CLEVELAND (UPI) - Some 101,000 publicschool students were ready for the first day of school today, but their teachers were on strike in a pay dispute with a nearly bankrupt school

In all, the education of nearly a million students has been disrupted by teacher strikes in the past two weeks. A UPI survey showed 850,000 students affected Thursday in 13 states and six major cities.

'God Isn't Keeping Score'

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) - Meckle County voters go to the polls today to deliver the final words on an issue that has stirred up a religious debate in recent weeks — whether to allow the sale of liquor by the drink.

Opponents of the referendum insist that true Christians will vote against the measure, but proponents say religion has nothing to do with the vote. "I don't believe God is going to keep score," said one.

Carter Attacks Sacred Cow

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Carter attacked a sacred cow and made it stick in Congress, but the battles are yet to come on some of his most important legislation.

The House voted 205-191 Thursday to uphold Carter's veto of a $36.9 billion defense authorization bill, which the president opposed because it contained a $2 billion nuclear supercarrier he didn't ask for.

The win boosted his image, but congressional sources said it also damaged his relations with some lawmakers angered by heavy White House lobbying. In order for Carter to get the $126 billion defense budget he wants, those bridges will have to be rebuilt.

Carter Pal Monitors GSA

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Atlanta lawyer Charles Kirbo, President Carter's close friend and occasional adviser, will monitor the government's investigations of the scandal-ridden the General Services Administration, the White House says.

"The president has asked Mr. Kirbo to help monitor and observe the GSA investigations," Deputy White House Press Secretary Rex Granum said Thursday night. "He will be advising the president on it, indicating the importance the president places on the matter."

Syldheligithaliana

When Howard Jarvis announced his plans to lead a tax revolution nationwide, we wondered if the people were ready to join him at the barricades. We wonder no more. Recent news accounts about a palatial new Senate office building suggest that California's Roberspierre does indeed have a mission in Washington.

The "Mussolini-style palace," as Sen. John H. Chagee, R-R.I., described it, is a boondoggler's boondoggle made to order for Mr. Jarvis.

It will cost the taxpayers $200 million, according to Sen. Chafee. That figure would put it in the Guinness "Book of World Records" as the most expensive government office building ever created in the United States, or anywhere else.

Ironically, this opulent monument to senatorial privilege is to be named for one of humanity's least assuming beings, Philip A. Hart, the late Democratic senator from Michigan. It matters not that the senators already occupy two other huge office buildings and part of the Capitol building itself. But these stately ac-commodations lack the Roman luxuries an unbridled Senate can vote itself. Such as: Two private bathrooms in each senatorial suite; 16-foot-high ceilings with teak and cherry wood paneling, which alone cost $1.5 million; a marble atrium, a tennis court, a gymnasium, s roof-top restaurant and a two-story "multimedia" room for televised hearings.

Not all senators, of course, go along with this "galling symbol of congressional arrogance," as Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., described it. Indeed, a small band of the noblest attempted to kill the extravagant project the other day, only to be voted down almost two to one.

Speaking bravely for the prevailing and largely silent majority, Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., warned the Senate it would appear idiotic if it stopped construction after already spending $16 million on groundwork and girders (less than one (year's interest on the cost)

Ordinarily, as any taxpayer should know, this would have ended all hope that prudence might

But a truly remarkable thing happened — a real miracle took place in the wonderful world of Washington, D.C. On Aug 17, the House of Representatives rose up in wrath, defied ancient tradition, and voted to stop the Senate project by a solid 245 to 153.

The final decision is very much in the air.

The House's impudent veto infuriated Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd: "When we get into the business of tit for tat, it could go from bad to

Head Start is a program designed to broaden the pre-school experience of culturally deprived children from low-income families to prepare them for formal education.

Things were running smoothly until late last Spring. "An impactor from Atlanta came down and told us we are operating with inadequate floor space," says Asel Q. Brooke's Toughest Battle

BOSTON (NEA) — When Massachusetts voters go to the polls on Sept. 19, it is just possible that the fate of the nation's only black U.S. ator will depend on the weather.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke is — quite openly and fervently — "praying for sunshine" on primary day. The hard-core conservatives backing the GOP opponent, radio talk-show host Avi Neisen, would go to the polls in a blissard. His own apporters, especially "the old folks," might not.

The fact is that Ed Brooke is going to need more than mere fair weather friends to win a

As one of the Senate's most liberal Republicans, he was a natural target for a primary challenge from the right. Republican Party regulars, both here and nationally, shudder at the thought of ousting the GOP's one and only black member of Congress. But the "new right" conservatives have no such com-punction and, led by direct mail wisard Richard Viguerie, they are pouring money and men-power into the Nelson campaign. They have already accord one upset this year,

Unlike Case, Brooke has no age problem to worry about. But he has something at least as hard — a lingering personal finances scandal that exploded into public view when his divorce settlement temporarily fell apart earlier this summer and his own daughter leaked the details

It looks now as though Brooks will probably escape any official mactions, either in Massachusetts or in the Senate, where the othics ittee is not expected to act on his case until after the Sept. 19 primary. But the whole flap not only gave Republican voters a possible reason to desert the senator, i also prompted a last-minute stampede o cratic entrants in the Senate race. The three leading contenders going into the stretch run appear to be liberal Rep. Paul Tsongas, Secretary of State Paul Guzzi and member of the Seminole County School Board, provided a poor example of a public official's commitment to the public

Filled with inaccuracies, Mr. Feather's letter shows the danger of relying on second-hand information instead of gathering one's information first-hand. Mr. Feather states he does not feel that collective bargaining for public employees is in the best interest of the taxpayer. Mr. Feather has not, to my knowledge, ever even attended a negotiations session between the board's team and any group of employees since bergaining commenced

What Mr. Feather needs to learn is that collective bargaining was devised to resolve conflict without the withholding of services. Most public employees only realize too well that they are tied to the tax dollar. They do not want a strike or a slow down, only a decent treatment at the bargaining table.

The record of unfair labor practices filed with the Public Employees Relations Commission show dramatically how public employers, such as the school board of Seminole County, have resisted the true intent of the collective bargaining law by using every devise to prolong negotiations, raise frustration levels and then blame all the ills of society on unionism. Inaccurate pronouncements to th power. Let's look at Mr. Feather's faulty Mr. Feather states the Executive Director of the Seminole Education Association, acting as chief negotiator for the Clerical Association, was fired, enabling a contract to be settled. The truth is that Mr. Gene Grooms, the person in question, has not been fired and is still the chief negotiator for the Clerical Association. Mr. Cowley, the Board's personal design.

negotiator, met with a group of cierical employees who were not the legitimate negotiations team for the Clerical Association and settled a contract. This kind of unothical "backdoor" behavior initiated the filing of unfair labor practices against the school board and the filing of a suit in circuit court on alleged Sunshine violations regarding this settlement. Can Mr. Feather really be proud of his negotiator in this situation?

has never surfaced. The Board from teacher salaries in June to pressure teachers into a settlement; yet their own negotiators refused to discuss salary until after teachers returned to work on Aug. 21. Coupled with the Board team's inability to meet with the frequency required to accomplish a contract settlement, it becomes clear to those who attended negotiations sessions who really is prolonging them. The SEA's team, epresenting all teachers, does not receive any pay for their efforts, as opposed to the Board's salaried chief negotiator and supplemented team members. The SEA's team had no salaries to justify through prolonged negotiations. Last week the one salary proposes received by the SEA's team from the Board was a four hundred dollar increase, a 4.6 percent increase which would raise the starting teacher salary to $9,100 dollars a salary in the lower incomo range. Administrators just received an increase of $12 dellars, bringing their base just sky of $1,000 dellars. The SEA is saking for 9,522 dollars as a starting salary.

Mr. Feather neglects to mention in his letter the other dozen concerns involving class sizes and curriculum that are still unresolved. It is very convenient to make the money appear as the only concern of Seminele teachers; however, class sizes and input into the educational system are not secondary concerns that teachers feel should be easily compromised. Providing While escalating taxes haunt all of us, portraying Seminole teachers as "money hungry" or unwilling to accept "generous raise," is simply a distortion of the truth. Teachers in Florida have the distinction of practicing their profession in a state where their salaries rank over three-thousand dollars less than the national average. Teachers in Seminole County desire a decent living wage, acceptable working conditions, and input into the system of which they are the resident experis.

If Mr. Feather put his energies into researching his information personally, perhaps the gap of trust that exists between teachers and the School Board could

And while undefeated seasons are hardly on the minds of Seminole County's head high school football coaches, don't try and convince those rabid boosters of these local teams that even the moon isn't within reach.

Football returns with full strength tonight with games on five fronts — Seminole facing Spruce Creek in Daytona Beach's Memorial Stadium, Lyman hosting Orlando Boone, Lake Brantley taking a short jaunt to Apopka, Lake Howell home against Orlando Bishop Moore and Oviedo hitting the road to Leesburg.

Yaz Worn, Admits It

BOSTON (UPI) — The crow's-feet around Carl Yastrzemski's eyes, those tiny lines that sometimes serve as a measure of the weariness inside a man's body and soul, seem to get a little deeper

He's 39, looks it, and felt even older yet after Thursday night's 15-3 Yankee shellshocker that shrunk the Red Sox' lead to three games and turned this city, a long-established seat of culture, into something more of a mausoleum.

Yas appears worn and tired and admits he is.

As the Grand Old Man of the Red Sox, their elder statesman in his 18th season, Yastrzemski has been through this same nerve-wearing, high-voltage attustion many other Septembers before, so this is nothing new for him.

Being used as their designated hitter by the Red Sox with a protective cast around the left wrist he injured last month. Yastaremaki goes about his work without complaining about his physical condition. Sometimes they make it, as they did in 1967 and 1975, but more eften they don't. To make it again this time, there's no question they need Yastraemski's reassuring presence as much as they need his artistic bat.

A perfect illustration of that took place in a series at Baltimore sariier this week. In Tuesday night's contest, the one in which Jim Palmer beat the Red Sox 4-1, Jim Rice struck out twice on 3-and-2 pitches, swinging at bad balls both times in his over-eagerness.
"Don't tall him this until they (the Red Sex) leave town, but someone ought to let Rice know he doesn't have to carry their whole ball club," Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver said to one Boston writer after that game. "There's nothing wrong with getting a base on balls. Ted Williams walked a hundred and fifty times one year. The reason Rice deem't have to carry the ball club is because he has a man named Yastrasmaki behind him."

The following night, with Dennis Martines pitching for the Orioles, Rice came up with one out in the aventh inning and the count must be head? again. Martines came in with a slider that count went to 3-and-2 again. Martines came in with a slider that was a little low and Rice took it, drawing a base on balls. Yastrasmaki followed with his 12th homor, winning the ball game for

Networks: $730 Million For '78

UP1 Television Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) - The new television season may seem like more of the same old trivia to critical viewers, but there's nothing trivial about the cost — a conservatively estimated $730 million for the three network

That conservative estimate comes from a Broadcasting magazine, a trade publication of the industry. It sounds like big money until you read the latest report from the Television Bureau of Advertising, which says that the nation's 100 top national advertisers spent $4.3 billion on natwork and anot time in 1977

The $730 million figure pays for 61 series and eight weekly two-hour movie programs, and represents a 20 percent increase over last year. The most expensive of the 1978-79 series — not counting movies, big events and specials — is ABC's "Battlestar Galactica." It opens Sept. 21 with a three-hour episode that cost about $3 million. The "Galactica's" maiden voyage for 1978-79 comes to an estimated $570.000. 1978-79 comes to an estimated $570,000.

What the viewer will get for somebody else's money is an imitation "Star Wars" with a little bit of everything else thrown in from the Bible to "Bonanza," in the person of Lorne Greene.

The Galactican's trek among the stars begins after the destardly Cylon Centurians attack their homeland. Their destination is the legendary planet Earth that their ancestors once colonized in the almost forgotten past.

It is the hope of all concerned that the journey will take season after television season to reach its goal, with producer John Dykstra — special effects guru of "Star Wars" — dazzling the audience with technical marvels as Greene and company so where no man has some before company go where no man has gone before, except maybe Capt. Kirk and the crew of the starship Enterprise.

Runners up in the high cost category, according to Broadcasting, are ABC's "Starsky & Hutch" at $455,000, and "Wonderful World of Disney" (NBC) and "Charlie's Angels" (ABC)

Down at the bottom of the list, least expensive of the hourlong series, are two documentaries - work carries a price tab of $200,000, while CBS'

"60 Minutes" not only is one of the best shows on prime time but the cheapest, costing about $170,000. Truth may not be stranger than fiction, but it's cheaper.

While more than half of the season's hour shows will cost $400,000 or more, of the new series only "Galactica," the aptly named "Vega$," "Paper Chase" and "Mary" (as in Mary Tyler Moore) rank in that price range.

Of those "Vega$" is an action advanture. Of those, "Vega$" is an action-adventure series that is more likely to find favor in the ratings than with the critics; classy adaptation from the movie by the same name about the troubles of Ivy League law students, with John Houseman repeating his role as Prof. Kingsfield, and "Mary" is the new comedy-variety vehicle for Miss Moore.

The rest of the new entry list are in the under-$400,000 price range, which reflects the comparative anonymity of their stars. Expect hits to cost more next year.

Among the half-hour comedies, the most expensive is "All In The Family, coming in at an estimated $290,000, followed by "Happy Days" at $275,000 and "Laverne & Shirley" at $260,000. The most costly of the newcomers are ABC's "Taxi," about the amusing foibles and troubles of New York cab drivers, and NBC's "Waverly Wonders" starring Joe Namath, each of which carries an estimated price tag of $200,000. For carries an estimated price tag of $200,000. For comparison, that's also what "Rhoda" costs."

What many believe is the most like half-hour comedy to make it this season, "WKRP in Cincinnati," adds up to $190,000, which is also the price on "Carter Country," "Mork and Mindy" (about a visitor from the planet Ork), and "What's Happening." "What's Happening."

The people paying the price tag are the advertisers, and judging from last year's dollar figures from the Television Bureau of Advertising, they are more than willing. The reason is simple: in an average day, television reaches 86 percent of all homes that own sets, and that means almost every household in America. And television's reach leaps to 95 percent for the week.

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: I was wondering if you would tell me about Lance Kerwin, who plays James Hunter on "James At 16." How old is he? MICHAELLE FARMER, Henderson, Tex.

Kerwin has always been about a year older than the character he plays. He is currently 17, and will be 18 in November. The series has been axed by NBC and will not be back. My own opinion is that one reason it failed was because of miscasting. Kerwin is a good actor, but he just wasn't right for the part, and his cronies were badly cast, too. It threw the series all out of

DEAR DICK: Why is "The Gong Show" still on the air? I think it is a stupid show. Would you please tell me what the ratings are? STEPHEN KUKUCHA, New Westminster, B.C., Can.

"The Gong Show" is designed to be stupid. That is its appeal. The producers think the public enjoys watching numbskulls making fools of themselves. The show is syndicated, so that the ratings vary from city to city. It does well some places and not so well other places. I'd give it the gong myself.

DEAR DICK: Could you please find out whatever became of Charles Starrett, who made a series of "Durango Kid" westerns. Why have I never seen any of these movies on TV? Also, what happened to Bill Elliott who made westerns during the same period. HOWARD RANDOL. Glendora, Calif.

Starrett is 74 years old, and retired, He doesn't do much riding and roping anymore. Wild Bill Elliott died in 1965. As for those old westerns being on TV, them days are gone forever. Maybe once in a while, as a historic relic, one might be revived, but that's all. They just are too old, too primitive to provide entertainment today. Let them ride into the sunset.

DEAR DICK: When I watched the All-Star baseball game, they gave the address to which you could send for a program of the game. But I could not catch the address. Could you give it to me? K.N., Atlanta, Ga. Write to: All-Star Game Programs, P.O. Box

DEAR DICK: Why did they take "Emergency One" off the air? I really liked that show and I thought it was good because it showed how to treat injured and sick people. Please tell me why they took it off. LISA STEPHENS, Michigan

"Emergency One" is the syndicated version of the old "Emergency!" series. That means that a local station, such as yours, buys a package of those shows and runs it until the package is finished. So the decision on whether to show the package again or drop it is up to your station. Presumably, if the ratings are good, they show it again. If not, they don't.

Casselberry Brothers Solomon: Make Their Move(s)

Chess an old man's game? "That is a misconception," according to the Solomon brothers — Mark, 19, and Eric, 18, of Casselberry. And they should know.

The sons of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Solomon of 6 Bayberry Branch Road, they were introduced to the game at an early age The senior Solomon does not play tournament chess, but ! happened to have a plastic set around the house.

Mark has been playing tournament chess since 1973 when he was 14 and Eric started in 1974. Because it takes so much stamine and concentration to endure the long, graeling hours of tournament play, youth actually has an idvantage in taking on the aging chees experts, the beys pointed

A case in point was the Florida Open Chees Championship held ever the Laber Day weekend at Florida Technological University. A single game lasted for eight hours and tournament play opened Friday night and ended late Monday night, beginning at § a.m. and sometimes not ending until midnight.

Mark was co-director for the tournament and was instrumental in having it held in this area after hatel strikes caused problems in the Tampa - It. Petersburg area where it was originally slated to

While Viktor Korchnol and world champion Anatoly Karpov concentrate on chess tournament in the Philippines, Eric Solomon (left) and brother, Mark, concentrate on their game, in proparation for their own upcoming tournaments. Karchnol and Karpov are vying for $350,000; Eric Solomon came close Labor Day weekend to winning money, too: $350 at the Florida Open Chess Championships at Florida Technological University.
