Students at Seminole County's six high schools can expect to receive a phone call from their school guidance counselors sometime prior to the start of the new school year as district officials work to add an extra period to the school day.

Robert L. Bevier

Tallahassec. On hand were Bevier's lawyer, Ned Julian Jr. of Sanford, and Spiro T. Kypreos, staff attorney for the DPR. Bevier attended the hearing, but did not participate, according to court clerks. Bevier was stripped of his medical license by the medical examiners' board Dec. 4. 1982 following a hearing in Kissimmee. The DPR originally pulled his license under an emergency order on Sept. 11 "based upon administrative complaints" that Bevier had been injecting cocaine intravenously since August. 1981, drinking heavily, using Ativan and Vallum (tranquilizers), was guilty of malpractice and could not account for four of six vials of cocaine flakes which had been ordered by him for use in patient treatment, DPR officials

However, Bevier not only denies using drugs, he is looking for the appeal court to require the DPR to revoke his license for one year only, as originally agreed to by DPR and a hearing officer who made that recommendation following a hearing in Orlando Nov. 10, 1982 prior to the Kissimmee hearing. Bevier's appeal brief, argued before the court Wednesday, also contends his constitutional right to due process of law was violated in that the DPR introduced various hearsay evidence and statements and other "investigative material" at the Kissimmee hearing which were never brought up at the earlier Orlando hearing and which the DPR had agreed would not be introduced. Bevier claims his rights were further violated after that evidence was introduced even though the DPR lawyer instructed the medical examiners' board to discount it after Bevier complained it was improperly introduced, was hearsay, irrelevent and he had no opportunity to defend himself.

The DPR contends oral arguments were unnecessary in the appeal court and that the final order of the medical examiners' board was issued consistent with disciplinary guidelines...and asked the court to affirm the board's decision.

Kypreos' brief points out: "An amended administrative complaint was filed and a final hearing set for Nov. 10, 1982...Before any testimony was taken, Dr. Bevier, in exchange for the prosecutor's promise to recommend a one-year suspension, elected to voluntarily and knowingly waive his rights to a formal hearing by admitting the factual allegations in the amended administrative complaint regarding his cocaine habit and drinking problem and pleading guilty to all pending charges...." Bevier claims there was no mention of cocaine use in the amended complaint.

Kypreos further noted that Bevier pleaded guilty knowing the medical examiners' board could ignore the See DOCTOR, page 2A

Crooms-Seminole Merger Given Formal Approval

The merger of Crooms and Seminole high schools and the eventual re-opening of Crooms as a middle or elementary school has been approved by the Seminole County School Board.

The board Wednesday ensured the future use of Crooms as a school by formally approving stipulations which were part of a consent order from the U.S. Department of Justice allowing the Crooms-Seminole merger.

The order will be submitted to U.S. District Court Judge Elizabeth Kovakevich for consideration. As part of a 1970 desegregation order, the district was ordered to use Crooms as a ninth grade school. Any changes in the district's attendance zone must be examined by the Justice Department and a federal judge.

As part of the consent order, the School Board must maintain the school during the 1983-84 school year and then re-open the facility as a school beginning with the 1984-85 school year.

Superintendent Robert Hughes said he is pleased that the Justice Department goes along with the Crooms merger. "I feel very confident that the stipulations are very much in line with the intent of the board."

School Board Attorney Ned J. Julian Jr. said the school, when reopened, could be used for special education but "not as a book depository, maintenance facility or a

An inspection of Crooms, Sanford Middle School and Goldsboro Elementary School is expected to take place early in August. A team from the state Department of Education will conduct the inspection to evaluate the three schools for their future use.

First Black Autronaunt Accepts "Pacesetter' Role

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (UPI) - Air Force Lt. Col. Gulon S. "Guy" Bluford, who will continue the string of firsts for the shuttle missions next month by becoming the first black in space, says he accepts being a role model and anticipates a fun flight.

The eighth mission, set for late August, will also mark the first night launch and landing of

For his part, Bluford, 40, Wednesday said he was never "driven to be the first black astronaut in space."

I feel as if I'm a pacesetter but I don't teel as if I have to be perfect as well. I'm very pleased to be flying. I'm looking forward to it and think it's going to be a lot of fun." he said during a news conference with Challenger's crew.

Blastoff will be at 2:20 a.m. EDT, possibly Aug. 20, pending final preparations of Challenger at its oceanside space port at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

Challenger Commander Richard Truly said the night launch and landing should provide a spectacular light show for the public, but the rest of the mission would be lacking in spectacles but not in importance.

UAW Wants Profits Share

DETROIT (UPI) - Chrysler Corp.'s plans to repay its remaining $800 million in federally guaranteed loans seven years early means the firm is in a position to grant union pay raise demands, United Auto Workers leaders say.

UAW President Owen Bleber said Chrysler's announcement "recognized the company's responsibility to deal fairly with workers' demands for more money."

Said Bieber, "As proud as he (lacocca) is of the company's remarkable comeback, he knows full well that it was Chrysler workers more than anyone who made the sacrifices and exercised the forebearance which made that recovery

Chrysler workers currently make about $2 an hour less than their counterparts at the other Big Three automakers because of three sets of concessions granted as part of the bailout plan.

Auto Sales Up 42 Percent

DETROIT (UPI) - Domestic automakers say sales in the first 10 days of July were up 42.9 percent from last year's dismal levels and some popular models even are sold out for the rest of the summer.

The six firms said Wednesday they sold 135,604 cars in the 10-day period, up 42.9 percent from 108,618 last year. All reported increases except Volkswagen of America.

The daily rate of 19,372 sales was the best since 1980, when 19,480 cars per day were sold. The performance translated to an annual rate of 7.1 million, compared to 4.8 million in the period last year.

So far this year, sales on a daily rate basis are up 14.5 percent. The firms have racked up sales of 3,462,305 cars compared to 3,043,440 last

Sales for the Big Three automakers alone were up 42 percent in the period and are up 12.8 percent for the year.

Drug Runners Snared

BEAUMONT, Texas (UPI) - Authorities presaing the first case launched by a new federal drug task force snared more than half of 45 suspects accused of running a major marijuana smuggling ring along the Texas Gulf Coast.

U.S. Attorney Bob Wortham said Wednesday the roundup of suspects named in indictments handed down by a federal grand jury included Florida millionaire Jose Antonio "Tony" Fernandez, a fugitive who jumped a $500,000 bond two years ago. He said more than half of the suspects, who are mostly Cuban and Colombian nationals, were arrested during the first day of the sweep.

Fernandez, who was arrested through Interpol three months ago in San Paulo, Brazil, was alleged to be the leader of the group believed to have imported more than $200 million worth of marijuana between 1978 and 1980, Justice Department officials said.

Tobacco Supports Mulled

The measure, modified by the House late Wednesday, has been sent back to the Senate for further review.

Drug Firms Will Fight Order To Back Ad Claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The makers of Bufferin and Excedrin say they have "millions of satisfied customers" and will go to court to appeal a Federal Trade Commission ruling that comparative claims about its pain relievers must be clinically proved.

The makers of Bayer Aspirin say they also plan an appeal in the precedent-setting advertising claims case, which has been fought before the FTC for 10 years.

The FTC ruled Wednesday on complaints originally brought by FTC investigators in 1973 concerning ads that said - "What's better aspirin? New clinical evidence says Excedrin" or "tests showed Bayer makes the superior aspirin."

Such claims of scientific backing for comparisons of over-the-counter analgesics, said the FTC, are forbidden unless the companies have evidence recognized by scientists. In most cases that would mean two controlled clinical studies.

But the FTC limited its ruling to pain relievers, narrowing the focus in a case originally brought against comparative claims for many types of over-the-counter products, from mouthwash to denture adhesive.

Claims of fact, rather than comparison, are already required to be proved.

Separate decisions affected Bristol-Myers Co., makers of Bufferin, Excedrin and Excedrin P.M., and Sterling Drug Co., which makes Bayer Aspirin, Bayer Children's Aspirin, Vanquish, Cope and Midol. Advertising agencies for the companies also were named.

If a drug's active pain-relieving ingredient is aspirin, companies may not claim it is anything else or compare it to any other product without stating it contains aspirin, the decision said.

Bristol-Myers falsely represented that Excedrin contains special or unusual ingredients and Sterling made similar false claims for Midol and Cope, according to the commission.

Bristol-Myers said it will appeal the FTC decision in court, and a spokesman said Sterling also "anticipates an appeal."

But when he returned to resume practice in Lake Mary, he had to do so under the watchful eye of another doctor as part of his post-treatment agreement. Apparently, his colleage came to his Lake Mary office unannounced one day and asked Bevier to submit to a urine test. The request was made, the physician said, after he had reportedly received anonymous telephone calls accusing Bevier of

In any case, the matter now is before the courts and the question that needs to be resolved is whether Bevier should be granted another hearing at which he can defend himself against all and any charges, or whether the court should determine his rights were so violated it would be virtually impossible for him to get a fair; hearing. In that case, Bevier said he would ask the court to overrule the medical examiners' board and order his license reinstated.

To Mental Hospital

TAMPA (UPI) - A man accused of dousing supermarket patrons with gasoline and setting them afire, killing three people and injuring 15, has been ruled incompetent to stand trial for murder and ordered to a mental hospital.

Circuit Judge J. Rogers Padgett ruled John William Ferry Incompetent Wednesday following a 2 1/2-hour hearing in which psychiatrists said Ferry suffered from paranoid delusions, including that there is a conspiracy of millions of people to contaminate the world's food and water supply.

No date was set for the transfer of Ferry to the state hospital.

Ferry, 30, was charged with splashing gasoline on customers and employees at a Winn-Dixie Supermarket in Clair-Mel City July 2 and setting them afire, killing three and injuring 15.

Nudists Resume Battle

NEW SMYRNA BEACH (UPI) - Nude sunbathers have renewed their annual battle for the right to a complete tan on Florida's Atlantic

A group of nudists, who prefer to be called naturists, has organized a legal defense for 11 people arrested last weekend for bathing in the nude at Apollo Beach in Volusia County.

The organization, the Central Florida Sun Solution, also plans to lobby the Canaveral National Seashore commission to designate a section of "clothing-optional" beach.

Chris Phelps, president of the Sun Solution group, said naturists don't want to offend anyone — they just want to enjoy themselves in peace in the buff.

To further their cause, Phelps said the organization has retained Daytona Beach lawyer J. David McFadden to represent the arrested nude sunbathers, who were charged with disorderly conduct.

They are to appear in court Aug. 5 in New Smyrna Beach.

Graham: Tax Will Help

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Gov. Bob Graham says a broad, new corporate profits tax will help Florida's business and industry recruiting. rather than hinder it.

Graham said Wednesday the education improvements financed by the new tax will make Florida more attractive to big business.

The governor, still elated over the passage by the Legislature Tuesday night of a $230 million package of tax increases and improvements in the schools, discounted warnings that multina-tional corporations and other big firms already in Florida will get out.

"The incidence of police violence has been growing around the country," NAACP general counsel Thomas Atkins said Wednesday in "A disproportionate percentage of those victimized by police violence releasing a study that showed non-white Americans comprise 47 percent to 50 percent of people killed by police.

There's Cause For Compromise

Japan's apparent decision to drop its limits on auto exports to the United States next year is provoking more support in Washington for protectionist measures that would only hurt both countries in the long run. Defusing this potentially destructive confrontation will require a bit of statesmanship and compromise on both sides.

Two years ago, Japanese automakers agreed to limit their annual exports to the United States to 1.68 million vehicles, a drop of 7.7 percent from the levels of 1980. The limit was described in Tokyo and Washington as voluntary and temporary: A transitory arrangement allowing the battered U.S. auto industry time to retool for the production of smaller, more fuel-efficient cars.

In fact, the export quota was hardly voluntary. Japanese automakers had agreed to it only under the severest pressure from Washington. Reagan administration trade negotiators had told the Japanese bluntly failure to adopt "voluntary" restraints would result in passage of mandatory quotas by Congress.

What both Tokyo and Washington did agree on, however, was that the limits would be temporary. They were to be lifted as soon as the U.S. auto industry had recovered sufficiently to be able to compete head to head against the Japanese.

Tokyo evidently believes that recent profits chalked up by General Motors, Ford, and Chrysler mean that the U.S. industry will no longer need special protection when the current quota expires next March. The angry responses from Washington suggest that neither Congress nor the Reagan administration agrees.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige warned that an end to the quota next March would produce many more votes this year for so-called local content legislation. This protectionist measure, vigorously pushed by the United Auto Workers, would require substantial amounts of American-made parts in most imported autos.

The net result would be a mandatory quota far more restrictive than the current Japanese limit. The Reagan administration opposes the bill. noting correctly that its enactment could touch off trade retaliation by Japan and such European nations as West Germany.

Thus, there is a sound political case for pressing the Japanese to renew the current quota for another year. Should Tokyo balk, the Reagan administration could at least urge adoption of a new, less restrictive quota.

In exchange for this concession, Washington could agree to sell Alaskan oil to Japan. The administration recently announced it favors a partial lifting of the ban on such sales as a practical way to reduce the current trade deficit with Japan.

The Japanese would benefit as well by being able to purchase quality crude at a savings in transportation costs over Middle East oil.

For their part, the Japanese could remove some of the sting of even liberalized quotas for automobiles by moving ahead more vigorously with some trade liberalization of their own. Tokyo's Ministry of International Trade and Industry is still blocking the importation of American beef, citrus, tobacco products, and most types of telecommunications equipment.

Describing "free trade" as a two-way street is no less accurate for having become a cliche. Americans need to see that Japan can now make a case for lifting, or at least easing auto import quotas. Japanese need to understand that Congress and the Reagan administration are not going to give up demanding reciprocity for categories of U.S. products now effectively denied access to Japan's market.

And both sides need to see that nothing is to be gained while much may be lost by a failure to compromise.

BERRY'S WORLD

A THE LOCAL PROPERTY OF THE PR

The bumper sticker on the car ahead of me on French Avenue read: "I got a K.I.S.S. from the Central Florida Chapter of the American Red Cross."

Good, I thought. Parents are finally starting to buckle-up their kids. (For the uninitiated, K.I.S.S. stands for Keep Infants Seated Safely and is the name given the Red Cross program that rents child safety seats to parents at nominal cost). The bumper sticker led me to the hopeful thought that maybe there'll be a lot fewer children getting their brains knocked out in car wrecks, from fender benders to head-on collisions.

Or will there? As the car changed lanes and slowed down, I saw that the mother, sitting in the front passenger's seat, had the baby in a child restraint seat all right, but she was holding it in her lap!

To state the obvious, for any and all parents who similarly have their brains in permanent storage, to be effective a child safety seat must be fastened down. Or, to put it another way, child restraint means the child must be restrained. A child in his mother's arms is not restrained, whether he is in a safety seat or not. If you think a mother, or father for that matter, can hold on to a child during a collision, even a minor one, think again.

Highway safety researchers, using adult volunteers and infant mannequins in crash tests, have shown that no adult in a crash. at speeds as slow as 30-miles-per-hour, can keep a baby from being torn from their arms, even if they know the crash is coming and are holding on as tightly as

In a 30-mile-per-hour crash a baby is thrown with a force up to 30 times his weight. That's equivalent to dropping the child from a three-story building.

The all too common baby-in-parent's-lap is in special danger because the lap acts as a catapult during a crash.

the second of th

Similarly, a child in a safety scat not strapped into that seat, or in a seat not secured by the adult lap belts or other means, is often in a more precarious situation than one in no seat at all. That's because the child sits higher in a seat - a better position from which to be thrown through the windshield if the seat is not fastened down and the child not buckled

Florida law made it mandatory - when transporting children by motor vehicle. parents must ensure 3-year-olds and younger are restrained in approved safety scats: 4- and 5-year-olds must be in seats or buckled-up in seat belts.

But getting the equipment then not using it properly could do children more harm than good.

Just Who Is Greedy?

By Diane Petryk

A recent article by syndicated columnist Carl Rowan charged that what President Reagan wants is to "retain greed as the dominant ingredient in economic policies." He angrily complained that "money is being gobbled up by the greedy to the applause of the White House.

Well, Mr. Rowan needs to rethink his notions about greed. Webster's defines greed as "inordinate or all-consuming acquisitiveness." That isn't the attitude of American taxpayers who are forced to ROBERT WAGMAN carry an ever-larger burden of expense for wasteful government policies." Public resistance to excessive taxation certainly can't be defined as greed.

Most Americans are willing to pay whatever is necessary to safeguard the nation against foreign foes. They also are willing to pay for a reasonable level of public services. However, they are strenuously opposed to taxation for hurtful welfare state programs for a mushrooming bureaucracy. President Reagan's goal is to reduce the rate of spending on welfare and bureaucracy. That effort can't be described as wanting to make greed "the dominant Ingredient in public policies."

In April, the Private Sector Task Force reported that the federal government could save $48 billion over three years by implementing better management procedures. The desire to achieve such reform certainly isn't a manifestation of greed.

Mr. Rowan ignores the basic fact that a citizen's income doesn't belong to the government. The powerful bureaucrats and their friends in Congress have no right to confiscate a citizen's income. And it is confiscation that the taxpayers have been faced with for a number of years. Liberals like Mr. Rowan are liberal with other people's money. The income Americans enjoy is earned income, whether received in the form of salary, interest or dividends. It should not be taken away from them simply because bureaucrats or ideologists want to redistribute as they please. Citizens understandably prefer to devote their financial resources to their families rather than send money to Washington to fuel the bureaucracy.

Mr. Rowan also falls to understand that if taxpayers aren't allowed to retain a good portion of their income, there won't be funds available for investment and for the jobs that result from investment.

Mr. Rowan apparently can't grasp the fact that the real greed today is governmental greed. The advocates of giveaway government want to scize other people's assets and use it in accordance with bureaucratically conceived plans.

Greedy individuals exist in this world and include both liberals and conservatives and everything in between. But the taxpayer, who is forced to work hard to support wasteful programs, isn't greedy. Neither is a President who is determined that every effort be made to remove waste and fraud from government programs.

Going For Whose Gold?

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Attending the Olympic Games is a once-in-alifetime experience you might be considering, since the 1984 games will be in Los Angeles next summer. But if you haven't ordered tickets yet, you should know about the rules and prices you'll

The rules are a bit complicated: You have to order and pay for tickets now and then, this fall, the Los Angeles Olympics Organizing Committee (LAOOC) will let you know which tickets you'll actually get.

Whenever too many tickets are ordered for one event, a drawing will determine who gets in. The LAOOC already knows which popular events will be oversubscribed and has labeled these as "premium"; you can only order

Let's take the example of a hypothetical family of four - parents, son and daughter - ordering only mediumpriced tickets. (You also can order a 'season pass" that provides the same seat for all sessions of an individual event.) The family decides to attend the following events:

- Boxing: They'll see one set of semi-finals and one set of finals (there are two sets each available) at $50 each for the semis and $70 each for the finals, for a total of $480.

- Cycling: The kids just loved the movie "Breaking Away," so the parent order four tickets for each of two cycling sessions. At $30 each, that's a total of - Diving: This is one of the more colorful Olympic events - and since it's tagged as "premium," only two tickets can be ordered for each final session. Father will take the son to the men's final, and mother and daughter will attend the women's final. That's four tickets at $60 each, a total of $240. - Basketball: Dad's a basketball nut and wants to see a lot of the games, so he orders one season basketball at $1,500 (that's right - $1,500). Mom and the kids want to see some of the key games - which means an additional four tickets at $60. The total for basketball: $1,740.

- Gymnastics: Daughter is a gymnast and wants to see all of the sessions, so she gets a season pass for $1,350. The rest of the family orders another four single-session tickets at $60 each, for an overall total of $1,590.

- Swimming: This is another major Olympics event. The family will try to attend two of the swimming sessions. and four tickets at $60 for each session adds up to $480.

- Soccer: The son plays soccer and wants to see all the games - and soccer happens to be one of the great "bargains" of the 1984 Olympics. Two season tickets for soccer at $75 each totals $150.

- Track and field: This is the event of the summer games. For track and field. the LAOOC is offering "day passes" that get you into both sessions on a given day. The family orders three sets of four tickets at $45 each, for a total of $540.

- Closing ceremony: For this major event, the family orders four tickets at $100 each.

In addition to the above, our hypothetical buyers order 12 sets of four tickets each to other events. At an average price of $20 per ticket, that totals $960. The family won't see everything and won't get the best scats, but they'll see a good sampling of events. Their total ticket cost for the Olympics: $6,820.

However, the ticket costs are just the start. The family has to spend 16 nights in Los Angeles, and although many Los Angeles-area hotels are offering packages, the family should expect to spend about $150 a night - about $2,400 total. Food and miscellaneous expenses will run about $50 per person per day, or another $3,200.

Since some of the event sites are 200 miles from each other, the family will have to rent a car. And since they can get only two tickets to some events. many of which take place at the same time, they'll often have to be in two places at once. Therefore, the family rents two cars at an average of $60 a day - another $1,920.

Finally, since the family lives on the East Coast, round-trip air fare to Los Angeles will cost $500 per person, or a total of $2,000.

The final cost of their once-in-alifetime summer vacation: $16,340 which is why some wags are calling the 1984 games the "second-mortgage Olympics.

Then again, our mythical family could say to heck with it, stay home, watch it all on television and build a backyard swimming pool instead.

Between now and the start of the Olympics, you'll often hear the phrase. "going for the gold" - and after one look at the LAOOC's ticket prices, you'll know that it has nothing to do with

SCIENCE WORLD NASA May Use Coal For Fuel

By Bill Lohmann

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) - Now that the space shuttle is a clear technological success, the space agency is focusing its attention on a more down-to-Earth matter - saving money.

NASA is considering an innovative coal gasification plant at the Kennedy Space Center to produce the 378,000 gallons of liquid hydrogen the shuttle burns on each eight-minute climb into Currently, NASA purchases the fuel from a New Orleans manufacturer at a cost of 77 cents per gallon. With NASA planning up to 18 flights annually in a few years, that adds up to a lot of money.

In addition to making hydrogen, the polygeneration complex may be able to turn out enough by-products - electricity, heat, air conditioning and gaseous nitrogen - to make the space center an energy self-sufficent facility.

"Technically, the shuttle has arrived." said Gary Gutkowski. polygeneration manager at Kennedy. "The challenge now is to take it and make it cost-effective. This is one of many, many things we've got to do to keep our costs down.

NASA awarded a $250,000 contract to Scientific Design Co. of New York, to study the proposal further and come up with a plan for the one-of-a-kind plant and who should build it.

That report is due later this year. At the earliest, the plant would not be functional until 1988.

Despite the lack of concrete plans, preliminary estimates are encouraging to space agency officials.

Early figuring shows such a plant could save NASA and shuttle customers up to $1 million each mission.

Add in money saved by the production of electricty, heat and gascous nitrogen used to clean out shuttle components, and the $100 million price tag that is being tossed about makes the project sound like a bargain. "I'm very optimistic about the plant," sald Gutkowski. "We know energy market prices are going to rise. From our initial analysis, it looks very attractive. From everything we've seen, we can have fairly significant savings.

Coal gasification isn't a new development. Forms of the scientific process have been around since the 1700s. when it was used to make gas to light street lamps.

The technology being considered for the Kennedy plant also is considered environmentally advanced.

It prevents the emission of sulfur compounds that create acid rain, actually removing the sulfur compounds and avoiding the rotten-egg smell that is associated with some sulfur products. Gutkowski said.

Gutkowski said the plant would require up to 700 tons of coal daily. putting smiles on the faces of East Coast mine operators.

"We feel we could use the whole range of Eastern coals," Gutkowski said. "A lot of Eastern coals are high sulfur, but we don't have a problem with that because of the process.

JACK ANDERSON Arabs Don't Want Syria-Run PLO

WASHINGTON - The violent split in the Palestine Liberation Organization has the Middle East in turmoil. Most upset are the Arab nations, but the Soviet Union also views the PLO civil war with serious misgivings.

Last Nov. 10, I reported that Yasser Arafat was once again in danger of losing his leadership of the Palestinian exiles, and I identified Syrian President Hafez Assad as the moving force against Arafat. Quoting secret intelligence cables, I reported that Assad was trying "to oust Arafat and replace him with a full-blown radical."

Assad sought to take advantage of the PLO's defeat in Lebanon. He wanted to move the exile group's headquarters to Damascus, where he could control it and eventually put his own, extremist puppets in charge. But Arafat was too clever to walk into a trap like that, and moved the PLO's "temporary" headquarters to Tunisia.

Now the implacable rivalry between Arafat and Assad has exploded in the world press. What's not generally appreciated, though, is the alarm that the PLO cruption has caused among most Arab nations. The last thing they want is to see the Syrians take over the F.O.

world can be described as a ship with several skippers, each trying to steer it in a different direction, Syria is the proverbial loose cannon careening around the deck, scaring everyone aboard.

Syria is irresponsible enough by itself to be a danger to its Arab neighbors; they're afraid Assad would unleash the PLO against their own regimes, which are already in economic and political difficulties without Palestinian sub-

Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz flew to Cairo the other day for meetings with Egyptian officials. State Department sources told my associate Lucette Lagnado he was the highest-ranking Iraqi to visit Egypt in years. The main topic of discussion was Syria's attempt to seize control of the PLO.

The Saudi Arabian government has also tried quietly, but ineffectively, to restrain the Syrian power play, according to intelligence reports. But the Saudis were unwilling to play their trump card: a cutoff of the substantial aid they give the Syrians.

Even the Kremlin is unhappy at the prospect of Syria taking over the PLO.

The reason is simple: If the Arab Intelligence reports say the Soviets sent Arafat three telegrams of support within a one-week period. And the Soviet ambassador to Syria has reportedly been shuttling between Syrian officials and various PLO factions, trying to prevent a takeover.

If Moscow is concerned that the Syrian monster it helped create has grown too big to handle, the Arab governments can point to specific incidents to justify their fears of a Syrian-PLO combination: the assassination of PLO moderate leader Assam Sartawi by the extremist faction headed by Abu Nidal and the murder of Lebanese President-elect Bashir Gemayel. The Syrians welcomed these killings, if they didn't plot them.

There is also the matter of prestige. Major Arab governments, like Egypt and Saudi Arabia, resent Ascad's attempt to usurp the leadership of the Arab world.

So Egypt may try to form a "coneensus" of moderate Arab nations that will be strong enough to put down the Syrian upstart.

NEUTRON-STYLE BOMBS: The Pentagon is secretly producing partial neutron warheads, or "enhanced radiation weapons." More than 300 of these warheads, costing as much as $3 million apiece, are being built for the ground-to-ground Lance missile, according to a secret Pentagon report.

In addition, about 800 eight-inch neutron-type artillery rounds, costing more than $1 million apiece, are in the works. And 1,000 enhanced-radiation 155mm artillery shells are planned for 1986 delivery.

None of these will be true neutron bombs, which would give off only 20 percent of their fission reaction in blast and heat. The remaining 80 percent in "prompt radiation" would have no lasting contamination.

But the neutron-type warheads now being produced are still significantly lower in immediate blast and heat effects and higher in short-lived radiation. The new warhead for the Lance. for example, would give off 70 percent of its force in destructive blast and heat. and 30 percent in radiation — and some of that 30 percent would be in radioactive failout.

By comparison, a normal nuclear bomb is 85 percent blast and heat, 10 percent fallout and only 5 percent in short-lived radiation.

IN BRIEF

Death Threats Sent U.S. Staff In Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — A leftist guerrilla group threatened to assassinate more American military advisers and civilians in El Salvador, prompting the U.S. embassy to warn its personnel to stay off the streets and out of public places.

A U.S. embassy spokesman said Wednesday the death threats came from the Popular Liberation Forces, a guerrilla group that claimed responsibility for the slaying of Lt. Com. Albert Schaufelburger in early May.

Schaufelburger, 33, became the first American military adviser to die in El Salvador when he was shot to death May 5 as he waited to pick up a woman at a San Salvador university.

The spokesman said American intelligence had warned that the FPL was plotting to kill another U.S. military adviser, or a civilian embassy employee.

Death Penalty Rejected

LONDON (UPI) - The House of Commons, unswayed by the worst terrorist bombing in Northern Ireland this year in which four people died, voted decisively against restoring the death penalty for murder.

Members of Parliament debated for 6 1/2 hours Wednesday, then quickly and overwhelmingly rejected six motions to restore capital punishment, ignoring the wishes of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

Defying pundits who predicted a close vote. the main motion - supporting the death penalty for murder - was defeated by 145 votes, 368-223.

County Backs Down On Long Boat Dock

The Seminole County Commission has backed down from their opposition to a boat dock built four years ago in violation of county regulations.

Commissioners voted 3-2 Tuesday to allow a boat dock, constructed by Kenneth A. Russell, 1741 Missouri Ave., west of Sanford, to remain as it is even though a Seminole Circuit Court judge has ruled the dock should be removed.

The 20-foot dock was constructed on a canal which leads into the St. Johns River in 1979 without permission from the county.

County building officials placed a stop work order on the project but construction continued. Eventually, a deck, railings and a roof were built.

The case went to court in 1980 and where Russell was ordered to remove the dock or get the proper permit. He finally asked for that permit and commissioners agreed Tuesday.

Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff, who along with Commissioner Robert G. "Bud" Feather voted to remove or shorten the dock, said,"the whole thing could have been resolved if they had not ignored our stop work orders."

Kirchhoff, who opposed construction of the dock in 1979, said the court action cost the county and Russell thousands of dollars and left the county with no choice but to insist the dock be removed.

Feather said the county must show private citizens it will go to court if necessary for enforcement of its orders. But Commissioner Robert Sturm said it is not necessary to have the dock removed to prove its point.

"It will serve no purpose having them tear down that dock. The example will have been set." he said. The dock reduces the navigable portion of the canal to about 20 feet, Kirchoff said. He said if property owners on the other side of the canal want to build 20-foot docks the canal would be impassable.

Sturm, who voted to allow the dock in 1979, said the structure has proven not to be a safety hazard and should be allowed to remain. Commissioner Sandra Glenn, who also voted in favor of the dock in 1979, and Commissioner Barbara Christensen joined Sturm in voting to permit the dock to stay.

Also Tuesday, commissioners rejected a request from professional skier David Freygang to allow him to place a slalom ski course on Golden Lake near the Sanford Freygang told commisioners he wanted to place 32 cement blocks at the bottom of the lake to anchor the 16 buoys used in his course. He said no slalom skiing would be done when the lake was being used for other purposes and he said his skiing on the course would be limited to 45 minutes per day. When the buoys were not being used, he said, they would be removed.

Red Cleveland, director of the Sanford Airport Authority, said the city objects to Freygang's proposal because it would disturb people who lease Sanford's portion of the lake. The city leases its third of the lake to various civic, business and private groups for outings.

County staff officials said the lake is too small and too shallow for the proposal. They said Freygang's proposal could stir up nutrients in the lake, causing pollution.

The plan was rejected by a 5-0 vote.—Micheal Beha

Korgan Cools Off Ormond Beach...

By Sam Cook Herald Sports Editor

PORT ORANGE - When it came time for the Sanford coaching triumverate of Al Whitted. Bill Dube and Ed Korgan to roll the dice — you couldn't tell all the sevens from all the elevens.

Facing possible elimination Wednesday night against Ormond Beach, the Sanford Junior League All-Star mentors held back ace Terry "The Cat" Miller, and went with one of the most dominant Little Major pitchers of Sanford baseball past.

But that was two years ago. Could this pitcher-now-turned-catcher pull a page out of the past and give the Juniors a much-needed mound effort and a licket to Thursday's finals? You bet he could.

Eddle Korgan, pitching with the power and finesse of his pre-teen days, handcuffed Ormond Beach on six hits. struck out 11 and smacked a three-run homer as Sanford rolled to a 13.5 victory. "We gambled and it paid off," said coach Dube.

"That's the best game Eddle's pitched in a long time." "Fantastic job." chimed in Whitted, the manager.
"Now we'll go with Miller on Thursday and we'll still have Leonard Lucas or Korgan for Friday." Miller has nine of his allowable 16 innings left. Korgan has nine and Lucas, the MVP of the City Series won by Knights of Columbus, has all 16. Sanford's task is still a tough one. The Juniors must beat host Port Orange twice for a spot in the State Major Junior Recreation Tournament. One loss climinates them. On Tuesday, Sanford had Port Orange down and almost out in the sixth inning, but several wild pitches later, the hosts were off the hook with a 10-6 victory. For three innings Wednesday, the Juniors were flat. Ormand Beach bunched three of the six hits off Korgan in the first inning to take a 2-0 lead. In the third, scored two more runs for an 8-4 lead, Edwards, batting Ormand used one of Korgan's three walks, a blooper into left center and a sacrifice fly to push the margin to 4-0. Things perked up for Sanford, though, in the top of the fourth. Alonzo Gainey singled, stole second and went to third when the ball sailed into center field. Korgan slapped a one-hopper back to the pitcher, but Gainey tried to score, was caught in a rundown and tagged out as Korgan went to second.

Miller then followed with a double to left center which scored Korgan. "The Cat" immediately stole third and when the next pitch rolled away from the catcher. Miller narrowly beat a diving tag to pull the locals within, 4-2.

The best, however, was yet to come. Mike Edwards slapped a single to left to lead off the fifth. Gainey then lifted a fly ball to center field which was dropped, putting runners at second and third after Gainey stole second.

Korgan, who singled in the first, jumped on a high fastball and rode it over the center-field fence for a teamniates mobbed him all the way back to the dugout.

And there was more. Miller followed him with a walk. but was forced at second by Arthur Hersey who then District 4 Baseball

David Goldstick then chased Ormond's third pitcher from the mound with a ringing double to left which for the second time in the inning, drew another walk to reload the bases for Gainey. The stocky third baseman ripped a fly to center to score another run for a 9-4 bulge. Korgan then singled to center to plate Goldstick and drive in his fourth run of the frame. Miller then rapped a single over shortstop to close out the scoring and give Sanford an 11-4 edge.

We might be small, but we're well-constructed." said Whitted, "These boys can hit."

Fourteen batters went to the plate in the fifth as Sanford crashed six hits, drew four walks and scored

The last two tallies came via Ron Blake's booming triple which scored Walter Hopson in the sixth and Miller, who went all the way to second on an error by the shortstop, stole third and cruised home when the ball skipped into left field.

Ormond Beach added a meaningless run in the sixth on a double and a dropped fly ball. Korgan slammed the three-run homer and a 5-4 Sanford lead as his jubilant door thereafter, retiring six of the final eight hitters. He walked just three to go with his 11 whiffs.

Korgan had two singles to go with his homer. Miller had two filts and drove in two ruffs. Sanford, as usual. stole second. David Rape, the loop's top hitter, followed went wild on the base paths, stealing 10 bases in 10 with a base hit and Dwayne Willis walked to load the attempts. Gainey, Miller and Rape each had a pair.

...Merthie's Relief Saves Nationals

By Chris Fister Herald Sports Writer

LEESBURG - The opening round of the District 4 Little Major League Tournament here Wednesday night was almost. "Grodi to the Max" for the Sanford Nationals. But, thanks to the relief work of Mike Merthie. the Nationals pulled out a 12-7 victory over their old nemesis, Ormond Beach.

Sanford will play the winner of Wednesday's second game, either Ocala or Leesburg American, tonight at 8 while the two losers play the first game at 6.

Remnants of the past started to pop up Wednesday night as Ormond Beach, which seemed lifeless the first four innings, put on a late rally. A year ago, in Sanford. the Nationals took an early 17-3 lead over Ormond Beach, But, Ormond Beach put on a furious rally in the late innings and escaped with a 20-18 victory. Fortunately for Sanford, it was only the first loss for the Nationals last year, and they went on to beat Ormond the next day to advance to the state tourney in Tallahassec.

A year later, here in Leesburg, Sanford built an early 8-0 lead, and led, 12-1, going into the bottom of the fifth inning. Ormand Beach then pulled a page out of the past and railied for five runs in the bottom of the fifth, four on a grand-slam homer by Jeff Grodi, to cut Sanford's lead to 12.6. Ormand tacked on another run and loaded the bases with only one out in the bottom of the sixth.

Ormond was in a position to repeat last year's performance, but, Sanford then went to something it didn't have a year ago, namely, Merthie. The 11-year old righthander came on in relief of Willie "Sugar Tex" McCloud and set down Ormond Beach's top two hitters. Jacob Story and Grodi to preserve the victory for the Nationals. Sanford has yet to lose a tournament game.

"It started to look like last year there for a minute." Sanford manager Sylvester "Slick" Franklin, Jr. said. "It was a tough game, and I don't want you to let up on me now." Franklin told his team. "Right now, you're in the driver's seat to go to West Palm Beach (the state

McCloud and catcher Jeff Blake led Sanford to a 6-0 lead after the first three innings. McCloud retired nine of the first 10 batters he faced while Blake contributed a pair of solo homers.

Blake's solo blast in the top of the first gave the Nationals an early 1-0 lead and it remained that way until the top of the third. In the third, Blake led off with his second solo shot in a row to give Sanford a 2-0 lead. With one out in the inning, McCloud singled up the middle, went to second on a wild pitch and to third on a balk. With two outs. Tim Graham reached on an error and McCloud scored. Mike Merthic followed with an RBI single to left and both Anthony Merthie and Harry Chibberton walked to load the bases. Denny Clayton followed with a clutch two-run single up the middle to give the Nationals its 6-0 lead.

Sanford increased its lead to 8-0 with a pair of runs in the top of the fourth. McCloud reached on a fielder's choice and George Gordon singled to right. McCloud took third on Gordon's single and Gordon went to second on the throw to third. Graham then looped a fly ball to left field which was caught by a diving William Glenn. McCloud tagged at third and scored while Gordon tagged at second and went all the way around to score as Glenn's throw from left was off target.

Ormand Beach got on the board with a run in the bottom of the fourth. Gradi reached on a fielder's choice. went to second on a wild pitch, and scored on one of only two Sanford errors in the game.

Blake took second on the throw home and third on an Ormond Beach error. Hubert Williams then drew a walk to put runners on the corners. McCloud blasted the next pitch out of the park for a two-run homer, his fourth home run in five games.

Ormand Beach didn't give up, however, and stormed back with five runs in the bottom of the fifth. With one out, McCloud walked Todd Nichols and David Holt. Holt was out at second on a force play, but Nichols scored on the play on a Sanford error. With Richard Maloney on first, McCloud walked Scott Skillern and Story to load the bases. Horner Looks For Fastball, Braves Find 5-2 Win-Dodgers Lose PHILADELPHIA (UPI) - They say when something works, you should go with it. Not necessarily.

Ted Williams Can Make Sparks Fly

NEW YORK (UPI) — When you're as big and intimidating as Frank Howard, you don't have to hurry. Nobody in his right mind is going to push to get in front of you, so you have that little luxury of taking all the time you need whenever or wherever you want it.

That was what the Mets' manager was doing now in his Shea Stadium office, taking his good old time, searching for exactly the precise word to describe a man he obviously admired as much as any other in baseball. "Electric!" he finally hit on the word he wanted. "That's how I'd describe Ted Williams. Anytime he's around,

"All of us would like to say we are our own men, but the truth is all of us make concessions," said the 6-foot-7, 47-year-old Howard. "In my heart, though, I believe Ted Williams is the one man I know who is his own man. Listening to Howard, Bill Monbouquette nodded in agreement with Howard as to his assessment of

"I ain't seen the likes of him yet," said the Mets' pitching coach. "I played with him three years and I remember a game I pitched against Baltimore. He dropped two balls and I lost the game, 2-1. He said to me, 'I'm sorry, kid.' I wasn't worried about it. Not with all the games he helped win for me. But it bothered him. Next time, I'm pitching against Cleveland and Gary Bell struck out Ted three times. Near the end of the game, he says to Pete Runnels, 'get on, I'm gonna hit one out.'

Howard played for Williams four years. That was when Williams was managing the Washington Senators

"I thought he was a very good manager," Howard said. "He managed for the kind of personnel he had and that's all any manager can do. Everybody knows how much of an authority Williams is on hitting. What a lot of people don't know is how great an authority he was on pitching, outfield play and general strategy.

They only talk about his hitting, but who ever played that left field wall in Fenway Park any better than Williams? Carl Yastrzemski might be the only one and that wall has been there a long time. Plus when you discuss Ted Williams, you're talking about a man who is one of the most electric and charismatic personalities in the entire history of baseball. There isn't any doubt

"I've seen world championship fights, Super Bowl games, NBA championships and World Series." Howard continued. "I even was fortunate enough to play in a World Series, but the greatest single exhibition I ever witnessed by any man in sports was the one put on by

Howard was referring to one of those benefits the Red Sox annually hold for the Jimmy Fund. The club was staging a hitting exhibition and brought together several of its former stars like Dom DiMaggio, Walt Dropo, Johnny Pesky and Frank Malzone to participate. Williams was on hand, managing the Senators, so he

"Here he comes out of the dugout," Howard recalled the spectacle, his eyes lighting up. "He's 53 years old, hasn't played in more than 10 years and he probably hasn't picked up a bat in at least a month. Maybe even longer than that. But you can see him getting wired in for this. He doesn't even wait for them to announce his name. He walks up to home plate and all the people go

Howard was growing excited now. He got out of his

"Can you just picture Williams up there at the plate with the bat in his hands?" asked the Mets' manager. "That's like 18,000 light years ahead of us mere mortals. Anyway, he's up there now and he motions the pitcher with his hand like this, you know - go ahead and gimme your best stuff. The first pitch he hits a flare over the second baseman's head. The next pitch he pulls a line drive by the bag at first base. I said to myself there weren't five active players around who could hit the ball

"On the third pitch, he hit a ball to the warning track. Then he sent the fourth one into the Boston bullpen. He had one more pitch coming and you know what he did with it? Put it 30 feet deep into the right field bleachers. Then he simply tossed the bat up in the air and walked

And he did. He won the ball game for us.'

Officer Defends Soldiers' Right To Refuse To Write

concerns the suggestion from "Chaplain in Okinawa." advising parents who did not hear from their sons and daughters in the military to write to the commanding officer or chaplain: Note he said: "Writing the command chaplain or commanding officer will not result in any trouble for the service member, unless he or she persistently refuses to follow the counsel given." What would you and your readers say if Congress passed a law giving the mayor, the chief of police and the local ministers the right to call you in and "counsel" you to write to your parents? And if you persistently refused to follow their advice you would be subject to punishment? I think any person who does not write to his or her parents is a clod. I wish I had parents to write to. But it is still the right of the citizens to act like clods if they so desire without fear of punishment. In my 25 years in the service, I never saw one commander who welcomed such letters.

You may use my name. CHARLES T. CHECK. RETIRED CHIEF MASTER SERGEANT, USAF, DALLAS

DEAR ABBY: I wonder if you realize what happens when a person in the military receives involuntary "counseling" as a result of a parent writing to the chaplain or commanding officer?

A counseling session involves not only the commanding officer, but the first sergeant, his noncommissioned officer in charge, officer in charge, and his immediate supervisor. Each in turn "counsels" the enlisted person. The official counseling sessions become a permanent part of the serviceperson's personal military record, and you can be sure that all who see it will not be impressed.

Men and women who are old enough to lay their lives on the line to defend their country are old enough to decide whom they want to write and how often. G.S.S. (EX-GI), SAN MATEO, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: i served as a chaplain in the military and after "counseling" servicemen whose mothers had written me or to their commanding officers, I learned that most of these non-writing enlisted men had valid personal reasons for not writing home. Many joined the service in order to grow up and break away from domineering parents. In any case, their personal reasons are their own business.

Complaining to a servicemen's superior is an unfair. vindictive way of punishing a son (or daughter) who has left home to join the military, and I for one would like to

DEAR ABBY: I'm surprised you didn't tell that chaplain on Okinawa that any man or woman old enough to be in the service is old enough to decide to whom he wants to write.

For a parent to write to the chaplain or commanding officer is outrageous.

If a serviceperson is seriously ill or (God forbid) dead, the parents are notified immediately.

OUTRAGED IN INDIANAPOLIS

About 25 years ago my brother was stationed in Germany. With him were his young wife and baby. After not hearing from him for some time, my mother got in touch with his commanding officer, who read the riot act to my 21-year-old brother. He was so humiliated and angry he did not forgive my mother for many years.

As much as it hurts not to hear from our children (and I am the mother of four), we do not have the right to embarrass our adult children in the name of "love." NAMELESS, PLEASE

Movie Business Managers: Saints Or Scoundrels?

By Vernon Scott UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Business managers are the most suspect members in the life support systems of

The are vital members of the coterie surrounding multimillionaire celebrities, falling somewhat lower in the pecking order than talent agent and personal

The flesh-peddling talent agent, who finds work for stars, rakes off 10 percent of the gross. Often the personal manager, a Svengali who guides the star's personal and career lifestyle, rips off 15 percent or more.

Business managers take a meager 5 percent for handling a celebrity's finances. With big bucks involved, business managers undoubtedly invite temptation and almost always suspicion.

After all, he is financial adviser, bookkeeper, accountant, investment and insurance counselor, tax planner, check writer and paycheck depositor.

There is plenty of room for fancy footwork, double entries, embezzlement, defalcation and other white collar felonies and wholesale larceny. It is inevitable, therefore, the business manager is blamed when stars such as Doris Day, Hoyt Axton, John Wayne or Red Skelton find themselves broke or in debt

Accusing fingers, too, are pointed at business managers when a superstar dies and the heirs discover the coffers are empty. The possibility that the star was goes the cry. Cherche le business manager.

A few crooked business managers have given shady reputations to many upstanding business managers, few of whom have defended themselves successfully.

But business managers can take heart in the recent victory of Tucker, Morgan, Martindale and Company over actor Robert Vaughn who sued the firm for $1.4 million for mishandling his finances from 1960-75. A Los Angeles Superior Court ruled in May that the firm did not conspire to divest Vaughn of his fortune. At present, the actor is appealing the decision, but Larry Martindale is ecstatic that his company was exonerated after an eight-year legal hassle.

There are many reasons for Martindale's joy, not least among them his clients, including Charles Bronson. Telly Savalas and Jean Stapleton.

Over the years the firm has managed such as Robert Redford, Pat Boone, George Montgomery, Richard Chamberlain, Elke Sommer, George Hamilton and Susan Saint James.

Among the company's earliest clients were the Marx Brothers, Alan Ladd, Anthony Quinn, Glenn Ford and Gregory Peck. "This is the first time I've heard of a business manager winning such a case," Martindale said. "It cost us a fortune to fight the case, but it has all been worth it

Why. Martindale was asked, do stars need a business manager? Why can't they handle their financial affairs "Business managers are a necessity for show business personalities because the money comes in so fast and there's so much of it," he said. "One man or woman just can't cope with all the complications. 'Actors generally are horrible businessmen. By nature, they earn a lot of money one year and nothing the next. When they are earning it, they tend to spend it. They are generally uneducated in finance. Sometimes we find ourselves writing 50 checks a week for a single client. But we never sign the checks ourselves. They are sent to the client so he knows exactly where every penny is going. "One of the best businessmen I've worked with is Charles Bronson. He, like some others, seems to have the Midas Touch. Everything they invest in turns to

"But some stars are impossible to work with. They pay for your advice and then go listen to some guy in a bar and take a flyer on his tips."

One of the principal activities of the business manager is fighting the Internal Revenue Service when a client's income tax is audited. According to Martindale, a no-nonsense businessman, almost all movie stars' returns are audited as a matter of course.

We are very conservative with our client's finances," Martindale said. "We have to be."

Reagan Backs Fed Aid In Collecting Child Support

WASHINGTON (UPI) -President Reagan, yielding to pressure from women. will allow federal aid to states to be used for collecting child support payments from delinquent fathers in non-welfare familles as well as those on

The president also agreed to have the federal government pay a larger share than he first proposed for collecting the Reagan told Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler and a group of Republican congresswomen Wednesday he would moderate the administration's original plan, which would have cut the federal share from 70 percent to 54 percent. settling instead on a 60-40 split with the states.

"This is a liberalization of that change," Mrs. Heckler told reporters later. "The reason for the change is that even though the states were funded at 70 percent by the federal government. the enforcement of (court) decrees did not measure up to the amount of funding, so it was profitable for a state to accept the federal funding and not really enforce that much more."

Mrs. Heckler said by providing an incentive to the states, those that have "the most aggressive, cffective child support enforcement program will receive part of a bonus payment and we will reward the performers rather than just paying a maximum state cost."

She said the issue has been discussed with White House aides before, but not with the president. who was lobbled at the meeting by Sen. Nancy Kasacbaum, R-Kan., and Reps. Olympia Snowe. R-Maine, Marge Roukema, R.N.J., and Bobbi Fiedler. R-Calif.

Reagan's moves come at a time when he is under attack from women in both political parties and suffering the conse-quences of a "gender gap" in polls showing women opposing him by far greater margins than men.
