

Foreign Policy Of Roosevelt Attacked Again

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Attacks on President Roosevelt's policies were moving on several foreign policy fronts again yesterday while administration fronts in an attempt to ease growing international concern over this Nation's naval expansion program.

In contrast to warnings by Senators William E. Borah (R Idaho), and Hiram W. Johnson (R Calif.), against dangerous secret alliances, Sen. William H. King (D Utah), declared that the United States "should not look for indifference" on Japan's "flagrant" violations of treaties in the Chinese conflict.

Other developments came as:

1. Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, testifying before the House Naval Affairs Committee on behalf of the President's naval expansion program, denied that the United States has any plans for joining another power in possible war against Japan or any other Nation.

2. Chairman Scovier O. Blood (D Va.), of the House Merchant Marine Committee, warned members against use of "inflammatory" remarks in discussion of United States-Japanese relations during consideration of a bill to confiscate foreign fishing vessels violating this country's regulations off Alaska.

3. Chairman Key Pittman (D Nev.), of the Senate, had no binding agreement or understanding with Great Britain to consult on international affairs and policies.

4. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee began study of an amendment to the Neutrality Act to give Congress authority to apply its provisions after the President has informed that body that he believes a state of war exists.

Admiral Leahy, testifying the third successive day on the Vinson bill to increase the Navy's fighting strength 20 percent over treaty limits vigorously denied there is any intention to join the British and French Navies in policing the world.

"This program is needed to improve the defenses of this country against any possible aggression from overseas," he said. The United States Navy has no plans to join any other nation in a possible war."

He said it was "absolutely essential" that the United States keep pace with other powers in the construction of naval units. He gave as his opinion that the proposed increase in the United States Navy "would definitely promote peace."

L. J. Taber Gives Success Formula For All Farmers

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Success formula for farmers:

1. Buy good land.
2. Use modern machinery.
3. Participate in community life.

L. J. Taber speaking. The dynamic, white-haired national master of the 800,000-member cooperative and social Grange organization adds that there is a substantial financial reward for the young man who fitted these qualifications:

"Likes to work, loves the soil and has the tact and ability to become a real farmer."

"We will have no farmer millionaires," declares the veteran farm leader, who is rounding out 25 years as a Grange official, "but when it comes to settling up estates we find that farmers average pretty well with other groups."

The former Ohio director of agriculture stresses education, organization and co-operation as the "three old weapons" which the farmer "can use in a new way."

"Science, research and inventive genius are building a new rural life that offers added rewards to young men and women of courage and ability," he asserts.

"The old notion that a farmer must work from sun-up to sundown is still partly true in the rush season, but that does not hold good in the year-round program. The young farmer and his wife who are community builders will stand just as good a chance of keeping the sheriff from the front gate as those who keep their noses all the time on the agricultural grindstone."

Fifty-nine years old, Taber says he is good for 40 more. He living,

STORK CALLS 27 TIMES
The 63-year-old farmer and sawmill operator was soon able to return home and greet his young son. He is now attending to the daily work on his plantation.

Twenty-five of his children are

Courses in domestic duties and mothercraft, organized in Germany by the Motherhood Services Department of the National Socialist Women's association, have been attended by 1,200,000 women.

The Club can be opened in 1868.

The Club can be opened in 1868

Little Business To The Fore

In spite of the fact that they all tried to talk at once like the members of the Ladies Aid, in spite of the fact that charges of "packing" and "steam-rolling" seem to have some foundation and there were no clear-cut accomplishments to which they can point with pride, in spite of the fact that at least two of them were thrown out; on their necks and the meeting almost broke out in a free-for-all fight, we are inclined to believe that the conference of "little businessmen" in Washington was a step in the right direction.

Big Business has had its conferences for years, has developed organization down to a fine point where its lobbyists are in there fighting day and night for special favors from the government. Labor is organized in powerfully centralized unions which have so much political power that no congressman can afford to be without their support. And the farmers too, in spite of their natural disinclination toward organization, have in the past few years become the recipients of many of the benefits of organized effort.

Only "little business" remains unorganized fighting more within its own ranks than against the outside interests which are slowly but surely throttling it. Our "little business" fails to maintain expensive lobbyists in Washington to protect its interests. Only "little business" has failed to secure any of the benefits of extensive government credits which have been lavished on farmers, Big Business, banks, railroads, insurance companies and other interests. And "little business" has borne the main burden of taxation levied to finance social experiments.

The very fact that the delegates to the "little businessmen" conference all wanted to talk at once shows that they did not know you never get anywhere that way. The entire proceedings demonstrated as clearly their lack of training in organization and their failure to grasp the importance of unity of action as the one important point upon which they all could agree that something has got to be done.

Furthermore, it should be kept in mind that this "little businessman" conference was not the "little businessman" as we know him. It was composed of delegates representing business grossing around $1 million dollars a year and employing not fewer than 500 persons. One wonders what would have happened to that conference in Washington if it had represented the interests of the little fellow who takes in fifty or a hundred thousand dollars a year and employs ten or twenty persons.

These little "little businessmen" have got to organize too. Their interests are by no means the same as those of the "little businessmen" who were summoned to Washington. Very frequently these interests clash severely and if the little fellows in the towns the size of Sanford do not want to get left at the post and have the load dumped in their wagon, they better wake up and get organized too. And they better use their organization to further their political interests the same as the CIO and the American Bankers' Association further theirs.

For after all, it is the little "little businessmen" who are the backbone of this country. There are thousands of them where there are dozens of the bigger businessmen. Together these little fellows employ more people, pay out more money in payrolls, and do a bigger business than all the big fellows put together. If the little fellows are broke, wages will be low and times hard. If they are prosperous, wages will be high and times good. But so far, they have been having a tough time getting the recognition to which they are entitled.

Patience, Men, Patience!

"It would be a great and valuable experience if every man, once during his lifetime, could sit over there on Mars for half an hour and get perspective on this world's workaday affairs," says an editorial in the Rotarian Magazine. "But probably that will be impossible—for a few years at least. The next best thing is to sit at the feet of Sir James Jeans, the English scientist."

He suggests in "The Universe Around Us," as you may recall, that to see ourselves and our generation in proper relation to the past and the future, we should lick a postage stamp and stick it on a penny. Then climb either of Cleopatra's Needles (one stands on the Thames Embankment in London, the other in Central Park, New York City, and each is about 70 feet high) and place thereon the penny, stamp side up. If the height of the whole structure be taken as a scale to represent the time elapsed since the earth became the earth, the thickness of the penny and the stamp represents the time that man has lived on the earth, and the thickness of the stamp the time that man has been civilized.

"Now, suggests Sir James, stick on another stamp: it corresponds to 5,000 years. Then another stamp, another, and another, until you have a stamp column as high as Mont Blanc, France, which is 15,782 feet high.

"Even now," Sir James will tell you, "the pile forms an inadequate representation of the length of the future which, so far as astronomy can see, probably stretches before the civilized humanity unless an accident cuts us short. The first postage stamp was the past of civilization. The column higher than Mont Blanc is the future. The first stamp represents what man has already achieved—the pile which outdoes Mont Blanc represents what he may achieve if his future achievement is proportional to his time on earth."

THAT OLD TIPO

ST. AUGUSTINE, FLA.

Typographical errors, the bane of every newspaper, because they will cross into the news columns occasionally, since a news item has to pass through so many hands before it actually gets into type, are still going strong. Every paper suffers. Even some of the well-known papers make mistakes. In St. Augustine, the St. Augustine Herald suggests that Miami the publishing center is the culprit. This good way to settle the argument would be for St. Louis to dig up some of St. Augustine's wrongdoing copy.

Those who think that badness is a sign of a high journalistic standard are wrong. All that is needed is for the world to follow our example. We should send them a tip on the little old-timers here.

GASPARILLA'S MYSTIC KREW INVADES TAMPA

Gasparilla, the pirate, and his mystic crew again invaded Tampa, Fla., at the 30th annual Gasparilla festival. The pirate ship, Joe Gaspar, is shown sailing into the city, which "surrendered" in merry fashion.

DISPELLING THE FOG

By CHARLES MICHELSON
Democratic National Committee

It has been a source of some wonderment what has become of the "intimate friend" of the President or the "close confidential adviser" who was always confiding Franklin D. Roosevelt's deepest political and economic secrets to columnist Frank Kent and the latter's colleagues among the public writers of the administration. It has been some weeks since the unnamed betrayer of confidence and anonymous of gossip that these propagandists were anxious to hear, was quoted in their columns.

One of Mr. Kent's recent publications has perhaps solved the mystery of his strange disappearance. It appears that the fellow to whom the President had been entrusting his thoughts, for transmission to his enemies, has moved over and is now bending his ear to get the plans and purposes of Chairman Farley of the Democratic National Committee in order that these, too, may be revealed to the public through the medium of Mr. Farley's most conspicuous assailants.

So we learn what Mr. Farley told the President and what "his closest friends" have been advised as to the Chairman's emotions and intentions.

Of course, anybody who believes this must carry on the thought that the National Chairman has attained his political eminence by telling people, who would use the information to hurt his opponents, everything he had in mind.

Phantom Reavers

Those who have worked in proximity to the National Chairman have gathered the impression that he knows perhaps as well as any layman who ever lived when to talk and when to remain silent. Of course, it would be simple to challenge the spreaders of gossip to be more explicit in their disclosure of nameless revelations of the innermost thoughts of people in public life.

Naturally, the mere suggestion that they should name these people would be offensive to their journalistic ethics. It is unfortunate that these ethics do not extend to preventing them from making use of slycoping confidences to back up statements that they would not dare to make themselves. It might be quite all right for my fellow columnists to guess at the frame of mind of the President. Naturally, nothing is gained by this except for discussion.

But generally he gives the group the background of the situation "off the record," and I do not think that there has ever been an intentional disregard of the limitations. After all, there are few absolute secrets in life and if there are any, the President is wise enough and uncompromised enough to avoid any comment that would compromise any national interest.

I think I am in a position to appreciate the difficulty of getting out a daily column—even a daily column of hate—and I am willing to go so far as to accord the right of publication in a measurable degree. Naturally, nothing is done about it. In this instance, the conscience of the writer is the only possible center, and no doubt it is better to be safe with such publications that it would be to attempt to interfere with the liberty of the press, which is the basic guarantee of our freedom.

With the present administration writing in defense of other "reavers" such as the Negroes, it is to be a national concern whether the voices of the voiceless live on.

ORANGE JUICE—LIFE RESTORE

ORLANDO SENTINEL

Florida needs no better boast for her citrus fruits than the prescription Memphis doctors gave the exhausted, ailing, failing Down Easters W. Newell and his wife. They literally poured Florida citrus juice, life-saving orange juice, into the 82-day father. Not content with juice they gave him some of the pulp. (Even the peel would have been good for him, possibly a few crushed oranges blossoms and several leaves thrown in for good measure.)

Anyway, citrus put the spark of life into his wasted frame. As soon as the Memphis doctor took hold of the exasperated Newell, Florida citrus juice pumped him back to round again. His heart became good, steady and regular. His respiration was easy. The color of his skin became ruddy. His eyes took on a new sheen. His mind warmed with returning vigor. His feet and toes tingled. His hands and fingers experienced new elan. He began to crave solid food.

Exactly what Dr. P. Phillips (Orlando) advocated before the Florida Citrus Commission and succeeded fruit growers at Lakeland not long ago—a diversion of Florida's growers $75,000 advertising fund for medical research. Dr. Phillips would have American universities medical colleges go into a huddle and definitely agree on the following and one things that Florida can do to restore health when have them pass this public individual destroy a million dollars or more in possible citrus damage circuit for their ailing patients.

Memphis doctors say, instead of spending $75,000 for Misandit that spring of a California citrus advertising and publicity campaign which Florida never even remotely approach Florida Citrus Commission might spend $50,000 for medical research, and spend, say, $10,000 for reprints of the brief Memphis news story and mail them to hunting and fishing men.

Quality Workmanship

Keep Your Shoes
In Shape

All
NADER'S REPAIR
SHOP

Duo-Therm

OIL BURNING
Circulating Heaters

HEAT

The Entire Home

LOW PRICE—
EASY TERMS

HOFMANN
Electric Service

200 Marcella Ave. Phone 161

WERT—The JEWELER

Diamonds and Pearls
Fine Watch and Jewelry Repairing
Diamond Mounting and Engraving

Box 21, P. O. Box 21, Sanford, Fla.

SANFORD PAINT & GLASS CO.

C. G. HORNBLER, Owner & Manager
GLASS • MIRRORS • PAINTS

QUALITY—DEPENDABILITY
Painting & Glass

STABILITY

FACE THE FUTURE
WITH CONFIDENCE

The firm of WERT—The Jeweler has been in business for over 20 years.

We are writing to express our thanks to our customers for their continued patronage.

With the present depression we are doing our best to meet the demands of our customers.

We are grateful for your continued support.

We are looking forward to a brighter future.

We are grateful for your continued support.

Social And Personal Activities

MARIE BRIGHAM JORDAN, Society Editor

Social Calendar

FRIDAY. There will be a recital given by the piano pupils of Miss Margaret L. Davis at the Woman's Club at 8:15 o'clock.

SUNDAY. The Townsend Clubs of 12 counties will hold a big convention in the City Hall at 2:00 o'clock. Manley Goldsberry of Chicago, one of Dr. Townsend's personal representatives, will be the main speaker. Music will be furnished by the Future Farmers Band. The public is cordially invited to attend.

MONDAY. The regular business and social meeting of Circle Number One of the First Methodist Church with Mrs. George McCrum, chairman, will be held at the home of Mrs. Paul Redfern, 618 Magnolia Avenue, at 8:00 o'clock.

The regular business and social meeting of Circle Number Two of the First Methodist Church will be held at the home of Mrs. J. M. Hayes, Ninth Street and Elm Avenue at 8:00 o'clock with Mrs. Hayes as chairman.

Circle Number Three of the First Methodist Church will hold their regular business and social meeting with Mrs. J. L. Clark as chairman, at the home of Mrs. W. P. Chapman, 208 W. Nineteenth Street at 8:00 o'clock.

Circle Number Four of the First Methodist Church with Mrs. H. B. McCall, Jr., as chairman, will meet at the home of Mrs. W. C. Hill, 1900 Magnolia Avenue, at 8:00 o'clock.

Circle Number Five of the First Methodist Church with Mrs. Earle Dooley as chairman, will meet at the home of Mrs. Carl Chorpeling, Jr., 2557 Palmetto Avenue at 7:30 o'clock. Hostesses will be Mrs. W. F. Bryan, Mrs. J. J. Carver and Mrs. Chorpeling.

The Co-operative Concerts Association will present Iso Briselli, violinist, at the Princess Theater at 8:15 o'clock.

There will be a board meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church at 2:00 o'clock followed by the business meeting at 3:30 o'clock. All are urged to attend.

TUESDAY. The Girl Scouts of Troop Number Two will meet at the Little House at 8:45 o'clock.

The Founder's Day Dinner will be held at the Woman's Club at 7:00 o'clock. For reservations call 78-J or 51 before noon Saturday.

The business and social meeting of the Azorian Class of the First Baptist Church will be held at the annex at 7:30 o'clock. Hostesses will be Mrs. B. C. Moore, Mrs. Lorraine Beal, and Mrs. A. L. Stacy.

WEDNESDAY. There will be a meeting of the Literature Department of the Woman's Club at 8:00 o'clock. Mrs. William L. Wilson of Jacksonville will be the speaker. The public is invited.

The Teachers Training Class and Worship will be held at 7:30 o'clock at the First Methodist Church. Mrs. Percy Chapman will be leader. All interested are cordially invited to attend.

There will be a board meeting of the Sanford Garden Club at 10:00 o'clock at the home of Mrs. H. M. Papworth.

The Sarah Parker Orphanage Club will spend the day sewing at the annex of the Methodist Church. A covered dish luncheon will be served.

Hay Ride Planned By Antlers Lodge

A committee was appointed to make plans for a hay ride at the regular meeting of the Antlers Lodge which was held at the Elks Club on Wednesday night.

It was announced that a second degree initiation would be held next Wednesday night for Donald Lamson and Buddy Bishop.

Those attending the meeting were: Jesse Lodge, exalted Antler, Jimmie Terwilliger, leading Antler, Warren Odham, loyal Antler, Braxton Huntley, recorder; Pete Echols, guide, L. M. Telford, chaplain, Henry Jameson, Voice Williams, Fred Stich, John Morgan, George Wilkinson, Fred Ganas, Billie Ward, sentinel, Billie Fields, Robert Stolhoff, N. A. Harkey, Donald Lamson, Buddy Bishop, Douglas Stenstrom, Henry Popell, Henry Tamm and Father Peck, Henry Thurston and Tex Packard, members of the advisory board.

Program Announced For Founder's Day

It was announced this morning that the program for the Sanford Founder's Day dinner to be held at the Woman's Club Feb. 8 at 7:00 o'clock, will be as follows:

Master of Ceremonies—T. E. Simpson, president of Seminole County Chamber of Commerce—Swanee River—entire assembly—accompanied by Miss Madeline Mallen.

Invocation

Medley of old time songs—Mrs. Herbert Russell, Mrs. J. H. Colclough, and Mrs. Roby Laing, in original colonial costumes. Accompanied by Mrs. Evans McCoy.

Authentic paper on Seminole Indians with relation to Fort Mellon—Walt Marchman, secretary of the Florida Historical Society.

Musical reading—Mrs. W. G. Fleming

Speaker from Rollins College "Florida—My Florida"—entire assembly—accompanied by Miss Mallen.

Mrs. Porter Baldwin Will Speak Here

Mrs. Porter Baldwin, State president of the Florida Federation of Garden Clubs, of West Palm Beach, will speak at the annual Garden Club luncheon to be held Feb. 11 at 1:00 o'clock at the Mayfair Hotel.

Reservations for the luncheon must be made with circle secretary-treasurer before Wednesday, Feb. 9, at noon.

Use Of Gasoline And Kerosene In County Goes Up

Continued From Page One As 136,053 gallons as compared with a consumption of 81,210 gallons for the month of November.

Dade County continued as the leading consumer of gasoline, with 5,364,094 gallons, with Duval and Hillsborough Counties following second and third respectively. Total gallonage of gasoline sold in Orange, Palm Beach, Pinellas, Polk and Volusia counties were all over a million gallons.

The total taxable consumption for the State during the month of December was 20,397,541 gallons as compared with the state total for November of 26,293,820 gallons. Kerosene consumption for December was listed as 6,417,116 and for the month of November, 4,162,784.

Consuming 4,668 tons of fertilizer during the month of December, Seminole County ranked third in the State as a fertilizer user. Polk County headed the list with 7,436 tons and St. Johns County was listed as second in the tons of fertilizer consumed during the month.

During the month of November the fertilizer consumption in this County was listed as 2,851 tons. The total consumption for the State in December was listed as 54,333 tons and 1,175 tons of phosphate rock and limestone.

Mrs. W. E. Watson To Address School

At the regular morning exercises of the South Side School on Tuesday, Feb. 8, at 11:00 o'clock, Mrs. W. E. Watson will speak on bird houses, shelters and feeding stations.

Appropriate songs will be sung by the school children. This program is sponsored by the Rose Circle of the Sanford Garden Club, Mrs. F. E. Roumillet, chairman, Junior Garden Club work.

Bicycle Polo Is Being Revived In London

Annual Founder's Day Dinner at Woman's Club—Feb. 8, 7:15 P.M. 75c per plate. Telephone 79-J or 51 for reservations by Saturday, Adv.

HELD OVER

By Popular Acclaim
Last Showings
To-Night
6:45 and 9:40

SNOW WHITE

SO REPAIRS

Expert Services
Recreational Radio

Hammer Radio
Services

60 W. 1st

Personals

Miss Loretta Paschel of Granwood, N. J. is the guest of Miss Marian Zurheide.

Miss Gene Martin Laney is the guest of Miss Gladys Souder in Macon, Ga.

Mrs. Norman DeForest and Miss Elizabeth Ann DeForest spent today in St. Petersburg.

Bob Cornell has as his guests for several days, Ernest Gruters and Alfred Rose, both students at Georgia Tech.

Mrs. E. D. Blinchart and Miss Mary Aldrich of Washington, D. C. have arrived to spend about two weeks.

Mrs. A. G. Link and John Link of Raleigh, N. C. are the guests of Mrs. M. Minarik at her home on Park Avenue.

Mrs. J. O. Laney, Mrs. Henry Watson and Mrs. R. H. Duncan have returned from Atlanta, Ga. where they have been spending a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolf Johnson of Attleboro, Mass., and Mrs. Josephine Scott of Mt. Vernon, Ohio have taken the Blinchart home for the winter.

Eastern Star Has Regular Meeting

Mrs. M. L. Tyre, worthy matron, presided over the meeting of Seminole Chapter Number Two, Order of Eastern Star which was held last night at the Masonic Hall.

The chapter rooms were attractively decorated with bouquets in the chapter colors, yellow, blue, white, red and green.

During the business session routine matters were discussed and plans were made for a covered dish supper at the next meeting. There were approximately 35 members in attendance.

HERE'S A CHARMING QUEEN FOR FLORIDA'S AZALEA TIME

23 Points Are Urged To Cure Business Ills

Continued From Page One

long as billions must be spent by the government to care for the nation's unemployed.

5. Legislation to make labor unions more responsible. Roosevelt does not favor incorporation of unions and told the advisory council that he prefers to give labor the same chance he is giving to business to put its own house in order. The administration is not considering legislation to impose restrictions on unions through amendments to the Wagner act.

6. Lack of government interference with business. The president's position has been that the government is not interfering with the majority of business men but is directing its reform campaign against the unscrupulous minority.

7. A fire-side chat or public assurance by the president that business has nothing to fear from future government policies. Mr. Roosevelt has given this assurance in recent speeches and in messages to Congress.

In outlining the case, the prosecutor said "Miss X" understood before any arrests were made that Glading was expecting another man. He quoted the woman agent as saying Glading was worried over the failure of this man to appear.

Glading told her, the prosecutor said, he was running short of money and that he had "stuff parked all over London."

8. Opposition to the wages-hours program. "Little business" wants no wages-hours bill. The council asked that it be restricted to a "floor" on hours and wages. The president has taken a firm stand for a wages-hour bill and there is no indication that he will abandon it.

9. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

10. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

11. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

12. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

13. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

14. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

15. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

16. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

17. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

18. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

19. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

20. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

21. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

22. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

23. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

Continued From Page One

London flat under his direction, where the photographs copying was done.

It was there, "Miss X" said, that she worked with the "Stevens" couple who spoke French but who, she said, lived in Moscow. When they disappeared she was told they had gone home because their daughter was ill.

During this period, "Miss X" was in constant contact with the police office and phoned it the night before Glading was arrested.

Prosecutor McClure, who said there was evidence of a "contact with a foreign power," declared a certain country would welcome them with open arms.

In outlining the case, the prosecutor said "Miss X" understood before any arrests were made that Glading was expecting another man. He quoted the woman agent as saying Glading was worried over the failure of this man to appear.

Glading told her, the prosecutor said, he was running short of money and that he had "stuff parked all over London."

8. Opposition to the wages-hours program. "Little business" wants no wages-hours bill. The council asked that it be restricted to a "floor" on hours and wages. The president has taken a firm stand for a wages-hour bill and there is no indication that he will abandon it.

9. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

10. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

11. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

12. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

13. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

14. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

15. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

16. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

17. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

18. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

19. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

20. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

21. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

22. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

23. Freedom of action by national and state banks to cooperate in expanding loans to industry. The president is said to feel that this freedom already prevails.

Continued From Page One

London flat under his direction, where the photographs copying was done.

It was there, "Miss X" said, that she worked with the "Stevens" couple who spoke French but who, she said

U.S. Diplomats
Given Break By Present Crisis
International Affairs
Are Handled By Men
Experienced In Work

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
WASHINGTON.—The world crisis is giving Uncle Sam's career diplomats the biggest break they've had in years.
In the midst of the turmoil, the Roosevelt administration is turning more and more to experienced men who have made foreign affairs their life work.

This is not mere accident. The career have shown their ability to take trouble in large doses, where, the casual political appointee sometimes has not known how to stand the gaff.

Even now a shake-up is under way. Hugh Wilson, the quiet-spoken Chicagoan who started at the bottom of the ladder, is headed for Berlin, to succeed Dr. William Dodd, resigned, as ambassador to Germany, one of the four most important posts. Norman Armour, a naturalized Englishman who has seen service in nine capitals, is on the way to Chile.

Salaries Up To $17,500
Other career men already are carrying the load in trouble spots.

Acting Hunter Joseph C. Grew is holding the fort in difficult Tokyo; the deft William Phillips of Worcester, Mass., is our diplomatic subject with Mussolini; and that veteran of the far east, Nelson T. Johnson, has been shuttling back and forth through China during the Sino-Japanese war.

The 60 odd men in important diplomatic posts are known as heads of missions. Some of them, the ambassadors, make $17,500 a year, and others, the ministers, get $10,000 a year. All of them get a few extra dollars for some of their expenses.

In these posts, political leaders, prominent men, and patronage seekers have regarded diplomatic posts as their particular fruit. Some such men worked to be career good ambassadors, such as Benjamin Franklin, John Jay and Charles Francis Adams, but many have been snuffed shirts.

Men Of Merit

Decking up ambassadors and ministers who didn't know their international onions were the foreign service career men—consuls, secretaries, aides, and the like. All of them were unknowns merely trying to make a living, and doing a poor job of it when social demands got too heavy.

Most of the career men rose to minor posts through sheer merit and knowledge of foreign affairs. And yet, the government offered them little incentive, because their jobs were constantly accused by the patronage grabbers. Besides, the good posts always went to persons of political importance.

About 25 years ago congress decided to do something about all this, and passed a law protecting career men from the political whims of the party in power.

Then, in 1910, Democratic President Wilson gave the career men the welcome surprise of their lives when he appointed one of their number to the hot spot of the hour—Mexico City. Further than that, Henry Fletcher, the man he selected, was a Republican.

Some Posts, Cooley

Successive administrations have turned more and more heavily on the experience and judgment of career men, until now 24 out of our 80 ambassadors and ministers are career men.

That doesn't mean career men want to hog all the good spots. In the first place, they know competi-

MAY MAKE UNCLE SAM PAY TAXES TOO

FOLLOWING action by Florida taxing authorities, federal agencies are already studying the possibility of paying bond taxes levied against lands purchased by the government subsequent to issuance of improvement bonds against areas involved. Forestry authorities, part of whose huge holdings in Liberty County have been subjected to levies for school bonds, have approached State Comptroller J. M. Lee for funds and information.

Assessor H. H. Deasey based his tax levy. Data will be supplied by Comptroller Lee.

Since federal agencies are liable to pay taxes on bonds held by the government, the levy will eventually reach the U. S. Supreme Court where a decision will be called for as to whether or not the mere act of federal purchase of lands in bonded areas absolves Uncle Sam of tax liability. Both taxpayers and government facing bond holders eventually might reach a point where Uncle Sam would buy all the land in a bond district except one man's farm and thereby not only bring confiscation of the farm—a doubtful expedient—but also practically wipe out the bond holders.

Failure of the government to assume its share in the areas above shown means that in one bond district of 25,000 acres owners of half the acreage left in private ownership would have to assume the entire burden, or more than $1 per acre aggregate potential levy against lands assessed at 60¢ per acre except in a few exceptional cases. The entire county is rural with not a dozen business buildings in the county.

ion from keen minds in the business and professional world is what they need to keep them on their toes. In the second place, few career men, if any, could afford the expense of the London and Paris posts, the two most important of all.

The government of the United States simply won't pay the bill in those cities, and, outside of salary, the social pace often requires $100,000 a year out-of-pocket for a career good ambassador, such as Benjamin Franklin, John Jay and Charles Francis Adams, but many have been snuffed shirts.

Men Of Merit

Decking up ambassadors and ministers who didn't know their international onions were the foreign service career men—consuls, secretaries, aides, and the like. All of them were unknowns merely trying to make a living, and doing a poor job of it when social demands got too heavy.

Most of the career men rose to minor posts through sheer merit and knowledge of foreign affairs. And yet, the government offered them little incentive, because their jobs were constantly accused by the patronage grabbers. Besides, the good posts always went to persons of political importance.

About 25 years ago congress decided to do something about all this, and passed a law protecting career men from the political whims of the party in power.

Then, in 1910, Democratic President Wilson gave the career men the welcome surprise of their lives when he appointed one of their number to the hot spot of the hour—Mexico City. Further than that, Henry Fletcher, the man he selected, was a Republican.

Some Posts, Cooley

Successive administrations have turned more and more heavily on the experience and judgment of career men, until now 24 out of our 80 ambassadors and ministers are career men.

That doesn't mean career men want to hog all the good spots. In the first place, they know competi-

Woman On Relief
Says She Wants
TAXES IN BANK

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—

Constant checking by State Welfare Board visitors to determine the eligibility of Old Age assistance recipients, suspected of having private resources, has resulted in the discovery that an aged woman now has more than $2,000 to her credit in two banks, and has also resulted in the restoration of $2,000 to state, county and federal government that she had received as an assistance. The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

titles of the rights went to the federal government, the other half being divided between the state and Duval county due to the fact that the land had been made under the old federal-county plan and continued under the present welfare regime.

The woman, according to Miss Edith Webb, visitor who made the investigation, was apparently unaware of her near affluence because of memory lapses. The money had been deposited twenty

years ago in two local banks and under different names. Although the last name was the same, in both instances,

Sanford Is The Only Central Florida City Affording Rail, Highway And Water Transportation

The Sanford Herald

Seminole County Products More Fruit And Vegetables Than Any Similar Area In America

VOLUME XXIX

Member Associated Press

SANFORD, FLORIDA, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1938

Established In 1908

NUMBER 140

Prorate Of Celery Shipments To Begin On Monday, Feb. 7

Ten Percent Of All Available Celery Will Be Withheld From The Markets

Prorate Period Is For Only One Week

Slight Proration Is Seen As Improving Quality Of Celery

Since applications for shipping allotments for the coming week have shown a slight increase in the available celery for marketing, members of the Florida Celery Control Board at a meeting in Lakeland yesterday voted to enforce a 90 percent prorate for the week beginning Feb. 17, J. C. Lettice, secretary of the board, said today.

This is the first prorate to be recommended to the Secretary of Agriculture under the provisions Celery Marketing Agreement which operates under the Agri-culture Adjustment Act of 1937.

"While the available amount of celery reported was not in such proportions as to demoralize the market," Mr. Lettice said, "it seemed to be the consensus of opinion that a ten percent reduction in shipments will bring about a healthier market condition which will prove beneficial to the growers."

J. C. Hutchinson, chairman of the committee, declared that in his opinion "the slight proration will bring about the availability of the celery pack and remove undesirable sides of the commodity from the market."

At the Lakeland meeting the fact was brought out that California shipments of the product were lighter during the current week and were expected to continue lighter during the coming week.

In a report presented at the meeting, it was pointed out that approximately 250 cars of celery will be shipped from the state during the current week which ends at 12:00 o'clock Sunday night. And an increase of over 100 cars over the total shipments for the week prior.

The shipments from other states, however, decreased over one-half so that the estimated carlot shipments this week was placed at 450 cars as compared with the 400 cars shipped during the preceding week.

In a report to the Control Board, the average wholesale market in New York was listed as $2.14 per crate, four cents per crate higher than the average for the week prior. The estimated average, f. o. b. shipping point price was set at $1.34.

During the past week, the daily average track sold had in principal market over the nation showed some increase over the week prior, but this condition was expected to be relieved.

Continued on Page Two

REFUSAL ORDER

NEWARK, N. J.—(AP)—Outspoken John P. O'Neill, ranking executive officer of Hudson county, refused yesterday to order summary withdrawal of a police guard from a Hudson county bank containing election records subpoenaed by an assembly committee a week ago.

THE BEST SELLER

It is not only the wise merchant but also the thrifty housewife who takes advantage of the Classified Ad section of The Sanford Herald. Every day more and more buyers and sellers of commodities are finding their market place right here in the columns of this newspaper. These intriguing little ads are the cause of thousands of dollars monthly being turned over among the business people of Sanford.

CHEMIST

Dade Grand Jury Investigation Of Officials Ceases

Many Irregularities Are Reported After Probe Of Two Weeks

MIAMI, Feb. 5.—(AP)—A special grand jury completed a two-week investigation of the city administration yesterday, reporting suspicious circumstances surrounding a bond refunding deal, numerous irregularities by the civil service board and indications that a syndicate held a monopoly on illegal horse race bookmaking and was virtually immune to arrest.

No new indictments were returned, however. The jury last week indicted Mayor Robert H. Williams, Commissioners John Dubose and Ralph Ferguson and Thomas E. Grady, special rate expert, on charges of conspiracy and soliciting a $25,000 bribe from the Florida Light and Power Company in a rate reduction case. Carl F. Lamberti, special engineer, was indicted on a charge of soliciting $2,800 from a water survey firm.

Major Williams, a candidate for congress to succeed Congressman Wilcox, attacked the indictment in habeas corpus proceedings before the state supreme court at Tallahassee yesterday, contending they were indefinite and failed to charge "the elements necessary of extortion."

The court will hold a hearing later.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash. He received $28,000 from the city last year.

"As to the alleged payoff for the bus franchise," the report said, "this grand jury found no evidence that any money had been paid directly or indirectly to any city official."

A referendum was called last November on a proposal to grant a franchise to the Miami Transit Company, but the voters rejected it.

The jury declared the $28,000 refunding program recently was railroaded through and while it found "no direct or positive evidence of corruption in regard to this, we are, however, suspicious of the circumstances."

It cited an agreement of $150,000 to a local firm of attorneys, which was not named, by the syndicate of brokers whose position was accepted by a 3-2 vote of the city commission.

Continued on Page Two

Sanford Dog Places Second In Derby Race

Frank, entered by W. C. Hill of Sanford, placed second in the derby race for fox dogs of all ages yesterday in the closing session of the Lake Wales Sportsman Club field trials.

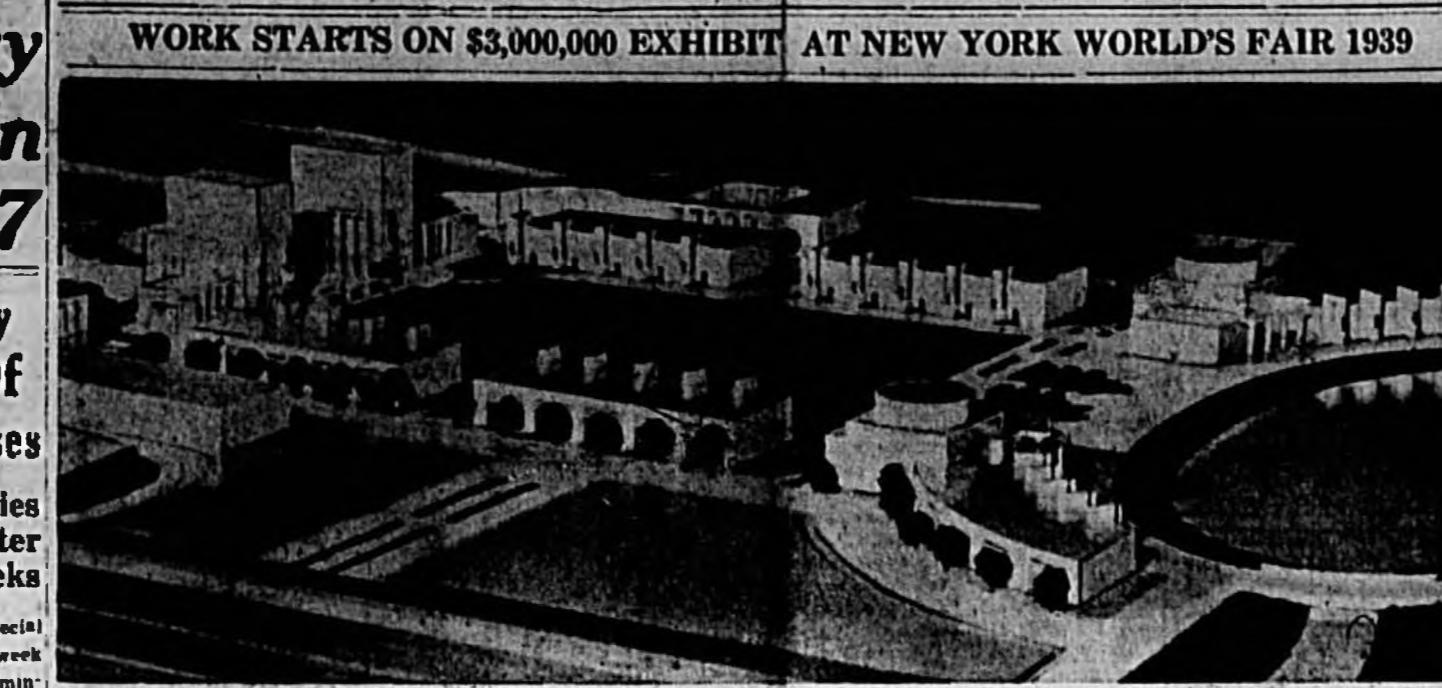

Laughing Jake, entered by Don and McLean of Bartow, won the race, while Pepper, the entry of Dr. A. F. Bush of Billview was third.

In the bench show Sam, owned by George Shaw of Tampa, was adjudged the best male housed and Ann, entered by Dr. W. B. Williams and D. C. Darby of Lake Wales, the best female.

ROAD NEWS

State Road No. 225 from State Road No. 8 to Altamonte Springs in Seminole county is now open to traffic.

On State Road No. 8 an underpass is being built at Winter Park in Orange county. Traffic may be rerouted by using side roads during construction.

WORK STARTS ON $3,000,000 EXHIBIT AT NEW YORK WORLD'S FAIR 1939

Arrangements For Founder's Day Are Completed, Chamber Officials State

Everything is in readiness for Sanford's Annual Founder's Day celebration Tuesday, according to officials of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, who are assisting with arrangements.

The ceremonies will begin at 4:00 P. M. with the official naming and dedication of Fort Mellon Park to the 100th Anniversary of the Founding of Sanford. Judge Ernest F. Householder will deliver the dedicatory address. Immediately following this ceremony, a tree will be planted on the park grounds and dedicated by Dr. E. D. Brownlee in honor of Mrs. J. N. Whitney, Sanford pioneer.

Music during the afternoon will be provided by the Seminole High School Band.

The conclusion of the program for the day will be the Annual Founder's Day Dinner to be held at 7:00 o'clock in the Woman's Club Building. This event was established last year under the auspices of the D. A. R.'s Founder's Day Committee, of which Mrs. H. J. Lehman is General Chairman. An interesting program has been arranged for this year's dinner to which the public is invited.

In view of the Woman's Club being closed today, the deadline for dinner reservations has been advanced until noon Monday. Reservations may be made by calling the Woman's Club or the Chamber of Commerce. Clubs and organizations so desiring may have special tables.

Russia To Permit U.S. Official To Visit Mrs. Rubens

Soviet Grants American Request After Long Controversy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP)

The Soviet Government acceded today to a request that a United States official be permitted to see Mrs. Ruth Marie Rubens, an American citizen incarcerated in Russia on suspicion of espionage. Charge D'Affaires Edy Tisherson, assisted Secretary Hull that Moscow had agreed to the long-standing American demands.

Major Williams, a candidate for congress to succeed Congressman Wilcox, attacked the indictment in habeas corpus proceedings before the state supreme court at Tallahassee yesterday, contending they were indefinite and failed to charge "the elements necessary of extortion."

The court will hold a hearing later.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash.

The inference is that they completed their investigation. Mrs. Rubens entered Russia under a false passport with a man known as Donald Louis Robinson.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash.

The inference is that they completed their investigation. Mrs. Rubens entered Russia under a false passport with a man known as Donald Louis Robinson.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash.

The inference is that they completed their investigation. Mrs. Rubens entered Russia under a false passport with a man known as Donald Louis Robinson.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash.

The inference is that they completed their investigation. Mrs. Rubens entered Russia under a false passport with a man known as Donald Louis Robinson.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash.

The inference is that they completed their investigation. Mrs. Rubens entered Russia under a false passport with a man known as Donald Louis Robinson.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash.

The inference is that they completed their investigation. Mrs. Rubens entered Russia under a false passport with a man known as Donald Louis Robinson.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash.

The inference is that they completed their investigation. Mrs. Rubens entered Russia under a false passport with a man known as Donald Louis Robinson.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash.

The inference is that they completed their investigation. Mrs. Rubens entered Russia under a false passport with a man known as Donald Louis Robinson.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash.

The inference is that they completed their investigation. Mrs. Rubens entered Russia under a false passport with a man known as Donald Louis Robinson.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash.

The inference is that they completed their investigation. Mrs. Rubens entered Russia under a false passport with a man known as Donald Louis Robinson.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash.

The inference is that they completed their investigation. Mrs. Rubens entered Russia under a false passport with a man known as Donald Louis Robinson.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash.

The inference is that they completed their investigation. Mrs. Rubens entered Russia under a false passport with a man known as Donald Louis Robinson.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash.

The inference is that they completed their investigation. Mrs. Rubens entered Russia under a false passport with a man known as Donald Louis Robinson.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash.

The inference is that they completed their investigation. Mrs. Rubens entered Russia under a false passport with a man known as Donald Louis Robinson.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash.

The inference is that they completed their investigation. Mrs. Rubens entered Russia under a false passport with a man known as Donald Louis Robinson.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash.

The inference is that they completed their investigation. Mrs. Rubens entered Russia under a false passport with a man known as Donald Louis Robinson.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash.

The inference is that they completed their investigation. Mrs. Rubens entered Russia under a false passport with a man known as Donald Louis Robinson.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert were all involved in a conspiracy to sell out the interests of the people for their own selfish gain."

They also found that Grady was employed by a bus company which sought a municipal franchise, reporting he received $5000 for making a survey and then was retained for a year under a verbal contract for $10,000 cash.

The inference is that they completed their investigation. Mrs. Rubens entered Russia under a false passport with a man known as Donald Louis Robinson.

The grand jury reported that the evidence convinced them "that three commissioners and the expert