 by the federal government for the bicentennial celebration. In September, the family decided to build a new ship.

"We could have never grown any more with this particular ship," Yuronis said. Because the ship can carry only 350 passengers and runs only at preferred times of the day, no growth was possible with the Rivership.

Valentine's Day demonstrated the limited possibilities of the Rivership, Yuronis said. The ship sold out seats on the Valentine cruise this week with a passenger load only one-third its capacity. Although booths on the ship seat four, only 80 people went out on that cruise because "couples want to be alone on Valentine's Day," she said.

The new ship is more than a financial venture; it is a symbol of commitment to the area, Briggs said. "It means we're here for the long haul," he said.

The Grand Romance is custom designed for the shallow waters of Lake Monroe. At full capacity, the ship will float in as little as four and a half feet of water. The Rivership is designed to float in about seven to eight feet of water, Yuronis said.

Yuronis said the design of the ship, drafted by a naval architect, is critical to the ability to serve the increased passenger load. The galley required an efficient design to allow 500 meals an hour to be prepared there, she said.

The design includes four decks and a pilot house. Its smokestacks will fold electronically to allow passage under the Interstate 4 bridge over the St. Johns River.

The Grand Romance interior will be decorated with stained-glass lamps hand made in Sanford, a marble fireplace, brass and Honduran teak. A raised stage will be situated before a dance floor on the main deck for live entertainment with an 1800s steamboat-era theme.

The new ship will be placed in the Gulf of Mexico during the first week of March. At that time, construction of the third and fourth decks will begin.

Six months ago, Briggs and Yuronis began a marketing campaign for the new ship. The two have promoted the Grand Romance at tourism trade shows in Indianapolis, Kansas City, New Orleans and Tampa.

Yuronis is a member of the Orlando Convention and Visitor steering committee and Briggs became chairman of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce tourism committee last month.

American River Cruises spends less than four percent of its gross annual income on marketing, Yuronis said. The key to marketing strategy, she said, is linking up with agents who plan tours of the Orlando area.

The ship will continue the Rivership schedule of daily breakfast and luncheon cruises. The ship will make five two-day cruises to Jacksonville every year.

Briggs said a New York company has expressed interest in purchasing the Rivership.

Manager

Terry said the commission will decide how many applicants they want to interview.

Two of the applicants had recently applied to the city of Lake Mary for the city manager position. Frederick D. Bluestone, of Iowa City, Iowa, was included in a group to be interviewed by the Lake Mary commissioners until they decided to eliminate the more than 40 applications and hire an executive search firm to hire a manager for them.

Kenneth Lee, Resor, 38, who also applied for Longwood city administrator was eliminated from the list of candidates by the Lake Mary commissioners. Lake Mary is still without a city manager.

The city of Longwood advertised locally and nationally, leaving the salary open.

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)— An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" you steady fat loss and calorie reduction by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

The U.S. government has just approved the doctors' claims for a hard-to-get patent that confirms "there has never been anything like their fat-bonding pill process before." It is a totally new major scientific breakthrough and is revolutionizing the weight loss industry.

Best of all, "you can continue to eat your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You can start losing fat and reduce calories from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight you desire without exercising."

Flushes Fat Out of Body
The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles. Then, all the trapped fat and calories are naturally "flushed" right out of your body because they cannot be absorbed.

Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated.

"Automatically" Lose Fat
According to one of the inventors, Dr. William Shell, heart specialist and associate professor of medicine at UCLA medical school, "the new fat-bonding process is a 'lazy way' to lose weight because the pills alone 'automatically' reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat. It is 100% safe and not a drug."

The fat-magnet pills are already sweeping the country with glowing reports of weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slimmer, trimmer and more attractive again.

Now Available to the Public
If you are trying to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these "no-risk" highly successful fat-magnet pills directly from the doctors' exclusive manufacturer only (includes optional calorie-reduction plan for even better results). Send $20 for a 90 pill supply (+ $3 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+ $3 handling), to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W-246, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. NATIONAL BRIEFS

Secrecy issues expected to plague North

WASHINGTON — Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, predicts secrecy issues shrouding Oliver North's trial this week will produce enough legal woes "to knock your socks off."

Hatch, appearing Sunday on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley," said "the only way" North can defend himself is to divulge classified information.

"And if we get into that, I can explain to you some of the really serious problems that will arise in the classified (area) and from the disclosure of sources methods, means and other aspects of intelligence gathering that will just knock your socks off," said Hatch, who served on the Senate committee that investigated the Iran-Contra affair.

North's trial begins Tuesday with opening arguments from chief prosecutor John Keiser and from Brendan Sullivan, the retired Marine lieutenant colonel's lawyer.

North is charged with 12 felony counts arising from his actions in the U.S. arms sales to Iran and diversion of some of the profits to Nicaraguan rebels. If convicted, he could face 60 years in prison and $3 million in fines.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell, who is presiding over the trial, ruled that North may introduce evidence, including classified documents, to bolster a claim that he acted under the direction of a higher authority, that the Reagan administration kept Iran-Contra deals secret and encouraged his alleged obstructions or concealments of information.

FDA approves high-tech drug testing kit

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration has given the go-ahead to a New Jersey firm to market a portable, on-site drug testing kit to health care professionals.

Raymond Akers Jr., co-founder of the Drug Screening Systems Inc. of Blackwood, N.J., said the InstaScreen CHAP drug test kit detects the presence of cocaine, heroin and morphine, amphetamines and PCP, at a cost of about $5 per test. He said the average laboratory cost is about $15 to $35 per test.

With a false-positive rate of about 5 percent and the false-negative rate of around 1 percent, Akers said in an interview. "We've found through clinical testing our product is 98 percent accurate."

Abortion opponent headed to HRS

NEWARK, N.J. — A New Jersey abortion opponent is expected to be nominated for the No. 2 position in the Bush administration's Department of Health and Human Services, a published report said Sunday.

Constance Horner, who most recently worked in the Reagan administration as the director of the Office of Personnel Management, will soon be nominated as the undersecretary of HHS, the Newark Star-Ledger reported.

The paper quoted unnamed administration sources as saying Horner's name will be formally announced some time after the beginning of the confirmation hearings for Louis Sullivan, who is Bush's choice as the HHS secretary.

Sullivan's nomination has left some in Congress uneasy because he reportedly has been somewhat less than enthusiastic about the administration's position opposing abortion.

Baker: U.S. has moral obligation to back Contras

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Despite a peace plan that could leave their future in doubt, the Bush administration has signaled a readiness to risk an early foreign policy clash with Congress by seeking new aid to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

In one of the strongest signals to date of administration intent, Secretary of State James Baker indicated Sunday that President Bush will ask Congress for humanitarian aid to replace a $27 million package that expires March 31.

"I think we have at the very least a moral obligation to seek humanitarian aid for the Contras when it expires on March 31," Baker said, "and I believe President Bush has already indicated that he would be doing so."

At the same time, he echoed the skepticism with which Bush and other U.S. officials reacted last week to the surprise agreement by five Central American presidents to develop a plan in 90 days to disarm the Contras and remove them from camps in Honduras in return for democratic reforms in Nicaragua.

Although the provisions on political change in Nicaragua "appear promising," Baker said, "these are promises Nicaragua has made before, so the key here will be in the implementation."

"I think we're for parts of it," he said of the accord. "But with respect to that part that talks about disbanding the Contras, we really have to see what (is) the fine print."

Baker, interviewed on the NBC News program "Meet the Press," emphasized that the agreement worked out last week at a two-day summit of the Central American leaders in El Salvador was not an actual peace plan but "a commitment to develop a plan." As its preface terms are drafted, he said, the United States will want to see "some sort of an enforcement mechanism," presumably tying any change in the status of the Contras to concrete steps toward democracy by the Marxist-led Sandinista regime in Nicaragua.

BASKETBALL

Long, Heat win second straight

MIAMI — Grant Long scored a career-high 30 points and Kevin Edwards added 21 Sunday night to pace the expansion Miami Heat, owners of the NBA's worst record, to their second straight victory, a 124-115 decision over Atlanta.

Miami improved to 7-42 on the season after beating Atlanta, and Charlotte on Friday night, while the Hawks had their three-game winning streak snapped. The 124 points are the most Miami has scored in a game.

The two victories decrease the likelihood Miami will finish with the worst record in NBA history. The 1972-73 Philadelphia 76ers went 9-73, a mark Miami had a good chance of breaking before beating the Hawks and Hornets.

In other games, the Los Angeles Lakers defeated the Boston Celtics 119-110 and the Chicago Bulls beat the Milwaukee Bucks 108-106.

PREP TRACK

Caputo paces Lake Mary effort

Lake Mary's girls came up with another strong effort but could not keep up with Lake Brantley or Seminole and finished third in the Lake Brantley Open in track action this past Saturday at Lake Brantley High School.

The Lady Rams were led by Jennifer Caputo who won the high jump with a leap of 4-10 with Haydee Rohler taking a tie for fourth in the same event as she cleared 4-6.

Allison Snell won the half mile with a time of 2:25.2 which is the second fastest time ever run in the history of Lake Mary girls track.

The two mile relay team of Melisha Abbasnejad, Snell, Bekah Boothe and Meredith Olive took second place with a 10:31.4 clocking with the mile relay squad of Boothe, Tabitha Newsome, Abbasnejad and Snell also taking second with a time of 4:20.1.

BOXING

Moorer wins 14th fight by KO

MONESSEN, Pa. — Undeclared light heavyweight Michael Moorer notched his 14th knockout in as many fights Sunday with a controversial sixth-round TKO over Frankie Swindell.

Moorer connected on a right-left combination to Swindell's head, sending him backward into the ropes. Moorer pursued him and continued to connect when referee Andy DePaul stopped the nationally televised bout with 10 seconds left in the round.

The World Boxing Organization, which sanctioned the fight, does not have a standing eight count — an option DePaul said he would have preferred over stopping the fight.

HOCKEY

Five straight wins for Canucks

VANCOUVER, British Columbia — Kirk McLean stopped 31 shots Sunday night to lead the Vancouver Canucks to a 3-2 triumph over the Washington Capitals, tying a club record with their fifth straight victory.

The Canucks took a 3-0 lead early in the second period and held off a late Washington charge for the victory, tying a club record set in 1983. Washington lost for only the second time in the Capitals' last 11 road games.

Vancouver took a 1-0 lead at 4:54 of the first period with a power-play goal by Jim Sandlak, his 15th goal of the season. Sandlak took a pass from Brian Bradley and fired a wrist shot from just outside the crease that eluded goaltender Pete Peeters.

Clint Malarchuk replaced Peeters to start the second period, and Vancouver needed just 58 seconds to victimize the new goaltender. Steve Boscak gave the Canucks a 2-0 advantage with a short-handed, unassisted goal, picking up a loose puck from behind the net and wrapped it around Malarchuk's glove side.

Waltrip makes it home on fumes at Daytona 500

United Press International

DAYTONA BEACH — Even with two laps left in Sunday's Daytona 500, Darrell Waltrip was sure his 17-year victory drought at Daytona International Speedway would continue.

Trying to stretch his Tide Chevrolet the final 53 laps without a pit stop, the three-time Winston Cup champion saw his fuel pressure gauge drop to zero twice on lap 199 of the 200-lap race. But both times Waltrip, who inherited the lead with four laps remaining after Ken Schrader and Dale Earnhardt went in for fuel and Alan Kulwicki went into the pits, saw his fuel pressure gauge rise back above the zero mark.

That told Waltrip, the leading money winner in NASCAR history with nearly $9 million in earnings, that he had enough fuel to come home first in the 31st running of stock-car racing's biggest event.

"I said it's gone, it's out. It won't go no further," said Waltrip, 42, of Franklin, Tenn. "But then it would pick up and run again. The last two-to-three laps it was 'I'm out. No I'm not. Hang on. Get ready.' It was just storybook from our perspective."

"There's no one race that I've ever won that means any more than this one," Waltrip said. "I've come close a few times. It's just nice to say I finally won the Daytona 500."

Schrader, the pole-sitter who looked like the race winner when he passed Earnhardt with five laps left, finished second in a Chevrolet, followed by Earnhardt, Geoff Bodine, Phil Parsons, Rick Mast, Kulwicki, Rick Wilson, Terry Labonte, and Kyle Petty, who was driving Eddie Bierschwale's car. Waltrip, Schrader and Bodine all drive for team owner Rick Hendrick.

Waltrip started on the outside pole and led four times for a total of 25 laps. While his car was strong in the early and middle stages of the race, the cars of Schrader and Earnhardt opened up a commanding lead on the field with 20 laps remaining.

They both came in for fuel with 10 laps left, giving the lead to Kulwicki, who had to pit for a cut tire six laps later.

"I fell in behind those guys and Jeff (Hammond, Waltrip's crew chief) said 'Nobody can make it,'" Waltrip said. "But I said 'I can make it. I can make it.'"

By making it to the finish line first, Waltrip, who averaged 148.466 mph, earned $184,400. The race took 3 hours, 22 minutes and 4 seconds, and there were seven caution periods. □ See Fumes, Page 2B

Rams rule region, Part VI

By CHUCK BURGESS
Herald correspondent

The Lake Mary Rams continued their stranglehold on the rest of the Class 4A Region 1 wrestling field by staking claim to their sixth region title in a row, easily outscoring second place Wolfson, 194½ to 129, at Lake Mary High this past Saturday.

In the process, the Rams placed nine members of their team in next weekend's state meet at the Bayshore Civic Center in St. Petersburg.

As a whole, Seminole County had seven region champions, four of which came from Lake Mary. The top four finishers at the region meet qualify for the state meet this weekend.

The Patriots of Lake Brantley came in a respectable sixth place with 88½ points and Lake Howell finished in 11th place with 47½ points. Lake Brantley takes four members on its state squad, Lake Howell puts two members on the bus to state, and DeLand has one.

Lake Howell got the first region champion of the night as John White (103) escaped with a 1-0 decision over Jacksonville Bucholz's Nelson Thomas. At 112, Lake Mary's Aaron Jordan lost a tough 9-0 decision to Wolfson's Jerome Wood.

Robert Doniero took the region 119 title away from Ed White's Dan Byerly with a pin at 3:53 and Lake Brantley's Scott Meredith dominated Forrest's Tony Cimato by a score of 13-9.

The Rams' David Petrone took a tough 8-6 decision over Mosley's Dennis Reynolds at the 130-pound weight class and teammate Shane Stanley drilled Wolfson's Carl Perry 15-5.

Willie Postel scored big for DeLand as he used his big guns to outduel Forrest's Pat Outlaw 6-2 at 160 and Lake Mary's Justin Naumovitz stretched his unbeaten streak to 32 victories with a pin over Bucholz's Gerald White in 3:13 to end the scoring for Seminole County teams.

Other state qualifiers include Lake Brantley's Mike Grimaldi and Tom Gill, Lake Howell's Ken Times, and Lake Mary's Chris Israel, Allen Lewis, and Jose Carbia.

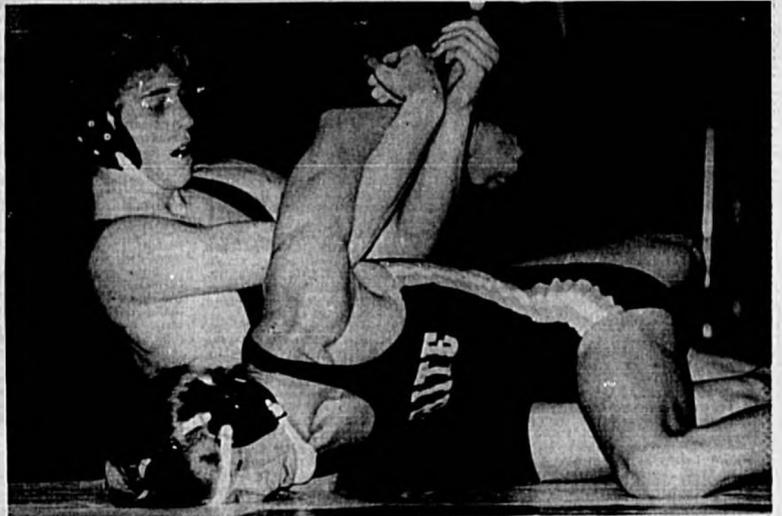

In the Class 3A Region 2 action at Gateway High, Bishop Moore captured his fourth title in a row with 130½ points, easily over runner-up Springstead's 98½ points.

As for Seminole County, Seminole High School boasted a region champion in Troy Rollins. Rollins, wrestling at 160, took care of cross-town foe Kyle Larum with a 21-9 decision. Rollins' efforts placed the Seminoles at ninth with 55 points. Oviedo High was a close 10th with 54½ points.

Oviedo has a small squad of three at the state meet with Larum, Ken Schrupp, and Mike Kobla. Seminole takes an even smaller group with Rollins and Julius Bennett.

Lake Mary High School qualified nine wrestlers for next week's 4A state championship meet in St. Petersburg, including Robert Doniero (top, left), who pinned Dan Byerly of Jacksonville-Edward White in the finals of the 119-pound weight class.

Arnold Meredith (on top) of Lake Brantley is one of 20 Seminole County wrestlers who qualified for the 3A and 4A state meets next weekend. Competing in the 125-pound division, Meredith decimated Tony Cimato of Jacksonville Forest (bottom) 13-9 in the regional championship match.

SCC needs to bounce back

From Staff Reports

In junior college basketball, just as in most other sports, there is what is called the second season, when all that has gone on during the season is forgotten and everyone starts even again.

It's tournament time. Daytona Beach Community College won the regular season Mid-Florida Conference championship and will wait for the state tournament at Bradenton the first weekend in March, but for the other seven members of the MFC, that second season is now.

Tonight, Seminole Community College plays host to St. John's River Community College, Lake City Community College hosts Valencia Community College and Central Florida Community College hosts Santa Fe Community College in first round games.

Florida Community College at Jacksonville finished second in the regular season conference schedule and will host the Seminole-St. John's winner Wednesday night. Also Wednesday at Jacksonville, the Central Florida-Santa Fe winner will play the Lake City-Valencia winner.

The championship game will be played Thursday night in Jacksonville with the winner advancing to the state tournament.

Merthie helps bomb Rollins

By JIM RICKENBACKER
Herald Correspondent

WINTER PARK — Rollins College Coach Tom Klusman couldn't believe it.

Here's Willie Brown and Sanford's Darryl Merthie knocking down one three-pointer after another against the defenseless Tars.

And the Tars don't trap Brown as the final seconds tick off Saturday's basketball game between Rollins and St. Thomas University before 782 eyewitnesses at Enyart-Alumni Fieldhouse.

Brown, reminiscent of former Seattle Seahawk "Downtown" Freddie Brown, lets another long-range rocket fly with three seconds remaining.

NBC. Nothing but cotton. St. Thomas 99, Rollins 96.

Perhaps the most positive thing that happened to the Tars Saturday night took place in St. Petersburg, where the Florida Institute of Technology whipped Eckerd, 83-70, to keep Rollins' hopes alive for reaching the Sunshine State Conference tournament.

That is providing Rollins (12-13) can win its final conference games. Wednesday at home against Saint Leo and Saturday at home against Barry College.

American art lectures to begin

The Central (Casselberry) Branch of the Seminole County Public Library System will present "Art in America," a free, four-part lecture series, beginning Wednesday, Feb. 22, at 10:30 a.m. Art historian Shirley H. Kerze will discuss painting, sculpture and architecture in American history during the program, to be held monthly through May. The first lecture is titled "Settlers to the Revolutionary War" and will include a slide presentation. The library is located at 215 N. Oxford Road. For further details, call 339-4000.

SCC theater to present satire

The Fine Arts Theater of Seminole Community College will present the Central Florida debut of Dario Fo's "We Won't Pay! We Won't Pay!" from Feb. 22-26. The play concerns working class families trying to survive in a time of spiraling inflation and has been called an Italian "I Love Lucy." For information and reservations for the satire, call 323-1450, ext. 399.

Audubon chapter to meet

The Seminole Chapter of Florida and National Audubon Societies will have its regular monthly meeting at 2 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 23, in the Sunshine Room of Florida Power & Light Co., Sanford. Wendy Hale, vice president of Florida Audubon for Education, is to speak about bird identification. For more information, call George Friend at 688-5541.

Washing hands is still healthy habit

DEAR ABBY: I was a boy in school, we were taught to wash our hands after using the urinal. What has happened to that necessary habit? Doesn't anyone wash his hands anymore after using the bathroom? I have observed that nine out of 10 men leave the washroom after using the facilities without washing their hands.

What a shame. Are Americans just lazy, or don't they know any better?

If any repairs are needed at my home, he is always there to do them. He is constantly sitting near me, holding my hand or showing some other sign of affection. He seems to care a lot for me, but he's never told me so.

After two years of dating, I'm wondering if maybe I should try to meet someone else. I am crazy about him, but I'm getting older and don't want to spend the rest of my life alone. All our children are grown and away from home and we are both financially secure.

Abby, how can you tell if a man loves you? I'm so afraid I may be living in a fantasy world and will get hurt that I'm considering backing off from this relationship. Please don't tell me to discuss it with him. I just don't have the nerve.

WARY WIDOW

DEAR WARY: Actions speak louder than words. Of course he loves you. Your question seems to be: "Am I wasting my time—or is this man going to ask me to marry him?"

That's a perfectly legitimate question, and if you're considering backing off because he's made no commitment, take my advice and get that message to him—if you have to mail him this column. (If you send me his address, I'll mail it.)

BEN LOCKER, CENTER POINT, TEXAS
DEAR BEN: It's probably a combination of laziness, carelessness and ignorance. I stressed this one specific area of hygiene in 1984, urging adults to teach children to wash their hands with soap after using the bathroom.

In May of that year, the Mayo Clinic—the medicine mecca of the world—sponsored an "Infection Awareness Week" campaign. As part of that campaign, prominently displayed along the corridors of the Mayo hospital complex were posters showing a pair of hands under this terse message: "The 10 Most Common Causes of Infection."

To remind doctors, nurses and employees of the Mayo Clinic to wash their hands frequently were other posters bearing this catchy message: "A milligram of handwashing is worth a kilogram of antibiotics."

DEAR ABBY: I have been a widow for three years and have been dating a divorced man for two. We have agreed to see no one else but each other. He calls me two or three times a day, and we are together every weekend and at least once or twice during the week. We have taken several vacations together and spend every holiday with his family or

Siding licks paint in maintenance

By VICKI DeSORMIER

HOME & GARDEN

In general, we are often too busy, be it with work or with play, to be bothered with maintaining our home's exterior. The result is either a shabby house or an outrageous bill to have a professional perform the task.

More and more Americans are turning to aluminum or vinyl siding as an economical, yet alternative solution.

"I'd say that 10 percent of the houses in the Central Florida area have one of those types of siding," said Bud Pierson of Ace Aluminum Distributors in Casselberry.

The number is closer to 20 percent, estimated Tom Getchius of Florida Housecraft in Winter Springs.

Both agreed, however, that the ranks of siding-covered homes have increased steadily over the years and that with the advances in the quality of vinyl, sales will continue to climb.

"The cost of aluminum has increased nearly 38 percent in the last year and a half," Pierson said, "so people are leaning more heavily toward the vinyl product."

Aluminum siding has been available since prior to World War II and has not changed much in the interim. Easily applied, the durable metal will last a quarter century or more. "That's more than triple the life of the average paint job."

Aluminum won't fade, peel, chip, shrink, crack, rust or corrode. In addition, it's fire-resistant and termite-proof. Cleaning a house with aluminum siding is as easy as washing a car.

It is, however, susceptible to dents and scrapes from both the elements and human abuse.

Vinyl siding, which has only been on the market for about 25 years, is more resilient than its metal counterpart.

"Advances, especially in the last 10 years, have increased the life expectancy of vinyl siding to nearly fifty years," Getchius said.

Vinyl is also more versatile than aluminum. In addition to a myriad of colors, vinyl siding comes in various lapboard widths and in horizontal or vertical styles. Choices range from smooth to woodgrain textures.

Despite publicity to the contrary, neither aluminum nor vinyl siding will retain the intense Florida heat and decrease the energy efficiency of a home.

"As a matter of fact," Getchius noted, "it could maybe be looked at as an added layer of insulation." Both he and Pierson, however, declined to say the products could be counted on as the sole means of insulating a home.

Pierson extolled the advantages of the vinyl product, but admitted there are some disadvantages.

"Vinyl expands at twice the rate of aluminum. If it is not installed properly, it will buckle in the heat," he said.

Getchius agreed that the product does not offer much margin for error, but pointed out that most installers are well trained and there is little chance of receiving a shoddy job.

With either aluminum or vinyl, it is advisable to shop around and do your "homework." Look around, get several bids on the job, check out the quality of the product (the thicker the sheet, the better) and make sure you understand the perimeters of the guarantee.

As with all products, prices vary according to the quality of the product and current market value.

Aluminum siding averages about $50 per square foot, plus installation, and comes with a minimum 25-year guarantee. Vinyl rings in at nearly $25 less per square foot and is guaranteed for twice as long.

While siding requires an initial investment far greater than a paint job, appraisers say that the increased market value of your home will often compensate for more than half the total cost of labor and materials.

Colorful annuals survive Florida weather

GARDENING

CELESTE WHITE

Annuals are bright and colorful additions to any garden and can be used in many landscape situations. Their brilliant flash of color makes them an excellent focal point in a landscape design. And one of the nicest tasks of working in your garden in the spring is planting flowering annuals.

An annual is a plant that completes its entire life cycle in one growing season. This means that the annual is grown from seed, produces flowers, then seeds and dies. This usually takes three to four months.

On the other hand, biennials complete their life cycle in two years and perennials live three years or longer. Due to our climate, some plants that are considered annuals up north are really perennials here. Examples are vinca, verbena and gerbera daisies.

Annuals do particularly well in containers. So if you are limited in garden space or you want a movable splash of color, try planting annual flowers in a pot or hanging basket, as Chris Cranias does in front of his two Christo's Classics restaurants.

Whether in a container or in the ground, flowering annuals need a soil with lots of organic matter, like peat moss or compost. If you are planting in a container, buy a commercial potting soil at the garden center. Using soil from your yard increases the possibility of nematodes, which are soil-borne parasites. Cranias also uses potting soil to reduce the likelihood of weeds. Make sure your container has good drainage, fill it with potting soil amended with perlite or vermiculite, and you're ready to plant.

Selection of your annuals is important because of our weather. Ones that will do well when planted in the spring are ageratum, aster, begonia, celosia, cosmos, marigolds, geraniums, salvia and zinnias, to name a few. There are many others to choose from. Circular 569, "Annual Flowers for Florida," is available at the Agricultural Center to help you choose new and exciting varieties. Always select healthy annuals for the greatest success.

Chris Cranias has different light situations at his two restaurants, which affects his selection of annuals. The Lake Mary restaurant has more shade than the Sanford one. Cranias had geraniums in both planters last year, but this year his wife suggested planting begonias.

"The reason that I chose them was because I'm trying to get flowers that will last beyond April," Mrs. Cranias said. "The bronze-leaf begonias last longer in the summer heat than the green-leaved ones do. The begonias should do better in the partial shade at Lake Mary as well."

After planting and watering your annuals, regular watering several times a week as well as fertilization approximately once per month are essential cultural steps to ensure the longest possible duration of the flowers. In addition, a process called "dead heading"—removing the spent blooms—prevents the plant from producing seed that will make the annual continue to flower longer. And after your annuals are through flowering, go back to the garden center to buy new annuals that will do well in the summer heat. And you may get comments on the beauty of your flowers as does Chris Cranias.

EKG change may not mean heart problems

DEAR DR. GOTT: What factors other than heart problems can cause a change in cardiogram readings?

DEAR READER: The electrocardiogram machine is an amplifier that records the incredibly faint electrical activity in the heart and displays it in a visual pattern of waves. In very simple terms, these waves reflect the two phases of the cardiac cycle: depolarization (producing heart muscle contraction) and repolarization (recharging of the electrical system). The spiky wave — so evident on the monitors in TV medical series — stimulates heart contraction. This is followed by a slower, gentler wave of recharging. Then the cycle repeats itself.

Factors that affect the sharp wave of depolarization are extremely important. Changes or disturbances in this portion often reflect cardiac damage, such as heart attack and muscle death. Therefore, such changes have profound significance.

On the other hand, changes in the slow wave of repolarization may be caused by a variety of less serious conditions, such as mineral imbalance in the blood, medicines (digitalis, for instance), inflammation around the heart (pericarditis) and lack of oxygen to cardiac muscle. I have seen pronounced changes in the repolarization wave in people who have just smoked cigarettes or consumed cold beverages.

Therefore, the answer to your question depends on which part of the EKG cycle is affected. As a general rule, any permanent change in the EKG pattern is cause for concern and should be investigated with other tests, such as blood analysis, stress tests and so forth.

DEAR DR. GOTT: During my teen years I was very gregarious and active. Since getting married I have let the fear of getting sick in public rule my life. I take two Triavil daily which helps some. What can you suggest so I can enjoy life again?

DEAR READER: You seem to have developed an irrational fear called a phobia. Medicine, such as Triavil (for depression and anxiety), is unlikely to cure you. You probably need counseling with or without behavior

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Willy Nilly would quickly go set in today's aggressively bid slam. He would draw trumps and then go about setting up the heart suit, intending to ruff the third heart. But when he discovered that he needed to ruff two hearts to set up the suit, he would also find that he was short the necessary entries to make 12 tricks.

Careful Charlie would do better. He would look for a way to make the contract even though hearts might misbehave. So he would win the opening lead in dummy, play a heart back to his ace, and then play two more rounds of spades, on which he would throw a heart. He would ruff a heart, get back to dummy with a trump, and ruff another heart. He could then draw trumps ending in dummy. Beginning with the king, the heart suit would then run.

The bidding was excellent. When North bid to show concentration of strength in three suits and obvious shortness in diamonds, South made a good decision to stay out of three no-trump. From North's point of view, South just might have a diamond stopper, but he was certainly showing the ace of hearts with his belated heart bid, and so the play for slam would be good. Let's hope that the next time you are dealt North's cards and bid them as well as he did, your partner will play the hand like Charlie rather than Willy.

18-wheelers 'break' into the space age

UPI report

WASHINGTON — Breaker! Breaker! CB radios are taking a back seat to miniature satellite dishes and compact computer terminals in the rough-and-tumble world of trucking.

High-tech, space-age gear is being installed in 18-wheelers to keep truckers in constant contact with their terminals and dispatchers while traveling the long, lonesome highway.

And that's a big 10-4 for Martin Rothblatt, president of Geostar Corp., a fledgling communications satellite firm with AT&T-sized dreams, good buddy.

"This may be satellite CB," Rothblatt predicts. Geostar owns a network that can deliver as many as 1 million messages per hour among the big rigs and their dispatchers nationwide, using satellites parked in an orbit 22,000 miles over North America.

And it only costs a nickel a message. A satellite dish, less than 6 inches in diameter, is mounted on a truck and tied into a mobile satellite receiver and transmitter. The receiver is the size of a compact disk player; the transmitter resembles a VCR.

A terminal and keyboard accompany the trucker in the cab, and voice synthesizers can be added to read aloud incoming messages so drivers can keep their eyes on the highway.

The gear costs about $4,000 per truck. Besides making assignments and requests for pickups, directions or highway assistance, the system is used to track the movement of cargo and even check the temperature of refrigerated loads.

Never before have truckers been able to remain in constant contact with dispatchers — while traveling at highway speeds. Never before have freight companies been able to accurately track cargo — instantly.

During a demonstration of the computer equipment, a message was flashed from Genstar headquarters in Washington to a satellite and back to a mobile unit.

"How is the weather today?" the mechanical voice rattled with the emphasis on the question mark.

United Van Lines, Frederick Transport, of Dundas, Ontario, along with its American subsidiary in Moline, Ill., and other companies are on line. Geostar currently is using two satellites and plans to launch another in 1992.

"In 30 years, the size of an Earth station has come down from the size of a building to the size of something that can be held by hand," Rothblatt said. "It's been a long time since you could talk across the country for a nickel."

Frank Dunton, vice president of marketing for Frederick, said his company's drivers still use their CB rigs. The popular two-way radios, the craze of the late 1970s, keep a folk pipeline open between truckers, but only cover a few miles under normal conditions.

In the future, Rothblatt predicts, satellite gear will be available to motorists to call home, communicate with other cars and trucks, or to seek help or directions.

"There'll be a competitive market for these, just like CB," Rothblatt proclaimed. "It'll be integrated into a single unit, which'll be like a satellite CB."

WORLD BRIEFS

U.S.-owned plane crashes in Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR — A U.S.-owned Boeing 747 cargo plane crashed into a hill Sunday while attempting to land at Subang international airport, killing five American crew members, officials said.

The Flying Tiger Line Inc. aircraft burst into flames about seven miles from the Malaysian capital of Kuala Lumpur and wreckage was strewn over a wide area, a civil aviation official said.

Four of the crewmembers bodies have been recovered and search teams were looking for the fifth, the official said, adding that the dead were Americans.

"Rescue operations are underway. A full compliment of fire engines, ambulances and rescue workers are at the scene of the disaster," the official said.

The official said "the jungle-clad hill crash site did not hinder rescue operations."

The plane, which took off from Singapore early Sunday morning, was carrying a full load of general cargo.

The U.S. Embassy said it had no information about the crash of the Boeing 747 and company officials were not immediately available for comment.

Bomb search began long before crash

LONDON — British airport security began searching baggage for a radio-cassette bomb a month before such a device blew a Pan American flight out of the sky over Scotland and killed 270 people, British newspapers reported Sunday.

The Sunday Telegraph said security technicians at the London airport, warned of the threat by the Department of Transport, built a replica of the device to train teams of searchers starting Nov. 22.

A Transport Department spokesman confirmed "there was a warning and the threat was assessed and appropriate advisory was issued," but he would not give any specific information about the memo.

The News of the World, meanwhile, said it obtained a "secret memo from intelligence chiefs" dated Dec. 2 that urged Israeli and American airlines to watch out for a booby-trapped Toshiba radio called the Bombcat 453.

"Officially I can say nothing," a senior Pan Am spokesman told the tabloid. "But if you print that we were warned about the Bombcat, you wouldn't be wrong."

Thatcher, Kohl to discuss missiles

LONDON — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher during her visit Monday and Tuesday in Frankfurt is expected to sound out Chancellor Helmut Kohl about his reservations on modernizing NATO's short-range nuclear missiles based in West Germany.

The prime minister's talks follow a visit to 14 NATO nations last week by Secretary of State James Baker, who said he expected the issue of modernizing short-range nuclear missiles in Europe to be resolved within the next three months prior to a summit of NATO leaders tentatively scheduled for the last half of May.

Earlier this month, Kohl, with backing of Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher, said he saw no need to modernize the West German-based lance missiles, which have a range of about 75 miles, until 1991 or 1992 — after the next German election.

From United Press International reports

Khomeini rejects apology

United Press International

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iranian spiritual leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini refused to lift a death decree against Salman Rushdie despite the author's apology to Moslems for his novel, "The Satanic Verses."

In a statement carried in an urgent dispatch from Tehran late Sunday by Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, Khomeini also reiterated that a bounty remained on the Indian-born British writer's head.

"Even if Salman Rushdie repents and becomes the most pious man of time it is incumbent on every Moslem (to) employ everything he's got, his life and wealth, to send him to hell," Khomeini was quoted by IRNA as saying.

The news agency said Khomeini was responding to a statement issued by Rushdie Saturday, a day after Iranian President Ali Khamenei said a decree to kill the writer might be lifted if the author

"Even if Rushdie becomes the most pious man of time every Moslem (must) employ everything he's got to send him to hell."

— Ayatollah Khomeini

apologized.

The "imperialist mass media" falsely alleged that if Rushdie repented, his execution order would be lifted, the agency quoted Khomeini's statement as saying. "This is denied, 100 percent."

Rushdie, 41, who said Saturday he regretted the "distress" his book has caused to "sincere followers of Islam," remained in hiding under police protection.

The British Foreign Office said it planned to discuss the affair Monday at a conference of European foreign ministers in Brussels, Belgium.

"The Satanic Verses," viewed by many Moslems as blasphemous, is a surrealist novel with a dream sequence involving the prophet Mohammed that implies that he may have written the holy Moslem Koran himself, rather than as God dictated it to him.

Outrage spawned by the book, already banned in some Moslem nations, sparked rioting last weekend in Pakistan and India to protest the book's publication in the United States and forced Rushdie to cancel a U.S. promotion tour.

A wave of anti-American and anti-British sentiment has been unleashed in Iran over the novel at a time when Tehran is seeking to end diplomatic isolation in the wake of its long war with Iraq.

Khomeini's latest move was seen by some observers as a victory by hard-liners in Iran's divided ruling clergy opposed to any ties with the West.

Shevardnadze-Mubarak talks begin

United Press International

CAIRO, Egypt — Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze began talks today with President Hosni Mubarak in Cairo, where he meets Wednesday with his Israeli counterpart as part of the Kremlin's ambitious peace mission through the embattled region.

Following his talks with Mubarak and completion of his visit to Egypt, Shevardnadze moves on to Baghdad, Iraq, Thursday before going to Iran Saturday.

The Soviet Embassy in Egypt said Shevardnadze will confer with Yasser Arafat, leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization, while in Baghdad. But the Egyptian Foreign Ministry said the Shevardnadze-Arafat meeting could occur while he was in Cairo or Baghdad.

Upon his arrival in Cairo from the Jordanian capital of Amman, Shevardnadze said, "I do hope that progress (toward peace) would be made ... but this also needs the joint efforts by the U.N. Security Council and the concerned parties."

Shevardnadze and Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Arens were expected to primarily review their nations' positions on the 14-month-old Palestinian uprising against Israel's occupation of the Gaza Strip and West Bank.

Shevardnadze's decision to meet with Arens reflects Moscow's desire to play a lead role in the Middle East peace process and move toward normalizing diplomatic ties with Israel, which were severed nearly 22 years ago, Israeli government sources said.

Arens' scheduled arrival in Cairo Monday marks the first time since Mubarak took power in 1981 that Egypt has agreed to play host to a senior member of Israel's right-wing Likud Party.

"It's a very important development, the fact that the Soviet understand there is no point in traveling about the Middle East and winning the Arab nations over for peace and leaving the other half of the conflict out," said Foreign Ministry spokesman Dani Sheck.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, the Likud leader, told Israel Radio Sunday he did not expect a "breakthrough" from the scheduled meetings in Cairo.

Cambodian peace talk prospects dwindle

United Press International

JAKARTA, Indonesia — The prospects for substantive progress in talks between warring factions in Cambodia dwindled Monday with Premier Hun Sen arguing a "partial" agreement in the decade-old conflict was more likely.

The landmark talks between the leaders of the U.N.-recognized coalition, the Hanoi-backed Phnom Penh government, Vietnam, Laos and six other Southeast Asian nations stalled in its second of three days as prospects for a comprehensive settlement faded.

With Hun Sen and the resistance forces loyal to Prince Norodom Sihanouk unable to compromise on the composition of the government following the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops, Hun Sen proposed the delegates concentrate on resolving "external aspects."

"If we cannot find a comprehensive solution, we can find a partial one," Hun Sen said.

The resistance immediately blasted the proposal, contending only a full solution was acceptable. The sharpest criticism came from Singapore Foreign Minister Wong Kan Seng, who said a partial solution "is a mistaken notion and a dangerous one."

"A partial solution is simply not viable," Wong said, stressing

"a comprehensive solution is the only practical one."

The biggest obstacle is the composition of the government following a cease-fire. Sihanouk demands the Phnom Penh government dissolve itself and join a four-party provisional coalition to oversee general elections. Phnom Penh wants a four-party National Reconciliation Council to prepare for the elections while Hun Sen continues to administer the country.
