THE GOVERNMENT of the United States is asking us to lend it 13 billion dollars in the next few weeks. We can do it. And we must do it. Every American must realize the truth:

In this, our toughest war, we've made a good start. We've trained a lot of men—made a lot of weapons—built a lot of ships.

But it's only a start. No man or woman among us would contend for a single instant that we're doing enough now to win this war!

We've Got to Build More!

We broke all records building 8 million tons of shipping last year. But grim-faced Army and Navy men will tell you that the 18 MILLION tons we're building this year still won't be enough!

We've Got to Fight More!

From now till this war is won, America must be on the offensive. In ever-increasing numbers, your sons, brothers, husbands must go into actual battle. Our losses have already begun to mount—and they will not grow less.

And We've Got to Buy More War Bonds!

Sure we're all buying War Bonds now. But we've got to help pay for our increased fighting and building. . . . We've got to match, as best we can, the sacrifices of those Americans who are toiling and sweating on a dozen battlefronts—with the bloodiest yet to come.

Your local banks will take orders for Bonds for two weeks beginning April 12, without cost.

Among the citations which are given in the Bible "when shall not bow down to their gods, nor serve them, nor do after their works; but thou shalt utterly overthrow them, and quite break down their images." (Ps. 97:5)

Yet All Remains the Same

While we escape, night after night, The scattered rocks are struck, waves rise, swelling the coasts far out of sight.

The lifting wave on lifting wave, Hope leaps and over powers a thought; All that we feared to lose we save.

As the cut-rock the sea ferment, And sharpness of the salt-sea air, All cold, change astonishment.

Nothing is won, nothing is lost, Shapes shift, yet all remains the same; Evening by evening toward the coast, New birds come as the old ones came.

A Navy appropriation of over $4 billion dollars is asked by the President for next year. This sum alone, exclusive of all other government expenses, will require taxing six times as high as those existing in 1939.

A negro in Tampa, who violated the draft laws and was convicted in court, was sentenced to three years in prison. By that time the war will be over, he will be released, and all risk to his life or limb escape. He can be thankful this isn't Germany where he would have been shot.

The Tampa Tribune expects opposition to develop to the Governor's tax proposal on the grounds that it is in part for the relief of the small counties. The part of the cigarette tax which is to be used for old age pensions the Tribune says, is all right; the part for the benefit of the small counties, that, and in this state there are many small counties, many legislators from small counties.

Most people are not so keenly in favor of the proposed three-cent cigarette tax. When asked what they would do, they logically suggest cutting expenses, for instance, perhaps that even with the additional cigarette tax expenses will have to be cut some $1,500,000 a year. The current estimate in revenue is estimated at $10,000,000; the proceeds from the proposed cigarette tax, $9,000,000.

The government is planning the largest bond sales campaign in the history of this country. Some $1 billion dollars worth will be offered during the last three weeks of this month. And if you don't think it will be disposed of, you do not know your Uncle Sam, who will be better for the money, and for the people themselves, if they buy the bonds, as they will be helping to avert some of the things which are being done for making the Government's war effort.

It has long been evident that unless the government for the public fully recognizes the importance of the average newspaper's contribution to the war effort, the newspaper will be a victim of the government's war effort.

It has long been evident that unless the government for the public fully recognizes the importance of the average newspaper's contribution to the war effort, the newspaper will be a victim of the government's war effort.

Thank You

The Herald appreciates the splendid spirit of co-operation and virtually complete understanding with which the public has received the announcement made one week ago today.

Most people seem to realize that when the government orders a reduction in the consumption of newspaper there is nothing for the newspapers to do but to cut the number of pages they print or to reduce the number of papers they circulate among their subscribers.

And most people seem, to realize that publishing a newspaper is not a one-man job but is something which requires the team play of perhaps a score or more of persons and that when a dozen employees are called into the armed services within a period of little more than a year and it becomes necessary to replace them at a time when there is an acute manpower shortage, the problem of maintaining personnel at existing wage levels is not an easy one.

But what some people do not seem to remember is that many factories and stores have gone out of business altogether or at least have ceased making commodities for civilian consumption and are devoting their entire facilities to the production of materials of war.

The big gasoline companies which used to be great competitors for the consumer's dollar and great advertisers, and the tire manufacturers who used to be among our best customers no longer find it necessary to advertise their products.

Even on a little newspaper like The Sanford Herald advertising has generally paid 85 percent of the cost of production. And if there were no advertising at all and the subscribers had to bear all of the expense of the paper they have been reading, the cost to them would be $1.30 a week, instead of 20 cents; and this is on the assumption that there would be no decline in circulation.

But while most people do not understand the intricacies and complexities of the publishing business, most of them here have shown a very fine conception of the fact that these are war times and that none of us can get exactly what we want and we have to make the best of what we have. The war will not last forever and, we are confident, a better day lies not far ahead. In the meantime we will ever be grateful to those who stood by us.

British Health

Despite the war with all its worries, the tough-fibred English in 1942 reduced their death rate to pre-war level and increased their birth rate, according to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

With more than 650,000 babies born last year, the English birth rate was the highest in more than a decade. Moreover, coincidentally with the rise in the birth rate, infant mortality declined to such a degree that the rate for 1942 was little, if any, higher than the English all-time low record established in 1939, when the number of infant deaths per 1,000 live births dropped to 50.

A striking feature of England's health record last year was the decline in diabetes mortality, which, the company explains, "was probably associated with the limitation on England's wartime food supply. Under present conditions, no Englishman can eat too much and, consequently, over-eating and overweight, which play such a large role in the onset of diabetes, are notably less frequent."

"Mortality from ulcers of the stomach and duodenum, which," the company points out, "has shown itself to be a sensitive index of conditions of stress, fell off sharply and was at about the 1939 level. In like manner, the mortality from suicide continued the decline which began in 1939, reflecting a favorable psychological effect of the war."

Outstanding was the improvement in mortality from diseases associated with war conditions. Cerebrospinal fever, which had increased sharply after the outbreak of the war, the company explains, fell last year to about half the level of 1940-1941. The mortality from tuberculosis which also had risen since the outbreak of the war declined last year almost to the pre-war level with the greatest improvement among women and children, among whom the previous rise had been most rapid.

Other favorable developments in the English disease picture were decreases in the mortality from influenza, pneumonia, bronchitis and most of the degenerative diseases. Childhood diseases also showed lower death rates, and the rate for diphtheria was the lowest in English history. Civilian air raid fatalities last year totaled only 8,235, or less than one sixth of the 20,520 deaths inflicted on the English in 1941 and less than one seventh of the 23,365 total of 1940.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

Recently an Indiana Congressman paid tribute to the newspapers of the nation for the part they have played in furthering the war effort. It was a tribute justly deserved.

It has long been evident that unless the government for the public fully recognizes the importance of the average newspaper's contribution to the war effort, the newspaper will be a victim of the government's war effort.

SANFORD FORUM

The Editor Sanford Herald Sanford, Fla. My Dear Mr. Dean: I enclose a letter from Rep. Joe Hendricks. Your particular attention is called to the first sentence of the second paragraph. In short because coffee is scarce its importation is prohibited. Colombian coffee is the best grown in the Americas. A Venezuelan coffee is considered by many to be equally good. As a result of this people going home from here tried to take coffee with them especially since they knew that coffee was scarce in the U. S. Reports came back to us that because coffee was scarce in the U. S. and was being rationed its importation was prohibited and that it was being seized at the ports of entry. These reports were so unbelievable that I wrote to Mr. Hendricks to find out if they could possibly be true and you will observe that he fully confirms the reports. Many crazy things have been done under the pretext of war emergency but this is the craziest that I have heard of so far. I can understand that a man bringing his coffee with him would not be entitled to a coffee ration but I cannot understand confiscation. Does not the Constitution say something about unreasonable search and seizure and would anything be more unreasonable

FROM A CAPTURED GERMAN NEWSREEL comes this picture of the repatriation of French soldiers to their homeland in exchange for able-bodied slave labor destined for the Reich. Ever alert to propaganda values, the Germans have followed the returning train with cameras. In front of the train a mother tearfully greets a son she has not seen since long before the fall of the French army. (News of the Day from International)

EMACIATED AND SICK, a French soldier is embraced by his mother after return from months of incarceration in a German prison camp. His release was not due to the magnanimity of the conquerors; it was the result of a shrewd collaborationist deal whereby the Germans received, in exchange for repatriated Frenchmen, large groups of conscript labor. (News of the Day from International)

GOING DOWN TO THE DEPOT to meet a train returning from Germany with a shipment of repatriated French prisoners, two French boys weep tears of bitter disappointment at not seeing their fathers. This picture was taken from a captured German newsreel. Soldiers were returned only after an agreement whereby French factory and farm workers were conscripted for the Reich. (News of the Day from International)

MUNCHING THE BREAD OF THEIR NATIVE FRANCE, two repatriated soldiers stand with a brother on the depot after their descent from the train which has carried them from a German prison. Their exchange was made possible only by the simultaneous shipment to Germany of able-bodied conscript labor for German farm and factory. Returning prisoners found their loved ones at home weak and emaciated. (News of the Day from International)

WEARING WAR PAINT, the former luxury liner Queen Mary is moored in Table Bay, Capetown, South Africa, after setting a new record for the run from New York. The vessel made it in 12 days, breaking the former record by 7 days. She carried troops on the trip. (International)

RETURNING TO FRANCE AFTER MONTHS as an inmate of a German prison camp, a father clasps to his breast a son who knew him perhaps only as a legend. From a captured German newsreel comes this picture of repatriated French military prisoners who were returned to their homes through an exchange agreement by which able-bodied French factory workers and farmers went to the Reich. (News of the Day from International)

OVERCOME WITH EMOTION and almost too weak to stand, a repatriated soldier weeps on the shoulder of his father after returning to his homeland. Taken from a captured German newsreel, this picture is typical of the propaganda efforts in which the Nazis build up the desirability of operations wherein able-bodied French slave labor is sent to the Reich. all times in the Bay of Florida east of a line running in a south-easterly direction from a point three miles west of Northwest Cape Sabie to Little Pine Key. During hours of darkness no vessel may approach any bridge or conduct on the Overseas (Miami-Key West) highway nearer than one mile.

In the Gulf of Mexico fishing will be permitted only during daylight hours, except that night fishing will be permitted in the following areas:

1. A strip extending northward from Northwest Cape Sabie, Monroe county, to the northern tip of Longboat Key, outside Sarasota bay, not more than three miles from the coastline at any point.
2. A similar three-mile strip extending northward from East-Crille to Deer Island, near New Port Richey.
3. A five-mile wide strip extending northward from Deer Island to Horseshoe point, just above the town of Cedar Key.
4. Another three-mile strip extending northward from Horsehoe point to the St. Marks range front light, the St. Marks range being the northern limit of this area.

To permit fishermen to take full advantage of daylight in areas where night operations are prohibited, 11 previously designated overnight anchorage areas have been retained at Flagler Beach, Cape Canaveral, Manatee keys, Dry Tortugas, Sarasota, Egmont key, Big Hank key (15 miles northwest of Anclote key), an area 12 miles west of Chassahowitzka point, an area nine miles west of Horseshoe point, St. George sound.

Operators of fishing craft must obtain from Coast Guard captains of ports official identification cards to be carried at all times, but which do not constitute a license to fish.

Before proceeding to sea through an inlet or waterway or entering from sea, fishing vessels must report to Coast Guard examination vessels, announce the areas to which they are proceeding and obtain permission to depart or enter. Except in cases of extreme necessity, vessels must not enter or leave ports, rivers, inlets and sounds except by special permission.

Symon Gould Says Meat Rationing Is Meat To Him

Meat rationing, says Symon Gould, Secretary of the Vegetarian Society of New York, is "heaven-sent."

"We vegetarians are annoyed by all the fuss over the lack of meat," says Mr. Gould. "You won't starve on a diet of vegetables, fruits, milk, cheese and butter. Supplemented by proteins from the bean and nut families, that's about all your body needs."

Anyway, that's what the true vegetarian eats. And says Mr. Gould, some of the foremost men of our times, including George Bernard Shaw, Gandhi, H.G. Wells and Maeterlinck, are vegetarians.

Americans are considered the greatest meat eaters in the world—that is, all except the 100,000 Vegetarian Society members on the east coast.

"But right to our own country," continues Mr. Gould, "we have a perfect example of the effects of wrong diet. Heart trouble, bad teeth and rheumatism are prevalent, even in the young."

Vegetarians use the experience of Great Britain as a talking point. Since consumption of meat has been reduced to a fraction there, Mr. Gould asserts, the people are healthier and statistics indicate that decrease in mortality has more than offset the loss of lives by bombing.

"Many people," says Mr. Gould, "feel that it is important to eat large quantities of meat to maintain strength. Actually, however, the majority of the human race are vegetarians. Some have exceptional strength and endurance. The Chinese soldier can march 95 miles a day on a handful of rice. The Manchukuo farmer tills from dawn to dusk living mainly on thosy bean."

Farm Tools Repair Class Inaugurated

A class in farm machinery repair, limited to 15 members, which farmers may attend in order to learn more fully how to keep their tractors, tractors and other equipment in repair, will be formed to meet two nights a week at the Seminole High School farm building, Alex R. Johnson, director of the local Rural War Production Program, stated today.

James S. Webb, who owns a repair shop on the West Side, will instruct the class which will be held from 8:00 until 11:00 o'clock on Monday and Friday evenings, starting on Friday, Apr. 16.

"All persons in this class," said Mr. Johnson, "will be privileged to bring machinery to the school farm and repair it. Full equipment for welding and machine shop work will be provided."

Mr. Johnson pointed out that this course would be of special value to farmers in that there is no farm machinery, and replacements are hard to get.

Babcock Aircraft Takes Local Trainees

Recent calls by the Babcock Aircraft Corporation at DeLand for trainees in aircraft wood-working have resulted in a number of vacancies in both the day and the evening class at the Sanford School for War Production Workers, according to H. A. Speir, instructor.

Most of the trainees who have accepted positions, have gone to the Babcock plant, Mr. Speir said, but he added that other calls had come from Tampa, West Palm Beach, and Jacksonville. Civil service inquiries offering salaried positions had been received, he stated, but for this there had been no trainees available.

"Persons between the ages of 18 and 30, are preferable for training in aircraft woodworking."

Housewives Are Asked To Salvage Tin Cans

"Tin cans are going to war," was the assertion today of C. G. Campbell, associate executive secretary for Florida of the War Production Board, who with H. O. Burkman, also of the WPB, conferred this morning with the Salvage Committee of the Seminole County Defense Council, in the office of the chairman, C. R. Dawson.

"Conservation of tin is one of the most vital needs of the war effort," said Mr. Campbell. "Housewives in this county are urged by the WPB to save all tin cans, fill and paint correctly. These should be washed, labels removed, tops and bottoms bent in, and cans flattened by stepping on them."

"Take these cans to your grocer," he concluded. Members of the Salvage Committee attending the meeting were Mr. Dawson, Mrs. Daisy Knox, chairman of Home and Community Services, R. C. Williams, Nod Smith of the American Legion, and Mrs. Guida Wilson, county home demonstration agent.

Nursery School Need Investigated Here

Mrs. Marion C. Doloy, nursery school specialist of the State Board of Education, today investigated the results of the county survey made by block leaders, in regard to the needs of nursery care for children of working mothers.

"While results of the survey are slow in coming in, I believe that on the basis of what we have, I will write application for a small number of units to be established by means of the Latham fund in Washington," she said.

"It is very important that children of working mothers be cared for," she said and addressing a vocational school program for school age children during the summer months.

Supt. T. W. Lawton, with whom Mrs. Doloy conferred this morning, urged that mothers who wished to have their children placed in nursery school, confer with him at once.

Canning Kitchen Turns Out 7,734 Pints Of Food

More than 7,734 pints of food have been canned at the Sanford Canning Kitchen at 114 West Second Street during the period from Jan. 20 to Apr. 1, thus breaking all its previous records, Mrs. Guida Wilson, county home demonstration agent, stated today.

"Mrs. B.A. Howard, supervisor of the kitchen, has used her equipment to the best of advantage and taken care of the needs of all who wanted to can food there," she added.

"New equipment," she pointed out, "inspired to meet the demand for canning, which has resulted in making all the canning kitchens of the County very busy."

"Mrs. Willie Mae McConaha, supervisor of the Orlando Canning Kitchen, has reported that 3,000 pints of food have been canned there. Mrs. Wilson stated.

"The Lake Monroe Kitchen which opened Feb. 22, also added, has canned 786 pints. Mrs. Edna Sealy is the volunteer supervisor for this kitchen. No salary is paid to her."

"The Geneva Kitchen," is located at the Community Hall and serves the whole community. This kitchen is different from all the others. There is no supervisor, but anyone can go to the kitchen and can. This community has been carrying on this program for eight years, and during that time not one piece of equipment has been lost. A group will get together and go there for a day's work. They have a good time, and accomplish a lot, having during April, canned 910 pints."
