State drops abuse case

The case against a mother who sold a pickup truck with her two-year old son sleeping on the floor has been dropped by the State Attorney's

The state opted to drop the case after investigators could not find any credible witnesses to help explain the circumstances about the little boy's brief disappearance.

Cheryl Ann VanTine, 35, 701 Upsala Road, Sanford was arrested for child abuse in December after she altegedly sold her husband's pickup truck with her son sleeping inside for $50. A family friend recognized the truck and paid $50 to get it back after seeing the toddler Since her arrest, VanTine has completed a substance abuse program. At the time of the incident, she was allegedly using crack cocaine.

A hearing is scheduled in March to determine if the youngster will remain with his family or be placed in foster care.

Dinner with a pro

CHARLOTTE, N.C. - Two brothers will split a $1,000 reward they got for turning in two profootball championship rings they found. But they're more excited about having dinner with the former player they helped.

John Perry Jr., 12, and his 8-year old brother. Brandon, spotted the rings in the sink of a restroom at Charlotte-Douglas International Airport on Feb. 11. They were lost by Ed Lothamer, former defensive tackle for the Kansas City Chiefs, before his flight left Charlotte.

"When the plane took off, I got a sinking feeling," sald Lothamer, who has worn the American Football League championship ring since the Chiefs lost the first Super Bowl in 1967 and the Super Bowl ring since they won the big game in 1970. "I didn't think I'd ever see those rings again."

lic said. After the boys turned in the rings, Lothamer gave their parents a $1,000 reward offered in an ad. The money will go to the boys, said their father, John Perry.

Cops: Murder attempt

By NICK PFEIFAUP Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - A dispute over lottery tickets resulted in a murder attempt last night, according to Sanford Police.

The incident reportedly occurred near 1018 S. Maple Avenue.

Lorenzo Teague, 41, of 1108 W. 10th Street, was at the Central Florida Regional Hospital this morning, where he was listed in fair condition.

Arrested and charged with attempted murder, was William Henry Howard, 51, of 1004 Maple Avenue, in Sanford.

According to Police Lt. Mike Rotundo, "At about 9:50 last night. the two men were arguing over some lottery tickets, when Howard apparently stabbed Teague with a knife." Rotundo said the Teague ☐See Attempt, Page 5A

Crackdown by Sanford PD thwarts several drug deals

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Acting Police Chief Ralph Russell reported on the latest crime crackdown last night. The efforts are part of a recent drive to help curb crime in known drug areas.

The report was in response to more citizen complaints about activities in the Georgetown and eastern Sanford areas during last night's meeting of the Sanford City Commission.

Several residents who spoke to the commission during a previous meeting two weeks ago, appeared again last night during the public participation period. Most of them reported the continuation of

We are really cracking down on these areas," -Russell said, "especially in the Georgetown area."

"Most of this latest effort is through an increase in our patrol officers, the new bike patrols, and through the continuing cooperation of the CCIB (City/County Investigative Bureau)," he said.

"In just this past week," he reported, "we concentrated on several specific areas. Near a liquor store in the 1600 block of W. 13th Street, we made six arrests, recovered 171 grams of marijuana, and 10 onnees of crack cocaine."

Lash believes the pig is a baby wild boar, though Loretta Hair, who lives next door said the animal was probably a domesticated pigthat someone let lose when they realized they could not eare for it properly.

Stop-smoking program draws 40 employees

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - About 20 percent the Seminole ounty employees who responded to a recent survey are smokers.

If the survey results are indicative of the average of county smokers, the county has about 340 smokers out of the 1,700 employees. Of that number, only 40 have indicated an interest in taking one of the county's stop-smoking programs scheduled to begin in March.

In December, the majority of commissioners voted to eliminate smoking in all county buildings April 1, forcing defiant smokers outside to puff. Commissioner Daryl McLain, a smoker, opposed the action. Commissioner Dick Van Der Weide, also a smoker, voted with the majority.

The action followed a survey that found up to

Management director resigns

TALLAHASSEE - Under fire from local officials for the state's response to Hurricane Andrew, Florida's emergency management director has resigned.

Bob Nave quit Friday afternoon, not long after his new hurricane recovery plan was criticized, according to today's Sun-Sentinel in Fort Lauderdale.

"We had a very frank discussion in reviewing the contents of the plan," said B.T. Kennedy, Palm Beach County Emergency Management director. "After spending the morning with us, he probably made his mind up that afternoon.

Toni Riordan is a spokeswoman for the state Department of Community Affairs, which oversees the emergency management office. Nave's resignation is effective Mar. 12, she said. "He's been non-forthcoming" about his plans, but wants to return to growth management, she said.

Nave did not immediately respond to telephone messages left at his home, the newspaper reported.

He and the office were blasted for not having a post-disaster plan ready when Andrew struck Aug. 24. But Nave thought his team had done a good job, according to Riordan.

Vacationing couple found dead

OCEAN RIDGE - A vacationing couple was discovered dead in an oceanside condominium hours after neighbors reported a strange gas smell in the building.

A maintenance worker at the Dunes of Ocean Ridge found the bodies of Joel and Barbara Page of Merrillville, Ind., in a bathroom and bedroom on the second floor of Kathryn Shortz's condominium Monday morning. The rooms are above a garage where Shortz's car had apparently been left running, releasing carbon monoxide, Palm Beach County sheriff's officials said.

Shortz, 54, was asleep in a bedroom on the other side of the apartment and was not injured, sheriff's spokesman Bob Ferrell said. Detectives were still investigating Monday, but Ferrell said the deaths of Shortz's sister and brother-in-law appeared to be a "tragic accident of some sort."

Shortz was in stable condition Monday at St. Mary's Hospital.

Employees checked the apartment after receiving a message about a strange smell Monday morning.

"I knew right away something was wrong because the smell was so strong," maintenance worker Norbert Rebello said. He flung open the sliding glass doors in the living room and went to the garage.

"It was like an oven," he said. "The (car) engine wasn't running but the hood was hot. The top of the trunk of the car was full of soot."

He checked the car's ignition and found it was turned to on,

Officers uncertain over filing charges

PENSACOLA, Fia. (AP) - Authorities were trying to determine whether to file charges in the weekend alaying of a Pensacola man by his wife during a violent argument.

Neighbors said Lianne Atkinson had no choice but to shoot

"She retreated into a bedroom and he followed her," said

Escambia County sheriff's investigator Mike Steele. "She fired one warning, but and he continued to advance on her, and she fired one shot that struck him in the chest."

It may be several weeks before a decision is made on the charges. Steele and Monday. He said the Sheriff's December expects to complete its investigation by the end of the week and turn its findings over to the state attorney's office, which may leave the decision to a grand turn. may leave the decision to a grand jury.

Missing girl's case needs help

DADE CITY — Authorities appealed for the public's help Monday in the search for a 12-year-old girl who disappeared without a trace after getting off her school bus last week.

Jennifer Rence Odom was last seen Friday afternoon and some of her classmates on the bus gave investigators the only solid lead in the case so far: the description of a truck seen in the area at the time.

Pasco County Sheriff Lee Cannon said the search is focusing on an older model, faded light blue pickup with pipes or tools in the bed. It was reportedly driven by a white man in his 40s, with brown shoulder length hair.

So far, more than 200 leads have poured in to a command center set up by 25 Pasco deputies and a handful of other investigators from the FBI and the Florida Department of Law Enforcement. Hundreds of volunteers have also assisted in the search of the orange groves and pastures around this rural community 40 miles north of Tampa.

"I hate to say it — but we have nothing so far," Pasco Sheriff's spokesman Jon Powers said late Monday. Investigators have said they suspect foul play and ruled out the possibility the girl ran away because she had made detailed plans with friends for the weekend.

Friends mourn Judge Williams

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — In describing the career of retired Circuit Judge Volie A. Williams, Jr., many of his friends used the word "thorough." Williams, 73, died at his Sanford home yesterday morning, following a long bout with cancer.

Circuit Court Judge C. Vernon Mize knew him well. "I succeeded him as Circuit Court Judge in January of 1981," he said, "but before that time. I served as a practicing attorney since 1959, and many of my cases came before him."

"What I remember most about his courtroom work was that he was a very able judge." he continued. "He was not only very conscientious but very compassionate as well.

One direct connection with attorneys was cited by Judge Mize. "He had an understanding of both litigants and attorneys What I remember most about his (Judge Williams') courtroom work was that he was a very able judge. He was not only very conscientious but very compassionate as well. 5

Former Seminole County Clerk of Circuit Court Art Beckwith worked with Judge Williams for over two decades. "I became clerk in May of 1961 and held the office until January, 1985," Beckwith said. "Most of that time, Volte Williams was on the bench."

"He was often very firm in his decisions," Beckwith said. "but he was always fair. He had a tremendous interest in family affairs. especially when he sat in divorce cases."

"He was very thorough in his delibera-tions." he continued. "And at one time, he even suggested to me that he considered writing a book about his time on the bench, but I guess he never got around to that."

Sanford Attorney Gordon Frederick followed Williams to the Florida Legislature. "I went to Tallahassee immediately following him." he said, and he certainly made his mark in the Legislature while he was there."

Funeral services for Volic Williams will be held tomorrow afternoon beginning at 1:30 at the First Presbyterian Church of Sanford. Interment will be at Oaklawn Park Cemetery.

Friends are invited to call at the family home, 1203 Washington Drive, Sanford, this evening from 5 until 8 p.m.

Underage drinking tolerated Panama City ready for Spring Break

By Assessated Press

PANAMA CITY BEACH - Tolerance toward underage drinking has helped make this Florida Panhandle resort city a springbreak mecca and Police Chief Lee Sullivan sees no alternative.

"One of the ways you can address underage drinking is to gather everybody up that you find, take them to jail and charge them $50 to get out," Sullivan told The News Herald of adjacent Panama City.

But he said that approach

'makes about as much sense as trying to write traffic citations to everyone who exceeds the speed of our department."

Bullivan's approach is make undersee drinkers pour out their beverages, including smy unspend containers in their pos-enemies." Sullivan said.

"Drinking a beer if you're underage is a violation of the law. but more importantly it's a mistake, and I'm going to treat you like you've made a mistake. not like you're a criminal."

That approach is one reason why the first of an estimated 500,000 spring breakers are expected to begin hitting the sugar-white beaches here within a couple weeks.

"Panama City Beach is the craziest place in the United States." said Ohio University senior Jason Schoof. "It's hot. hot, hot,"

He said there are two reasons: Panama City Beach's hospitality and the lenience of police toward drinking.

TAMPA — Hav-A-Tampa cigar company executives are reacting with concern to the newest hip-hop counterculture crase —'hollowing out the

The Phillies Blunt, one of several of the company's low-priced lines, has apparently become the favorite for the fad and its logo has launched a T-shirt craze that has even made it into the pages of GQ Magazine.

That exposure has left officials at the conservative 90-year-old Tampa company a bit uneasy, and they are quick to point out that they neither originated nor endorsed the trend.

"You're a manufacturer in business almost 100 years. Then you get creative people using the product in a way that was never intended. But once it's sold, there's nothing we can do," said the company's vice president Thomas Arthur. Sometime in the 1960s, marijuana users began

The jurors — nine whites, two blacks and a Hispanic — were sworn in Monday and ordered to return to court Wednesday for opening statements.

"It is essential that you come to this task with a completely open mind," U.S. District Judge

John G. Davies said. All of the jurors told the court that the prospect of renewed rioting because of their verdicts wouldn't intimidate them. And all but one saw the videotape made by an onlooker of police kicking and clubbing the black motorist.

The jurors will be sequestered at a hotel during the trial, which is expected to take two months. and the judge said their identities will be kept secret. Three alternate jurors were to be selected today. The jury that acquitted the officers of nearly all state assault charges in suburban Simi Valley last spring was made up of 10 whites, a Filipino and a Hispanic. Its verdict touched off rioting in Los Angeles that left 54 people dead and more than $1 billion in damage. Many in the community had argued that justice as well as public considence in the legal system and in the legitimacy of the verdict demands a multiracial jury.

Action needed to save tourism

The British press has labeled Florida as the "State of Terror." Canadians are being advised to be careful down here. This type of publicity is not what we need.

The number of attacks against visitors is increasing. Most of the attacks are to relieve them of what is usually a large amount of tourist money.

The reason for this problem is due to the fact that we have more foreign visitors than other parts of the nation. People flying across the Atlantic for a tourist vacation bring a great deal more money than those going to visit a relative elsewhere in the nation.

State tourism officials will be meeting this week to seek ways to improve the safety of vacationers.

Some plans are already being discussed. They include increasing law enforcement protection near tourist hotels, eliminating the wording on license plates indicating leased vehicles, and the issuance of brochures advising visitors how to better protect themselves from robberies.

According to figures released from Tallahassee, tourism brings an estimated $28 billion into Florida's economy each year. Most of it comes to Central Florida, not only at the attractions, but in the areas near them, including Sanford. Many arrive by Autotrain while others prefer overnight lodging.

If this problem is allowed to continue and expand, which it will if nothing is done, the nancial drop in our economy would be great.

We urge the members of the Florida Legislature who will be discussing this problem, as well as local government and is enforcement leaders to crack down severely on these tourist attacks, black that are notice

We recognize that the rise in local crimes brings a need for more police protection. Now we are also faced with increasing protection of the tourists. It's time for the state to take some positive action.

LETTERS

Citizen annoyed by mayor's comment

This letter is prompted because I am highly annoyed and perturbed that a public official would dare to put himself on a pedestal above the people and speak ill of the deceased.

It appears that Mayor Paul Lovestrand has lost the ability to hold his own and therefore has had to regress to besmirching the good name of the deceased. Mr. Harold "Ed" Myers was and will remain in the minds of many, more than "a mediocre commissioner.' Ed was a commissioner of and for the people. No matter where, when or even what time it was, if you as a person, not just a voter, needed him, Ed was there. His compassion, dedication, understanding and willingness to help others manually or otherwise, will never be forgotten. Lovestrand claims to be the "watchdog" of the people but in my opinion he makes accusations, takes words out of context, twists things, and through it all, remains very narrow-minded. All of this in order to carry out the personal vendettas of his vicious, small group of bosses, who ill-advise

If Lovestrand would attempt to be one-quarter as honest, dependable, giving or committed to the betterment of Longwood as Ed was, then he could possibly be considered a good commissioner.

It is my further opinion, unfortunately, Lovestrand has become paranoid. He always has a negative view toward anyone whose ideas differ from his own.

Change of behavior will kill poverty

There are few matters of public policy on which I find myself in agreement with Hillary Clinton. But we are of like mind on the issue of

In a recent Newsweek interview, the first lady sounded very much like a conservative as she pondered the problems of America's underclass. "The culture of poverty in this country has become institutionalized," said she, adding that "a different set of approaches" is needed to wean the poor from long-term welfare dependency.

It remains to be seen whether her thinking is reflected in the new administration's promised welfare reform package. From what has been heard so far from, among others, Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala, the prospect tioes not appear especially good.

It stands to reason that, to deinstitutionalize the culture of poverty of which the first lady spoke, the existing welfare system needs to be completely overhauled. Yet, Shalala is talking about adding new programs to the failing welfare system, at a minimum cost to taxpayers of $6

On the face, the proposed new programs seem benign: expanded education and training for welfare recipients, as well as child care allowances and transportation assistance. Yet, if the federal government spent an additional $100 billion on these new programs, there almost certainly would remain as many people on the

That's because there is no correlation between how much money the government spends on welfare and how, many people escape poverty. If there were such a link, poverty would have been wiped from the face welfare rolls.

Since President Lyndon Johnson launched the vaunted War on Poverty more than a quarter-century ago. the United States has spent $3.5 trillion on welfare. That exceeds the full cost of America a long time ago.

There are few matters of public policy on which I find myself in agreement with Hillary Clinton of World War II after adjusting for inflation.

What have American taxpayers seen for the average $50,000 per household they have contributed toward Johnson's alms race? A poverty rate that has been virtually unchanged over the last 25 years from 14.7 percent in 1966 to 14.2 percent in 1991. The welfare establishment is hopeful that President Clinton will be persuaded to invest additional money on the poor. But America already is spending more than enough to eliminate poverty.

Hillary Clinton is on the right track when she says that behavior modification rather than additional welfare spending is the key to solving the poverty problem. The chronic poor remain so largely because they bend toward self-defeating behavior that impedes their upward mobility.

The question that should be uppermost in the minds of Clinton administration welfare reformers is how best to modify the behavior of the underclass. Where to start? The poverty data provide a clue. A family with two parents, both high school graduates, one or both working full time, has a better than 95 percent probability of being above the poverty line. That applies to whites, blacks, yellows and browns alike.

Global accords stress environment

Speaking at Georgetown University just before his inauguration, Bill Clinton forwarded a new premise for U.S. policy in the world: "Our definition of security must include common threats to all people." That policy supports the spread of democratic government and the non-proliferation of weapons of mass destruction as well as the need to address. environmental damage that puts peoples of different nations at mutual risk.

For the post-war generation President Clinton represents in a dramatically changing world, international environmental agreements may assume a salience akin to that previously reserved to global arms accords.

As Mr. Clinton's words reflect, the threats to international security are shifting. In one aspect, the future's burden increasingly will be seen in how humanity deals with the deterioration of the global environment, be it in sustaining plentiful harvests from the sea, in retaining an abundance of fertile soils and forests, or in coping with the challenges of climate change and alterations to Earth's atmosphere. These tests will be compounded by the simultaneous need to address cascading Third World population growth and unsus-tainable demand for natural resource consumption in the developed nations.

A surprisingly wide array of instruments already exists to work on these problems. The United States has either signed or has a direct interest in some 170 international environmental agreements. Over 600 agreements between individual nations and regional compacts dealing with the environment are

With few exceptions, these treaties share several common features. Any one of them could be faulted for deficiencies. Little is known about how fully they are adhered to. In many cases, the issue of where the money will come from to pay for their implementation has been deferred. Formal mechanisms to enforce their terms are either weak or non-existent. The element most crucial to their future usefulness is an informed public willing to exert the pressure of its opinion.

The global climate change treaty signed at last summer's Earth Summit symbolizes the shortcomings that mark many of these agreements. Statements of good intentions are substituted for commitments to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. That deficiency is one that candidate-Clinton said he would correct as president.

Assessing compliance with the measures that are in force is often a matter of guesswork.

One recent survey conducted for the U.S. Congress showed more than half the compliance reports due from nations involved in four environmental treaties have never been submitted. That does not prove violations are occurring, only that evidence one way or the other is lacking. Suspicion runs deep that violations of prohibitions to trade in endangered wildlife are common and that some ocean liners, tankers and cargo ships ignore international rules against flushing waste and dumping garbage. But formal protests can't be based on suspicion alone. The treaty to protect the atmospheric ozone layer is auspicious on two counts. It provides for enforcement by the use of sanctions against violators. It also creates a fund to assist poorer nations to meet its terms. In both respects, it is the exception to the rule most often adopted in international environmental agreements. Most of them make negotiation of disputes the most severe penalty a violator is ever likely to face. Efforts to protect biological diversity and to sustain the world's forests are at an impasse over developing nations' insistence that they be compensated for their costs to live up to the arrangements that their richer neighbors are urging upon them.

Above all, the peoples of the world will have to accept a more assertive role in broadening the monitoring of these agreements beyond a tight circle of diplomats and civil servants. Public opinion will be the chief means by which most international environmental agreements succeed or fail. Nearly all these accords require member nations to report what they are doing to meet their treaty obligations. Without informed public scrutiny this information will become mere grist for bureaucratic

One positive trend emerging from the Earth Summit is agreement that groups representing citizens be given a place at the councils where treaty compliance is discussed. They must now make use of this opportunity.

As valued as presidential leadership is, this generation's environmental challenges summon involvement from us all.

SARAH OVERSTREET Sensationalism isn't journalism

I am stunned to the bottoms of my socks by what staffers on the "Dateline NBC" program did in pursuit of a TV news story. They allowed a testing company to affix small toy rockets to the underside of one of the embattled General Motors pickups suspected of tending to burst into flames when hit from the side. Just before the pickup was smacked broadside by another car in a taped demonstration, testing company personnel ignited the rockets.

NBC claims it only wanted to ensure that "sparks would be present when a Chevrolet Citation struck the truck's side-mounted gas tank," according to a New York Times account. The network further maintained that the rockets were irrelevant, because a broken headlight in the Citation actually caused the resulting NBC hasn't gone public with evidence of why it believes the headlights started the fire and not the rockets. However, It didn't mention the original program, and one has to wonder: If it is true the headlight caused the spark that ignited the gasoline, what would have happened if the headlight had not broken and the toy rockets HAD started the fire? Would NBC have told us about the rockets then? In any event, the network issued apology on "Dateline NBC" in early February for what it called "the inappropriate de-monstration," and announced that it had settled a defamation suit filed by GM.

Some of you may not understand what I'm so upset about, especially if you aren't journalists. You may be inured by too many years spent in supermarket checkout lines reading headlines that never let the facts get in the way of a good story, or too many episodes of "A Current Affair" or "Inside Edition." You may have come to think journalists regularly play fast and loose with the facts, and sacrifice accuracy for sensa-

But every time one of us does something like what the NBC staffers did, the broad brush splatters a little on all of us.

I guess temptation knocks at every salary level and some of us open the door. I've experienced the pressures in local news to beat a competitor, and a news director's just for the facts to conform to a sexy story line he'd already written before I could get back from the field to tell him what happened. The heat to produce, to get it on by 5 and beat the other guys, is an aphrodisiac that not only seduces the ego but can mean a livelihood. When your competition is "60 Minutes" and "20/20," I'm guessing the pressure is about five to the tenth power.

Nonetheless, NBC couldn't have picked a worse time to go sticking toy rockets under pickup trucks involved in a serious lawsuit and then amashing them into Citations. First, you can't listen to a radio talk show without hearing a caller complain about how biased the media is. Second, the National Enquirers of the world and "tabloid TV" shows have blurred the lines of credibility so much that many viewer/readers can't tell the difference between responsible reporting and romance-novel writing.

Part of that owes to the fact that as journalists we haven't done our job of documenting the tabloid news shows and pointing out to the public just how far they miss the mark of ethical journalism. And second, I would unhappily have to conclude, is that sometimes we allow to go on what happened at "Dateline NBC" and then look the other way like a bunch of old attorneys conducting a closed bar investigation of a longtime crony.

"All of this was done during just a few days of last week," he said. "So I wouldn't exactly say we aren't doing anything about the problem."

During yesterday afternoon's commission, Russell received a concensus approval to form his suggested citizen task force. He assured the commissionworkshop session of the city ers, "The purpose of the committee is not to tell the police department how to do its job. It will be a communications committee."

Commissioner Whitey Eckstein voiced the only objection to the proposal. "I'm not against forming this task force," he said, "but I object to reading about it in the paper before the city commission is informed of your plans."

Big question for your mind: 'When did that happen?'

By MALCOLM RITTER AP Science Writer

NEW YORK - When did you last swim in a lake? When did you graduate from high school? Which came first. Chernobyl or Three Mile Island?

Now the big question: How do you know? Scientists have pondered that last question for more than a century, and they're still working on

But research is indicating that the process of figuring out when things happened in your life is surprisingly complex. Indeed, a different mental strategy may have answered each of the questions about swimming, graduation and the nuclear power accidents.

The fact is, according to psychologist William Friedman of Oberlin College in Oberlin, Ohio, evolution has not prepared the human mind for a question like. "How long ago did I get these While humans through most of their history thought about cycles. like daily rhythms and the seasons, the notion of linear time - a long run of calendar dates - "is a very late concept in human history," he said.

For people who perceive their lives in linear time, it's easy to believe the mind does too. storing memories in some way that can indicate when events occurred.

But that is not generally true, and the mind uses a bundle of other strategies instead. rescarchers say.

A few events are immediately associated with dates, like graduations or anniversaries. And sometimes two events in memory can be put in order because when the second one happened, it reminded you of the first, like Chernobyl happening after Three Mile Island. But again, that doesn't help with most events in your life.

Most people would also say that some memories just feel more recent than others. Studies show little support for such an intuitive judgment of clapsed time, but maybe they just haven't been designed to reveal it, said Friedman, who reviewed research into how people determine when events happened in the January issue of the journal Psychological Bulletin.

Friedman said he is finding evidence that clapsed-time judgment lets people rapidly distinguish events of the past three to five months from those that happened maybe nine or 10 months before.

But how it works is a mystery, he said, and in any case it probably does not work for events that occurred years in the past.

So what about the vast majority of your memories? Researchers say they are pretty much like snapshots stuffed randomly in a shoebox: If you want to write dates on the back, your mind has to do a little detective work.

That means sifting though your memories of the event, associated memories and general knowledge about time patterns to reconstruct a plausible answer about when something happened. If you were a kid at the time, it happened before you grew up. If the weather was unbearably hot, it was summer. If your swim in a lake was interrupted by your older sister's going-away-to-college party, you've stumbled onto a good clue.

Many people are aware of this process when they take time to ponder, but researchers say it often happens outside of a person's awareness.

One consequence of this reconstruction process is that "people can remember the time of day or the day of the week without having any idea now many weeks ago something happened," noted Janellen Huttenlocher of the University of

That effect showed up about nine months after an earthquake in Ohio, when Friedman asked Oberlin employees to recall when it occurred. The employees knew the time of day within about an hour. But they were off in estimating the month by about two months. They clearly had better clues for time of day.

Such a disparity "wouldn't be the case if you had a real time line in your head," Huttenlocher and. Instead, it indicates that people place an august within different character for the place and the such as the people place and the such as the such event within different chunks of time, like a time of day and a day of the week, with each chunk considered separately, she said.

She has found evidence that if people are uncertain of an event's position within a chunk of time, they err toward the middle: when people were asked what day they had been visited by an interviewer four days to 75 days earlier, the errors tended to run toward Wednesday. However, people were good at distinguishing whether the visit was on a weekday or a weekend.

People are generally imprecise in recalling when something happened because they have to rely on imperfect fragments of memory for the events, researchers say. "When you go back you don't have a flashlight that lights up some movie that's in there," Huttenlocher said. Instead, the mind misses some details in events as they happen, and as time passes remembered details dim or even change.

And sometimes even accurate memories don't help. One study found some British participants thinking John F. Kennedy was assassinated in the summertime, because they recalled that he rode with only light clothing in an open car.

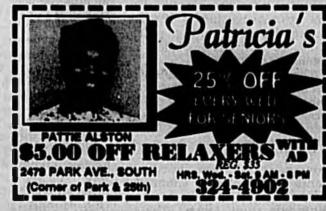

"They weren't aware that in Dallas you can be quite warm in November," Friedman said. "So

sometimes the information that we recall leads us

Vivian & Dick Invite you to their house for lunch or dinner

A Sanford "Classic" Returns

Like an old friend, or a long lost relative, a Sanford "Classic" has returned.

After being closed for nearly 7 years, Dick and Vivian Buck decided it was time to reopen their Restaurant. The seafood buffet is a popular feature at Buck's. Those of us who are long time area residents are familiar with the "all-you-care-to-eat" high quality scafood selections at the buffet. New to the area? Give yourself a treat-come in Thursday, Friday and Saturday for dinner (5:00 PM - 9:00 PM). Buck's has the look and the relaxed atmosphere of a quaint country inn. without the high prices of the newer "trendy" restaurants.

Menu selections at Buck's are not limited to ood: Steaks and bar-b-que baby back tibe are offered among the menu choices. The friendly staff can offer help if you have trouble making up your mind; the staff are courteous and customer oriented, to make your visit pleasant.

VISIT BUCK'S FOR LUNCH Kick the fast food habit, it's expensive and certainly not nutritious. (If you are looking for a relaxed lunch hour; do you really want to stand in line at a burger or sub shop??) Buck's restaurant now serves lunch Tuesday through Friday 11:30-2:00 pm. The lunch menu features 'allyou-care-to-cat" Soup & Salad bar - only 83.95, Specialty sandwiches and Salads plus a Daily Special! If you still have room, try Buck's homemade desserts, you'll trot back to work with a smile on your face!

If you have a special occasion, let us help! Call ahead 323-0963, Dick and Vivian would love to help you with any "special surprises". Buck's also has take out service available.

Thursday nights are "all-you-care-to-eat" Catfish night. For a low 86.95 you can have your fill of delicious catfish.

Come see us at Buck's Restaurant, corner of Sanford Ave. and 13th St., there is plenty of parking and needless to say plenty of good food.

Gross, boomers: 'Brady Bunch' look is back

By DANA KENNEDY Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK - Get out your flared pants and platform shoes. The '70s - the most reviled period in fashion — are back.
Hiphuggers, crocheted vests, peasant blouses.

chokers and other detritus of the era were part of the hottest looks on runways this season.

They've taken over the covers of fashion magazines and are heading for department stores in the heartland.

"It looks nonconformist and slightly rebellious," said Michel Botbol, 23, fashion marketing editor at Women's Wear Daily. "It goes along with the new administration. The power suits of the Reagan era are history. People who lived through the '70s think this stuff is hideous, but to kids it's new and fresh."

(which featured tweed maxi coats at the recent fall collections) have embraced the '70s look. Madonna wore a Sul ensemble of flares and a midriff blouse with Morticia-like sleeves during her recent appearance on "Saturday Night Live." Ivana Trump's personal shopper was recently spotted buying her client a pair of belibottoms at Bergdorf's.

Designers from Anna Sul to Anne Klein II

Even the august House of Chanel, renowned for its classic suits, featured bells with gold buttons down the sides in the recent collections.

Not even hair is safe. Men are sporting sideburns again. Even worse is what one fashion writer calls the "Mrs. Brady haircut."

"At the moment there's a big shag craze," admitted superstar hairstylist Oribe. "I try to make it as modern as possible. But I grew up in the '70s. You won't catch me in a pair of

He apparently has a lot of company, at least among his generation.

"It's a fashion victim look and I'm past the point of being a fashion victim." said Lorin Cole. a makeup artist and former Ford model who is in her mid-30s. "It may be new to kids, but I've done it. I don't want to do it again."

Camilla Sanford, 36, of Kentfield, Calif., said: "By leaps and bounds it was the worst era of clothing ever to come down the pike. I knew it was ugly even then."

How and why did styles from an era long considered a fashion embarrassment become cool again? The credit - or blame - goes to the growing power of the twentysomething genera-told they can't have sex and sow their oats, so they're desperate to recreate the '70s, when you could do all that." said Village Voice columnist Michael Musto

We're in this repressive society where kids are

The new styles come with their own crop of models, like Calvin Klein muse Kate Moss and Amber Valletta, dubbed the "new Twiggy." Unlike the brazen, voluptuous '80s supermodels like Cindy Crawford and Claudia Schiffer, the new models are gaunt and waiflike. Klein has said he chose small, thin girls for his spring collection of flowing, layered looks.

But boomers like Sanford vow that hell will freeze over before they reach into the back of their closets for that old pair of bellbottoms.

'Zip, zilch, jamais, nada, no way, not a chance - ix-nay!" she said.

Shame on movies, records and TV!

A GRASSROOTS PETITION TO THE BOARDS OF DIRECTORS OF ENTERTAINMENT INDUSTRY

Tell a friend about this ad!

WeAre Outraged!

Help us get one million petitions!

> We now have 803,616

And We're Not Going To Put Up With It Any Longer!

We're a group of mothers, fathers. grandparents and other citizens who are outraged at how today's movies, TV programs, music videos and records are hurting our children, our families and our country.

For example:

We're DISMAYED that today 1.1 million girls between the ages of 15 and 19 get pregnant each year.

We're SHOCKED when we learn that two thirds of all births to 15 and 19-year-old girls are out of wedlock.

We're FRIGHTENED at the way violence and crime are spreading everywhere and threatening our children, our families and our homes.

We say it's time to put the blame where we think it belongs:

SHAME on the Boards of Directors of music companies for letting singers who are the idols of our children put out RECORDS and MUSIC VIDEOS which blatantly encourage sex and 'say' to our children that sex is proper at any age . . . that everyone is 'doing it' ... and abstinence is old fashioned.

SHAME on those in charge in Hollywood for an endless stream of films filled with PROFANITY, NUDITY, SEX, VIOLENCE and KILLINGS. For example, the giant hit "Basic Instinct" features murders during orgasms, setting a new standard of perversion even for today's movies. SHAME on those at NBC TV for allowing "Saturday Night Live," a favorite with young people, to put on skits about masturbation, morticians having sex with dead people etc., etc., ad nauseam. SHAME on TV directors for allowing the average child to see more than 200,000 ACTS OF VIOLENCE and 33,000 MURDERS by the age of 16... even though directors KNOW that TV violence is implicated in 22% OFALL JUVENILE CRIME AND HALF

THE HOMICIDES in America. SHAME on the directors in the film industry which long ago stopped reflecting the values of most families and has now abolished the "X" rating, replacing it with "NC-17," so sex-filled, erotic, bloody films will no longer be barred from community movie houses. SHAME on TV soap opera producers whose standards of decency have sunk so low one of them tells his writers, "Hot, make it hot", and another admits they are trying to see "just how far they can 'push it' on daytime" . . . when they KNOW that during afternoon hours more than two thirds of all TV viewers are children!

Yes, we are OUTRAGED at all this ... and a great deal more. We say the tragic price our children, families and country are paying demands something be done to end what's going on. Alone we can't stop it. But together we think we can.

The REASON for all the sex, violence, filth and profanity is with the writers, directors, producers, singers, actors, etc. But THEY can be controlled. All it takes is for the Boards of Directors of their companies to order them to stop! Remember when movies were wholesome family entertainment? That's when people at the top SET STANDARDS AND ENFORCED them. We're going to insist that happen again.

We say it's UNCONSCIONABLE for the Boards of Directors to remain silent for the sake of PROFITS in view of the TRAGIC CONSEQUENCES.

Together We Can Make It Happen

We're asking every reader of this ad to help us run it all over America ... AND send in the petition on the right. Every 2 months we're going to send every member of the Boards of Directors of the entertainment companies a copy of the ad and tell them the total number of petitions received. They're going to KNOW American families are outraged.

Most Board members are not in the entertainment business. They are good decent respected people with children of their own. But they have been shutting their eyes to what's going on. We're going to get them to SPEAK UP.

Spare us the censorship lecture - you in the entertainment industry. And this is not an appeal for prudery. All we want is to get the movie, TV and record industries to act responsibly. Our children, our families and our country are being hurt too much for us to remain silent.

Right now mail the petition on the right. Please enclose a taxdeductible contribution to help pay for another ad like this. We'll do

All it takes is for enough of us who are outraged to ACT. Can we count on YOU? Mail the petition NOW!

Raiders advance in MFC

By DEAN SMITH Herald Sports Writer

LAKE CITY - Who says the third time is a charm? The Seminole Community College men's basketball team would argue that it's the fourth time.

The Raiders were forced to travel to Lake City Community College for the opening round of the Mid-Florida Conference Tournament Monday night. And the prospects were not bright because SCC. seeded No. 7, had lost to the Timberwolves, the No. 4 seed, three times already this season, including an 80.63 sctback just eight days

But the Raiders proved the skeptics wrong, hitting five of six free

Arrow Force One posts win over Silver Hawks

By TONY Desormier Herald Sports Editor

WINTER PARK - Starting quickly and finishing in a rush, Seminole's Arrow Force One capped its regular season schedule with a 55-38 win over the host Lake Howell Silver Hawks Monday night.

Seminole (11-17 overal!, 7-3 in the Seminole Athletic Conference) will play Flagler Palm Coast in the 3A-District 5 boys' basketball tournament at New Smyrna Beach High School Thursday night.

Lake Howell drops to 8-18. Using their high-pressure defense to create easy baskets on offense, the Seminoles Jumped out to a 10-point lead midway through the first quarter. And that's just about where it stayed for most of the game, until the Tribe closed with a 13-5 charge for the final margin.

What concerned Seminole coach Bob Traina was that in between the quick start and strong finish, the Tribe just treaded water. During that stretch was a lackluster third quarter where Seminole and Lake Howell played to a 6-6 draw.

"Anytime you hold a team to six points in a quarter, you should widen the gap," said Traina, shaking his head. "Actually, I'm fairly pleased with everything except the third quarter.

"We lost our focus in the third quarter. Our defense created some easy points in the first quarter. In the third quarter, we had some open jumpshots but they wouldn't go down. When that happens, you have to go to plan B, which is start working the ball inside. We didn't." Lake Howell has to be given partial credit for Seminole's slowdown as the Silver Hawks did a better job of dictating the tempo for much of the second half. The Silver SEMINOLE (SS)

Three-point field goals - Seminole 2 (Roberts 2): Lake Howell 3 (Sarasty 2, Marrero 1). Total fouls — Seminole 11, Lake Howell 22. Fouled out — Lake Howell, Cauthen. Technicals — Seminole lake players on the floor): Lake Howell, Robinson (slapping backboard). Records — Seminole 11-17, 7-3 SAC; Lake Howell 8-18.

Hawks' efforts were aided considerably by the fact that Beminole was playing its third game in four days.

"We played a little tired in the third quarter," admitted Traina. We have to be willing to be more aggressive, more energetic, to set the tempo we need to set. On nights when we're not energetic, we don't do the things we need to do and, as a result, we look bad."

Deon Daniels led Seminole with 19 points. Eric Roberts added 14 (including a pair of three-point field goals) while Matt Parker had 10.

For Lake Howell, Andy Sarasty collected 11 points (including two three-pointers). Brian Drayton netted eight.

According to Traina, his crew is looking forward to the district tournament.

"We're looking at it as an opportunity to gain some experience," said Traina. "We're hoping we can upset some people, that we can sneak in and do some things."

Tribe, Rams host hoop regionals

Deon Daniels (No. 32) was one of three Seminole players to score in double figures during Arrow Force One's victory over Lake Howell Monday. Daniels netted 19 points, Eric Roberts contributed 14 and Matt Parker had 10.

SANFORD - The northeastern part of Seminole County will be the place to be tonight if you girls high school basketball as both Seminole High School and Lake Mary High School will host regional playoffs at home this evening.

Seminole, winner of Class 3A-District 5, will host District 6 champion, and No. 5 state ranked, Cocoa High School at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium. while Lake Mary, winner of 4A-District 9, will host 4A-District 10 titleist Apopka High School at the Lake Mary High School Gymnasium. Both games will start at 7:30 p.m.

The Tribe (21-11) received four votes in the final state poll of the year, which would be good for 12th if it went that high. Seminole head coach John McNamara will be counting heavily on the high-scoring duo of senior Niki Washington and sophomore Tennishia Eason and a swarming full-court defense to try to derail the Tigers

The Rams (26-5) missed by one point of getting into the top 10 in the final week, but did get the most votes of the season, 21, up from the nine of last week. Apopka (15-10) also got five votes this week, the first time the Blue Darters have been so recognized.

Lake Mary head coach Anna Van Landingham hopes her team balance, led by Diana Duber, Karen Morris and LaShawn Merrick, will be enough to offset the high-scoring efforts of Division I prospect Dondria Copeland, who will be the main threat for Apopka head coach Heidi Mallett:

See State Polls, page 2B.

Jennifer Greissing (No. 34) and the rest of the Lake Mary girls' basketball team will be looking to knock off Apopka in the 4A-Region 5 playoff tonight at home.

Master Gardeners receive honors

As a fund-raising project to buy a computer for the Master Gardeners of Seminole County, the gardeners put together a cookbook. The final result was that the Master Gardeners received an award of Excellence for their idea from the State of Florida. In photo, Bette Cannavino (left), editor, and Kathy Krasnoff, associate editor, show th plaque.

The Master Gardeners entered their cookbook in a contest sponsored by the makers of Tabasco Sauce. The cookbook won a Merit Award. Master Gardeners sharing in the honor are (from left):

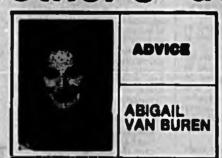

Tricia Thomas, Bette Cannavino, Kathy Krasnoff, Dr. Jorge Deju, Ruthann Jamel, Mary Fear, Debbie Cole, Mary Becker, Pat Smith, Peggy Benson and Betsy Beall.

Promises are made to keepeven at brother's deathbed

DEAR ABBY: I feel compelled to respond to a recent column in which Charles Piper chided you for encouraging a man to keep his brother's deathbed promise. The dying Ray had asked his brother to tell their grandparents that he was gay. Mr. Piper felt that the brother had no obligation to keep his promise. I beg to

Mr. Piper's position was that (1) Ray should have told the grandparents himself, and (2) that for the brother to tell them now would "hurt" them. It can only be perceived as hurting them if one considers being gay as something shameful. Addi-tionally, this truth-telling was important to a dying man for him to beg his brother to do so.

Mr. Piper told you that you "blew it." I diaagree. He clearly feels that it is more important to hide Ray's truth than to keep the grandprents safe in their bigotry. Wrong!

Contrary to Mr. Piper, you did not blow it, Abby. In fact, you gave the brother excellent advice. You said, "At the end, Ray wanted his grandparents to know that a person can be decent, respectable and lovable, and still be gay" That is the central issue here, as is the honor involved in keeping our promises — big and small.
Bravo, Abbyl Keep up the good

LINDA IN MILWAUERE DEAR LINDA: Thank you, friend. I needed that. There are still many people who do not know that being gay or straight is not a choice. If anyone doubts it, simply ask, "When did you choose to go one way or the other?" And how about bisexuals? When did they make that choicel

DEAR ABBY: I was born in Minnesota - Swedish on both sides. I grew up in Minneapolis and went to the University of Minnesota where I met the man I married - German on both his mothers's side and father's side. He practically goose-stepped to the altar.

All of us Swedes were very affectionate. Lots of hugging and kissing. Don't ask me how 1 ended up with this German man who did not believe in hugging and kissing to the extent I enjoyed in my childhood. (In private, OK - but not even a peck on the cheek in public.)

Is this a matter of geography or genetics? I have a friend who claims it's geographical. She says people on the West Coast do a lot of hugging, practically on first meeting. And Easterners are not much into "contact" sports. They will sort of keep you at a safe distance - shake hands, but no hugging on greeting friends.

THE RESIDENCE OF THE PARTY OF T

What do you think, Abby? Are warmth and closeness inherited (or learned) traits? Or are they determined by the part of the United States you grew up in?

KESSY-TOUCHY SWEDS DEAR SWEDE: No survey necessary. Overt affection is a learned behavior, learned at your mother's (or father's) knee, and possibly reinforced by local custom. There are "hot tamales" and "cold fish" everywhere. But one's emotional temperature is not geographically determined.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to thank the man who ran over our cat on Jan. 25. I want him to know how deeply grateful I am for his courage in coming to our door to alert us. In doing so, he saved her life. We rushed her to the vet, who stabilized her. If he had not found us, she would have suffered alone by the side of the road for Lord known how long. I will always remember that act of kindness, and will do the same if I'm in a imilar circumstance. I wish I could find that guy nd thank him from the bottom f my heart. I know how upact ic was and I'm certain he'd feel etter knowing that our cat is oing to be fine.

Please sign my name and city. Im hopeful he will recognise

New test will detect prostate cancer

and the state of t

underwent a PSA, a new blood test for detection of prostate cancer. I was told a 10 was cause for concern and my reading was 6.4. My urologist said there are only one or two cancer cells but he was very vague. Are one or two cells nothing to worry about or will they rapidly multiply? I do have a positive family history for cancer.

DEAR READER: The prostate specific antigen blood test will undoubtedly revolutionize the early diagnosis of prostate cancer. Excess quantities (that vary, depending on individual laboratories) are usually associated with cancer cells (in the prostate gland) that cannot ordinarily be detected during the rectal examination.

However - and this is a big however .. some patients without prostate cancer have elevated PSA levels. Therefore, the amount of PSA will usually govern the extent of the investigation.

For example, in the lab your doctor is using, a value of 10 is apparently the cut-off point between normal and abnormal. A patient with a PSA level of 30 would be at high risk for cancer: this would lead to a biopsy or, possibly, surgery to remove part of the gland. On the other hand, a level of 6 or 7 should be repeated in a few months to see if there's been a change -assuming, of course, that your prostate gland feels normal to the doctor. If a doctor suspects cancer, on the basis of either an examination or an elevated PSA, the next step is usually a prostatic ultrasound, with or without blopsy.

I believe you misunderstood your urologist. Cancer cells are ALWAYS worrisome, even if they are present in indectable numbers. If your doctor is suspiclous of a problem with your prostate gland, he must look further, with the tests I men-

DEAR DR. GOTT: I recently tioned above. It's more likely, though, that your PSA does not reflect any underlying disease. Nonetheless, in my opinion, the test should be repeated in six months.

In my general practice of medicine, I regularly examine seemingly healthy men who have slightly elevated PSA readings. I always refer these patients to a urologist. More often than not, little (if any) further testing is required; the specialist is content to monitor future blood tests.

Bridge administrators strive to keep polities and religion out of the game. The players don't care who their opponents are, only what the opponents' bidding system is. But occasionally governments have instructed their teams not to play against certain people. Happily, though, those days seem to be in the past.

In 1990, a team from the British Parliament competed against a team of Swedish legislators and other officials in Stockholm. Today's deal was played by the Indian ambassador to Sweden, Pushkar Johari, against the parliamentary captain, the Duke of Atholi, and his partner, Lord Smith.

Declarer won trick one with dummy's spade king, cashed the heart ace and played a heart to his king. West's spade discard was an unwelcome sight. How should Ambassador Johari have continued?

To draw all the trumps would make the contract entirely dependent on the diamond finesse. if it won, fine; if it lost, the defenders would cash a cascade of clubs. At the other table, the declarer took the diamond finesse now. Better, but not good enough. East won with the king, put his partner on play with the club ace and received a diamond The club king defeated the contract. The ambassador found the best play: At trick four, he led a diamond to dummy's ace. As long as it wasn't ruffed, he was planning to drive out the diamond king. He could handle any defense.

When the singleton king fell. there were cries of "Keep your eards back, Athol!!"

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY Feb. 24, 1993

There is a good chance in the year ahead that you could profit from an endeavor first initiated by another. Lady Luck may put you in just the right place at just the right time.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This is one of those days when you might not be too skillful at managing your own resources. and even less skillful at managing the resources of another. Pisces, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Pisces' Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, clo this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodlac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Large doses of patience and tolerance might be required today. This is one of those times when most people you'll deal with on a one-to-one basis could have a chip on their shoulders.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today's problems could have you operating at a disadvantage if you get rattled. Don't add to additional pressures with selfinflicted behavior.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You could be more susceptible to flattery today than usual. An acquaintance who will perceive this flaw may use insincere compliments to manipulate you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Total dedication will be required today if you hope to achieve a critical objective. Trying to slide by on your charm and good tooks simply won't work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is not an appropriate time to introduce new ideas or change methods in an involvement you have with others. Conditions are already too confusing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're banking on someone else to cover for you today or ball you out of an old obligation you incurred, you might be disappointed. Be prepared to fend for vourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Although you are usually able to discern both sides of a problem. this gift might not be operative today, and your judgment could be one-sided. Be careful.

BCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you are an employee of someone else, this is not a good day to slack off. Your boss will be evaluating you as a producer and he or she could have if long memory.

BAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 211 Think things over very carefully before getting involved in a speculative venture with a friend today, because if both of you are poorly informed, things won't go well.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Success could be denied to you today if you delegate your own assignments to someone who is less competent. It's better not to take the chance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A friend might come to you for advice today, and it's best that you level with him or her if it concerns something about which you lack knowledge or expertise. Your counsel could be harmful rather than helpful. (C)1993. NEWSPAPER EN-
