Cochrane Says Plans Had Been Made To Strengthen Craft Along Its Girders

LAKEHURST, Apr. 12. (A.P.)—Lieutenant-Commander Edwin Cochrane, assembly and repair officer at the naval air station, told the naval hearing today that plans had been made to strengthen the ship's structure in the area in which two of the survivors said they saw two longitudinal girders break. One of the girders was to have been strengthened on completion of the last flight, he said.

A picture of the mammoth dirigible Akron dropping through darkness with its bow up at an angle of 35 degrees and hitting the water with a crash "like stepping on a penny box of matches" was given to the naval court of inquiry yesterday.

With the picturesque words of a sailor, Moody Erwin, aviation metal-smith, second class, told the story of the flight that cost 73 lives.

The slender Erwin was one of three survivors of the disaster in the Atlantic off New Jersey a week ago last Monday night. He followed two of his superior officers, the others left alive, in the witness chair.

Erwin joined Richard E. Dahl, boatwain, in telling of the breaking of longitudinal girders and the steps which both described as "the worst part of the flight." Both they had seen girders pull toward the starboard to pull the bow and Erwin estimated the angle was about 35 degrees.

Both, too, testified the first break in the structure of the ship came in the air after the gust they described. Whereas Lieut. Commander E. Y. Wiley, the third survivor, changing his opinion, said the ship's framework did not break until the Akron struck the water.

The break described by the two enlisted men was in longitudinal girders running lengthwise.

Robinson Describes Roosevelt Work As Unique In History

WASHINGTON, Apr. 12.—(A.P.)—In the nearest thing to an old fashioned political debate in the Senate has been this session, Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, yesterday characterized President Roosevelt's record of accomplishment as the greatest in the history of the nation.

Aroused by what he denounced as "unfair" criticism of the President by Senators Lodge (R., Ind.) and Robinson (R., Ind.), the Arkansas senator took the floor to uphold the Administration.

His speech drew from the Indiana Robinson a warm attack on the President for sponsoring the economy bill, and an assertion from Long that he was "advancing" rather than "criticizing" the Chief Executive.

Long's remarks, which Robinson took exception, were chiefly directed at "President Roosevelt's forest conservation bill, which he called 'a sapling bill, a sapucuker's bill.'"

"There are more people out of work than when he went into the White House," Long said of Roosevelt, "and more banks are closed."

The Democratic leader vigorously defended the administration's handling of the banking situation and asserted that President Hoover had refrained from closing the banks until business could not reach an agreement with the incoming administration on the length of time they should remain closed.

"It is grossly unfair," Robinson declared, "to charge the President with responsibility for the existing banking situation. The former President contemplated issuing an order closing down the banks and only refrained because no agreement could be reached with the incoming administration for the length of time it should last."

The Arkansas senator said that despite criticism, the President had "led in the accomplishment of more during the four weeks he has been in office than has any President in the history of this country."

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION REQUESTS EARLY CLOSING OF STORES SATURDAY

The Sanford Protestant Ministers Association today made an appeal to the merchants of Sanford that they close their business houses early enough on Saturday to permit not only their employees and their customers, but themselves to enjoy a "reasonable" night rest.

Rev. F. M. Marler, secretary of the Association who brought the following copy of a letter sent to all merchants today to the Herald office, said that instances have been reported where employees have had to work as late as 3:00 o'clock Sunday morning because the store closed so near midnight.

"To the Merchants of Sanford, Sanford, Florida,
"Dear Sirs:
"We are writing this letter to you to respectfully request your consideration and action on the following proposition: Namely, that the stores of Sanford adopt a uniform closing hour on Saturday evening, some reasonably early hour, such as ten or ten-thirty o'clock, and then allow the clerks to get home at least by 11 o'clock.

TARIFF POLICY OF AMERICA IS TOLD BY HULL

New Plan Calculated To Help Industries Not To Hinder Them, States Secretary

WASHINGTON, Apr. 12.—(A.P.)—America's new tariff policy is to be launched during the forthcoming conversations with leading world statesmen was set forth today by Secretary Hull.

Intended to destroy no sound industries in this country but rather to establish them on a more prosperous basis.

At the same time, the secretary of state emphasized anew that regardless of whether the representative and several nations are in Washington at the same time, the government proposes to converse with them separately.

In the face of reports of dissatisfaction among the smaller nations as to not being included among invited to send special representatives, Secretary Hull said he had not yet had opportunity to consider the matter of extending the list of invitations.

He pointed out that all countries would be given full opportunity to join the discussions through their regular diplomatic representatives here.

Going further into the matter of a new tariff policy aimed at reviving international trade, Hull characterized an antiquated, obsolete and bewildering contention which he said had been raised first some 60 years ago that the result would be to flood the country with the products of cheap foreign labor to the detriment of the American workman.

He remarked that persons taking this view should go out and look at the 178,000,000 bushels of wheat which have been grown in the United States under the operation of the highest tariff in American history.

For every dollar of curtailment of American imports, Hull told reporters that from $9 to $5 of goods which might have been exported are held within the country.

When asked about reports that the Japanese expect to discuss the Manchurian situation in their conversations with Roosevelt, Hull emphasized that the discussions as conceived here will be concerned primarily with economic matters.

WHEAT CROP INCREASES BY $3,500,000

CHICAGO, Apr. 12.—(A.P.)—American wheat farmers found their crop value increased approximately $3,500,000 yesterday through a jump of 1 cent to 8 1/2 cents a bushel in the price of wheat on the board of trade on the opening transaction.

It was the trade's answer to the government crop report, issued Monday, forecasting a wheat crop smaller than any since 1904. It was also a reply to reports from Washington that there would be no official interference with grain prices.

Based on official figures showing 178,000,000 bushels of wheat in bins on farms in the United States, each cent of the advance increased the net value of wheat $1,780,000.

The official estimate of the size of the wheat crop was 334,000,000 bushels in excess of the crop harvested in 1904. Last year's harvest was 462,000,000 bushels.

Shaw Arrives In New York And Breaks All Rules For Visiting Notables In U. S.

NEW YORK, Apr. 12.—(A.P.)—George Bernard Shaw came to America's metropolis for the first time yesterday—and within an hour he had broken all rules for arriving celebrities.

The skyline of towering stone and steel skyscrapers interested him so little he refused to walk a few feet across the ship to take a peek. The formality of being interviewed by newspaper and magazine writers interested him so little he branded himself "deaf and dumb for the moment," and went on with his "monstrous."

He even got out of the government-imposed formality of standing in line and submitting to a customs examination—the officers went to his stateroom and finished his business with him there.

This was his sole message—a reply to a note sent to him by a group of reporters anxious for his opinion on things in general and New York in particular:

"The New York press may return to its firesides and nurse the baby until tomorrow morning, except the enterprising scotch which came on board at Havana and discussed everything with me for an hour and 40 minutes.

"Today I am in training for the Metropolitan opera house tonight and may be regarded as deaf and dumb for the moment. My regrets and apologies."

An enterprising representative of the steamship company had anticipated Shaw's refusal to be interviewed and had prepared a long printed resume of the playwright's opinions on this and that.

"I never said that; there's nothing to it," was Shaw's comment when asked if the opinion actually had been expressed by him.

In this printed "interview," he was quoted as saying:

"I find Americans extraordinarily interesting, but they have not done anything yet to justify my interest."

"When the United States takes the job it will go much farther than Russia. We slip into communism. If you put a stop to communism in New York you would do it within a week. Already you have communism. Your street light and power systems are all examples."

"We must break up this wave of reckless driving," he said, "for we are having entirely too many wrecks. Fortunately, no one has been seriously injured, but there have been dozens of accidents bordering on the serious. We have decided to forego further warning, and we will act at once."

The official estimate of the size of the wheat crop was 334,000,000 bushels in excess of the crop harvested in 1904. Last year's harvest was 462,000,000 bushels.

The opening yesterday, which at the finish ranged from 1 5/8 to 2 3/8 cents a bushel on wheat, carried the September delivery to 82 1/2 cents, a bushel. This is an advance of 6 cents in the last week and 10 cents since Mar. 28.

Since Mar. 3, the day before the inauguration of President Roosevelt, wheat prices have been higher. There have been reactions, some of them stable, but the general trend has been upward.

Taking the low, on Mar. 2 as the base, wheat prices have scored a gain of 14 1/2 cents a bushel, nearly 50 percent on the September delivery.

Taking the estimated supplies of wheat yet on farms, 178,000,000 bushels, and using 14 cents a bushel as the average rise for all grades and options, American wheat growers are today worth approximately $25,000,000 more than they were on Mar. 2.

During the same period, the price of wheat for immediate delivery on the cash market, has risen almost 20 cents a bushel, or nearly 45 percent.

Roosevelt Scores Existing Warfare In South America

Eugene Meyer Resigns As Governor Of Federal Reserve Body; Successor SoUGHT

WASHINGTON, Apr. 12.—(A.P.)—Existing warfare in South America was condemned today by President Roosevelt as a "backward step" in speech commemorating Pan-American Day.

The President proposed that American governments initiate individual steps promptly to "abolish all unnecessary and artificial barriers and restrictions which now hamper the healthy flow of trade between people of the American republics."

Eugene Meyer resigned as governor of the federal reserve board, it was learned today, and the President is looking for his successor. He informed Roosevelt he desired to return to private business.

The Senate agricultural committee gave speedy approval to the Norris bill to carry out the President's recommendations for development of the Tennessee valley and the government operation of Muscle Shoals.

The state department announced that notes have been sent to all nations having diplomatic missions in Washington which have not been invited to send special representatives to talk economics with President Roosevelt inviting them to exchange views through diplomatic channels.

BALL LEAGUE TO OPEN ITS SEASON WITH 4 MEMBERS

Directors Of Association Will Hold Final Meeting Tonight

Unless groups of DeLand and New Smyrna baseball fans who have not been contacted with regard to their sponsorship of a baseball club appear at a final meeting of directors of the Central Florida Baseball League tonight, the league will open its 1933 season next Sunday with but four clubs.

J. T. Hogan, of Orange City, president of the league, and Pete Schaal, Sanford, secretary, have for the past several weeks been endeavoring to line-up teams from DeLand and New Smyrna. At one time, both cities were almost ready to enter teams, but for various reasons, most of them having to do with finances, nothing definite has been forthcoming.

However, assurance was given that every effort will be made to recruit teams in time to have them enter the league when the second half begins on July 6.

In the opinion of Secretary Schaal, the 1932 DeLand team which broke away from the Central Florida League and entered the Northeast Florida League this year, will regret its action within a month, and will seek entrance in the Central Florida League again.

"It is inconceivable that today's strong DeLand club with a payroll that is bound to be large considering the class of players lined up," Mr. Schaal said, "will be a financial success. Those long jumps to Jacksonville, St. Augustine and Gainesville will use up most of the home game profits. In my opinion, while some fans can hardly be expected to attend Northeast League games in such large numbers as last year when a crowd of 500 was common, I look for DeLand back in the fold in a few weeks."

Central Florida Baseball League fans will not lack action this year, in the opinion of President Hogan who considers that the addition of Orlando, always a good baseball town, will give a great stimulant. "I don't think there are four better baseball towns in all Florida than are Orlando, Daytona Beach, Sanford, and Cocoa," he said, "and all are within 60 miles of each other. I expect the league to be twice as fast as it was last year despite the fact that many of the outstanding players have gone to other clubs. They'll be back, I predict."

Tonight's meeting will be held at the City Hall at 8:00 o'clock. Election of 1933 officers, adoption of the first half schedule, election of umpires, and depositing of franchise monies constitute the business of the evening. The meeting is open only to league directors and two other representatives of the four clubs.

FINAL ADVICE GIVEN PUBLIC ON ELECTION

The polls will open throughout the county at 8:00 o'clock tomorrow morning. Approximately 3603 persons are qualified to vote in 14 precincts between that hour and 6:20 o'clock which is considered as sundown. The same building or room used as a polling place in November will be available to the voters tomorrow, and in most cases the clerks will be the same. A final appeal to the voters is contained in short statements released this afternoon by each of the candidates and reprinted here-with:

FRANK KAY ANDERSON, who lives on a farm three miles from Altamonte Springs. He is a native Floridian, 49 years of age, with a public school education augmented by a period of study at the University of Chicago. He is editor of "The Citrus Industry" magazine printed at Tampa, and is head of the company, which also publishes other trade papers and the Polk County Democrat at Bartow. He has represented state citrus interests at Washington and Tallahassee, and has never held public office except honorary appointments in non-remunerative positions.

Mr. Anderson was a candidate for the office in the 1932 June primary, and he was defeated by the late Judge White by a close margin after three other announced candidates had withdrawn. Mr. Anderson has always been identified with Democratic party activities.

W. R. DUPREE, in his final appeal said: "Friends of Sanford and Seminole County, as our esteemed Governor would say, I have told my story concerning the state needs and that being my first story, I still stick to it. I have lived in Sanford and Seminole County for 12 years, and have always voted the Democratic ticket (despite political rumors. I have always dealt four-square with my fellow man. For further references, ask any business man in Sanford or this this county with whom I have dealt.

Continuing, Mr. Dupree concluded with "I will support and work for the 11 point platform of the statewide Taxpayers Association which stands for the abolition of all boards, bureaus, and commissions that can be consolidated without impairing the efficiency of our government. There are over 1000 taxpayers in this county that have signed a petition asking for this relief that is now on file, and over 150,000 members of the statewide Association. I also stand for the 17 points in the League of Municipalities program which offers the greatest relief for our cities and their over bonded indebtedness. It is understood that I stand for saving your homes and promoting efficiency in education, and I do not think that all the frills should be cut from the school system."

C. W. ENTZMINGER, who has resided at Longwood since 1905, said "I want to first endorse the economy program 100 percent. If possible, without impairing efficiency, cut deeper. My position on public schools seems to have been scrambled by those that see fit to differ with me. I have always stood four-square for our public damage but no one was hurt. Police are without clues.

schools. The only point of difference seems to be the difference in the method of attack. I stand firmly for giving every boy and girl, regardless whether they live in the city or back in the sticks, the most thorough training possible, up to and including the 8th grade. I am so firmly grounded in this belief that I would stand by it to the last ditch should our taxpayers become so impoverished that that is all we could do. I would say make or lose stand for the boy and girl to that extent.

"There has been so much said about the schools of higher learning and the useless frills, that I do not believe it is necessary to say more," he said, "for the public seems to be almost unanimously of the opinion that the hard-pressed taxpayer has got to have relief if he is to save his home and the shelter over his little family. To do this everyone will admit that all unnecessary activities should be eliminated. The tax dollar is a sacred trust, and should not be collected during time of stress for any purpose except essentials. This was my policy during the 13 years I served as one of your county commissioners."

W. B. WILLIAMS, former city manager who has resided at Oviedo for several years, made the following final statement: "In my canvass over the county I have not had time to meet all of the voters, and I take this method of addressing you. The people want economy and tax reduction; they have some hopes of getting relief through the present Legislature. They are encouraged by the action of the National Government.

"As for my acts, I am mindful of the depressed condition of our people, and I will do everything possible to lighten their burden. To do so I am for tax reduction, salary slash of 25 to 40 percent for state and county officials, placing county offices on a reasonable and hard-time salary basis, abolishing and consolidating unnecessary offices, for a real reduction in the price of auto tags, and for repeal of the penalty clause, for exemption of homes from tax, up to a reasonable amount, and when present contracts are completed, I favor a road building holiday for the State Road Department, and I am for the re-va-

Otis Curry Will Play For Ocala Club This Season

Joe Barnes, manager of the Sanford entry in the Central Florida Baseball League, yesterday afternoon announced that Otis Curry, right-hander who played a prominent part in the team's victories last year, has decided to cast his lot with Ocala in the Northeast Florida League this year.

Curry was reported as having agreed to play here, but last week he was made an offer by heads of the Ocala club, and he accepted. Barnes announced that he had signed in Curry's place, a right-hander named J. P. Holt, youngster who hurled for Clearwater in the West Coast League last year and former member of the Macon club in the Southeastern League. Holt arrived Sunday and looked impressive in workouts, according to Barnes.

Charlie Abbott, young Pensacola infielder of whom much is expected both at bat and in the field, has also arrived and is ready for Sunday's opening game at Ocala. Barnes believes Abbott to be one of the strongest batters he will have on the club this year. He attempted to secure Abbott last year, but the youngster did not wish to leave his home at that time.

The club is absolutely ready for the inaugural Barnes said. "I don't think we'll need any more players for some time," he said when asked whether he is satisfied with his charges. "With the exception of third base position which we are looking for Eddie Moore to fill just as soon as college is over, the team as it now stands looks good to me. We have Minor, Holt and Dennis as pitchers. Chapman back of the plate. Sherry Malby at second, Abbott at short, and Higgins at third, at Hamilton, Newcomb, and one of the pitchers in the outfield. In addition there are several other youngsters who are ready to help us out if necessary."

Liberals Haven't Reason To Regret Action, Says Hays

NEW YORK, Apr. 11.—(AP)—Arthur Garfield Hays, general counsel for the American Civil Liberties union, in a prepared address Sunday night, declared the liberals "have had no reason to regret" whatever election support they contributed to President Roosevelt.

"The development of fascism in Germany and Italy," he said, "naturally causes fear of that development here. The responsibility for these new economic plans (of the Roosevelt administration) put tremendous power in the hands of the executive. But it must be remembered that the executive has that power only so long as Congress wills it, and that power given can at any time be taken away. . . . With men of the liberal views of those in the Roosevelt administration there probably is no danger. . . .

"It may well be that as society becomes more complicated the government must exercise more and more power in order to assure a fairer distribution of wealth. The theory of the 'new deal' seems to be that capitalism is effective as a productive instrument; that we have solved the problem of scarcity; and that the present difficulty is so to train

WHAT IS HAPPENING TO YOU?
If you are one of those who are trying to get along without telephone service, a number of things are likely happening that may directly influence the welfare of yourself and family. Friends are probably saying, "I wish Gertrude had a telephone. I'd like to invite them, too." Or, if there are children in the home, they no doubt feel severely the difficulty they have in developing and keeping friendships. Living without the quick, convenient means of communication that a telephone in the home provides often results in loss of many friendly social contacts that play such an important part in happy everyday living. Being without a telephone also deprives you of the means of quick contact with the doctor, the police or the fire department in emergencies. In short, the home without a telephone today is isolated. Ask any telephone employe to explain the party line and other classes of service, or call the telephone office for information.

While legislators are worried about traffic wearing out the highways they ought to do something to keep speeders and drunken drivers from making the highways unsafe.

Now where another important European statesman has gone down to Rome to confer with Mussolini. It has about reached the point where no European can consider himself properly installed in office until he has been down to see Mussolini.

All Florida newspapermen feel a great loss in the death of W. A. Elliott, business manager of the Times-Union. Mr. Elliott capably managed Florida's largest newspaper and his sudden death is a serious blow to journalism in the state.

We have heard so much about "fills" in connection with the schools that we were glad to see a definition of the other day of just what "fills" are. A subscriber writes us that "such 'fills' as manual training, domestic science, music, art and typewriting, should be abolished." We assume, then, that French, Latin, and Ancient History are the more practical courses.

The report that men are slow in smelting in the re-forestation armies lends strength to the assertions of some students of human nature that many unemployed are in reality unemployed because they do not want to work, or at least cannot find exactly the kind of work which appeals to them most. The government is prepared to spend $250,000,000 taking care of some 250,000 persons who will be required only to spend a part of their time planting trees. If they are as hungry as many reports indicate, they should be eager to take advantage of the opportunity.

Of all the deposit guarantee bills which have been proposed in Congress, the Staggall bill is the only one which appeals to us. This measure does not provide for government guarantee, but creates a fund for insuring deposits, raised largely through subscription from the banks themselves. The banks want to guarantee their own deposits, for as the record shows, they are not so sure as they would like to be that the government will guarantee their deposits. The government guarantee is a thing of the past, simply because it is no longer desired during these hard times, and with public confidence in the government at a low ebb, it is not likely to be revived.

Supporters of prohibition would be well advised to remember that as they actively advocate the liquor prohibition, they are also actively opposing the Eighteenth Amendment. It is a fact that the prohibitionists are not so sure as they would like to be that the government will guarantee their deposits. The government guarantee is a thing of the past, simply because it is no longer desired during these hard times, and with public confidence in the government at a low ebb, it is not likely to be revived.

Harry Ward is expected home from Decatur, Ind., tomorrow. He has been away for several weeks on business.

The Gambling Fever

At a meeting of the City Commission Monday night an ordinance was passed prohibiting the sale or possession of lottery tickets within Sanford city limits in an effort to break up a wave of petty gambling which has grown into one of the most evil conditions this city has had to face in several years.

The lure of easy money, in these days of hard times when any money at all is hard to get, has proved an appealing to many persons that they will spend their last dollar on a bolita ticket in the vain hope of making a killing. Police reports indicate that money advanced by the Welfare Board to an unemployed man was used in at least one instance to buy a lottery ticket.

We are reliably informed that scores of negro farm hands working during the height of the season at the lowest wages which have been paid in years, are regular customers of lottery salesmen, too many of whom are frequently selling tickets backed by nothing more tangible than a glib tongue and a lot of hot air. Many of these same negroes will be calling on the Welfare Board or other charity organizations for sustenance before the summer is over.

This rising popularity of lottery tickets is but a natural expression of hard times and human nature. It is the result of the gambling instinct and is confined no more to Sanford than to any other community. Newspaper exchanges indicate that localities all over the country are suffering from the same fever. During the boom, when people had more money they gambled in stocks, real estate and gold bricks.

Now, although the depression has put practically all of us in the dollar-a-year class, the gambling instinct strives desperately to assert itself. Unable to accumulate sufficient funds for more elaborate gambling, bolita and lotteries have their day. Blue Sky laws are passed to prevent stock market speculation after the horse is stolen and gamblers have turned to lotteries.

But lotteries do more harm than stock exchanges. Men gamble in stocks when they have lots of money and can afford to lose. They gamble in lotteries when their funds are low and when such money as they have is needed for the necessities of life. Men who buy stocks on margins are usually suckers, but men who buy lottery tickets with the money for the baby's milk or their wife's bread are, morally, criminals.

The City ordinance will not change human nature or prevent such unjustifiable gambling, but it will give the police something to work on, something with which to drive gangs of operators from the City. It should serve as a check on a fever which is steadily sapping the life blood of the city. And if it is properly supported by all right thinking people, it should prove a material help to local business conditions.

France After Business

Returning Frenchmen to their native land have brought back stories of mounting anti-French feeling in the United States principally based upon France's default of her December war debt payment. Business men of that country fear the unfavorable economic reaction to any widespread ill-will of Americans who are usually big customers of French fineries and large patrons of French resorts.

To overcome this situation the French Chamber of Deputies has voted over a million dollars to prosecute a campaign to build up France's "stock" on this side of the ocean. This effort will be concentrated chiefly in lecturers, writers, radio broadcasts, and in films.

The idea is to procure the services of well known French writers who will contribute to American newspapers and magazines, articles on France aimed to place its people in a better light. Lecturers will be sent over here to spread the gospel of goodwill and to make a favorable impression. In this connection, it might be added, considerable rumpus was raised in the Chamber hall as to the type of men to be dispatched. Insistence was made that these ambassadors of goodwill should not be like those of the past, decrepit, aged, and consumptive-looking individuals, but should be of a young and attractive type.

This French propaganda campaign is reminiscent of the vagaries and fickleness which often away representative governments. When the war debt payments were due in December, the deputies listened to the popular and unintelligent plea of their constituents for default. The saner and sounder people of France, undoubtedly, believed the payment should be met and foresaw the evils of default. But the deputies acted with political expediency and not with prudence.

Now a reaction has set in and the public, constantly reminded by business men, is aware that it was more expensive to default than to pay. Thus the Chamber of Deputies, under pressure from a reversed sentiment, is not only ready to meet its obligation now, but is willing to spend no inconsiderable sum to gain back some of the loss of prestige with its resultant economic kick-back.

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

Fire at noon day before yesterday bursted to the ground the fine home of W. T. Field on the shores of beautiful Lake Ochoa, a few miles south of the city. Every effort of the neighbors and friends of the family failed to check the flames and the strong wind that was blowing at the time made it impossible to get the fire under control.

The Sanford people at Tallahassee are still enjoying themselves and county division court. So a pleasant past time, judging from the smiles, upon the faces of the Harney county men. There is strong talk of calling the new county Seminole, and this may be the name if one of the other county divisions do not claim priority on this name. Seminole has a pleasing sound but to the general public, and the Sanford people in particular there will be nothing in a name. What they want is division first and the name will be a secondary consideration.

TRIBUTE PAID TO LIFE AND CAREER OF J. J. PARRISH

Senator Taylor From Largo Delivers Eulogy To Old Friend

High tribute to the life and career of State Senator J. J. Parrish, of Titusville, was paid in the Florida Senate recently when Senator John S. Taylor, of Largo, an old friend, made an address accompanying the unveiling of a portrait of Senator Parrish, 22nd President of the Senate.

The address was made during a night session in which the memory of every President of the Florida Senate was revered in addresses and the unveiling and subsequent hanging of oil portraits of these distinguished Floridians.

Senator Taylor's address is as follows: "It is indeed a genuine pleasure for me at this time to pay tribute to the life of Honorable J. J. Parrish and it is all the more gratifying to me to do this while my friend, Jesse Parrish, a former President of this body and still one of its honored members, is living.

"Senator Parrish is a native son of Florida. This within itself means little, but when a native son, born back in the 70s when the opportunity for acquiring an education and the chances for getting a start in life were very meager as compared with those that the younger men of our state have enjoyed in more recent years, this makes his accomplishments all the more worthwhile. I feel that when one works out his own career and a worthwhile one such as the accomplishment of Jesse Parrish, it should be recorded among the worthwhile accomplishments in Florida's history that future generations may know that 'where there is a will, a way can be found'."

"Jesse Parrish was born and reared on a farm in South Florida. His father and mother likewise being born in his home state. Most of you know as well as I, that Senator Parrish has had a long and enviable record as a member of the Florida Legislature having served four terms in the House and is now entering upon his third term in the Senate, that he has always discharged his duties of this high office with credit to himself and with a desire to be of real service to the people of his county and district as well as of all the citizenship of Florida. He has been responsible for the introduction and passage of many important measures in the Florida Legislature, has worked earnestly for what he believed to be for the best interests of the people of his state, and we all know that his accomplishments along this line have been well worthwhile. While being for so many years engaged in this responsible public service he has found time to carry on and make an outstanding success of his own private business and at the same time serving the people of his state in many other worthwhile capacities.

Hitler Regime Turns Eye On Universities

BERLIN, Apr. 12.—(AP)—Chancellor Hitler's regime turned its attention today to whipping higher education in Germany into line. Reorganization of present bodies of universities are inevitable under administrative changes being inaugurated. The new Prussian students code abolishes parliaments and substitutes Nazi discipline.

Strain Of Iceberg Type Of Lettuce Is Declared Success

GAINESVILLE.—A strain of the iceberg type of lettuce which will produce firm heads of good quality under Florida climatic conditions, long sought, is now within the range of possibility, says M. R. Ensign, truck horticulturist at the Florida Experiment Station. If such a strain can be successfully developed, it should restore the lettuce growing industry to the state. Mr. Ensign says that promising strains of lettuce, cabbage, brussels, sprouts and broccoli are now growing under test near Homestead.

In 1922 at Sanford, Mr. Ensign tested 30 strains of lettuce, in cooperation with Prof. A. R. Johnson and vocational agricultural students. Selections of those strains producing the best heads were made. This year at Homestead, in co-operation with Prof. M. A. Baker and vocational agriculture students, seed of the best strains and of the original stock were planted for comparison. Although they were started late, some strains are heading well and giving promise under adverse conditions.

It is planned to propagate part of the seed this summer in Michigan, to see if the strains will stand the heat of summer there. Brussels sprouts also are making a promising growth near Homestead, a 20 acre commercial field being exceptionally satisfactory. Mr. Ensign believes that this may prove to be a splendid addition to the list of vegetables grown in the state, being especially desirable for use in leading mixed cars of Florida produce.

Two strains of savoy and one of red cabbage are particularly free of insects and diseases, and may prove to be important for local markets at this time of year. White broccoli plants also are making remarkably vigorous growth, and are a prospective substitute for cauliflower.

WITNESS TELLS OF WEAKNESS IN DIRIGIBLE

"Not more than three minutes later the stern struck the water," Erwin declared, "and the ship seemed to fall right over."

Then there was a crushing noise, he added "just like someone stepping on a penny box of matches," indicating, he said in answer to a question by Deal that it was the dirigible's capacity.

Solon Defends President From Attack Of Long

(Continued From Page One) been accomplished during comparable periods. Long undertook to attack the President's swift moving legislative program, asserting: "We've swallowed enough of this stuff. We've swallowed this awful banking thing they brought in here hook, line and sinker. We took $100,000,000 from the soldiers and spent $300,000,000 to plant saplings."

"I'm not falling out with the President, but to quote from the Bible, He who slandereth a friend, his eyes should fall from his head."

Referring to reports that the Administration was holding up patronage until the legislative program was out of the way, Long said: "I resent that I'm being held in line by patronage. That isn't what inspired me to go along with the President. As far as I am concerned, they can take all the patronage and go—they can keep it."

"It's up to somebody to go down to the White House and tell the President what's happening. Tell him that the people expect the members of the Federal Reserve board to be put out."

He has not gone the route of the Democratic party unless we put this 30 hour bill in," the Democratic leader replied.

Admiral H. V. Butler, president of the court of the ship was breaking up aft." He said the break-up appeared to be from the forward engine car all the way to the rear.

Erwin began his story by telling how from 11 to 12 he "looked over the elevator."

"During that watch the air was very stable," he said, but added: "It seemed difficult to keep the ball up."

He phrased much of his story in the present. "Then I hear the boatwain mate yell, 'all hands forward,'" he testified. "I hear something snap and looking up I see a 12-inch break in the girder."

Roosevelt Scores Existing Warfare In South America

(Continued From Page One) dissatisfaction among some of the smaller countries which were not under the 11 picked out for special invitations to send their leading statesmen to Washington. The House judiciary committee tabled the McLeod bill under which municipalities could have obtained a 10-year moratorium on their indebtedness.

President Roosevelt looks favorably upon the principles of the 30-hour week bill passed by the Senate but believes considerable elasticity in its provisions will be required for suitable administration.

The compelling force of administrative approval yesterday sped forward legislation to translate into law President Roosevelt's vision of a vast Tennessee River basin development encompassing the government's valuable Muscle Shoals property.

Swiftly, closely allied bills were introduced in the House and Senate. They were the first to be introduced in the House since the House military committee had held the first of brief hearings designed to send the plan to the floor by the week-end.

The veteran Senator Norris (R., Neb.), whose name long years of effort have linked inseparably with the principle of government operation of Muscle Shoals, sponsored the Senate bill to accomplish this end. It went to the agriculture committee for early consideration.

In the House, Chairman McSwain (S. C. D.), of the military committee, introduced a very similar bill, which immediately was made the subject of the afternoon hearing.

Both measures embody the principles for Tennessee Valley development outlined Monday by President Roosevelt. Also they headed the Chief Executive's estimate that "it is time to extend planning" and would authorize him to make surveys and recommendations for "fostering an orderly and proper physical, economic and social development" of the basin and adjoining territory.

Briefly, the bills would: Create a Tennessee River authority of the United States administered by three directors appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate.

Entrust this authority with the Muscle Shoals property and clothe it with tremendous powers to operate and manage the plant including the use, if necessary, of government's right to command land.

Directs the board to operate the nitrate power plants, to sell surplus power, giving preference to build power transmission lines to build over transmission lines.

Directs the construction of the Cove Creek dam on the Clinch River in Tennessee, a project army engineers have estimated would cost $4,000,000.

Directs payment to Tennessee and Alabama of five percent of the gross proceeds from sales of surplus power generated in the respective states.

The difference between the Norris and McSwain bills was not of a major character. Whereas both would direct the experimental production of new fertilizers at the nitrate plants and the co-operation with farm organization for their large scale use, the McSwain bill further would direct the quantity production of commercial fertilizers.

The McSwain bill would authorize an immediate $10,000,000 appropriation, $2,000,000 for beginning that it was impossible at once to "make all the corrections that ought to be made, to eliminate from office all whose removal might contribute to improvement and put into effect all the measures called for by the party's platform."

"I doubt whether any man has ever given more thought and service, drawn more on his health, for the public welfare, than has Franklin D. Roosevelt," Robinson said. "Late at night, bright and early in the morning, he is at work. He may have made mistakes, but he has done wonderful work and is doing wonderful work. For God's sake, let us up hold his hand."

30-Hour Week Is Almost Certain To Become Law

Black made a futile attempt yesterday to get action on the Trammell motion, and a motion went over until after the Senate completes the farm bill.

Senator Long, of Louisiana, took occasion to inquire why the administration had not included the 30-hour week bill in its program. Senator Lewis, Democrat, Illinois, the party whip, replied that while the President might approve the principle of legislation he could not be bound on details subject to revision.

Miss Perkins did not go into detail last night on the modifications she will recommend to the House committee, but there was no doubt these would be directed at making the legislation more flexible.

Black said he had no objections to revisions in this direction and reminded that he had favored some when the bill was before the committee.

"I will predict," he added, "that the legislation will be passed, and signed by President Roosevelt." It is understood the modifications to be suggested by Miss Perkins will include a range of longer hours for some industries, according to necessities.

"I endorse the principle of the 30-hour week," said Miss Perkins. "I do favor some changes in the legislation to make it more workable."

Secretary Roper added his assent to endorsement of the 30-hour week principle.

Lee Tracy Stars In Newspaper Picture

"Clear All Wires," adapted from the New York stage hit, is even more sensational, more spectacular, and funnier on the talking screen. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's talk picture, with Lee Tracy in the role of the fascinating Buckley Joyce Thoms, news correspondent, continually in hot water, is the attraction now playing at the Milano Theater.

Tracy steals his employer's chorus girl sweetie and takes her to Moscow where he's to "cover" the Red Army. He gets fired for it, tries to stage a supposed killing of a prince to get back on the payroll, falls afoul of the secret police, can't escape all his pursuing women, and one way and another is in a fine pickle when a newspaperwoman who really loves him gets him out of his countless and complicated situations.

Benita Hume, British star making her American debut, is charming and a superb little actress as the newspaperwoman. Irresistible comedy is contributed by Una Merkel and James Gleason, and C. Henry Gordon scores as the menacing police commissar. Alan Edwards, Lya Lys, Lawrence Grant and Guy Lohar are excellent in minor roles, and three new members of the original New York cast, Art Kutzel, Eugene Sigeloff and John Melvin Blaffer, distinguish themselves in their stage parts.

Dr. Keelor Honored With Buffet Supper

Dr. R. S. Keelor, who plans to leave tomorrow for Philadelphia after spending the winter season here with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Watson, R. O. Flood Battlers Are Heartened By Federal Aid

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Apr. 12.—(AP)—Heartened by aid from the federal government, directors of the high water battle in the Mississippi delta flood zone yesterday went forward with their levee battle while the big Mississippi River began a gradual fall at Memphis. The war department announced at Washington that $50,000 had been set aside for emergency flood protection on the upper Yazoo River and its tributaries in Mississippi. The money will be used to protect levees where hundreds of men have been laboring day and night to save life and property from damage from rampaging waters. Sheriff Doggan, of Tallahatchie county, Mississippi, started an investigation into the dynamiting by a band of men of a Matthews bayou levee near Tippecanoe, Miss., late Saturday.

OCEAN AIRPORT OF GERMANY HAS BEEN COMPLETED

Berlin—A floating airport as a base for flying boats in the middle of the south Atlantic has just been completed for the Luft Hansa German air transport monopoly.

Its completion is a step in the establishment of regular south Atlantic airplane service. The floating airport is to enable trials on the new air line between Berlin and Buenos Aires within the present year. Dozens of fanciful designs have been devised for "seagoing airports." Less revolutionary in appearance, but far more practical, the Luft Hansa has converted the 5,000-ton freight steamer Westphalia into an airplane "mother ship." It will take its station in the middle of the 1800-mile stretch between British Gambia on the coast of West Africa and Natal on the coast of South America.

The Westphalia has been equipped with what the Luft Hansa declares to be the largest catapult launching device yet constructed. Utilizing compressed air it launches a 16.5 flying boat in 1.52 seconds, hurling it into the air at a speed of more than 90 miles an hour. The design is similar to the catapults used upon the steamers Bremen and Europa, which, however, are capable of launching aircraft weighing only four tons. The flying boats land in the water near the ship in the ordinary manner, being taken on board by a specially constructed crane. The Westphalia is equipped with a 120,000,000 candle-power beacon and elaborate radio receivers and transmitters.

The service plans call for use of land planes from German cities to Cadix, Spain. From this point seaplanes will be used via the Canary Islands to Bathurst, British Gambia. From Bathurst en route to Natal, Brazil, the large flying boats will be used. They will be refueled in mid-ocean by the Westphalia which, with its crew of 40, will also accommodate extra flying personnel. The connection from Germany to Rio de Janeiro is planned for four days, with five-day time to Buenos Aires. It weekly trips are planned, alternating with the bi-weekly schedule of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin, so that Germany will have weekly air connections with South America. The Graf Zeppelin carries passengers, but at the beginning at least, the flying boat service will be restricted to mail and freight.

Beware of Railroad Crossings

Motor Vehicle Administrators of the United States, the men who know, will describe a series of traffic violations and driving errors responsible for a majority of automobile accidents and advise how they may be avoided. This is number number of the series.

WATCH OUT FOR RAILROAD CROSSINGS! Obey the famous slogan "Stop, Look and Listen," and the tragedy pictured in the drawing above will never occur to you. Last year 1,480 persons were killed in collisions with railroad trains, and many thousands were injured according to statistics reported by the National Bureau of Casualty and Underwriting. Doubtless the urge to beat the train to the crossing caused many of the tragedies. It was a race of death, with the odds on the train. But most dangerous of all hazards which many drivers overlook is the blind crossing. It is up to the driver to be aware of it. Follow the rule of the Model Municipal Traffic Ordinance drafted by the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, and be safe. It says: "Whenever any person driving a vehicle approaches a highway and railroad crossing and a clearly visible and positive signal gives warning of the immediate approach of a railway train or car, it shall be unlawful for the driver of the vehicle to fail to stop the vehicle before traversing such crossing." ALWAYS BE ON THE ALERT AT RAILROAD CROSSINGS! you see the warning signal on the highway. Many states have been cooperating with railroad companies in eliminating all grade crossings. Few of these crossings now interfere with heavy highway traffic, but in many sections of the country the peril still exists. It is up to the driver to be aware of it.

Throughout the afternoon bridge games were enjoyed and at a late hour solos were added and the prizes awarded. Mrs. L. E. Boyle and Mrs. Linton E. Allen were the recipients of high scores. Those present were: Mrs. H. B. Lewis, Mrs. J. C. Benson, Mrs. L. F. Boyle, Mrs. Linton E. Allen, Mrs. J. H. Hintonmaster, Mrs. Walter S. Coleman, Mrs. A. W. Witts, and Mrs. C. H. Eckerson.

Marine Corporal Essayed Role Of Archaeologist

SAN DIEGO, Calif.,—One would never expect to find a veteran marine corporal in the role of an archaeologist. Yet Corporal Al Daniels, now on duty at the local marine station, in his spare time while stationed in Nicaragua supervising elections, uncovered what archaeologists now call a "New Mayan culture." The bowls and sacrificial cups, customarily adorned with mathematical figures and still bright with painted designs, were unearthed by the marine of Danabon from 500 to 1,000 years ago, according to Malcolm Koser, curator of the museum.

"No museum in the world has ever done any work in this field," declared Mr. Rogers. The first of the relics was unearthed accidentally by a party of marines last October as they were digging postholes. "Remembering the possibilities of the find, I had some spare time later and started digging where the boys had turned up the find," recalled Corporal Daniels. "About five or six feet below the surface I found a good many things. Apparently the natives had used the location as a burial ground, because the vases and bowls I found were scattered among skeletons of men. I am sure they are Mayan relics for the bowls contain the typical design and the Mayans worshiped the dead." "CARD OF THANKS We desire to express our sincere appreciation to the many friends of H. S. White, for their thoughtful acts, words of sympathy and floral offerings, tendered us during the sickness, death and burial of our beloved husband, and Father. Your Friends, MRS. H. S. MOST NEW YORK BANKS WILL PAY THEIR DIVIDENDS

NEW YORK.—The majority of New York City banks and trust companies in the first quarter will show operating earnings sufficient to cover dividend disbursements despite the banking difficulties. In a number of instances it is probable a small margin will be carried forward to undivided profits, after adjustments. Money rates, on the whole, were at their lowest in history the first two months of this period. The smaller returns on loans and high grade investments, however, were largely offset by reductions in interest on deposit accounts.

A firmer trend prevailed toward the latter part of February, and by Mar. 3, just a few days before the national banking holiday, clearing house banks, which comprise the principal institutions in the city, advanced deposit rates accordingly. In the interest of conservatism, several local banks and trust companies have either reduced or deferred action on dividend payments for this quarter, although earnings were stated, in specific instances, to be adequate to continue payments.

While New York City banks on the whole have been earning sufficient from operations to maintain dividends, necessary adjustments, such as depreciation of securities and setting aside reserves for bad or doubtful accounts and other contingencies, have made heavy drags on undivided profits and surplus accounts and it is primarily with intention of rebuilding these accounts that revisions in dividend have been ordered. Even institutions have made dividend revisions this quarter. The two largest payments and two have decided to omit payments. Those making reductions are Brooklyn Trust Company, Empire Trust Company, Irving Trust Company, National City Bank and Title Guarantee & Trust Company.

Manufacturers Trust Company and Bronx County Trust Company voted to omit payments. Sixteen other major institutions voted to make the regular payments. Of 24 principal banks and trust companies in the city, nine are paying the same percentage of dividends as in 1929; namely, Bankers Trust Company, Central Hanover Bank & Trust Company, Corn Exchange Bank Trust Company, First National Bank, Fulton Trust Company, Guaranty Trust Company, United States Trust Company and Chemical Bank & Trust Company.

From the standpoint of total payments in 1932, four institutions—Fulton Trust, Guaranty Trust, Irving Trust and New York Trust—distributed more in dividends in that year than in 1929, while three others—Bankers, First National and United States Trust—paid at the same rate as in 1929. The latter, as well as the lattered serpent, which is also shown on many of the relics.

Among the corporals' collection is a flute which plays four notes. It is carved to represent the head of a jaguar, which the Mayans also worshiped, according to the marine archaeologist.
