Seminole Prosecutor Arrested On Drinking Charges

By TENI YARBOROUGH Herald Staff Writer

Assistant Seminole State Attorney Steven Johnson had planned to resign as a prosecutor to return to private practice later this month. But his departure was hastened due to a drunken confrontation with Orange County deputies and Xrated movie theater employees Tuesday night.

Johnson, 27, had submitted his resignation to W.J. Patterson, executive director of the Sanford office, effective Aug. 19. However, when Patterson learned Wednesday morning of Johnson's arrest on charges of disorderly intoxication and possession of an open beer can, "I opted to accept his resignation effective at the close of business, 5 p.m., Tuesday," Patterson said.

Johnson, who was hired as a misdemeanor case prosecutor on March 17, 1980, and later prosecuted felony cases, was arrested at about 8 p.m. Tuesday in front of the Fairvilla Cinema, at 2415 N. Orange Blossom Trail, Orlando, deputies Deputies said they asked Johnson, who they said smelled strongly of alcoholic beverages and appeared disoriented, if he knew where he was. Johnson told the deputies he was in Lake County, "home of the great sheriff," making additional unfavorable comments about the Lake County sheriff and deputies. Deputies asked Johnson if he knew what city he was in and he replied, "Taveres or Eustis." When asked further questions, deputies were told by Johnson to "just ask my car," which was parked in the theater parking lot.

Later, deputies said Johnson identified himself as an assistant Seminole state attorney and showed them his prosecutor identification.

Meanwhile, theater employees told deputies a man, whom they later identified as Johnson, walked into the theater lobby and asked, "How about dinner?" When employees told him he was at a theater and not a restaurant, he asked to be admitted but was refused entry due to his apparent intoxication, deputies said. However, Johnson refused to leave the theater, jumped over the turnstile and locked himself in the restroom, witnesses said.

Deputies said Johnson left the theater a few moments later and was seen walking in traffic lanes of U.S. Highway 17-92, posing a hazard to himself and motorists. Deputies observed Johnson standing alongside the roadway waving his arms and yelling and approached him for questioning.

Neither Johnson nor his lawyer, J. Peyton Lea, of Orlando, could be reached for comment today concerning details of the arrest. However, Lea, who Johnson plans to work with in the Orlando law firm, said Wednesday his client will plead not guilty to the charges. Johnson was freed under the pre-trial release program Wednesday morning and is slated for arraignment Aug. 24.

Patterson said Johnson had taken a vacation day Tuesday and that he was scheduled to take two-weeks off for vacation in an effort to expend the accrued leave time before his Aug. 19. resignation. Patterson said he is currently investigating the circumstances of the arrest to determine if state law prohibits his office from paying Johnson for the vacation pay owed him. Patterson said employees are, by policy, required to "use up all of their leave time before resigning and I don't know if we can pay him for the time or not.

If convicted, Johnson could face a maximum penalty of 60 days in the county jail and a $500 fine for each charge, Pat-

Ex-Track Manager Waiting Appeal

Carroll Toler, former Seminole Greyhound Park general manager, said today he hopes to be back at work at the Casselberry pari-mutuel facility within a month following two days of hearings on an appeal to have his pari-mutuel license reinstated.

Toler's two-day appeal hearing in Orlando concluded Wednesday with testimony concerning the role that convicted gambler John Fountain Jr. played during the track's first racing season in 1981.

Toler acted as the track's general manager in 1981, but had his request for a license to act as assistant general manager this year denied by the state Division of Pari-Mutuel Wagering because state investigators contend that Fountain, who is barred from parimutuel plants, played an active role in daily operations of the track.

In denying Toler's April 1982 license application, the state outlined five charges against him, part of a 14-month investigation into alleged administrative improprieties during the track's first year of operation.

The charges are that Toler allowed an unapproved veterinarian to split duties with the licensed track veterinarian, that the track ran an excessive number of mix grade dog races, that Toler failed to properly disburse funds to a state scholarship trust fund, that Fountain authorized gasoline disbursements at the track during the racing season and that Toler placed bets on National Football League games with a bookmaker.

Fountain, who now lives in North Carolina, has not talked to state investigators concerning what role he played in the track's conversion from harness to greyhound racing.

Former track president Paul Derveas said Wednesday he borrowed a total of $321,000 from Fountain to acquire part ownership of the track which Derveas later repaid when the track repurchased his 43 percent ownership.

Derveas said Fountain later loaned him $160,000 which went back into the track.

According to Derveas, Fountain was in charge of special projects and construction supervision while the track was being converted by owners Bill and Jack Demetree.

Toler testified that Fountain was at the track daily during the conversion, but never entered the track after it opened

Attorneys for the state Division of Pari-Mutuel Wagering displayed documents Wednesday that showed Toler had numerous phone calls from the track to Fountain and his Brevard County Real Estate Office and offered other documents that showed Fountain authorized gasoline disbursements at the track during the racing season.

Toler said he talked with Fountain after the track opened because Fountain was interested in the track's progress in its first year and that Fountain recommended some big-spending gamblers to the track.

Dan Hardin, a state investigator, said he was told there was an excessive number of mixed grade races because of a shortage of available racing dogs, but that after the track was notified of the mixed grade races in August, the track ended the mixed grade races.

Hearing Officer Steve Pfeiffer has instructed Toler's attorney and the state attorneys to file final memorandums on the hearing by next Wednesday.

Pfeiffer is expected to make a decision on Toler's license appeal within a month. Pfeiffer's recommendations on the case could range from reinstating Toler's license to a penalty as severe as permanent license revocations.

This Is The Week For Smiles

By JANE CASSELBERRY Herald Staff Writer

Smile! This is National Smile Week. You may think there's not much to smile about - what with the hot weather, inflation, unemployment, high taxes and the "war of the week" in the news.

But everyone knows a smile can cure a lot. And a smile is contagious. To encourage everyone to look at the bright side, Gibson

Greeting Card Co. of Cincinnati, Ohio, initiated Smile Week. But if you're not in a smiling mood, Alan MacNeese of the Flint Journal in Michigan has come up with an alternative: "Snickle Week." What is a snickle? According to the Orlando Public Library Research Department, it is "a combination of a snigger and a chuckle."

If that's not good enough, try "Grin and Bear It Week." What makes people smile? A new car, a dlamond ring, a pay raise or a cruise to the Bahamas?

But it doesn't take that much to get a smile from a little child. To prove the point, youngsters at the Sanford Early Childhood Center were polled,

There were billboards proclaiming "We Love Miss Florida" throughout the town and a committee has formed to help collect money to help her pay for the trip to Atlantic City. The billboards have since been covered-over.

U.S. Killer Satellites May Heat Up Arms Race

WASHINGTON (UPI) - An independent research organization warns testing of an American satellite killer now under development would step up the arms race and increase the risk of a war in space.

The American anti-satellite weapn has not yet been tested but Pentagon officials have said tests are expected to begin soon.

Researcher Daniel Deudney said in a report published Wednesday by the Worldwatch Institute, a non-profit group which receives money from private foundations and United Nations' organizations, the Soviet Union already has tested extensively a satellite

He said the Soviet system uses a satellite that is maneuvered close to a target and then is detonated. The American antl-satellite system uses small twostage missiles launched from a high-flying jet fighter.

From the standpoint of arms control and crisis management, Deudney said the American system will be far more destabilizing because it could strike anywhere with little warning, while the Soviet killer satellites can be tracked as they are launched and maneuvered in orbit.

Reagan Talks Sternly

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A troubled President Reagan is sending stern messages he wants Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin to halt the attack on Beirut, and the PLO to "not delay" their departure from the besieged Lebanese capital.

White House aides said Begin had not replied to an urgent personal message from Reagan Wednesday telling him to the "absolute necessity" of reestablishing a strick cease-fire and maintaining it.

They said Reagan's letter was "firm" but contained no threats and discounted reports the president's advisers had recommended sanctions against Israel. But ABC News said the letter to Begin "contains clear threats that if the Israelis do not stop their latest attack on west Beirut, there will be serious consequences, including a possible U.S. military embargo." ABC said the president warned if Israel goes into Beirut, it will raise "profound questions for the future bilateral relationship."

Imports Grab Big Share

DETROIT (UPI) - American automakers' sales plummeted to their lowest level in July since 1961 while foreign manufacturers grabbed their second biggest share ever-of the U.S. market for the month.

Total industry sales for the month were 655,980 cars, automakers said Wednesday - down 6.6 percent from last year and the worst overall for the month since July

Imports accounted for 196,000, or 31.3 percent, of the total, their highest market share since a 31.9 percent in December 1981.

Sales per day were the worst for the industry since 1964. Domestic cars sold at the worst rate since 1961. Domestic automakers' sales in July were 429,908 cars, down 13.5 percent from 497,151 last year

Sanford Man Charged In Kidnapping

Herald Staff Writer

A 21-year-old Sanford man was being held in the Seminole County jail today in connection with the kidnapping, armed robbery, sexual and aggravated battery of a 17-year-old Sanford youth.

Deputies said they arrested Frederick Eugene Siplin, of 4220 Orlando Drive, Apt. 29, after the youth told the deputies he had been kidnapped at gunpoint, forced to disrobe while riding around Sanford in a car and sexually assaulted at about 3:30 a.m. today.

The youth told deputies he was walking along U.S. Highway 17-92 near the ABC Liquor lounge when a man driving a white Pontiac Firebird offered him a ride. Deputies said the youth refused the ride but was forced to get into the car when the man pointed a gun at him. The gun was later determined to be a toy gun, deputies said.

Deputies said the man told the boy he needed to buy gasoline for his car and ordered the youth while nude to get out of the car and tossed him a pair of underpants.

The boy ran to a nearby home where he called deputies, informed them of the incident and gave them a description of his kidnapper and the type of vehicle he was driving.

According to sheriff's spokesman John Spolski, a deputy was patrolling in the area of Beardall Avenue and heard the description of the suspected abductor and vehicle. Moments later, the deputy observed a white Pontiac Firebird traveling along Beardall Avenue, about 12-mile south of State Road 46, Sanford. The deputies stopped the vehicle to question its driver concerning the reported kidnapping and assault and arrested Siplin as a suspect in the incident.

Siplin is being held in the county jail without bond.

G.M. Washburn, owner of the Thrifty Auto Parts store, 1157 Semoran Blvd., told deputies the cash was taken from a box in the store. There were no signs of forced entry.

Joann Eileen Braxton, 20, who is free from the county jail today on pre-trial release, was arrested Tuesday in connection with the theft of about $3,500 from Woolco Department stores where she is employed as the customer services supervisor, deputies said. Deputies said the money was stolen from the stores allegedly by an employee who was falsifying merchandlse refund slips and keeping the cash refuned for merchandise supposedly returned to the store.

Automakers Doubt They Can Meet Safety Deadline

VASHINGTON (UPI) - The nation's automakers say they doubt they can comply with a court ruling ordering the Reagan administration to reimpose regulations requiring self-closing seat belts or air bags by 1984,

A three-judge panel of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia put the government and the industry on notice it expects the safety equipment to be in all cars rolling off the assembly line after Sept. 1, 1983.

The decision was applauded by congressional leaders, Ralph Nader and the nation's auto insurance companies.

In its decision, the court rejected attempts by the Reagan administration to rescind the "passive restraint" rules, which have been in the making for 15 years.

The rules, completed in 1977 during the Carter administration, require manufacturers to install automatic occupant restraints in large passenger cars in model-year 1982, in medium cars in model-year 1982 and small cars in model-year 1983.

But the rules soon became a major target of a presidential task force, which had as its goal lowering the costs of regulation for the depressed auto industry.

Four months after President Reagan took office, the Transportation Department's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration decided to delay the standard for one year. Last October, NHTSA Administrator Raymond Peck rescinded it outright, saying that car-markers planned to manufacture self-closing belts that could be too easily disconnected. As well, he asserted, the rule could be costly to consumers and the industry. The court delayed the compliance date for large and midsize cars from Sept. 1, 1982, to Sept. 1, 1983, citing "the obvious difficulties created by (the Transportation Department's) unlawful rescission." The court Wednesday told the agency that it has until Oct. 1 to tell the court whether the Sept. 1, 1983, compliance date "is achievable or whether a longer period is required."

Rep. Timothy Wirth, D-Colo., chairman of the House consumer protection subcommittee, called the decision "a major setback for this administration's capricious attempts at deregulation simply for its own sake, without regard for its impact ... It is a clear message that the administration cannot flout the law."

The Ford Motor Co. expressed disappointment with the decision.

"The effect of the court order is to require us to divert scarce resources in an effort to meet a standard that, at the very least, will require significant change to resolve the many open issues," said Roger Maugh, Ford's automotive safety director.

The Chrysler Corp.'s complaints were even more strident. "There is absolutely no way that Chrysler Corporation can meet the federal appeals court requirement to install automatic passenger restraints in all of its new cars by the fall of 1983," a spokesman said.

House Has Time On Balancing Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Despite Senate passage, the proposed constitutional amendment to balance the budget will disappear with the 97th Congress in October if it is not approved beforehand by the Democratic House.

The Senate approved the amendment Wednesday, 69-31, two votes more than the necessary two-thirds margin. Forty-eight Republicans and 21 Democrats supported it. Sen. Russell Long, D-La., cast the deciding

A House Judiciary subcommittee planned to continue hearings today on the amendment, which Democratic opponents have kept bottled up in committee.

Minneapolis Mayor Donald Fraser, in testimony prepared for the panel on behalf of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, urged the House to reject the budget amendment, arguing it would be inflexible and sometimes

A discharge petition that would bypass the to the House for a vote has 184 of the required 218 signatures.

Neither bills nor resolutions carry over to a newly elected Congress, meaning the Senate's approval of the constitutional amendment could be wiped out.

Supporters of the amendment concede it will be a difficult task to achieve final approval before Congress adjourns around Oct. 8, and the problem is compounded by alterations made by the Senate before it passed the amendment, Under a discharge petition, the House could not significantly amend the measure on the floor to make it conform to the Senate version. It could either send it back to committee with committee and send the amendment directly instructions to change the language or approve it and try to reach a compromise in a joint conference with Senate negotiators.

> A compromise would have to be approved again in each chamber by a two-thirds margin.

A balanced budget constitutional amendment has been suggested for years but never before came to a vote in Congress. The Senate outcome was by no means certain, and President Reagan lobbled a few senators by telephone earlier in the day to support the

Lohman: Many Prisoners Don't Belong Behind Bars

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - As many as 15 percent to 35 percent of Florida's more than 25,000 prisoners may not belong behind bars, a spokesman for the Florida Clearinghouse on Criminal Justice says.

James Lohman, spokesman for the prisoners' rights group, told a special task force Wednesday that more than half of the prisoners currently in the system did not commit violent crimes. Other "sanctions" would be more appropriate for many of them than prison, he

"The prison system need not function as the wholesale dumping ground it has become," Lohman told the task force, which was meeting for only the second time in its effort to find a long-term solution to the chronic problem of prison overcrowding

Lohman said possible short-term solutions are the immediate release of prisoners with 90 days or less remaining on their sentences, work release and furlough programs, greater use of parole, shorter sentences and a re-examination of the state's mandatory sentencing laws.

The state is under a court order from U.S. District Court judge Charles Scott and must be in compliance by Oct. 8. Scott's order says in part that the state may not exceed capacity at any of its penal institutions.

Drugs, Weapons In Schools

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) - A 118 percent increase in the number of Broward County students caught carrying weapons during the last year is a sign the school system's strict rules are working, school board officials said.

A report released Wednesday showed the skyrocketing increase in students caught with weapons, and showed that drug law violations also increased significantly during the last year.

School officials attributed the increased number of weapon and drug incidents to a strict school board policy designed to beef up enforcement of drug and weapons rules. The policy is also aimed at encouraging students to report fellow pupils who break the rules.

Deer Hunt Called Sound

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Although it drew protests from animal lovers nationwide, the state's plan to use hunters to thin out starving deer in the Everglades was based on sound wildlife management principles, Gov. Bob Graham's office has concluded.

In addition, a report released by Graham Wednesday, said the flooding that led to a shortage of food for the deer was beneficial to other forms of wildlife, including fish, aquatic reptiles and birds.

Evening Herald, Sanford, Fl. Thursday, Aug. 5, 1982-3A Judge Overturns Own 1956 Ruling

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) - A federal judge, saying be naively believed lies by the government, overturned his 26year-old decision and granted a new trial to ranchers who claim fallout from nuclear tests killed 4,400 sheep in 1953.

U.S. District Judge A. Sherman Christensen said Wednesday events of the past decade have led people to be more cynical about the honesty of federal officials and indicated if he had heard the same evidence about the sheep deaths now he might not have accepted it.

Christensen vacated his 1956 decision relieving the government of responsibility in the sheep deaths, charging the military and Atomic Energy Commission defrauded his court during those proceedings. He set an Aug. 24 hearing to

The judge blamed a too narrow "government-tells-thetruth" attitude for his inability to detect the fraud.

He said he would still like to believe in the basic integrity of government officials, "despite the buffetings of Watergate, these procedures and other current disclosures.

"Nonetheless, I have concluded that by whatever standard or as of whatever period the circumstances found here are to be judged, they (the circumstances) clearly and convincingly demonstrate a species of fraud upon the court for which a remedy must be granted," Christensen said.

Former Secretary of Interior Stewart Udall said the ruling will significantly affect his claim that atomic testing in Nevada severely damaged hundreds of Utah families in the

Arafat's Last Card

Yasser Arafat and his trapped Palestine Liberation Organization followers in west Beirut, abandoned by Arab governments and helpless before the Israeli army, have precious few cards left to play.

Their only trump would be to recognize Israel's right to exist, thereby removing the sole barrier to direct negotiations between the PLO and the United States.

Arafat recently seemed to be trying to bring about the latter without quite doing the former. Predictably, it didn't wash.

Even State Department hands long eager for any sign of PLO flexibility on recognizing Israel cast ice water on the one-sentence statement released by Arafat.

That statement, recognizing "all U.N. resolutions relevant to the Palestinian question." might be construed as tacit recognition of Israel's right to exist.

Then again, it might just as easily be construed as diplomatic mush signifying no retreat whatsoever from the PLO's sworn determination to destroy the state of Israel.

Which U.N. resolutions are "relevant" to the Palestinian question?

Four successive American administrations have considered U.N. resolutions 242 and 338 approved following the 1967 and 1973 Mideast wars respectively — as the basis for a just peace. Whether Arafat considers these "relevant" to the "Palestinian question" remains in doubt.

Arafat could eliminate this ambiguity by issuing an equally laconic communique worded thusly: "The Palestine Liberation Organization recognizes Israel's right to exist and to live in peace with its Arab neighbors.'

Such a statement would break a diplomatic logjam that has prevented a Middle East peace for more than 30 years.

Such a statement would also trigger immediate, face-to-face negotiations between the PLO and the United States. It would create irresistible pressures on Israel - yes, even on the government of Menachem Begin — to commence serious negotiations for Palestinian autonomy on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

A clear, unqualified recognition of Israel would also remove the one justification every Israeli government has cited for refusing to deal with the

What government negotiates willingly with an organization openly pledged to its destruction by force of arms?

It may be that an unqualified recognition of Israel is beyond Arafat's power to deliver. After all, he heads a coalition some of whose members are unalterably opposed to any concessions at any time under any circumstances.

And even if Arafat could deliver, he may well choose to withhold recognition of Israel until it can be exchanged for tangible Israeli guarantees of concessions to the Palestinian Arabs.

But Arafat cannot expect to gain without giving, especially in his present dire circumstances. And what he offered recently seemed much more apparent than real.

The Seminole County League of Women Voters Board of Directors has announced its support of the library bond issue on the Oct, 5 ballot. Voters will be asked to approve a bond issue to purchase land, construct, expand and improve buildings, as well as purchase furniture, books and equipment for six branch libraries to be established in Seminole County.

The league has supported a county library system since its study in 1971-2, which concluded that a library system is the county government's responsibility. League members have served on the county commission's Library Study committee, the County Library Advisory committee and the recent Library Referendum Study Committee. The league supported the recent "straw-ballot" where citizens voted to spend up to 25 cents per $1,000 assessed valuation for the library system.

Lynda Mays, past president of the league will represent the organization on the Library Action committee - a coalition of organizations and individuals whose purpose is to promote passage of the bond issue. Plans are being formed to raise money for distribution of information on the bond Issue and Irene Brown of Flagship Bank, Sanford, is serving as campaign treasurer.

"The league is concerned that a 'no' vote will indicate to the County Commissioners that citizens want the library system to remain at its present level, rather than expanding services and facilities to meet the needs of our growing county," said Helen Smith, league president.

The charming 13-year-old English schoolboys visiting Sanford last week as guests of the Sanford Rotarians are certainly great goodwill ambassadors for their country. Young people need goals and challenges and through their Robin Hood-82 project to raise money to fight polio in Third World Countries they have chosen a tough one. They are riding their bikes from Miami to Ontario.

Although these boys are unusually young for long distance cyclists, it is not uncommon to see groups on the road and in campgrounds as they test their mettle on the pedal.

On our recent vacation trip to New Brunswick Canada, we encountered many such groups of cyclists along the way. Our 16-year-old nephew rode his 10-speed last summer from Oregon to Virginia, but with my luck on a bicycle it is just as well we were traveling by Winnebago.

Those of you who remember our engine trouble over the Pacific last summer on the way to Hawaii are probably not surprised we chose to make this trip on ground level.

Judicial Powers Debated

WASHINGTON (NEA)-The last thing that most members of Congress want in this election year is another heated debate.

But they are being forced into one by a little-noticed decision handed down by the Supreme Court in the closing days of its latest session. Many on Capitol Hill are holding Chief Justice Warren Burger personally responsible for this undesired turn of events.

In the June 28 decision, the Supreme Court, by a 6-3 margin, ruled unconstitutional a key section of the federal bankruptcy law. Congress passed that law in 1978 after years of hearings, debate and, in the end, sharp differences between the House and Senate. Those differences remain at the heart of the

In effect, the 1978 law created a new set of courts to adjudic te bankruptcy cases. Bankruptcies previously had been the responsibility of the federal district courts with much of the actual work performed by referees appointed by the district judges.

But the workload had grown too great, and many district courts had amassed large backlogs of bankruptcy cases. So, Congress was persuaded to set up the new courts.

But these courts were not made equal to the district courts. Instead, they were made ancillary, and their judges were not given the same status as district judges. This is the crux of the problem.

Article III of the Constitution requires that the federal judiciary be independent of the other branches of government. Thus, most . unmatched in any other state. federal judges receive life tenure and salaries that cannot be reduced during their service. The new bankruptcy judges, however, were given only 14-year tenure and salaries that could be raised or lowered by Congress each fiscal year. (Similar provisions apply to certain other federal judges in courts of narrow jurisdiction.)

At the same time, Congress gave these judges jurisdiction not only over bankruptcies but also over a whole range of civil matterssuch as contract, anti-trust and labor issuesarising directly out of their bankruptcy cases.

This was too much power, the Supreme Court said, for judges who did not have the independence required by the Constitution.

The court did not go so far as to invalidate decisions made by these judges since 1978. However, it did demand that Congress "reconstitute the bankruptcy courts" by Oct. 4 if they are to continue to function.

Many members of Congress foresaw this problem when the bankruptcy law was being debated and therefore sought to make the bankruptcy judges equal to the district

But Chief Justice Burger lobbied hard against the proposal. He ultimately convinced Congress to give the judges fixed terms of office and salaries that would be set annually as part of the federal budgetary process. Many observers viewed this lobbying as an attempt at empire-building on Burger's part. As the chief administrative officer of the federal court system, he would have considerably more authority over judges who were serving limited terms at salaries that could be lowered.

Some of these observers saw the June decision as a personal slap at the chief justice by an increasingly divided and acrimonious Supreme Court. Only Justices Lewis Powell and Byron White voted with Burger on the

Connecticut Family Feud

HARTFORD, Conn. (NEA) - Politics is a very serious business for its practitioners everywhere, but the virulence of a longstanding political feud between two wealthy Connecticut families probably is

On one side of the seemingly ceaseless R-Conn., an outspoken political maverick who thrives on controversy and is described as aggressive by his friends and abrasive by his

Pitted against him in a blood feud that has been raging for at least 12 years and possibly as long as three decades is the patrician family of Vice President George Bush.

In 1970, Bush was scheduled to address the Connecticut Republican Party's statewide convention, but GOP officials reportedly had to withdraw the invitation belatedly because of strenuous objections from Weicker.

Ten years later, when Bush was seeking the party's presidential nomination, Weicker attempted to embarrass him by publicizing his version of an episode that occurred at the height of the Watergate scandal when Bush was chairman of the Republican National Committee.

According to Welcker, Bush telephoned him in 1973 to ask what the senator wanted done with documents detailing secret campaign contributions made to Weicker and 38 other GOP candidates under the direction of President Nixon's political operatives, than said, "What should I do - burn them?" Bush termed that account as "an absolute lie."

Bush's bid for the Republican presidential nomination was unsuccessful, but he was selected to be Ronald Reagan's running mate. Welcker dutifully (if not enthusiastically) supported Reagan but pointedly refused to endorse Bush.

The Welcker-Bush feud was perpetuated this year when one of the vice president's brothers, Prescott S. Bush Jr., mounted a challenge to Weicker's bid for re-election even though he had never before sought

Does the Bush family have a dislike for

Weicker? "There's no such thing on our side of the fence," insists Prescott Bush, who claims Weicker is responsible for the hostilities. "He's been just aggressively against George on everything."

But Bush isn't especially charitable to Welcker, whom he describes as "a hypocrite." The senator's combative behavior "has antagonized a lot of people" and his animosity toward the Bush family is the product of "just sheer jealousy," says the vice president's brother.

Weicker also isn't inclined to forgive or forget, "To know (Prescott) Bush is not to like him," he says while simultaneously disclaiming any responsibility for the history of antagonism between himself and the Bush family.

At the GOP's recent statewide convention here, Weicker defeated Bush by a margin of almost 2-1 in the contest for the party's endorsement of a senatorial candidate to run against Rep. Toby Moffitt, the Democratic nominee.

White House officials claim that both Reagan and George Bush maintained their traditional neutrality until the Republican Party's selection process was concluded but there is evidence of considerable meddling in recent months.

Shortly after Lyn Nofziger resigned as Reagan's principal political adviser, he traveled to Connecticut for public appearances or Bush's behalf and wrote a widely publicized letter endorsing the vice president's brother.

Rather than engage in an arduous, expensive and probably futile campaign against Weicker after the convention, Bush decided not to extend his challenge to a Sept. 7 primary.

But the unique family feud undoubtedly will continue with a vengeance in the years to come. It could flare up as early as 1984, if Reagan decides not to seek a second term, Bush makes a bid for the presidency and Weicker again attempts to sabotage Bush's political career.

Moral Issues

The current phase of the unilateral disarmament campaign is one in which radicalized or profoundly unrealistic Western clergymen play a central role. They are the most open advocates of the "Better Red Than Dead" position.

A case in point is the Rev. John Stone Jenkins, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church in New Orleans, La. In a sermon delivered June 20, which has been brought to my attention by a concerned parishioner, Mr. Jenkins condemned President Reagan for what he termed his "cynical" response to the Soviet Union's declaration that it would never resort to a nuclear first strike. Mr. Jenkins said that America should "speak with a unified voice to congratulate the Soviet Union" and added that "the Russians really out-Christianized us in what they did." No wonder thoughtful parishioners were disturbed - and all this from the pulpit.

Mr. Jenkins failed to notice that the Soviet 'no-first strike" proposal was embodied in a statement that also called for a "convention on the prohibition of development, production and stockpiling of chemical weapons." That quote is from Moscow News (Novosti Press Agency) for July 4-11. The entire world knows that the Soviets are using chemical weapons in Afghanistan and in Southeast Asia. How can anyone, even a gullible clergyman, believe the Soviet pledge about a nuclear first strike - anymore than the hypocritical statement about chemical weapons can be believed?

Mr. Jenkins' sermon went beyond incredible political innocence. He asked rhetorically: "Is it possible to come to some kind of circumstances in which we would have to accept defeat without death?" Working his way to the heart of his appeal, he asked: "Is it perhaps not a better heritage to our children to give them a planet with a bad set of politics and maybe a bad economy to it and let them work through that than to commit ourselves to this type of total destruction?" In other words, isn't it better to live under communism than to experience nuclear war?

If Americans were to answer Mr. Jenkins in the affirmative, they could forget about freedom for themselves and their children. The Soviet military machine would have triumphed without firing a shot.

What Mr. Jenkins fails to understand is that a communist political triumph doesn't mean an end to killing. The Soviet regime triumphed in Russia over 60 years ago, and ever since then it has been killing its own people in concentration camps that Alexander Solzhenitsyn described. Today, the people of Poland are in a vast communist concentration camp, denied the hope of liberty that they enjoyed only two years ago.

Is that a heritage that Mr. Jenkins would give to the generations to come — a heritage of tyranny and oppression? Does Mr. Jenkins - and others who share his views remember Patrick Henry's "give me liberty or give me death?" Countless brave people in the captive nations of the Soviet empire refuse to accept what Mr. Jenkins suggests that Americans be prepared to accept.

It is very tragic that men of the cloth should be in the vanguard of the fearful appeasers of Soviet totalitarianism. Fear of war should not lead free men to settle for slavery.

Mafia Seeks Revenge On FBI Infiltrator

WASHINGTON - In the widespread criticism of FBI officials' sins of commission or omission in the Abscam and Ray Donovan investigations, it's easy to lose sight of the fact that the bureau's agents — the "grunts" of the organization - continue to perform extraordinary feats of investigation, often at the risk of their lives.

As just one example, consider the special agent known as "Donnie Brasco." That's the undercover name he used to infiltrate the Bonanno crime family of New York City. The skill with which "Brasco" and another Gman, "Tony Rossi," infiltrated the Mob led to indictments of Bonnanno family members as well as the reputed underworld boss of Milwaukee, Frank Balistrleri.

The Mafia dons are raging. They have vowed to kill the agent who embarrassed them by winning their confidence in a masquerade that lasted more than six years. "Brasco" was so successful that at one point he was being considered for formal induction

The infiltrator's mission was so important that he had at least one midnight rendezvous with FBI Director William Webster himself while still maintaining his underworld cover.

A year ago, when the two infiltrators were pulled out, their mission accomplished, the FBI took the unusual step of telling the heads of all the Mafia familles that they had been undone by the FBI agents, not betrayed by underworld renegades. The intention was to forestall any idea of revenge by the dons.

Ordinarily, there is a certain "professional" respect for FBI agents among mobsters. The G-men are regarded as only doing their job; nothing personal. There is also, of course, a healthy reluctance to provoke the FBI unnecessarily.

But this time it didn't work that way. The Mafia bosses were apparently too humiliated. An FBI document from the Organized Crime Section tells what happened: "Unfortunately this notification measure has proven fruitless. Since the suspension of undercover activities the FBI has received information that an intense effort is underway on the part of La Cosa Nostra members and associates to locate and kill Special Agent known as Donnie Brasco despite their knowledge that he is an agent."

One Bonanno family member, Benjamin "Lefty Guns" Ruggiero, was particularly incensed at being taken in by the agent. It was Ruggiero who introduced the spurious gangster to colleagues in Florida and

Milwaukee. A month after the FBI's warning to the Mob, Ruggiero was overheard saying he was going to find "Brasco" and kill him if it was the last thing he did. My associate Tony Capaccio has learned that Ruggiero did in fact set out to track the G-man. Ruggiero used Miami contacts to get the telephone number used by "Brasco" at the Miami Beach Holiday Inn, in hopes of finding out whom he called. And while in the New York City Metropolitan Correctional Center, Ruggiero reportedly told fellow inmates, "We know where to find that S.O.B. We're going to get somebody to whack him."

The Mob has circulated photographs of the two undercover agents to Mafiosi across the

The unprecedented search reflects the fact that "the ability of the two agents to get as close as they did to high-ranking members of La Cosa Nostra has ... resulted in severe embarrassment to some, if not all, 'bosses' and 'members' of the Mob," an FBI document notes.

The Brasco-Rossi high-level infiltration represents a deliberate shift in FBI tactics that began in the mid-1970s. Instead of infiltrating at a lower level and maintaining large surveillance operations, the bureau has successfully gone after some of the top mobsters - a most dangerous game for the gutsy G-men who are in the front lines.

West Palm Grabs 2 To Reach Finals

By CHRIS FISTER Herald Sports Writer

West Palm Beach played two inspired ballgames Wednesday in completing its sweep through the loser's bracket to advance to the championship game of the Florida Junior Major League State Tournament Thursday at Sanford's Chase Park.

West Palm Beach's valiant effort set up a championship match with Jacksonville Southern Thursday morning at 10 a.m. If West Palm whips Jax in the morning game, it sets up a winnertake-all encounter Thursday afternoon at West Palm got a two-hit complete game victory from Pat Hayes in a narrow 3-2 victory over Panama City in Wednesday's second game.

in the first game Wednesday, Jacksonville won its third straight, 13-3 over Tallahassee to advance to the title game as the tournament's only unbeaten team. The loss sent Tallahassee to the loser's bracket and a matchup with West

In Wednesday's nightcap, West Palm Beach scored three times in the fourth and five in the sixth en route to a 9-3 triumph over Tallahassee in the loser's bracket final.

West Palm Beach had 10 hits including three doubles off the bat of Allen Botkin and one double each by George Magalios and Dan Periera.

In the top of the third inning Hatcher took the mound with the bases loaded and only one out. On his first pitch Tallahassee had the squeeze on with the runner on third breaking. Hatcher stepped off the rubber and threw home, the runner reached the plate in time but the batter did not make an attempt to get out of the way, thus the runner was called out due to interference on the batter.

Tallahassee ended up scoring two runs in the inning but left the bases loaded.

Nuss 2-Hits Boca Raton; Altamonte Tries Belmont Again

Herald Sports Editor ROCKLEDGE -- If there was one play to typify Altamonte's 15-0 cakewalk over Boca Raton here Thursday night it came in the seventh inning.

With runners at first and second base and a 2-2 count on Altamonte's Ryan Lisle, Boca Raton pitcher Lenzi Burton fired ball three a little wide of the strike

Lisle, with a rousing accompaniment of "good eye Ryan" from the dugout, promptly discarded his bat and jogged down to first base.

The runners on first and second sailed up a base accordingly and everything seemed real until the public address announcer informed everyone that it was, indeed, only ball three.

Lisle returned with a smirk and Burton, the second Boca Raton pitcher, gingerly walked up to the umpire and asked if that was ball three, then why didn't the runners return to second and

When the umpire, who now realized just what had occurred, related to Burton that the wool had been pulled over Boca Raton's eyes and the bases had been stolen, the tall pitcher shrugged his shoulders and returned to the mound.

While Altamonte's trickery was lulling Bacon Raton to sleep in the field. righthander Gary Nuss was saying "beddy bye" to its bats with a neat two-hit effort. The victory sets up a classic rematch with Belmont Heights tonight at 6:30. Altamonte sends Mike Schmit at the Belmont crew in an attempt to break a three-game losing streak and hopefully set up a game Friday for the Florida

Baseball

Little League 13-Year-Old Tournament State championship. The Juniors need two straight for a trip to the Regional at

"I don't think I've ever wanted anything so much," said manager Gene Letterio, whose team dropped a 3-0 verdict to Belmont on Tuesday, "I just hope the kids want it as much as I do. "They sit there in the dugout and tell me how they're going to do this to (Derrick) Bell or (Gary) Sheffield, but they don't do it.

"We've lost to them three times in two years. If they beat us again Thursday we'll know who the best team is without a doubt," concluded Letterio. There was no doubt who was the best team Wednesday. Altamonte socked out 12 hits and piled up a 10-0 lead in the first four innings against starter Tom Lane and reliever Burton.

Shane Letterio started things immediately with a walk and a stolen base. Two batters later, Harris, who had a superb evening with two hits, three runs and four steals, chased home the run with a single up the middle.

Later in the inning, Lisle singled home Harris and eventually scored himself on a passed ball.

In the second Letterio reached on an error, went to second on a wild nitch and third on a passed ball. Brett Marshall walked and stole second and Schmidt scored Letterio with a ground out.

Altamonte upped its lead to 6-0 when Harris reached on an error by the third baseman and Bruce Carlson unloaded a

A two-out third inning rally added two more. Letterio ripped a double over the leftfielder's head and moved to third on Marshall's single and scored with a headfirst dive on a wild pitch. Schmit then plated Marshall with a single up the middle.

In the fourth, Marty Posey singled, Carlson walked and Dan Beaty chipped a bunt for a hit to load the bases. Nuss walked to force home a run for a 9-0

Letterio, the Juniors mitey-mite third baseman, rolled a perfect squeeze bunt to the right of the mound to drive in Carlson for a 10-0 edge. A five-run seventh featured RBI-walks

Steve Chasey and Nuss before Marshall singled in the 15th run. Nuss, meanwhile, had little difficulty. He walked five and struck out five. No runner wandered past second base

by pinch-hitter Scott Verville, Carlson,

ALTAMONTE ANGLES - First baseman Posey turned in the defensive gem of the game with a nice one-handed snag of Chris Murray's ground ball in the third inning.

The play of the tournament, however, came in Tuesday's game with Belmont Heights when Junior rightfielder Steve-Chasey made a spectacular, diving catch of Derrick Pedro's pop fly, Belmont manager Monty Bostick figured he would meet Altamonte again Thursday. He said he would go with husky Joe Green as his starting pitcher.

Bostick considers rifle-armed third baseman Gary Sheffield his ace followed by shortstop Albert Jenkins, Neither of the two played on last year's team, Jenkins, because he was hurt (broken arm), and Sheffield because of an attitude problem.

Bell, who always gives Altamonte fits, was burt earlier this year, but has rebounded to be Belmont's third pitcher. Pretty nice third pitcher.

Thin-Ice LaRussa Unruffled By Michael's Departure

NEW YORK — Tony LaRussa, the Chicago White Sox manager, had just gotten back to the hotel early Wednesday morning after his club had cremated the New York Yankees, 1-0, and then thrown the ashes in their faces, 14-2, in twi-night doubleheader sweep when he got the news.

"Did you hear what happened?" someone asked him.

"No," LaRussa was curious. "What happened?"

"The Yankees fired Gene Michael and named Clyde King to replace him," LaRussa's informant advised him.

The White Sox manager never even blinked. He has been on thin ice himself with his job the past few weeks, and still is, in fact, and while he has no wish to see any manager fired, his primary feeling was, he was glad it wasn't him.

"You realize any time a club is struggling, one guy is more vulnerable then anyone else," LaRussa said in the visiting manager's office in Yankee Stadium before Wednesday's night second straight twi-night doubleheader with the Yankees.

"Sometimes a guy survives, sometimes he doesn't" Larussa went on. "When I heard what happened to Michael, I felt bad for him.

You know what they say about this game, though. 'That's baseball." Clyde King knows that very well. He's 57, has spent 38 of those years in professional baseball and has been fired as manager by the San Francisco Giants and Atlanta Braves, so being shoved into the breach as interim manager of the Yankees by George Steinbrenner at 1:04 Wednesday morning didn't exactly work out to be the thrill of his life. King has been with the Yankees since 1976 doing a variety of jobs for them. He is a man from the old school does what his superior officer tells him to, but that doesn't mean he's always toadying to owner George Steinbrenner as some have unfairly and uncharitably said about him.

When Steinbrenner asked him to take over as interim manager and the club's third manager of the season, he said although he accepted the job "reluctantly," he also took it "willingly."

Steinbrenner assured him he could have his old job back when his tour of duty is over. That could be at any time, just as it was for Bob Lemon and Michael, both of whom have already managed the Yankees twice, and King is perfectly aware of that. It doesn't bother him at all.

Milton Richman

UPI Sports Editor

"You don't seem nervous," his wife, Norma, said to him when he left his Westchester home Wednesday for the stadium and

"I'm not," he told her. "I don't know why, maybe it's the 38 years I've got in this game."

Clyde King is much like Jim Fanning of the Montreal Expos, who came out of the front office to manage last year. He knows there's a job waiting for him in the organization when he's fired. Michael has one with the Yankees, too, if he wants it and I'm sure he does. Or at least he will want it when the pain of being replaced as manager subsides more.

I'm also reasonably sure the Yankees next manager will be Earl Weaver, now piloting the Baltimore Orioles, or Don Zimmer, now unemployed.

Meanwhile, King has no complaints about his "interim" label.

"It's fine with me," he says. "I'm not a bit concerned about managing next year although Mr Steinbrenner said I could if I wanted to. Normally, you'd insist on having a second year in this kind of situation, but I'm not. If that's what the club wants, fine. If not, that's fine, too."

Clyde King is the type of individual who never looks for rewards and therefore often gets more of them than he anticipates.

Once after he had been used four straight days in relief by Manager Leo Durocher while he was pizching for the Dodgers, Durocher called him into his office.

Leo was wearing a snazzy blue checkered

"Like it?" he asked King.

"Oh, boy!" was the appreciative answer "Try It on," Durocher said.

King found it was a couple of sizes too big for him. Not long afterwards, a jacket exactly like it, but the right size, was delivered to

"That was Leo's way," King explained. "He never hugged you or paid you a lot of personal compliments, he just showed how he felt about you in his own way." George Steinbrenner does the same thing.

Slumping Braves Travel To Los Angeles Giants Drop Atlanta In 9th; King, Yankees Split With Chisox

United Press International

The slumping Atlanta Braves, with the memory of the Los Angeles Dodgers' sweep of their four-game series last weekend still fresh, are preparing to meet them again - this time in Los Angeles.

Wednesday, although the Braves dropped their sixth in the last seven games and the Dodgers won their sixth of seven and the Braves' Western Division lead dwindled to 512 games, they were welcoming the challenge.

"I think it is a great time to be playing the Dodgers - to get a little payback," said Bob Horner, who slugged his 23rd homer in Atlanta against San Francisco before the Giants came back to win, 3-2. "We've always played well in Los Angeles :.. '

Joe Morgan lined a two-out single to right field in the ninth inning, scoring pinch-runner Max Venable to give the Giants the victory. Greg Minton set the Braves down in order, in the ninth, to take his 18th save.

Dodgers 8, Reds 2

At Cincinnati, rookie Ricky Wright allowed just two hits in six innings in his first majorleague start and Steve Garvey socked a threerun homer to carry Los Angeles.

Mets 7, Cubs 4

At Chicago, Joel Youngblood, traded to Montreal in the middle of the game, had a tworun single in a three-run third inning and pitcher Cralg Swan hit his first major-league home run to lead New York. Phillies 5, Expos 4

At Philadelphia, Younghlood became the first player in major-league history to play for two different teams in separate cities on the same day when he appeared as a defensive replacement in the sixth. Manny Trillo stroked a two-run single to break a 3-3 tie in the sixth and Steve Carlton became the majors' first 15vanue winner

Padres 5, Astros 2

At Houston, John Montefusco survived a shaky start to pick up his first complete-game victory of the season and Terry Kennedy capped a four-run sixth inning with a two-run double to spark San Diego. Pirates 5, Cardinals 2

At St. Louis, John Candelaria and Rod Scurry combined on a seven-hitter and each delivered a key hit to lead Pittsburgh.

Clyde King made a successful debut as the New York Yankees' interim manager Wednesday night in their 6-2 victory over Chicago in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader. The White Sox won the nightcap, 7-0.

"We still have a chance to win this year," said King, who replaced Gene Michael, who was fired after Tuesday night's doubleheader loss to Chicago.

Rudy Law hit a three-run homer and Steve Kemp drove in two runs in support of Britt Burns' two-hitter, lifting the White Sox in the nighteap.

In the first game, Rodney Scott went 2-for-3 and scored two runs to lead New York. Ron Guidry pitched seven innings, allowing four hits, to raise his record to 114 while LaMarr Hoyt gave up five runs and fell to 13-10. Rich Gossage worked the final two innings to pick up his 20th save for the Yankees. Mariners 5-3, A's 2-8

At Oakland, Calif., Rickey Henderson stole two bases and scored the first run in the nightcap, to spark the A's to a split. In the opener, he stole his 101st base of the season to break his own American League single-season record for stolen bases, but the Mariners fought back behind the four-hit pitching of Jim Beattle to defeat Oakland.

Brewers 8, Blue Jays 0 At Toronto, Cecil Cooper went 4-for-5 and knocked in three runs with a two-run double and his 22nd homer of the year, powering the Orioles 4, Red Sox 2 At Baltimore, Al Bumbry drove in two runs

Angels 8, Twins 6 At Anaheim, Calif., Brian Downing's tworun homer with two out in the bottom of the eighth inning broke a 6-6 tie and gave the Angels a victory over the Twins.

Poor Economy Is Boon To Alabama Business

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) = Despite a 10 percent unem- are projected at $6.5 million ployment rate in its four-state territory, a Mobile-based television and appliance rental firm has used the recession to become one of the and appliances in three Virnation's 100 fastest growing businesses.

With a bad economy people are more inclined to rent than buy," says Judy McCann, 37, who, along with her husband, James B. McCann, 45, founded Elean Investments, Inc., in Gulfport, Miss., in 1975.

"It (recession) sure hasn't hurt us," says Mrs. McCann. The company, which has 11 stores in Alabama, Mississippi, Florida and Georgia, has done so well that it has made the list of 100 fastest growing businesses in the United States compiled by Inc. magazine.

The Boston-based magazine's survey is based on growth over a five-year period. From 1976 to 1981. Elean grew from three employees to 87 and had a sales growth of 1,300 percent.

Elean, 59th on the Inc. list, had gross sales of $3.76 million in the 12 months ending March 31, 1982, said Mrs. McCann. In the previous 12 months, sales were $1.65

Sales for the current year don't want to make long term with the opening of new stores in the Sunbelt during 1982.

The McCanns also own M&J ginia cities. But that company's sales are separate and were not a p "t of the Inc.

Mrs. McCann says hard work and daily supervision have helped the computerized company's growth, but she concedes that economic hard times have also helped spurpurchases," she says, "If they get laid off, we can just pick it (television set or appliance) up and they continue to have

Pyramids Or Junk?

BEDFORD, Ind. (UPI) -The highly touted authenticstyle pyramids for which the federal government contributed $700,000 are no more than a pile of rocks and the project's director says that's all they ever will be.

miles north of Bedford are supposed to be a tourist attraction and a shot in the arm for the Indiana limestone industry.

But so far the heaps of stone don't even come close to looking like the pyramids they were ballyhooed to become. And they never will, says directs the project. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., has awarded the project his Golden Fleece award for taxpayers' money. The Indianapolis Star reported in its Sunday editions there is no plan to shape the unkempt hunks of stone into two gleaming symmetrical pyramids and a miniature Great Wall of China as depicted in an artist's conception of the project. Edington, president of the Bedford Chamber of Commerce, said the piles are stacked in the simplest way to get the stone up in the air where tourists can see, without going to the expense of cutting, forming and mortaring the exhibit located on a 20-acre site.

"I'm not going to smooth it up," he insisted. "That wasn't the intention. Never was." Edington sold the U.S. Economic Development Administration on the project three years ago. EDA gave the Chamber of Commerce $500,000 for it in 1979 and $200,000 more in 1981.

In a retort to Proxmire's digs, Edington claimed the project included funds from private sources, but he admitted the only other cash came from his late mother totaling $50.

The idea behind the exhibit The rocks piled up about 5 was to attract tourists to "the Limestone Capital of the World," and at the same time help the market for Indiana limestone, once used extensively for building.

Quarry companies around the city of 14,000 donated the land and the waste limestone.

So far, all the site has is a rockpile and an old railroad Merle E. Edington, who caboose to be used for a souvenir shop. Construction was suspended a year ago. A 151-square-foot base of the Egyptian style pyramid is foolish use of about $700,000 in in place along with three tiers of a Mexican style pyramid, which Edington says he hopes
