France Would Stop Supplies To Loyalists

End Of Civil Strife, And Removal Of Il Duce's Troops Are Sought In Paris

French War Hero Envoy To Franco

Britain Continues Drive To Build Up National Defense

France undertook today to halt the shipment of supplies to the republican regime in Spain and called her World War hero, Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, back to service as her first ambassador to national Spain. The French admittedly were seeking early a republican surrender, arguing that the end of war would give no further excuse to Italy to keep troops in Spain. But in republican Spain it appeared that Premier Juan Negrin was determined to continue resistance to Generalissimo Franco.

Russian Imperial Singers Receive Sanford Ovation

The Russian Imperial Singers sang a warm place in the hearts of Sanford music lovers, who embraced some of the most beautiful church songs ever composed. "Christmas Eve," "O Holy Mystical Supper," "O Holy God," and "God Bless Mary," were the favorites. The latter song, which consisted of only two words, "Hosanna," repeated 75 times, is an original and beautiful that it has won favor in almost all the Christian countries of the world.

The First Duty Of A Newspaper

We wish we could have heard Karl Lehmann's talk at the Kiwanis Club luncheon yesterday...

The little simple fact sometimes seems to be overlooked by the public that the very first duty of any newspaper is to pay its bills...

And yet, while the public is apt to forget that the newspaper is a business, just like any other organization...

The only way a newspaper can pay its bills is to maintain a balanced budget. If its receipts fall off, it must cut its expenses...

And so the advertisers, and public generally from whom subscriptions are received, have a direct relationship to the size and quality of the newspaper published...

But as an editor, let us agree with Mr. Lehmann that every newspaper does all within its power to further the growth and development of its community...

Advocates Of Pension Plans Seen As Busiest People In Washington

WASHINGTON, Mar. 2.—(AP)—It would take high odds to get a bet that any one of the evolutionary pension plans would get through this session but no busier band of operators can be found on Capitol Hill than the pension advocates in Congress.

Take Senator Sheridan Downey of California, as an instance. He was busier than a brush salesman the other day about the floor of the Senate. One minute he was on one side of the chamber talking to Senator Bankhead. Almost any one knows that Bankhead couldn't be sold on Downey's old-age pension scheme, but the Californian never gives up. Bankhead ultimately retired, with a good natured laugh, to the cloak room.

Within five minutes Downey was chatting with youngish Senator Clark of Idaho. Clark survived a Townsend attack in Idaho last year to unseat Senator Pope, a New Dealer, who moved from his $10,000 Senate place to a $12,000 post on the Tennessee Valley authority.

Downey is a "close-up" talker. He edges his chair over and sort of half-whispers, even when there is an special need for it. It isn't that he is a secretive sort. He is just a midshipman in outward conduct, on the order of Senator Sheppard of Texas who fought for 28 years to put across prohibition and has been fighting in his quiet way ever since repeal to have prohibition restored.

Changes Plan A Little. Downey's arguments now are very much the same he used out in California to whip Senator McAdoo. (There's another who lost a $10,000 a year job, only to get something better as head of the reorganized Dollar steamship lines.)

Downey's original theme song was "30 Every Thursday." He has modified it somewhat now to "100 a month for people over 60 years, just half what the Townsends offer. But he has attachments to his plan. He would pay, say, $30 a month to people over 50 years.

His whole idea is to discourage any such saving, which he calls "hoarding of the country." He says the population "saves" something near 15 percent of its earnings year in and year out. Such savings can't be spent for productive enterprises in times of surplus and causes a low demand for goods. His idea is that old people assured of a retirement fund wouldn't save too old age, thus eliminating some saving, anyway.

Further, he says paying $30 to 50-year-olds would encourage them from saving so much for old age, so some more savings would be disposed of.

Knows His Economics. Since coming to Washington, Downey has become filled with more economic lore than you could throw a stick at. He hears them all, at the Brookings Institution, in the Government departments and wherever an economist may be found in Washington that is on almost every street corner.

They are all coming to agree with me," he says, in his confident sort of manner. "at least when I have presented my case they don't have anything more to say."

Bartow Judge Defers Ruling In Citrus Case

(Continued From Page One). He once talked of forming a huge organization of old folks and their relatives who would like to see the old folks get a pension. It would be a formidable political organization. More recently he has been sort of passing over that part of it. Calling for support is part of his strategy and that he doesn't want to get his neck out too far this early. They think no Bartow presidential ambitions.

Representing Mayo's office in the hearing were former Governor Doyle Carlton and William Pierce, Tampa; H. E. Carter, Tallahassee, assistant attorney general; and Glen Griffin, Bradenton, attorney for the Florida Citrus Commission. Trueman is represented by E. C. Wimberly, Winter Haven, and E. A. Bosarge, Bartow.

State Chemist J. J. Taylor will start an investigation today into the operations of two Winter Haven grapefruit canning plants which are operating under so-called "operating" contracts, he said last night.

"We don't know just how far these contracts go in complying with the growers' cost guarantee law but we will call for copies of all agreements in existence now, make a study of them and then issue a ruling as to their compliance with the law," Taylor chief of citrus inspection bureau said.

In the meantime the two plants, operated by Bordo Products Company and Roberts Brothers, continued their processing of sections and hearts. Bordo officials said they were working for the grower, putting up the fruit of the producer on a cost basis.

State's Right To Tax Vanderbilt Trust Questioned

ALBANY, Mar. 2.—(AP)—Whether the state can tax a $5,285,572 portion of a trust estate left by the late Cornelius J. Vanderbilt was argued today before the Court of Appeals.

The estate was created to give Mrs. Vanderbilt a yearly income of $250,000 and upon her death was to go to their children in specified shares unless she directed otherwise. At her death on April 22, 1934, the trust contained $5,285,572. Mr. Vanderbilt died in 1920.

Mrs. Vanderbilt willed $150,000 to her daughter, Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, and $500,000 to "the trust" of her son Reginald, whose daughter is Gloria Vanderbilt. Of the remainder a third was willed to Reginald's "issue" and two-thirds to her daughter, Countess Gladys Sachse.

A New York County Surrogate's Court held the $150,000 and $500,000 were not subject to an estate tax, but the Federal estate tax collector claimed the 1 percent tax paid upon the death of Cornelius Vanderbilt was in strict legal theory a tax on the transfer of the entire trust fund, both the life interest and the remainder.

Dr. William E. Dodd, former ambassador to Germany, was fined $250,000 and costs today on a plea of guilty to hit-and-run driving involving the injury of a negro child near here last Dec. 5.

John Everington will illustrate his lecture, "Florida the Beautiful," with "delightful hand-painted camera studies" tomorrow evening when he speaks at the Woman's Club at 8:00 o'clock. It has been announced by Mrs. Harry M. Papworth, chairman of arrangements. Winter visitors are especially urged to attend the lecture on the famous gardens of Florida, and see the repertoire of slides which includes "lovely Florida homes, gardens, and sanctuaries."

Studies of "wild life and beauty in natural retreats, unusually beautiful skylines, tropical gardens, and famous ocean shores" will also be shown.

Mr. Everington is an Orlando winter resident. He will be remembered by his lecture of last year, "Old English Gardens."

Mediterranean Is Seen As Possible War Precipitant

British Trade Route Proclaimed "Our Sea" By Mussolini

LONDON—For years the Mediterranean got into the papers chiefly through travel ads. Now it is front page news. "Me Nostrum" (Our Sea), as Mussolini refers to it, has become vitally important as the possible precipitant of war. Here it is that "lifeline", radio waves, national pride, and diplomatic influence become entangled in the rivalry between the empire-hungry "Have-Nots"—Germany and Italy—and the "Haves"—England and France. The chief rivals are England and Italy—because England is still the dominant power and Italy wants at least to share control of the sea. No so-called friendship agreement can disguise this rivalry, though these days you hear considerably more about the rivalry between France and Italy. The English don't dispute Mussolini when he says the Mediterranean is just a road to them which is their life and death. They recognize the fact that Italy is the only major power whose whole existence centers in the Mediterranean yet who has no say about either of its exits.

But they can also see the question: Can Italy's ambition be reconciled with British security? Most of them think not. Italy's ambitions did not become apparent until 1935, when Il Duce successfully flouted the mighty British navy and began the conquest of Ethiopia. After that he intervened in Spain and courted the Arabs. Each move, the experts say, is merely a logical consequence of the drive into an Italian lake. Italy's trouble, of course, is that she got started too late in an era when virtually every thing had been taken and empire-snatching had become a sin. She has not done so badly, however, for by helping France to victory in Spain, she may be able to overthrow Britain's up-to-now dominant position at GIbraltar—through bases in Spanish territory. Franco has Ceuta, the African tip opposite Gibraltar—the fortified rock from which Britain has dominated the Mediterranean's Atlantic gate for two centuries. Il Duce has heard charges that Ceuta is now heavily fortified. Gibraltar's tank door is nationalized in Spain. Many Englishmen, including Prime Minister Chamberlain, count on Mussolini to keep his promise not to take territorial advantage of a Franco victory. But they can't overlook the strong position Italy already holds at the center of the Mediterranean. With planes and submarines operating from bases on mainland and her islands as well as in Libya and Albania, Italy which she holds a vested interest in she might bottle up the Adriatic and throw a barrier across the sea from Sicily. The English have conjured up several comforting thoughts, however. They say that: Italy probably is not strong enough to withstand a siege. Her more than 5,000-mile coastline is exceedingly vulnerable, and a stretch of sea that could be made very dangerous in wartime separates her from her African empire. Gibraltar may be neutralized or made untenable, but Britain still has bases in Malta and Palestine admittedly of questionable value, Cyprus and Egypt, where she guards the Suez canal. And she could do without the Mediterranean lifeline if she had to—by routing ships to the east around the Cape of Good Hope. But Britain won't give up her domination of the Mediterranean without a struggle. Here are three reasons why: 1. It gives her political influence in Europe and the Near East. 2. The sea is important strategically. 3. The Mediterranean is a commercial asset—an important link to the great oil areas of the Near East and to Egypt, a big customer.

Mussolini has crossed Britain much more than France. But he has not crossed Spain but also by trying to make use of the Arabs. Some say the latter effort may come a little late. The Muslim world from Morocco to Syria is restless, all right, and it was properly impressed when Mussolini took Ethiopia. But if a new order is to be established, the Arabs would like to do it themselves. The same troubles have been a big worry to France. But the French-Italian rivalry makes more headlines because the Italians come right out and talk about taking over French-controlled territory. Such talk is not brand new. As long ago as 1919, before he came into power, Mussolini was proclaiming that "France must lose her Mediterranean empire, beginning with Tunisia which is already Italian by population." (Tunisia now has about 94,000 Italians, 64,000 French.) Tunisia is the African tip nearest Italy; it is just 90 miles from Italy's Sicilian Possession. If it would greatly increase Italy's strength at the middle of the three Mediterranean "gates". Unlike the English, the French don't pretend they could get along pretty well without the lifelines to their African colonies. Algeria, Tunisia and Morocco are France's convenient colonial reservoirs of men and raw materials, and they are her best market—always assuming that the seas lanes stay open. To make sure that they do stay open, France is pouring millions of francs into construction of a naval base at Mers-el-Kebir, Algeria. And she has provided an alternative route by building a costly railway so that troops could be shipped to France by way of the Atlantic. But the railway goes through a bottleneck commanded by the mountains of Spanish Morocco. So the alternative route, too, might not be safe. Further complicating the situation is that France might have to defend three frontiers as compared to only one in the last war. And Britain, who presumably would be fighting on her side, might be stymied at Gibraltar.

Some say France may be able to quiet Il Duce temporarily by making minor concessions. Others fear not. Whether it will come to war may depend among other things, on how far Germany is willing to back Italy. After you have washed small rug, dry them on a flat surface. Then they will lay flat on the floor.

Titusville Vet Recovers Sight After Operation

Transfer Of Cornea Is Performed For James A. Loveland

By BILL DUNLAP
One of the miracles of modern surgery, the transplantation of the cornea of the eye, has been performed in Florida for the first time, at the veterans' hospital at Bay Pines, restoring the sight of day to James A. Loveland of Titusville, a World war veteran.

The delicate operation was called to the attention of The Herald by Mrs. D. H. Walker whose husband underwent an eye operation for cataracts at the hospital on Feb. 7. She stated that Mr. Loveland is now reading Mr. Walker's mail to him. Mr. Walker is the brother of Heyward Walker, of the Seminole Creamery.

The operation was performed by a specialist at the Bay Pines institution, who becomes the third of his profession in the United States to perform the operation successfully. It was only four and a half years ago that the operation was first performed anywhere in the world, Loveland, who first suffered an injury to his left eye in 1917, while working as a machinist's mate, first class, in the navy, at Newport, R. I., will be released from the Bay Pines hospital in about two weeks.

The square piece of cornea that was transplanted into the eye of Loveland was donated by Dr. Herman T. Cox, of Miami, also a World war veteran.

Dr. Cox suffered a serious eye trouble for which there was no remedy, except removal of the entire eyeball. Knowing this, he was willing to donate his useless eye for a worthy cause.

Thus, after his entire eye was removed, it was placed in a saline solution of the proper concentration and sent to Bay Pines, where its cornea was used in the transplantation to Loveland's eye.

The operation was performed Jan. 19. Four days later the bandages were removed. Fourteen days later the stitches that held the transplanted bit of cornea in place were removed. Now only a little more than a month after the delicate operation, Loveland can see light, and define shapes from the affected eye.

If his progress continues as good as indicated, he will before long be able to see out of the affected eye, with the aid of glasses, as good as anyone else. "I give all credit to the doctor who performed the operation," Loveland said.

Loveland really had good reasons for this statement, as only three years ago he had been told by other doctors at a government hospital in North Carolina that he should have the infected eye removed entirely.

"There is something that told me then that I should not have it removed," he said.

Loveland, who entered the Bay Pines hospital July 1, 1938, was engaged as an operator of a jewelry store in Titusville. He became afflicted with typhus fever, a rare disease, that forced him to apply for hospitalization. This disease, infected his good right eye as well as the bad one. He required treatment, after his equipment at Bay Pines, to see at all.

Loveland, a former assistant city engineer at Kalamazoo Mich. and a boiler inspector with the U. S. government out of Detroit and Baltimore, was first afflicted when a bit of steel penetrated his eyeball while he was working in Newport. He was hospitalized, but three months later, while serving in the submarine service, the same eye was injured again when acid from the submarine batteries was splashed in his eyes as the craft dived. This time he was retired on disability.

He had lost the sight of that eye entirely, and later for the next two and a half years previous to his entry in the hospital here, he had been intermittently blind in both eyes due to corneal scars, result of the original injury.

And when he became infected with typhus fever the condition of his eyes became worse, and he entered Bay Pines. The scars of the typhus fever cleared up the clouded condition of both eyes before he opened to correct the harm done by the previous injury to the left eye.

Now, that the operation has proved successful, it seems that Loveland has two "right eyes". The part of cornea that was donated by Dr. Cox was from a dead eye. This was transplanted into Loveland's left eye, thus, so to speak, giving two "right eyes" to Loveland.

Florida Women On Level With Idiots

TALLAHASSEE, Mar. 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Ethel Ernest Murrell, Miami lawyer, told Florida State College for Women students yesterday that Florida laws classify married women along with lunatics, idiots and minors.

"A single woman in Florida can do almost anything legally a man can do—but not the married one; it's the lunatic class for them," she said.

"A married woman may not make a legal binding contract, and this protects no one except the female swindler."

Mrs. Murrell said the woman who could afford attorneys' fees could have herself declared a free dealer, but even this was not all it might be.

"The court will inquire into your competency and, if you are able to remain calm under that insult, he will issue to you the same kind of license to deal freely as he would give to a precocious infant. So then you may go on your way, but if you cannot have the whole stupid business to repeat and to do it

Daytona Cops Quit As Chief Is Ousted

DAYTONA BEACH.—Thirteen members of the Daytona Beach Police Department walked out last night in protest against the firing of Chief John A. David by Mayor Thomas N. Johnson.

The men who quit were immediately replaced by Thomas N. Johnson, protesting acting chief, who said the department's services had not in any way been impaired.

Chief David was discharged for insubordination by Johnson, who said all but two members of the force signed a statement to quit if David himself had been discharged.

Johnson said the force refused to quit when Johnson stepped into the discharged chief's position.

Johnson said the force might quit again some night, in fear of losing their own heat or being cut out of their own trucks, split, but he would not. A relief plan, he said, would go well with the force fixed in any style.

Bill Introduced For Expanding Health Program

WASHINGTON, Mar. 2.—(AP)—Legislation to carry out Administration aims for a greatly expanded public health program has been introduced yesterday by Senator Wagner, Democrat, New York, author of much social legislation.

The "national health bill" called for a federal outlay of $80,000,000 the first year, increasing to more than $250,000,000 annually within three years. Wagner said the federal funds would go to states as grants for expanding general public health work, child and maternity care, construction of hospitals, medical care, and temporary and permanent wage payments for workers disabled by sickness and disease. Immediately, there were some signs of criticism, because of the cost involved.

Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, announced that he was opposed to "any expansion of the government's social services until we begin to pay for those we've got."

"We can't go on spending $10,000 every minute, while taking in only $5,000, and survive," he added.

Another Republican, Senator White of Maine, commented that all members of congress thought it was "time we go pretty slow on additional spending."

In Chicago, Dr. Morris Fishbein, president of the American Medical Association, advocated "careful consideration" of the bill by congress. He said that while the $80,000,000 expenditure was not large compared with an annual outlay of $800,000,000 proposed to be expended ultimately, it nevertheless was a considerable sum.

Jaycees Asked To Advertise Citrus Bread

Widespread Consumption Of New Florida Product Is Sought

LAKELAND, Mar. 2 — The Florida Junior Chamber of Commerce has been officially requested by the citrus commission to lend its aid in popularizing use of grapefruit bread, and to put the strength of its 6,000 members behind a campaign for widespread production and consumption of this new product in Florida.

In a letter sent Merrill P. Barber of Vero Beach, chairman of the state citrus committee of the Jaycees, the commission has asked that the Jaycees cooperate in every way possible.

"In view of the splendid results obtained during the Jaycees Florida citrus drive," the letter states, "I know the Junior Chamber of Commerce can be of much help in popularizing grapefruit bread. The possibilities of this new product as an outlet for citrus are tremendous, when it is realized more than 100,000,000 loaves of bread are eaten in Florida alone each year. Two ounces of grapefruit juice has become the standard for each point loaf of grapefruit bread.

"We cannot expect to have all bread eaten in Florida made with citrus juice, but if even a five per centage is made, it will provide an excellent outlet."

Mr. Barber already has indicated he would be willing for the citrus committee to sponsor grapefruit bread as a project. The citrus commission has been fostering development of this new product in every way it could, and is keeping in close touch with the ten or more bakers in Florida now making the citrus bread. Scientific research will be conducted to determine health and nutritive values, but until this is done the commission has suggested to bakers that no extravagant health claims be made.

"We hope such claims are justified," it was said, "but we have no scientific background as yet. We do know the bread tastes fine, apparently retains freshness longer than ordinary bread and is resistant to mold. These known qualities, coupled with the thought that Florida people are helping the state's biggest business when they eat it, should be sufficient for the present. We are not attempting to have bakers out of Florida manufacture it as yet, preferring to develop a genuinely fine product before submitting it to bakers out of the state. Once we do feel we have the right product, everything possible will be done to get an widespread use as possible."

Birthday Sale Is Planned By Lovett Stores

A six-day sale, beginning Friday and continuing through next Thursday, celebrates the 20th Anniversary of the Winn & Lovett Grocery Co., operators of the local Piggly Wiggly Stores said today.

According to officials, the sale features the greatest number of specials ever advertised by the company. Hundreds of items, reduced for the event, are advertised in the 14-page color price list which has been issued for the sale.

Features include such specialties as sugar, tomatoes, coffee, hard picnic hams, rice, Land O' Sunshine brand foods, a Stokely week sale, Green Giant Brand foods, etc. An extra attraction is thousands of specially baked birthday cakes in four flavors.

W. R. Lovett, a native Floridian, is president of the Winn & Lovett Grocery Co., which operates 70 stores in 46 cities of Florida and South Georgia.

The local Piggly Wiggly Stores have made elaborate preparations for participating in the birthday event. E. B. Pickett and J. D. Cochran, local managers, stated today. Large quantities of additional merchandise has been received for the sale.

150 RESCUED

NEW YORK — (AP) — The Radio Marine Corporation reported today the 58 New Foundland had rescued the 150 men aboard the sinking fishing boat "Ranger" which had run out radio power for help. Radio Marine reported the rescue was effected in a heavy fog on the way to the wreck.

Cardinal Pacelli Chosen Successor To Papal Throne

ern history of the church. Not since 1623, when Benedict XV was chosen, has a concclave acted so promptly.

The new Pontiff has a thorough knowledge of the Church in the United States, where he was a visitor in October and November, 1928. The date of his coronation will be announced later.

Election of Pope Pius XII shattered another tradition in that rarely has a secretary of state to a preceding pope been elevated to the papal seat.

Before the conclave opened Cardinal Pacelli was reported to be the favorite of 27 foreign cardinals because he was believed to be the best qualified to continue the policies of Pius XI, who died Feb. 10.

As to indicate his intentions of following in the footsteps of his predecessor, the new pope selected the same name.

For the first time in many years the entire membership of the college, now numbering 62, was present for the voting on the new spiritual head of the church.

At a morning mass yesterday the cardinal prayed for guidance of the Holy Ghost and heard a sermon exhorting them to choose as a successor to peace-loving Pius XI a man who might lead the world back to "Christian precepts" despite present-day "social disorders and hatred among nations."

In the afternoon the opening ceremonies began. As the cardinals assembled, the sun broke through a sudden shower and a rainbow arched over the Vatican.

At nightfall, Prince Ludovico Chigi-Albani, hereditary marshal of the meeting, turned the keys of the Vatican wing in which the cardinals and their attendants were housed.

Two other locks on the inner door clicked a moment later. Cardinal Pacelli, the camerlengo, completed the sealing of the gathering which remained in its "prison" until a cloud of white smoke from the chimney of the Sistine Chapel announced the selection of a new Pope.

General Miaja Is Spain's Hope In Madrid's Defence

By Associated Press

General Jose Miaja used to be a Boy Scout leader. Now he's the Spanish Loyalists' last hope. The portly fellow who is defense commander and military governor of central Spain has lived in happy obscurity for 30 years. He was just contemplating retirement to a life of rocking chair ease in the midst of his large family when the civil war broke out.

He was made a general in 1932 and became a confidante of the minister of war, Manuel Azana, in the early days of the republic.

The new regime was not having an easy time. There were many groups in Spain who didn't take kindly to the new order; the military branch especially. One night troops in the Alcaia barracks, in Madrid, rebelled. Miaja stepped in and ended that fracas in short order, winning his first public recognition.

Assails The Traitors

The bald soldier doesn't like praise, once, when he was hailed as the "master of Madrid," Miaja said: "I come from the people, among the people put me in this place. I am the people."

Leading armies in the field, on half-frightened, civilians in bomb-racked Madrid, he has pleaded the cause of his people.

"We are fighting to enforce respect for the democratic republic. All our actions are constitutional," he asserted in a plea to world democracy to give Spain more effective help.

And when Catalonia fell, he promised to make central Spain the arena where the Loyalists would "fight for liberty, until the end."

Another Concert Is Given By Boys' Choir

To a capacity audience of school children and adults, the Apollo Boys' Choir of Birmingham, Ala., sang yesterday morning at 10:00 o'clock in the auditorium of the Junior High School.

The choir is directed by Coleman Cooper and Emetich Eber, a former soloist with the Vienna Boys' Choir. They announced that in the past two weeks 12 new boys have been trained so extensively that their unusually thrilling voices blend perfectly with the other famous young singers.

The school authorities have expressed their appreciation to the choir for giving the school children of this county the opportunity to hear their splendid presentation.

Attorneys Plead Their Case Against Eckerson Cannery

Describe Contracts Of Plant With Growers As Subterfuges To Evade Price Law

Carlton Among Defense Group

Decotes To Present Arguments Against Law This Afternoon

Declaring that the contracts of the Eckerson Fruit Cannery with growers for canning of grapefruit are merely "subterfuges to escape or circumvent" the growers' cost guarantee law, attorneys for Nathan Mayo, commissioner of agriculture, concluded arguments in the Court House this morning before Circuit Judge Millard B. Smith for dismissal of the attack on the resolution of the Citrus Commission setting the minimum price of 32 cents on Florida grapefruit.

Judge Smith granted a motion of E. R. Bentley, attorney for a large growers co-operative, to participate in the case as a friend of the defendant and also a motion of Glen Grimes, attorney for the Florida Citrus Commission, to take part in the first court test of the minimum price law.

Representing Commissioner Mayo, were former Governor Loyde E. Carlton, A. G. Carter, assistant attorney general, and Mr. Pierce of Tampa, attorney for the Agriculture Commission. George A. DeCottles, representative of the local canning company and was scheduled to present his arguments against the law as the hearing continued this afternoon.

Declaring that the Eckerson contracts are merely a device in which the company seeks to evade the minimum price regulation, Mr. Carlton asserted that the law was enacted by the Legislature for the protection of the entire industry and applied to the contracts of the individual grower in that he is a part of the industry. "If one grower is allowed to jump the gun on the whole industry," he continued, "it goes without saying that the industry cannot long endure without deriving the cost of production and it was on this theory that the growers' cost guarantee law was passed."

Other attorneys also attempted to show to the court in their oral arguments that the Eckerson contracts precluded the required 32-cent payment to the growers and sought to have the temporary injunction, granted last week, dismissed on the grounds that allegations in the bill of complaint were not sufficient to warrant relief and should be dismissed as improperly granted.

The Eckerson contracts provide for the processing of grapefruit on the growers' accounts and that if the product is not removed by the grower within a period, it is sold by the company and returns, based on the market price, are paid to the producers less production and marketing costs and cash advancements.

Touchton Case Put Off Until Next Session

Postponement Given On Plea Of Defense Attorney That His Health Interferes

Circuit Judge Millard B. Smith today granted a verbal motion made by E. F. Housholder for continuation until the next term of the Circuit Court in November of the case against W. C. Touchton, Jr., charged with manslaughter in connection with the drowning of two DeLand girls when the auto in which they were riding plunged through an open drawbridge across the St. Johns River just west of here early on the morning of Dec. 23.

Mr. Housholder sought continuation of the case, which was set for trial Monday, on the grounds that ill health prevented him from defending his client at this time. Mr. Touchton was arraigned last week and entered pleas of not guilty to the charges of drunken driving and culpable negligence set out in the information against him after a motion for severance was granted in the trial of Touchton and his companion, J. E. Weathered, who were jointly charged in the information. Weathered has not been arraigned, and it is expected that his arraignment will be postponed until after the trial of Touchton.

Charges of manslaughter were returned in an indictment by the present Grand Jury which charged the companions of Myra Machen and Mildred Mercer with drunken driving and operating an auto on the highways in a "culpably negligent manner."

Figures On Pensions For Aged Given Out

JACKSONVILLE, Mar. 3.—Figures received here today from the office of the State Welfare Board show that one of Seminole County's most substantial payrolls is that which its needy residents 65 years of age or more receive monthly in old age assistance.

Between July 1, 1937, and Dec. 31, 1938, the end of the last calendar year, Seminole County recipients of Old Age Assistance were paid an aggregate sum of $62,324.00, the figures reveal. This is in addition to cash payments made to residents of the county in the form of aid to the blind and aid to dependent children.

Joseph W. Jarrell Is Indicted Again On Lottery Counts

Grand Jury Asks Pardon Board To Ignore Jarrell

Appeal Reveals 'Cuba' Operator Continues To Flout The Law

Convicted "Cuba" Operator Accused On Eve Of Appeal From One Year Sentence

Law Violation In 5 Counts Charged

Grand Jury Action Follows Testimony Of Many Witnesses

Joseph W. Jarrell, convicted "Cuba" baron, was indicted a second time by the Seminole County Grand Jury today for conducting a lottery in Seminole County. The indictment was included in a presentment to Circuit Judge Millard B. Smith late this afternoon.

Jarrell was charged in five counts for violation of the State's anti-lottery law between the dates of Nov. 30, 1938 and Jan. 18, 1939. The indictment followed closely on the heels of Jarrell's published intentions to seek a pardon from the court sentence passed by the court after his conviction for a similar offense in December of 1937.

Jarrell is at liberty now by virtue of a 60-day reprieve granted by Gov. Fred P. Cone, after a mandate of the Supreme Court, affirming the sentence and conviction of the lower court, was handed down.

The action of the Grand Jury followed the appearance of a large number of witnesses who were summoned for testimony. Many of them were believed to be sellers for the Jarrell ring.

In an indictment returned by the Grand Jury on Nov. 22, 1937, Jarrell was charged with conducting a lottery in Seminole County on six counts, one of which was later quashed.

Following a two-day trial during which a veritable parade of prosecution and defense witnesses took the stand, a jury, composed of men from every section of the county, returned a verdict on Dec. 11, 1937 of "guilty as charged," thereby holding him guilty on all five counts set out in the indictment.

A motion for a new trial and a motion to arrest judgment were filed on Dec. 29, 1937, but both were denied by the Court, and he was sentenced to serve one year in the State Prison at Raiford by Circuit Judge Millard B. Smith on the same day.

Jarrell's attorney immediately filed notice of intention to appeal the case and a supersedeas bond of $2500 was set by the Court. The appeal was made returnable to the Supreme Court on Mar. 18, 1938 and was argued before the high tribunal on Dec. 9, 1938.

On Jan. 2 of this same year the Supreme Court affirmed the conviction and sentence of the lower court in a unanimous opinion. A petition for a rehearing was filed and subsequently denied by the tribunal and the mandate of the Supreme Court affirming the case was received by County Clerk O. P. Herndon and filed on Feb. 8.

The opinion of the Supreme Court was handed down by Justice Whitfield with Chief Justice Terrell and Justice Brown, Buford and Chapman concurring. Justice Thomas did not participate.

A 60-day reprieve was granted Jarrell by Gov. Fred P. Cone the day following the filing of the high court mandate. The reprieve which was received by the Sheriff on Feb. 10 provides that "at the termination time the judgment of the Court is to be enforced."

Jarrell in a notice in The Sanford Herald yesterday made known his intention of seeking a pardon at the next meeting of the State Pardon Board which convenes on Apr. 14.
