NASA made the shuttle safe and rushed to bring out the five astronauts inside. The fuel tank held more than a half-million gallons of

Contractors behind schedule; one wins extension

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - Seminole County Expressway contractor Hubbard Construction Co. has been granted a six-month extension to complete their section of the 12-mile tollroad while the state has declared the second expressway builder White Construction Co. delinquent on their portion of Both companies were behind schedule, according to state reports. Hubbard, in July, was continuing work on one expressway segment two - complete actual road construction work weeks after work was to have been completed. Work on that segment is not expected to be completed until December, five months after their contract expired. The state extension will eliminate that overdue status and push the completion date to January. Gayle Geddis, spokesman for the $200 million construction project, said Wednesday Hubbard was given up to six months to complete their portion of the expressway south of Lake Jesup to replace signs, but the extension can be used to Bee Expressway, Page 5A

Last year, the Florida Department of Transportation decided to change the formal name of the road from "Eastern Beltway" to "State Road 419." The adopted "Central Florida GreeneWay" name will be posted on signs at either end of the 50-mile Interstate 4 bypass road, but will not be-the state-recognized name for the road. Geddis said Hubbard will need time to reorder. the signs for the roadway. As a result of the extension, all work may continue past the Main Street grant almost cut in half

Warren slashes amount county contributes; Furlong restores it

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - Seminole County commissioner Larry Furlong said Tuesday he would restore a $10,000 grant to the Sanford Main Street project Tuesday after commissioner Pat Warren said July 27 she would cut the grant in half.

"I think changing the procedure like that was precedent-setting, and not only precedent-setting, but unfair." said Furlong. "I thought it was a little bit unfair to lead them to believe they were going to get $10,000 and in what has to be a precedent at least since I've been here, maybe three days later, after See Grant, Page 5A

County's business climate improves

By HICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

Central Florida business conditions continued to look good over the three month period ending in July.

The Orlando Metropolitan Statistical Area," (MSA) which includes Sanford and Seminole County showed a slight increase in unemployment, but officials said that is not unusual in summer months.

The local MSA unemployment rate for June was 6.4 percent. compared to 5.9 percent in May of this year. It is much better than the 7.6 percent reported in the comparable month of 1992 The Doctor Phillips Institute reported, "The May to June rise just reflects the recurring inflow of teaching professionals and students into the workforce." The survey See Business, Page 5A added, "This is not an alarming change." The local MSA figures are comfortably below the state as well as national averages of unemployment for April through June, which were listed at 6.9 percent.

Statewide, the Institute said the unemployment rates declined from 8.2 percent to 6.9 percent.

The information is compiled by the Dr. Phillips Institute for the Study of American Business Activity. College of Business Administration, at the University of Central Florida.

Two major indicators used in determining the statistics are hotel occupancy rates and arrivals at the Orlando International Airport.

"Hotel occupancy rates in Central Florida droopped considerably in June 1993 when compared to June 1992," the Dr. Phillips report

SANFORD - Younger voters participated in larger numbers during the 1992 presidential election, according to a report released by Seminole County elections supervisor Sandy Goard.

The turnout is a turnaround from the 1990 gubernatorial election, when most Seminole County voters were 66 or older, according to a Goard is required to produce a voter turnout report for the state Division of Elections.

voters, 43.154, were in the the 31-to-45 age group. The next largest turnout was from the 63-or-older group, which turned out 22,707 voters, or about 19 percent of the total vote. By comparison, in 1990, about 55 percent of all 68,414 voters were among the ages 66 or older. Among the other age groups participating in November, 9 percent were between the ages of 56 and 62, 19 percent were 46 to 55, 13.6 percent were between 21 and 30, and 2.2 percent were 18,19 or 20. The November turnout for 20 and under was twice the 1.1 percent that participated in the 1990 election.

The leaders of the county's two political party organizations had differing views on which presidential candidate inspired 31-to-45 voters. A preliminary analysis of the numbers shows about 56 percent of those voters were Republicans and about 34 percent were Democrats. The remainder were distributed among several other parties.

"These are the higher earning years," said Doug Elam, chairman of the Republican Executive Committee. "There were a lot of concerns among that age group about the economy."

Milkman foils attempted robbery

PEMBROKE PINES - Six gunmen took hostages in an early morning robbery attempt at a supermarket, but a timely milkman freed the hostages and the suspects fled before a SWAT team searched the store.

The incident happened Wednesday when six men entered the store; three wearing Halloween masks, two with shirts over their heads and one who was not disguised.

They were armed with three shotguns, an Uzi, a long-barreled rifle and a .45 caliber pistol and they cut phone lines to the store, according to police spokeswoman Maryann Flanagan.

The eight hostages, all store employees, were herded into a room in the store. When the milkman from McArthur Dairy Inc. showed up, he was ordered upstairs by the gunmen, but not locked up with the others, Flanagan said.

Body identified

TAVARES - Now that investigators know who she is, they will expand their investigation into the death of an Alabama woman whose body was found April 14 in a Lake County field.

The body, adorned with distinctive tattoos on her shoulders and fancy jewelry, went unidentified until the woman was reported missing this month by her sister, sheriff's officials

A national computer system matched the description with that of Claudia Colley Rhoden, 21, a hoslery mill worker from Fort Payne, Sheriff's Sgt. Greg Bare said Wednesday that dental records would be used for positive identification.

Officials believe the woman was killed elsewhere and her body dumped in Central Florida. They have not released the cause of death.

U.S. District Judge Shelby Highsmith sentenced Lucio Marcelo Coronel, 30, of Buenos Aires, on Wednesday to three concurrent 15-month terms after he pleaded guilty April 25 to three counts of smuggling endangered species and other protected wildlife.

According to the indictment, Coronel arrived on Feb. 7 at Miami International Airport from Argentina and handed over to U.S. Customs officials a suitcase.

Pilot identified in crash

LAS VEGAS - The Air Force has identified the pilot of the F-16 jet that crashed north of Las Vegas as Capt. James H. Reynolds Jr. of Lake County, Fla.

Reynolds, 28, was killed when his jet fighter crashed Tuesday on a routine training mission about 125 miles north of Las Vegas on the sprawling Nellis Air Force Base Range.

Reynolds was single. He was a native of Tullahoma. Tenn. and a seven-year veteran of the Air Force. He was a member of the 414th Training Squadron at Nellis and had been stationed at the Las Vegas base since 1991.

He lived at least 12 years in Eustis, Fla.

Sgt. Robert Shelton, a Nellis spokesman, said a board of officers would be assigned to investigate the accident.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE ake Harney development delayed

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - Margaret Cammack received a bit of philosophical encouragement from Seminole County commissioners to advance her nine-year-old goal to develop 351 acres of land near the shores of Lake Harney into a housing subdivision. "The St. Johns Yacht and Tennis Club.

Commissioners voted 4-0 to delay their decision until Cammack's engineers submit a wetlands map of her property and two of the four commissioners present Tuesday said they saw few issues remaining to approve the plan. Commissioners Daryl McLain and Pat Warren said they saw few hurdles remaining to approval. Commissioners Bob Sturm and Larry Furlong agreed to the delay. Sturm said commissioner Dick Van-DerWeide was on vacation and would not attend the hearing.

"At least we moved a step further," said Cammack after the hearing.

Since 1984, Cammack has sought to build homes on the site, which includes wetlands and large sections at or below the floodplain of the St. Johns River. Cammack wants to build 267 homes, using a central water

Despite the lengthy passage of time. Cammack has never formally asked commissioners to approve her development plan. County staff raised continuing objections to the project based on what they believed would be a drainage, septle tank and other problems, but in 1984, they recommended approval with 13 modifications. Then, the development proposal was known as "The Savannas."

Subsequent staff reviews found the plan didn't meet county codes and recommended against the plan, but Cammack never pursued the housing plan to the Planning and Zoning Commission or county commission before this year. In July, P&Z commissioners recommended denial of the

In 1984, according to a county report, commissioners did review a request by Cammack to install two wells on her property and upheld their Board of Adjustment's decision to deny the request. Cammack sued, seeking the well permit and asked the court find that the county had violated federal anti-trust laws. Circuit Judge Dominick J. Salfi ordered the permits issued. Cammack dismissed the other claims and requests.

Tuesday, commissioners were concerned about the potential for flooding on the property, but agreed to review wetlands data required for development approval, but not yet submitted.

Development Review manager Glenn Semanisin challenged Cammack engineer Ron Wilson's assertion their proposed drainage and fill plan would prevent homes from flooding. He likened the Yacht and Tennis Club proposal to Lake Forest, built west of Interstate 4 in a former swampy area. Lake Forest developers installed a substantial "underdrain" network to remove enough water from the ground to allow homes to be built.

Wilson responded "We can provide a drainage system to make it all work according to the (St. Johns) Water Management District standards and the county standards."

An issue also remained whether a drainage ditch passing through the property from State Road 46 would remain an open, shallow swale or an enclosed pipe. Semanisin said the county prohibits open ditches in developments, but Wilson said the ditch sides would be smoothed out and would only transmit water during a storm.

As slick moves into Gulf, focus turns to freighter pilot

Associated Press Writer

EGMONT KEY — As an oil slick from a flery collision in Tampa Bay drifted away from land. attention turned to a freighter pilot involved in the crash who has a long record of driving infractions on land and at sea.

Tommy Baggett, the harbor pilot whose freighter collided with two barges pushed by tugs early Tuesday, had his driver's license suspended after a 1991 drunken driving conviction and records show he has had another drunken driving arrest and traffic tickets for speeding and reckless Baggett's license as a harbor pilot has been questioned, but never revoked. Once, it was suspended for 45 days after a collision between a cruise ship piloted by Baggett and another vessel.

In June, Baggett. 63, ended a one-year Coast Guard probation after another incident at sea. He could not be reached by phone Wednesday to comment, and federal officials declined comment.

The owners of both barges involved in the accident by Wednesday had each filed federal lawsuits against the owner of the freighter, the Balsa 37. One accused it of making a "hard to turn the left" prior to the crash and operating in a reckless manner. The other suit charged its crew was incompetent, inattentive, and failed to abide by navigation rules.

The Coast Guard and the National Transportation Safety Board announced they would convene a board of inquiry Friday to look into the accident that set one huge fuel barge ablaze, grounded the phosphate-laden freighter and left another barge leaking about 250,000 gallons of industrial oil.

That leak caused an 11-mile-long slick that began to dissipate and drifted from the mouth of Tampa Bay about 21/2 miles into the Gulf of Mexico, leaving little damage to sensitive beaches and wetlands.

New prison capacity begins reducing early releases

By BILL BERGSTROM Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Moves earlier this year to expand the state prison system are easing the pressure to release some inmates early, parole officials

But a new law includes some drug offenders and habitual offenders among those who can be considered for early release, and local officials say that's a threat to neighborhoods where drug offenders return.

"Would you rather release the drug offender or would you rather release the cobber or the murderer?" said Jeffrey Bryan, assistant to Parole Commission Chairman Gene Hodges. "We'd rather release the nonviolent offenders."

The Parole Commission had voted Tuesday, for the first time under the new law, to grant an added 100 days of "gain time" and trim the sentences of 400 inmates set for release in coming weeks.

The panel needed to make room for incoming prisoners. Bryan said Wednesday.

"Every week, we award time off to maintain the population," he said. "Somehow, if 500 people come in a given week, 500 have got to go out.

Added to the pool eligible for gain time were those convicted of selling or possessing drugs near schools, parks and public housing complexes, who previously had minimum mandatory sentences of three years. A handful are expected to be released this month.

Though it avoids freeing more violent criminals, police, prosecutors and community activists said the policy hurts poor, Inner-city neighborhoods.

Floridians map out travel

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

HEATHROW - Floridians planning vacations this year have been more concerned about saving money and staying safe than in past years. The AAA Florida travel agents and auto travel counselors have studied vacation plans.

More than 100 AAA travel agents and auto travel counselors responded to the survey. In Florida, 15 agencies were questioned including those in Orlando, Ft. Lauderdale, Jacksonville, Miami, and other east coast

They reported an average of 24 percent of all their customers have specifically said they are concerned about their safety when traveling this summer.

"We don't believe people are putting off travel because of concerns about safety," said Tom Schroder, Manager of Public Relations for AAA, "but our travel customers are asking questions about safety. They want to know what they can do to enhance their security while traveling."

About 31 percent of AAA's travel customers are planning week-long trips, with 26 percent planning weekend trips, and 24 percent planning two-week trips.

The increase in traveling vacationers is 16 percent compared to last summer, with the increase mostly in automobile

Over 71 percent of Floridians taking vacations this year plan to travel outside the state.

The most popular destinations for Florida residents this year, in order, are: The Orlando area; Branson, Missouri; The Grand Canyon and other national parks: California and the Smoky Mountains (tied); Alaska; and the

The survey also indicated that families spend $1,000 to $1,500 on their trips averaging all lengths from week-ends to multi-week trips. The figure is $500 lower than the amount estimated last year.

The top reasons people give for traveling this year are: to visit family and friends; the economic situation is better this year than last; or because they just need to get away.

How does your business look?

Beauty is in the eye of the beholder. So is progress in the City of Sanford.

With applications being submitted for Sanford's entry into the Florida Main Street program, people are anxious to see what will happen.

A few however, aren't waiting. They have, or soon will be, sprucing up their places of business. A new paint job, new window displays, possibly a new awning are signs of not only progress, but good business.

Shop owners who believe they can continue operating with out-of-date merchandise, or a shoddy store front, are only heading for disaster. The tendency will be to blame the people for a lack of customer support. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Drive through the city, not just downtown, but along the various business arteries. You will see some very well kept places of business. They may not be modern buildings, but they are clean, well painted, and often well landscaped. You can almost bet on their continuing success.

Look at others. The window displays are out of fashion, the storefront is in poor physical condition. It is clear nothing has been done to improve the place for many years. Is this the type of place that will draw customers?

We support the efforts of the Main Street program, and are anxiously waiting to see it become a recognized project.

There are some who are merely waiting for their business to fold and are doing nothing to prevent it.

Others are working diligently toward making improvements. They are helping their own businesses, but all-in-all, they are helping the entire community.

This type of progressive business leadership deserves our applause, and our support.

Clinton's dubious budget 'victory'

Predictably, President Clinton hailed congressional passage of the budget reconciliation bill as a "victory." Predictably too, he declared that it signaled the end of gridlock.

But the one-vote margins by which it passed in both the House and the Senate, after Mr. Clinton had used on individual Democratic members every promise and threat within the powers of the presidency, suggests that if gridlock is gone, it has hardly been replaced by wedlock. When Ms. Rodham Clinton unveils her famous health plan and it turns out to require still more sacrifices by small businesses, gridlock will return with a vengeance.

The alleged demise of gridlock aside, the Democrats have little reason to hall the outcome. The best evidence of the bill's true nature, of course, is how hard Mr. Clinton had to work, despite healthy Democratic majorities in both houses, to eke out his razor-thin "victory." The Democrats who, despite all he could do, voted against it were signaling, in the clearest imaginable way, that they want no part of the blame.

The Republicans, on the other hand, have just about the best of all possible worlds. Since Mr. Clinton "won," despite the fact that every Republican in both houses voted against the bill, he cannot blame the GOP for having thwarted him.

by their staunch refusal to work with the Democrats (as George Bush foolishly did in 1990) to fashion a "bipartisan compromise," they have positioned themselves where not one molecule of blame for the disastrous consequences of this budget can be attached to them. From this day forward, they can . and they most assuredly will -- wrap around the necks of the Democrats, exclusively, every plece of bad economic news that comes down the pike between now and the 1996 elections.

There will be plenty of bad news. The liberal the outcome.

There will be plenty of bad news. The liberal media have been delighted to join in Mr. Clinton's blatant class warfare, assuring readers and viewers with every breath that the $241 billion in new taxes will come almost entirely from "the rich," who allegedly have not been paying "their fair share."

But they have conspired with Mr. Clinton to conceal the fact that 80 percent of his $255 billion in so-called "spending cuts" (virtually all of which aren't cuts at all, but merely reductions in the rate of increase) will occur in years after 1996. The $241 billion in new taxes, on the other hand, will be imposed retroactive to Jan. 1, 1993 -- thus setting Mr. Clinton up for Sen. Dole's wonderful gibe that he is the first president in history to raise tax rates before entering office and cut spending after leaving it.

That piece of legislative deviousness, incidentally, tells you what the Democrats are really interested in. They yawp about the need to cut spending, and brag that they have "cut" $255 billion of it, when the truth is that virtually all of the cuts are to be made in the sweet bye-and-bye, by Congresses not yet elected.

Ladies and gentlemen, as in the case of the infamous 1990 budget deal, the promised "cuts" will never be made. And scarcely one plugged nickel of the nearly quarter-trillion dollars in new taxes will be used to reduce the current annual deficit, let alone the accumulated national debt. It will be spent, instead, on new government "benefits" designed to re-elect this gaggle of quacks ad infinitum.

Funds for science center

It is incredible that the school board would even consider funding the expansion of the Orlando Science Museum in light of the problems we have here in Seminole County.

Teachers work for little, but we can send dollars, and many of them, to Orlando? You've got to be kidding, or else you are totally unsuited for your job on the school board.

Use the funds to bring back the basics to our classrooms, so that Johnny can read, graduate and go on to college.

A family I'm acquainted with has three children in grade school. The father is on Social Security Disability. They exist on $700 monthly plus food stamps. To provide the school supplies each child would need to start school would cost about $50 total. Where do you suppose a family such as this one would scrape up money to go out and buy these items? That's right....give up nutritious meals so that their children won't feel out of place going empty handed to school the first day.

If the school board has so much money, how about providing these supplies to qualified families? A far better plan than sending dollars to Orange County.

Don't "poor mouth" and then tell the public you have funds for a luxury such as the expansion of the Orlando Science Museum. Be realistic....charity begins at home.

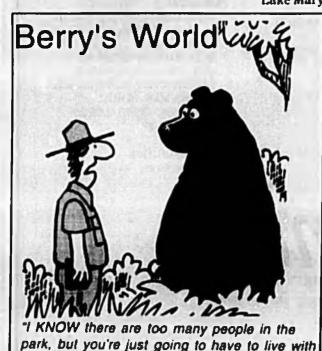

Irene K. Brown Sanford

Keep money at home

I agree with your editorial in the Sanford Herald of Sunday, Aug. 1, 1993. I don't believe Seminole County or the Seminole School Board should give any money to the Orlando Science Center.

We have many needs here in Seminole County. These should be taken care of before there is any thought of sending money to Orlando.

We need a health care summit

President Clinton basked in the sunshine of a presidential pep raily in Charleston, W.Va., the other day and bathed in the thrill of victory. "Change has come to America," declared the winner of the Great Budget Battle of '93. "Let's keep it going!"

But back at the White House, advisers monitoring the action via satellite TV knew, deep down, that a few more victories like that and the Clinton presidency can be lost. As they face Clinton's upcoming, super-imperative health reform, they are pondering how they can best help the president reach the leadership high ground he's tried to claim, but has not yet held.

There is one bold step Clinton can take to reach this leadership plateau — summoning health industry leaders to a White House or, better yet, Camp David Health Reform Summit. We'll explore that. But first, consider the problem that the Clinton high command is privately confronting, even as we speak.

The Clintonians took no cheer from their two-vote victory in a House ruled by Democrats who boast a 112-vote margin, nor their tie in a Senate where Democrats have a 12-seat advantage.

But most of all, they were concerned about the results of a USA Today-CNN-Gallup poll, taken just after the president's televised budget speech in which he even used Perotian charts showing how the rich will bear the greatest burden. In that poll, 68 percent of Americans surveyed flatly rejected Clinton's prime assertion that his plan would tax the wealthy hardest.

And get this: Asked who has the best ideas for improving the economy, 35 percent answered Clinton; but almost as many — 30 percent — named Ross Perot, who'd spent months ducking all requests for his specifics. The Republicans got just 24 percent.

What Clinton's problem really comes down to is the leadership thing. He gives a speech, flips his charts and the nation thinks he's not giving it to us straight. People know that winning by the narrowest margins in Congress isn't primal leadership. People expect their leaders to be able to do more than twist the arms of enough suits and barter to reach 50-percent-plus-one.

Two other polls this summer, although focusing on separate issues, ought to be read at the White House as two chapters in the same leadership book. One, by The Washington Post, showed that most people like their current doctors and their quality of health care, but are worried about rising costs and future accessibility. The other was taken by Clinton pollster Stanley Greenberg for the president's old pals at the Democratic Leadership Council and Progressive Policy Institute think tank. It profiled the Perot voters — today's swing voters — as wanting to reduce government's involvement in their lives, and cut the size and scope of government bureaucracy.

Read together, the message is clear: Before Clinton proposes any plan that injects government into our health care decisions as the best hope for cutting rising costs, he must be very sure that he has tried every other non-bureaucratic way.

One thing has yet to be tried: presidential clout, up close and personal — a White House summit.

Perhaps, before

clamping on de facto price controls through spending ceilings set by government, Clinton ought to summon the leaders of the health care industry to a summit. Do it at the White House or Camp David. But let it be one time where all cards are dealt face up. The health industry says it is now ready for real reform and wowe that reform and vows that it can cut costs as part of a system-wide managed competition reform. But it wants to do it without government controls. Let Clinton force the health industry to make a public commitment — to achieve reforms, including firm reductions in the rate of cost increases, without clamping on controls.

There is one

Could it come to pass? When I outlined the idea to one of the president's most senior advisers, he replied: "That's interesting. It sounds like something we ought to consider."

JOSEPH SPEAR

You can't keep the media down

You know the main problem with the media? You can't trust the buggers. You catch them making mischief, you expose them, you think you've finally got their number, you turn around and damned if they aren't laying waste to the landscape again.

For proof of this, just look at the way they've covered Bill Clinton. First they got on him about Zoe Baird and Kimba Wood. Then came the $200 haircut, "travelgate" and Lani Guinier. He even caught grief for the Waco siege and the war in Boania.

siege and the war in Bosnia. Then what? Then came David Gergen, an old smoothie with years of pressstroking experience, and after dozens of lunches and dinners and wine-and-cheese things, the media are once again Bill's buddles. It gets really confusing after a while, and all I've got to say is thank heaven the Spear Foundation created the Special Tribunal for the Obliteration of Media Perfidy or the a v e r a g e reader/viewer would never be able to figure anything out. For their mixed-up.

fuzzy, fumble-jumble approach to the Clinton White House, the Special Tribunal awards the media in general three thundering thumps: STOMP STOMP STOMP.

One of the problems is that the media has been paying too much attention to Clinton's verbal miscues. This tendency was spotted by a vigilant academic, Kathleen Hall Jamieson of the University of Pennsylvania. "What happens is that the press begins to scrutinize syntax," she told a Washington Post reporter, "and to use syntactic irregularity as a symptom of mental decline, as soon as the polls start to drop."

For the sin of scrutinizing syntactic irregularity, the media in general gets another couple of whacks: STOMP STOMP.

Thanks to a reader from DeLand, Fla., the Special Tribunal has been made aware of yet another media trespass. "I have always wondered why the news media did not report the foul goings-on in Washington," this gentleman writes. We wonder, too. For their unconscionable failure to report the foul goings-on in the capital city, the media get two more stomps: STOMP STOMP

-- From the scientific community comes the beef that the media focuses on the wrong cancer causers. They write too much about chemicals, tobacco, pesticides, pollution, food additives and nuclear radiation, the scientists say, and not enough about sunlight, diet and asbestos. Leave it to the media to muck up their carcinogens. Two big ones are in order: STOMP STOMP.

And now back to the main program for a final incident of media perfidy, and this one. Stomp fans, is a doozle. You know, of course, of the tragic death of Vincent Foster, one of President Clinton's closest aides. It appears that he shot himself while parked at an old Civil War fort overlooking the Potomac River, but the whole truth may never be known. Why? Because he did not have a chauffeured car and was forced to drive himself around town. Why? Because of press exposes of perks and privileges.

We can thank the ever-diligent columnist Carl Rowan for bringing this to our attention. Rowan did not come right out and say that Foster may have been deterred by a chauffeur. But Rowan did allow that had a driver been present, "we'd not have to guess, to speculate, about what happened."

For their mindless, inconsiderate stories about government officials who abuse their limousine service, the media is hereby awarded the maximum of four kicks: STOMP STOMP STOMP STOMP.

The report observed, "The combination of poor June performance, plus lackluster performance over the initial six months of 1993 (average 76.9) places this indicator back on our alert list."

As for airport activity, arrivals in May of 1993 were 940,608, 9.51 percent higher than May of last year.

In the first five months of 1993, arrivals were up a healthy 11.08 percent compared to the similar period in 1992.

"Sales of existing single-family homes in Greater Orlando during June 1993 were a mostencouraging development," the report continued. "Some 1,014 units were sold, compared to 901 units in May this year, and 827 in June of 1992."

Specifically for Seminole County, the June figures showed a total labor force of 195,670, with 183,167 persons employed. and 12,503 unemployed.

The unemployment rate for Seminole County, 6.4 pwrcent for the month of June, 1993, was equal to that of Orange County, but lower than Osceola County (6.6 percent) and considerably lower than Lake County, (8.8 percent unemployment).

organized the meeting through the Manufacturers Association of Central Florida. He said he wanted to know specifically what sorts of skills and training students should leave high school with in order to be able to serve manufacturing employers more effectively.

'We need to be able to let kids know what's available and to set up a curriculum that reflects that," said Strickler. "We need to put relevancy in the minds of the students."

Pat Werner of the Metro-Orlando Economic Development Commission of Mid-Florida was greeted with nods of agreement when she said that the schools "have got to address the technical needs of high school students through, among other things, mandatory computer

But, it isn't just technical training that the students need. the executives said. They need to learn problem solving and they need to learn to work within a team.

Problem solving, they said, is a skill not even taught in college. Workers have to be able to assess a situation, think about it in a critical way and make adjustments as needed. Too often, problems are solved by guessing, a method that wastes time and money.

Students are taught in an environment where the teacher lectures or administers written tests and the students sit back in the classroom and watches, the employers said. They suggested that students would be better served by being shown the practical applications of what they are learning and by being given projects to complete and problems to solve.

Al Stimac, vice president and general manager of ComTel Metals, Inc., said that he has had to go "up north" to do his recruiting as the students in Central Florida are not prepared for the work situations.

Teachers and counselors also need to be exposed to the work place through site visits and through visits from manufacturers to the classroom. The manufacturers stated the teachers were "out of touch" with what was really happening in the work world.

"It's a much different world out there," Dr. Marion Dailey, executive director of instruction for the school district, said. "The Seminole County school system wants to work with anyone and everyone who is willing to work

She said that the district is making strides to catch up with the needs of manufacturing through the Blue Print 2000 program, through the apprenticeship programs and through programs such as the Academy of Health Careers which will open at Seminole High School later this month.

Strickler promised that the school district would continue to work with manufacturing to build strong bridges that would help to meet the needs of industry long into the future.

"The seeds we have planted here today will be a forest 50 years from now," he promised.

"I've already had two or three said Cranias. "I believe Pat did cities come to me and say if not fully understand the whole program. We are not standing there with our hand out. For every dollar put into a Main Street program, $17 to $52 comes back in private investments. We're doing economic restructuring."

> Due to Warren's change. Cranias said Main Street organizers were forced to submit a state grant application last week showing the project had received $27,000 in private donations, $20,000 from Sanford commissioners and only $5,000 from county commissioners. Main Street is seeking state "Main Street" designation which includes a $10,000 grant for Improvements.

Cranias said with Furlong's announcement, he will be able to tell the Main Street review committee Aug. 24 the commissioners had reconsidered their support and added $5,000.

'It will help our position a lot," he said.

Warren's July 27 switch was the latest in a series of Main Street grant flip-flops by her. When commissioners first reviewed community service grants July 22, she first recommended spending $2,000 for the economic redevelopment effort. Furlong recommended $5,000; Bob Sturm, $10,000; Dick Vander Weide, nothing: and Daryl McLain, the full $15,000 sought for Main Street.

Through the county's grant recommendation averaging process, which takes the highest amount recommended by at least three commissioners, Main Street was to receive $5,000. When the tallies were averaged, commissioners recommended spending $942,300 for social service agencies, including $200,000 for the Orlando Science Center expansion. County Manager Ron Rabun had proposed $718,678, with no money for the science center.

With the recommendations tallied, Furlong left the worksession. McLain then urged Warren to increase her recommendation to $10,000 to bring the majority recommendation to $10,000. Warren consented and Cranias and his fellow copresident Hal Welch left, content with what they thought was to be a $10,000 grant.

But at the end of the commission's Tuesday meeting, five days later. Warren said she wanted to change her vote on several agency requests to be consistent with her budgetreduction goals.

In her agency grant cuts. Warren said she would eliminate her $2,000 grant recommendation for Hospice of the Comforter, she would reduce her $5,000 recommendation for Center for Independent Living to $2,000, reduce her $2,500 recommendation to $2,000 for the Human Services Council and reduce her $10,000 recommendation for Main Street to $2,000.

She did not lower a $2,000 Increase she made to the Casedberry Senior Center.

The only project affected by Warren's announcement was Main Street. There was sufficient support for larger grants to the other three agencies that her change had no effect. Warren said she was not singling out the Sanford community project.

The 41-year-old former legal secretary wept, and relatives shouted, "Yes! Yes!" when the verdict was announced Wednesday after five days of deliberations. She later flashed a wide grin outside the courtroom.

"Last December, I went to the Democratic convention in Orlando and I saw a resurgence of something I hadn't seen since Jack Kennedy ran for president," said Purdy. "They saw in Clinton an individual from their own age who was giving them just a hint of the message of the Kennedy era: Ask not what government can do for you, but what you can do for your government.' I think he excited a lot of the younger people to come out and vote."

Aspin axes Marines' new policy

By NOBERT BURNS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - The Marine Corps' decision to stop recruiting married people in 1995 caught civilian military leaders by surprise, from an "astounded" President Clinton on down. And it didn't take Defense Secretary Les Aspin long to order an

The Marine Corps commandant, Gen. Carl Mundy, ordered the no-married recruits policy last week. It became public Wednesday afternoon when Marine Corps headquarters released a copy of Mundy's Aug. 5 message to all Marines in which he spelled out the policy changes.

By evening senior Aspin aides, including Ed Dorn, the assistant secretary of defense in charge of personnel policy, were meeting to consider how to announce that Aspin had killed the move and disclose that the defense secretary never had approved it.

A three-sentence statement released Wednesday night simply said Aspin had ordered the policy withdrawn, the Marines had done so, and Aspin had demanded that any new policies on the matter of marriage "he subject to a full departmental review" beforehand.

White House press secretary Dec Dec Myers said Clinton "was astounded when he heard about the general's order" Wednesday. She said Clinton asked presidential counselor David Gergen call Aspin to find out what was going on. By the time Gergen reached Aspin by phone, however, the order already had been withdrawn, she said.

A senior Pentagon official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Aspin did not necessarily disagree with the policy but strongly objected to it being decreed by the Marines without first gaining approval from the civilian leadership.

"It's a sensitive policy arena." the official said, "and he (Aspin) hasn't had an opportunity to consider this policy.'

Mundy's policy changes had three main elements:

 No married recruits would be allowed to join the service after September 1995. Starting in October 1993 the number of married recruits would be limited, leading by the end of the 1995 budget year to a complete cutoff of marrieds.

-All Marines already in uniform would be required to go through an "educational awareness program on the advantages of delaying marriage."

-Those new enlisted Marines who are serving their first tours of duty and who decide to marry would be required first to consult with their commanding officers. Mundy said this did not mean they needed their superiors' permission, but that they would have the advantage of advice from more experienced Marines.

The Army, Navy and Air Force have no such policies on marriage. The policy would to help the fathers find work that could lead to fulltime employment or that teaches them a new skill. He also has to find positions that don't require employers to spend a lot of their time training and supervising

"I never thought it was productive to put someone on the highway to pick up trash," he said. But, "there is a benefit in making contacts."

not have affected the Marine Corps Reserve. As soon as word circulated of the new policy, Rep. Patricia Schroeder, a Colorado Democrat who is a member of the House Armed Services Committee, said Mundy was making a serious mistake that would be overturned by Congress.

"Do we need to get this man leave until he regains his senses?" Mrs. Schroeder asked rhetorically. She said married people should be encouraged to enter military service.

At Camp Pendleton, Calif., Cpl. Thomas Kent told a reporter he and his wife, who is blind, would be uncomfortable with Mundy's order.

"For them to tell me no I couldn't get married - I think I would have had more problems," he said while shopping at a base exchange. He married just a few months after joining the Marines in 1990.

Staff Sgt. Kelley Ramsay disagreed. Ramsay, 28, who got married last year, is four menths pregnant.

"I think marriage is a really big step to take, and not all young Marines realize the responsibility that goes with it," the seven-year veteran said. "This (proposal) gives Marines a chance to focus on their jobs. It doesn't mean they can't have a personal life.

The Marines said the emotional strains of life in the Corps - particularly for young enlisted people - are growing so great that too many are finding their marriages

Owner must raze condemned house

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - Seminole County commissioners voted unanimously Tuesday to condemn a Lockhart's Subdivision home after delaying their decision since March to allow the owner to make repairs.

When commissioners learned Tuesday Catherine Marks of Atlanta had failed to seek a building permit, they decided to grant no further delays and ordered her to raze the structure at 1701 Tangerine Ave. by Sept. 2. If she falls to remove the structure, the county will hire a contractor to remove it and bill her for the expenses.

If Marks falls to pay the expenses, the county will place a lien on the property to recoup the expenses, plus interest and court costs, at

Commissioners declared the building a public nuisance Jan. 12 after reviewing inspection reports that the building, through neglect, was damaged beyond repair. When commissioners first considered condemning the building March 9, Marks appeared and asked them to delay their decision to allow her to make repairs. Commissioners granted her to June 8 to make the repairs.

By June 8, the doors and windows were boarded up, but no permit application had been submitted. At that meeting, commissioners granted Marks a second delay, to Tuesday, to make an effort to repair the building.

By Tuesday's meeting. county staff reported Marks had not requested a building permit. Marks did not attend the hearing.

Congress refuses to delay work requirement for parents on welfare

By JENNIFER DIXON Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO - Tens of thousands of unemployed parents on welfare - mainly fathers - will have to go to work beginning Oct. 1 if they want to continue collecting a monthly check.

The laid-off parents will be required to spend 16 hours a week working in their communities - mowing lawns at a local school, doing handyman chores at the county garage, shelving books at the library or helping out at a nursing home - in exchange for a share of their family's welfare benefits.

More than 120,000 unemployed parents could be pushed into on the job training or community work service as a result of 1988 law scheduled to take effect this fall, according to Health and Human Services Secretary Donna E. Shalala.

The requirements target a segment of the 5 million families on Aid to Families with Dependent Children - the 371,000 two-parent families whose principal wage earner, in most cases the father, is unemployed.

The Clinton administration had sought to postpone the requirements until 1995, saying they would be a hardship on states that have seen revenues shrink and welfare caseloads mushroom since the late 1980s.

The House agreed to a oneyear delay as part of President Clinton's economic plan, but the Senate balked and the delay was dropped from the final version of the $496 billion tax and spending bill signed into law Tuesday.

States will now have to find jobs or training for at least one parent in 40 percent of twoparent families on AFDC, in addition to continuing their cfforts to train and educate single mothers on the welfare rolls.

Those that fail to put enough parents to work risk losing substantial amounts of federal matching money.

David Ellwood, HHS assistant secretary for planning and evaluation, said some states are worried about the new requirements.

But JOBS - the Job Opportunities and Basic Skills training program for welfare recipients - will remain a "core transportation, others have foundation" of welfare reform. Ellwood said Wednesday after a daylong hearing held in Chicago by a presidential task force that is drafting a plan to overhauf the welfare system.

"Programs in education and training will be strengthened," he said.

Mark Greenberg, senior staff attorney with the Center for Law and Social Policy, said the Oct. 1 requirements may force states to shift their limited resources from education and training for AFDC mothers, some of them at risk of long-term welfare dependency, into "make-work" jobs for laidoff fathers.

"It's pouring money into creating unpaid work activity that is not likely to improve their skills and not likely to improve their ability to get a job," said Greenberg, whose liberal research and advocacy organization focuses on issues affecting poor families.

"At the same time, states are having to deny basic educational activities and needed child care to single-parent lamilles that very much need those services to have a chance of succeeding in the labor force," Greenberg

But Robert Rector, a welfare expert with the conservative Heritage Foundation, believes the work requirements will prompt many men to leave the rolls for a private sector job.

"The program is fair and it has the prospect, if it's seriously implemented, of saving the tax-payers lots of money," Rector said.

The director of Kentucky's welfare program believes some fathers there may just decide to take a cut in their benefits. In his state, a family of three would see its monthly check fall from $228 to $196.

In states with higher benefits. however, the price of noncompliance would be greater.

Kentucky will have to find community service work for 3,600 unemployed parents or risk losing $3 million in federal Stoltenberg rallies to eliminate struggling Courier

BY TERRY KINNEY Associated Press Writer

MASON, Ohio - It was already today in Australia when the magnitude of last night's upset win over second seeded Jim Courier begansinking in on Jason Stoltenberg.

He thought about calling his parents, looked at his waich, and realized it was about 6 a in till New South Water

Eve woken them up earlier than this, said-Stoltenberg who dominated and eliminated Courter 3.6, 6.4, 6.4 in the second round of the $1.65 million Thriftway ATP Championship at the Jack Nicklaus Sports Center

Courier, the leading money winner on the ATP tour this year, was in obvious distress during the match but sought to take nothing away from

I did the best I could today said Conrict a former resident of Sanford =1 don't think there's anything to hang my head about. I played as well as I could today. It would be mee to win all the time, but everybody loses. That's part of the

Conflet was one of six seeded players upset Wednesday

Brad Gilbert beat No. 6 Petr Kurda 6/3/6/4 Steve Bryan beat No. 8 Richard Krapick 1 6, 6-1. 6.1 Mark Woodforde beat No. 13 Cedra Piolitic 7-6 (7-4), 6-2. Jan Stemerttik beat No. 15 MaliVat Washington 6.4, 6.4, and Aaron Krickstein beat No. 16 Henrik Holm 4 6 6 3 6 0

Stoftenberg, who never has been ranked higher than his current 56th, capped his upset with a service ace that kicked away from Conner's backhand side

That was the serve I lelt most confident hitting at the time said Stoltenberg who had trouble with his first serve all match. I went for all my serves. I wasn't going to back off it. But that last one, I was just praying. Stoftenberg who grew up playing on a homemade court on the cotton farm his father managed, was the top-ranked juntor player in the world in 1987. But he has not lived up to that potential on the ATP tour-I had a few injuries along the way, but mostly,

Ethink Ewasn't hungry enough, he said. This win is going to give me confidence. This is the kind of thing that gives players the confidence to move to the next level

Stoltenberg's aggressive play served him well against the sluggish Courier with Stoltenberg going to the net at every opportunity and Courter. missing numerous lobs and passing shots.

Tim Raines is a Sanford native and Seminole High School graduate now playing for the Chicago White Sox. His state are for the 1993 season in the first column, personal-best season totals in the second column and current career totals (including 1993 games) in the third column.

Raines had a frustrating afternoon Wednesday, going 4-for-5 with a double and three singles to account for half of the White Sox's hits. But the effort was wasted as the Oakland A's (who had a total of five hits) defeated Chicago 3-1.

Disqualification of Browning results in 12th win for Ponder

By BILL SIEBERT Special to the Herald

BARBERVILLE - A post-race technical protest brought a disqualification for Jacksonville's David Browning Jr. Saturday (Aug. 7) at Volusia County Speedway and vaulted Winston Racing Series points leader Tony Ponder into the victory circle for the Volusia Performance Late Model Stocks.

Browning had raced strong from start to finish, coming from the outside of row one to lead from lap one until the end of the 30-lap Late Model Stock feature.

"We came back and did a little more of everything this week." said Browning after the race but before the protest. "We ran a good, smooth race and tried to keep away from Tony so we could win. I gave up trying to save tires and hoped we would have something left at the end."

Browning's disqualification resulted in Ponder's 12th victory in the Volusa County Speedway points season. Kenny West Inherited the second spot, followed by Mike Hunter, Cam Gibson, and Wayne Lockett. In other divisions:

• Jeff Miller moved from first to last on the last lap to win the Budget Mobile Homes Street Stock feature.

Orlando's David Rogers claimed yet another win in the Late Model division.

• David Clegg won his seventh checkered flag in the Kinco Window and Doors Sportsman Division.

• Phil Orr picked up his fourth win in the Ranken Repairs Mini Stocks after Jerry Gilliard was bumped back to sixth on the final lap for rough driving.

• Ray Mark took his third Pate's Drywall/Benny's Racing Tires-sponsored Florida Modifieds feature event. · Robert Milam came out on top in the J.L. Hags Auto Body Hobby Stock Division. In the Street Stock feature. Miller was trailing Chris Lawrence and Scott Laughlin on his way to a third place finish when the two leaders tangled coming out of turns three and That allowed Miller and Earl and second, respectively, in the 15-lap feature. "I'd rather be lucky than good," said an excited Miller from the VCS winner's circle. "I just sat there. What can I say? I should have ran third. I just want to say thanks to everybody. Miller and Mark were followed across the stripe by Laughlin and Lawrence. Ray Fulford completed the top five in the 13-car field. Rogers chased Late Model pole sitter Rob Underwood from Plerson for all but seven of the 30 laps, then charged to the lead for his fourth win in six tries this

"Rob (Underwood) ran real good tonight," Rogers said.
"There were a lot of good cars out there tonight. At times, 1 looked like I was hauling two tons of fertilizer in a one-ton truck."

Coming in behind Rogers and Underwood were Scott Bramlett. Jeff Burkett, and Guy Thomas.

Once again, the rest of the Sportsman class chased latecomer Clegg around the track. David Ponder finished second. trimming another five points off the difference between he and thirs-place finisher Rusty Ebersole (the division's points leader).

Karl Stairs and Bill Morris rounded out the top five.

Ebersole now leads Ponder by only 15 points in the division chase. While Clegg now has seven wins in seven races, he sits a distant fifth in the points standings because of his late start to the season.

Rick Fairbank, the points leader in the Mint Stock Division. was leading and on his way to victory when he and Gilliard traded paint on the last lap. Gilliard took the checkered flag in front of Orr but the penalty pushed Gilliard back to sixth, giving Orr the win and the trophy.

Rod Butcher took second ahead of Chad Pelfrey. Jay Johnson, and Fairbank.

Mark, from DeLand, came from deep in the pack to take the lead by the time the 20-lap Florida Modified feature reached the fifth lap.

Mark led the rest of the way. beating division points leader David Indivert to the stripe. They were followed by Wray Shaffer. Jon Compagnone Jr., and Wayne McCall.

Milam and Jim Butler were the only cars still running when the 12-lap Hobby Stock feature came to a close, Milam taking the win and Butler finishing second ahead of Gene Menning. Arnold Mills, and J.D. Clark.

Shaffer came back to win the special Fina/Delco Oil Express Mart Dash for Cash for the Florida Modifieds. Teresa Tinkham overcame a slow start to pass Debbie Cerkowski in the special 10-lap Powder Puff feature.

Racing action returns to Volusia County Speedway's half-mile asphalt track this Saturday, Aug. 14, with a full seven-division program that will include a double feature for the Winston Racing Series Late Model Stocks in an attempt to make up one of two remaining rainouts.

Coleman's arraignment postponed to Oct. 8

By JOHN NADEL AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES - Vince Coleman is free to play for the New York Mets. The next move is up to them or, perhaps, major league baseball.

The arraignment for Coleman on a felony explosives charge was postponed Wednesday until Oct. 8 - five days after the season ends.

Robert Shapiro, Coleman's lawyer, asked that proceedings be delayed and Municipal Court Commissioner Abraham Khan granted the request. Coleman waived his right to a speedy trial during a brief appearance at the Criminal Courts Building.

Shapiro said he requested the delay because he had yet to receive a status report on the three people injured by the explosive, which Coleman threw near fans outside Dodger Stadtum on July 24.

The explosion injured Amanda

Santos, 21/2, who suffered second-degree burns to her cheek and damage to an eye and finger: Marshall Savoy, 11, who suffered a bruised leg; and Cindy Mayhew, 33, who was treated for an ear injury.

Coleman, a 31-year-old outfielder, is free on $5,000 ball and is on unpaid leave from the Mets. He's expected to report to the team on Friday in Philadelphia. where it begins an eight-game road trip. Gerry Hunsicker, the club's assistant vice president for baseball operations, said he will speak with Coleman and manager Dallas Green regarding the outfielder's return. The explosive was thrown in the players' parking lot after a Saturday afternoon game between the Mets and the Los Angeles Dodgers from a Jeep Cherokee driven by Dodgers outfielder Eric Davis. Also in the vehicle was Bobby Bonilla of the Mets. Davis and Bonilla were not

"I didn't really feel that Jim was playing great," Stoltenberg said. "The only chance for me is coming in as much as I can. I don't think I could beat him from the baseline.

"He can always say he didn't play his best ... but sometimes the other guy doesn't let you play well."

In a match postponed from Tuesday night because of rain. top-seeded defending champion Pete Sampras beat Bryan Shelton 7.5, 6.2.

"I thought I played OK." said

Sampras, who said the delay didn't bother him. "I had a good night's rest, so it really wasn't a problem."

Sampras, the No. 1 player in the ATP rankings, said Courier's departure immediately prior to his match didn't affect his play.

"All the tough guys are here." Sampras said. "To come away with a win would be really BWCCL.

Americans Michael Chang and Andre Agassi also won in Wednesday night matches, No. 7 Chang beat Daniel Nestor of Canada 6-3, 7-6 (7-5) and Agassi beat Richey Reneberg 6-3, 6-2.

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading your column for many years, and now am in need of tapping in on some of your

My husband and I are senior citizens in the fortunate position of having everything we need and want. We have no children. Dut we do have several micces and nephews. We no longer shop for gifts for them - we send them checks and let them buy what they want.

In the past, they have sent us beautiful (and some very expensive) gifts, so this year, we asked them to please cross us off their shopping list because we do not need anything and do not wish to accumulate any more "things." I explained that we would continue to send them checks because they are young enough to enjoy spending or saving.

One sister-in-law said that our request for no gifts offended and upset her son and daughter and we were wrong to deprive them of the pleasure of sending us gifts.

Your thoughts on this would be appreciated. OGRE AUNT IN MICHIGAN DEAR AUNT: I'm with you on this issue. People who have more than they need or want are lucky to be able to tell the givers of uscless gifts to cease and desist. How much better to direct a contribution instead to some of the truly needy people who would have little or nothing at holiday time. Churches, temples, the Salvation Army or the local United Way can provide names and addresses of local families who can use gifts.

How about a contribution to the American Red Cross carmarked for those who lost their worldly goods in lowa. Missouri. Kansas, Nebraska and Illinois in the recent devastating floods?

DEAR ABBY: Last May, my father died from the toxic fumes he inhaled while gluing carpet to the deck of his boat. Dad was an intelligent man (an attorney) who carefully read the instructions and warnings before he tackled any project.

To him, "adequate ventilation" meant open both big garage doors, the side door, and the window in the garage while he was working. He probably tried to work in spite of the nausca and dizziness he was warned about on the label of the glue.

He should also have been warned that if he didn't get some fresh air when he felt dizzy, he could fall unconscious and die.

which is exactly what happened. Something as simple as a fan pushing the fumes out of the area would have saved his life. but the fumes smelled so sweet and pleasant no one would suspect that they could be deadly.

Since this happened to my father, we have been told about several other people who have Unfortunately, today's generations seem to be reaping many of the disadvantages of sun exposure, among them skin cancer and a new medical concept called photoaging, according to Dr. John Browder and Dr. Betsy Beers of the Department of Dermatology, University of Florida College of Medicine.

Ultraviolet radiation, the band of light that produces skin changes, can be divided into three groups, depending on wavelength: UVA. UVB and UVC is largely absorbed by the ozone layer above the earth, so it does not contribute significantly to photoaging.

UVB and UVA penetrate pale skin and can literally cook the deeper layers (sunburn), in addition to causing permanent damage to the basic protein in skin.

The body protects itself against UV exposure by producing melanin, dark skin pigment that is manufactured by specific cells in the akin, as a consequence of UV stimulation. Of course, some people are born with high melanin levels (blacks), and some have little or none at all (albinos).

When a susceptible person is initially exposed to the sun -- for example, during the first warm and sunny day in spring -- two events take place; redness (caused by increased blood flow to the skin) and immediate but slight darkening (due to oxidation of existing melanin). Continued exposure to UV light causes "delayed tanning," the appearance of increased color

Suntans have historically been because of the synthesis of new melanin in the skin cells

Although fair-skinned individuals are more susceptible to the effects of chronic exposure to sunlight, a more-or-less persistent tan does not protect a person from the inevitable con-

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY Aug. 13, 1993

in the year ahead you may take time to review things in depth that have proven to be unrewarding and then take measures to rid yourself of these emcumbrances. Eventual success is indicated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It may be best to temporarily shelve for the next few days tasks you find distasteful. What you do under a cloud will have to be redone again. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 and a long, selfaddressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Under most conditions you are usually a rather prudent and cautious person, but today you might feel inclined to take unwise risks in financial or business matters.

Don't let your ego overrule your common sense today and make you feel you will lose face if you're not No. 1. Inordinate pride is self-defeating.

BCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually your intuitive perceptions are reliable and provide you with helpful insights. Today, however, these signals could be erroneous and you lead you astray if adhered to.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be careful today you don't get involved in an arrangement where you manage something for another that could cost you money out of your own pocket if It goes awry. There's a chance it may.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Do nothing impulsive today if you are negotiating a critical agreement with another. Hasty mistakes will weaken your position and be difficult to retract.

Be wary today of taking on assignments or projects that exceed your talents and capabilities. If you get in over your head,

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

you could have a tough time trying to crawl out of the hole. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Accept your friends for what they are today without trying to make them over in your image. Once you begin to point out their faults, they might show you areas where you need correcting.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's best not to buy anything large for your household today without first consulting your mate. Your choices and his/hers may be poles apart. TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

There's a possibility you might be unintentionally critical of others today, especially coworkers. Think carefully before offering suggestions or appraisals of their performance. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In order to provide yourself with instant gratification today, there are indications you might spend more than you should for the things you now want.

CANCER (June 21 July 22) Don't be the one who brings up an old, volatile issue today that always turns your household into an armed camp with several warring factions. (C)1993, NEWSPAPER EN-
