

Authority Questioned

By REV. WILLIAM G. NEIDER
Church of the Holy Spirit
Among the many things that are questioned these days is authority. The authority of parents, teachers, police...

I believe that people who today are considered successful in life will readily admit that it was authority and discipline that made them so. They will also agree that hard work was one of the essential ingredients of success.

Against the background of what I have said thus far, let us observe closely the attitude of a teacher who has passed through the "old" and the "new." She tells the story of the "Two Lawrence's":

Thirty years ago I taught my first year in a rural school. Lawrence Nelson was a cute, blonde, mischievous second grader who started his shenanigans the first day of school. On Monday of the second week, Lawrence told me a deliberate falsehood. That did it. I led him to the back hall and vigorously applied my hands to the back of his new overalls. The next morning a sober-faced Lawrence handed me a package along with a note that read:

"Dear Teacher: Thank you for spanking Lawrence. Mother and I want our five boys to learn their lessons, but most of all we want them to be good boys. Don't use your hand the next time. I made two of these — one for you and one for me. When you need to use yours, I'll use mine. — Sam Nelson."

In the package was a four-foot paddle. Lawrence felt the sting of that paddle three times in the next two years, always followed by a backer from home.

Later I moved to Colorado to teach. Five years ago I had another Lawrence Nelson in the second grade. Time turned back 25 years — he was cute, blonde, and mischievous. After a month of talking and trying "new method discipline" I put Lawrence in the corner of the gym during physical education period to keep him from ruining the class for the entire second grade. Lawrence went home for lunch and returned with his mother. "Lawrence said you shut him in a dark closet," she accused. I pointed out that I wouldn't have done so times there was no closet in the gym. But she screamed, "Yes you did. My children tell me everything, and my children do not lie!"

The following morning Lawrence announced to me, "The next time you won't let me play, I'll tell Mama you spanked me. Mama said that you spanked me, she'd call the principal and you'll lose your job." Lawrence provided some real headaches for both me and the school grade for the rest of the year.

Last Christmas, my first Lawrence, Major Lawrence Nelson, wrote about the "Thanksgiving family reunion at the old Nelson farm." "All five of us with our families filled the old family farm home," he wrote. "Ken is a doctor, and Louis a dentist. Mark and Gerald are co-owners of a drugstore and I'm entering in the military. No one has done anything really spectacular, but Mother and Dad are mighty proud of all of us, and I think you would be too. By the way, what did you ever do with your paddle? Dad's still hangs on the end of the kitchen cupboard." GOOD OLD BOADIP OF ENGLAND!

In May, a friend of mine told me that Lawrence Nelson No. Two and three other teenagers had been arrested for vandalizing cars. Although the police caught them in the act, Mrs. Nelson was insisting, "He didn't do it. He says he didn't do it, and he never lies."

Sometimes we can't help but wonder . . .

New Church To Receive Charter

By REV. ROY GRAVES
The Religious Science Society of Winter Park will receive its church charter from the International Association of Religious Science Churches at 8 p.m. Wednesday in services to be held at the University Club in Winter Park. Officiating clergyman will be Dr. Raymond Charles Barker, international lecturer and noted author of books on the Science of Mind.

The service will be open to the public. Rev. Roy Graves, minister of the new church, advised.

According to Rev. Graves, "Religious Science is a new idea in religion. A liberal search for meaning based upon scientific discoveries rather than apocryphical revelations, it teaches the presence of God in man as the highest form of expression. Shunning the occult and esoteric, the Science of Mind, which is the teaching basis of Religious Science, professes that each person is the author of his own experience through his habitual thought patterns.

The "Grace of God" is the understood principle that saves man from eternal damnation, and is Divine forgiveness and the resurrection in man."

The service for presentation of the charter will be the first celebration, or lecture, in Central Florida for Dr. Barker, who is well-known in the Northeast for his extensive radio broadcasts at the minister of First Church of Religious Science in New York City. He has recently returned from a lecture tour of South Africa and London and has just published a new self-help book, "The Power of Decision."

Rev. Graves also will be officially installed as minister during the service. He has just completed five years as associate minister of First Church of Religious Science in Chicago. His training began in New York City and continued in Palo Alto, Calif., prior to his assignment in Chicago.

Guest speaker was Miss Eulalia Cook, a missionary, who spoke of her work in Bolivia, Peru, and other countries, and stimulated the group with her plan of "love and action" stressing the need of "Big Brother" help. In conclusion, she defined her work as a missionary, stating that its purpose is "to put the word to help spread spiritual righteousness over the world."

Memorial service was conducted by Mrs. Walter Puritz, chairman of spiritual growth, in honor of members who had died during the past year.

In the afternoon session, WSCS charters were signed by the president and pledge service was conducted by Mrs. Don Coward. Highlight of the session was an address, "Because," given by Mrs. Bruce Gray, WSCS conference president.

Installation of the new district officers concluded the day-long session.

Chairmen in program area serving will be Mrs. William Melrose of Deltona, missionary education; Mrs. A. K. Boer, New Smyrna Beach, spiritual growth; Mrs. W. M. Whitman, committee on nominations; and Miss Mabel Chapman of First United Methodist, Sanford, chairman of Wesleyman Service Guild.

Cabinet Changes Only Start Of Major Overhaul!

That was a pretty sizeable rock dropped into the political waters of Florida by a firm of professional management experts advising our state legislature on the complex problem of reorganization.

If they had wanted to produce ripples the size of waves, they could have done better than aim at a change in the state's "cabinet."

To strip authority from this time-honored method of conducting the state's business and lodge it in the governor's hands is a move which already has been challenged and is sure to get some tough answers.

We welcome this ringing of an alarm bell with tones clear and loud enough to reach the ears of any but the most apathetic voter.

"Forty-Winks"

For all the claims about our high form of civilization in this county, we've actively discouraged one of the most civilized customs of all: the afternoon nap, or siesta.

We're reminded of this every morning, when we pledge to retire ever earlier at night. We do this, knowing full well that by nightfall the atmosphere of morning will seep down into the realm of the subconscious, to wait until the following morning to reappear.

Those who criticize countries whose citizens indulge in a little afternoon napping are wrong to point out that conditions in those places are terrible.

We persevere, red-eyed and yawning, through the day and then go home and snap at our spouses. We haunt the office coffee machine and consume caffeine to keep an army of truck drivers continuously cross-country.

Such is the penalty we have paid for progress. No wonder the aspirin business is booming. — Savannah (Ga.) Morning News

FARM REVIEW and FORECAST

Soil Needs Up Because Of Winter

By FRANK J. JASA
County Ag. Agent

It seems that the weather maker has gotten a little confused this year and in the process may be confusing the grower. The two factors that most affect cultural practices are temperature and moisture. This winter season's prolonged cool period along with frequent heavy rains will require some adjustment to normal fertilizer and spray programs. This is true both in the commercial production of a good crop and in the home garden.

The more frequent rains have leached what nutrients were available in the soil and now plants are showing more hunger signs than normal. Also the cool weather has prevented breakdown of organic matter and reduced the amount of available nitrogen in the soil.

This also means that in most instances these plants will need fertilizer as soon as it is safe to apply. Plants sensitive to cold should be kept dormant as long as possible, however, most of them have already broken dormancy as they can be fertilized. Lawns will need a boost for a good spring start.

Because of the prolonged cool weather, most citrus trees in this area are late in blooming. Just as last year, this delay means some delay in applying the post-bloom copper spray. It will also mean that most likely, the fruit will again be late in maturing. There is considerable variation in how far along the trees are in their bloom. The spray schedule should be planned to take advantage of times when a majority of trees are at the proper stage.

What this all boils down to is for the grower to just use common sense in timing of fertilizer and spray applications.

Florida Soils Need Fertilizer

By RANDY KNIGHT
Chase & Company

Why fertilize? Florida soils overall are sandy and porous. They contain very little natural elements and are almost completely void of the materials that plants require for proper growth. Many important plant nutrients are missing—thus Florida soils have to be enriched with additives. These "tonics" contain diets of nitrogen, phosphorus, potash and other special ingredients and enable your lawn and plants to grow strong and healthy.

Gardeners new to Florida need to become aware of special conditions that exist in sandy soils and use fertilizers containing, in addition to the major elements, nitrogen, phosphorus and potash, fertilizers with micro-nutrients as well. There are many sources of plant foods. Chemical sources are generally cheaper than organic sources—but will not last as long.

Much of their strength or growing power is expended immediately—too rapidly to be utilized by the plant. Organic sources provide a natural form of feeding in addition to supplying micro nutrients to the soil. Organic sources break down slowly, releasing food to the plants throughout the entire growing season. For

Centipede Popular In Grass

By DAVID DEVOLL
Asst. County Ag. Agent

Centipede grass is one of the more common lawn grasses used in North and Central Florida. One of the main reasons for its popularity is its adaptation to low fertility conditions. Although centipede is not as shade tolerant as St. Augustine grass, it does well under shade. It is also more resistant to wear than bermuda and does not require as much maintenance to traffic. Also due to its low degree of cold tolerance, centipede is not well adapted for areas bordering salt water. Slightly acid to moderately acid soils are favorable for growing centipede grass. Centipede is much less drought tolerant than St. Augustine, Bermuda and Bahia grasses since it is considerably more shallow rooted. Centipede is among the first of the grasses to turn brown during continuous dry weather.

Fertilization is the most important single factor in the maintenance of centipede turf. Here is a grass that does not withstand excessive fertilization. Centipede turf should be fertilized once a year in the spring after the grass resumes growth. A complete fertilizer with much of the nitrogen in such as 4-6-4, 4-6-6, or 4-8-4 is the organic form is the most desirable. The use of lime or dolomite will be avoided unless the soil is very acid. Iron deficiency which is often encountered can be corrected by applications of the chelated iron compound.

Skirts Are Going Down, Down, Down

By LOUISE LONG
County Home Agent

Skirt lengths are going-go-down this season. Lengths range from just above the knee to floor-length. This range of choice gives each of you the privilege of choosing the length most becoming to you—a privilege you always had, of course.

Although designers say the mini-skirt is passé, many will continue to wear the shorter skirts.

These are the important points to consider when you determine skirt length: your figure proportions, your age and your personal tastes. Thus you need never wear an unbecoming style if you keep these guides in mind.

When your proportions decide what hem length is best for you, the woman with the "ideal" figure probably looks best when her hemlines come to mid-knee. A long-waisted woman with short legs might prefer to wear her skirt just above the knee. Then a medium build would make her leg look longer. On the other hand, a short-waisted, long-legged woman might do better with skirts just below mid-knee and with lower heels.

While hemlines still "ride off in both directions" at once, place a strip of lamb's wool in your hem for interlining. It will give the hem a soft edge so that you can let it down later without a crease-line showing. The soft edge is still in style this season. You can't do this with permanent press fabrics, however. The crease will always show when you let the hem down.

Belts will be worn anywhere from just below the bust to the hipline. If you decide on the location of the belt first, its location and size could help to determine the length the skirt should be. To give yourself a proportioned look, note the amount of skirt below and above the waist line before you decide on your hem length. You may prefer to decide the hem length first and then "shoot" the belt. It's your privilege to choose.

Bake Sale

The Missionary Guild of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, Slavia, will sponsor a bake sale Saturday, beginning at 10 a.m. at the Country Quick Shopping Center in Oviedo. The public is encouraged to support the project.

Centipede makes watering important. At least an inch of water should be applied at each irrigation weekly during prolonged drought.

Centipede should be mowed at a height of 1 1/2 to 2 inches. Every defender of the Alamo lost his life. The victims included the legendary scout Davy Crockett and James Bowie.

Piano May Heal Presidential Rift

WASHINGTON (AP) — A grand piano has turned out to be the unlikely peace symbol that has ended one of the nation's most bitter political feuds—the split between President Nixon and Harry S. Truman.

Over the years, charges of treason, cynicism and political ineptness by Nixon and threats of physical reprisals by Truman have marked relations between the two—both playing the piano the only apparent common point of interest.

Nixon moved to heal the breach when he scheduled a stop today on his trip to California for a visit at the 84-year-old former president's Independence, Mo., home. The chief executive took along the White House piano often used by Truman as a gift.

As an up and coming Republican congressman in the years after World War II who built a political name as a Red hunter, Nixon was never close to the Democratic president.

Any ties between the two came to an end in 1953 when Nixon, running as the GOP vice-presidential candidate, charged the retiring president with coaching Communists in the government.

Truman and other Democratic leaders were "traitors to the high principles in which many of the nation's Democrats believe," Nixon charged.

Truman reacted angrily to

Collection Will Drop

LONDON (AP) — Britain's clergy are worried that the withdrawal of the half-crown from circulation at the end of this year in preparation for the introduction of decimal currency may see a big drop in church collections.

The half-crown—today worth 30 cents—is the largest silver piece and generally the most favored for tossing into the Sunday collection plate. It will be replaced by a new tenpenny piece worth two shillings (20 cents).

If churchgoers still give a single silver coin, there could be a 20 per cent drop in collections, a Prime Minister spokesman pointed out. He hoped that instead they would add the new fivepenny piece, sending collections up by 20 per cent instead.

Everybody's Invited To Exciting 'Chi Chi Las Vegas Night' Benefit

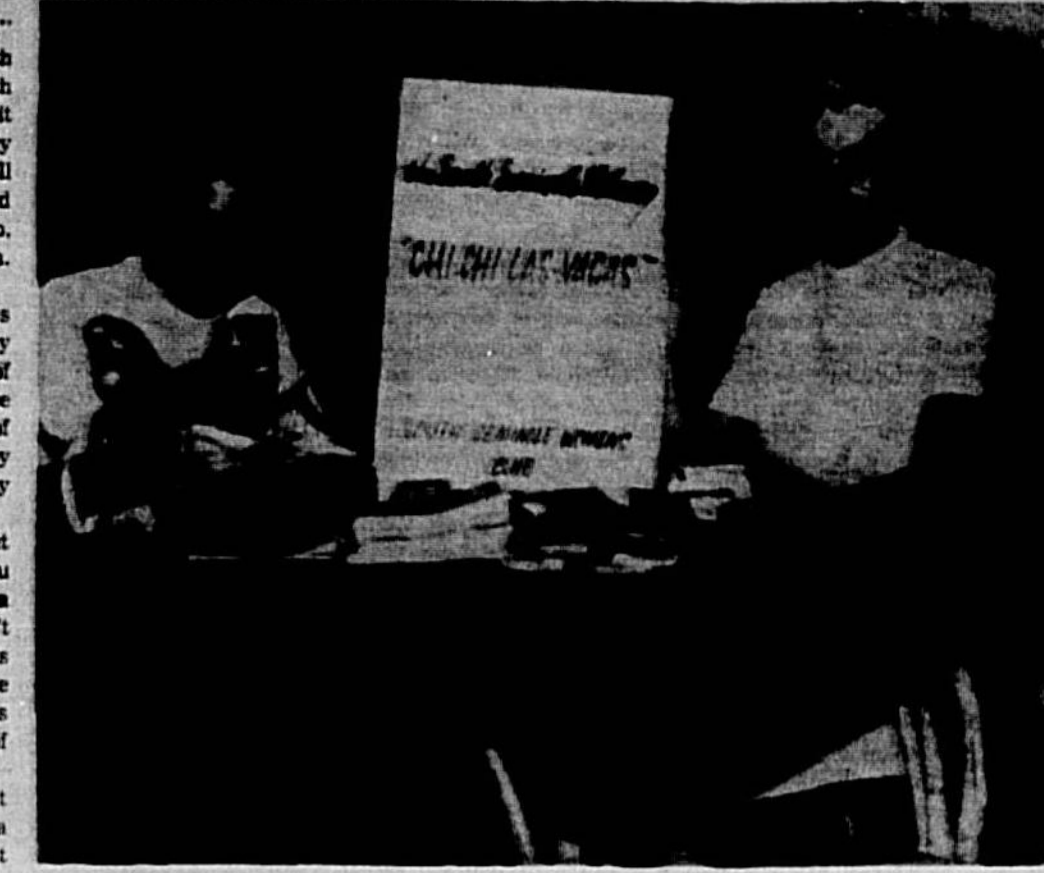

By JANE CASSELLBERRY

A gala "Chi Chi Las Vegas" night is being planned by South Seminole Women's Club, which hopes to raise $1,000 to benefit the South Seminole Library Building Fund. The event will be semi-formal and will be held at Rolling Hills Country Club, Saturday, March 23, 8:30 p. m. to 11 a. m.

The price of admission entitles each couple to $2,000 in play money to use in a variety of games. Winnings may then be used to bid on the long list of prizes to be auctioned off by WKIS Radio personality, Tony General.

Chairman of the event, Janet Bonder, has as her slogan, "You may win a French bidet or a weekend away." (If you don't know what a bidet is she says "come and see." Just to give you a clue though... it was donated by Martin Plumbing of Fern Park.)

Four days and three nights in Miami Beach or Las Vegas, a deluxe weekend for two at Galt Ocean Mile Motel in Ft. Lauderdale, a family weekend at New Smyrna Beach, three days and two nights at Colony Beach Club in Sarasota and round trip passes for two on Shawnee Air Lines are among the tempting items to be auctioned off.

Scalloped Lace Ushers In Spring Evenings

By HELEN HENNESSY

NEW YORK (NBA)—Scalloped "see-through" for the femme fatales are available to bare all but who enjoy being a girl and no unless about it.

The shirtdress, for example, in a belted print for day becomes a snowy confection of scalloped lace by night.

The pants look when done right is a white crepe jumpsuit jacketed in jet.

For day and casual wear one handsome three-piece costume mates and eggshell crepe jumpsuit belted in red.

And it's topped with a blouse of Paisley print on a blouse of charcoal jersey. And less casual coat that sweeps dramatically to the floor.

There's no doubt that the nude look is getting a big play right now—at least on fashion pages. But even if you're not too modest to wear it, it looks right only on a slim and then aren't too many of them around.

As to the boy-girl localities in clothes, you have to be as slim as Jim to wear them, too.

3-Way Water Meeting Set

A joint meeting of Canaveral Port Authority, Florida Inland Navigation District (FINID) with the St. Johns-Indian River Canal District at Cocoa Beach has been scheduled for 11 a.m. March 28 at the Sheraton Hotel.

John Krider, chairman of St. Johns-Indian River Canal District, said the purpose of the meeting would be to develop plans for a co-ordinated effort to tie the three projects together in one big push for a 1970 start on the St. Johns-Indian River Canal project.

The entire project involving the three groups would eventually move toward the realization of a waterway trade route from Sanford to Jacksonville all the way down the peninsula to Key West.

With Port Canaveral serving as a terminal for seagoing ships, commerce could move from barges along St. Johns-Indian River Canal to Sanford's new port bringing in newspaper and other commodities for use at Sanford and Orlando.

With the completion of the St. Johns-Indian River Canal, Sanford would have an open route to the sea, thereby providing water transportation at a rate 40 per cent less than other modes of transportation.

With the eventual tieup with the Cross-State Barge Canal, it would be possible to bring barges from the Gulf of Mexico to Sanford and out to the Atlantic Ocean at Port Canaveral, Krider added.

The present status of the St. Johns-Indian River Canal, is still awaiting approval of a realignment from Lake Monroe to Lake Harney by the U.S. Corps of Engineers, the official concluded.

The Miami-Dade Chamber of Commerce is also expected to have representation at the March 28 session.

The area of Alaska is 586,400 square miles, about equal to the size of one-fifth of the rest of the United States.
