Computers working again

SANFORD — The computers in the Seminole County Courthouse were working this morning after being out of service most of Wednesday due to a power source loss. Circuit Court Clerk Maryanne Morse said no workers were sent home.

"There are always files to pull and filing to be done and records to look up if you've got the case number," Morse said. "Unfortunately, we are never caught up, we get sort of current but we never get ahead of the game."

Some departments are on a different system and were not affected.

"Five Points (county operations center) got hit twice by lightning yesterday," Morse added. "The phone lines between us and Orlando are down, and between the courthouse and Five Points are down. There's nothing anybody can do about it."

The installation of fiber optic cable may help eliminate service interruption due to lightning strikes. Morse turned over $100,000 from her fee-based office recently to finish the fiber optic trunk from Five Points to the county services building. She plans to turn over an additional $700,000 in funding.

Post office bids

SANFORD — U.S. Congressman John E. Rostenkowski, 7th District, writes to candidates in the Osteen area regarding the planned new post office for that unincorporated community.

"The U.S. Postal Service will invite bids in the middle of July for construction of a new facility for the Osteen area," he wrote. "This new post office will be built on a site owned by the postal service and located at the intersection of Railroad and Dickson Avenues, only several blocks from the present location."

Although more and more cluster mailboxes are being placed in various residential communities, the number of boxes being utilized at the present post office continues to grow.

A starting date for construction and completion date are not expected to be announced until bids for the project are opened.

Nursing home rates up

Seminole County at middle of price scale

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County nursing homes are near the middle of the rate scale charged for semi-private rooms by Florida nursing homes, averaging $97 a day, according to a statewide survey released recently.

The median daily charge for a semi-private room in a Florida nursing home has increased 4.4 percent from $90 in March 1993 to $94 this March, according to a statewide report.

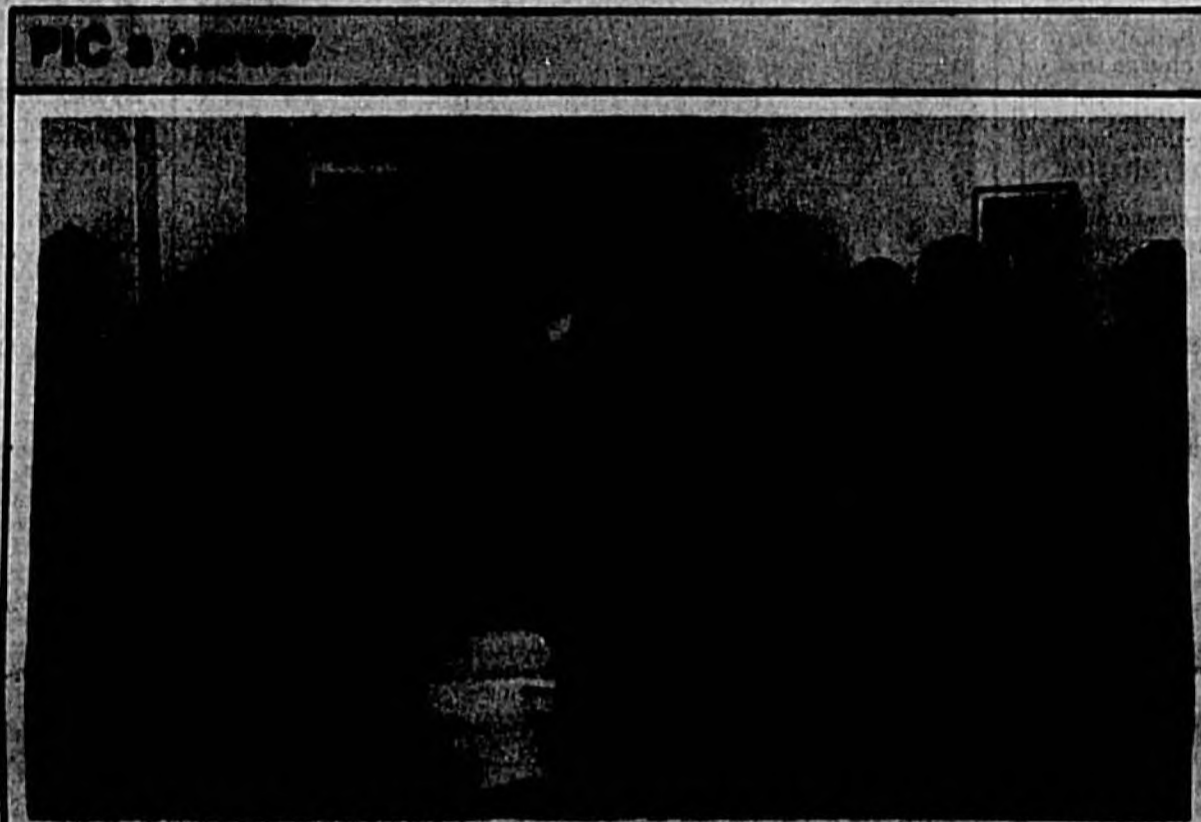

The higher costs increased the median charge for one year at a nursing home to $34,310 as of March, according to the Guide to Nursing Home Charges in Florida.

The rates for two nursing homes in Sanford, fell well below the average daily cost. Lakeview Nursing Center on East Second Street charges $85 a day for room, board and nursing care, supplies and medications are extra, Susan Castrianni, administrator said. "We advertise, 'check our low rates.'"

Private Industry Council matches workers, careers

By VICKI BOGGERMAN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The business climate is changing so rapidly, you'd think there was a hole in the training ozone layer.

People in jobs once thought secure are finding they may need re-training to maintain their jobs or they may need to be trained in a completely new field when a job is eliminated.

The Private Industry Council (PIC) of Central Florida helps displaced workers or those who haven't received appropriate training in school find a niche in the workplace.

No longer is the PIC taking a bandaid approach to skills training, director of operations Tim Giannoni said.

"We have changed our focus," he said. "We are helping to train people for careers, not just jobs."

The PIC in Seminole County has changed from merely offering support training to get people into jobs as quickly as possible, he said. A good foundation, he said, will help ensure more job stability.

The more pro-active approach is something new to private industry councils around the country.

College passes audit with high marks

By VICKI BOGGERMAN

SANFORD — The bean counters have been to Seminole Community College. And they are relatively pleased with what they saw.

The office of the Auditor General in Tallahassee conducts an annual survey (in the months following the close of the fiscal year) of the financial workings of the college.

Neither auditor James Cole nor anyone from Auditor General Charles Lester's office would comment on the report. They referred to the report and stated that it could "speak for itself."

The report stated the college's financial statements "fairly presented its financial position as of June 30, 1993 and the changes in fund balances and current revenues, expenditures and other changes for the fiscal year then ended."

The report stated there were several conditions in the way the finances of the college should be examined, but that none of them is considered to be "a material weakness in the college's internal control structure."

According to the report:
• the college had not maintained subsidiary ledgers for the unrestricted current funds and the auxiliary funds
• the detailed subsidiary ledgers for short-term student loans maintained in the business office differed from the detailed subsidiary ledgers

Rubin offers Clinton free legal services

TAMPA — Miami attorney Ellis Rubin wants to defend President Clinton against a sexual harassment lawsuit for free, saying the leader of the free world shouldn't have to beg for money to pay legal fees.

Rubin — who is seeking the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate against Clinton's brother-in-law Hugh Rodham, among others — said his first aim is to help out the president. But he conceded it would also generate lots of publicity.

"Hey, what's wrong with publicity?" said Rubin, who has a knack for taking on high-profile cases.

So far, Rubin has yet to receive a response to the offer he made in a letter Tuesday.

White House Counsel Lloyd Cutler has said Clinton would not take free legal services because it could create an apparent conflict of interest.

Clinton has set up a legal defense fund to help pay personal legal fees in both the harassment suit brought by former Arkansas state employee Paula Jones and in the Whitewater affair.

Corporate takeover artist hospitalized

MIAMI — Victor Posner, a 1990s corporate takeover artist accused of plundering his targets, has been hospitalized but was in critical but stable condition.

Posner, 78, was taken to Aventura Hospital on Saturday, officials said Wednesday. No details were released on why Posner had to be hospitalized.

Last December, a federal judge permanently barred Posner and his son Steven from serving as officers or directors of any public company after the Securities and Exchange Commission sued, accusing the two of plundering companies.

The Posners once controlled a number of companies from their Miami Beach headquarters, including DWG Corp., the parent of fast-food restaurant Arby's Inc. and Royal Crown Cola. The two food companies are now controlled by New York investors Nelson Peltz and Peter May under Triarc Co. Inc.

Prosecutors: Arrest justified

TAVARES — The arrest of Postmaster Rene Benoit was justified, prosecutors say, but they have dropped a charge that she was cultivating two marijuana plants at her house.

"Careful investigation from a legal perspective convinced me there was insufficient evidence to sustain a conviction," said Assistant State Attorney Scott Roti in explaining why the charge was dismissed Tuesday.

Ms. Benoit, 38, was arrested June 6 after police received a tip that two 16-inch potted plants were growing outside her home, near Tavares High School. The cultivation charge, a second-degree felony, carries a sentence of up to 15 years in prison.

Also arrested were her brother, Robert Benoit, 38, and her former boyfriend, James Stoffel, 28. Both were charged with misdemeanor counts of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. Those charges are pending.

Ms. Benoit said she didn't know what a marijuana plant looked like and didn't know the two plants were outside the house she owns.

Proposed pipeline opposed

TAVARES — Lake County is opposed to a proposed utility pipeline that would cut across the pristine Green Swamp and a recreational trail, a project that would affect 24 Florida waterways.

The vast Green Swamp is an area of critical concern because it contains the headwaters of several rivers, and the degradation restricts development in the area.

Lake County commissioners said they didn't have enough information about the pipeline's impact on sensitive lands, information that won't be available until the project has been extensively reviewed by state environmental officials.

To build the pipeline, Sunshine Pipeline Co. of Tampa needs exemptions from land-use rules in each county. The Florida Cabinet has final jurisdiction over the 850-mile project running from Okaloosa County to Hardee County.

Most of the affected counties have either waived their development rules or filed reports of their concerns with the state Department of Community Affairs. Leon County earlier became the first opponent among the 24.

Probation violation charged

LITCHFIELD — A man arrested in Florida with tennis star Jennifer Capriati is back in Connecticut to face charges he violated probation on a drug conviction in this state.

Thomas Wineand, 19, appeared before Superior Court Judge Joseph Gill on Tuesday and was ordered held on $20,000 bond until a probation hearing next month to decide whether he will have to go to prison.

Wineand was convicted on drug charges in Florida. He was charged with possession of cocaine and possession of drug paraphernalia when he and Capriati were arrested May 16 after a weekend party in her Coral Gables hotel room.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Alberto's rains flood panhandle

Red Cross answers emergency response

By ADAM YEMANS
Associated Press Writer

BONIFAY — Residents fled homes and businesses in some low-lying areas of the Florida Panhandle on Wednesday as heavy rains swelled rivers and blocked roads.

State officials predicted the Chipola River, with a flood stage of 19 feet at Marianna, could crest near 30 feet on Friday. Similar conditions were forecast for the Choctawhatchee, Apalachicola and Ochlocknee rivers.

The levels are much like those of the last major flood in 1980. Local officials said the forecast may change as more rains were expected for the region.

They were preparing for the worst. "We can't find a switch to turn it off," said Randy Mellon, a state Department of Corrections official helping with emergency operations in Holmes as rains from remnants of Tropical Storm Alberto deluged the area.

The state shut down a 70-mile section westbound on Interstate 10 from Cottondale to Crestview late Wednesday as rising waters began to cover the highway.

At Graceville in Jackson County, torrential rains flooded several homes, blocked State Road 77, and sent some water into a hospital, but the hospital was able to continue operating, said John Mader, county emergency management director.

Many county roads in Holmes were closed, and a mandatory evacuation order was issued for homes in low areas along the Choctawhatchee. People living on higher ground were advised to stay home.

People began to congregate at shelters late Wednesday as water invaded homes along the Choctawhatchee, though not everyone consented to leave their trailers, frame dwellings and camp sites near the river.

"We've got some people who are refusing to leave," Holmes emergency management director Wanda Cunningham said. "A lot of them get to drinking, and they don't care where they're at."

Though the evacuation was mandatory, Cunningham said people wouldn't be forced from their homes.

Pat Bailey of Caryville, which is about seven miles west of Bonifay, said she and her husband evacuated their trailer when the Choctawhatchee flooded in 1980. Bailey said her husband probably would stay this time to guard against a repeat of looting that occurred during the earlier flood.

"There's quite a lot of people who don't want to leave because of that," Bailey said. "I just hope it don't come up too high. I got a new trailer."

As the downpour continued, officials feared the flood would approach the record of 1929 when the river's waters rose 27 feet.

"Given the tremendous amount of water expected to flow through the area, I urge all Panhandle residents to keep close track of weather advisories and media reports," a vacationing Gov. Lawton Chiles said in a statement.

A state of emergency Chiles declared July 2 when Alberto first approached the state was still in effect, state officials said.

Emergency management officials said flood warnings were in effect for the Choctawhatchee, Chipola, Pea, Apalachicola and Ochlocknee rivers and Holmes Creek.

The American Red Cross sent an emergency response vehicle with food and several volunteers from Tallahassee to help with relief efforts in Bonifay, said Chris

Vegetable grower closes; 1,300 jobs lost

By Associated Press

SOUTH BAY — Israel Montemayor has spent half his life working for South Bay Growers, the biggest employer in this farm town on the southern shore of Lake Okechobee.

Come September, Montemayor and more than 1,300 other employees will be without jobs.

"I was wanting to spend the rest of my future here," Montemayor, 43, who has spent been with South Bay Growers for 21 years, said Wednesday. "Until today, I didn't have any idea this would happen to us."

Citing years of losses, U.S. Sugar Corp. announced Wednesday it is closing South Bay Growers, the company it has owned since 1980.

The company was the supplier of much of the winter vegetables in the United States.

"All the small businesses, we might as well pack up and leave," said Clyde Behry, owner of the Shop and Save beverage store. "I've been here for 14 years, and I just don't see how the town can recover from this."

U.S. Sugar president J. Nelson Fairbanks told workers they would be paid until Sept. 8 and will get help in finding other jobs. Those living in company-owned housing will be assisted with their rent for four months.

"This is the hardest and unhappiest announcement I have ever had to make," Fairbanks said.

South Bay Growers lost money in four of the last five years, including more than $10.8 million this year, Fairbanks said. The operation was hurt by the vagaries of the vegetable business, such as freezes and floods.

And since the company operated only during the winter, it often couldn't take advantage of price increases enjoyed by the rest of the industry.

About 200 people will be absorbed into other U.S. Sugar operations, and the corporation expects to spend more than $3 million on severance pay, Fairbanks said.

The community is expecting the worst. South Bay's year-round population is about 4,000.

City Manager Lester Baird called it "a significant blow."

Prior to the announcement, unemployment in the South Bay area was 22.3 percent, Baird said. "Our numbers could conceivably go up to 80 percent."

"We weren't diversified, that's why it's going to hurt so much," said Mayor Clarence Anthony. "This is a lesson for us about putting all of our eggs in one basket."

Fairbanks said U.S. Sugar will plant sugar cane on the 8,000 acres used to grow winter vegetables until now.

The Superior Salad business, an ancillary company to South Bay Growers that employs 146 people, will remain open, but U.S. Sugar will try to sell it, Fairbanks said.

Simpson ruling won't end debate

By LINDA DEUTSCH
AP Special Correspondent

LOS ANGELES — The decision by police to scale a wall and enter O.J. Simpson's estate raised a thorny legal issue that could haunt his murder case long after a judge decides if the search was legal.

Simpson's lawyers say police entered the estate without a warrant, then misrepresented the circumstances to get one. Prosecutors say police had to enter because they thought there might be an emergency.

The evidence the defense wants to exclude from the preliminary hearing — which will determine if Simpson will stand trial — includes blood found on Simpson's car, a bloody glove resembling one found at the crime scene and blood spots on the driveway. Municipal Judge Kathleen Kennedy-Powell said she would rule on the issue today.

Her decision cannot be immediately appealed, legal experts said. But it can be appealed during a trial, or on appeal if Simpson is convicted of murdering his ex-wife and her friend, said University of Southern California law professor Erwin Chemerinsky. Legal experts say motions to exclude evidence are rarely granted. Chemerinsky and Paul Bergman, an evidence and trial advocacy professor at the University of California, Los Angeles, predicted the judge would rule against the defense.

"The prosecution made a strong showing that there were emergency circumstances that supported scaling the wall," Bergman said.

Detectives testified that they rushed from the crime scene to Simpson's mansion to tell him about the killings.

After spying a spot of blood on Simpson's Ford Bronco parked in the street, detectives testified, they feared someone else might be in danger. When they received no answer over the intercom and telephone, they entered the estate without a search warrant.

Police can enter a home or property without a warrant if they are pursuing a suspect, think evidence will be destroyed or believe that someone is in jeopardy.

"What if someone had been injured and lay bleeding while the officers went to get a search warrant?" Deputy District Attorney Marcia Clark asked the judge. "What would we have said? We would have said they were derelict in fulfilling their duties."

But Simpson lawyer Gerald Uelmen warned against letting the government break the law, saying it would encourage citizens to do the same.

"Again and again, we hear the detectives say, 'Well, we didn't know what we have, we didn't know what happened on these premises,'" Uelmen said. "I don't know what they had, I do know what they didn't have. They didn't have a search warrant."

Earlier Wednesday, defense lawyer Robert Shapiro challenged virtually every move of Detective Phillip Vannatter.

Vannatter said he was convinced a search was necessary to save a life and that he was thinking of Simpson as a potential victim, not a suspect.

But when cross-examined by Shapiro, he admitted that he needed a flashlight and his reading glasses to see the speck of blood, measuring between one-eighth and one-quarter of an inch, on the Bronco.

U.S. to ease Haitians' access to safe havens

By RITA BEANON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Although the Clinton administration's latest Haiti policy blocks Haitian boat people from entering the United States, it will be relatively easy for them to gain entry to safe havens in Panama and other countries, U.S. officials say.

Haitians intercepted at sea will still be screened before being sent to safe haven camps, but they will not have to meet the "same sort of rigorous" standard — a well-founded fear of persecution — required for U.S. asylum, said one official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The Pentagon, meanwhile, is proceeding with contingency plans for an invasion of Haiti should economic sanctions fail to drive its military rulers from power. A four-ship amphibious group — with 2,000 Marines on board — sailed for Haiti on Wednesday to stand by for the possible evacuation of some 3,000 to 4,000 Americans living there.

Two weeks ago, Army Rangers and Navy Seals staged operations at Elgin Air Force Base in Florida and on the Gulf of Mexico simulating the seizure of an airfield such as the one in Haiti's capital, Port-au-Prince, and the capture of a port. The New York Times reported today. It said the exercises involved about 2,000 troops.

President Clinton, asked today in Warsaw, Poland, why the United States was conducting military exercises if it wasn't planning to invade Haiti, declined to comment, saying, "I have nothing to add to what was stated yesterday by the Pentagon spokesman and I don't really think we should be discussing Haiti in Poland."

The U.S. Coast Guard intercepted at least 1,537 Haitians in 34 boats on Wednesday, bringing the total to about 14,000 since President Clinton liberalized U.S. policy on Haitian refugees on June 18. The refugee population has swelled to 7,500 at the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

A day after unveiling plans to use Panama — and eventually the Caribbean islands of Antigua and Dominica — as safe havens for fleeing Haitians, administration officials were busy clarifying the policy Wednesday.

Three officials who spoke on condition of anonymity contradicted William Gray, Clinton's special adviser on Haiti, who said Tuesday that safe haven would be granted only to those who could meet the "well-founded fear" standard required for U.S. asylum.

The administration's position as of early Wednesday was that boat people would be granted safe haven with "no questions asked" beyond stating a wish for protection, according to one State Department official.

But later in the day, two other officials said it had been decided some processing would be used — a liberalized version of the asylum screening, without the lengthy interviews that asylum applicants undergo.

The modification apparently was intended to partially answer critics who complained that a different standard was being used for Haitians, when refugees from other countries such as Rwanda and Bosnia can enter safe havens with no questions asked.

Randall Robinson, head of the lobbying group TransAfrica, said Wednesday that all Haitians picked up at sea should be granted passage to the safe haven in Panama. He said the administration was clouding the question of whether refugees would have to meet the same standard as for U.S. asylum.

The administration's explanation — on the one hand indicating use of the asylum standard and on the other suggesting a more liberal processing — amounted to "a nonsensical policy," Robinson said.

Under the new policy, Haitians picked up at sea will have a choice of returning to Haiti to seek asylum through U.S. processing centers there or going to the Panama camp for protection until the political crisis in Haiti is over.

Double your pleasure

Both the Pioneer Days 'n Ways and Crafts Festival in Sanford, and the Lake Mary/Heathrow Festival of the Arts have been scheduled for the same two days.

Both organizations plan their events for the first weekend in October. In this case, on the 1st and 2nd. Success for each is practically assured, with many of last year's participants having already signed up for this year.

We have no doubt that, as in the past, there will be some objections to having these two extremely large-scale events at the same time. Most may come from artisans and craftsmen, who have to make a choice regarding in which event they wish to participate.

It won't be an easy choice. Both events draw tens of thousands of spectators. There are however, many husband and wife crafts exhibitors, and dividing them into the two separate areas may contribute to more sales and a more successful weekend than if they operated together.

Similar to the 1993 events, we believe that these two festivals, held on the same weekend, will benefit each other more than if they were held separately. People may drive farther and perhaps stay the entire weekend if they knew there was more than one major event to be seen and enjoyed. That will be of greater benefit to both events as well as the economy of the entire local area.

This is not the only situation where more than one major event is scheduled for the same date. In Sanford, the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, and Sanford Historic Downtown Waterfront Association plus others, often hold events at Fort Mellon Park and in the downtown areas at the same time, such as the Miss St. Lucia Festival and arts and crafts show.

These multiple-event weekends have proven that the attendance of each helped the other.

Exhibitors and displayers should waste no time in signing up for this year's Seminole County Pioneer Days and Lake Mary/Heathrow arts, crafts and display events.

Regarding the organizers of the two events, the Festival of the Arts committee and the Seminole County Historical Society, they deserve not only appreciation for their efforts, but support by one and all.

When October 1st and 2nd arrive, attending not one, but both of these events, will be a wonderful experience for everyone.

Help for family

On Monday June 27, 1994, my Los Angeles phone rang. When I had assessed the full impact of what had happened, I knew that my family's life would never be the same.

My brother Darren died on Sunday. He was killed on State Road 46 in a tragic and senseless motorcycle accident.

This letter is as much a eulogy for Darren as it is a plea for all drivers to be vigilant for motorcyclists. Motorcyclists are out there and are they ever vulnerable.

Darren was a blue collar working type; he was an unassuming and honest man. Sadly, he had family; a wife and two children. His wife and children depended on him.

I would like to hope that he could now rely on the kindness of friends and strangers. Donations made to Darren's children should be made care of:

Republicans on brink of victory

Thanks to the parliamentary statecraft of Senate Minority Leader Robert Dole, the Republican Party stands on the verge of a historic victory over Big Government and the Democratic Congress and administration.

From the outset President Clinton made it clear that universal health care, provided and run by Big Brother but paid for by the American taxpayer, would be the central zircon in the diadem of his administration. Along with Franklin Roosevelt (who supposedly provided for everybody's old age through Social Security) and Lyndon Johnson (who allegedly improved the lot of the poor), Mr. Clinton would become the third member of the liberal Democratic Trinity: the president who guaranteed health care coverage to every American, from the cradle to the grave.

At first everything appeared to go well with the project. Polls reported that the American people seemed to agree that our health care system was in "crisis," though on further inquiry it transpired that the great majority were reasonably well satisfied with their own medical care. In any case, there was substantial sentiment for making sure that everybody was covered. The president's wife presided over the secret deliberations of 500 gnomes, and eventually came up with a proposal.

Somewhere in Washington there ought to be a small museum to house a parchment copy of that 1,342-page monstrosity, so future generations can study a perfect example of Big Government at its worst.

Under it, the American people would be dragooned into medical chain-gangs supervised by the inevitable layers of incompetent, insatiable bureaucrats. The whole mess would be paid for by a massive tax on small businesses, disguised as "mandatory" payments of 80 percent of the cost of insuring their employees. Health costs would be "capped" -- e.g., subjected to price controls -- so health care would have to be rationed. Any doctor or patient who tried to finess the system would face a $10,000 fine, or prison.

When the American people got wind of what Ms. Rodham Clinton had wrought, the polls began reporting a very different attitude. Reluctantly, under pressure from Democratic leaders in Congress, Mr. Clinton began to jettison one major feature of his health care program after another: first the chain-gangs (or "alliances"), then the employer mandates. Now, it appears, he will settle for anything the Democrats in Congress can agree to pass, if only it can be called "universal."

Enter Bob Dole. He knows very well that the American people want various improvements in our health care system -- notably "portability" (the assurance that one's health coverage won't be lost in going from one job to another) and coverage of previously existing conditions. He is also willing to subsidize health insurance for the genuinely needy who can't afford it.

Dole has now brought forth a bill embodying these features, and about 40 of the 44 Republicans in the Senate have lined up to support it. That is a significant figure, for 41 just happens to be the number of senators who can filibuster to death any bill they don't like.

Finance debate is futile exercise

"Campaign Finance Showdown Nears; House, Senate Leaders Deadlocked Over Limiting PAC Donations." -- Headline in the Washington Post, June 27.

Along the K Street assembly lines of Washington's only hometown industry, the lawyers and lobbyists who manufacture legal loopholes that are the envy of the corporate world can't figure what this "showdown" fuss is all about.

For K Street long ago solved the challenges posed to its corporate clients by campaign spending reforms and PAC spending limits. That is why you can read the law that limits contributions by a political action committee to $10,000 -- which well-intentioned reformers want to cut in half.

But you can also discover -- by reading the soon-to-be-published "Open Secrets: The Encyclopedia of Congressional Money and Politics" by Larry Makinson and Joshua Goldstein of the Center for Responsive Politics -- that 21 senators and 29 representatives received 1992 campaign contributions from one corporation or special interest that ranged from $150,406 (13 times the legal PAC limit) to $30,250 (barely twice the limit).

It's all perfectly legal -- and it won't be effectively stopped by the compromises that will come out of the "campaign finance showdown." K Street's lawyers and lobbyists long ago fashioned a loophole known as "bundling": A company or other special interest has its executives write out personal checks to a candidate's campaign; then it wraps the checks as one big bundle of joy, to make sure the candidate can measure just how grateful he or she must be.

Since 1907, it has been illegal for companies to give direct contributions; but they can create PACs through which they can give in limited amounts. Or they can use the bundle loophole and give as much as they want. Securities firms have been the most energetic corporate bundlers; nine securities firms made the "Open Secrets" list of biggest bundlers for needy senators in '92.

Time out for a Quick Quiz:
QUESTION: Who was the Capitol's proud recipient of the biggest single bundle -- $150,406 -- from a single special interest in '92? And who received the second biggest $63,160 bundle? Were they:

(A) Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole, a Senate Finance Committee top GOP; and Sen. Al D'Amato, R-N.Y., ranking Republican on the Banking Committee;

(B) Then-mighty House Ways and Means Chairman Dan Rostenkowski; and House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo.;

Copyright Rostenkowski and Rostenkowski (first and second);

(D) Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., a longtime friend of corporate America; and the irrepressible D'Amato; (E) Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif.; and Sen. Carol Moseley-Braun, D-Ill., two liberal first-termers just elected in 1992.

ANSWER: (E). Do not adjust your bifocals, that is "E" -- for Sens. Boxer and Moseley-Braun. The liberal Senate newcomers topped all of Corporate America's traditional pals because the women's rights groups got their activism together and out-bundled the big boys.

The women's rights PAC, called Emily's List (for "Early Money is Like Yeast"), bundled almost $1 million in contributions that the Center for Responsive Politics (where I am a senior fellow) was able to chart by tracking contributions of $200 or more. Emily's List takes credit for bundling $6 million, mostly from individual small donations.

But lest the liberals and women's rights advocates get swept away by their success, the sobering fact is that their money (be it $1 million or $6 million) is dwarfed by the total from corporate America. Right behind the bundles received by Boxer and Moseley-Braun was D'Amato's $62,061 bundle from Bear, Stearns & Co. He also got a $33,000 bundle from Goldman, Sachs & Co.; $28,450 from Morgan Stanley & Co.; $24,805 from Merrill Lynch; $23,000 from Smith Barney; $22,900 from Coopers & Lybrand; and the beat goes on.

So showdown, schmoedown. K Street's lawyers and lobbyists will always find ways of spinning loop-the-loops around well-intentioned incremental reformers. Nothing short of true, democratic financing of campaigns -- using public funding -- can end the abuses by which corporations now invest in campaigns and reap huge profitable returns in subsidies and tax bonanzas.

It wraps the checks as one big bundle of joy.

Profits soar when crops hit 'crisis'

You've no doubt heard by now that the price of your daily caffeine fix is going up, and you're probably confused by all the blather and jabber about commodities exchanges, coffee futures, diminishing stocks, hedge buying and so on, and you really need some answers before all the tension builds into a major eruption of the shakes or the hives or at least a temper tantrum.

You've come to the right place, friend. The Curmudgeon has seen it all before. The Curmudgeon will clear it up.

The basic problem: A heavy frost in the coffee-growing region of Brazil damaged 18 to 30 percent of the crop.

The result: Within hours, wholesale prices began shooting up. At the New York Coffee, Sugar and Cocoa Exchange, coffee jumped to $1.90 a pound the first day, $1.90 a pound the second.

For 24 hours, the big coffee manufacturers played it cool. They would not predict price fluctuations, but the Reuters news agency quoted "observers" who speculated that a few cents would be added to a pound of coffee within several months.

One day later, Procter & Gamble Co., maker of Folgers coffee, and Philip Morris' Kraft General Foods, maker of Maxwell House, announced that the Brazilian freeze would require them to increase the price of a 13-ounce can of coffee by 35 to 40 cents. Nestle Beverage Co., which makes Taster's Choice and Nescafe, said a price hike was coming soon.

The bottom line: The consumer is getting shafted. As usual when a crisis threatens the supply of some commodity, the big corporations get greedy and the consumer gets shafted.

Think on it: The damaged beans are still hanging in the trees. They are next year's crop. Why should a freeze of 1995's beans cause a prodigious hike in the cost of 1994's coffee? Were there no beans in storage that were purchased at this year's prices? No beans in the pipeline?

Think on this, too: Do you believe the price hikes will result in more money for the Brazilian growers? Not likely. Do you think grocers will reap more profits from the price increases? Again, not likely. Food marketing is a pass-through industry which makes about a penny for every dollar of cost.

So who's raking in the bucks? The big coffee companies, that's who. The people with the huge inventories of coffee beans -- every bloody one of which was alchemized into a gold nugget the moment Mother Nature frosted Brazil's coffee trees. Perhaps we should call them the Arrogant, Predatory, Price-Gouging Coffee Companies. I like that. APFCOCOs for short.

They should form a club, these arrogant price-gougers. The big orange juice companies (hereinafter APPUCOS) would be eligible. With every freeze in Florida, millions of gallons of stored orange juice purchased at cheaper prices turn into liquid gold as the retail price of OJ septuples overnight.

The big oil companies (hereinafter APFOCS) would be charter members. When the Persian Gulf war erupted in 1990, gasoline prices shot up immediately and stayed up long after it was clear to everyone involved that the world supply of oil was not in danger. Millions of gallons of cheaper crude already in the inventory were marketed at the higher prices, and the following quarter, the APFOCS posted astronomical profits.

The oil companies thought up 26 reasons why prices and profits soared, and some of them are instructional because they presaged what the coffee companies are saying today.

At first everything appeared to go well with the project.

Some benign growths linked to cancer risk

By DANIEL G. HANBY AP Science Writer

BOSTON — Some benign breast growths that are common in young women appear to double the risk of breast cancer later in life, according to a study released today.

Another report published today found that having a child temporarily increases the risk of breast cancer, but lowers it later in life.

Dr. William Dupont and others from Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn., found that women with growths called fibroadenomas face about double the usual risk of breast cancer.

Fibroadenomas are typically diagnosed when women are in their 20s. Many experts have believed they are unrelated to later development of cancer.

The Vanderbilt study found the increased risk was highest in women whose close relatives had been diagnosed with breast cancer. It was also more elevated in those who had a particular variety of growths called complex fibroadenomas.

"Since fibroadenomas are commonly diagnosed before the age of 30, these lesions provide a means of identifying young women who have an increased risk of breast cancer decades before the onset of invasive disease," the researchers wrote.

They suggested that women with both complex fibroadenomas and a family history of breast cancer should begin having regular mammograms at age 35 or 40.

The childbirth study complicates another commonly held belief about breast cancer. Women have traditionally been told that having a child helps ward off breast cancer. But the new data suggest the link between pregnancy and cancer is not so simple.

The study compared the risk of breast cancer in women who have had one child or remained childless. For the first 15 years after they gave birth, the mothers' risk was higher than that of other women. Then it fell lower.

The older a woman is when she has a child, the higher her risk of breast cancer immediately after her delivery.

Seven people swept away by Georgia floodwaters

BY ELLIOTT MINOR Associated Press Writer

AMERICUS, Ga. — Raging floodwaters turned towns into islands, swept people to their deaths before helpless witnesses and left 500,000 people without safe drinking water in central and southern Georgia.

Seven people were swallowed by floodwaters Wednesday near Americus, which got 23 inches of rain in less than 24 hours, said Sumter County Coroner Lynwood McClung. At least 13 deaths over the past three days have been blamed on flooding caused by heavy rains from the remnants of Tropical Storm Alberto.

The floods forced hundreds of people from their homes, washed out roads and bridges and sent flash floods racing across the sodden earth. Gov. Zell Miller declared 30 of the state's 159 counties disaster areas. More rain was expected today.

Damage to government-owned structures such as water plants, roads and bridges was estimated at $58 million. There was no estimate for homes or businesses. In Americus, in southwest Georgia, helpless bystanders watched a screaming woman clutching a baby slip into the rumbling Town Creek.

The bridge had just washed out, and the woman stood atop her car as it slowly slid down the bank. She and her child were still missing today.

"It was like the Atlantic Ocean," said Catherine Andrew, who watched with several others from across the creek. She said a man in another car also was swept away.

"People are wandering around aimlessly," Americus Fire Chief Steve Moreno. "In a few days reality will set in."

Moreno said five people died when their cars were swept off bridges. He predicted that five to 10 more bodies would be found when the waters recede.

"We're sort of like an island," said Dean Whitaker, a state trooper at the Americus barracks.

About 76 miles southeast of Atlanta, the Ocmulgee River overflowed its banks and rolled down Interstates 75 and 16 into Macon. Water on the highways was 4 feet deep in places.

Swift Colorado wildfire traps 50 firefighters, 12 die

BY ROBERT WELLER Associated Press Writer

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Colo. — A swift wildfire whipped by high winds roared over a steep mountainside, trapping 50 firefighters. Twelve were killed and two were missing today in one of the country's deadliest such disasters.

The firefighters were trapped Wednesday about 7,000 feet up the rugged slope of Storm King Mountain, where the rough terrain left them no place to flee, said Garfield County Under-sheriff Levy Burris.

The survivors escaped to burned-over ground where the fire could not take hold, then straggled out when the danger passed. Gov. Roy Romer said at a news conference Wednesday night.

This morning, he said the initial count of 11 dead had risen to 12, and two firefighters were still missing. "The search will begin just as soon as daylight arrives," Romer said.

"It just reminds us all of the great tragedy that can occur when you're dealing with fire," he said.

He said the families of the firefighters had not been notified because the victims had not been positively identified.

Romer called for an investigation to determine why so many lives were lost. Weather forecasters had predicted high winds, but firefighters were left in the field.

Fire officials said some of the victims apparently had tried to climb into their fire shelters, shiny blankets used as shields during fireups.

The lightning-sparked fire began Sunday, five miles west of Glenwood Springs. The mountain resort of 6,000 people is between Aspen and Vail about 180 miles west of Denver.

The fire had been confined to 50 acres until high winds fanned it out of control Wednesday afternoon. Within five hours, it grew to 2,000 acres.

Audit

maintained in the financial aid office by $85,876.12

• Sixteen agency funds accounts had deficit cash balances totaling $27,003.85

• The college did not have adequate procedures in place to maximize collections of the college's receivables and short-term student loans.

• Employees of the financial aid office approved loans instituted collection procedures for past-due loans and also recorded disbursements and collections in the financial aid subsidiary records.

SCC president Earl Weldon, who could not be reached for comment, did respond to the report in a letter to the Auditor General.

"In November 1992, the college began changing over to a new accounts receivable system. Subsidiary records and the accounts receivable control account were automatically updated by the mainframe computer system for charges from the registration process and effective June 15, 1993 the general ledger control account was automatically updated by payments processed through the college's Central Cashier's Office. The subsidiary records must be manually updated from the central cashier records."

He noted that the other discrepancies are being corrected.

The report also found that the college generally complied with governing laws, rules and regulations, with a few exceptions:

• they did not prepare a budget in conjunction with students for expenditures from student activity fee money

• they kept federal cash balances in noninterest-bearing accounts so no interest was earned or remitted to the federal government

• there were six instances, totaling $6,563, where federal financial aid was given to students for whom the college could

At least four businesses in low areas of Bonifay had 6 to 8 inches of water inside and had to close. Water blocked U.S. 90 and Florida 179 in parts of the Holmes County seat, Mayor James Sims said.

Five shelters were opened in Holmes Wednesday with a capacity for about 1,500 people. Local officials expected about 400 by late Wednesday.

Weldon noted the college has made changes that require more detailed accounts be maintained about all students who are getting financial aid and that their status as students must be confirmed before they are given their aid money.

Overall, the auditors said, SCC did not perform badly in the check and the college has made changes to rectify the problems cited in the report.

southern Alabama and western Georgia.

Mike Rucker, staff meteorologist with state Division of Emergency Management, predicted the remnants of the storm would dump 4 to 9 more inches of rain in parts of the Panhandle.

Holmes was one of nine Panhandle Counties declared federal disaster areas by President Bush after severe flooding in 1990.

Mid-March 1990 floods along the Choctawhatchee and Apalachicola rivers forced evacuation of 2,500 people, damaged 1,100 homes and did an estimated $1.5 million worth of damage to public facilities in Bay, Calhoun, Escambia, Gulf, Holmes, Okaloosa, Santa Rosa, Walton and Washington counties.

Other median daily charges were $105 for Dade and Monroe counties, $103.50 for Broward County and $93 for Orange, Seminole, Osceola and Brevard counties.

A median charge means half the rates in the state are higher and half are lower.

Lakeview has no Medicare or Medicaid beds according to the survey and accepts private pay patients. Castrianni said although the facility has 105 beds only a portion are in use. Remodeling plans are being considered to convert a portion of the building to an ACLS (adult congestive living) which does not fall under the category of a nursing home.

Hillhaven Health Care Center on Mellonville Ave. charges $74 daily for semi-private room, according to the survey. The 114-bed nursing home facility has 24 Medicare and 90 Medicaid beds. The Florida Hospital Transitional Care Facility, Altamonte Springs, licensed as a hospital, charges $525 a day for a semi-private room. There are 10 beds available for Medicare patients, private pay, insurance companies and HMO patients or individuals qualified for CHAMPUS (Civilian Health and Medical Program for the Uniformed Services.)

The following is a list of nursing home facilities in the county and daily rate for semi-private rooms: Arbors at Orlando, Altamonte Springs, $97; Florida Living Nursing Center, Apopka, $98; Life Care Center of Altamonte Springs, $97; Longwood Health Care Center, $85; Lutheran Haven, Oviedo, (Lutheran Faith 65 or older) $80; Meridian Nursing Center, Longwood, $97 and Village on the Green, Longwood (admission restricted to members) $98.

As in previous years, the West Palm Beach area posted the highest median daily charge at $105.

The lowest charges were in Northwest Florida, with median daily charges of $76 in the Panhandle and $84 in the Big Bend region.

Complaint

The names of the alleged victim, parent and suspects were removed from a copy of the report provided to the Sanford Herald.

Cmdr. Dennis Whitmire, in charge of investigations, said the complaint is under investigation but declined to comment further.

The report becomes the second claim filed against school personnel in the past 90 days. On May 12, an Altamonte Springs man claimed his 12-year-old son was assaulted by a Pineview staff member. The father said the youth had passed out while under the influence of a drug prescribed for a mental condition.

The father, whose name is not being published to protect the identity of his child, said his son told him he had fainted while standing in a corner for punishment. The father said his son told him he was aroused by a staff member standing over him and yelling. "This is no joke boy."

The father said his son then told him the staff member picked him up by the neck and while holding one arm behind his back, pushed his face into the wall.

The father's claim came five weeks after Pineview sued him, seeking to stop him from writing critical letters about the school to local officials and agencies.

A message left for school officials yesterday was not returned.

A Sanford couple sued Pineview, the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services and other agencies last year, claiming they were negligent. The claim was made amid an allegation that the couple's daughter, then 11, was raped by two other students on the school grounds in 1992.

Whitmire said the rape case is under review by the State Attorney's Office.

pioneer demonstrations in full view, and at the same time giving the craft personnel good positions," he said.

As was the case last year, the two day event at the museum will again be held on the same dates selected for the Lake Mary/Heathrow Festival of the Arts.

What Dickison was referring to however, were events and displays being conducted at the same time at the museum festival.

"In 1994," he explained, "we will have the Civil war reenactors on a different date. This will open up more space and we will not be able to give the pioneer demonstrators greater exposure while at the same time giving the crafters a more organized layout."

Applications to fill out for participants in the Pioneer Days in Ways and Craft Festival are available at the museum. Even though the event is still almost three months away, persons who participated in the past have already started making plans for this year.

Because of this, Dickison said it is already at the point where requests for specific areas may not be available. He has promised however, to provide the closest booth possible in cases such as this.

Among displays and demonstrations planned are those on basketmaking, quilts, brooms, indigo dyeing, blacksmithing, chair caning, coopers and others.

Entertainment includes the annual flywheeler exhibit, engines and tools of yesteryear, traditional music, historic programs, ceremonial dances, and the native American and period military encampments.

Admission for this annual event is free, as is parking.

"The environment is right for that sort of approach," he said.

"We need to take a more aggressive approach. The schools are struggling with educational problems and we are realizing the students are coming out of there without the skills they need."

He said the focus is not on job training as much as it is on career training.

The PIC in Seminole County has a variety of programs to assist with those who are out of work, including youth programs, adult programs and an alternative adult high school (Excel).

The Excel program accepts troubled students from Seminole County schools who might have, in the past, been expelled from school without a diploma, without job skills and with little prospect of finding work.

The students are accepted only after they agree to work with instructors and counselors to learn responsibility as well as to complete the well-rounded high school curriculum. The curriculum is completely contained on computer and students work at their own pace to earn the credits they need to graduate.

Giannoni said the school, which opened in February, boasts the highest attendance rate of any school in Seminole County even though the entire student body is made up of "at risk" students.

Adults who enroll in PIC programs receive counseling and training that will give them the skills they need to find immediate employment.

"We offer more supportive training and not just quick job placement," he said. "There are a full array of services from interviewing techniques to resume development."

PIC programs offer clients the latest in skills training by working with employers to provide assistance using their up-to-the-minute technology.

This summer about 380 young people between the ages of 16 and 21 are working at jobs, provided by PIC, that will help them earn valuable skills as well as some spending cash.

In the course of a single year, Giannoni said, the local PIC serves about 650 adults and nearly 800 young people.

LOCALLY

Hoop camp at Seminole High

SANFORD — A boys and girls basketball camp will be offered next week, July 11-14, at Seminole High School by Tribe coaches John McNamara, Sylvester Wynn, and Mike Edwards. Two sessions will be offered each day. The 2-to-4:30 p.m. session is for players in grades 4 through 7 while the 6-to-8:30 p.m. session is for students in grades 8 through 12. Cost of the camp is $30. Registration forms are available in the Seminole High gymnasium.

Football officiating school

ORLANDO — The Central Florida Officials Association will conduct a school for anyone interested in officiating high school and/or youth league football this fall. The classes, which will be conducted at Edgewater High School, will begin Monday, July 11, and meet each Monday and Thursday evening at 6 p.m. through Aug. 11. For more information contact Tom Storey (831-0130), Rick Corley (644-2465), or Roland Taylor (855-3035).

Nashville doubles up O-Cubs

ORLANDO — Ricky Ward, Tim Moore and Andres Duncan all homered Wednesday as the Nashville Xpress beat the Orlando Cubs, 8-4. Xpress Brad Radke (8-6) picked up the win, while Amaury Telemaco took the loss.

Marlins rally by Reds

MIAMI — Pinch-hitter Greg Colbrunn hit a two-out, bases-loaded single in the 10th inning Wednesday to give Florida a 4-3 victory over Cincinnati as the Marlins snapped their four-game losing streak.

The Reds, who blew a 3-0 lead in the eighth, lost for the first time in six games.

Chuck Carr reached with one out in the 10th when All-Star shortstop Barry Larkin misplayed his soft liner. Carr took second on a passed ball, and Hector Carrasco (4-5) walked Jerry Browne and Gary Sheffield to load the bases.

After Jeff Conine popped out, Chuck McElroy replaced Carrasco and gave up Colbrunn's sharp single up the middle.

Harvey back on DL

MIAMI — Florida Marlins closer Bryan Harvey, bothered by a pulled right groin, was placed on the 15-day disabled list Wednesday, retroactive to June 30.

This will be Harvey's third stint on the DL this season. He has also been bothered by a strained right elbow and has pitched only 10 1/2 innings in 12 games with six saves and a 5.23 ERA.

'Teddy Ballgame' getting better

HERNANDO — Hall of Famer Ted Williams walks a little slower and can't see so well since last winter's stroke, but the "Splendid Splinter" still dreams about the game.

"I'm doing pretty well, in fact, I certainly am improving," Williams said from his marketing office. "But my quality of life has certainly changed. I can't move and I can't drive."

But Williams has made great strides since a stroke on Feb. 19. He has gone from being bedridden, to using a wheelchair then a walker and now a cane. The 75-year-old slugger blames himself for the stroke that knocked him down just 10 days after the opening of a central Florida museum commemorating his career.

"If there was ever a candidate for this, it was me because I was involved in 40 different things," he told The Boston Globe. "I had too much going on and too many stresses and worries and stuff."

Low pitches Suns to win

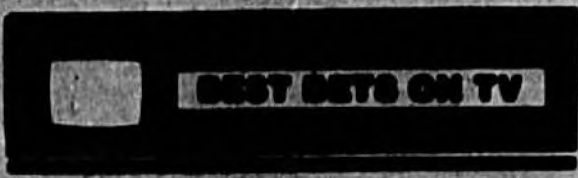

JACKSONVILLE — Derek Lowe allowed seven hits and struck out 10 in seven innings as the Jacksonville Suns beat the Knoxville Smokies 9-1 Wednesday in Southern League action. Jose Silva (4-3) took the loss.

Burrell again 'fastest human'

LAUSANNE, Switzerland — Leroy Burrell is the world's fastest human again, and he can only hope he will keep that designation a little longer this time.

Burrell re-entered the record books for 100 meters by bursting to a 9.95-second time Wednesday, one hundredth of a second faster than Carl Lewis' three-year-old mark.

Burrell held the world record at 9.90 for 2 1/2 months before Lewis snatched it in the 1991 Tokyo world championships.

Scott joins 'Champions'

SHS triple jumper named nation's top track athlete

By TONY DeBORNIER
 Herald Sports Editor

ORLANDO — In his four years at Seminole High School, Andre Scott elevated the quality consistency to unexplored dimensions.

● Scott never missed a day of school.
 ● Scott, a member of the Seminole track team, never missed a day of practice.

● Scott was nominated for and received a citizenship award all four years.

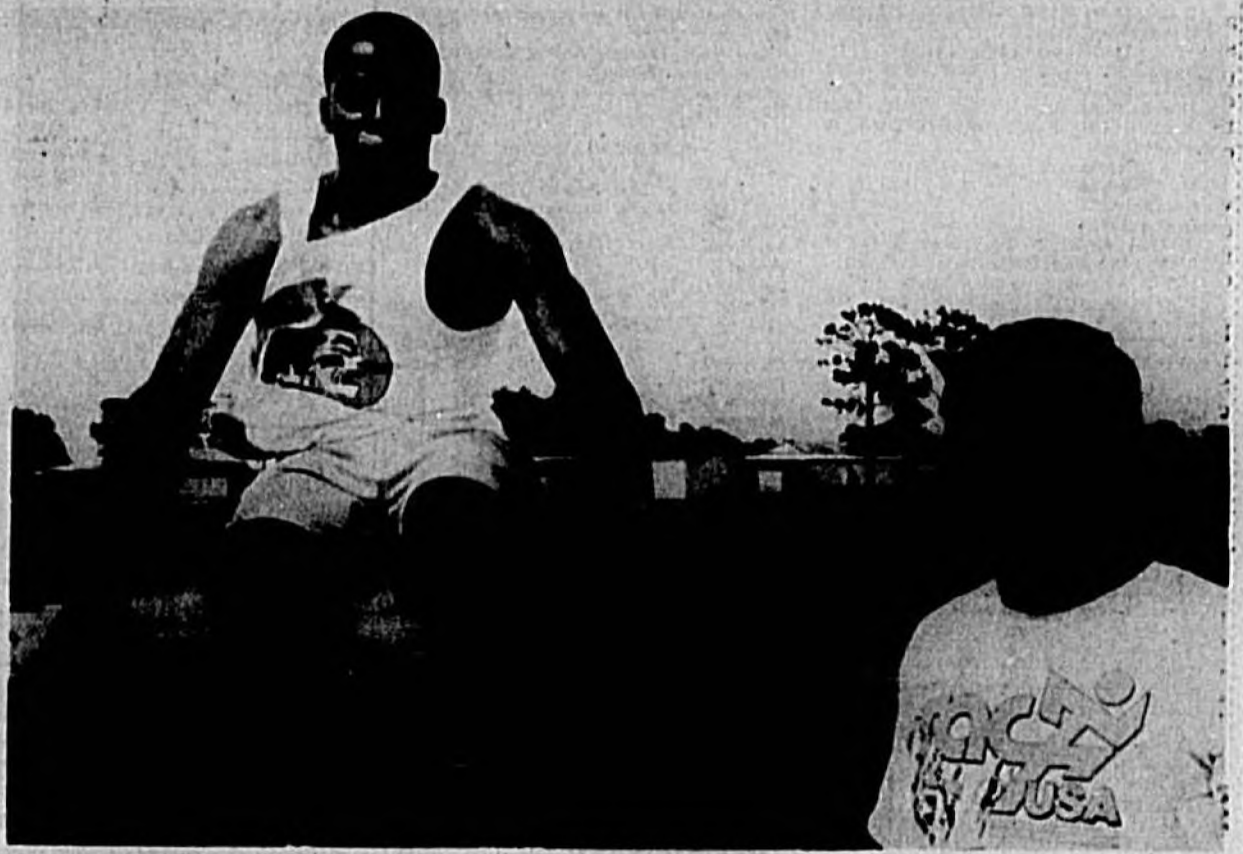

● In the triple jump, his personal specialty, Scott has so many jumps over 50 feet in sanctioned competition that Seminole coach Ken Brauman believes he has more by himself than all the rest of the Florida high school triple jumpers, past and present, combined.

A two-time individual state champion, the state record holder, and owner of the nation's best triple jump (53 feet, 7 1/2 inches) in a high school meet, Scott's consistency was rewarded with his being named the Gatorade Circle of Champions National Boys' Track and Field Athlete of the Year.

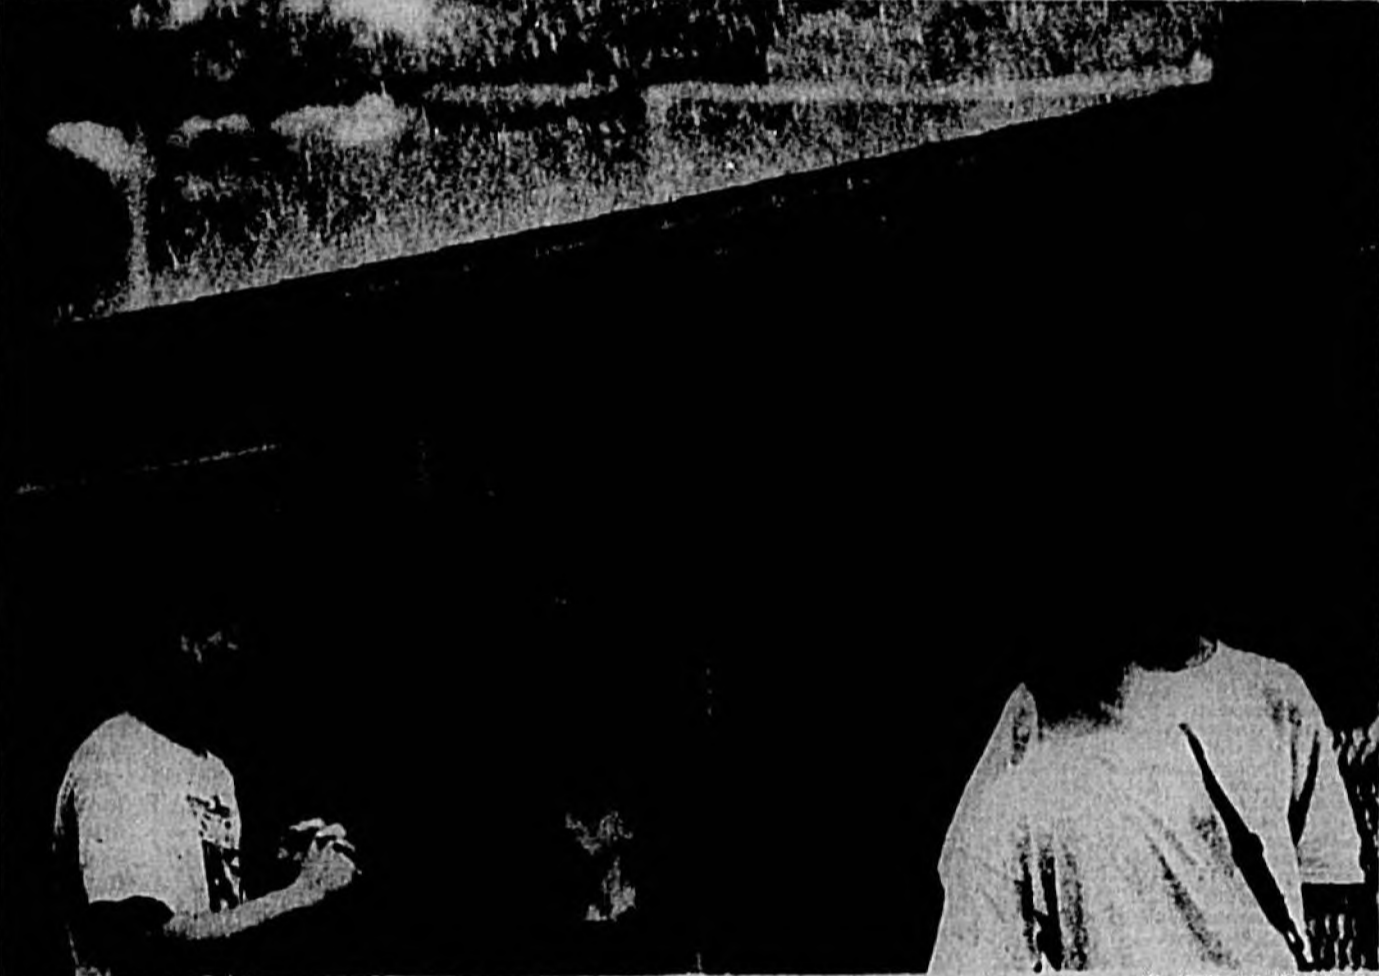

The announcement was made Wednesday afternoon at the Radisson Plaza Hotel.

"Andre is unique," said Brauman, who recruited Scott for the triple jump when he came to Seminole.

After waiting an extra 30 minutes for their game with the Altamonte Springs Americans to start Wednesday night at Eastmonte Park, the Casselberry Little League Junior All-Stars and friends will have to wait 24 hours to complete the game. Rain forced the postponement of play with one out in the top of the fourth inning.

Dist. 14 forced to take a night off

By TONY DeBORNIER
 Herald Sports Editor

Youth baseball fans participated in that Florida summer ritual known as the Little League rain dance Wednesday night.

It began in Oviedo and Winter Springs, where players, parents, and fans gathered for second-round games in the District 14 Major (11-12) and Senior (14-18) All-Star tournaments.

Rain and lightning soon made that impossible, so some teams and their entourages were mobilized, heading east ahead of the storm to Altamonte Springs' Eastmonte Park.

That turned out to be a wasted journey because by the time they arrived, rain had started to fall there and interrupted play (the start of which had already been delayed 30 minutes due to rain.)

By 9 p.m., everybody was headed home, hoping to try again tonight.

According to a Little League spokesman, the few games that had begun will be resumed tonight from the point of interruption.

Family fun night salvages wet weekend for FASCAR

By PAUL MARZULLA
 Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — Despite dubious weather, the Florida Association of Stock Car Automobile Racing (FASCAR) hosted its second annual Fourth of July family fun night last Sunday, July 3, at Orlando Speedworld.

The regular weekend racing programs at Orlando and New Smyrna Speedway had to be rescheduled due to heavy rains.

The fun-filled evening included racing, free rides for children in the race cars, a demolition derby, dwarf car competition, and fireworks.

Melbourne's Gary Froeh kicked off the evening by holding off a late race charge by Dee Napier to take the 15-lap Bomber feature event.

Froeh, who started the race from the fourth position, took over the No. 1 slot on the fifth lap. Several laps later, Froeh had opened up about a six-car advantage over the rest of the field.

While running in second place on lap 12, Doug Gould blew an engine, bringing out a caution and forcing a restart.

"Dee drove me a real good race," said Froeh. "She really kept the pressure on me. At one time, about four or five cars were dominating our division. Now, on any given night, there's 10 or 12 cars that are capable of winning."

Rounding out the top five behind Napier, who had her best-ever finish, were Rick Schlimmer, Robert Jenkins, and Mike Trocki.

Tim Aultman charged from the middle of the pack to beat a 22-car field and win the Mini-Bomber main event.

Aultman needed only five laps to move from his 11th place starting position to the head of the field. Once on the pole, Aultman stayed in front the rest of the way for his fifth win of the year.

Trailing Aultman were, in order of finish, Waylon Flynn, L.D. Lassiter, Mike MacDougall, and Steve Gaudette.

Fred Peters used his advantage of starting on the pole to win the Run-About feature. Peters, who led every circuit, finished in front of Bill Lucas, Carl Peters, Tim Nicholas, and Jody Hayes.

While Bobby Sears was distancing himself from the rest of the Mini-Stock field, Eddie Tovet and Dink Sullivan were racing wheel-to-wheel for the runner-up spot.

That's the way they finished, Sears cruising to his 11th win of the season with Tovet edging past Sullivan for second. They were followed by Kevin DiMeco and Kelly Jarrett.

Barbara Pierce's bad luck in the Sportsman feature turned out to be good fortune for Rusty Edwards.

Edwards, who avoided a last-lap melee, raced to victory, finishing in front of Johnny Gamble, Fireball Maguire, Jimmy Johns, and Ed Reynolds. For the second consecutive week, Pierce blew an engine while leading the race.

Other feature event winners were Rick Lundeen (dwarf cars) and Tim Cordell (demolition derby).

The evening's activities concluded with a 16-minute fireworks display choreographed to the song "I'm Proud to be an American."

This weekend, the Florida Pro 125-lap Late Model races will be run Friday, July 8, at Orlando Speedworld and Saturday, July 9, at New Smyrna Speedway. All the regular classes — Limited Late Models, Modifieds, Sportman, Bombers, Mini-Stocks, and Run-Abouts — also will see action.

Racing at both tracks is scheduled to start at 8 p.m. The Florida Pro Superstars will take to the track about 9 p.m.

For more information, call FASCAR at (904) 427-4129.

IN BRIEF

Accreditation secured

JACKSONVILLE — The Council on Accreditation of Services for Families and Children, Inc., New York City, has just awarded Children's Home Society of Florida (CHS) a Certificate of Accreditation, according to Howard Weisz Jr., president and CEO of the society. CHS has been accredited for an array of 13 distinct services.

"Accreditation, which is a four-year period, attests that an agency has met a set of nationally established requirements which help ensure quality service" according to David Shover, Council Executive Director. "Accreditation provides assurance that the agency is performing services which the community needs, conducting its operations effectively and managing its funds wisely" he said. "The Council accredits over 600 multi-service organizations in North America and is the only independent accrediting body that provides quality assurance on a broad range of family and children's services."

Children's Home Society of Florida is a founding member of the Child Welfare League of America, and a member of the National Association of Homes and Services for Children. Founded in 1902 in Jacksonville, CHS has a staff of more than 1,000 who work in 14 divisions that blanket the entire state of Florida. It is a United Way agency in 36 Florida cities.

Volunteer faithful to labor of love

She assists the needy at Christian Sharing Center

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Correspondent

LAKE MARY — Ethel Carlson began volunteering in other endeavors such as the Little Red Schoolhouse Soup Kitchen but for the past nine years she has remained faithful to the Sanford Christian Sharing Center. Her faithfulness has also remained steadfast to her husband, Carl.

They have been married for 50 years. Lake Mary has been their home for 13 years. They have a son, Richard. Their daughter, Linda, passed away several years ago. Their four granddaughters have been a constant source of pride and joy.

The family attends Grace United Methodist Church in Lake Mary where Carlson involves herself with the administrative board and the missions committee. "Every year I give a report to my church about the sharing center," she said. She spoke proudly of how she has missed very few meetings with the Lake Mary Commission for the past 13 years.

Carlson is a charter member of the Lake Mary chapter of AARP. It is active with the Community Improvement Association for the past 10 years, and participates as a member of the Lake Mary Woman's Club.

Carlson works every Monday answering the phone, interviewing people in need and working the desk. The center helps families with food and clothing. "I interview people who come in for help," she said. "We screen the people coming in to see if they are really in need. There is certain criteria. We don't have any money to give so they may be referred to another agency if that's what their need is."

reference if help is necessary at a later time. "We give emergency food and clothing," she said.

"We do get some government food. We buy through Second Harvest at seven cents a pound for canned food. Most of the help is received from money donations from churches that have us as part of the budget. Other donations come from groups or individuals. We take donations of clothes, food and money. We do get some donations of frozen meals to us. Paulucci does at times send pastas and frozen meals to us."

Carlson recalled one person coming in for help who has always stood out in her mind. "There was a lady and her three children who came in for help," she said. "Her husband had thrown her out of the house. She had those three small children. Tears were rolling down her cheeks. We did help her with food and clothing but that's all we could do."

Carlson expressed the good feeling you get when you are able to meet a need. She spoke of the good fortune of the center. "We've been really fortunate to carry on as we have and be able to help as many people as we have," she said. "We're there and we can always use all the help we can get with volunteers and money to operate. With the economy as it is times are tough." Her sincere praise went to the center's director, Irene Brown. "She's an excellent director," she said. "She's a very capable woman and holds everything together."

Carlson is a very busy woman but her devotion to the center for such a long time is to be admired. She wanted to stress the need to help others. The Sanford Christian Sharing Center is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to noon.

Ex-husband is flirting with disaster

DEAR ABBY: The problem is my ex-husband (I'll call him John). After many years of marriage, we are now divorced. Since our divorce, John has stopped drinking, lost weight, pierced his ear and acquired a toupee.

He has always been a womanizer. He's an alcoholic, but has been sober for four years. My concern is his refusal to use a condom.

John has informed me that he is going to have a vasectomy so as not to impregnate any of his girlfriends. He says he does not need to use a condom because his partners are professionals, well-groomed, and he has no need to worry about AIDS. He has been referred to as a "charmer" and prefers women 10 to 15 years younger than himself. (He is 42.)

Abby, not only is he in danger, but what about all these women he's had sex with?

IF THE SHOES FIT

DEAR IF: Any man or woman who has unprotected sex is risking his or her life as well as the lives of his or her partners.

ADVISE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

No condom is 100 percent safe — but a person as promiscuous as John is a danger to himself and his partners when he doesn't use a condom.

Fortunately, he's not your problem anymore. However, because of his sexual history, if you and John have been divorced less than 10 years, it would be a good idea for you to be tested for AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases — and then move on with your own life.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law took all her grandchildren camping — eight kids in all. Some of the kids brought their bicycles; some didn't. My son (I'll call him Tommy) saved every penny he got from birthdays, Christmases and mowing lawns to buy his bike. He was constantly polishing it. It was his pride and joy.

My mother-in-law insisted that Tommy share his bike with the other kids. After much protest, Tommy realized that Grandma would not listen, so he gave in. His cousins took turns riding his bike off the end of the dock into the lake! Tommy was devastated to see the bike he had worked so hard for treated that way. He came home very angry.

I think Grandma was wrong not to consider Tommy's feelings. What do you think?

MIDWEST MOM

DEAR MOM: You're right. The bicycle was Tommy's, and he should have decided who, if anyone, rode it. Because Grandma insisted he share it, she should have made sure his cousins took good care of it. Since she didn't, she should have insisted that the cousins reimburse Tommy for the damage done to his bicycle.

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing an advertisement for flowers to be planted around a mailbox. I am a mail carrier, and while the flowers around a mailbox may look great, they attract bees, and I'm highly allergic to bee stings. Please, Abby, ask your readers not to plant flowers around their mailboxes.

J.S. ROGERS, ENGLEWOOD, COLO.

DEAR J.S.: Consider it done, and the suggestion could be carried a step further — no flowers around gas or water meters, thus protecting meter readers from the danger of bee stings.

Get to know facts about HIV infection

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband recently graduated from college and is now employed as an RN. I've noticed myself becoming nervous during intimacy because of the fear of being infected with the HIV virus. He assures me that he uses every precaution taught in school and incorporates those that the hospital imposes. Are my fears irrational? Are health care workers at a higher risk than the rest of the population?

DEAR READER: I won't term your fears "irrational," but they are probably unwarranted. Most hospitals have strict regulations regarding patients' bodily fluids. If your husband is meticulous in following the appropriate protocols, you and he should have no worries.

It's true that hospital workers are at higher risk of contracting HIV, the virus that causes AIDS; this is because the very nature of patient/provider contacts is such that professionals are more likely than is the general population to be exposed to the virus.

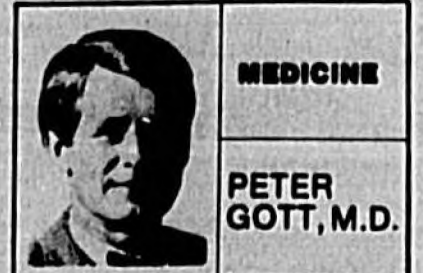

However, HIV infection in hospital personnel is very infrequent and is unlikely due to direct contact with patients. The majority of cases involving HIV transmission from patient to caregiver are due to inadvertent sticks with contaminated instruments or from improperly used procedures, such as not being gowned and gloved. If your husband adheres to accepted policy, he should have no problems.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Blood -- Donations and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've heard that eating cayenne pepper will reduce the effects of arteriosclerosis and improve blood circulation in affected arteries. Is there anything to this?

DEAR READER: Cayenne pepper is a wonderful spice that is an intrinsic ingredient in many delicious ethnic foods. When eaten, it has not been shown to possess any properties that are beneficial to health and will not improve circulation or retard arteriosclerosis.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
Yesterday I gave a deal in which it was logical for the declarer to start with a finesse. If that finesse won, he would adopt one line of play; if it lost, he would follow another.

Today's deal isn't like that, but it still requires logical thinking to get home safely. How should South plan the play in three no-trump after West leads the diamond six?

Some authorities say that you should never open one no-trump with a hand containing a low doubleton. I disagree. Suppose you open one club with that South hand and partner responds one diamond. What do you rebid? One no-trump is a bad underbid; two no-trump is as bad an overbid. You have no accurate rebid available.

True, here three no-trump is better if played by North. But one example proves nothing. When you have a balanced hand in the right range, open one no-trump. It will save you a lot of headaches.

At trick one, South finessed dummy's diamond jack, losing to East's ace. Back came the diamond nine. West carefully overtook with the 10. Declarer won with dummy's king and played a club, but West won with the ace and cashed his diamond winners: one down.

South took his defeat philosophically, but, as Bertrand Russell wrote, "Philosophy is an unusually ingenious attempt to think fallaciously."

If only South had played a low diamond from the dummy at trick one, nothing nasty could have developed. At the worst, the defenders would have got four tricks; and with this layout South might have ended with an overtrick.

By Bernice Bode Cool YOUR BIRTHDAY Friday, July 8, 1994

Something of significance might occur in the year ahead that will strengthen your faith and basic philosophical outlook. These factors could add marvelous new qualities to your character.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Through no fault of your own, you might be subjected to some minor frustrations today. If you're optimistic and mentally flexible, you'll know how to turn lemons into lemonade. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4485, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) What you set out to do can be accomplished today, but you must be tenacious, persistent and prepared to make changes whenever conditions dictate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In dealing with pals today, place friendship above desires of a material nature. If you follow this formula, you could derive pleasant unexpected rewards.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Ambitions can be fulfilled today if you're willing to put forth the effort required. You might have to carry the whole load yourself, so don't depend on anyone else.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Have total faith in yourself and your ideas today, or else minor setbacks could be magnified out of proportion and inhibit your progress. Treat mishaps philosophically.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Lady Luck might be looking the other way if you're inclined to take foolish gambles today. However, if you take a thoughtful calculated risk, she just may back you up.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Others will act on your cue today. If you show a willingness to be cooperative, they'll do the same. Set good examples and see for yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you feel you should be rewarded for something you recently did, don't be afraid to blow your own horn. The fact you haven't been properly acknowledged could just be an oversight.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Activities that are likely to give you the greatest pleasure today could be those that are the least expensive. A big price tag doesn't contribute to the quality of the product.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Even though it might cause you a degree of inconvenience today, make it a point to finish to the last detail that which you set out to do. Rewards for accomplishment could be impressive.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your hunches could be rear-rank material today, so don't depend upon them instead of using your practicality and logic. Intellect is the winning ingredient.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Possibilities for gratifying your material objectives look good today, provided the goals for which you're striving are realistic.
