Mothers' March

Have you or has anyone that you know ever had to ask this question?

Do you know what it means to have a child born with a disabling physical defect or a brain damaged by some unknown cause? fillions of American mothers do.

Many of them live here in our own This week on Thursday evening the teen clubs and many mothers, concerned about birth defects and the tragedy it brings to families, will be calling at our homes in the annual Mothers' March for the March

They will be seeking contributions to speed the work against the nation's largest killer and crippler of children. But they will also carry a message of hope, of significant prog-in its regional treatment centers, improved diagnostic methods, new medical and surgical techniques, and extensive rehabilitation have revolutionized the outlook for bables born with birth defects.

The importance of prenatal care in the development and birth of healthy babies is also being stressed by the March of Dimes in a nationwide public education program encouraging mothers-to-be to take ad-vantage of this important medical Seminole High's attempts to get into the win column in the Metro Conference were foiled twice more this past weekend as the Fighting Seminoles fell before Winter Park, 59-48, and highly-touted Evans, 72-38. Coach Mack Blythe's Seminoles showed plenty of spunk in the Winter Park contest Friday night on the Parkers' home court. On three different occasions the Wildcats put on a spurt that could have iced the game, but every time the Seminoles battled back into the picture. Ten straight points late in the third period was the big streak for Winter Park, boosting them from a 54-39 lead to a 55-39 margin. Seven points in the last period by Frank Whigham helped the Seminoles to narrow the gap to the final 11-point dif-

Ol' Man Winter Hits North With 'Sunday Punch'

United Press International A massive winter storm churned out into the Atlantic today after hitting the Northeast with a Sunday punch of knee-deep snow, raw winds and angry seas along the Eastern Coast.

Bitter cold temperatures moved in behind the storm to put the icing on the region's first real taste of winter. A blanket of up to two feet of snow covered a wide area from West Virginia to Maine. at the height of the weekend storm, scores of communities were hit with power failure and transportation was snarl-

The industrial complex of Pittsburgh lay under 15 to 18 inches of snow. Buffalo, N. Y., received 171/2 inches of snow in 24 hours—the heaviest one-day January snowfall on

WASHINGTON- The De upport of closing Sanford NAS was made to Congress today by Paul R. Ignatius, assistant secretary of defense. In essence he restated the reason given by Defense Secretary Robert McNamara in December for closing the base and 16 other installations throughout the country. The reason is that these bases will not be needed for military activity in the fore seeable future due to changes in weapons and force struc-
