STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, July 23.—No government finds a merchant marine.

The Shipping Board's operating at a hopeless loss. The board hangs onto it and the ship running, the government pumping up the money to the deficit.

The line is paying, the board instantly becomes anxious to sell soon as it can, for pretty anything it can get.

The line looks as if it might pay along, the board wants to that, too, and is willing to the terms so reasonable that the purchaser will find the transaction paying one in the long run. It does take him a few weeks to begin making a margin profit.

Unbusinesslike

A business man who sold all his hand-paying stocks far below market value and hoarded them on which he was being regularly assessed would hardly expect to grow rich.

However, such is the government policy with its merchant.

Explanation, of course, is President Coolidge represents a school of thought which holds that a government should engage in no commercial ventures, or being engaged, should get out of it as speedily as possible and at almost any cost.

It simply cannot sell vessels that promise to cost a private company money to operate, even as a gift.

It stands some chance of disposing of lines which pay or promise to pay soon, but prospective purchasers, aware how desperate the situation is to sell, are more moderate in their bids.

New to Them

This policy of keeping what is worse than worthless and getting out at a sacrifice, of what yields handsome returns, is one which the president has had some difficulty in instilling into the minds of the merchantly owned merchant marine.

The Shipping Board halted at that.

Finally, however, by appointing new and more manageable members, when old members' terms expired, he got a working majority on the board, with Chairman T. V. Cannon at its head.

Vice-Chairman Plummer and Admiral Benson, minority members, continue to protest with all their might, but are voted down now, every time.

With nearly everybody else of consequence at the seashore, in the

at his side, in the white overalls, anybody can get in to see him who has even a moderately good excuse, and if you didn't know it in advance you'd never guess who and what he is, he's so completely free from any trace of "side."

Gompers was brilliant.

Green is substantial. He has a shunkey. Powerful figure, of medium height. His face is square and resolute. It's serious—not much inclined to smile. Its owner's whole make-up hints at the sacrifice of the ornamental in the interests of strength.

Progress in Development County School System Shown in Lawton's Report

Progress in the development of the public school system in the annual report recently to the school department, by Superintendent T. W. Lawton, shows a total value of the property of $500,000. Program in the next year probably raise this to 10 per cent in the premises, and 27 per cent in school enrollment was a feature of this year's record 1924-25. Lawton is optimistic over the prospects for next year. He pointed out the fact that while the growth in the Sanford and Seminole county school system had not been of a phenomenal nature the substantial increase and steady growth of the educational facilities of the county were very encouraging.

There are at this time eight brick, 20 frame and one concrete school buildings in Seminole county. With very few exceptions these buildings are equipped with modern facilities. There are 127 teachers in this county and during the past year 4,763 boys and girls were enrolled. There were 4,175 students in the county schools last year.

Physician Orders Mrs. Catherine Scott To End Fast Of Twenty Days

DETROIT, July 30.—(AP) Mrs. Catherine Scott, publicly fasting to raise funds for the further defense of her condemned slayer-husband, Russell Scott, and to support their three children, was ordered last night by her physician, Dr. Robert Rosen, to end her fast, now in its twentieth day. Pleading weakness and illness, she postponed her decision until today. "When undertaking your case," read a letter addressed to her by Dr. Rosen, "I stated that I would permit you to fast as long as I believed such a fast would not in any way impair your health or become a risk to your vitality and strength. The limitation has now been reached where further fasting may involve a certain amount of risk. I suggest that your fast be immediately abandoned and that you commence to take food as I direct." Mrs. Scott has lost nearly 20 pounds since her fast was started.

REST A WEEK

Hon. Ed. Walthall, of Seminole Hudson-Essex Co., Sanford, Fla. Dear Ed: We have had all kinds of weeks, from the Bill Pickle Week to the More Babes Week. There has scarcely been a week in years that has not been dedicated to some effort, to some appeal to the public patronage or the public name. I do not know where all of these weeks originate, but some body has to start them, and I guess I have about as much right to dedicate a week to you as anyone else. I would justly suggest that we have a Bill Pickle Week, a week dedicated to the ancient and out of date practice of resting. How much more it would be if the whole country could take a solid week of rest. During this week, it would be my idea to have all places of amusement closed and let the people of this grand and more-or-less glorious country really get acquainted with their own homes once more. The girl's bell should ring in every city about 8 o'clock and everybody caught out on the streets should be locked in jail and made to rest an entire week. All lights should be required out by 9 o'clock and the people given a chance to catch up on the sleep they lost year before last. All saxophones and other instruments of torture should be required to be deposited with the city authorities, and any person heard making noises on a saxophone during the week should be shot at sunrise the following morning with a 11-inch cannon at a 10 foot range. What a wonderful week it would be, Ed! People would either have to stay at home during their leisure hours or spend them driving around in an Essex Coach. A luxurious week of rest! Yours, DILL. —Ad.

Educational Literature for Florida Promoters

"Is Florida a failure?"
McCall's Magazine for August has an Ida Tarbell article, answering that question so sensibly it would seem that some of the people seeking good ways to advertise this state would buy a carload of the magazines and see that they are distributed far and wide.

This August number closes Miss Tarbell's series on Florida, and the editor of McCall's puts it very well when he says, in his comments on the article, "If you are looking for a new home, a new farm, you will wish to read and ponder this remarkable analysis of the great 'boom' by the most astute and famous woman-journalist in America."

Miss Tarbell opens her McCall article with an account of an experience she had in France, in March of 1919. She was going to her desk in the Red Cross headquarters through the Garden of the Tuileries, when some American soldiers, evidently on leave, hailed her from a bench in the park. They were all excited over a pamphlet, and crowded about her to show her what a wonderful prospect it offered.

The title on the pamphlet was "Hey there!" and beneath it was the subtitle, "Do You Want A Home on a Farm?" It outlined a government scheme by which service men returning to civil life would have an opportunity to buy farms through government aid. Miss Tarbell said she happened to know something of the fine plan, and was able to tell how strongly it was backed by big men in the United States.

But this was one of the things that could not get through Congress. Partisan politics that prevents men from working for the most obvious of benefits for their country would not permit favorable action on the measure, "The National Soldier Settlement Act," described in that pamphlet. Thousands of young men who dreamed of happy, prosperous days on their own farms found that the pamphlet was mere "bunk." Instead of finding a chance to go on to their own potential farms, the service men came back to look for any kind of a sorry job they could find.

Her article, of course, is too long for reproduction here. We only have space to call the attention of Herald readers to its excellence. But we should be losing a great chance to pass on a good thing, if we did not take this opportunity to endorse and emphasize Miss Tarbell's conclusion that the most needed rule for successful colonizing work is intelligent study of the prospective settler.

Instead of selling land regardless of how that land is to be handled by its buyer, the right kind of colonizer first sees that the land is good for something and then gets hold of a settler who will bring that land into profitable usefulness. Quoting the rules that have made possible the great success of Hugh McTear, of Wilmington, North Carolina, through twenty years of experiment, Miss Tarbell tells Florida of the big things Florida should more generally know. These rules, The Herald, too, is glad to pass on. It would be a most excellent thing if every real estate board, and every individual land-seller, in Florida would take as a set of commandments:

- 1. Sell no land which you have not proved fit to grow what you tell your settler it will grow; that is, sell only certified land—and have at least an acre or two ready for a crop.
2. Pick your settler. Be sure he loves the soil—has had experience on it—will work the soil—is thrifty ambitious.
3. Furnish expert advice as to soils—crop diversification—methods. Be a FRIEND to the new comer.
4. Supply credit when wise.
5. Place your settlers in groups, where they can build up social life—community interests—schools—roads—amusements.
6. Encourage co-operation.

All of those rules and some more equally good are being practiced in some of Florida's colonization enterprises. But the state is being injured every day by the unloading of land upon unsuitable people who will never contribute anything to the public welfare. Miss Tarbell's article should be used as "educational literature" for many of Florida's promoters.

New Automobile Tags Ordered For Florida

Florida's automobile tags for 1927 will be manufactured at the state prison farm at Raiford. More than three hundred thousand tags have been ordered, and likely as not another order for additional tags will have to be rushed in to take care of the demand next January. The new tags are to be black and white, which will be easy to read even if the color scheme does not advertise Florida as well as do colors suggesting its fruits and flowers.

"ANOTHER DEBTLESS STATE" EUSTIS LAKE-REGION

Under the title "Another Debtless State" the Boston Transcript, discussing the recent cut in state taxes authorized by Governor Martin, declares that the Florida press would seem warranted in citing it as a refutation of the charge that this state is unsound and that its finances are in bad condition as a result of last year's inflation. "President" Coolidge has one rival in tax reduction accomplishments, a man after his own heart, we might say, in the governor of Florida," says the Transcript. "Governor Martin is just announcing the second tax cut of his administration, amounting to almost 30 per cent. When Governor Martin took hold, the State tax rate was 10 1/2 mills, or at the rate of $107 1/2 on a thousand, as we would assume it have. In the first year of the administration this was cut one-quarter of a mill and now the rate goes down to 7 1/2 mills, the lowest in ten years. In addition, the state has some $17,000,000 in the treasury and is out of debt. For is this the end; for Governor Martin has been open-

Wall Street Was Happy.
23 Have The Gold.
Mexico's Religious War.
Satan, And The Lady.
BY ARTHUR DRIBBANE
(Copyright 1926, by Star Co.)

A HAPPY Wall Street yesterday for wise ones. The "Street" had read President Coolidge's prosperity talk, went to work with its check book and up went prices. Some bought 127,600 shares of Steel common, up three points to 145.

Others, including Mr. Durant, bought 107,100 shares of General Motors, up more than seven points to 170, a record for all time. There were other records. Don't gamble. That never pays; but above all, don't sell this country short.

THE PRESIDENT'S statement on prosperity was confirmed by great corporations. The big steel company in the last six months earned more than $92,000,000. General Motors more than $93,000,000. Thus in net profits, one single automobile concern eclipsed the great steel company's biggest industrial unit in the world.

LORD BEAVERBROOK doubts the gold standard's value, calls it a financial medicine often fatal to the patient. Europe turns against the gold standard's value, calls it that this country has the gold.

All the gold in creation wouldn't help us or keep us where we are if we didn't have mills, factories, farms, mines, oil wells, and especially inventive and industrial genius.

Henry Ford is worth probably two thousand million dollars in gold. It would hurt him if you took that away from him. But if you took away four letters, Ford, he would really suffer.

PRESIDENT CALLES, of Mexico, orders seizure of all Catholic churches if the priests leave them on Aug. 1, and forbids priests to turn over the church properties to committees of laymen. The Mexican government will consider the churches "abandoned" and use them for public schools and other purposes.

NEWS DISPATCHES report the first death due to the anti-Catholic laws. The mayor of a small town was hanged because of his attack on a Catholic priest. This is probably the beginning of much violence throughout Mexico.

The authorities seek to locate the authors and distributors of bills appealing to Mexicans "to put on their Christian armor." The pamphlet, addressed "To men who are not cowards, to women who have no fear of the firemen or the jail of martyrdom" ends: "Catholics! Never end! Catholics die! Do not let them disappear. And so, all will end and the enemies of the church. Only God does not die nor will His church ever die. Christ lives, Christ reigns, Christ rules!"

A LADY evangelist in Los Angeles came back and told her she had been kidnaped. The district attorney says the reverend lady was not kidnaped, but went for a little trip with the gentlemanly radio operator of her temple.

While the lady appeals to that operator to come back and clear her name, the district attorney asks that her finger prints be taken for comparison with finger prints found in a little cottage inhabited by the radio man and the mysterious lady.

WISELY AND properly, the reverend lady refuses to exhibit her finger prints. In all this earth there are no two sets of finger prints exactly alike. But don't forget Satan ever seeking to discredit his enemies. He can do almost anything. Nothing easier for him than to plant on walls and furniture of some cottage "love nest" finger prints of a lady who never saw the cottage in her life.

THE "ALL-ASIA" conference is off, Japan's government doesn't like it. That "All-Asia" idea was to organize Asiatic nations, arrange for them to rise in their might, over-awe and if necessary punish white races for their sanctimoniousness.

Japanese statesmen, wise gentlemen, realize that it is easier to start an "All-Asia" movement than to end it. China hates Japan, objected to Japanese leadership in the conference, and it is abandoned.

Foolish white races that kill and bankrupt each other may be grateful that Asiatic nations, outnumbering them more than two to one, are unable to agree among themselves.

PROFESSORS OF 12 colleges who sailed yesterday to study international peace might learn as much about international peace if they stayed home and studied human nature. The statement, "Man is by nature a beast," does no apply to a magnificent majority. All beasts fight. And men will fight until a very powerful minority finds a way to stop fighting. We need airplanes more than we need peace sentimentalists.

THE SWISS prepare for trouble and don't have trouble. Each man is trained to fight; every man strong enough to use it has his gun and ammunition, subject to inspection by the government. Recently officers of the Swiss army led young recruits up Devil's mountain, a peak 10,500 feet high, as part of their training, and the snow was tumbled at night. The great war raged all around Switzerland, but there was no invasion on Swiss soil. It would have been a very different matter had the Swiss been like Uncle Sam.

HIS MASTERPIECE

WAR DEBT FICTIONS NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

The idea that the French government borrowed money from the United States after our declaration of war without expecting to repay it within any definite term or to pay interest on it is a pure legend. It is gratifying to know that many representative Frenchmen do not accept this myth and are candid enough to call attention to the historic realities of the transaction.

In a recent issue of "Le Matin" M. Stephane Lauzanne published some extracts from the French Diplomatic archives illuminating the attitude and intentions of the French government when the first war advances were sought. Here is the dispatch in which Ambassador Jussarand told of his initial interview with Secretary McAdoo on April 12, 1917.

"I have just talked with the Secretary of the Treasury about our financial needs. The figure of $133,000,000 a month draw no objection from him. That of $218,000,000 a month, which would cover the total of our purchases elsewhere than in the United States, seemed a little high to him; but it is not impossible that we may obtain it. The interest will be the same as the government of the United States is able to obtain, probably 3 1/2 per cent, with a guaranty that if later loans should be made at a higher rate the same interest would be paid on the first loan. This interest must be paid by all the Allied countries interested. As to the time of repayment, I mention (supposing it to be agreeable) fifteen years. Mr. McAdoo made no objection to that."

ONE GREAT TROUBLE TAMPA TIMES

The governor of Kentucky has pardoned the bobbed-haired young woman who was fined for assault and battery because she slapped the face of a preacher who said that all women who wear it bobbed are prostitutes. This is one case in which the pardon power that elicits practically unanimous approval. If the preacher in the case would join in we suspect that approval would be entirely unanimous.

The people of this country know what has been done for the young woman—and they approve. The question arises in their minds, What is to be done for the preacher? Certainly something and something pretty drastic—needs to be done for one who took advantage of his place to make such an unseemly and untruthful remark. It makes no difference what may be one's individual views concerning bobbed hair, all of us know numbers of women—among them our wives, daughters, sisters, sweethearts, and some of our mothers who have bobbed hair and yet are perfect ladies, in the best and strictest meaning of that term. To have them insinuated as prostitutes is insulting to make such a blood-red-bobbed remark.

Of course we have no knowledge as to the mentality or personality of the preacher in question—though we can well enough imagine the sort he is. It is deplorable that such men are able to break into a pulp. Yet, after all, those of the stripe of which he must be are not primarily to blame that they fulminate loathsome, as he has. The primary blame is with men of a different class, men of training and education who can say things more smoothly than do their limiters and get by with it, in their anxiety for appearing in the spotlight. The sort who say the shocking things are, generally, only passing after them according to their ability. What the Kentucky preacher may be a case of bobbed-haired woman matter much, but it is a pity that it is so.
