

Lake Mary Negotiating For New Water Tap

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

The city of Lake Mary has gotten rapped on the knuckles again for failing to move fast enough toward getting its own water production system.

The rap came from the Sanford City Commission, whose major concern is protecting its water reserves for upcoming development within its city limits. Sanford has been supplying water to Lake Mary since 1976. Lake Mary's rapid development brought the problem to the forefront early this year.

While Lake Mary now serves 951 accounts, plans are on the drawing boards to double that service with 1,000 proposed new homes and apartments.

Sanford City Commissioner David Farr has suggested Lake Mary's elected officials are more concerned with selecting a mascot tree for the community than solving the problem of acquiring its own water production system.

However, Lake Mary Mayor Walter Sorenson said several negotiations with developers are under way.

These include:

—A proposal for a way to enhance the city's distribution system to deal with the southeast corner of the city.

—An offer to build a system by developers of Feather's Edge, an apartment development currently underway at the northwest corner of Sun Drive near Rinehart Road. The offer includes a pay back plan, Sorenson said.

—A proposal from Residential Communities of America, which plans to build more than 700 units on property near the Mayfair Golf Course. No details are yet available.

—A tentative offer from Patricia Stenstrom for the use of three wells on property running from Rinehart Road to Rantoul Lane. The wells are in a line with one close to Rinehart, one close to Rantoul and one in the center between the other two, Sorenson said.

"We hope to have a meeting of the minds by gathering together with all these people," Sorenson said, by mid-July, probably in time for action by the City Commission at its July 21 meeting. "We plan to milk these proposals into a cohesive plan for everybody."

Concerning Feather's Edge, Sorenson said the apartment complex, the second to be built in the city, will have more than 50 units.

The city's first apartment complex, Dorchester, is being built by Paulucci Enterprises on Rantoul Lane and County Road 46-A.

Meanwhile, the Sanford City Commission last week voted to permit Lake Mary to add 10 percent more customers over the 951 accounts it is serving. That would give Lake Mary the ability to connect only 951 new homes to its water system.

Sanford became concerned about Lake Mary's development about two months ago when it was announced that RCA planned to purchase more than 200 acres from the Southward family on County Road 46-A near Rantoul Lane as a site for developing more than 700 single family homes and villas.

Sanford City Manager W. E. "Pete" Knowles reported Sanford has 9 million gallons per day water capacity and is using an average of 7.2 million to 7.4 million gallons daily. He said a city generally should have one-fourth to one-third of its capacity in reserve for fire fighting.

The Sanford commission noted that with more than 400 new housing units in two new developments on the drawing boards in Sanford, the city must also reserve capacity to serve those developments.

22 In Florida, 1 In County Die On Roads

At least 22 people — including one in Seminole County — lost their lives in auto accidents on Florida roads during the Fourth of July weekend.

One victim was a New Jersey man whose car bounced off a median and rolled over six times, the Florida Highway Patrol reported today.

The patrol had predicted 27 traffic fatalities during the 78-hour holiday period that began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Monday.

An Orlando man was killed on State Road 438 near Longwood on Monday when the car he was driving struck a pickup truck.

David Matamoros, 42, of 700 S. Grove Ave., Orlando, was driving a 1977 Plymouth east on SR 438 at 4:50 a. m. when it collided head-on with a truck driven by Brian Shanley, 36, of Apopka at the intersection of SR 438 and Hunt Club Boulevard, the Florida Highway Patrol reported.

At least four of the weekend deaths were believed to have been alcohol-related, a patrol spokesman said.

Jonathan Haaf, 19, of Beverly, N.J., became the 22nd Florida fatality at 4:35 p.m. Monday when he lost control of the car he was driving and hit a highway median near Titusville. The car bounced off the median and rolled six times, ejecting Haaf and a passenger, a patrol spokesman reported.

The patrol spokesman said he did not know the identity or condition of the passenger.

Aaron Todd McCoy, 21, of Panama City, was killed less than two hours earlier when the driver of the car he was riding in swerved to avoid a place where the pavement was uneven. The driver lost control and McCoy was ejected when the car overturned, a patrol spokesman reported.

Earlier in the day, 61-year-old Hollis Clifton Brown was killed near Melbourne. His car was northbound on South Tropical Trail when another vehicle crossed the center line, causing him to pull off the road. Brown lost control of the car and rammed a tree, the patrol reported.

At least three of the dead were pedestrians, including Christine P. Huckabee, an elderly Crestview woman whose body was thrown 84 feet when she stepped into the path of a car as she walked along U.S. Highway 90 two miles east of Crestview.

The highway patrol reported that Ms. Huckabee, whose age was listed only as "late 60s," had been drinking before the accident at 11 p.m. Sunday. Hers was one of at least four deaths related to alcohol, the patrol spokesman said.

Nationally, the death toll climbed to nearly 400 today, but officials in several states credited tough new drunk-driving laws and massive arrests with keeping fatalities down.

An exception was California, however, where traffic deaths this year far exceeded those of 1982.

A United Press International count early today reported 394 deaths in the holiday period.

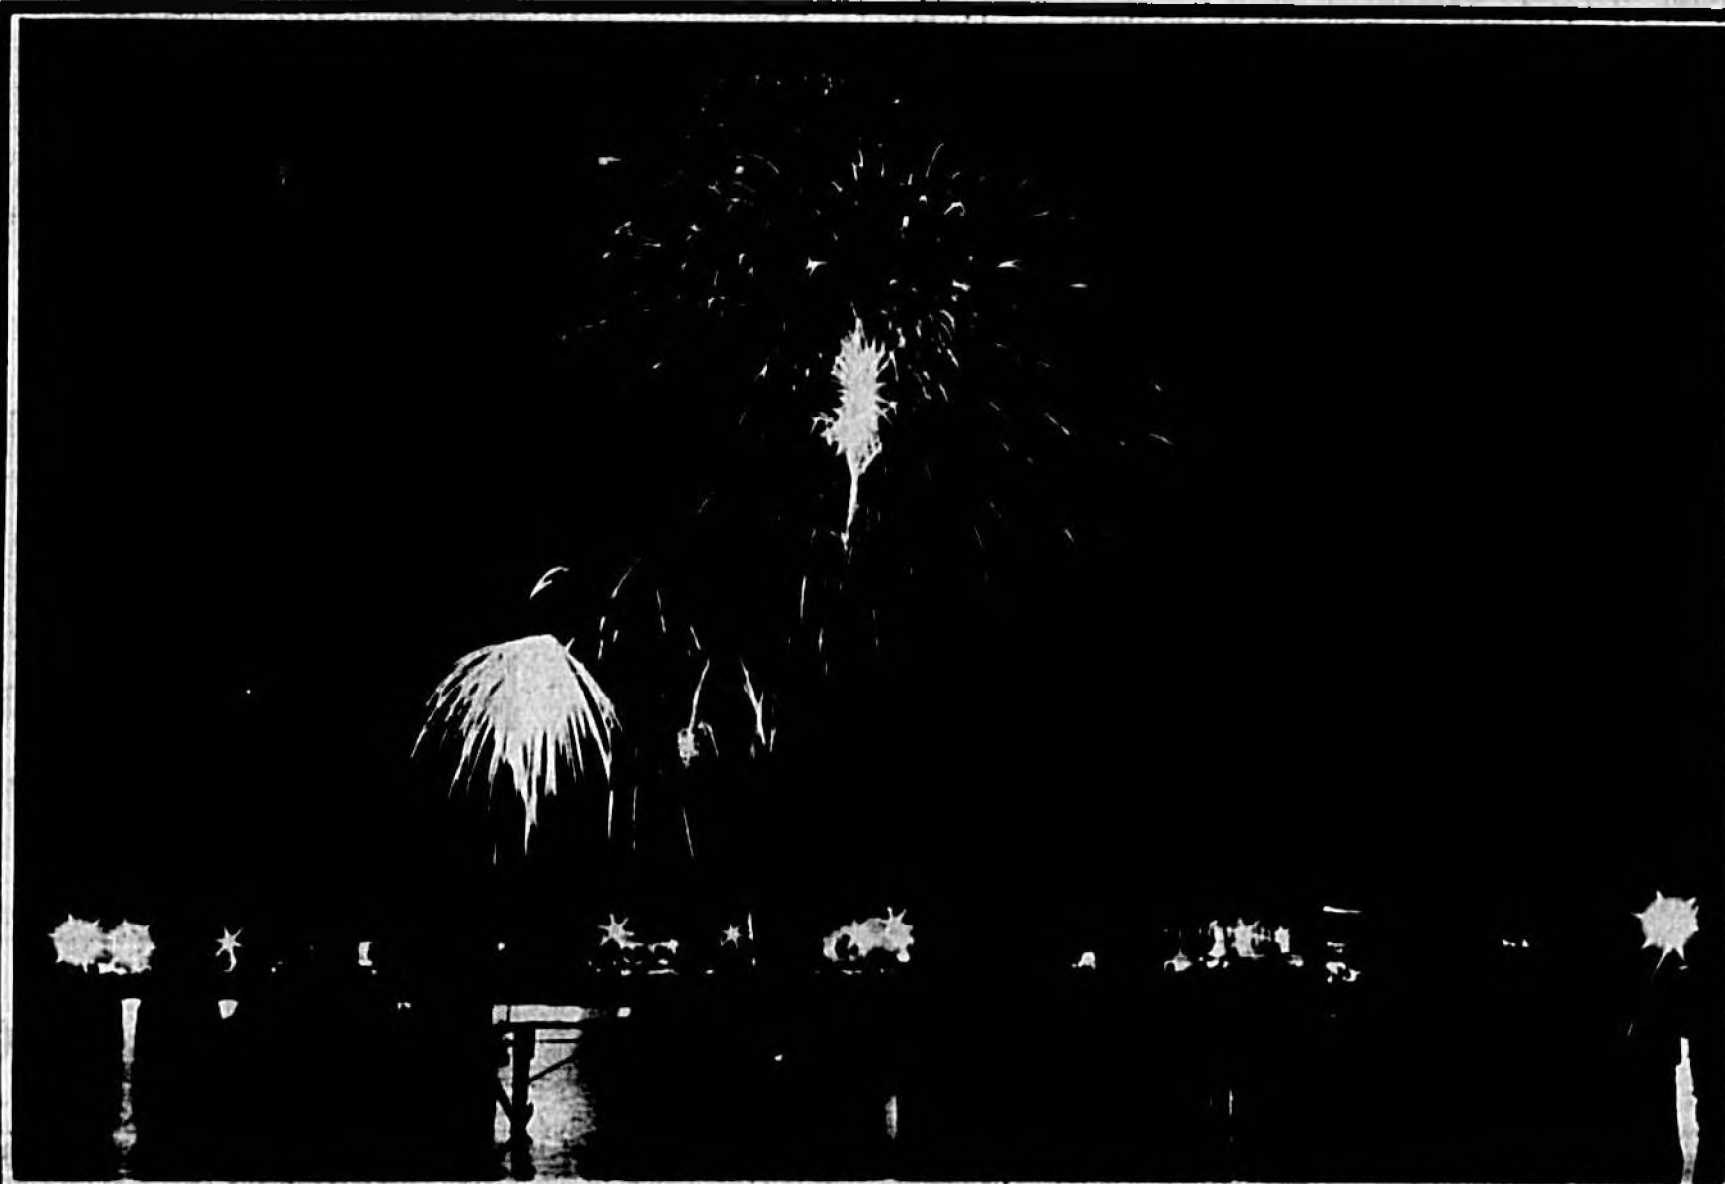

The National Safety Council estimated 420 to 520 people would die in traffic accidents during the weekend, with another 20,000 to 24,000 suffering disabling injuries. Last year, 470 people died during the Independence Day holiday.

Texas reported 49 deaths, 14 of them pedestrians, and California 48, with 16 of them caused by drunken drivers.

Illinois counted 18 dead; South Carolina, Georgia and Ohio, 13; Tennessee, New York and Alabama, 12; Oklahoma and Michigan, 11; and Virginia and Louisiana, 10.

The California toll was significantly higher than last year's holiday weekend total of 84. The California Highway Patrol said drunken drivers caused 16 of the state's deaths, including four people killed Saturday night in a head-on collision in Santa Cruz.

A spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety said it was "not unusual" to have numerous pedestrian deaths. "At this time, this type of accident is the leading cause of death," David Wells said.

Fireworks were enjoyed at several locations in Seminole County Monday night, including at the lakefront in Sanford.

Rain Fails To Dampen July 4th Fun

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

An estimated 15,000 persons turned out for the $3,000 fireworks display on the lakefront in Sanford Monday night, according to Jack Horner, president of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the Fourth of July Committee.

"It was fantastic! It was the best fireworks we've had since we started," he said. "I want to thank all the business persons, individuals and organizations who contributed to make it possible."

He said the rain which put a damper on family festivities in Fort Mellon Park in the late afternoon cleared in time for the fireworks show. Horner said that the groups sponsoring various concessions and booths did very well and he estimates that the share of their profits that will go to the Fireworks Fund will be approximately $1,200. The Democratic Executive Committee workers registered 60 persons to vote during the day.

Women Killed When Roof Collapses

An Orange County firefighter tramps through rubble left following the Aaron Sells roof collapse Monday in which one woman was killed and another injured. The body of Orlando resident Meggie Mobley, 49, was recovered from underneath the steel beam in the foreground, according to Orange County Deputy Fire Chief Edwin J. Spahn. Paramedics said they found her legs sticking out from under the steel truss, but could not detect a pulse. Karen Miller, 24, was trapped for more than an hour before rescue personnel could free her from the rubble. Spahn said workers had to use wood beams and blocks of wood to shore up the roof so it would not collapse on them or Miss Miller. She was taken to the Orlando Regional Medical Center, treated for minor injuries and released.

County Cuts Agencies' Requests

Seminole County commissioners spread the budget cuts around in their work session on a 1983-84 spending plan.

Not only did several county departments have programs and personnel requests cut from the budget but service agencies also got less than they wanted.

Community Coordinated Child Care, will receive $30,000, the largest amount of any service agency. The group sought $47,000.

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program, which provides volunteers for schools, governments and other groups, will receive $17,500 of its $20,000 request.

Grove Counseling Center will get $15,000 of its $25,892 request and Lighthouse Youth Ranch will receive $9,000 of its $20,000 request.

We Care will receive $6,000 of its $8,000 request.

Spouse Abuse and Catholic Social Services, two Orange County agencies which serve Seminole County, will receive nothing in the county budget.

Seminole Community Action, which asked for $19,823, has $6,000 set aside in a contingency fund.

According to the judge's office, no reason was given for the continuance and no date was set for a re-hearing.

Rosenwald Hot Meals Are Goal Of Parent

By Michael Beha
Herald Staff Writer

The lack of hot meals for students at the Rosenwald Exceptional Child Center has been denounced by a parent whose daughter attends the center.

Dick Skaggs, who fought with school board members earlier this year over their plans to build permanent classrooms at Rosenwald, says the children are not being given meals while attending summer classes at the center.

Seminole County schools are experimenting with a four-day summer school program with classes held five hours a day, Monday through Thursday. Meals are not served at any of the schools with summer programs.

Students at Rosenwald have been bringing cold sandwiches and snacks from home during the summer session, Skaggs said. There are no facilities available at the school for heating home-prepared food, he said.

But many of the students are on special diets and their food must be cooked to make it digestible, he said.

For those students, no provisions have been made, he said.

Skaggs said the school should be equipped with a full kitchen, an idea School Board members have steadfastly opposed. The school has a finishing kitchen and during the school year food is prepared at Lake Brantley High School and delivered to the school.

School officials said they have received no complaints. Don Rocci, director of exceptional education, said the staff must be taking steps to alleviate the problem.

The center provides educational training for emotionally and mentally handicapped students. Many of those students are institutionalized and one institution, Kradle Kare, is taking special action to provide its residents with hot meals.

David Meier, Kradle Kare administrator, said about 20 students from Kradle Kare return to the facility about 35 minutes early to stay on their regular meal schedule.

But Skaggs said no such action is available for the rest of the students at Rosenwald.

Skaggs said court action filed by Seminole County residents wanting to keep Crooms High School open has encouraged some parents of Rosenwald students to consider filing a lawsuit of their own.

He said the School Board has not given children at the center fair treatment.

Rocci said there are no plans to serve hot meals during summer school.

'Bookgate:' FBI Plans To Question Reagan Aides

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House Chief of Staff James Baker will be among those interviewed this week by FBI agents trying to find out how Ronald Reagan's campaign staff obtained a briefing book and other sensitive papers from the Jimmy Carter White House.

As the FBI prepared for the interviews, the western White House Monday discounted a report some top administration officials have been asked to submit resignations for Reagan's consideration.

And a former Carter aide charged Reagan's campaign jeopardized national security by operating a "sophisticated espionage ring" put together by CIA Director William Casey.

Justice Department sources said the FBI will talk this week with Baker; David Gerken, White House communications director; Pat Caddell, Carter's pollster, and David Rubenstein, a Carter adviser.

The investigation was ordered by Reagan last week, and the department called in the FBI. The White House has turned hundreds of pages of material over to investigators. A House subcommittee also is investigating the case.

Kucinich Tries Comeback

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Dennis Kucinich, who served as mayor during Cleveland's 1978 default, predicted he would win today's City Council primary and be on the road to a political comeback.

Kucinich, 36, a maverick Democrat, is considered the favorite among eight candidates in a primary to select two candidates for an Aug. 9 special election. Elections board officials expect a heavy turnout.

The top two will compete for the last two years left on the term of the late Joseph Kowalski.

Kucinich has not beaten an opponent since his 1977 mayoral victory and returned to his boyhood neighborhood to try to regain the winning form that made him a councilman at age 23 and mayor at age 31. He was the youngest big city mayor at the time.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Lightning, hail, tornadoes, winds up to 70 mph and drenching rain dampened Fourth of July celebrations from Texas to New York. At least 11 people died in the storms and scores were injured, including 12 outdoor concert-goers fleeing a downpour in Pittsburgh. The West enjoyed balmy temperatures and clear skies, slowing snowmelt runoff into manmade lakes along the flooding Colorado River. Thunderstorms raked West Texas, spinning off a tornado Monday near Big Springs. Storms soaked 100,000 people at a concert at the Washington Monument, collapsed a furniture store roof in Orlando, killing one woman and injuring another, and canceled fireworks and a concert by the Pittsburgh Symphony at the city's Point State Park. As a crowd of 40,000 people ran for cover from the Pittsburgh storm, at least a dozen were injured, three seriously, police said. Some were attacked by muggers as they fled. A possible tornado hit Midland in extreme western Pennsylvania, ripping the roof off a building and injuring a woman. High winds tore through Berkeleyville, 50 miles north of Pittsburgh, uprooting trees. The storms killed five people Monday and six other deaths were blamed on the weather during the holiday weekend. In New York state Monday, a Girl Scout died at Lake Luzerne when lightning struck her lean-to and a woman died at Lake George when a tree limb fell on her tent. Two women were killed and several other passengers injured when a Greyhound bus ran off an Interstate 71 overpass and down a 60-foot embankment near Carrollton, Ky. during heavy rain. The bus was en route to Louisville from Cincinnati. Hail and 60 to 70 mph winds were reported across Indiana and Ohio. There were widespread reports of smashed windows and toppled trees and power lines. Winds knocked a radio station off the air at Richmond, Ind. near the Ohio line. Four to 6 inches of rain flooded streets in Springfield, Mo. where motorists had to abandon their cars on flooded roadways. Storms around Washington, D.C. knocked out power in the suburbs and delayed a concert by singer Wayne Newton, attended by more than 100,000 people. Charleston, S.C. was socked with 60 mph winds and 3 inches of rain that flooded streets. More than 2 inches of rain fell at Dover, Del. About 150,000 people braved 98 degree heat to crowd the banks of the Charles River in Boston for a Boston Pops concert and fireworks.

Feminists Camp Near Nuke Storage Site

ROMULUS, N.Y. (UPI) — Hundreds of feminists from three countries opened a women's encampment for a "future of peace" next to a suspected nuclear weapons storage site, refusing to display a donated American flag and barring men from the main grounds.

About 500 women from across the United States, as well as England and Canada, gathered at a 52-acre farm in rural upstate New York Monday for the official opening of the Women's Encampment for a Future of Peace and Justice.

"It's amazing, it's exciting, to see so many of us together," shouted Kris Eberlein, an encampment organizer, as women of all ages applauded and cheered her welcoming speech. "In our protest and our revolution, may we all be heard."

The women are camped out on a farm they purchased next to the Seneca Army Depot in Seneca County, about halfway between Syracuse and Rochester. They are among many who say nuclear weapons are stored at the depot, although the Army refuses to confirm or deny the claim.

Monday's ceremony drew crowds of supporters who traveled to the hot, dusty campsite to help plant a rosebush at the gate of the depot, to symbolize their hope for peace through disarmament.

Although uniformed depot officials watched without comment as the women — singing, "All we are saying is give peace a chance" — lowered the rosebush into the ground before the depot's main entrance, a group of Vietnam veterans showed a measure of dissent by planting four American flags around the bush.

The veterans said they were displeased at the decision by encampment members — who said it symbolized militarism — not to display an American flag donated to them by a local citizen.

"They have their right to protest, but we're proud of our country," said veteran Tom Durling.

For the most part, however, the mood at the camp was celebratory.

In Altamonte Springs the city sponsored a $7,000 fireworks display and concert behind the Altamonte Mall that attracted an estimated 25,000-28,000 persons and caused a monumental traffic jam along State Road 436 and Interstate 4 as well as various side streets. "It took two hours to empty half of the parking lot," said Ron Grasha of the city recreation department. He said the rain delayed the start of a concert by the Altamonte Jazz Ensemble to 9 p.m. with the fireworks getting started 20 minutes later. The band also played for an hour after the 35-minute display that climaxed with a large fireworks flag flown in by a helicopter.

"It was really great fun," said chairman Cindy Brown of the Lake Mary Fourth of July festivities sponsored by the Lake Mary Civic Improvement Association. "It was the best crowd we've ever had. It rained out our '50s Dance," but all of our other activities were completed when it started raining."

She anticipates the CIA will clear at least $1,000 for its building fund.

The groundbreaking for the new community center was held with representatives from the various Lake Mary organizations, such as the city, fire department, police department, Woman's Club, Rotary Club, Chamber of Commerce, Extension Homemakers, the now defunct Civic Association that have supported the CIA project also participating.

Rear Admiral Tyler Dedman was the speaker at the patriotic ceremony at noon, which began the day's activities, among which were a barbecue, games, contests, and entertainment. "The Paragators, a precision jump team from Eustis, jumped on schedule and all hit the spot," said Ms. Brown.

"There was a tremendous surge of patriotic spirit in Oviedo on the Fourth," said Oviedo Mayor Robert Whittier. "Although the crowd was small — about 150 — at the flag-raising and dedication at the Masonic Lodge, the Navy Color Guard did a great job and the speaker, Col. George Snyder (USAF Ret.) was tremendous. The VFW served the best barbecue I've ever eaten and there were about 2,500 persons on hand for the fireworks display," he said.

The volunteer firement went out and collected enough money from local businesses for a 45-minute fireworks display which they launched themselves. "It was one of the finest I've ever seen," Whittier added.

Precious Creek, an 8-year-old with long blond hair from Orlando, won the title of "Little Miss Firecracker" in the Altamonte-South Seminole Women Jaycees' fifth annual pageant for little girls 5-8 held in the Altamonte Mall Monday afternoon. She received a $50 savings bond, a Polly Flinders dress, shoes, and tickets to various area attractions and eating places.

First runner-up in the pageant was Christina Garcia, 5, of Apopka, and second runner-up was Shannon Baker, 6, of Orlando. The girls took part in a medley of patriotic songs, a dance routine to "It's a Grand Old Flag," and individual interviews.

"There was a good crowd and it was a very successful pageant," said the chairwoman, Donna Verall, "a lot of the parents told me it was the best pageant they ever came to."

CIA Breaks Ground

Lake Mary Mayor Walter Sorenson turns the first shovel of earth for the community center to be built by the city's Community Improvement Association (CIA) at Crystal Lake Beach Park off Country Club Road, while former City Commissioner Harry Terry and CIA members watch.

Woman Terrorized By Man She Gave Ride To

A 38-year-old Longwood woman who agreed to drive a man home from a pub because he said he had too much to drink, ended up being terrorized at knifepoint late Saturday, sustaining a cut and other injuries before escaping.

Susan E. Digiovani, 1402 Noble St., told police a man approached her in the Lake Brantley Pub, Longwood, at about 7:30 p.m. and asked if he could sit down, had a few drinks then asked her to drive him home because he had had too many.

She agreed, police said, and took directions to an unknown location in Winter Springs. She drove to General Hutchinson Parkway and was told to take a left on some newly constructed roads across from Big Tree Park. Ms. Digiovani drove around to a loop in the road and was about to drive back out of the area when the man suddenly produced a knife and ordered her into the back seat. After getting in the back seat the man told Ms. Digiovani he was going to have sex with her.

Ms. Digiovani told police she was afraid so she agreed to have sex with the man, if he would put the knife down.

At that point, police said, the man grabbed her by the hair and put the knife to her throat. He then put the knife to her breast and continued to threaten her. But when he finally put the knife on the floor of her vehicle and started kissing her, Ms. Digiovani managed to grab the knife and throw it out the window. She struggled with the man and managed to get out of the car.

The attacker caught her, however, but she refused to get back into the car. He then got back into the car and ran into her, police said.

Ms. Digiovani said she was thrown onto the hood of the car and was forced to hold on while the man drove around at a high rate of speed.

The man then told her to get back in the car so he could drive her back to the pub. She got in the car and he drove her to State Road 434 where she managed to escape and call police.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies responding to the scene observed that she had sustained a large scrape to the left knee and a cut requiring stitches on her right middle finger.

BUSINESS BREAK-IN

Persons who pried open the east door of San-Del Industries, 2240 Old Lake Mary Road, left with an undetermined number of items between 4:30 p.m. Thursday and 6:15 a.m. Friday, police said. Owner Arnold Mues discovered the burglary.

COCAINE BUST

A 30-year-old Altamonte Springs man was arrested Thursday after Seminole County Drug Task Force agents reported he sold them cocaine.

Glenn Scott Davis, 317 Orange St., was contacted by undercover agents Wednesday and, agents say, he sold them one gram of cocaine for $100. The money was marked. When the substance was confirmed to be cocaine, agents obtained a search warrant from County Judge Alan Dickey for Davis' residence.

Carried out early Thursday, the search revealed a set of scales, assorted drug paraphernalia, a .357 magnum handgun, and the $100 agents used to buy the cocaine. Davis was charged with sale and possession of a controlled substance. He was later released on $8,000 bond.

Fire destroyed a mobile home at 113 Lake Shore Drive in Mobile Manor off State Road 434 in South Seminole County Friday night. Mr. and Mrs. Bob DeLaRosa and their four children who were renting the trailer were not home at the time. The blaze was reported about 8:15 p.m.

When Seminole County firefighters arrived at the scene, the mobile home was completely engulfed in flames and it took them 1 1/2 hours to extinguish the fire. After arriving home and seeing the fire, DeLaRosa complained of chest pains and was taken to Florida Hospital-Altamonte where he was treated and released.

Tom and Ann Douglas, owners of Douglas Hardware and Plumbing, purchased the mobile home next to their business last month and it was reportedly uninsured.

$500 TAKEN

An Orlando carpenter, working at a construction site on the southeast corner of State Road 434 and Raymond Avenue, Longwood, Monday lost $500 when his wallet was rifled when he went to lunch.

DUI DISPOSITION

Jay Butts, 200 Terry Lane, Sanford, who was arrested June 10 for driving under the influence, was ordered by Seminole County Judge Alan Dickey Thursday to pay a $500 fine, attend Advanced Counter Attack School, contribute $10 to the Crimes Compensation Trust Fund, and be under supervised probation for nine months, during which he may not operate a motor vehicle. In addition, his driver's license was suspended for five years.

Suspect In Fatal Fire Jailed Without Bond

TAMPA (UPI) — John "Billy" Ferry, described as a "time bomb" by his relatives, is being held without bond today on charges he killed two people at a supermarket by dousing them with gasoline and setting them on fire.

Ferry, 30, was taken to his first appearance before a judge Monday, and assigned a public defender, court officials said.

He was arrested Sunday and charged with first-degree murder and arson. He is being held without bond in Hillsborough County Jail.

Ferry, who has a history of mental problems, is accused of entering a Winn-Dixie supermarket Saturday night, covering customers with gasoline and lighting them on fire. One person died from burns at the scene, a second the next day, and five remained in critical condition today at Tampa General Hospital. Another eleven people were injured.

Temik Probe Ordered

ORLANDO (UPI) — Federal officials have ordered a study of the health effects of the pesticide Temik, which has been found in wells in eight of 10 states where tests have been taken, environmental officials reported.

Congress is demanding a better explanation of Temik's effects on health and drinking and ground-water supplies. Last week, legislators ordered the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to spend $1 million to study the pesticide and its effects on humans.

Officials are concerned about levels of Temik in groundwater because some scientists say the pesticide is poisonous and contact with it could cause dizziness, coma and death.

Wells tainted with the pesticide have been found in Florida, New York, Wisconsin, Maine, Virginia, Arizona, North Carolina and California.

Several other states may soon begin testing for Temik, a chemical used on at least a dozen crops and ornamental plants nationwide and in 60 countries.

Andropov's Failing Health Delays Talks With Kohl

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet President Yuri Andropov and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl met to discuss East-West relations today, a day behind schedule because of the Communist leader's unspecified health problems.

Andropov's appearance at recent public events has led to speculation that he suffers from Parkinson's disease or a kidney ailment, but there has been no official confirmation.

In a speech Monday, Kohl warned that NATO would proceed with installation of new American missiles in West Germany if there is no progress at the arms talks in Geneva.

In response, Soviet Premier Nikolai Tikhonov said deployment of Pershing-2 and cruise missiles would result in countermeasures to increase the security of the Eastern bloc.

Walesa Still Not At Work

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Lech Walesa failed to show up for work at the Lenin Shipyard again today and his bosses warned they may fire the former Solidarity leader unless he is back on the job by Wednesday afternoon.

"The deadline for him is 2 p.m. Wednesday," the end of the regular work shift at the shipyard, said Danuta Oczki, the yard's personnel director. "If he hasn't appeared by then his foreman will notify us, and we'll be entitled to take disciplinary measures."

Walesa, 39, reportedly was hundreds of miles from Gdansk, visiting relatives in a rural Polish province near Warsaw.

Walesa's tactics in taking his surprising vacation walkout were unclear. There was speculation he was trying to get himself fired in hopes of sparking an outcry among his 13,000 fellow Lenin Shipyard workers, almost all of whom are intensely loyal to Solidarity and Walesa.

Sentencing Reform Now Up To Supreme Court

By United Press International
A "truth-in-sentencing" reform package pending before the Supreme Court would require Florida judges to tally points on a score sheet when sentencing criminals, instead of relying on their personal judgment.

The uniform sentencing guidelines are scheduled to take effect Oct. 1 — if approved by the Florida Supreme Court — as part of a new reform package adopted by a Legislature-created commission.

The rules are a departure from the present criminal system, in which judges rely solely on their judgment to sentence criminals, and defendants are often paroled after serving as little as a third of their prescribed sentences.

Under the new rules, judges must give the same punishment to criminals with the same scores and submit a written explanation whenever a sentence deviates from the prescribed punishment.

After nearly three years of work, a 15-member commission adopted the guidelines last week.

If passed, judges from Key West to Pensacola will be required to decide sentences by computing a criminal's score on a standardized sheet.

The commission's guidelines now go to the state Supreme Court, which is expected to adopt them in August.

The new "truth in sentencing" bill would also put an end to early release of criminals by the Parole and Probation Commission. Criminals sentenced after Oct. 1 won't be eligible for parole. Those sentenced before then will still be eligible.

The reforms will mark the most dramatic change in Florida's criminal courts since the early 1970s, when a speedy-trial rule was adopted in 1971, and municipal courts and justices-of-the-peace were abolished in 1972.

Military Buildup Translates Into Huge Profits For Florida Firms

By United Press International
Profits are skyrocketing for Florida defense firms enjoying new contracts from spiraling military budgets that began to increase in the final days of the Carter administration and picked up speed under President Reagan, arms manufacturers report.

"There's surely been significant growth in our industry," said Nick DePasquale, general manager of missile systems at the Orlando plant of defense contractor Martin Marietta, where sales were about $1 billion last year.

"I see a continuous growth for the next five years," he said.

To Florida defense companies, who lead in such areas as aerospace research, missile production and military electronics, the military buildup means dollars and jobs.

Business at the state's two primary defense contractors — the 3,000-acre Martin Marietta facility in Orlando and Pratt & Whitney's jet engine test-and-design facility in West Palm Beach — is booming. Dozens of smaller defense companies are also thriving.

Industry officials credit booming business to the military build-up during the last three years. In 1982, defense-contract spending was up 28 percent over the year before.

And officials say it is just the beginning of a spiraling spending spree that could see the defense budget hit $385 billion by 1988.

Florida now ranks seventh among states in defense contract awards that exceed $10,000, and the contracts are concentrated in a handful of companies.

ERA: Better To Take Closer Look

Rather like one of those sandfilled, Bozo-the-clown punching bags, the Equal Rights Amendment just keeps bouncing back up. The Senate opened hearings in May on a motion by Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., and a flock of colleagues, to give the amendment yet another shot at passage.

If that session was any indication, ERA activists learned very little from their double defeat of the last decade. Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, greeted Tsongas with a series of unexpected, but not unreasonable, questions, and got only a puddle of "I don't know's" and "the courts would have to decide that." Does the ERA guarantee the alleged "right" of sexual preference? Would it force the Army to draft women? Tsongas promised to have a staffer look into the matter.

In truth, Hatch was engaging in a bit of dirty pool: Senate tradition has it that you don't grill a testifying colleague with detailed questions. Still, the exchange was a kind of metaphor for the whole ERA debate of the 1970s. The mere fact that there is any doubt on such basics suggests to many that the ERA is an exercise in constitutional roulette.

Frustrating though that sensibility may be, it can't be ignored. Most Americans favor the principle of equal rights for women; a vast majority, in fact, support the amendment, and did so throughout the ratification process. Yet few understand exactly how ERA would advance the cause of equal rights. Or why it's needed. And no one in the pro amendment camp seems to have the answers.

A recent study by Catherine England of the Heritage Foundation lists more than a dozen alternative fronts on which the battle might continue. Equal rights groups could press for the deregulation of cottage industries, giving women greater freedom to start businesses at home. States could remove some of the ridiculous restrictions on private day care, making it cheaper and easier for mothers who work. Tax laws could be rewritten to end continuing penalties on two-earner families.

Indeed, President Reagan has established a commission to look into these kinds of barriers to women's progress, but the Gloria Steinem crowd has shown little interest: Mr. Reagan's piece-by-piece approach is more tedious, and a lot less glamorous for placard carriers. It is, however, far more likely to secure gains for women. How sad it will be if the ERA distracts even a little attention and effort from the real, ongoing struggle for equal rights.

Regulate Boxing

Rep. Ron Packard, R-Calif., got down to the nut of the matter when he said, "We've ruled out animals killing animals and humans killing animals in bullfighting, but we permit humans to beat humans."

Packard, a member of the House Education and Labor Committee, was talking about prize fighting, which has resulted in more than 400 deaths of competitors in professional and amateur boxing in the United States and has scrambled the brains of thousands of others.

The committee recently approved legislation to allow the formation of a 10-member panel to make a six-month study of boxing and recommend reforms to Congress. The full House is expected to vote on the panel's formation this summer.

Boxing desperately needs federal safety standards, rules that will be observed equally throughout the United States. There should be a nationwide system of health and medical records for boxers and licensing and ring safety.

At present there is no effective regulation of boxing. A prizefighter banned from competing in one state because of injuries he has suffered in the ring can move on to another. There he fights under another name, often suffering irreparable injuries.

Most ring injuries and deaths are a result of brain trauma. The long-term pounding on a boxer's head causes a condition called dementia pugilistica, commonly known as the punch-drunk syndrome.

Boxing reform is a must and to be effective it has to come on a federal level. We hope the panel gets the go-ahead from Congress and comes up with some strong recommendations to bring safety rules to the ring.

BERRY'S WORLD

By Donna Estes

JEFFREY HART

On This Fourth Of July

It may have begun with the ayatollah. And the seizure of our hostages, but it strikes me that this country is going through a revival of patriotism. If my own college students are any measure, and I think they are, there has been a kind of revolution in our national sentiment.

The word "barbarism" has an archaic sound even now, but it may be in for a comeback. It seems to me that the opinion is gaining ground that a great many nations in this world are downright nasty. The old idea that the Third World is somehow morally superior has entirely collapsed almost everywhere.

No one really believes that the Castro regime in Cuba is admirable, and just the mention of the word "Cambodia" is enough to end any discussion of Third World virtue. The innumerable African and Asian dictatorships are repellent.

During the aftermath of World War II, the Soviet Union had many admirers in the West, but we now know too much and the Soviets have lost all credibility as a society and as a political system. Solzhenitsyn, Sakharov and the rest have sent to that.

And as the allure of foreign utopias fades, it seems to me, many Americans — including most intellectuals — marvelous to report — have learned to look with fresh eyes at their own republic, whose birth we celebrate on the Fourth.

Still, we are not so uninhibited in our patriotism as we were in my childhood, when the Pledge of Allegiance was a morning occurrence in the public schools, and when the evening of the Fourth lit up the sky with private fireworks.

I remain convinced myself that the recent eclipse of fireworks had less to do with "safety" than with a feeling — at least on the part of "enlightened" people — that American patriotism was a bit unsavory. Fourth of July fireworks and the U.N. Charter seemed to consort very uneasily.

I will never get over my astonishment at their youthfulness, these men who put their lives on the line against the armies and fleets of King George III. On the Fourth of July, 1776, Alexander Hamilton was 19; John Paul Jones was 29; James Madison was 25; Thomas Jefferson was an aging 33; and George Washington was an ancient 44. To adapt Winston Churchill's tribute to the R.A.F., never have so many owed so much to men so young — but also, of course, intelligent and courageous.

No Funds: Guerrilla War Halted

WASHINGTON — This is the story behind the story of Commander Zero's cease-fire in the guerrilla war against the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua. Unfortunately, it's the story of a colossal failure by the Reagan administration to seize a golden opportunity.

Commander Zero is the nom de guerre of Eden Pastora, the hero of the 1979 revolution that overthrew Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza. Appalled by the communist takeover of the Sandinista regime he helped put in power, Pastora went into exile and gathered other disenchanted Sandinistas for a new revolution.

When CIA-backed exiles, including many former Somoza national guardsmen, launched their counter-revolution from Honduras in the north, Pastora struck from Costa Rica in the south. His 2,000 guerrillas became the most effective anti-Sandinista force.

But the Reagan administration, in its infinite wisdom, turned its back on Pastora, preferring instead the "conquistas" in the north with their right-wing credentials. Pastora asked Washington for money to buy arms and food for his Back in the 1960s when Lawrence Swofford, then mayor of Altamonte Springs was searching for ways to build a sewer system in the city, the federal government was concentrating on providing minorities with service.

Swofford's eye was on federal funding. In fact, he used to have a thick book outlining federal programs on his desk that he studied early every morning when he went into his city hall office. At 6 a.m. or thereabouts, city hall was quiet and he could devote his full attention to the book.

The first thing he did, with the cooperation of the city commission, was have policy adopted requiring land developers as they were building new subdivisions to install dual sewer facilities for the new homes.

Not only were the developers required to build the regular septic systems, but also to install sewer lines for a future sewer system.

He perceived that development once begun would accelerate rapidly and that the nucleus of a sewer system could be started in this fashion with no cost to the city or its residents.

The developers moaned and groaned but with no other recourse, the sewer lines were installed and decided to the city. Swofford came up with many other ideas for the sewer system, some of which weren't feasible as he continued studying his federal programs book.

He encouraged the commission to purchase inexpensive land in Orange County, actually it was a pig farm, adjacent to where he planned Altamonte's city limits would be someday as a future sewer plant site. The property was on Keller Road and that is where the regional sewer plant is today.

And then the idea jelled to include Eatonville, the all-black community in adjacent Orange County and right next to the sewer plant site, as well as the black community of Winwood Park, just outside the city limits and off State Road 427, in the planned service area for an Altamonte Springs sewer system.

That was the magic formula necessary for gaining federal funding for a city owned sewer plant. Altamonte Springs had no concentrations of minorities within its city bounds. So, he borrowed a few to help his cause for the city itself.

With the black magic Altamonte Springs got the federal money. The sewer system was built and Altamonte's growth was assured.

Of course, it wasn't all that easy.

Eatonville was provided with sewer service for a fee and it continues to receive that service. But Winwood Park still doesn't have sewer service. The majority of the owners of small homes there plain couldn't afford the connection fees which in the beginning were $25 for a short time, later went to $125 and now have escalated to the point where there is no affording them by the poor in Winwood. And connection fees wouldn't be the only cost to those residents, they would also have to pay to run a line from their homes to the city sewer lines.

As time has passed and public officials and appointed officials have changed many times over at Altamonte Springs city hall, it has been forgotten or was never known by the majority of those now in office that Altamonte might still be a small community today if it weren't for the minority residents of Winwood Park. Some old-timers might prefer that the city had remained small, but then there's no stopping progress.

The Altamonte Springs City Commission in recent days decided to force homeowners in Winwood Park to connect to the city sewer system. The city is saying the septic tanks in Winwood Park are polluting Altamonte Springs' lakes.

It will be interesting to watch Altamonte to see whether it recognizes the debt it owes the poor in Winwood Park and whether it makes some fair arrangement with those residents so they can affordably take advantage of what has become an expensive service.

Darker Tobacco Hazardous

By Al Rosaler Jr.
UPI Science Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cuban women have the highest lung cancer death rates in the Americas and researchers say smoking is to blame with dark locally grown tobacco possibly aggravating the situation.

As in other smoking surveys, the Cuban study found that the longer a person smoked or more cigarettes he smoked, the risk of developing lung cancer was increased.

But of particular interest to researchers from the U.S. National Cancer Institute and the Institute of Oncology and Radiobiology in Havana was the fact that the risk of lung cancer was greatest in both men and women who smoked dark tobacco.

Dark tobacco has a higher concentration of nicotine and chemicals called phenols than the light Virginia-grown type of tobacco widely used in the United States.

Dark tobacco also is more alkaline than lighter tobacco. Some scientists had assumed that the alkalinity would limit the depth and frequency of inhalation of dark tobacco smoke, but the American-Cuban research team found the tobacco type had no influence on inhalation practices.

The scientists said definite conclusions about dark tobacco could not be reached in the study because so few people smoked lighter tobacco in Cuba. The report said additional research is needed to see if dark tobacco is indeed more dangerous.

The report in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute said a survey in the early 1970s on health in the Americas found that Cuban women had lung cancer death rates of 8.7 per 100,000 compared to 5.8 for American women, 3.5 for women in Argentina and 2.3 in Uruguay.

Cuban men had the fourth highest lung cancer death rates in the Americas — 24.3 per 100,000 compared to 26.9 in the United States, 27.8 in Argentina and 25.7 in Uruguay.

To investigate whether the high lung cancer death rates in Cuba could be explained by smoking habits, the researchers studied the cases of 219 women and 607 men in Havana who had confirmed lung cancer. They were compared to hospital patients who had a non-smoking related disease and to people who lived in the same neighborhood as cancer patients.

Half of the women with lung cancer and two-thirds of the men were over 60.

Three-fourths of the women with lung cancer and virtually all the men had smoked regularly.

Graham: Unfair Charge

By Sam Miller

TALLAHASSEE, (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham intends to get rid of one excuse House and Senate leaders used for their inability to agree on tax increases to generate money to improve schools.

Senate Appropriations Chairman Harry Johnston and House spending chief Herb Morgan chided Graham for, as they saw it, proposing the Legislature simply pour more money into education without making sure it is used wisely.

Graham said that charge was unfair, noting the House and Senate's education improvement programs had as their roots the findings of the Brown Commission on the high schools, which he appointed and which reported to him.

He also pointed out his state budget proposal released early this year included specific quality improvement increases for education and a package of taxes to produce the money.

And he said there was general agreement between his office, the House and Senate on the program areas that should be addressed to achieve better education quality, so he was willing to let legislators come up with the specific programs.

But if the Legislature wants specifics, he will give it specifics, Graham said last week, when officially announcing his rejection of the $2 billion basic public schools portion of the new budget.

The governor will unveil a plan sometime this week that will include the additional money he believes is necessary to meet his goals.

The goals include making Florida the 12th state in the country in per pupil spending and teacher and faculty salaries by 1985, his estimate of what it will cost to pay for the "RAISE" bill to improve the schools, some additional program changes and a package of tax increases.

Graham's starting point on taxes will be the package included in his original budget, increases on property, liquor, cigarettes and intangible wealth, but he may come up with a new program.

House Speaker Lee Moffitt has been doing some figuring on his own and he believes the Legislature needs to find $353 million to do an adequate funding job for the schools, even though he said he and Graham might have to settle for $200 million to $250 million.

Moffitt said the taxes on computer software and liquor sold by the drink proposed by the Senate when tax hike talks were at their height are still under consideration, as is the corporate profits tax increase the House passed.

He also is optimistic that with the Legislature focusing solely on education the House and Senate can agree on tax increases.

Graham is trying to get agreement from Peterson, Moffitt and other legislative leaders on at least the broad outlines of a taxes and education improvement program before calling a special session, a tactic he used successfully when getting tax increases for transportation last spring.

He has been conferring with Moffitt in Tallahassee and last week he flew to West Palm Beach for a meeting with Johnston.

tions, and from some governments in Europe and Latin America.

But what infuriates Pastora is what he claims is the CIA's deliberate sabotage of their fund-raising efforts.

"The CIA has told potential supporters of ours to lay off," Pastora complained. "They want us alive only to legitimize their puppet FDN force in the north."

Pastora said he had less than $400 left when he announced his temporary cease-fire on June 23. Ironically, it was the very success of his anti-Sandinista movement that drove it into bankruptcy — by bringing in more recruits than he could arm, clothe or even feed.

"When we began (on May 1), we were 700," Pastora said. "By the end of May we were over 1,000 and now we are 2,000 armed and in action. More are arriving every day. More than 2,000 civilian volunteers have come to our camp. Some hiked for up to 30 days and arrived sick and without clothing or shoes. We have nothing to provide them, and not enough men to protect them."

Raines Returns To Original Recipe For Hitting Success

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Tim Raines tried to be Al Oliver, then Wade Boggs — but when that didn't work — he just went back to being George Brett.

Confused? No need to be. In baseball, where imitation is definitely the sincerest form of flattery when it comes to hitting, it is not uncommon for players to adopt the batting stance of a highly successful peer.

And you won't find anyone more highly successful than Montreal's Al Oliver (.310 average) Kansas City's George Brett (.390 average three years ago) or Boston's Wade Boggs (.359 average). Or, Tim Raines for the past three weeks. The Montreal Expo left-fielder has burned up the league with the bat and the feet. During one seven-day surge, Raines hit .432 and stole 12 bases.

And it couldn't have come at a better time. His streak boosted his average to

Sanford's All-Star

.288 and his stolen base total to 34, which is tops in the National League where he has earned the Silver Shoe Award for leading the league in stolen bases the past two years.

More importantly, the surge pushed him past St. Louis Cardinal outfielder Willie McGee in the voting for the final starting position in the N.L. outfield for Wednesday's 50th All-Star Game at Chicago's Comiskey Park. Raines has been on the elite squad every year (three) in the majors. The last two he's been a starter.

Raines, though, said he doesn't feel he would be taking an All-Star spot next to teammate Andre Dawson and Atlanta's Dale Murphy if he hadn't switched from Oliver and Boggs to Brett.

"I changed my stance again," Raines said Saturday from Chicago. "I tried to copy Al Oliver and then Wade Boggs, but it didn't work for me. So, I went back to George Brett again. I feel a lot more comfortable and I'm showing a little more power (five home runs)."

Brett is the original recipe for Raines. He adopted the sweet-winged third baseman's stance — along with the Charlie Lau style of hitting — early in his career. It's composed of a slight crouch with the bat slung over the shoulder parallel to the ground. It allows the hitter to slash the ball in all directions. And with Raines' speed and switch-hitting stroke, it has made him almost indefensible when he is in a groove.

Still, all the stances in both leagues can't help a player who isn't confident, and Raines points to a renewed confidence as more than anything which has made him the Montreal catalyst of 1981 vintage and helped the Expos move into first place.

"I just got my confidence back," said Raines who underwent a 30-day program for drug rehabilitation during the off-season. "Especially on the basepaths. The pitchers had me confused the first part of the year. They were using different kinds of moves and quick-pitching to home plate. It bothered me because I wasn't used to it. I was seeing things I'd never seen before."

Then, he decided to get aggressive. "I just told myself 'I'm going to make the catcher throw me out,'" continued the 23-year-old Seminole High School graduate.

But the catchers haven't thrown him out too often. He has 34 steals in 41 attempts, and only four catchers have gunned him down. The other three came on pick-offs where the pitchers have caught him leaning.

Tim Raines...third All-Star berth

Raines' tentativeness on the basepaths is clearly documented. During the Expos first 52 games, Raines had just 15 steals. He picked up 15 more in the next 10 games. He is now up to 34 steals, some which have come on the pitcher.

A classic example was a theft on a Steve Carlton pick-off move to first base during a televised Monday Night Baseball Game recently. Raines said he had made up his mind he was going on the first move, whether it be to the plate or first base. Carlton made his move and Raines made his. The ball went to first base and Raines went to second, beating the throw easily for another theft.

And, it wasn't until two innings later that Raines knew Carlton threw to first and not home.

When you're as fast as Raines, sometimes it doesn't matter where the throw is going to or coming from.

Righetti No-Hits Red Sox

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dave Righetti, a young left-hander who has struggled under the burden of enormous talent, celebrated the Fourth of July by taking the pop out of Boston's bats Monday with the first major league no-hitter in nearly two years, giving the New York Yankees a 4-0 victory over the Red Sox.

Righetti, 10-3, threw 132 pitches, striking out nine batters and issuing four walks. He walked Jim Rice twice, in the first and seventh innings, Reid Nichols in the fifth and Jeff Newman in the ninth. Righetti struck out seven of the first nine men to face him and added his eighth in the fifth inning, when he fanned Dwight Evans for the second time.

The most difficult chance for the Yankee defense came in the sixth inning, when shortstop Roy Smalley raced into short left field to catch a pop fly hit by Glenn Hoffman for the second out of the inning.

Righetti received a standing ovation from the holiday crowd of 41,077 when he took the mound in the ninth. After issuing his final walk to Newman on a 3-2 pitch to open the inning, the 8-3, 200-pounder got Hoffman to bounce to shortstop for a forceout.

Jerry Remy bounced to second base and was thrown out at first, Hoffman moving to second. Wade Boggs, the second-leading hitter in the league, then struck out swinging on a 2-2 pitch to end the game.

The no-hitter was the first in the majors since Nolan Ryan's record-breaking classic against the Los Angeles Dodgers on Sept. 28, 1961. It was the first no-hitter in the American League since Cleveland's Len Barker fired a perfect game against the Toronto Blue Jays on May 15, 1981.

The last no-hitter to occur in Yankee Stadium was Don Larsen's memorable perfect game in Game 5 of the 1956 World Series against the Brooklyn Dodgers on Oct. 8. The last regular-season no-hitter involving the Yankees was thrown at them by Hoyt Wilhelm of the Baltimore Orioles Sept. 20, 1958, and the last Yankee to throw a no-hitter in the regular season was Allie Reynolds against the Boston Red Sox, in the first game of a double-header Sept. 28, 1951. It was Reynolds' second no-hitter of the season.

Righetti, 22, came to the Yankees with pitchers Mike Griffin and Paul Mirabella and outfielders Juan Riquelme and Greg Jemison in a trade with Texas on Nov. 10, 1978 that sent pitchers Sparky Lyle, Larry McCall, Dave Rajach and catcher Mike Heath and shortstop Domingo Ramos to the Rangers.

He helped pitch the Yankees to the 1981 American League pennant, going 6-4 in the strike-shortened year, then winning two games in the AL East Division series against the Milwaukee Brewers. He won one game in the AL playoffs against the Oakland A's.

Continued greatness was predicted for the fireballing left-hander who was born in San Jose, Calif., and was a first-round choice of the Rangers in the 1977 free agent draft.

But Righetti, who is prone to wildness, could not harness his stuff and was sent to the Yankees' Columbus farm team of the International League last June. He returned and finished with an 11-10 record and this year has shown increasing evidence of coming into his own.

After his last outing, a 7-0 victory over the Detroit Tigers that marked his first shutout in the majors, he wondered aloud over his chances of ever reaching the greatness predicted for him.

"I don't think I will ever reach my potential, what I have been projected to be," Righetti said. "But I'm getting better."

In the first inning Righetti threw 23 pitches in the 94-degree heat, starting the game by striking out Remy and Boggs. He then walked Rice for the first time on a full count after being ahead 1-2, but finished the inning by striking out Armas. He struck out two batters in each of the next two innings and two of his subsequent walks were erased when he picked off Nichols in the fifth and Armas grounded into a double play after Rice's second walk in the seventh.

John Tudor, 5-5, held the Yankees to two hits over the first four innings, but yielded the first run in the fifth on three successive singles with one out.

Steve Kemp beat out to first base, moved to second on Smalley's single and scored when Andre Robertson singled to left. Tudor walked Bert Campaneris to load the bases but then recorded his only two strikeouts of the game, Don Mattingly and Dave Winfield, to end the inning.

In the sixth, Don Baylor hit his ninth homer of the season, a line drive into the left field lower deck with one out.

In the eighth, the Yankees added two more runs. Winfield beat out an infield hit and moved to second after tagging up on a foul pop before Baylor was intentionally walked. Butch Wynegar then walked to load the bases and Kemp singled in two runs, finishing Tudor and bringing on Bob Stanley.

The last time that the Red Sox were no-hit was by Tom Phoebus of the Baltimore Orioles on April 27, 1968.

Dave Righetti tossed a no-hitter at the Boston Red Sox Monday afternoon as the Yankees whipped the Sox, 4-0, before 41,077 fans at Yankee Stadium. Righetti was in complete control, fanning nine and walking four. It raised the young left-hander's record to 10-3.

Tim Gets Money's Worth When Fined

National League umpire Bob Davidson isn't a member of the Tim Raines Fan Club.

In fact, it was a call by Davidson in Montreal June 27 which drew Raines' ire and led to his ejection from the game and $100 relieved from his wallet.

Chuck Rainey, a right-hander with a clever pick-off move, was hurling for the Chicago Cubs. "That team (the Expos) tries to get Raines on base and intimidate you with its speed," said Rainey. "I was determined not to let them get away with it."

"I got Raines by varying the tempo on throws to first."

The second time, Raines exploded. "I was safe. Just because he picked me off once, I guess the umpire (Davidson) thought he could do it a second time," said Tim who uttered one of those words which you don't say to the men in blue.

He also tossed his helmet in the direction of Davidson, which prompted the fine. Asked what he said, Raines just laughed and replied, "I got my money's worth." — SAM COOK

Riggins Hits 29, But Jitters Hurt In Opening Loss

KANSAS CITY — When you're just 12-years-old, 1,200 miles away from home for the first time and playing in the biggest tournament of your life — your coach is going to forgive some first-game jitters.

At least, coach Ron Merthie is. But the next time around — tonight at 6 against either Missouri or Arkansas — Merthie hopes to see his 12 and Under Sanford AAU girls on the right (winning) side of the scoreboard.

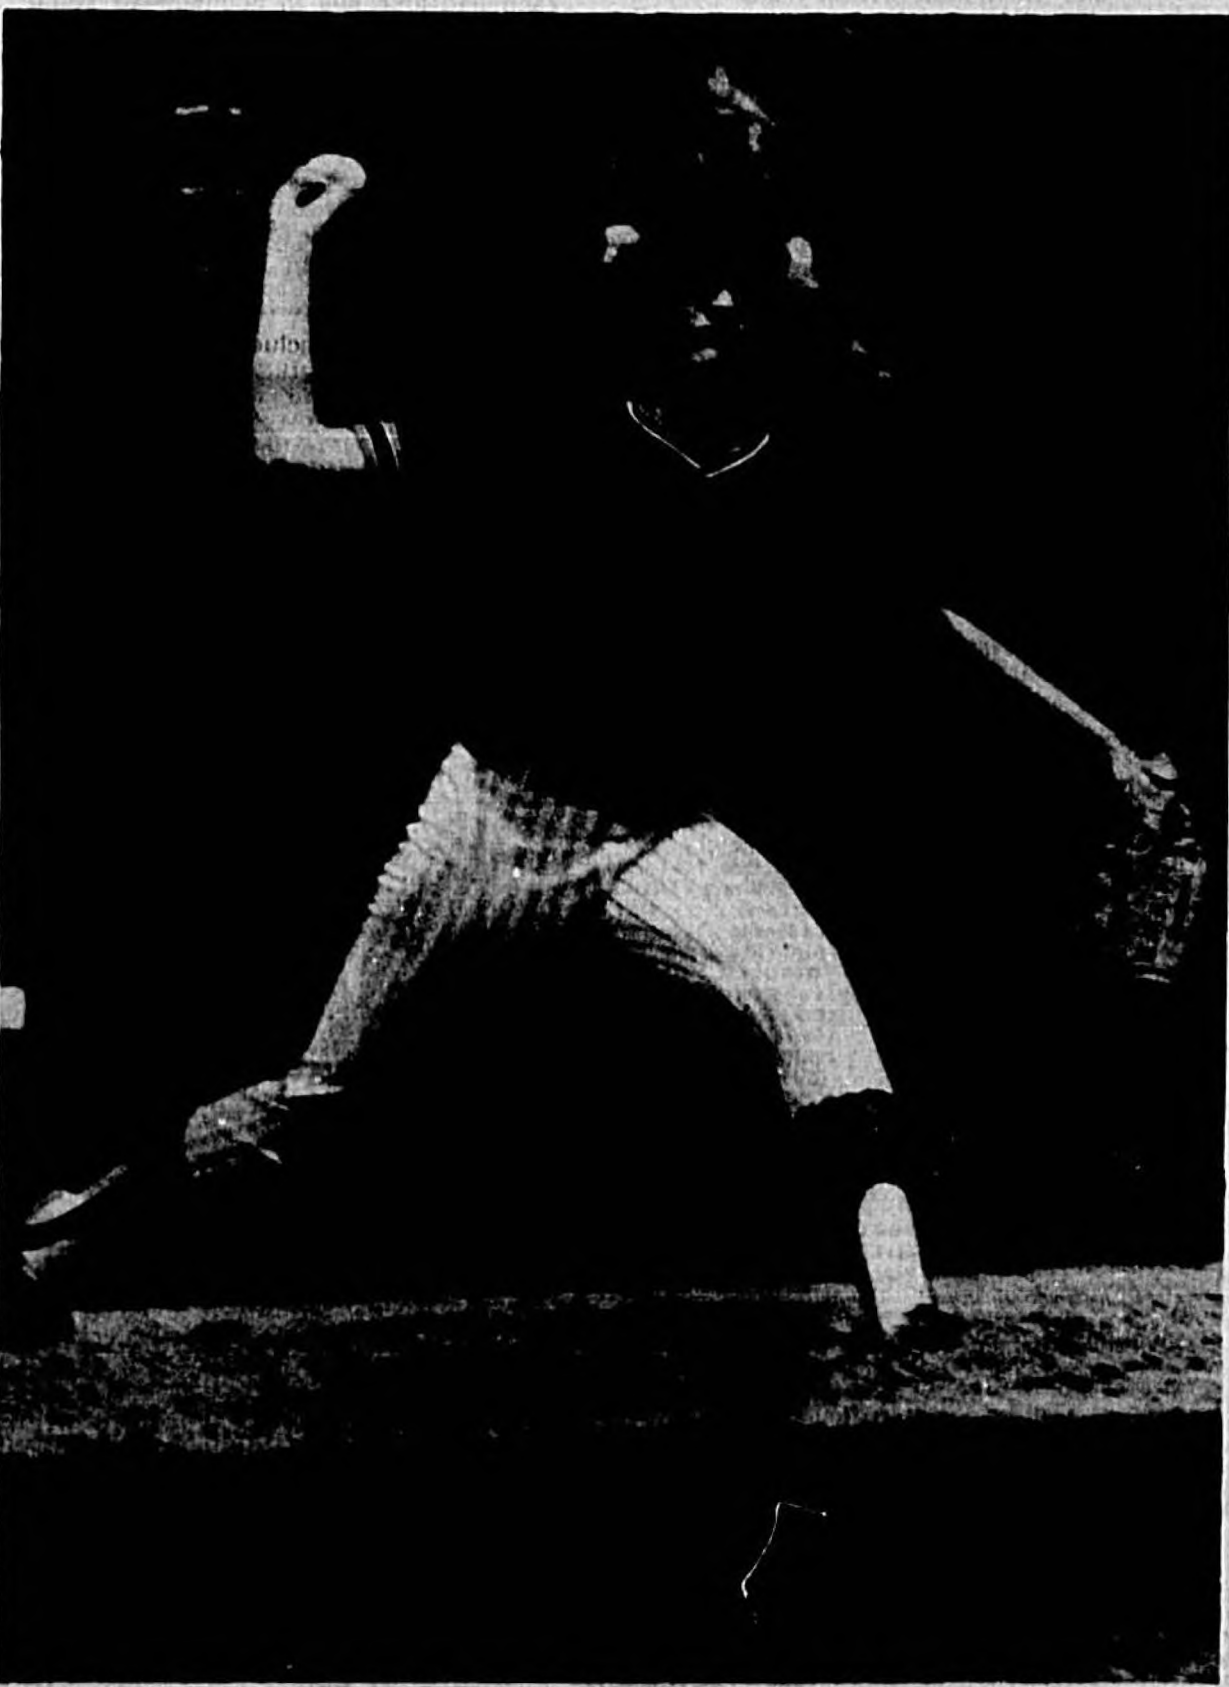

"We were very, very nervous," said Merthie after his girls dropped the first game of the National AAU-Jr. Olympics Basketball Tournament here to Virginia, 54-50. "Just four points. We should have beaten them, but Aretha Riggins and Letitia Strickland picked up four fouls each in the first half."

Merthie's guards foul problems kept the Sanford squad from pressing, something Virginia did very well, forcing the locals into 35 turnovers. "If we could have pressed early, I think we could have beaten them," said Merthie. "They pressed the whole game and we just got too far behind."

Virginia had Sanford down, 27-17, at halftime. Riggins, a speedy point guard, however, led a second-half surge which pulled Sanford back into the game. Riggins finished with a game-high 29 points, five steals and four assists. Her backcourt mate Strickland finished with 14 points as the dynamic duo accounted for 43 of the 50 points.

Tuwanna Wynn did the job on the backboards with 15 rebounds and four points. Terry White added six boards and two points while Virginia Miller tossed in a free throw.

The tournament opened Saturday with a big reception and a torch-lighting ceremony similar to the Olympics. A barbecue for all the participants followed. "It was really an impressive show," said Merthie, the varsity girls coach at Seminole High. — SAM COOK

Colts Try Again Tonight

The Seminole Pony Colts League Championship was interrupted Monday afternoon by the rain. The game was suspended in the top of the fourth with Casselberry batting with two outs, runners on first and second and Casselberry clinging to a 6-5 lead. Sanford is sticking with starter Chad Braden (left) while Casselberry went to David Cavanaugh in relief of Bruce Bonaventure. The game will restart at the same point tonight at 6 at the Seminole Pony Baseball complex near Winter Springs.

Americans Need To Beat Clermont Tonight For Rematch

Little Major Sub-District 2 Tournament
TONIGHT'S GAME
8 p.m. Sanford Americans vs. Clermont

A rematch between the Sanford Americans and the Sanford Nationals Little Major League All-Star squads is a possibility, but, the Americans must get by Clermont tonight at 6 as the District 4, Sub-District 2 Tournament returns to action at Leesburg. The winner of tonight's game will have to beat the Sanford Nationals twice for the title.

The Americans will go with southpaw, "Steady Eddie" Charles on the mound tonight. Charles hurled a one-hitter against Tavares in his first tournament game. Sanford manager Lawrence Hawkins hopes that Charles can go the distance since the relief pitching did not come through in the Americans 10-2 loss to the Nationals Thursday night.

Clermont has won its last two games after being upended by the Nationals, 6-0. In the opening game of the tourney, Clermont came back through the loser's bracket to rout Tavares, 20-3, on Thursday and slip past Leesburg Nationals, 4-2, on Friday to set up the meeting between Clermont and the Americans.

Sub-District Baseball

Here is an anatomy of the Americans play so far in the tourney:

Hitting — The Americans managed only three fluke hits off a pair of Nationals pitchers while the Nationals had nine hits off three Americans pitchers. In the two games it has played, after winning its first game by a forfeit, the Americans have a total of just eight hits.

Sanford American desperately needs some production out of the top of its batting order. Against the Nationals, the first five hitters were a combined 1 for 12. In the victory over Tavares, the first five hitters were 2 for 10 for a two-game total of 3 for 22. Those five players (Charles, Von Erik Small, Patrick Dougherty, Ronald Cox and Bernard Mitchell) will have to get their sticks going if the Americans want to stay alive in the tournament. The rest of the team isn't faring much better at the plate either; no player has more than one hit in the tournament. The biggest hit for the Americans was a two-run double by Mitchell in the Tavares game.

Pitching — Charles' one-hit performance against Tavares is the highlight of the tourney so far for Sanford American. The only hit off Charles was a second-inning solo home run by Tavares' Tim Caruthers. Charles went on to set down 14 of the last 16 batters he faced.

Against Sanford National, however, the Americans' pitching staff had plenty of trouble. The starter, Cox, lasted four and a third innings and gave up seven runs on seven hits. Relief pitchers Mitchell and Dougherty didn't do much better as the Nationals came up with three more runs in the last inning.

Fielding — The pitching might not have been so bad had the defense backed them up. Seven costly errors played roles in the scoring of six of the Nationals' 10 runs. Two of the errors were made on the same play. The Americans made only one error against Tavares and came away with a 7-1 victory.

Sanford American needs to put it all together tonight, as it did against Tavares. If it wants a rematch with the Nationals who are unbeaten in tournament play, if Charles pitched like he did in the Tavares game, and the bats come alive, the rematch should be right on schedule. — CHRIS FOSTER

Baker Outlasts Labonte To Win Firecracker 400

By Carl Vansura
Herald Motor Sports Writer
DAYTONA BEACH — With 100 miles to go in Monday's 25th Annual Firecracker 400 at the Daytona International Speedway, Benny Parsons, Ron Bouchard, Terry Labonte and Buddy Baker were content to swap the lead like a bunch of veteran race car drivers telling lies.

Then the lies became reality. The drama of the final gas stop began to unfold as the crew chiefs calculated just how far the high-test gasoline could be stretched.

Then, on the 145th lap, Parsons bowed out with a blown engine. Thirteen laps later with just two laps to go, Bouchard and new challenger Geoff Bodine both coasted into the pits — bone dry.

It became a two-man race: the perennial hard-luck runnerup Baker and Labonte. This time Baker had the horseshoe, however, as Labonte ran out of gas with just one lap to go and Baker, content to sit in a drafting position and make his move down the stretch, zoomed past to win his first Firecracker.

But it wasn't that easy. Baker's luck was yet to come. Just a quarter-mile from the checkered flag, he, too, went bone dry and coasted the final distance for a victory. A 29-second lead was enough of an advantage to take him home with his first win in three years, a total of 82 races. His last win was the Winston 500 in 1980 at Talladega, Ala.

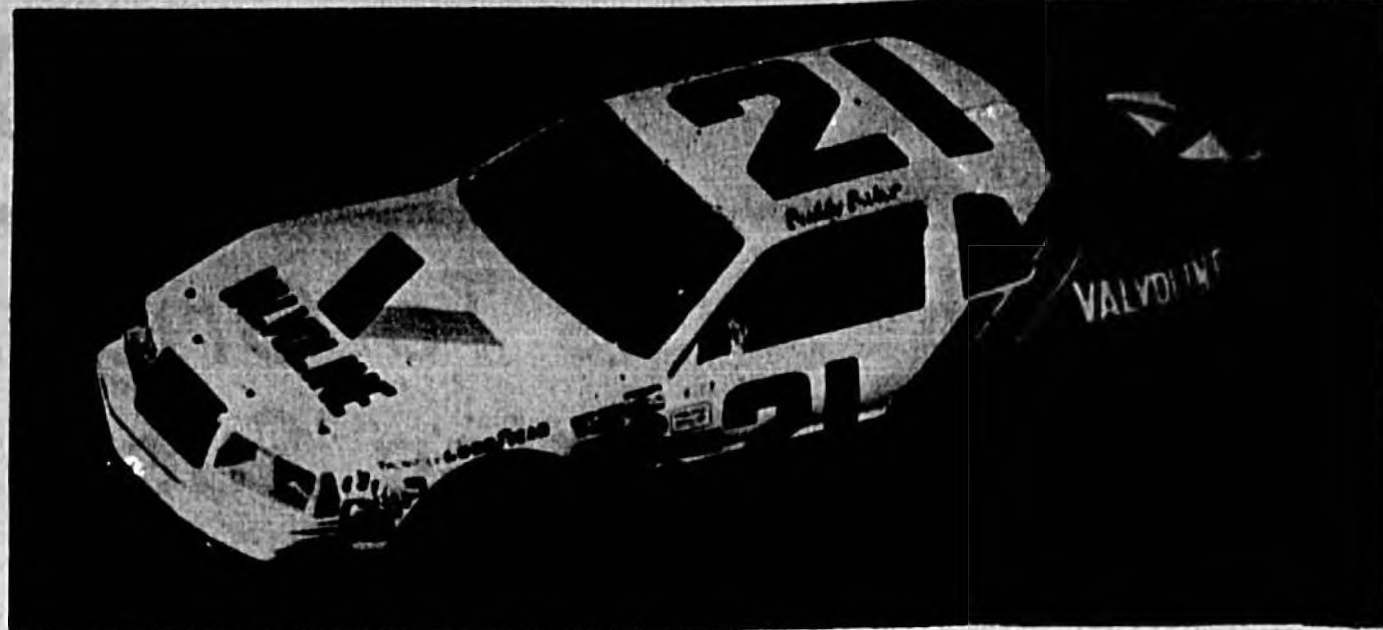

It took Baker two hours, 23 minutes and 20 seconds to run the 400 miles at an average speed of 167.442 miles per hour. Morgan Shepherd was second, three seconds behind the 42-year-old Baker's Ford. David Pearson finished third while Bouchard was fourth and Labonte was fifth.

"I was going to be in second place on the last lap even if a papersack was leading," said Baker. "I gave away the (Daytona) 500 this year when Cale Yarborough used a slingshot to beat me."

Yarborough, who was gunning to be the first man to sweep both Daytona races, had a short morning. His pole-sitting Chevrolet took a rock or some other object under the hood which knocked off the oil pump belt and blew his engine on the fifth lap. Outside pole sitter Joe Ruttman also went out early with a blown engine.

The only accident occurred among the front-running cars of Richard Petty, Dick Brooks, Neil Bonnett and Bobby Allison. Brooks scraped the wall earlier in the race, but the car was still thought to be

Buddy Baker, despite running out of gasoline with Morgan Shepherd, Baker collected $32,950 for the a quarter-mile to go, has enough left win the victory. Firecracker 400 Monday by three seconds over operable, even though a fender would eventually wear down a tire.

"Brooks blew a right-rear tire and it started shredding about two-thirds of the way down the back stretch," said Petty. "I guess (Dale) Earnhardt saw it and he pulled down the inside and threw up his hand. Allison went high and I followed him. He slammed on his brakes, and I did, too, but I ran into him and knocked him into Brooks."

The crash claimed Petty and Brooks, but Allison, the current point leader, and Bonnett were both able to repair their cars and stay in the race. Allison wound up 14th and Bonnett was 28th.

Baker's victory gave the Wood Brothers team a all-time Daytona International Speedway record of 12 wins. Baker, who collected $32,950 for his win, has six top 10 finishes since joining the famed Wood Brothers team. He also had several near-misses for first place.

Monday's race, though, was right on target.

Phillies Turn Age Into Experience To Stay In Race

United Press International

Regarded as too old by some, the Philadelphia Phillies were supposed to be watching the pennant race from a rocking chair. At the traditional halfway point of the season, however, they are sitting pretty.

Bob Dernier squeezed home a run Monday night and 38-year-old Steve Carlton evened his record at 9-9 with his 54th career shutout, leading the Phillies to a 4-0 triumph over the New York Mets before a Veterans Stadium season-high crowd of 52,710.

The decision left the Phillies 1 1/2 games behind first-place Montreal in the NL East, and suddenly their age looks more like experience.

"The atmosphere on the club is real good right now," said the Phils' 42-year-old Pete Rose. "On the field, in the dugout, in the clubhouse, around the batting cage. Everything was quiet for a while but now we seem to be coming together."

Carlton allowed four hits and struck out nine to raise his career total to 3,569, eight ahead of Houston's Nolan Ryan for first place on the all-time list.

Starter Walt Terrell, 1-3, took the loss for New York but was hurt by shabby defense. Ivan DeJesus singled to open the third, stole second and continued to third when catcher Junior Ortiz's throw bounced into center.

Dernier then dropped a suicide squeeze bunt.

"I anticipated I'd get the sign and it came on the first pitch," Dernier said. "It felt good to get a man home from third base. I left some there the last few games."

Expos 6-4, Cubs 3-2

CHICAGO (UPI) — It's All-Star week in Chicago and Andre Dawson and Gary Carter of the Montreal Expos — both starters on the National League All-Star team — made themselves right at home, much to the dismay of the Cubs.

Dawson slugged his 16th and 17th homers of the year in the first game of a double-header to lead the Expos to a 6-3 win. Carter also belted a homer, his ninth, and drove in three runs in the opener in support of winning pitcher Steve Rogers, 12-3.

In the nightcap, Dawson had a sacrifice fly and Carter belted his second homer of the day to lead the Expos and Scott Sanderson, 5-6, to a 4-2 win.

"Dawson's been doing it all year for us," said Expo manager Bill Virdon. "In fact, Dawson and Rogers have been doing it all year."

Both of Dawson's blasts off of Cubs starter Dick Ruthven, 5-6, cleared the screen in left field and landed in Waverly Ave., next to Wrigley Field.

A.L./N.L. Baseball

"I was looking for hard stuff from him (Ruthven)," Dawson said. "He's a power pitcher and in the first inning I got a fastball. The second time (in the third inning) he just got behind in the count."

Rogers was seeking his ninth complete game but gave way to Dan Schatzeder in the seventh inning when the Cubs tried to climb back in the game.

"We've struggled to be consistent," said Rogers, after stopping the Expos' five-game losing streak and the Cubs' six-game winning streak. "I'm not the only stopper. All our starters are stoppers."

Rogers said despite his win he doesn't think he has been throwing well. "I actually think I threw the ball better last year," he said. "But it's one of those years."

Tim Lincecum went 1-for-5 in each game, including a lead off triple in game two. Raines is hitting .288 going into the all-star break.

Astros 5, Dodgers 4

At Houston, Jose Cruz smacked his third home run in three games, snapping a 4-4 tie in the eighth inning and leading the Astros. Reliever Dave Smith, 2-1, picked up the win and Frank DiPino pitched the ninth for his seventh save. Steve Howe, 2-3, took the loss. The setback dropped the Dodgers one game behind Atlanta in the N.L. West.

Braves 9, Reds 5

At Atlanta, Chris Chambliss led a 14-hit attack with three hits and drove in three runs for the first-place Braves. Reliever Pete Falcone, the second of three Atlanta pitchers, improved to 7-1. Donnie Moore went four innings to pick up his fourth save. Bruce Berenyi, 4-9, took the loss.

Padres 4, Giants 3

At San Diego, Sixto Lezcano drove in two runs and Terry Kennedy and Juan Bonilla accounted for one each, helping the Padres overcome two home runs by San Francisco's Joel Youngblood. Rookie Mark Thurmond, 2-0, was the winner. Gary Lucas notched his ninth save.

Cardinals 2-1, Pirates 7-4

At Pittsburgh, Darrell Porter hit a grand slam and George Hendrick and Ozzie Smith each had four hits to highlight an 18-hit attack that salvaged a split for St. Louis. In the opener, Jason Thompson hit a three-run homer and Rick Rhoden, 6-7, scattered nine hits for the Pirates.

White Sox 12, Twins 6

At Minneapolis, rookie Greg Walker, who earlier clubbed a two-run homer, lashed a bases-clearing double to highlight a four-run eighth. Dennis Lamp, 5-5, relieved Floyd

Bannister with two out in the third and held the Twins to one run the rest of the way.

Royals 5, Angels 1

At Anaheim, Calif., before a league-high crowd of 63,132, Paul Splittorff pitched a four-hitter and Leon Roberts drove in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly to pace the Royals.

Brewers 8, Indians 3

At Cleveland, Ben Oglivie belted his fourth career grand slam and Ted Simmons singled home two runs to power Milwaukee behind the strong pitching of Don Sutton. Oglivie smashed Len Barker's 3-and-2 pitch deep into the right-field stands in the first inning for his first home run since May 14 — when he hit three against Boston. Gorman Thomas homered for the Indians.

A's 4, Rangers 3

At Oakland, Calif., Rickey Henderson stole three bases and scored on three sacrifice flies for the A's. Henderson's steals tied an AL mark for the most stolen bases in consecutive games, seven, with Eddie Collins of the Philadelphia A's in 1912, and Kansas City's Amos Otis in 1975.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Milwaukee Brewers outfielder Ben Oglivie will replace Reggie Jackson of the California Angels on the American League All-Star team, the league said today.

Kidd's Goal Lifts Strikers; Golden Bay Edges Rowdies

By United Press International

Brian Kidd may be coming off a knee injury, but his play seemed healthier than ever.

Kidd, who has five goals in six games since returning to the lineup, scored at 9:42 of sudden-death overtime Monday night to give the Fort Lauderdale Strikers a 2-1 victory over the Toronto Blizzard.

Kidd took a pass from Ray Hudson, and dribbling around defender Conny Karlsson, cleared a 12-yard shot to beat Blizzard goalkeeper Sven Habermann.

Earthquakes 2, Rowdies 1

At Tampa, Jan Goossens booted home the winning goal 10 minutes after scoring the tying goal to lift Golden Bay.

As regulation time was drawing to a close, Tampa Bay goalkeeper Tommy Boric accidentally passed to the Earthquakes' George Katakalidis, who fed Godfrey Ingrams. Ingrams turned and played the ball to Goossens, who hit a left-footed shot that beat Boric to the near post.

McCumber Edges Watson

OAK BROOK, Ill. (UPI) — The Western Open, the oldest stop on the PGA Tour, means something special in the careers of both Mark McCumber and Tom Watson.

For McCumber, the Western Open was his first professional tournament five years ago after he received his PGA card. For Watson, the Western was his first PGA tour victory in 1974.

Therefore, it was fitting that McCumber and Watson battled for the lead in the 80th annual, $400,000 Western Open Monday and each came away with a degree of satisfaction.

Stacy Wins Jackson Classic

MONTREAL (UPI) — Hollis Stacy says a disastrous third round gave her the incentive for a superb final round at the $250,000 Peter Jackson Classic.

Stacy won the LPGA tournament Sunday by two strokes after shooting a steady final-round 4-under-par 68 for a 72-hole total off 11-under 277.

Veteran JoAnne Carner and Alice Miller finished tied for second two shots back.

Stacy, of Hilton Head, S.C., said she was appalled at her third round play Saturday, in which she blew a three-stroke lead after a rain delay.

Kenyan Wins Peachtree

ATLANTA (UPI) — Kenya marathon champion Michael Musyoki's winning time for the Peachtree Road Race Monday was just 20 seconds over the record and a scant half-second over his closest competitor.

Musyoki, hampered by heavy southern heat and humidity, surged past countryman Joseph Nzau at the finish line to win the 10-kilometer race.

Woman's Club Entertains At Gala Membership Tea

The Longwood Woman's Club members entertained at a membership tea on June 28 at the club building on West Church Street.

Among the invited guests and prospective members attending were Rae Artman, Bessie Heavel, Betty Jean Eldridge, Joanne Hammond, Wilma Stenzel, Mary Mitchell, Louise Goodwin, Dorothy Rose, Onnie Shomate, Marie Weatherman, Lucy Neil Young, Patti McKinney, Joyce Mikkola, Nanette Myers, E. Ruth Grant, Carolyn Blalaine, Eula Scott, Nancy Warren, Mary Dell Hardy, Eloise Duncan, Irma Webb, Hazel Wilson, Karen Warner, Helen Schnelker, Doris Scott, Nellie Balkus, Ila Harp and Nan Durning.

Upon arrival, each guest was warmly welcomed by club president Elda Nichols and then invited to refreshments from a beautifully decorated table.

The club members were proud to show off the six new ceiling fans, three in the main hall, one in the kitchen, one in the library, and one on the stage, that were purchased with the proceeds from their recent variety show production, "Pot-pourri." The show was a great success with several of the participants recreating their acts at a recent political event.

The fans were just installed by five local volunteers: Russell Grant, Harold "Ed" Myers, William Mitchell, Anthony Taddeo and John George.

During the tea, Maxine McGrath and Gladys Piloian, both club trustees, explained some of the club's history, community involvement and purposes of a woman's club.

Club member Blanche Kissane gave the history of the club's historical library. The library houses approximately 25,000 books, covering subjects like Florida history, biographies, fiction, science fiction, westerns, romance, short stories and encyclopedias.

It is believed that this building was erected back in the 1870s on Markham Road and was moved to its present address in 1914. The library was started in 1912 and all the books were donated by area residents at that time.

In 1914, the Longwood Civic League purchased the building, moved it to its present location, and opened the library. The Longwood Woman's Club/Civic League invites area residents to come in to the library and make use of the hundreds of books available. The library is open every Thursday from 3:30 - 5:00 p.m., and Saturday, 9:30 - 11:30 a.m.

The library is operated by club members Maxine McGrath and Blanche Kissane. Blanche, by the way, is no stranger to books. She has had a few of her own books published and is currently writing another.

For the past several months, members of the South Seminole Garden Club have been doing some wonderful things in the community. Club members have been furnishing beautiful homemade birthday cakes to the residents of the Longwood Health Care Center on Grant Street. Each month, the club members hold parties for all the patients whose birthdays are that month.

The club members not only bake and decorate the cakes, but serve them along with punch. Florence Hannah, chairman of these events, is looking for volunteers to help out each month with the celebrations. It would be a wonderful chance to help someone celebrate their birthday, that might otherwise not be able to have any birthday joy at all.

Sing-a-long "songfests" are also conducted by the members and the patients always join in the fun. Several other local talented people have also offered their services to the fun-filled parties.

Stuart Wimsatt has entertained with his unique piano virtuosity. Rac Artman, Gladys Piloian, Terri Trautman and Nancy Warren were part of a group of women who dressed in snappy Charleston costumes to entertain. Lisa Glascock, a talented young pianist, has entertained with many older songs that proved highly popular with the patients.

Dottie Gilbert, activity director at the center, gives her highest praise to the garden club and to all the volunteers for their selflessness, love and involvement.

Test Helps Families Of Drinkers

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you printed a list of test questions for the excessive drinker. My husband took the test, found he needed help and started going to Alcoholics Anonymous. He hasn't had a drink in five months and he can thank A.A. for that.

At the same time, I started attending Al-Anon meetings. It certainly helped me cope with my home situation regardless of whether my husband was drinking or not.

Please print a list of test questions to help people decide whether they need Al-Anon.

Dear Abby

3. Do you tell lies to cover up for someone else's drinking?

4. Do you feel that drinking is more important to you loved one than you are?

5. Do you think that the drinker's behavior is caused by his or her companions?

6. Are mealtimes frequently delayed because of the drinker?

7. Do you make threats, such as, "If you don't stop drinking, I'll leave you?"

8. When you kiss the drinker hello, do you secretly try to smell his or her breath?

9. Are you afraid to upset someone for fear it will set off a drinking bout?

10. Have you been hurt or embarrassed by a drinker's behavior?

11. Does it seem as if every holiday is spoiled because of drinking?

12. Have you considered calling the police because of drinking behavior?

If the answer to five or more of the above questions is "Yes," you need Al-Anon. Look for its phone number in your telephone book. Or write to Al-Anon Family Group, Inc., P.O. Box 182, Madison Square Station, New York, N.Y. 10010, for information. Please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: We work in a public office and have contact with many people every day. Our problem is one co-worker who constantly chews gum in a manner that is very irritating to those of us who must work closely with her. The incessant noise of her chewing, popping and cracking continues without consideration for co-workers or clients.

We have nothing against chewing gum if it's done in an unobtrusive way, but this person is driving us up a wall with her noisy chewing, cracking and popping. Help!

OUT OF PATIENCE

DEAR OUT: If the gum chewer is unaware of her offensiveness, one of you should tell her privately, in a friendly way. If she is aware and doesn't care, tell her supervisor. And since there are several of you, there's clout in numbers. So get cracking!

Key To Success: Consumer Trust

By Gail Collins
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Clarence Birdseye learned the secret of quick-freezing fresh food by watching Eskimos catch fish. Ivory Soap didn't float until a careless workman left the stirring machine on too long.

David Powers Cleary discovered such tidbits while pawing through the attics of top U.S. corporations. The resulting history, "Great American Brands," chronicles the development of 34 "household names," like Hershey's chocolate, Campbell's soups, Spalding sporting goods and Levi's jeans.

"The quintessence of the American individual enterprise system is the building of a recognized brand," said Cleary, who acknowledged he tossed out some leading household products whose histories turned out to be "as humdrum as can be."

"H.J. Heinz was dullsville revisited," he said. "They just started canning pickles and packed one thing after another."

Cleary preferred the saga of Harley Procter, who had to convince his hard-headed father and uncle to provide a more alluring name for their "Procter & Gamble's White Soap." Mulling over his problem in church, young Procter heard the minister read Psalm 45:8. "All thy garments smell of myrrh and aloe and cassia, and out of the ivory palaces whereby they have made me glad."

Cleary also discovered what's in the 56-100ths percent of Ivory Soap that isn't pure (carbonates, mineral matter, uncombined alkali), and how the soap learned to swim. A workman forgot to shut off a stirring machine during his lunch hour, leaving the soap with a slight admixture of air. The mistake wasn't discovered until a retailer wrote to ask for "more of the soap that floats."

For Cleary, the stories all have a moral. "I had wondered for a long time what were the key ingredients in successful products and the building of a brand," he said. "The answer is so simple it almost seems ridiculous — trust. They are winning and holding the trust of the consumer."

Cleary likes the saga of Parker Pen, which rode out the ballpoint crisis of the postwar years, refusing to match the competition until, nine years later, it perfected the "T-ball Jotter."

"Parker pens were really hurt when Reynolds Pen came out with the 'pen that writes under water' — a spectacular promotion," he said. "But Parker would not put out a ballpoint pen till it met their quality standards."

The book notes triumphantly that Parker got to watch Reynolds Pen's "$12.50 price of Christmas, 1945, slid to 50 cents." The competition, Cleary said, "did not live up to its promises."

Although Clarence Birdseye learned the key to frozen food as a fur trader in Labrador, and Albert Spalding studied the sporting goods trade while pitching the Boston Red Stockings to a pennant victory, many of Cleary's heroes are men and women whose great leap to immortality was inspired by everyday frustration.

Dan Gerber, Cleary writes, got the idea for a line of commercially-prepared baby foods after an unhappy evening of helping out with the housework by straining his baby daughter's peas.

Cleary, 68, a veteran advertising man who now runs a market research firm in Tavares, Fla., believes the spirit he celebrates in his book is not dead.

"From my back porch I can see the space shuttle go up. That's a symbol to me of how we're still doing some things a little better than anybody else."

Mexican Economy Is Putting Auto Industry On Skids

By Luis Lim

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The automobile industry, once a fast growing arm of Mexican industry, is now virtually on the skids. There have been massive worker layoffs and one company is close to bankruptcy.

The industry, one of the first victims of Mexico's economic crisis, suffered an estimated 46.1 percent drop in sales in the first three months of 1983 compared to sales in the same period last year. Its worst performance ever.

The Mexican Automotive Industry Association blames inflation, which stands at 30 percent so far this year after running at 100 percent in 1982, three 1982 devaluations of the peso, a foreign exchange crisis and decline of Mexicans' purchasing power.

Inflation has nearly doubled the price of most cars in six months.

A Volkswagen Rabbit, called a Caribe in Mexico, sold for 360,000 pesos ($5,400) last September, but is selling for 800,000 pesos ($5,330) now.

Salaries have not kept pace with inflation, rising just 30 percent all of last year.

Prices of the car rise with each devaluation because many of the parts are imported.

Putting prices in dollar terms does not reflect the way hikes have affected Mexicans, because of the peso devaluations against the dollar.

Middle-class Mexicans have had a love affair with autos, especially large, U.S. styles, that rivaled that of the United States. In Mexico City alone, there are more than 2 million cars.

"For Vehiculos Automotrices de Mexico (jointly owned by the Mexican government and American Motors) the consequences of the crisis have reached the last link in the chain — bankruptcy," an industry specialist said.

Vehiculos Automotrices de Mexico recently suspended new car production, giving no indication if or when it will resume.

Symptoms of a growing industry crisis became visible last year. According to figures furnished by Volkswagen of Mexico's marketing department, truck and auto sales during 1982 totalled 466,844 units, off 18.4 percent from 1981.

The director of the manufacturing division of the Ford Motor Co. in Mexico, Rodolfo Weber, speculated that the market might contract as much as 60 percent by the end of 1983.

To cushion the market crisis, industry production will be periodically suspended, Weber said, with some plants closing three days a week.

The severity of the crisis already has forced the layoffs of 40,000 of the industry's 150,000 workers in Mexico, according to the National Businessmen's Council.

Ford, General Motors, Chrysler and American Motors all have reported personnel cutbacks since August — a major setback to the economy as a whole because the auto company employees are among Mexico's highest paid workers.

In the first three months of the year, 78,823 vehicles were sold in Mexico, a 46.1 percent decrease from the same period in 1982. In the same three months this year, a total of 87,881 units were produced, 43.4 percent lower than production figures for the same period of 1982.

The makes of car most successful at penetrating the market last year were Volkswagen, which sold 127,325 units, Ford Motor with 88,723 sales, and Chrysler de Mexico with 76,614 units sold.

Chrysler sales were off 34.1 percent last year, Ford sales dropped by 22 percent, and sales by VW (which has been less hard-hit as it manufactures economy cars) fell by 2.1 percent.

The Dina-Renault government-owned companies, which recently merged in an effort to fend off the crisis' effects, saw its sales decline from 44,453 units in 1981 to 37,262 in 1982.

"When there was a boom in Mexico, the automobile industry also had its best period," an industry association official said. "Everyone planned to buy a new car."

"Now, anyone who has an automobile is trying to take good care of it because no one is thinking of trading in for a new car in the near future."

Palm Oil Diesel Fuel Of Future

By Susan Robinson

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (UPI) — The spiky-trunked oil palm that was used as an ornament along big city streets also has produced oil for cooking, and it just may fuel your car before the end of the century.

Oil palm, grown commercially in the equator-hugging countries of Africa, South America, Southeast Asia and now China, already accounts for 15 percent of the world's edible vegetable oils.

Now Malaysian scientists, searching for alternative energy sources, believe they have made a breakthrough, converting palm oil into diesel fuel.

Preliminary studies by the Palm Oil Research Institute of Malaysia, called PORIM, show palm diesel fuel is cheaper than petroleum-based diesel, is almost pollution free and has a superior octane index resulting in improved engine performance.

"We found unexpectedly that in comparison to ordinary diesel, it was easier to start the engine, there were fewer carbon particles from the exhaust and the engine ran smoothly with no knocking," said Professor Augustine Ong, PORIM director of chemistry and technology.

The palm diesel conversion process is relatively simple and cheap.

Using sodium as a catalyst, crude palm oil or stearin — a cheaper, solid form of palm oil — and methanol are mixed and heated to about 189 degrees Fahrenheit to produce methyl esters or diesel.

"It's very attractive. The chemical reaction is completed in a short time, no high temperatures are involved and methanol is both cheap and abundant since Malaysia produces it," Ong told United Press International.

"Best of all is the high yield. From one ton of palm oil, we get one ton of methyl esters plus an important by-product, glycerine."

Researchers say an accurate economic assessment of the fuel will be possible only when a pilot plant, capable of producing 3,000 tons annually, starts up shortly.

Initial indications are palm diesel will be significantly cheaper than its petrol counterpart.

PORIM scientists calculated an $80 per ton difference between the price of regular diesel and the home-made palm fuel.

"Based on the current price of crude palm oil, it would be possible to process palm diesel fuel to be sold at $195 per ton — considerably less than the current subsidized price of petroleum diesel," Primary Industries Minister Paul Leong said.

Last year, Malaysia imported 50 percent of its 3.8 million ton diesel requirement.

From a dazzling fireworks display over Sanford's Lake Monroe, above left, to a skydiver floating gently to the ground at Crystal Lake in Lake Mary, the Fourth of July in Seminole County was a blast. Several Hurt By Fireworks

By United Press International
A New York man was "torn apart" by shrapnel from a garbage can he blew up with firecrackers, six youths were burned by explosives in their car and a Utah man participating in a Civil War re-enactment lost his arms in Fourth of July mishaps nationwide.

In Indianapolis, a 12-year-old boy threw a pack of burning matches into a fireworks display cabinet and crowded grocery store, killing the store with popping explosives and smoke, and frightened customers, police said.

"The people were terrified. They couldn't see," security officer Avery Blow said. The boy was charged with disorderly conduct and sent to the Marion County Juvenile Division.

Joseph Giglio, 23, of Staten Island, N.Y., was killed about 6 p.m. Monday outside a candy store where he detonated a package of M-80 firecrackers packed in a metal garbage can, police spokesman Sgt. Peter Ruane said.

"The shrapnel hit him and tore him apart," Ruane said. Ruane said the flying metal shards "blew a hole in his stomach and severed his right arm."

Giglio was pronounced dead at the scene. Ruane said Giglio had touched off the blast while eight others in the area watched. He said the victim was standing 60 feet from the garbage can when it exploded and killed him.

No one else was injured. Pieces of the metal garbage can were found a block away.

About 7:15 p.m., six New York youths riding in a car were burned when they lit firecrackers and tossed them out of their moving vehicle. Ruane said the wind apparently blew the firecrackers back into the car where they ignited other firecrackers.

Ruane said at least one girl, 17, suffered extensive burns and was taken to Cornell Medical Center's burn unit.

In Provo, Utah, Kenneth Huff, 39, of Orem, lost his lower arms and his right eye when a Civil War cannon accidentally discharged during a Civil War battle re-enactment at a Fourth of July picnic.

Three others were hurt in the cannon accident that occurred when about 15,000 people gathered at an old-fashioned holiday picnic, where a Civil War group was re-enacting a battle with a real cannon.

"During the dramatization, the cannon prematurely discharged while it was being reloaded," a police official said.

Eight people, including five children and a 78-year-old woman, were injured when a rocket fell into a crowd and then exploded at a city-sponsored fireworks display in Hollywood, Fla.

The victims were not seriously injured during the Fourth of July celebration Monday night. The injuries included burns, cuts, hearing loss and bruises, and all were treated and released from area hospitals.

The accident occurred shortly after 9 p.m. as a crowd of several hundred people watched the colorful conclusion of the 20-minute fireworks display sponsored by the City of Hollywood along the shoreline.

"During the grand finale, a fireworks display fell to the ground, striking several people," said police spokeswoman Theresa Thompson.

The injured were standing or sitting on blankets in a road about 75 yards north of the display area in a safety zone, officials said.

The five injured children were not immediately identified. The three adults were identified as Emtha Alonzo, 78, Bajo Jacmenica, 39, both of Hollywood, and S. Fusaro of Miami.

It was not immediately known why the rocket did not reach its apogee and then explode, police said.

Six years ago on Independence Day, six people were slightly injured at Miami's Bicentennial Park during a fireworks display when a rocket misfired, crashing into a crowd of about 15,000.

Girl, 11, Wins $55,000 Rolls

MIAMI (UPI) — Kimberly Shuler learned today she had won a $55,000 Silver Cloud III Rolls Royce, but it's too bad she can't use it. She is only 11.

The Monroe, N.Y., youngster won the black-and-silver luxury car — which is seven years older than she is — Monday night at a drawing sponsored by A Place for Steak restaurant in Miami. She was one of about 60,000 who entered the contest since January.

Kim didn't learn about her prize until early today, though, when she returned to her New York home from watching fireworks and got a long-distance phone call from Miami.

Her grandfather, Dr. Harry Weisberger, saw the drawing on a local television station. When he heard her name, he called restaurant owner Hy Uchitel to claim the car for his granddaughter.

"I thought my wife was going to go through the ceiling," Weisberger said.

Weisberger reached Kim at about 12:30 a.m. to tell her the news. "She didn't want to believe it. I had to keep reassuring her," he said.

Uchitel says it matters not that the Silver Cloud — the ultimate in motoring — will be going to someone who can't legally drive alone for another five years.

"She's the winner," he said. "We honor it." Kim submitted her name in the drawing in April, while visiting her grandparents during spring break from school.

Even though she is young, she says she understands the difference between winning a Rolls and winning a Ford.

"It's nicer and bigger and it costs a lot more," she said.

Kim's grandfather predicts she will never drive the Silver Cloud. Her mother will sell it and invest the money to pay for Kim's college education.

Kim said she isn't opposed to the trade-off. "We'll probably just sell it, put it away for college," she said. After all, she added, "I'm only 11."

NASA Considers Airport

ORLANDO (UPI) — Orlando International Airport officials support NASA's decision to consider the airport as a possible landing site for future space shuttle missions.

"I really do not think it would be a big operational problem and it would be quite a show," said Jack Gillooly, executive director of the Greater Orlando Aviation Authority. "It would be a thrilling sight."

A Kennedy Space Center spokesman said the airport's runways are adequate for a shuttle landing.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Hearing Problem May Not Be In Ear

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could you please tell me what treatment is available for hearing impairment caused by nerve deafness? What causes nerve deafness? What type of circulatory or metabolic disorder, if any, causes it? Is surgery successful? If so, where is this type of surgery being done?

DEAR READER — Your ear may function perfectly but if there is a defect in the nerve that transmits the signals to the brain, or if the area of the brain that receives the signals is damaged, you will have a hearing problem. It is similar to having a perfect headlight on your car that is not connected electrically.

Many people forget that hearing involves more than just the ear. There is also the brain. It follows that the various things that can cause brain damage can cause hearing loss. That includes strokes that may damage or destroy the brain hearing cells. It includes virus infections, such as measles, that attack the brain. It can include mechanical injury from an accident.

A common cause of nerve deafness is poor circulation to vital areas and to the ear. Then, in some people, the nerve part of hearing seems to undergo changes with increasing age.

What you do about it depends upon the cause. If you have a tumor affecting the hearing nerve and the place where it enters the brain, surgery might be indicated. But in most cases there is very little that can be done to correct the hearing loss once it has occurred. When that is the case a properly fitted hearing aid is often beneficial. But not everyone with this type of deafness can be helped by a hearing aid. If the hearing loss is too great you would have to provide such great amplification that it would be harmful.

It is important for everyone who has a hearing loss to have a medical evaluation to determine the cause and not just be fitted with a hearing aid.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 15-year-old girl. My mother is in her mid-40s and we have been jogging for six weeks. Presently we jog a mile a day. We would like to work up to three or five miles a day. But we have heard that it is dangerous for women to jog and may interfere with menstruation and possibly cause problems in having children. Is there any truth to this?

DEAR READER — Absence of menstruation or irregularity in female athletes and ballet dancers is related to excessive body thinness. When these people regain the normal amount of body fat stores they return to their normal hormonal cycle. That includes being able to get pregnant.

Now, some women athletes also have menstrual and hormonal problems for reasons totally unrelated to jogging and those women will continue to have problems whether they jog or sit at home and do needlepoint.

Enjoy your jogging and your fitness. Just don't make a fetish of becoming emaciated. Eat a good balanced diet with an adequate amount of nutrition for your level of activity.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try not to let your sense of humor desert you today, even in serious situations. It's OK to be firm, but strive also to be witty.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Material conditions tend to favor you today, but this may not be readily apparent and you might let something opportune slip past you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't introduce complications into your life today by coveting things which may belong to another. This includes people as well as possessions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An important objective is likely to be achieved with relative ease today, but if you fail to solidify your gains your efforts could be in vain.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you are working on an artistic project today, don't go beyond the dictates of your good taste. Adding extra touches could turn out to be gaudy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Substantial accomplishments are possible, provided you're not a clockwatcher. Don't worry about how long it takes. Worry about how well it's done.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Placing a loved one on a pedestal could cause you to expect more from him or her than you should today. Make allowances for human frailties.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There are ample opportunities around you today careerwise, but they'll count for little if you don't diligently work them out.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's not good to show partiality, but circumstances today may dictate that you have to, if necessary, favor old friends over new ones.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you are selecting clothes, merchandise or food today, be more influenced by the quality than the price. Cheap buys might not be a bargain.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're especially appealing today to members of the opposite sex, and one who shouldn't make advances. Keep him or her at arm's length.

against South's almost impossible contract. The husband signalled come-on with the eight and she continued with the ace.

Now South proceeded to develop a peculiar dummy reversal play that succeeded because clubs broke 4-4, diamonds 3-3 and trumps 3-2.

He ruffed that club, led a diamond to dummy's jack, ruffed another club, led a diamond to the queen, ruffed dummy's last club, cashed his two remaining trump honors, led a diamond to dummy's king, cashed dummy's ace of hearts while discarding his ace of diamonds and finally led a spade and played his jack.

West won with the queen, but since his last two cards were ace-small of spades, South scored the king of spades for his tenth trick.

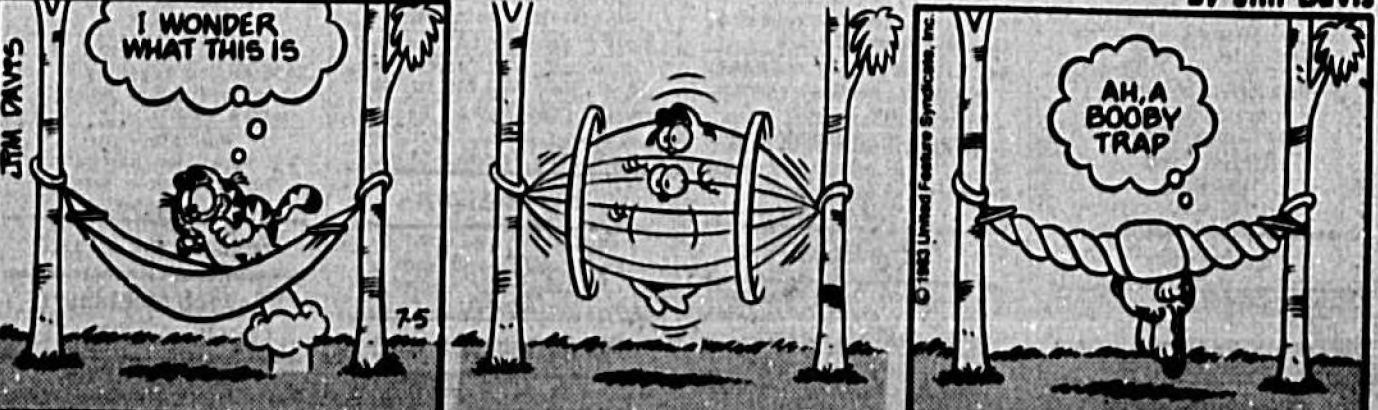

The dummy reversal could not have developed if West had not led a second club at trick two. The husband got the blame, but we feel that South had played magnificently and that West might well have not led that second club at trick two.
