Suburban Housewife Teaches Children How To Cook

By JEANNE LEMER

UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Alice Paul Bartholomew, a suburban housewife, mother, food consultant and author, volunteered the kind of job most mothers would do anything to avoid. She teaches children to cook. Her classes for 6- to 12-year-olds are part of the Leona, N.J., community recreation program.

In an interview here, Mrs. Bartholomew said she started the classes in her home kitchen six years ago despite a warning from the recreation director—who was a bachelor at the time—that the children would burn themselves and cut their fingers.

"My own children cooked at the side of three," she said, "and I encouraged them to make simple things—drop cookies, gelatin desserts, instant puddings—so they could be with me when I was having dinner. I was working at the time."

Mrs. Bartholomew's husband is former child movie star Freddie Bartholomew, now an advertising executive. They have a son, 13, and a daughter, 15.

Her daughter by an earlier marriage also learned to cook at an early age, and appeared with her mother once a week on television cooking shows here.

Mrs. Bartholomew, who has conducted adult cooking classes as well, has recommended the advantages in teaching the young.

"Children hear you—they're aware of what you're saying and trying to do," she said. "They're essentially with you and you must be receptive to what they're saying."

Mrs. Bartholomew said her first children's classes were for older ones. Now there are classes for first graders at the request of younger brothers and sisters.

She said she uses the same recipes for all ages, but different teaching methods. Many of the recipes are in "Kids Cooking," a cookbook she co-authored (as Alice Paul) with Arthur Hawkins.

Her younger pupils, who come direct from school on Fridays, get juice and cookies right away and mill around a bit before they start cooking. They also take two or three of the 1 1/2 hour sessions to prepare recipes that older children can do in one.

"You have to be careful about attention span," said Mrs. Bartholomew. "I don't expect the little ones to finish the tedious job of pushing dough. And I don't attempt to let them bake a cake from scratch and frost it the same day."

She said she capitalizes on children's fondness for cooking and baking by teaching them to make "good nutritional molasses cookies and old-fashioned oatmeal wafers."

"I do a lot of breakfast things with kids. I tell them 'even if your family doesn't have time to eat breakfast, there's no reason why you can't fix your own.'"

That's important, because the children, who divide up the food to take home, want it as visible as possible.

Reef and macaroni is one of the simplest recipes in "Kids Cooking" by Alice Paul and Arthur Hawkins.

In a frying pan over low heat, melt 1 tablespoon of butter, or enough to cover bottom of pan. Put 1 pound of ground beefless chuck or hamburger into pan and stir with wooden spoon or long-handled fork, keeping meat in small pieces, not chunks, but not until brown. Open a can of prepared macaroni with cheese sauce and add to meat.

Sprinkle with 1 teaspoon of onion salt, stir and heat until steaming. Serves 4 to 6.

Encouraging responsibility. If you make a decision to stir properly, you will have something good to eat. If you don't or if you forget to set the timer, if you goof off—you'll lose the respect of your mates.

5 More Arrested In Sunshine Law

SARASOTA (AP) — All five Sarasota County commissioners were indicted Thursday on charges they met in the home of an elected official to discuss secretly the public's business. It was the latest in a series of indictments under Florida's "Sunshine" law. They face $500 fines, six months in jail or both if convicted.

A Sarasota grand jury returned indictments against Kenneth Brumbaugh, Daniel Hows, Larry Rhodes, John Saba Jr. and Irving Snyder.

These commissioners were accused of meeting behind closed doors at Commissioner Snyder's home May 3 to talk about the resignation of the county administrator and the reappointment of a planning board member.

The five learned of the indictments during a public meeting and adjourned to surrender to Sheriff Ross Boyer. They were released without bond and arraignment was set for June 28 in the Court of Record.

They met with attorney Warren Goodrich, of Bradenton, late Thursday but refused comment to newsmen on Goodrich's advice.

Goodrich also refused comment on the case except to say he thought the canons of lawyers' ethics were directly in conflict with the "Sunshine" law. He said he is referring to attorney-client relationships involving investigation bodies.

The Sarasota investigation was led by Broward County State Atty. Phillip Shaller at Gov. Reubin Askew's request. Shaller recently conducted an investigation that led to four officials being indicted in North Fort Lauderdale. Two were convicted.

Five members of the Bellevue City Council were indicted last month on similar secret meeting charges.

Airport Bill Okayed

House resolution 2300 which creates the Sanford Airport Authority was passed by the State House on June 2 and received a vote of approval from the State Senate June 3.

Sanford city officials had been playing "hide and go seek" with the bill since the end of the regular legislative session and were unable to make a determination as to the disposition of the bill.

The Airport Authority will take over control of the Sanford Airport which is currently being operated by the city's Department of Aviation. The city will still have control over the facility as appointments to the authority will be made by the City Commission.

Knowles said that it will take several months for the city to fully implement the Airport Authority and get it into operation.

Discipline In Home

By REV. WILLIAM PICKETT
Community United Methodist Church

The Scripture says in Proverbs 22:6 "Train a child up in the way that he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it." If the ancient axiom that you reap what you sow is true, then today in America, we have somewhere along the line failed to sow the seeds of law and order. From the street to the classroom across the length and breadth of America we are seeing the basic fiber of our society frayed, rebuked, or at best, ignored. Responsibility of where we would lay the blame, somewhere there is failure. No thinking man can deny this.

To at least a meaningful degree it is my contention that the breakdown of law and order in society begins with the breakdown of law and order in the home. The wisdom of the ages says, "Just as the twig is bent, the tree's inclined." The boy is the father of the man. The Scripture which we have chosen for a text says, "Train a child in the way that he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it." Law and order begins at home because the home is the basic instrument for the nurture and development of mankind. No other has its opportunity, no other its responsibility. Where law and order prevail at home we can generally expect it to prevail in society. Just as generally our political, our attitudes, our expectations of people, our sense of responsibility are formed in our homes, so do our respect for law and order.

We might, therefore, ask what are the ingredients of law and order in the home. It must begin with there being a seat of authority in every home. A family with no final word for its members is as chaotic as a state with no absolute laws. Every body cannot have his own way and the family law together. This must begin with the parents, but far too often the parents vacate this responsibility. In an article which appeared in Reader's Digest, Ann Landers has said, "It is a painfully embarrassing fact that we live in a child-dominated society. The children members more often than not decide where the family will live, where they will vacation, the car Dad will buy, what brand cereal, soap, or toothpaste Mom will put into her shopping cart. Child Guidance has taken on a new meaning, guidance of parents by children. Afraid to give the loss of love, the parents let to say 'no,' because they fear the loss of love, the parents let law and order go by the boards, vacating their God-given seat of authority and doing irreparable damage to their child's outlook on life." Such is not Biblical, such is not Christian. The Scripture says, "It is expected that a man be able to rule his own house." It is logical to assume, therefore, that not having law and order at home, our children will have the same approach to life. It will be rather natural for them to take over the campus, the convention hall, the classroom, all because they have been led to believe that their desires are the only ones that count.

If law and order in society is to prevail it must be because it is applied with law and order by a seat of authority, firm and consistent decisions in the homes of our land. The stability of our youngsters as they take their place in society will be based on the dependability on which they could count in the homes from which they come. No parent ever belted his child by giving it or by letting the child rule. John Wesley is his journal says about discipline as a Christian endeavor, "Discipline should begin as early in life as possible, never after the first year. To inform the understanding is a work of time and must be slow through education, but discipline is a thing which must be done at once lest the opportunity be lost." Spoiled children benefit no one... for spoiled means gone bad. It is the spoiled child that learns to kill, to steal, to tramp on the fellowman. To fail to discipline is to spoil, to blame. To adopt a "let it be" attitude in the home or in society is to invite anarchy.

Finally we know to follow this Biblical directive for discipline as an act of love. Failure to discipline is simply a rejection of the child, saying in as many words, "You don't really matter." If we do not love you enough to help mold you into that which is best for you, it is only natural to seek the best for the one you love. Why fail to do so in giving discipline? There must be a return to the Biblical principles of law and order in our homes, before there is a return to law and order in our land.

Discipline in the home may not be the only factor which is affecting our society's breakdown of law and order, but certainly it is a major one. Our children can benefit, our nation reap the good harvest, and our homes and families face great happiness if we will return to the Biblical way of rearing our families. Law and order begins at home!

For Casselberry Youth Busy Summer Is Planned

By KATHY NIBLACK
CASSELBERRY — Summer Youth Director Marvin McClain, Jr., and the youth leaders at Community United Methodist Church in Casselberry have made plans for a busy summer—and an exciting one.

The summer youth program was kicked off on June 13 with a youth assembly during the Sunday School hour, and the beginning of the weekend "Youth Quest" which was held nightly during this past week. Junior highs, senior highs, and college age youth got together to study the interesting book, "Jesus, the Revolutionary."

Speaking of "revolution," the summer theme is "Join the Jesus Revolution" and centers around the revolutionary nature of the development of mankind. No other has its opportunity, no other its responsibility. Where law and order prevail at home we can generally expect it to prevail in society. Just as generally our political, our attitudes, our expectations of people, our sense of responsibility are formed in our homes, so do our respect for law and order.

Other special activities planned for the youth this summer include a College and Career retreat in July, a Senior High and Junior High retreats in August, an appearance by popular singing group "Knox, Phil and Doug" in July, and the annual "Youth Activities Week" in August.

Youth will also have the opportunity to participate in special retreats at Forest Lake Academy. The retreats will be held at Forest Lake Academy in Casselberry. The group will meet at the church at 6 p.m. and go to the park for a cook-out and games.

The Christian coffee house for youth, "His House," opens for the first time tonight, and will be open each Friday night throughout the summer. "His House" will feature entertainment, talk, and just plain togetherness in a coffeehouse setting.

A series of sessions is planned for youth on Saturday mornings throughout the summer in an effort to teach them the fundamentals of sharing the faith they have with other young people. This series is entitled the "Every Saturday School of Evangelism" and will feature films, speakers, and actual practice in the area of evangelism.

Marvin McClain Jr., Summer youth director, will be involved in several activities planned especially for them, including a special retreat and special nights at "His House." All Junior Highs are invited to a cook-out at Forest Lake Park in Casselberry. The group will meet at the church at 6 p.m. and go to the park for a cook-out and games.

AREA CHURCH NEWS

The annual Father-Son Banquet will be held Saturday night at 6:30 in the Fellowship Hall. The youth will participate Saturday morning at 10 in the first series of a series of what is called the Every Saturday School of Evangelism. There will be training sessions in the practices of evangelism in different areas.

ST. MARY MAGDALEN CATHOLIC CHURCH is presenting a unique approach to studying and enjoying the Bible at its Vacation Bible School this year, according to Fr. David P. Papp, pastor. The 10-day program attempts to make the Bible an experience with youngsters first through sixth grades hearing, seeing, feeling and deciding about some of the things facing the ancient Jews as living out their semi-nomadic life. The concept was developed by Richard How of Winter Park, a longtime student of the Bible and columnist for the Florida Catholic newspaper. The program will run June 21 through July 2, 9 a.m. to noon. The staff of some 30 adults and teenagers will be teaching not only scriptures but also provide music, and arts and crafts instruction. Registration will be June 21 at the parish social hall, there will be a dollar fee for grades 1-3 and $2 for grades 4-6.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH of Lake Monroe celebrated Vacation Bible School graduation with a trip to the Sanford Fire Station. Their host was Chief Sid Galey and Warrant Officer Raymond Hardy guided the 79 workers and children around the fire station. Lt. Ed Brocklund rang the fire bell, demonstrated the two-way radio, and slid down the fire pole for the group.

They visited the zoo where the children saw some of the same animals they studied about on Noah's Ark. They ate a picnic lunch at the Big Tree Park.

ST. AUGUSTINE CHURCH, Casselberry-Bishop William D. Borders has agreed to dedicate the new provisional church and on Sunday, July 25, the new Provisional Church of Longwood Sunday, the Very Reverend Harry Caselberry will be officiating at the services on the following Sunday. Education Boost Aim Of Bill In State House

By TOM RAUM
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — An $11 million supplemental state spending bill was being worked on today by legislative leaders in a last-ditch move to boost the level of educational spending.

Reports of the new bill come as the House was preparing to take up a $134 million proposed state budget adopted Thursday by the Senate.

Aides said House Speaker Richard Pettigrew, D-Minn., wanted the House to pass the House takes final action on the budget bill. He is expected to extend the session several days, and possibly expand it so the supplemental bill can be introduced.

Author of the proposed education compromise, Sen. Jim Williams, D-Ocala, said the governor's special session call only included passage of "an appropriations bill" and "unless he expands it I don't see how my bill can be introduced."

Pettigrew said an earlier move to send the bill back to conference committee would probably not be considered. "The Senate has discovered that the education report does to the Cabinet," said Pettigrew. He said for that reason the House leadership team's want the report to go back to conference.

NY Times Volunteers List Of Documents

By BOR MONROE
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times has given the Justice Department a list of the secret Pentagon documents upon which it based its suspended Vietnam war history series as both sides prepared for a court hearing today on the government's motion for an injunction against further publication of the papers.

The Times voluntarily Thursday on the urging of U.S. Dist. Court Judge Murray I. Gurfein who withheld any immediate action on the government's demand to inspect the Times' documents.

Gurfein ruled out a government request to see all classified material in the Times' files, saying, "I'm not taking any fishing expedition into the files of any newspaper."

The documents sought by Assistant U.S. Atty. Michael D. Hess were a 47-volume secret Pentagon study entitled "History of U.S. Decision-Making Process on Vietnam Policy" and a summary of "The Command and Control Study of the Tonkin Gulf Incident."

The Times suspended publication of the controversial series after Gurfein issued a temporary restraining order Tuesday and scheduled today's full declassification hearing for 10 a.m.

In a brief filed late Thursday for today's hearing, the government said it would argue that while the First Amendment guarantees the freedom of speech and press "it is equally clear that these freedoms are not absolute."

There were also these developments in the case: —The chairman of the House government information subcommittee, Rep. William S. Moorhead, D-Pa., said the case has spurred plans for a major reorganization of the government's secrecy policy and possible declassification of some documents.

—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., called for full disclosure of secret government data on Vietnam policies during the administration of President John F. Kennedy, saying "The public ought to be the final judge of the whole period of the 1960s, and before, in Vietnam."

Paper Gets Surprising Support From Several U. S. Solons

By KENNETH J. FREED
WASHINGTON (AP) — The New York Times has picked up some surprising support in Congress in its fight with the Nixon administration over publication of a secret Pentagon study of American involvement in the Vietnam war.

The government's effort to stop the administration of its series about the highly classified documents brought up during continuation of the Times series, but he said there is a "very serious fault" in the government's approach to classifying documents.

"Judging by what I have read and heard about these Vietnam war documents," Curtis didn't make a direct attack on the administration of its series about the highly classified documents brought up during continuation of the Times series, but he said there is a "very serious fault" in the government's approach to classifying documents.

Nixon 'Motorcades' To Upper New York

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — President Nixon, who isn't anxious to promote his urban motorcade in the North since the 1970 campaign, through downtown streets was planned Saturday.

Gerald R. Warren, Nixon's deputy press secretary, said the chief executive simply would drive from the airport to a hotel. Of course, Warren added, any spontaneous outpouring of three members of the route would not meet with White House disfavor.

That seemed to be Warren's shorthand way of saying the lunch-hour timing of Nixon's arrival and the advance presence of the motorcade route would not meet with White House disfavor.

Officially, Nixon chose to visit Rochester to talk to newspaper and broadcast executives from 12 states and the District of Columbia, then visit briefly with a citizens' group lobbying for revenue sharing—a key and embattled administration congressional goal.

Antiwar groups announced they would attempt to get their share of seats in the Rochester Flamingo Hotel, site of the Nixon meeting. The protest groups predicted 5,000 demonstrators; authorities said more than 800 policemen would be on hand.

Nixon had been due here last week to promote revenue sharing and other major domestic proposals but heavy snow forced postponement.

Zone Hearing Fee May Go Up

Public hearings for zoning change requests in Sanford may be increased from the present $20. The current fee covers the cost of the legal proceedings, the notification of surrounding property owners and the cost of the public hearing.

Gerald Dale, of Gerald Dale & Associates of Jacksonville, is the city's planning consultant, recommended to the Planning and Zoning Commission last night the fee be increased to $50 and the responsibility of notifying the surrounding property owners be required of the person requesting the zoning change.

Lin Risher of the city's Public Works Department said it would be a relief to his office not to have to expend the many man hours needed to do all the research involved in preparing for a public hearing.

Several of the commission members said it would be unfair to the taxpayers, who are subsidizing the current zoning, to have to pay for someone's request to change the zoning. The consensus was a change would be considered if it was determined that the hearings cost the city more than the $20 charge. Risher was directed to determine what the costs of the public hearings were.

In other matters before the commission last night, they acted to recommend to the city commission they refuse a request for a zoning change from R-2 to R-3 multiple family residential for a parcel of land located on the northwest corner of the intersection Osprey Road and Magnolia Avenue. They based their recommendation on

Ike Is Drawn In 'Secret' Hassle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Post says the Eisenhower administration tried to keep the 1954 Geneva Conference from calling a July 1954 telegram reportedly sent by Dulles to various American diplomats, as illustration of his attitude.

The Post story, appearing in Friday editions and said to be based on a Pentagon study of the origins of the Vietnam war, said the Eisenhower White House feared nationwide elections in Vietnam would result in victory for Ho Chi Minh.

However, the Post said, the documents indicate South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem was the one who headed off the elections. He flatly refused to discuss elections with the Communist government in Hanoi.

There was no indication in the Post story, written by staff writer Chalmers M. Roberts, if the Pentagon study was the same used as the basis of New York Times articles on the war. The Times used an temporary court order prohibiting further publication of the series.

The Post said President Dwight D. Eisenhower's secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, was the prime mover in administration opposition to national Vietnamese elections.

Dulles, according to the Post, was the prime mover in administration opposition to national Vietnamese elections.

Air Cavalry Clashes With ARVN

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — U.S. air cavalrymen clashed with North Vietnamese troops 43 miles east of Saigon today, while nine miles southeast of the capital. The South Vietnamese Command uncovered a stockpile of enemy munitions.

Details of the American action east of Saigon were not known, but the AirCav troops in that jungle area have been under fire all week.

On Monday the North Vietnamese ambushed a column, killing four U.S. troops and wounding eight. Another air cavalryman was killed and six were wounded Thursday when their unit came on an enemy stockpile of arms and ammunition. The North Vietnamese opened fire. Later in an interview shortly before he stepped down, the former Singer sewing machine salesman said he was in Saigon to make a life in politics in 1967 said he didn't want retirement.

"I don't know what I'll do if I die, I dread the time to come," he said.

As Florida's oldest elected official, Carter had taken less and less of a part in recent years in deliberations of the PSC, which sets rates and regulates the services of telephone, telegraph gas, electric, water, sewer and railroad utilities.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Jerry W. Carter, Florida's self-proclaimed "cheap politician" who retired in January after 36 years on the Public Service Commission, died early today in his sleep. He was 84.

Death came at his Tallahassee home.

For almost four decades, Carter exercised a vast impact on the wallets of millions of Floridians as one of three members on what is now the Public Service Commission.

He did not seek reelection to a tenth term in 1970, and was succeeded by Steve Blevins, Rep. Bill Bevis of Fort Meade.

Edwards informed the group that he had been searching for a campaign manager for the fund drive which must be successful if the zoo is to remain open. He spoke to U.S. Navy (ret.) Capt. Bernard Brender, former commanding officer of Orlando Naval Air Training Center, who expressed interest in the project. He has been invited to luncheon with the board of directors next week to discuss his possible association with the zoo effort.

Edwards introduced Miss Ruth Boggs volunteer secretary, who will manage the Zoological Society office in room 613 at Sanford Atlantic National Bank from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. daily. If anyone would like to visit or call 323-4450, Miss Boggs will welcome all interested callers.

Lone Baby Still Alive

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A 12-ounce baby, the smallest of nine babies born prematurely to 23-year-old Mrs. Lenora Bradrick, was the only one still alive tonight.

Doctors said the eighth child to die, a one-pound girl, had developed during acute lung condition. She died early Friday.

The babies — five boys and four girls — were the first non-twins on record. Two of the boys were stillborn and two boys and three girls died Sunday night and Monday.

In a revised casualty report, South Vietnamese headquarters claimed 17 of the North Vietnamese were killed in the battle. Informed sources said 13 boys and three girls died Sunday night and 13 were wounded.

Settled Out Of Court

Taxpayers will not lose in the settlement of a damage suit against Sheriff John Polk, according to his attorney, Douglas Stenstrom.

Richard Drebrow, 27, of 305 South Park Avenue, accepted $2,000 for 10 days spent in the county jail last week when he had been free. Polk's liability insurance will pay $2,700, with Polk liable for the difference in a deductible clause. Stenstrom said Polk is hopeful the county will reimburse him for the $500. Drebrow was arrested last September for possession of stolen property. No charges were filed by Thomas Speer, county attorney, when a release was delivered to the sheriff's department Oct. 16. According to Polk, the order was placed on the desk of a vacationing employee and was not discovered for 10 days.

McNamara Papers Produce Basic Confrontation

Publication of the "McNamara Papers" disclosing information about the manner high decisions were reached which resulted in the escalation of the Vietnam War has set in motion a train of events — reactions, rebuttals (including court actions) and highly emotional responses — the end of which is not in sight.

At the time of this comment, there appear to be two basic rights on a collision course.

One is the freedom of the press as embodied in Article I of the United States Constitution. In simple terms this is the right of the people to know.

This is being challenged by the action of the Nixon Administration who moved with excessive speed to block further publication of the information in these documents by The New York Times.

The other right is the right of the government to protect its secret papers from publication, which an administration is convinced would be injurious to national security.

It all began when the Times started a series based on the careful diagnosis of these documents, ordered by former Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara (D) during the Johnson Administration as he sought to find out how this war had become a ground war in the jungles of Vietnam with American forces heavily committed.

The facts revealed are startling. Alarm bells started ringing in the halls of the mighty. The human habit of seeking out scapegoats was displayed in a manner which was and is even more disgusting than the facts.

Quite naturally, former President Lyndon B. Johnson has been made a prime target. But to do this, is the worst kind of interpretation of the information about the mid-60s which had been secret. All leaders, confronted with such a crisis as confronted LBJ then and which may face President Nixon at any time now, must be ready with plans for all foreseeable developments.

"Monday Morning quarterbacking," hindsight and not foresight, is easy and has a sort of self-serving righteousness that is all right on the playing fields but which has no place in the grave issues raised by the publication of the McNamara Papers.

It is helpful and instructive to read what the Times has to say on its own editorial page:

"We believe that, once this material fell into our hands, it was not only in the interest of the American people to publish it, but, even more emphatically, it would have been an abandonment of responsibility and a renunciation of our obligations under the First Amendment not to have published it."

It was when the Nixon administration went to the courts and stopped further publication of the material the Times had ready to print, that this challenge to the constitutional right of the free press brought equally quick responses.

We believe that Representative Abner Mikva (D) put it in the right perspective when he termed the administration's legal moves a "most damaging blow against the Bill of Rights."

Said he: "It is clear that the reason for prohibiting further publication of the story of the Vietnam War is not the spirit of our troops or the efficacy of our national effort.

"Rather the injunction against the New York Times is to protect government officials, past and present, from being confronted with the truth."

We believe that the only proper manner for the American people to adopt as these grave events take place is that of "watchful waiting." We believe that it will continue to be revealed that the role of Congress will become more and more apparent as one of failure to perform its constitutional duties of "advice and consent."

We are neither brazen enough or bold enough to attempt any conclusion which would deal with details or personalities. What we do, however, is to advise every reader of this newspaper to seek every source of information as this story unfolds.

What could take place is a momentous watershed, where a constitutional government will be given its proper place and the right of the citizen to know are respected.

Editorial Stands

May we share with you some thoughts about the newspaper business as pointed out by a veteran editor? He is John S. Knight, chief of the Knight newspaper chain and editor of the Detroit Free Press. Mr. Knight made his observation after a nostalgic visit to the convention of the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington recently. He wrote, in part:

"A great deal of talk centered upon the media's loss of credibility, due perhaps in large part to attacks by the vice president and disgruntled public officials. We should, I think, accept such criticism philosophically while endeavoring to set the record straight at all times.

"As an editor, who must or should take vigorous editorial positions on the great issues of the day, is not meant to be loved. If he seeks affection and popularity, he should be in public relations. Newspapersmen who formulate policy have a commitment to truth. The unvarnished truth is frequently unpleasant reading since it often differs from the reader's preconceived notions of what the truth should be.

"At times, I fear, what is popularly known as the press media, through their own lack of commitment and perception, some inexcusable transgressions upon the code of truth and accuracy. In these instances, criticism is certainly merited and should not be dismissed with lofty disdain from the ivory towers.

"We do more than endure the shafts and arrows of our critics. Critical comment is carefully evaluated as to its veracity, pertinence and justification. It overcomes smugness, helps to keep us alert.

"As one Knight newspaper editor expressed it so aptly: As long as we have men who are sometimes proud, sometimes ashamed, and never satisfied, we will make tomorrow's newspaper better than today's." Jackson (Miss.), Clarion-Ledger and Daily News.

SS Taxes, Benefits Go Higher

By BRUCE BOSSAT
WASHINGTON (NEA) — The important question of Social Security payroll tax increases is being discussed today in a strange, misleading vacuum.

It is being pointed out that the workers' payroll rate, presently 4.2 per cent and scheduled to rise higher in the years ahead, is becoming the stiffest tax some Americans pay.

About 12 million personal income tax returns involve no payment of taxes at all, either because family size and deduction cut income below taxable levels. But every income-earner pays that 4.2 per cent for Social Security.

True enough. Correct, also, that under present law that yearly payroll bite will rise to 6.36 per cent by 1977, or to 7.4 per cent by 1979 if the new rate schedule pending in the House Ways and Means Committee is adopted.

There are, however, very significant offsets which must be put in perspective. Retirement and other Social Security benefits are going to be very much higher in the coming years.

A quipped worker who retires at 62 this year can draw an annual $23.13 million in retirement benefits if his wife is also 62, the pair can collect a maximum of $19.70 a month.

But let's look ahead. Presume a man and wife who were both 50 in 1970 and are going to be at full retirement age 65 in January, 1984. Presume likewise that the man has maximum earnings creditable to Social Security under that program from 1942 through 1984.

Under present law, the couple in 1984 and thereafter could draw $385.40 a month in retirement pay.

Under the pending Ways and Means committee bill, which provides for a new 5 per cent monthly benefit increase to take effect in mid-1972 and also for future cost-of-living benefit hikes, the same couple would in 1985, start drawing $538.10 a month in retirement money.

In plain fact, it is almost foolhardy to say "under present law." Existing benefits and taxes reflect changes in the law made just this March.

Now the new committee proposals are ponding in on top of these changes. The whole history of the Social Security program suggests strongly that, even without the projected cost-of-living escalator, benefit levels will continue to rise markedly.

Benefits are determined in part by averaging the worker's best earning years. Since wage levels keep going up, his yearly average for Social Security purposes is bound to get steadily better.

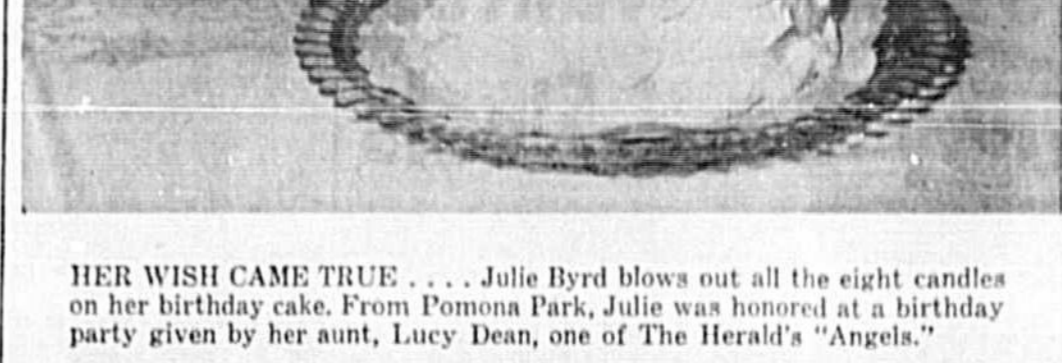

In no case can a worker compute his benefits against an earnings average higher than his payroll taxes have been taken. The present base is $7,800. Even if that had been in effect for many years, which it has not, a worker could not figure his benefits against an earning average of, say, $8,400 a year.

On the other hand, that tax base is going to rise higher and higher. At present it is due to go up to $9,500 next year. The House bill would revise that to $10,200 in 1972.

Wage projections suggest that workers reaching retirement age in later years will be able to gain big advantage from this broadening base when they come to figure average yearly earnings for Social Security purposes. Median annual earnings for all male workers are estimated at nearly $6,700 for 1971. By 1985 they are projected at $12,800, by 1990 at $15,600, by 2000, nearly $24,000.

Florida Politics

By Tom Raum
AP Writer

TALLAHASSEE (AP)—With Florida's new March 14 presidential primary still nine months off, a number of potential contenders already have paid visits to the Sunshine State.

The Democratic hopefuls who have been to Florida within the past few months include U. S. Sen. Edmund Muskie, Maine; George McGovern, South Dakota; Hubert Humphrey, Minnesota; and with the last week, Iowa's Harold Hughes. In addition, potential Republican challenger U. S. Rep. Paul McCloskey of California spoke in Miami recently.

Since the new primary law—passed during the just concluded general legislative session—allows candidates to be listed on the Florida ballot if they are recognized as contenders in either the national or state press, these individuals may have already virtually won a spot on the ballot.

Of course, some will drop out and others will enter the race between now and March.

The latest possible candidate to express interest in Florida is Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty, who has already been taking the pulse in New Hampshire. Yorty's scheduled to address Miami's Tiger Bay Club on June 22 and do several television interviews at the same time.

The Democrat, politically sensitive of a conservative, has received "a very good reception" from state Democratic committee members in Florida, says Californian Sam Bretfield, chairman of the Yorty for President Committee.

But one Democratic party spokesman said there doesn't seem to be much open support for Yorty within the ranks.

"His people called our office, but all we told him was that we'd greet him and shake his hand and say welcome to Florida," said George Hanna, executive assistant to Democratic Party Chief John Moyle. "It's not the committee's function to favor one contender over another."

Veteran Speaks Out

Editor, Herald:

In general the news that seems to be the most publicized today points up how bad conditions are in our country.

How about focusing on the good things that are happening for a change of pace and for the benefit of the much neglected percentage of real Americans?

The ones I'm talking about are still the backbone of this great country and he will be willing still to lay down their lives in order to preserve its constitutional principles.

Why not give a plug to our many good service organizations? For one example, the American Legion. This organization has and is doing more toward trying to preserve peace and good will in this country than most people realize. But... how many times do the so-called great American press take the time to cover their functions and report their good deeds? It is because the public only wants to hear of the fifth? Hippie activities and campus rebellions are front page news. Such "noises" are started by only a few punks whose main interest are to get their names and pictures in the press, thereby giving them more power and support to carry on their subversive activities. I don't believe this is the kind of news the American public wants to hear or read on the front pages of the newspaper every day. Give them small space and I bet within a few weeks those so-called bad shots will soon take a back seat and leave us in peace.

I am a veteran of two wars... World War I and II—and still believe this country is the greatest. If I did not think I would not be still active in trying to preserve its principles by belonging to such organizations as the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, 40 & 8, and the Lion's Club.

My hat's off to all good law enforcement officers. Believe me, the press doesn't give them very much credit for their dedicated deeds but let one of them make a mistake and his name is plastered all over the front page.

I may be wrong but it is my opinion that our so-called American press had better wake up before it is too late and hire a real down-to-earth reporter whose interest would be to give the public good news about our country instead of a lot of trash.

My final message is to all good Americans to exercise their rights and vote for the people of your choice on election day. It never hurts to display the American flag either even if you wind up by being called a "square."

Prideful Women Are The Rule

Whip Cracks On Soviet Labor

By RAY CHOMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA) — "Violations of labor discipline" was now so widespread in the U.S.S.R. that authorities from Leonid Brezhnev down are deeply concerned about economic repercussions.

Their worry is over the sharp increase in labor dissent, corruption, petty pilfering, nationalism, embezzlement, sloppiness and a cynical, don't-care attitude on the part of many workers.

These conclusions show up in Washington analyses of the proceedings of the 24th Congress of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union and associated party congresses in the major Soviet bloc countries.

The Brezhnev solution: Much stricter enforcement of the laws, to crack down on the "unproductive" pilfering, nationalism for the political police in economic "crimes." Party men will have greater authority in individual plants.

That it is the turn of the various Soviet republic congresses, every first secretary without exception emphasized law and order, as did many of the speakers at the 24th congress.

In these talks, law and order was seen as a principal means of enforcing stricter labor discipline.

Though in the past there has been much talk in the Western press of greater liberation for Soviet industry, more independence for local plant managers and increasing influence of the "market place," these themes were not evident in Brezhnev's words.

Instead, he called for the need for more centralized planning, more controls, more police and party enforced factory discipline, more supervision by government and party bu-

All Chiefs — No Indians

Weekly Cabinet meetings sometimes seem like meetings of the Joint Chiefs of Staff—with almost every other speaker addressed as "general."

For one thing, protocol has it that Atty. Gen. Robert Shubin be called "general." Gov. Reubin Askew, who presides over Cabinet meetings, follows this protocol closely.

At a recent meeting the general gave a brief address as did Highway Patrol head Ralph Davis, a former National Guard general.

And then came Chester Blakemore, director of the General Services Department. Askew smiled and joked, "and now for General Blakemore."

The white-haired Blakemore, a retired chief petty officer, stepped sharply to the podium, braced himself, turned to Askew and said, "Thank you, sergeant."

Askew was a sergeant in the Army paratroopers in 1946—although he became a captain in the Air Force in 1951-53.

'Bill Board Alley' Goes

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Unless Florida topples a "bill board alley" springing up near Disney World and moves advertising 660 feet back from federal highways the state may lose $12 million a year, a congressman and a legislator warned Thursday.

"It's no longer a threat, it is a real possibility," said State House Speaker Richard Petti-grew, D-Miami.

U.S. Secretary of Transportation John Volpe has given the state 60 days to comply with the Highway Beautification Act. That law says billboard ads must be the length of two foot ball fields distanced from each side of a federally funded highway.

But the Florida House Transportation Committee voted last Monday to make the federal government get a court decision before they'd approve tearing down a sign.

Florida Is Second

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bartering North Carolina, over the past two years, Florida schools have become the most desegregated among other Southern states, government statistics show.

Confirming preliminary figures of last January, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said Thursday the percentage of Negroes attending majority white schools in Florida has jumped from 23.3 to 48.9 per cent between 1968 and 1970.

The figures showed the percentage of blacks enrolled in majority white schools in the 11 Southern states doubled from 18 per cent in 1968 to 33 per cent last fall.

This compares with 3 per cent desegregation nationally, 28 per cent in the 33 Northern and Western states, and 32 per cent in the six border states.

Southern progress was virtually the sole reason for the nationwide desegregation increase from 23 to 33 per cent between 1968 and 1970, the report showed.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My pet gripe is newspaper! I buy a newspaper on my way to work every morning and the minute I get to the office, I see the sports section, "Can I see Dear Abby?"

We have half an hour for lunch, and it's the same at lunch. I have to ask for the minutes I'd like to read in my own newspaper. No one else seems to be troubled or exasperated to buy one, but they all want to read mine. One party even had the nerve to ask me if she could take my paper home with her.

How can I handle this without making enemies? DEAR ABBY: I'm sure you can be as available as any date to be available when Nick calls. Amy's eyes can be as bright as long as there are "hearts" in the same.

DEAR ABBY: I've had my husband in the last three years ago and I have a son whose father never saw him. I met a man in the office whose wife died recently and left him with two children under five years old. We fell in love and were using a lot of each other. We even spoke of marriage. Then I suddenly realized I had some serious competition.

Nick's sister in law, Amy (his wife's younger sister), filed for divorce and is trying to get Nick away from me. Her whole family is helping out by constantly inviting him to family parties and throwing Nick and Amy together. They would like to keep Nick in the family, as he is a very good provider. (Amy's husband is a good home.)

Now Nick is seeing more of Amy than me. I have turned down other dates so I can be available in case Nick calls. Should I let give up and let her have him? Or should I keep hoping? I can't run after a man the way she does.

CANT COMPLETE DEAR ABBY: Your competition is holding all the cards. Old family ties, plus a small army of nooters working in her behalf. A concept other dates and don't pass up any dates to be available when Nick calls. Amy's eyes can be as bright as long as there are "hearts" in the same.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a man who is very interested in a woman who is very demure. I would like to know you better before pouring out the story of my life, but tell him the truth as soon as it becomes apparent that he is seriously interested in you. It was right on!

BEEN THERE DEAR ABBY: You've advised me to try to be more affectionate and demonstrative or to forget the girl who craved affection, because as things stood it'd be a poor match.

I hope he takes your advice. I was just like that Italian girl 31 years ago—only dumber. I married a man who said he "loved" me, but he never gave me a compliment or demonstrated his love and affection. I kept telling myself that as long as he loved me, it didn't matter. I was wrong. There was more to it than that. He couldn't express other emotions such as anger, joy and sorrow. It wasn't his fault, but he refused to admit he needed professional help, so he never got over it.

If that Italian girl marries that emotional, I'm sure she'll be a very good provider. I hope she has a lover on the side. She'll need one. It's too late for me because after living with this undernourished man for 33 years, I, too, have become...

Construction starts on phase one of Crown Oaks Condominium at the Springs in South Seminole County as developer, architect's representative and a builder supervise the first steps of construction. Mark Schweizer, Jr., Han Schweizer and James Pugh are key figures in this first phase of the project that will include a shopping plaza for garden-style living. Thirty-six units valued in excess of $1 million will be built in phase 1. Each structure is separated from the other units in the complex by park-like greenbelts and recreation areas.

No two units will be alike in exterior design. All will feature natural materials to blend with the heavily wooded environment of the Springs. Purchase price of the condominiums range from $21,750 for the one bedroom unit to $33,250 for the three-bedroom townhouse with balcony situated overlooking the living room.

Crown Oaks Condominium is a project of EDG Developments, Inc., and Epoch Properties, Inc., the builder. The architectural firm of Schweizer Associates, in Winter Park, is represented on the project by Han Schweizer. Crown Oak Condominium sales are being handled by R. "Feather," of the Springs development.

Attend Church This Sunday

"I am the resurrection and the life; he who believes in me, even if he die, shall live; and whoever lives and believes in me, shall never die."
John 11:25-26

A BOY THAT MISUNDERSTOOD

As a boy, I was always disturbed by this Biblical passage in Matthew: "For I have come to set a man against his father and a daughter against her mother... He who loves father and mother more than me is not worthy of me."
In those days of innocence, it seemed that my greatest love should go to Mother and Father. They gave me life, love and visible physical needs that seemed all-important.

But what I did not understand was that this life of mine came directly from God through my parents. I had tried to separate God's love. And because a mother has God's love implanted in her heart, she will instinctively love me. Matthew was emphasizing the fact that God's love must come first and that human love will then follow in its proper perspective.

Take your child with you to church and church school so that both may gain a better understanding of God's will. One who really loves God supremely will invariably develop a deeper love for family, friends and neighbors.

Hibiscus Popular

The hibiscus has been given a boost in Florida for many years by the introduction of new varieties, particularly those in shades of yellow. Its popularity has increased tremendously. There are now over 100 varieties of hibiscus available in Florida. The most popular are the yellow varieties, which are easy to grow and maintain. They are also very hardy and can withstand the heat and humidity of Florida. The yellow hibiscus is a popular choice for many gardeners because of its bright color and long-lasting blooms. It is also a good choice for those who want a low-maintenance plant that will thrive in a variety of soil conditions. The yellow hibiscus is a beautiful addition to any garden and is sure to attract the attention of all who see it.
