State Teachers Call For Incentives Package

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) - Florida's largest teachers union released a "blueprint for education" calling for raises and other incentives to lure college students into the profession and keep current teachers from getting out.

Pat Tornillo, president of the Florida Education Association-United, said Thursday the state's critical teacher shortage will only get worse unless salaries are increased and status and working conditions are improved.

"We are talking about the biggest teacher shortage crisis ever - not only in quantity but in quality," Tornillo said.

Florida has a shortage of 5,000 to 8,000 teachers, and the number could reach 18,000 in the next 15 years, said FEA-United spokesman Dave Paladino.

"We're not getting people who want to become teachers," Tornillo said, "University after university is shutting down its undergraduate teaching programs. Women, blacks and minorities are no longer a captive constituency. They can go into any field now, and they are choosing more prestigious fields."

Union figures show the average teacher now leaves the profession after about seven years.

"The overwhelming majority of teachers today say, no, they would not recommend that their children become teachers." Tornfilo said.

The union's report, "Florida's Schools at the Crossroads," calls for starting salaries of at least $25,000, with the opportunity for teachers to earn up to $60,000 by increasing their skills.

Starting salaries now average about $17,500 statewide but are as low as $12,000 in some rural northern counties, Paladino said.

The plan, compiled by a commission of teachers and businessmen, was released during the organization's 100th annual state convention, which continues through Saturday at the Diplomat Hotel in Hollywood.

The report also ealls for the establishment of "career ladders," programs that would allow teachers to improve their technical and professional skills without leaving their jobs. The programs would include tuition reimbursement. leaves of absence, and training courses similar to those offered by many businesses.

"In the business world, if they want their people to have more training they don't tell them

Brantley For Lt. Governor? He Gives Up Private Job To Campaign

By Tom Glordano Herald Managing Editor

Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, will be the lieutenant governor running mate of gubernatorial candidate Bob Martinez in next year's Republican primary barring any unforseen problems that might disrupt those plans.

Although Brantley stopped short of declaring he's Martinez' running mate today, he did concede those are his future plans unless something occurs to change them.

"There's a distinct possibility I'll go for it, but one never knows what can happen in the future to change someone's plans," Brantley said, though he admitted no such problems are foreseen.

Brantley was one of several political hopefuls from around the state who gathered at Loch Haven Park in Orlando Thursday evening for an annual "hobnob" and "politics in the park" event. It was estimated more than 2,000 attended the hobnob where the state hopefuls met local elected and appointed officials from a three-county area, including Seminole County.

Martinez himself was unable to attend, according to Brantley, because of pressing city government business. Martinez is mayor of Tampa.

Brantley, 37, has given up his $45,000-a-year job as marketing representative for Corrections Corp. of America effective Nov. 15 - to devote all of his energy to the Martinez campaign. The company contracts with states to operate prison systems on a private basis. Brantley is Martinez' state campaign coordinator. The Longwood representative said he'll continue to draw his $18,000 salary as a legislator, and estimates additional annual income at $12,000 from a family golf course in Longwood.

The enthusiastic Brantley boasted pridefully that by the end of next month. Martinez' campaign coffers would contain more than $1 million.

"And that's just from one-on-one fund raising. We haven't even tapped the political action committees or sold tickets to fund-raisers yet," Brantley said.

The Longwood legislator said he anticipates the Martinez camp will raise in excess of $4.$5 million, an amount he estimates is what a candidate will need to carry himself through "the total race." Patti Brantley, the legislator's wife who figures prominently in his political career, also was on hand at the hobnob and sald she too will devote her time to the Martinez 9.73 ... today it's 4.42." Asked campaign, "making telephone calls and writing letters."

Bobby believes in Martinez' ideas on how to run state government."

U.S. Puts $250,000 Price On TWA Hijackers' Heads

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The United States, buttressing its get-tough stance against terrorism, has put a price on the heads of three Lebanese men charged with hijacking TWA Flight 847 in June and killing a young Navy diver.

Justice Department officials say the three men, identified as Lebanese and members of the Moslem Shitte, pro-Iranian group Hezbollah, could face the death penalty if convicted in the United

Attorney General Edwin Meese

Thursday released the names and aliases of the three suspects and the State Department announced a $250,000 award for information leading to their arrests and convictions.

Hasan Azz-Al-din, Mohammad Hamadei and Ali Atwa were charged with air piracy in the seizure of the TWA jetliner June 14 and with murder for the death of Navy seaman Robert Stethem. 23, who was beaten, shot in the head and thrown out on the tarmae at Beirut International Airport.

Stephen Trott, head of the Justice Department's criminal division, said the three men could face the death penalty If they are tried and convicted in this country because the murder charges fallwithin air piracy statutes - "the only area of federal law where that (capital punishment) is a viable option."

Arrest warrants for the three Lebanese, issued July 3, were not announced until Thursday because U.S. authorities unsuccessfully "tried first to pursue these individuals privately." a Justice Department spokesman sald.

Another department official said the decision to go public with the identities and reward "may be just what is nceded" to force them out of hiding.

U.S. authorities "have a good tdea" where the suspects are but will not say, Trott said Lebanon is a signatory to two international agreements that will require them to extradite or prosecute the three, should they be in Lebanon. In Waldorf, Md., the father of Stetham

Chrysler Strike In Third Day; Key Issues Remain Unsettled

DETROIT (UPI) - United Auto Workers President Owen Bieber says "a number of very key issues" stand in the way of settling a strike by 80,000 U.S and Canadian Chrysler Corp. workers that entered its third day today.

Bieber said negotiations would resume today "at a halfway decent hour," although top union leaders were expected to leave the talks to attend a meeting Saturday with 170 local UAW leaders in Huntsville, Ala.

'We're going to go home and get some rest and come back today and give it a further try," Bieber said at about midnight Thursday, when the contract talks were adjourned after a 15-hour session.

'We are still apart on a number of very key issues and I don't want to go into the whole litany," he said, "We worked very hard all day and we're just not there."

UAW Vice President Marc Stepp had called Thursday a "crucial" day for negotiations because of Saturday's meeting in Huntsville, saying, "If we don't make it today the strike will go on."

Budget Plan Unconstitutional?

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Keeping up Democratic objections to a Republican balanced-budget measure, the chairman of the House Judiciary Committee says the planwould give unconstitutional powers to the president.

In a letter Thursday to Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., a member of the House-Senate panel negotiating over the Senate-passed plan. Rep. Peter Rodino. D-N.J., said the proposal "seeks to circumvent" constitutional requirements and "attempts to do so by delegating unconstitutional powers to the president.

The conference committee scheduled its second negotiating session today on the Senate's plan that would require a balanced budget by 1991.

Rasmussen said civic-minded youths - many of them the sons and daughters of cops, or members of groups that promote responsible drinking - have been volunteering to help keep liquor out of the hands of their classmates.

Rasmussen said several local police agencies have used the tactic to good effect. He said some liquor distributors also use the tactic to check up on their employees.

Bobby Jr., 13. Leads Followed In S&L Robbery

Law enforcement officers are pursuing a number of leads in investigating the robbery of People's First Savings and Loan, Loehmann's Plaza on west State Road 434 in Altamonte Springs, according to FBI Special Agent Perry Doran of the Orlando office.

"It's still early in the investigation and we are working closely with the Altamonte Springs Police Department in following the leads we have." Doran said. "We hope to have something definite soon.' The robbery occurred late Tuesday afternoon when a man, described as casually dressed and wearing sunglasses, entered the financial institution and gave a teller a note demanding money. He escaped with an undisclosed amount of cash. according to the police report.

Altamonte Springs police officer Jim Viners investigated the robbery and reported that the man fled on foot from the building and police used tracking dogs in an unsuccessful attempt to locate the escape route.

The FBI has joined the investigation since the bank is federally insured.

Bank officials have declined to give an estimate of the amount of the loss. Doran said FBI policy prevents his discussing specific amounts. No amount was indicated in the police report.

Drunk Driving-Related Deaths Drop Drastically

Friday, Oct. 18, 1985-3A

Evening Herald, Sanford, Fl.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Government figures show a significant drop in the deaths of drunken drivers in the past five years, indicating the campaign to crack down on intoxicated motorists is beginning to pay off. A study by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said Thursday the number of drunken drivers who suffered fatal injuries dropped from more than 14,000 in 1980 to 11.000 in 1984, a 24 percent decline. In another set of figures, the federal agency, a unit of the Transportation Department, said the percentage of drunken motorists among all fatalities involving drivers during the same period dropped from 50 percent to 43 percent.

Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole said the statistics indicate, "Programs to discourage drunk driving are yielding tangible results.

"I am particularly pleased that the fatality reduction continued over a period of time when motorists were driving more." Dole said. "However, drunk driving is still the greatest killer of our young people and we must continue our efforts to ensure further progress."

Last year, 44,204 people were killed in auto accidents and at least half of these were alcohol related.

The safety agency also said the number of automobile deaths linked to alcohol - including drivers, passengers as well as pedestrians dropped from 58 percent in 1982 to 53 percent in

Move To Mars In Offing?

Space scientists report that Mars has 10 to 100 times more water than once was believed - enough water in polar ice caps, permafrost and underground pools to cover the planet as much as 100 meters deep. That means that Mars could be relatively hospitable to visiting space travelers.

But researchers disagree on whether we should launch a mission to the red planet. Sociologist Robin Crews recently told the National Commission on Space. "We need to leave space alone, to leave it wild and free. We have no right to make any decision which will lead to the exploration of space."

But scientist Benton Clark thinks earthlings can and should colonize Mars. He analyzed soil scooped from Mars by the Viking spacecraft and found that it contains all the necessary ingrecients for flourishing life. He says heated greenhouses could thaw frozen carbon dioxide and martian ice to provide both breathable oxygen and sufficient water and oxygen for crops.

We'll guess that space travelers will head for Mars one day, perhaps by the year 2000. However, they will need more than an overnight bag. It's a 49-million-mile jaunt and will take about a year and a half, quite a spell longer than it took the '49ers to cross the continent to California.

Just as the dynamics of Manifest Destiny drove America westward, so will the mysteries of Mars draw earthlings to the great beyond for the sake of greater space research and application. But it is encouraging to know that they apparently won't have to worry about a water shortage on the red planet.

AIDS

There is a lot we don't know, for sure, about the new dread disease known as AIDS (acquired immune deficiency syndrome.) The very name was based on the scientific judgment that it acted solely to injure the immune system and render victims incapable of combatting all manner of other disease, but more recently it has been learned that it also attacks the brain, itself, directly.

It is now known that the virus can be found in all manner of bodily fluids, even including tears. What is not known is whether it can be transmitted in all such fluids, and spread like "pink eve," for example.

It is evident on three continents, at least, that it is becoming a real threat to all segments of human society.

Finally, and most frightening of all, the number of known cases in the United States is doubling every six months.

We are constantly advised by a mixed bag of scientists, homosexual groups, and others against overreaction. We are not to "spread panic." There are always people who have a low opinion of the population and insist that we are ready to panic over this or that, whereas the record shows that panic among us is really rare, even in flat-out panic situations.

Some will panic over nothing. Most will not panic under virtually any circumstances, from aircraft engines falling off to earthquakes. Indeed. Hitler may have lost the war because of the universal expectation that people would panie under mass air attack, and London simply did not.

It is the old story of people directly involved in events not wanting to hear or read bad news and fearing that a public will complicate their tasks if told the bad news.

As matters now stand, it seems that we ought to be far more concerned about the spread of AIDS than about the spread of panic.

Israeli Stand Against Terrorism Justified

are invariably treated to an explosion of anti-Israel lies, misinformation, hypocrisies, flip-flops and biased analysis. Of these sins, the most harmful is the analytical one. It can yield sad and unforeseen results.

After Israel's retaliatory raid on Palestine Liberation Organization headquarters in Tunisia, we got lies, Yasir Arafat claimed Israeli planes were refueled by America. Shifte Muslims said they killed an American to honor their PLO brothers - forgetting that they, the Shittes, keep killing Palestinians.

We got misinformation: It was said that the raid killed innocent Tunisians. But the Tunislans were all working for the PLO in the PLO complex that was busy plotting the murder

We got hypocrisy - a holy resolution from the United Nations, a collection of mostly unfree and blood-stained nations anxious to lecture the world about the horror of bloodshed and the glory of freedom.

We got flip-floppery. Last year Secretary George Shultz said that terrorists must be struck even if innocent civilians were harmed. That is a wise stance for the United States to take in order to deter terror against Americans. Yet after President Reagan made that point in the Israeli-P.L.O. context. Shultz's State Department forced a rhetorical rollback. If

When Israel acts on the international scene we pusillantmous and wrong-headed, at least State meant well: America is trying to put peace talks together and State does not want America to be seen as too pro-Israel.

And we got biased analysis. It's being said that Israel carried out the raid in order to "derail the peace process." It is maintained that bombing the PLO embarrasses Jordan, Egypt, and the United States — all the players trying to push the Palestinians to negotiate. Therefore, it's said, the raid proves that the Israelis don't want peace.

Exactly the opposite is more likely the case.

Remember that Israel is a democratic nation. In recent months it has been savaged by a new wave of terrorism; hand grenades in buses, Molotov cocktails pitched into banks. In more than 100 incidents "credit" was publicly claimed by the PLO General Command. Predictably, the Israeli public has responded in the way people in democracies do under pressure: with outrage and a demand to hit back.

The terrorism more than justifies Israel's retaliation on moral grounds. But there is also a democratic political justification.

"Peace" is easy for outsiders to urge upon peoples caught up in violence - be it in El Salvador, Nicaragua, Angola - or Israel, But there are many situations where the people on the ground prefer what they have to what a misbegotten peace might bring. Many Israelis feel that way - for good reason.

Israel was attacked by five Arab nations on the day of its birth. The attacks continue. Israel's key enemics still call forth holy wars.

Under such circumstances, it is difficult to ask voters in a democracy to give up adjacent land (the West Bank), from which further attacks might be launched against them - all in the hope that their enemies may behave better.

It is only difficult to ask that, not impossible. What would make peace overtures more unlikely would be if Israeli voters felt their government, under new terrorist pressure, had gone soft and would not protect them. What would make peace impossible would be if Israel's allies showed no understanding of their plight, which is just what the "Israel is deratling peace" line

This brings us to the hoary but valid Nixon-China analogy. Only a professed anticommunist like Nixon could bring America to recognize communist China. In Israel, only a government perceived as tough has a chance to bring off real peace negotiations. The Shimon Peres Labor government comes from the softer side of the Israeli spectrum. It is looking for a peace settlement. To lead the nation to peace, it must demonstrate that it will stand up against terrorism. In Tunis, far from home, with precision, it did just that.

New Field Of Biology

By Gino Del Guercio UPI Science Writer

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) - The research that netted two Texas geneticists the 1985 Nobel Prize for Medicine has opened an entirely new field of biology with tremendous practical applications for the treatment of human disease.

It all stemmed from work starting in the early 1970s when Drs. Michael S. Brown and Joseph L. Goldstein began exploring the complex chemistry on the surface of

They discovered that protruding from the cell surface are long molecules called receptors. These receptors capture other molecules floating free in the blood and draw them into the cells.

"This system became one of the most important systems for understanding how cells interact with their environment." says Dr. David Baltimore, a microbiologist who won the 1975 Nobel Prize for

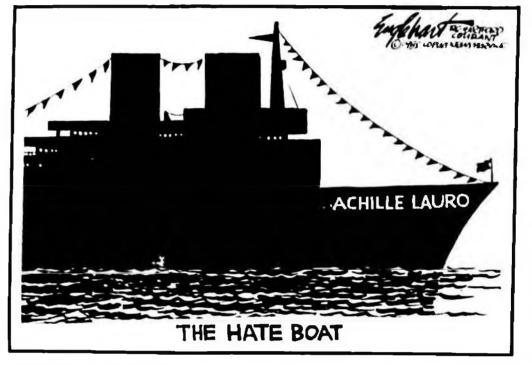

The receptor that won Brown and Goldstein the Nobel Prize captures cholesterol from the blood and draws it into the liver cells, where it can be removed from the body. The specific type of cholesterol is called low-density lipoprotein, or LDL. which is also known as bad cholesterol, because it builds up on the walls of blood vessels, setting the stage for heart attacks and strokes.

The pair discovered that one in 500 people have a genetic disease that prevents their body from producing enough of these receptors. Therefore the cholesterol levels in their blood build to dangerously high levels and they often suffer from heart disease and other com-

"All the previous focus and in fact most people's attention today is on the blood," Baltimore said: "But the real problem turns out to be, not in the blood, but in the cells

The two scientists also discovered that the number of receptors on the cell surface can be influenced by other factors such as diet.

For instance, they found that when they fed animals high-fat diets the number of LDL receptors on the surface of their cells declined

WILLIAM RUSHER

1988: An Early Look

It's a little early yet for serious speculation on the 1988 Republican presidential nomination; but Bill Sattre recently kicked off the nonserious speculation, so I see no reason to remain rigorously tightlipped on the subject. Safire's most non-serious contribution was to float the name of Oregon Sen. Robert Packwood as a "dark horse" possibility. Since Packwood is a confirmed liberal, far out on the left fringe of Republicanism, whose chances for the nomination are substantially poorer than Saffre's own, one is driven to wonder what favor Safire was repaying with that little nosegay, in what follows, I propose to free-associate loosely, without, however, being quite that promiscuous

The man to beat for the nomination, as I have said before - the man who "has it to lose," as the expression goes - is Vice President George Bush, Bush may not inspire much enthusiasm among doctrinaire conservatives, but he has wonthe respect and approval of President Reagan and the president's inner circle by his rock-solid loyalty to Mr. Reagan's programs.

Just as certainly, a great many (but by no means all) influential conservatives are determined to make at least a strong effort to nominate somebody closer to the core of the conservative movement. and their tiger is Rep. Jack Kemp. Kemp hasn't actually said he'll run. but he has been pawing the ground and visiting New Hampshire with an intensity that doesn't make sense, and isn't intended to make sense, on any other supposition.

Over toward the edge of the action, but far too shrewd and able a man to be counted out of it, is Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole. who makes no secret of his White House ambitions. The problem is that Dole is in some respects too strong and too senior a figure to play any role except the top one something that is much less true of just about any of the other contenders, save Bush.

For example, the suspicion just won't down that Kemp, however strenuously he may try to wrest the top prize from Bush, would in the last analysis accept the vice presidential nomination if it came down to that or nothing. That, to be sure. would end the dream of some conservatives that their heroine Jeane Kirkpatrick might become the long-awaited "woman on the ticket." But by 1988 Mrs. Kirkpatrick may well be U.S. senator from Maryland (vice Charles Mathias, retired), and quite content to remain there - or to become secretary of State, or national security adviser, in the next administra-

There are, in any case, a number of other intriguing alternatives open to Bush in the matter of a vice presidential running mate. If he feels, as he well might, the need of a highly regarded Western conservative to "balance the ticket," Paul Laxalt will still be around and available in one capacity or another.

WASHINGTON WORLD

New Impetus Needed

By Helen Thomas

UPI White House Reporter WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan is jubilant over the capture of the hijackers of the Achille Lauro, which has given U.S. prestige a shot in the arm after many frustrating experiences.

The success was aided by Italy. Tunisia and Algeria — Italian cooperation in the strategy and the refusal of Tunisia and Algeria to permit the Egyptian airliner to land.

But in its assertions as a superpower, the United States has also learned that there is a lot of national pride involved, and deminciations of Egypt and Italy are not the way to smooth relations.

The United States has other problems. There are six Americans still in captivity in Lebanon. The administration has little to say about them, except that "we're doing all we can."

But the president still has refused to meet any of the families of the kidnapped Americans. In fact, there may be only five remaining with growing evidence that William Buckley, the political officer at the U.S. embassy in Beirnt who was kidnapped in May 1984, may be dead.

U.S. efforts to gain the release of the Americans have been channeled mainly behind the scenes through friendly governments, which could put pressure on the extremist Islamic groups in Lebanon who may be holding them.

President Reagan has said he will not be driven out of Lebanon, but the U.S. presence and influence has been severely curtailed, which may be the goal of the religious fundamentalists who are now anti-

Amid the rejoicing of the capture of the hijackers, the United States may also have to take stock of why it has lost the friendship and support of most of the nations in the Middle East.

The U.S. endorsement as "legitimate self defense" of the Israeli bombing of the Palestiman camp in Tunisia in which some 70 persons, including children, were killed and 100 wounded, exacerbated the problem. Later statements tried to modify the stand somewhat.

JACK ANDERSON

Bureaucrats 'Framed' By Extravagance

By Jack Anderson and

was founded on the concept that all men are created equal. But in Washington, D.C., 200 years later. this principle has somehow evolved into a system of privilege that would do credit to the late, unlamented Austro-Hungarian Empire.

The perquisites of office - known and understood by everyone here as "perks" - run the gamut from the aristocratic (chauffeur-driven limousines) to the bourgeois (office pantries) to the almost proletarian (free junkets to the beach).

Whatever the level of perks, one feature is common: the flerceness with which they are guarded and exploited.

Silly as it may seem to people living in the real world, one of the most treasured status symbols in Washington is the privilege of choosing a work of art to decorate one's office and having it properly framed at government expense.

It can be anything from a snapshot of the office occupant with an even bigger big shot to an inspired squiggle from junior's kindergarten class. If the bureauerat can get it mounted and framed at taxpayers' expense, it shows he or she has clout. You might almost formulate a law on the subject: The more trivial the object framed, the more important the perk-pusher.

Our associate Tony Capaceto has been looking into the situation, and he has turned up some examples that would boggle Thomas Jefterson's mind:

- June Koch, an assistant secretary at the Department of Housing and Urban Development, sent the visual-arts office a pencil caricature of her for framing. It had been drawn by a Soviet housing expert at a conference she attended last May.

Somehow, the cartoon got lost in transit. Her reaction was worthy of Ivan the Terrible. Siberia beckoning, the visual-arts staff conducted a long search, and Ms. Koch's own staff had a day-long, top-to-bottom shakedown. "They still haven't found the damn thing," a HUD spokesman said. - No one is ever likely to confuse the U.S. Tax Court' with Florence under the Medicis. But in 1974, each tax court judge was given $2,000 during a relocation to buy art to decorate the walls of his private chambers and outer offices. The selections included $400 paintings. $100 prints and $600 tapestries. These yard-sale bargains evidently delighted the judges to such an extent that in 1979 they voted to give new judges $2,000 too - and last year they voted themselves an additional $2,000 apiece. Temporary judges had to make do with a lousy $800, but that can buy some Norman Rockwell reproductions and Currier & Ives

- Such is the ingrained attitude of the perk fanciers that when Paul Cooksey, a deputy assistant Treasury secretary, tried to curb the memento-framing practice. employees complained. What did he do to draw this self-righteous indignation? Simply issue a memo in April stating that "in the future no more items of a personal nature will be framed by the carpenter's shop" except for such documents as presidential or departmental commissions, appointments or other formal papers.

The response may have been grudging, but it was gratifying: The amount spent on framing dropped from $2,992.80 the month before Cooksey's directive to $69.60 in August. Between October 1981 and April 1985, the department had spent $45,000 on framings.

- On rare occasions 'perkomania" is overcome by oldfashioned egomania. Rep. Fernand St Germain, D-R.L. laid out $5,000 from his campaign fund for a portrait of himself by New York artist Everett Raymond Kinstler, to hang in the hearing room of the Housing Banking Committee, which St Germain has headed for many years.

Seabreeze Has Enough To Nip 'Noles

By Sam Cook Herald Sports Editor

DAYTONA BEACH -Seabreeze's Sanderabs, adhering to an offense which deserves their nickname, used just enough of a ground attack to push across a third-quarter touchdown Thursday night to nip Seminole's Fighting Seminoles, 7-0, in District 4A-5 football at Memorial Stadium.

The homecoming victory, before a crowd of 2,101, ran the record of the No. 8-ranked Sandrabs to 5.0. They are 2.0 in the district. Seminole, which secured its first victory last week, fell to 1.5 and 0.2. The Tribe hosts Lyman next Friday.

"They didn't have much (offense) but they had enough," Seminole coach Dave Mosure said about the 'Crabs. "They're tosses and having the third a damn good ball club but we intercepted, was a sack away

Howell Seeks Return To Winning Form

By Tim Horn Special to the Herald

After dropping a heartbreaking 12-7 decision to Lake Mary last week, their second loss after three successive wins, the Lake Howell Silver Hawks will try to bounce back tonight against a strong Winter Park squad on the road in a District 5A-4 contest. Kickoff is set for 8 p.m. at Winter Park's Showalter Field. The Silver Hawks, 3-2, are fied for second in the district with Winter Park at 1-1. Winter Park is 3-1 overall, having lost only to Apopka, which shares the district lead with Evans at 2-0.

Silver Hawk head coach Mike Bisceglia said the current Winter Park squad is as strong as in previous seasons.

"Winter Park does a lot of things well," he said. "They have the leading offense statistically in Central Florida. They do a lot of different things to keep you off balance. It will be a tough night for us."i-

Running back Hilton Mobley, who had 308 yards rushing and five touchdowns in a 41-21 win over Edgewater last week, leads the Winter Park attack.

"He is outstanding runner," Bisceglia said. "Every week it seems like we have to stop someone like him."

The Silver Hawks' Mark Schnitker, a fine runner in his own right who is currently second in the county with 515 yards rushing, said of Mobely: "He's not as big or powerful as Elroy Harris (an all-stater last year who is currently playing for Eastern Kentucky University) but he's just as quick. He's a slashing-type runner.

Despite last week's tough loss to the Rams in which Lake Howell had a first and goal situation at the Lake Mary eight yard line late in the game but could not score -Bisceglia said the Silver Hawks are in good

"It was a tough game but they've got to learn to accept defeat," he said of his young team, which had only six seniors starting against the Rams. "Hopefully it helped us grow up even more.

"That (missed opportunity) didn't lose us young mistakes in the game that hurt us. like turnovers."

Which makes the 'Hounds raring to go for their third straight tonight at home in a Seminole Athletic Conference game against Oviedo's Lions. Kickoff is 8 p.m.

"The whole team has put the first two losses out of our minds," senior center Pat Perkins said. "We're happy with the first two wins but we're just as hungry for the third win."

Only one of its losses counts as far as district or conference records go. Lyman redeemed itself for the District 5A-4 loss to Mainland with a win over De-Land. Lyman's next district opponent is Spruce Creek on Nov.

Both Lyman and Oviedo stand at 1.0 in the Seminole Athletic Conference and the winner tonight could be considered a darkhorse in the race. Both teams' SAC victory was over winless Lake Brantley. Oviedo also comes in with a 2-2 overall record after last week's 28-0 rout of Cocoa.

Both the Lions' and Greyhounds' offenses are keyed by explosive running backs. Oviedo's Andrew Smith leads Seminole County in rushing with an incredible 776 yards on 102 carries in four games. Smith is also the leading scorer in the county as he has run for nine touchdowns.

Lyman's Robert Thomas was instrumental in both victories for the Greyhounds and comes in with 364 yards rushing on 80 carries for four games. Thomas is third in rushing and second to Smith in scoring with four TDs.

While Lyman's offensive line has been moving opponents out of the way all season, the backs have had a better handle on the ball the past two games after a number of fumbles in the first

"The biggest difference is the the ball better." Perkins said. "Robert (Thomas) is running real hard and Benny (Glenn) is really coming on."

"Lyman's running back (Thomas) is probably the best we've played against," Oviedo assistant Ken Kroog said. Lyman does a good job running the offense. They drive the ball and control it. And they have a good kicking game (Kelly Greenel, too. They let you make mistakes, then they score and play good defensively. They're probably as good or better than three out of the four teams we've played.'

Joining Perkins on the line are tackles David Kwiatkowski and John Spolski, guards Scan Martinson and David Leach and tight end Ralph Philpott Philpott is also the team's leading receiver with 10 catches for 12 vards.

"Winning the two games has made a big difference for the players and coaching staff." Philipott said. "We have a winning attitude now. The students want us to keep up that winning record. Everybody is up for the game and the players aren't going to let them (the students) down."

Defensively for Lyman, senior linebacker Byron Overstreet leads in tackles with 46 followed by Imebacker Vince Campbell (29) and defensive back Scott Radeliff (27).

Lyman's defense will have its hands full with Smith and Oviedo's Run 'N Shoot offense which is one of the most productive in Central Florida.

Junior quarterback John Morrow has completed 19 of 56 passes for 301 yards. Gainey is the top receiver with nine catches for 174 yards and Mark Stewart has nabbed eight for

Defensively for Oviedo, Bernell Simmons is second in the county in tackles with 66 in four games. Jeff Joyce had 38, Tony Coffie 36 and David Lockwood

Smith said he knows Lyman will be keying on him.

"I'll leave it to my offensive line," he said. "I just read the block and decide. They (Lyman) stunt a lot with the linebackers. They have four linebackers. They flood the middle but it should open up for the sweeps. Once we string it out, then we can run it up the middle."

BLANTON'S BACK — Ovtedo head coach Jack Blanton graduated from Lyman and would like nothing better than to come away with a win against his old school.

Rams Host Winless Spruce Creek

By Tim Horn Special to the Herald

Through the early part of the 1985 season, the Lake Mary Rams have consistently shown an ability to win close games. A characteristic that has the Rams at 3-1 as they play host to the Spruce Creek Hawks in a District 5A-4 contest tonight at Lake Mary High Stadium. Kickoff is at 8 p.m.

After dropping their season opener to powerful Apopka. 21-0, the Rams used a strong defensive effort to get by De-Land, 14-10, for their first win. In their second victory, they needed a missed Seminole field goal on the last play of the game

Knight was referring to two freshmen, Jay Adcock and Kirby Swinehart, who lost two races by less than .5 of a second. "If there would have been five more yards left in the race, we would have won both of those events," Knight said. "They were both behind in their races and started their kicks too late.

Welcome To World Series, But Who Hits Behind Brett?

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) - Welcome to the World Series.

The Kansas City Royals can't tell you how good It feels to get there.

But now that they're in it together with the St. Louis Cardinals and they've wiped some of the champagne bubbles out of their eyes and cars from Wednesday night's 6.2 American League pennant-clincher over the Toronto Blue Jays. they're becoming increasingly concerned about a very sobering question.

Who's going to hit behind George Brett-in the World Series?

You haven't forgotten that this is the year there won't be any designated hitter, have you?

That means the only way Royals manager Dick Howser will be able to use his most productive DH. 39-year-old Hal McRae, is as a pinch hitter. Without McRac's 70 RBI and 14 homers, Kansas City's attack would've been next to nothing this

So where are the Royals going to get anyone to help Brett in the Series with the Cardinals beginning Saturday night in Kansas City?

Cliff Johnson, the Blue Jays' big free-swinging DH who hit .368 for them in the playoffs, put the World Series situation concerning the designated hitter in pretty clear focus with a statement before the second game with the Royals. "All I wanna do is contribute to this and go home," he muttered. "I can't play in the World

He said it tongue in cheek, and at the time he had in mind the Blue Jays winning. Now that the Royals have, they certainly know what he meant.

Understandably, Howser wasn't that anxious to address himself to the problem that quickly after his second baseman, Frank White, took Lloyd Moseby's ninth innning easy bouncer and threw him out to wrap up the pennant for the Royals. who had been beaten in six out of seven previous post-season series.

"It's always something, isn't it," frowned the champagne-soaked Howser when someone reminded him the DH would be taken away from him in the World Series. "That's all right." he brightened. "We're not gonna lay down and roll over. I know the Cardinals have a good ball club. They won 100 games, they can run, and they came from behind in the playoffs. I know we're gonna have a battle. One way or another, though, we'll be OK.

Maybe yes, and then again maybe no. The fact is, if the owners hadn't changed the playoff format this year from the best-of-five to the best-of-seven so they could make more money. the Royals, who lost the first three out of four to the Blue Jays, would've all been back home now instead of on their way to Kansas City.

Avron Fogelman, who bought the Royals two years ago, couldn't believe their good fortune as well as his.

"Look." he said, showing the baseball he held in his hand and speaking with obvious emotion. "they gave me the game ball, the one with which they made the last out. Imagine, only my second year in baseball! How can a man be so lucky?" A few feet away, right-hander Bret Saberhagen was holding his thumb partially over the the open top of a champagne bottle and squirting the contents squarely in the face of George Brett, the unanimous MVP of the playoffs with his .348 average, three home runs and five RBI.

Brett was getting soaked, but didn't mind it a

"OK, give it to me," he encouraged Saberhagen, who had held the Blue Jays scoreless over the first three innings before being forced to leave in favor of Charlie Leibrandt. Saberhagen's departure was caused by a brutsed right hand suffered in stopping Willie Upshaw's first-inning smash.

"Lemme have it," Brett laughed, shutting his eyes against the stream of burning champagne. 'The only reason he's doing that is because I always beat his ears in pinochle." Brett went hitless in three official trips Wenesday night, striking out his first time up in the first inning against loser Dave Stieb, and again his last time up at the expense of reliever Jim Acker, but there was no doubt in the minds of all the Blue Jays he was the man who kept them from participating in what would have been the first international World Series.

"No question, he was the one who delivered the knockout punch." volunteered Blue Jays center fielder Lloyd Moseby. "We always had to keep our eve on him from the very beginning, and he certainly didn't let 'em down. But they have some other guys who hurt us, too. That was a good overhand right (Jim) Sundberg threw at us tonight."

Moseby meant Sundburg's triple with the bases full in the sixth that made the score 6-1 and KO'd

Sundberg has won six Gold Gloves and played in three All-Star games, but never before had gotten into the playoffs in his 12-year major league career, most of which was spent with the Texas Rangers.

He singled home the Royals' first run in the second inning, and his triple hit the top of the right-field fence and fell back onto the playing

Still a little out of breath after steaming into third, Sundberg looked over at third base coach Mike Ferraro and said to him:

"Long time wait." Ferraro knows a bit about that himself. He labored 17 years in baseball's vineyards before getting into his first World Series as a coach with the Yankees.

"Good things," he answered Sundberg, "you have to wait for."

Almon: Homecoming Boost May Bring Win

By Tim Horn

Special to the Herald Still searching for his first win of the season, Lake Brantley head coach Fred Almon would like nothing better than for the 0-5 Patriots to crack the win column tonight against the West Orange Warriors among homecoming festivities at Lake Brantley High Stadium.

The District 5A-5 matchup will kickoff at 8 p.m. West Orange is 1-4 going into the contest and tied with the Patriots at 0-2 in the district.

'There is no doubt we can beat them.' Almon said. "We could beat a lot of teams that we have played, but we have made too many mistakes. We should be 3.2 right now but we are struggling.

Last week's 17-10 loss to Seminole was the worst one of them yet. Almon said.

"That one hurt the most," he said. "We had twice as much offense but seven turnovers. We really outplayed them. "We weren't ashamed, though. There was no doubt we were better than them. With an 0.5 record in his first season as Patriot head coach, Almon is certainly not pleased. But he is also not ready to throw in the towel either "You are always disappointed when you lose," he said. "But it seems like everytime a head coach gets a job somewhere he goes through some rough times at first.

"We're not ready to throw everything away on the rest of the season, I know we can play with four of the five teams remaining on our schedule."

Fred Almon ...needs a win

John Gowan ...carns a start

Despite the live consecutive losses, the administration and student body continue to back the Patriots.

'The administration is fully behind us," he said. "And, the student body, well they are just great. Here we are 0-5 and they act like we're going to the Super Bowl or something."

John Gowan will start in place of Dave Delffaceo at quarterback for the Patriots. Almon said a good week of practice has earned him the job but he said Delfiacco will be ready, if needed.

Sammy Sears has caught 14 passes for 197 yards to lead county recievers. Cornelius Friendly leads the rushing attack with 253

Mark Bousquet, who was converted from the offensive line to a linebacker after the defense was hit with numerous injuries early in the season, continues to lead the team in tackles with 51. Steve Stark has added 48 stops from his secondary position.

Salesman Sears Fires Up Patriots

If Sammy Sears can't sell ice to an eskimo, how come my hands are freezing?

Actually. Sears isn't selling ice, he's selling how to win a football game. There's just one problem, he and his teammates havn't cashed their first check yet.

But if Lake Brantley's Patriots share the optimism and the desire of this articulate young man, that first win can't be much further away. Say, about 10 p.m., Friday, Oct. 18.

Sears, a personable 17-year-old senior wide receiver for Patriots, leads Seminole County with 14 receptions. Now, he's trying to get his teammates to catch on.

Lake Brantley has played five football games and lost five football games. Some have been close, but no eigar. But the Pats have been in every one until a major malfunction, usually late in th game.

Tonight at 8, the Patriots host West Orange for homecoming. Sears said the Pats have got their foot in the door, now they just have to come up with the closer.

The first five games have been a heartbreaking experience," he said Thursday. "We just can't seem to find a a real sure-fire answer to our problems."

The problems have been turnovers. But Sears said the Patriots have just about got that problem licked and he has been selling his teammates on the importance of ending the winless campaign tonight.

"Coach (Fred) Almon is keeping us all together." Sears said. "It's a learning experience for us all but we're still rallying. We know there is pressure on him but there is pressure on us. too. We play the game.'

Sam Cook SPORTS EDITOR

Like a good salesman. Sears has brought a visual aid into his presentation. He pulled out an article about Florida State when the senior Seminoles impressed upon their younger teammates that the importance of their contributions was very pertinent to winning.

Sears did the same. "The seniors are trying to rally the younger guys," he said, "None of us could have done what these sophomores are doing. We're proud of them for that. We want them to follow through and get leadership out of

"It's so easy to rely on the seniors. A sophomore can say. I got two more years, let the seniors do it.' But they responded. It showed in the Winter Park game. We gave them some show. We came back and almost beat them. No one can understand what that meant to our

"This past week, Seminole just kept fighting like we had done the week before. Seminole was hungry and got the breaks. That's what beat

And now, it's time for the breaks to go Brantley's way, right Sammy?

SW Louisiana, Florida: It Must Be Homecoming

Southwestern Louisiana at Florida. That can only mean one thing - homecoming.

Tulsa at Florida State? Could be, but Tulsa's pretty tough this year. Let's look down the schedule here...Ah yes, Nov. 16, Western Carolina at Florida State. Now, that's a real homecoming game.

Homecoming is a special time for college students and alumni, so having a patsy come in for the hallowed game is as much a tradition as having a rowdy fraternity make a spectacle of itself during the homecoming parade.

When it's homecoming you don't want to worry about whether your team is going to win, just by how much. If a powerful team like the Gators or the FSU Seminoles doesn't win homecoming by at least 30 points, you know it's time to get a new opponent for the following season.

Coaches will tell you they are concentrating on preparing for the game and taking this opponent as seriously as any but they know that it's more like a big party with the players as the guests of honor.

But what about these teams such as Western Carolina, East Tennessee State or Southwestern Louisiana? Why do they commit to play games in which they know they are going to get the stuffing beat out of them? In a word — money. By playing a national power that always sells out its games and probably gets television coverage, the patsy coming in leaves with huge piles of intercollegiate athletic dough. And a bit of hilarous TV exposure. And money builds programs. So one day, Western Carolina may bring in somebody like Slippery Rock to play for homecoming.

Last week, the Fearless Fister Forecast soared to a 9-1 record. For the season, an improved 31-18-1 mark. Here's a look at this week's games:

SPRUCE CREEK AT LAKE MARY

Could be homecoming for the Rams but it isn't. Lake Mary will bring in perennial Metro Conference doormat Boone for that. Meanwhile, Spruce Creek is an improved team but not strong enough to knock off the Rams. - Lake Mary by 14

OVIEDO AT LYMAN

Keeping the ball away from Oviedo's offense and out of Andrew Smith's hands is the key for the Greyhounds. Lyman is capable of doing it with a fine running back of its own in Robert Thomas. If the Greyhounds' defense holds up, it will be the third straight win for coach Bill Scott's team. - Lyman by 7

LAKE HOWELL AT WINTER PARK

Winter Park has put a lot of points on the board this season against some pretty weak defensive teams. The one time it faced a strong squad Winter Park was shut down by Apopka. Meanwhile, Winter Park's defense has surrendered a lot of points including 21 last week to Edgewater and 26 the week before to Lake Brantley. Lake Howelf has a ball-control offense that will keep the ball enough to keep Winter Park from running wild. In a mild upset. - Lake Howell by 6

WEST ORANGE AT LAKE BRANTLEY

The two cellar dwellers in District 5A-5 meet tonight in homecoming at Lake Brantley High. Both are 0-2 in the district while Brantley is 0.5 overall and West Orange 1-4. The Patriots have been improving and will be fired up so homecoming couldn't have come at a better time. — Patriots by 10 SW LOUISIANA AT FLORIDA

Florida homecoming entertainer Sting could probably suit up and score a touchdown in this one. — Gators by 50

TULSA AT FLORIDA STATE Tulsa is not a legitimate patsy this year so FSU's scoreboard won't go crazy. - Seminoles by 17

EASTERN KENTUCKY AT UCF

The University of Central Florida defense has suddenly become the black hole of Division I-AA football. The Knights will not be able to repair their armor in time. — EKU by 20 MIAMI AT OKLAHOMA

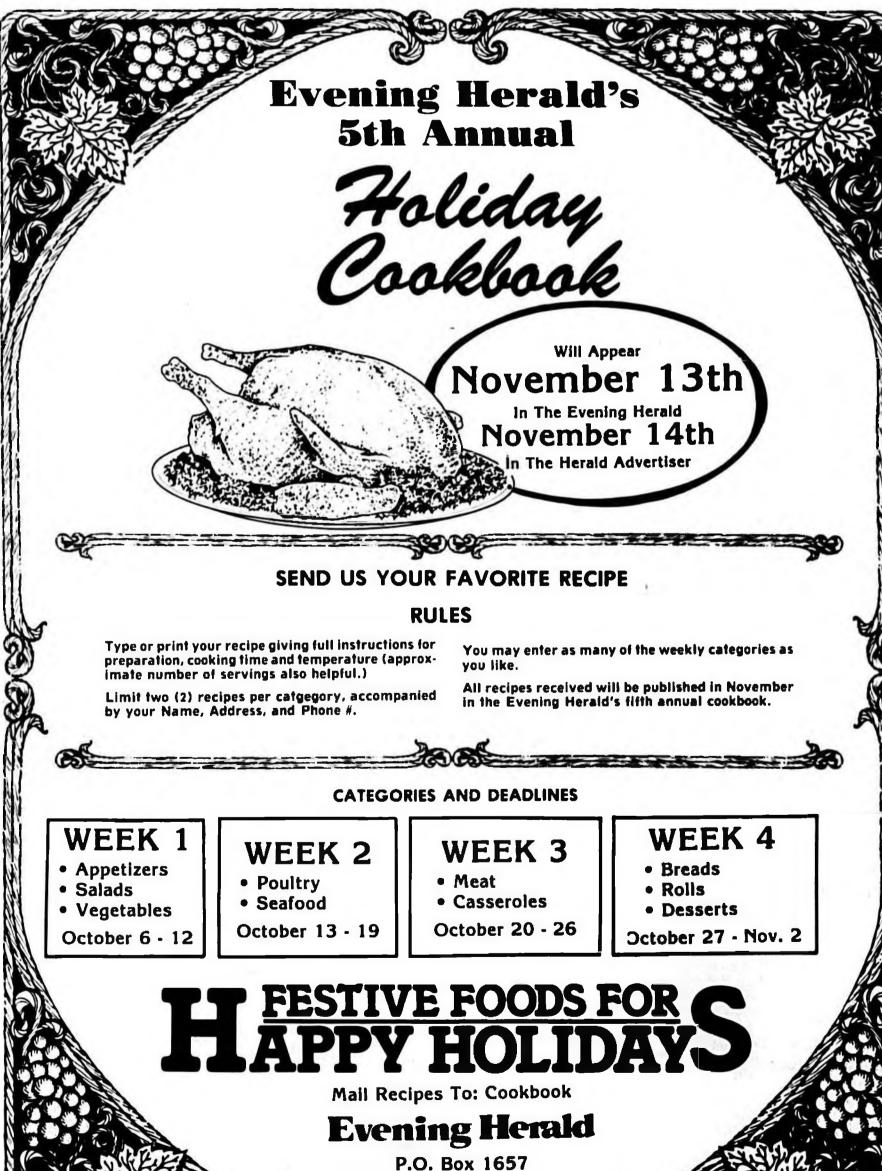

Oklahoma is not as strong offensively as the days when it averaged 50 points a game (once scoring 84) but the Sooners' defense is about the second best in the nation (behind Michigan). The Hurricanes are used to scoring big, but want be able to crack the Oklahoma D. - Booners by 13

IOWA AT MICHIGAN

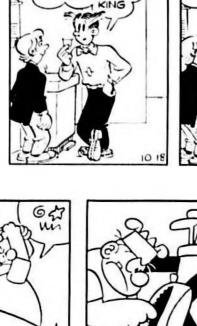

These are the top two teams in the national rankings with Iowa first and Michigan second. However, Michigan is really the top team in the county at this time and should be number one right now. The Wolverines don't roll up a lot of points but they give up next to none. - Michigan by 10 and shutout BUCS AT DOLPHINS

High Green is licking his chops in anticipation of this one. Look for him to rough up Steve DeBerg — Dolphins by 12

The cuy is used to remove mal. The healer takes a guinea pig and performs a ritual called radiografia con el cuy, which involves massaging the patient's body with corresponding body parts of a live guinea pig. After the cuy absorbs mal, it is cut open and examined. Analysis of the animal's innards enables the healer to document and define 58 Verdi opera the nature of the patient's ill-

A good native healer recognizes more than just mal; he (or she) must be able to identify in what ways human stekness is reflected in the cuy. Then the offending parts of the animal must be appropriately buried. In essence, disease is not simply climinated in humans; it is relocated to the guinea pig and disposed of.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

South really stuck his neck out when he overcalled East's weak two-spade bid with two notrump. He had only 15 high-card cards came tumbling down. points, no five-card suit, just one spade stopper, and two suits headed by a queen or a Q-J. More often than not, the overbidders at bridge are the overplayers, but not this time. North had an easy raise to three no-trump, but we should all realize that South was dead in the water if West had the eards to say double over two no-trump.

The opening lead was ducked, but that play would go against the 9-8.

'Overseed' Lawn With Ryegrass To Keep It Green In Winter

Florida is one of the few places in our country where it's possible to have a green lawn the year found. But, to do this, we have to use special vinter grass. Our permanent tropical grasses fade and lose their color in the fall with the first touch of frost. To keep the lawn green, we "overseed" it. everal cool-season grasses can be used for verseeding. The best one for our area is annual yegrass. Annual ryegrass is the most popular because the seeds germinate rapidly - it grows ast — is fairly inexpensive — and is adaptable to variety of growing conditions. It does well in un or shade, and it tolerates close frequent nowing. If seeded heavily, annual ryegrass can provide a dense, beautiful winter lawn.

The best time to establish a winter ryegrass awn is after the permanent lawn has been turned brown by frost. You'll have less trouble with disease at this time. Start by mowing close and raking up all debris. Next, spread the ryegrass seeds. You'll need between five and 15 pounds per 1.000 square feet of lawn area. If possible, buy seeds that have been treated with a fungicide. And, be sure they're fresh and weed-free. Apply the seed with a fertilizer spreader.

To get the most uniform stand of ryegrass, divide the seeds into two applications. Sow half in one direction over the lawn. Then go back and sow the rest at right angles to your original path. After you spread the seeds, rake the lawn lightly to help the seeds get through the permanent grass and make contact with the soil.

Now, it's time for watering — one of the most important steps. The newly seeded lawn should receive light waterings once or twice a day until the seeds germinate. Keep the seeds moist, but be careful not to overwater. Overwatering can wash the seeds away and may add to disease problems. Once the grass is established, water as needed.

The main disadvantage of a winter ryegrass lawn is that you'll have to fertilize about once a month. The first time, use a complete fertilizer, such as 6-6-6 or a 10-10-10. For all other applications, use a nitrogen fertilizer. Always follow the manufacturer's recommended rates for application. If you fertilize properly, the ryegrass lawn will grow quickly, and you'll needto mow about twice a week. Begin mowing when the grass is tall enough to cut - about two inches

Watch for disease problems. It seems to cause the most trouble on overwatered and overfertilized ryegrass, especially during warm spells. Check with your favorite garden supply center for an appropriate fungicide.

This is a good time to renew the mulch around your landscape plants, too. Most of us use a mulch because it makes our plants look better. Appearance is only one of the benefits of mulching. Mulches make it much harder for weeds to grow in shrubbery and flower beds. Also, it slows evaporation of soil moisture. Mulches act as an insulating blanket over plant roots - keeping them cool in the summer and warm in the winter.

As organic mulches decompose, they work down into the soil. This improves texture and may increase soil fertility. Mulches allow water from rain or irrigation to soak into the soil, rather than running off and causing erosion.

Any number of different mulching materials are available. You can classify mulches into two categories - organic and inert mulches. Organic mulches include compost, bark, leaves, grass clippings, straw, wood chips, sawdust, and similar materials. Inert materials are things like gravel, pebbles, and polyethylene plastic film. In most instances, the organic mulches are pre-

Applying an organic mulch is a simple matter. Just spread a two to four-inch thick layer of the selected material around the base of landscape plants. Then, add more mulch as needed during the year. Never allow the mulch to pile up around the trunks or lower branches of your plants. Spring is usually the best time to add mulch to well-established plants. If you're mulching with straw, wood chips, or sawdust, it's a good idea to apply some nitrogen fertilizer at the same time. One or two cups of fertilizer added to each bushel of mulch should help avoid any nutrient deficiency problem.

If you're using plastic mulch, you need to add fertilizer to the soil first. Apply about two pounds of fertilizer per 100 square feet of garden area. Then, work it down with the top two or three inches of soil. This may not seem like much fertilizer, but plastic mulches reduce the amount that leaches out of the root zone of your plants. So, you can apply less fertilizer to begin with Plastic mulches generally are used for commercial ornamental and vegetable crop production in Florida. Mulching can be one of your most valuable gardening practices.

Happy gardening!

"We attend to the ideal and concepts of liberty in the abstract as well as the embodiment of the statue itself. Our film is a psalm about liberty in the telling of the marvelous history of the statue.

"The first half of the show is devoted to old photographs and diaries of the men who designed and built the statue. The second half engages the question, ethnically, humorously and emotionally, of what liberty is all about."

David McCullough narrates the film, assisted by the voices of Jeremy Irons, Derek Jacoby and Arthur Miller. There are brief appearances by New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, writers Jerzy Kosinski and James provided a loving testament to Baldwin, singer Ray Charles and director Milos Forman.

The system is similiar to a city business that is required to have a county business permit, he said. The permit allows you to post a sign for your sale on your own property, but other than that sign. Harriett sald, garage sale signs on public or the private property of others are outlawed in the city and the county.

Permits are available at the County Services Building on First Street in Sanford, and are issued only once every two years for a given address.

First President?

Since John Hanson was titled "President of the United States in Congress Assembled," he is considered by some to be this country's first president, as he was the first to serve under the Articles of Confederation. He was, however, little more than a presiding officer of the Congress, which retained full executive power.

> By Dog Sled On April 30, 1978.

Naomi Uemura, a Japanese explorer. became the first man to reach the North Pole alone by dog sled. During the 54-day, 600-mile trek over the frozen Arctic, he survived attacks by a marauding polar bear.

Microwave Oven

According to "The World Almanac Book of Inventions.' the principle of the microwave oven was accidently discovered in 1946 when Percy Spencer was researching short-wave electromagnetic energy and a piece of candy melted in his pocket. Stray microwaves created a molecular vibration within the candy and it produced enough heat to melt it. This led to the development of the oven.

Head-Turner Tom Selleck Got Start On Soaps

Dear Dick - On "Sale of the Century," not too long ago, Tom Selleck was on the "Fame Game." Could you please tell me what character role he played on "The Young and the Restless," which was one of the clues? - R.K., Clinton. Tenn.

Selleck played Jed Andrews, who was a book publisher, on "The Young and the Restless." Tom insists that he was only a semi-regular on the soap, not a regular regular. The producer, John Conboy, wanted him to sign a five-year contract with the show, but Tom felt he might have a future on prime time, so he turned it down. It was the role of a pompous, practically perfect private eye on a segment of "The Rockford Files" that brought out his sly, comedic talents. The next year, he got the part as "Magnum, P.L."

Dear Dick - Several years ago Jane Wyman and Rock Hudson were in a movie in which Hudson played a nurseryman who came to work for Miss Wyman. She was a middle aged, well-off widow with two college-age kids. I'd love to see it again. Can you tell me the title? - M.T., Pawcatuck, Ct.

It was "All That Heaven Allows," from 1955. It was supposed to be a follow-up to the big hit they had had the year before, "Magnificent Obsession," but wasn't quite that big. With Hudson's death, it is possible some local stations may put on festivals of his old films, so watch for it in your local newspaper listings.

Dear Dick - Can you tell me if the famous Mexican movie star Cantinflas is still alive, and if there is a biography available about him? -

M.L.G., Springfield, Mo.

Dear Dick - I was told that Frank Sutton, who portrayed Sgt. Carter on "Gomer Pyle," died. Is this true? And, if so, when and how old was he? - S.J.W., Taylor Ridge, Ill.

Cantinflas is still living, at 74. I know of no blography of him. Sutton died, at the age of 51, in

Dear Dick — How old was Sally Field when she played Gidget? My granddaughter and I have enjoyed watching her. - E.N., Rock Hill, S.C.

Sally was a bright and talented 19 when the show began, and 20 when it ended. It ran in the 1965-66 season.

Dear Dick - I would like to ask a question in regard to the soap opera "General Hospital." They have a new lovely lass, who plays Anna Devane. I don't know her real name, but I like her a lot and she's a great actress. Can you on that same day. - Mrs. W.W., Warsaw, Ind. please find out for me how old she is, and what else she's done? - J.K., Jupiter, Fla.

That's that fine broth of a lass, Finola Hughes, who , born on May 20, 1908.

is English, despite her Irish-sounding name. She is a dancer-actress and perhaps best known here for being one of John Travolta's leading ladies in "Stayin" Alive." Her age? Probably in her late 20s.

Dear Dick - Recently, we saw the movie "The White Lion." It had Glynnis O'Connor as the star. Our question is: She sounds and looks like Linda Blair. Are they sisters? — S.C., Houston.

No. They are unrelated.

Dear Dick — Many years ago, I saw a movie I think was called "Arnold." It starts out with a coffin standing on end and the man inside has a smile on his face. He left a beautiful wife and all of her suitors somehow get killed. Roddy McDowall was the only character I remember. It was a hilarious movie and I would like to see it again on TV. Was that its name? If not, please tell me the right name so I can watch for it. P., Erie, Pa.

Yes, that was the name. "Arnold" wasn't that many years ago, however. It was a 1973 release and Stella Stevens was the widow. Elsa Lanchester, Shani Wallts and Farley Granger were also in the east.

Dear Dick - Would you be able to give me the birth date and year of birth for James Stewart and George Gobel? My husband was born on May 20, 1919, and he heard that they were all born

Your husband and Gobel are twins - both born on May 20, 1919 - but Stewart is 11 years older. He was
