Ted Bundy's Mother Appeals For His Life

MIAMI (UPI)—Theodore Bundy's mother, Louise, today told the murder trial jury considering the punishment for her son, convicted of strangling two college women, that the execution of Bundy would be "like a taking a part of all of us and throwing it away."

She was one of five defense witnesses called in the presence hearing before defense attorneys concluded their case at noon.

Mrs. Bundy, of Seattle, Wash., testified for 15 minutes, mostly about the early childhood of Bundy.

"You might say he was my pride and joy ... we talked a lot together," she said.

Mrs. Bundy did not break down on the stand, but her voice choked with emotion as the subject of her son's possible execution came up.

"I consider it, the death penalty itself, to be the most primitive, barbaric thing that a human being can impose on another. My Christian upbringing has taught me that to take another's life under any circumstances is wrong. I don't believe the state of Florida is above the laws of God," she said.

"Ted can be very useful in many ways to many people—living. Gone from us, it would be like taking a part of all of us and throwing it away," Mrs. Bundy said.

Circuit Judge Edward Cowart refused to allow the jury to hear any of the grim details of an execution. He said the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled electrocution is not cruel and unusual punishment as defined by the constitution.

The ruling gives the defense strategy designed to bring the horror of an execution home to the jury, which must recommend whether Bundy should die or be sentenced to life in prison.

Cowart will have the ultimate decision on Bundy's punishment and the jury's recommendation is not binding.

Area Woman Hospitalized; Spouse Arrested In Beating

By HUGH THOMSON
Herald Staff Writer

A young Lake Mary woman is in fair condition today at Semole Memorial Hospital suffering from severe injuries all over her body allegedly inflicted by her husband. The husband, charged by police with aggravated battery and attempted murder, was released from custody after his bond was reduced by County Judge Wallace H. Hall from $10,500 to $2,000.

Mrs. Patricia Renfro, 27, 134 Wilson Drive, Lake Mary, suffering from cuts and multiple bruises, was beaten all over her body, according to police reports, with a metal dining room chair. She also was beaten with a metal mop and a wooden broom handle.

According to police, at one point during the beating allegedly inflicted by her husband, Willie Renfro, 38, a 12-inch butcher knife was held to her back. She also was tied with panty hose.

According to Mrs. Renfro's statement to police her husband had come home from work about three hours late on Friday night. About 11 p.m. they had then gone to a bar in Orlando and when they returned home about 2 a.m. Renfro started beating her in the front yard, then dragged her into their house and continued beating her, police said.

Mrs. Renfro's report to Lake Mary investigating detective David Higginbotham stated her husband had fallen asleep several times and the last time he did so, she hobbled to her oldest son's room where the son united her. She then put on a bathrobe and ran to a neighbor's house with her son and another son, 7, where she called police.

The police reports stated that Mrs. Renfro also was beaten over the head with ceramic pots.

Detective Higginbotham stated, "there were trails of blood all over the house and a big pool of blood in the living room in front of the sofa." There also were blood stains on the bed, the wall at the head of the bed, the bathroom on the mirror, the sink and the floor. "It was one of the goriest scenes I've ever looked at," Higginbotham said.

At the hospital, a nurse told police that Mrs. Renfro's mother had called the hospital from Richmond, Va., wanting information about her daughter, saying the daughter's husband had called her earlier and told her that "Patricia had been killed in an auto accident." Mrs. Renfro's statement to police stated that her husband had told her he was going to kill her and make it look like an accident.

French Says He's Not Keen On Hospital Status Change

By GEOFFREY POUNDS
Herald Staff Writer

Chairman of the Seminole Board of County Commissioners Bob French today said he favors taking no action to change Semole Memorial Hospital's county-owned status.

"My own personal preference would be to leave it as it is and not make any change," French said.

Hospital board member Allan Keen said a decision to leave the hospital in its current status would "be the worst of all alternatives." Such a decision, he said, would lead to the continued deterioration of the hospital's physical plant and its image.

"To maintain the status quo would actually be a step backwards. It could eventually lead to a situation where the hospital becomes a county clinic, with no paying patients," Keen said.

He said the board has not made alternate plans if its request for a change to private, non-profit status is denied.

"We just don't see any way the money needed for improvements could be raised if the situation remains the same," he added.

The commissioners are scheduled to meet in work session Tuesday afternoon to consider whether to grant a request by the SMH board of trustees seeking to convert the hospital to a private, non-profit facility. The county presently owns SMH. The board also will consider whether or not it wishes to pursue offers from six other public and private hospital groups interested in assuming control of the 25-year-old institution.

Last Tuesday SMH board members were told they would be given an indication of whether their proposal to retain control under a reorganized, non-profit corporation status. If the commissioners determine not to seek additional information from Florida Hospital or other private, for-profit, hospital corporations, then negotiations will begin on the leasing of the building to the SMH board and on a payment plan for medical services for indigents.

But French said he doubts the SMH board will get a favorable response immediately. He said: "It is more likely that the commissioners are going to ask for some more detailed information from some of the other people. I don't think that would necessarily be a setback for them (the SMH board members). It would just mean we are not ready to go with their proposal without further considering others."

Ironically, French will not be able to attend the hearings on the hospital because he will be confined there. The commission chairman was admitted to SMH on Friday with a broken jaw he suffered during a softball game. He is scheduled to undergo surgery and will miss the commission meeting and work sessions this week.

Fred Duhart, 11, of Sanford takes a cold shower while other Youth Programs Inc. youth and volunteers enjoy a swim in Red Bug Lake during a "Fun and Field Day" held Saturday at the county's Red Bug Lake Park. The 30 persons attending also played volleyball and softball and ate hamburgers.

At Airport Boulevard, 46A Long-Awaited Traffic Signal Coming

By SHARON CARRASCO
Herald Staff Writer

A traffic signal slated for the intersection of State Road 46A and Airport Boulevard hopefully will put a damper on mishaps like the three-car accident that occurred there Thursday afternoon.

Bill Bush, Seminole County engineer, said the traffic signal, complete with turn signals, is expected to cost $25,000 and be in operation by Sept. 30.

The county work crew will begin building turning lanes for all four legs of the intersection in about three weeks, Bush said. The turning lanes and other road improvements will add another $10,000 to the cost of the project, he said.

"That intersection has been a problem almost since the day it was built seven or eight years ago," said Bush, referring to Thursday's accident. "We had to go out almost the first day the intersection was completed and add blinkers on the stop signs."

Two stop signs with flashing lights now are posted at the intersection for motorists traveling north and south on Airport Boulevard, Bush said. But accidents like Thursday's still occur.

According to the Florida Highway Patrol, a 17-year-old Orlando woman failed to stop at the intersection Thursday going south on Airport Boulevard. Her car was struck in the right side by another motorist's car, sending it careening into another car waiting at the other stop sign. None of the seven persons involved was seriously injured.

"Most of the wrecks stem from impatience," Bush said. "The people coming from the north and south try to take chances and get through the gaps. Then the people on the east and west try to put on their brakes, they slide."

"For some reason, Airport Boulevard has an oily surface that makes it hard for cars to stop," Bush said.

When the turning lanes have been installed, the work crew will overlay the entire intersection with a new surface, Bush said.

The intersection of State Road 46A and Airport Boulevard is among the 25 "critical" intersections identified two years ago in a study by the consulting engineering firm of Tipton and Associates, Bush said.

"The first year after the study came out, we had a list of 10 highly priority intersections for approval," Bush said. "Due to restrictions and funds available in the county budget, we were only able to take care of the top three."

This year, the intersections of Airport Boulevard and State Road 46A and Bear Lake Road and State Road 436 were placed on the priority list, Bush said.

Bill McKelvey, deputy district engineer for the state Department of Transportation, (DOT), blamed the high volume of traffic at the intersection for the excessive number of accidents.

"Where State Road 46A intersects with State Road 46, there are about 700 cars traveling daily just at that point," McKelvey said. "There's an estimated 4,000 cars daily traveling on State Road 46A, east of Interstate-4."

State Road 46A in that particular area is a "collector-type" road, McKelvey said. It receives traffic from all the residential, agricultural and other developments that surround it.

The Fallout

From Vietnam

From 1962 until 1970, the U.S. Air Force sprayed 10.6 million gallons of toxic defoliants on jungle areas of South Vietnam. The defoliation program denied cover and food to the enemy. It also exposed many thousands of American soldiers to a suspected cancer-causing substance called dioxin.

Dioxin is a byproduct of the herbicide 2-4-5-T, one of two herbicides combined to form Agent Orange, the standard defoliant used in Vietnam.

The acknowledged exposure of American troops to Agent Orange, and to the agent's minute amounts of dioxin, may pose only an insignificant threat to the health of Vietnam veterans. Conversely, the traces of dioxin and other elements of Agent Orange that may linger in human tissue could prove to be chemical time bombs.

The trouble is no one — not the Defense Department, the Veterans Administration, the National Cancer Institute, the Environmental Protection Agency, the Center for Disease Control, or the Department of Health, Education and Welfare — knows for sure. And until recently, no one seemed very interested in examining the health implications of exposure to dioxin and to Agent Orange.

The VA is belatedly studying tissue samples from 10 Vietnam veterans exposed to Agent Orange. The EPA recently imposed a partial ban on the herbicide 2-4-5-T because of a suspected link with stillbirths in Oregon. The Defense Department, prodded by Vietnam veterans, plans to begin monitoring the health of the 1,200 pilots and air crew members involved in the Vietnam defoliation program. Air Force spokesmen say initial data will not be available before mid-1980 and no results will be published until 1981.

Meanwhile, Vietnam veterans suffering a variety of symptoms including numbness of the extremities, psychological and sexual disorders, and skin rashes — all suspected signs of dioxin poisoning — must wait and wonder. Among other things, they will wonder whether these symptoms are harbingers of dioxin's more serious suspected effects, which include liver cancer and birth defects in the children of those exposed.

The government these men served should see to it that they don't have to wait one day longer than necessary for answers to these questions. To date, the response has been lamentably slow.

It's going to take some topdrawer diplomacy on the part of the United States in shaping its future with Nicaragua.

President Anastasio Somoza is out, ending a reign by his family of 42 years. Much of their power was derived from support of the U.S. And when Somoza took advantage of his position to gain untold wealth and to subjugate the people of Nicaragua, their rising hatred overwhelmed him and spread to this country.

Now it is just a matter of time before the Sandinistas, who have seized most of the Central American area, are in charge.

One would hope that our diplomats would work through the good graces of the Organization of American States to support the Sandinista moderates and prevent the Communist and Castro-supported elements from taking charge in the strife-torn country.

ANGLE-WALTERS

The Sin Of Going It Alone

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In a desperate effort to escape from the hole he dug himself into during the past 2 1/2 years, President Carter now has created a massive cave-in from which he probably cannot be extricated.

Carter's reorganization of the highest levels of government was supposed to signal his belated emergence as a tough "take-charge" leader. Instead, it has revealed the president to be an insecure man anxious to surround himself with underlings of unquestioned devotion.

Carter's drastic overhaul of his Cabinet has produced the dismissal of three of the few department heads who have consistently displayed intelligence, character and the courage of their convictions.

Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph A. Califano Jr. could be personally abusive on occasion, but he exerted better control over the biggest, most unmanageable bureaucracy in the federal government than any of his predecessors in recent decades.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal too often showed a streak of arrogance but was a highly capable and respected authority on monetary and fiscal affairs who enjoyed the confidence of both Congress and the business community.

Transportation Secretary Brock Adams wouldn't win any charm contests, but he consistently stood up for mass transit, more efficient passenger cars and other goals in which he strongly believed.

None of those men was fired for incompetence. In all three cases, the cardinal sins were sporadic displays of independence — not disloyalty — and failure to pay homage to a group of young men known collectively as "the White House senior staff."

Those members of the "Georgia Mafia" have disturbingly similar backgrounds: Their prior work experience, in and out of government, consists principally of working for Jimmy Carter, either in campaigns or during his single term as Georgia's governor.

The president's personal aides remain secure in their jobs not because of any particular talents they possess but rather because they are totally loyal to Carter.

One example: Frank B. Moore, in charge of congressional relations for the White House, has been a dismal failure in gaining the confidence of the legislators whose cooperation he needs to perform his job successfully. But his continued tenure is assured because he is a member of the inner circle.

It is a measure of Carter's insecurity that he not only continues to surround himself with sycophants but also that virtually all of the advisers he has chosen are at least 20 years younger than he.

It is unfair to suggest that there are so few men or women of Carter's age serving on his senior staff because he fears his judgment or authority might be successfully challenged by his peers?

There is one now-dismissed member of the Cabinet whose record of mismanagement long ago made him the prime candidate for replacement — Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger.

VIEWPOINT

Call Her Madam President

By DON GRAFF

If there was any question as to what might be a suitable encore to the historic change of government in London that has made Margaret Thatcher prime minister, it may have been answered in Paris.

There, the first popularly elected European parliament has selected its president. She is Simone Veil, former French minister of health.

The parliament actually represents only nine West European member nations of the European Community — the one-time Common Market. And its powers are so limited that, should it let itself, it could be little more than a debating society.

Yet its convening is one of the more interesting and promising political developments of recent years, a possible watershed in not only European but world history.

Although the attitude of the electorate in most countries during the balloting for members ranged from tepid interest to boredom, the outcome is a fair approximation of the current European political spectrum. Socialists are the largest single party, but the majority consists of a center-right coalition of Christian Democrats, Liberals, Conservatives and Gaullists.

The debates are thus likely to have somewhat more force and attract more attention than was the case with the old assembly. And while limited, the parliament's effective powers are not insignificant. It can alter the community's budget — a $19 billion joint European community for the current year. And it can also turn out of office the 15-member EC executive committee, which is greater clout than Congress has with the U.S. cabinet.

The new parliament is, however, expected to move gradually in asserting itself, a course which is the 20-year history of the community's date of its inception and its working with still easily aroused national sensitivities.

An astute politician with a special concern for social justice, she has been considered a contender in French politics, very likely to make history as the country's first woman prime minister. She is already making it, however, in her present and potentially much more significant post.

BUSINESS WORLD

Inflation-Proof Vacation

By DIANE H. MULL

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Small businessman Ray Yelley of Oakmont, Pa., just bought two weeks at a resort condominium in Hilton Head, S.C., to enjoy with his family and use as a bonus for his company's sales personnel and executives.

Yelley, Farnsworth, an auto dealer in Plainfield, Mich., owns eight weeks at Island Club, Hilton Head. He too bought it for personal use and as an incentive for his sales people and executives.

Under a plan known as real estate time-sharing, Yelley purchased a specific two weeks each year at a specific resort condominium. Because he actually has a deed and title to the property, those two weeks are his to keep, or rent, or sell, or hand down to his heirs.

A variation, known as "right-to-use," provides a long-term lease instead of a deed and title.

"You are buying a vacation for the rest of your life at today's prices," said a spokesman for Resort-Investment, Ltd., of Pittsburgh, a company that markets time-share properties.

As in a conventional condominium situation, however, the owner pays a proportionate share of repairs, taxes, insurance and maintenance, which are not inflation proof.

The apartment or townhouse is purchased already furnished for anywhere from $1,100 to $15,500 per lifetime week depending on size, location and season. For example, Christmas week in the West Indies would be more expensive than a week in summer at the same resort.

To forestall the boredom of spending the same week at the same place year after year, or if employment doesn't permit a vacation at the same time each year, a swap service enables an owner to tie in with other time-sharing condominium owners throughout the western world.

Most swappers apparently are happy with the exchange. The Indianapolis office of Arthur Andersen Certified Public Accountants audited RCI's books for 1978 and said 80 percent got their first choice.

Yelley, president of CEM Industries Inc., Pittsburgh, said he intends to use his apartment "personally sometimes and other times as a bonus for people who have done extraordinarily good jobs for me and executives."

One of time-sharing's most ardent fans is Larry Tracy, a member of the advisory board of the Resort Time Sharing Council of the American Land Development Association, a non-profit organization.

Tracy of Sarasota, Fla., suggested companies reward employees with a time-sharing week. "Instead of giving a gold watch when somebody retires they can give him a vacation for the rest of his life... anywhere in the world."

BERRY'S WORLD

Agents Hounds Yanks — U.S. Winks

WASHINGTON — A startling, top-secret Senate report charges that foreign intelligence agents have been badgering, threatening and spying on U.S. residents with virtual impunity, their criminal activities deliberately winked at by the federal government.

The report is a preliminary study of "the operations conducted in the United States by six foreign countries' intelligence services directed at the harassment, intimidation and monitoring of United States residents."

Countries involved were Chile, the Philippines, the Republic of China (Taiwan), Yugoslavia, the Soviet Union and pre-revolutionary Iran. The activities of their agents included a wide range of covert crimes, from simple spying to assassination.

At least three federal statutes were violated, constitutional rights were trampled on and treaties and "customary international law" were blatantly ignored by the foreign agents and their hirings, the report concluded.

The explosive, 16-page report was compiled last January for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by its local counsel, Michael Glennon. Despite elaborate security measures, our associate Dale Van Atta was able to obtain an unauthorized copy from a State Department source.

Four federal agencies should have been cracking down on this wholesale flouting of our laws but did little to stop it. The reasons ranged from self-protection to bureaucratic laziness and jurisdictional petting, the report concludes.

The Central Intelligence Agency was reluctant to take any action for fear of retaliation against its own agents overseas. The Glennon Report notes, for example, that "the government of Iran has, several times, threatened to sue the United States if actions were taken against its intelligence operatives in the United States."

The FBI has gathered very little information on the foreign agents' criminal activities and "makes no affirmative effort to do so, the report states.

The National Security Council simply "does not collect significant amounts of intelligence" on the subject, the report says.

The State Department has adopted a "let-George-do-it" attitude, relying on the CIA, the FBI and the NSC to give it what little information is obtained.

"Because the pieces are not put together," the report concludes, "assessment of the problem and the development of a solution have fallen through the cracks."

Noting that "available evidence indicates that certain residents of the United States have valid reasons to fear abridgment of their rights and protections by members of foreign intelligence services," the report questions the wisdom of maintaining friendly relations with countries which ignore those rights.

Footnote: Sources told us that because the contents of the report are highly classified, any version eventually made public probably will be "heavily sanitized."

TESTY TESTERS: Educational Testing Service, (ETS) the private non-profit institution which administers the enormously influential entrance examinations for colleges and graduate schools, has mounted an expensive and questionable lobbying campaign on Capitol Hill to protect the secrecy of its operations.

Hearings are scheduled tomorrow by the House Education Committee on a bill that would force ETS to make public the questions and answers in past exams, as well as internal studies assessing the validity of the tests. New York State just enacted a similar "truth-testing" law despite an intense, well-financed lobbying campaign against it by ETS and its sister organization, the College Board.

Our investigation of that lobbying effort showed that ETS was not above misleading the educators and state legislators who were the targets of its propaganda. One "memo" circulated to state legislators, for example, indicated that the New York disclosure bill would make confidential information about students available to public scrutiny. This is simply not true.

Another lobbying memo claimed that many respected colleges and law schools opposed the disclosure bill. But in at least some cases this institutional support for ETS' position was more than a letter from a friendly faculty member. ETS has also argued that the law would increase their expenses; a Ralph Nader study showed that the extra costs would be minimal.

At one point, ETS made a special pitch for support from black legislators — a nifty attempt, considering the longstanding charge by critics that the standardized ETS exams discriminate against blacks, other minorities and working-class students. Moreover, we have obtained a confidential memo signed by 112 black employees and sent to ETS President William Turnbull, complaining that blacks on the 400-acre ETS "campus" are discriminated against in company hiring and promotion policies.

An ETS spokesman denied that its lobbying effort had been improper and said its cost had been greatly exaggerated by opponents. "Everything we did was very professional," he said.

Hall Of Fame Emotion Chokes Maestro Of Mayhem

CANTON, Ohio (UPI) — Johnny Unitas and Dick Butkus, "Mr. Cool" and "The Maestro of Mayhem" respectively, who stood opposed on many a gridiron in former times, stood together Saturday as they and two other football greats were enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Unitas, the Baltimore passer said to have stood in the pocket and eaten his lunch before to throw the ball, accepted the honor with all the poise he exhibited even under the fierce rush of Butkus, Chicago's premier middle linebacker.

But the emotion of the event triumphed over Butkus. Pausing several times during his acceptance speech to gather his composure, he fought hard to hold back the tears, but failed.

In addition to Unitas and Butkus, also enshrined were San Diego Chargers' offensive tackle Ron Mix and Detroit Lions' punter-safety Yale Lary.

The induction ceremonies immediately preceded the ninth annual Hall of Fame game, the season's first exhibition game. The Oakland Raiders beat the Dallas Cowboys, 20-13.

More than 10,000 people, a record for the ceremony, listened as the emcee described the role football played in their lives.

Unitas thanked his mother, his wife, his coaches and his teammates. "A man never gets to this station in life without being helped, aided, shoved and pushed into doing something the right way," he declared.

"Football has been such a major part of my life," Lary said. "This is a dream come true. He was called one of the most versatile football players. He was all-NFL four times and played in nine Pro Bowls.

Martin: Don't Count Yankees Out Of Picture

By United Press International "I wouldn't count us out yet... This team doesn't die so easily."

Maybe not, but the Yankees' 53 loss Sunday to the Milwaukee Brewers dropped New York 14 games behind first-place Baltimore, which kept rolling right along with a 6-4 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Graham Triumphs At Philly

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Lou Graham was finished among the top 50 PGA money winners the last nine years, had won just $2,252 in 23 events this year to rank an uncharacteristic 96th on the list, leading some to believe he didn't have the touch any more.

DeLuxe's Levi Raines eyes pitch from Stromberg's Larry Pressley

But the Nashville, Tenn., native proved them all wrong Sunday, shooting a course record-tying 64 to tie Bobby Wadkins after 72 holes, then sinking a 3-foot birdie putt to end the first extra hole.

Raiders Draw First Blood Of NFL Season

By United Press International Oakland Raiders' rookie Coach Tom Flores knew Saturday's ninth annual Hall of Fame game was just an exhibition.

But he was not. The Raiders drew their first blood of the NFL season Saturday at Cleveland, 20-13, at Fawcett Stadium in Canton, Ohio.

The Raiders, playing without quarterback Ken Stabler, were helped by two interceptions and cornerback Henry Williams' 63-yard touchdown run after a blocked field-goal attempt.

Strong safety Charles Phillips intercepted Roger Staubach's second pass of the game and free safety Clarence Durney picked off a Danny White pass in the second quarter to set up Oakland field goals.

There were a lot of bright spots, said Flores. "The quarterbacks (David Humm and Jim Plunkett) did a good job in play selection, and the receivers played the play of the special teams. He singled out three rookies — cornerback Rufus Bess and Williams and Stabler, who reported a week late to training camp, did not play."

Stabler still has a lot to play for, said Flores, "but until someone beats him out he's No. 1."

Prior to the game, quarterback Johnny Unitas, middle linebacker Dick Butkus, safety-punter Yale Lary and offensive tackle Ron Mix were inducted into the Hall of Fame.

Elsewhere in the NFL, a crowd of 21,000 fans saw the Cleveland Browns scrimmage the Buffalo Bills to a scoreless tie Sunday in Kent Stadium. The Bills, evenly matched with Cleveland, gained 225 yards to the Browns' 200. Cleveland passing completed seven passes out of 21 attempts for 152 yards. The team gained 57 yards rushing.

They did their homework on us. They watched us play three games, so they had a slight edge in that department."

Robinson also pointed to a series of mishaps in which the ball did not take an Allamonte bounce. In the fourth inning Allamonte loaded the bases and Troy Quisenberry hit a wicked line drive which was speared by the Yulee first baseman.

"We were beaten by a fine team," said Robinson. "They dominated the cheating and came alive whenever Unitas or Baltimore were mentioned."

Pocono U.S. Loses Fear To Gant Of Russian Soil

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (UPI) — Harry Gant isn't accustomed to sitting on the pole in a NASCAR Grand National race.

But the alien atmosphere of Moscow still affected the U.S. team and track coach Stan Huntman headed to Helsinki to look at possible sites in Finland for a U.S. training camp for all American athletes.

Carnes said the athletes will probably be flown in to Moscow just a few days before their events next year.

Although the U.S. was the leading non-Soviet contingent with seven gold medals overall, the Spartacade in the Soviet Union's National Summer Games, and the hosts naturally took the lion's share of the medals. Many events had only Soviet competitors.

The Ukrainian women's 4x200-meter relay team underlined that point and highlighted the final day of track and field competition by setting a world record of 1:30.8. The former mark belonged to Gertar Marita at 1:31.8.

He was tired, but ready for the race. It began falling about 10 a.m. and he knew there would be a delay. So he dozed a bit in the car. He received an extended reprieve when the all-day shower forced a postponement of the race until 11 a.m. today. It's the first time a Grand National race has been washed out since a Michigan event two years ago.

"Another driver grateful for the postponement is Darrell Waltrip, who wrecked the front end of his car when it rammed into the wall coming out of Turn 2 in a practice session after it qualified third for the race earlier in the day.

Waltrip has arranged to drive his here and thrilled they had let us use it. You've got to credit them with good sportsmanship. This car is built by Hanjoo Matthews, like our original Chevrolet, and we know it's got to be good. We're optimistic about our chances Monday but we hope for an early caution flag so we can get the feel of the car and make necessary adjustments on pit row."

Waltrip, who leads Grand National drivers with five victories this year, said he wasn't concerned about starting midway in the field.

"I started 17th in the World 600 at Charlotte (N.C.) last year and I wrecked in practice and had to qualify on the second day, I won the race."

At Age 81 In Germany Philosopher Herbert Marcuse Dies

STARNBERG, West Germany (UPI) — Herbert Marcuse, the German-born philosopher whose radical thinking helped to inspire the student rebellion of the 1960s, died Sunday, his publishing house said today. He was 81. Marcuse, perhaps best known for his 1954 work "One-Dimensional Man," died in a Starnberg hospital where he was being treated for heart disease. His death came 10 days after his 81st birthday. Characterizing American society as a "repressive monolith" that stifled freedom and fostered alienation, Marcuse's "One-Dimensional Man" became compulsory reading among radical students on campuses throughout the United States and western Europe in the 1960s. His support for the student revolution and the efforts of young people to seek out a new identity earned him a title that he himself said he abhorred — "Father of the New Left."

Depression Lifts, Says Minister

Aged Shoplifter Feeling Better

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — Mattie Schultz has never been one to take charity from anyone in her 91 years. But a minister says a nationwide outpouring of sympathy has helped lift the depression the lady suffered after being forced to steal food to stay alive. The Rev. Stan Ferrar, pastor of the First Church of God, said Sunday he spoke with Mrs. Schultz and she appeared to be in a better frame of mind. "She's beginning to get over being so depressed," Ferrar said. "I think it is because of all the help."

Winner John McNulty, 22, a student at Colorado State University, attributed his victory to the number of beers he drank before the race.

Fragrances Can Be Health Hazards Same As Tobacco

DEAR ABBY: A bride asked if it would be permissible to write on her wedding invitations, "No perfumes or colognes, please, as the mother of the groom is asthmatic and highly allergic." You replied with a curt "No." I disagree. Highly scented products (perfumes, colognes, hair sprays, etc.) can be just as hazardous to the health of some as cigarettes, cigars and pipes are to others. If a person's health is affected, he has the right to ask for consideration from others.

DEAR DR. LAMB— I wish you would discuss blood transfusions—the effects and how soon one recovers completely. How long does it take for the blood to get to the outer surfaces of the body? I had a hysterectomy and underwent three more operations for repair. I was in the hospital 23 days and had 10 blood transfusions. I am 58 years old and have always had a good health record.

I'm wondering how much of the recovery time was related to getting the circulation back to my muscle tone. A relative said the blood recirculates every 24 hours, but what about to the outer areas of the body? My gynecologist did notice how my coloring was coming back. It took quite a while for the pink to come back into my cheeks. I've always had a ruddy complexion.

DEAR READER— An average adult has around seven quarts of blood in the body. The heart at rest will pump about five quarts a minute so your blood is constantly on the move. A vigorous athlete may pump over 30 quarts a minute even though all the blood in his body may only be about seven quarts.

When you have a transfusion, the blood immediately enters into your circulating bloodstream. If you require a transfusion, you usually have a lot of other things going on with you. I'm sure that was true in your case.

Whenever you lose blood, all the little vessels in the body undergo changes. The tiny capillaries in the skin may contract. This causes the skin to appear white.

Although you probably had perfectly normal circulation, you may have been low on the total number of red blood cells for a while after the surgery. It's common not to replace all the blood that's been lost and sometimes it would be difficult to do so anyway. As a result it may take several weeks for the bone marrow to regenerate enough new red blood cells for the recovery to take place. Whenever you have a normal amount of blood in your body again and everything is working perfectly, your small capillaries in the skin will open up and you'll look perfectly normal.

Skin Is Deceiver About Circulation

The skin is somewhat of a deceiver about circulation. A person may feel because the arteries in his leg muscles all open up and there's an increase in blood flow to his muscles. As a result there isn't enough blood flow to the brain. In a deep sleep the small vessels in the skin may contract at the same time so even though there may be more blood in the leg vein than usual, the skin over the legs may be chalky white.

Sanford Commission Finds Money For Image-Building

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer
 The city of Sanford will have money available in the new fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 to do its share of downtown renovations and street improvements. The city commission workshop to discuss the project.

The actions taken by the commission to balance the budget for fiscal 1979-80 and come up with the $77,000 as follows:
 — Call a slow down and freeze on purchases by departments while reworking the department accounts to get the city surplus money of $59,889 over previous estimates.
 — Levy a property tax of 6.88 mills, the certified tax rate, which will give the city $49,627.14 more than expected, according to the county property appraiser's office.
 — The city will be receiving $35,000 from state revenue sharing-federal revenue sharing funds that had not been expected, Knowles told commissioners.
 — Mayor Moore announced as well that $14,000 of the $26,000 earmarked for recreational use may be released for the Sanford image-building project. Moore said the $14,000 was received by the city from the sale of lands donated by Chase and Co. a number of years ago. The proceeds from the sales, however, were restricted by Chase for recreational use. Commissioners voted unanimously to authorize Knowles and Henry Tamm, the city's finance director and city clerk to watchdog spending to keep in effect the slow-down-freeze.

 The slow-down-freeze "would not be denying any services other than those we are already doing without," Knowles said. After going over various department budgets, Moore said the city will still have about $10,000 left for a contingency fund, while Knowles estimated the amount at $20,000.

Boy Not Guilty Of Manslaughter

By SHARON CARRASCO
Herald Staff Writer
 Calling it a "tragedy that has resulted from his youth," a circuit judge found a 12-year-old Sanford boy not guilty of manslaughter Monday in the Feb. 10 shooting death of an infant.
 Circuit Judge Kenneth Lettler did find the boy guilty of the improper use of a firearm. The judge ordered a presentence investigation of the boy's background before he hands down a sentence on Sept. 4.

The maximum penalty the boy faces is being placed in the residential treatment program under the Rehabilitative Health Services (RHS) until he is 19. The Seminole County state attorney's office charged the youth last May with manslaughter for the shooting death of a 3-year-old Lake Mary boy in a rural Sanford trailer.
 The infant was being cared for by the juvenile's parents on the day of the shooting. Shortly after noon on Feb. 15, the youth's mother asked her son to take the child to the bathroom. A few minutes later, she and her husband heard a sound comparable to a "beachball breaking" coming from that area of the trailer.

 Michael Erick Smith, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Boulder, 457 Central Lake Drive in Lake Mary, was killed by a single shot in the neck from a .30 caliber rifle.

In his ruling, the judge said the state's evidence wasn't sufficient to prove "gross negligence or a willful disregard of the lives of others" on the part of the 12-year-old and his operation of the weapon at the time of the shooting.
 During the course of the one-day trial, Lettler heard testimony from the youth's parents and a tape conversation with the 12-year-old about four hours after the shooting.
 "I forgot to look to see if there was any shells or not. I just cocked it and didn't point it at him. I pointed it near him and I wasn't gonna pull the trigger."
 "My hand slipped and I accidentally pulled the trigger."

Longwood Landmark Fire

Fire broke out shortly before noon today in one of the Longwood Historical District, the school house built in 1880. Fire units responding from the city and county had the fire under control by 12:30 p.m.
 The building located at 390 Wilma St. belongs to Tom Pratt. It served as a school until 1924 and as the town hall and fire station from then until the mid-50s. A permanent school room display had been set up there as well as Pratt's office. Sketchy reports from the fire crews indicate at least one firefighter was overcome by smoke and heat and had to be taken to the hospital.

Motel Blaze Kills 9, Injures Scores In Ohio Town

CAMBRIDGE, Ohio (UPI)—A fire in one wing of a two-story motel early this morning killed nine people and injured scores of others, some of whom hurt jumping from second floor rooms.
 Officials at a temporary morgue said nine people are dead from the fire in the eastern Ohio community, a figure confirmed by hospital officials.
 Most of the dead were found in the hallways, which were filled with smoke, authorities said.
 About 60 people were injured, including seven admitted to Guernsey Memorial Hospital.

Council May Set Referendum Thursday

By HUGH THOMPSON
Herald Staff Writer
 Faced with a dilemma of keeping Lake Mary's property tax rate at the current level by giving up some city services or increasing the tax rate to avoid those service cuts, city council may bring the issue to the voters.

City Council came up with two proposed budgets, one calling for holding the property tax at $3 per $1,000 assessed valuation, by cutting some services, the other increasing the tax rate by $1.25 through a referendum.
 City Manager Phil Kulbes, who said he will have both budgets ready for Thursday's regular council meeting, added the council also will officially vote then on whether to call a Sept. 11 referendum to increase the tax rate.

Voters In Lake Mary May Get Tax Rate Question

City Manager Phil Kulbes, who said he will have both budgets ready for Thursday's regular council meeting, added the council also will officially vote then on whether to call a Sept. 11 referendum to increase the tax rate.
 Kulbes, who described the budget he has projected thus far as a "bare bones" budget, said it did not "include any possibilities of a possible increase in insurance rates, did not include materials for road repairs, or repairs for the fire truck, or for new brakes or tires for the fire truck." The budget, at present, is about $70,000 from being in balance.
 The two budgets will be presented to show what the public will lose should they reject a tax increase.
 The loss to the public will include the services of two police officers (salaries totaling approximately $19,744), a fire truck ($11,500), and personnel now working in the police-fire department.
 This latter item amounts to $36,714.
 In other action, S. R. Lankford of Landford Consultants, spoke briefly on Community Development Programs Grants and of the benefits Lake Mary could derive should the city get one of the grants on a cooperative application with either Sanford, Seminole County or both.

Public Pressure Brought To Bear In Longwood Stand On Cemetery Soccer Is Reversed

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer
 A portion of the Longwood Cemetery will not be converted into a soccer field after all. So 700 to 800 youngsters still need a place to play, the coach says.
 Deluged with complaints from Longwood residents, the city commission Monday night changed its decision on allowing soccer games to be played in the unoccupied portion of the city cemetery.

The commission had agreed last week on the request of Seminole Soccer Coach Ron Korb, since it did not appear the new soccer field at Candlerland Park will be completed in time for the season's opening. To allow the youngsters to play in a portion of the cemetery, the idea was to put up a fence between the graves and the field, but unoccupied, portion.
 "I agree, we should back up," said Mrs. Lermann. "It didn't look so bad until I read it in the newspaper headlines and everyone I saw got worse."
 Commissioner Ray Leitenberger and Larry Goldberg also admitted that they had made a mistake.
 "I'm sure Ron Korb had no intention of desecrating any graves," Goldberg added.
 When informed today of the commission's decision, Korb said, "I can understand maybe people would feel that way, but we certainly appreciate the city trying to help and promote youth sports."
 Past president of the Seminole Youth Soccer Club, Korb said there are 700 to 800 children aged 5-16 wanting to play soccer, but there is a shortage of playing areas.
 The soccer season starts Sept. 15, but Korb said the playing field in Candlerland Park will be ready. "There's not a blade of grass there now and we are hoping it will be ready by January for our spring season," Korb explained.
 The field on State Road 434 belonging to Georges St. Laurent that the Soccer teams have been using will not be available this fall, Korb said. "We would certainly appreciate anyone with property not being used allowing us to use it as a soccer field," he added. "We are trying to involve youngsters in after school activity as many of them get out of school at 2:30 p.m. and do not have inter-terrestrial sports."
