Stagg Will Not Be Staff Member At Olympic Games As Result Of Decision

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service
Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—A. Alonso Stagg, grandfather of the Middle Western athletics, and Walter Christie, who produced three intercollegiate championship teams at the University of California, will not be members of the American coaching staff during the Olympic Games at Amsterdam. This much the writer was able to learn today, although he cannot say whether or not Stagg and Christie declined an appointment. It perhaps would be nearer the truth to say that no appointment has been offered them or any other auxiliary coach at this early date. The only appointee known up to the moment is Lawson Robertson, of the University of Pennsylvania, who was head coach of the winning Olympic team at Paris in 1924.

One, by the way, has to go all the way back to those particular games, to get to the origin of the present situation. Discord arose between the coaches while the American team was in training at Columbus and, while open discussion was avoided, the declaration that some members of the board were pulling in separate directions had not been denied.

This argument has been advanced as the main reason America was able to win only one of the flat races at Paris and the Olympic committee is said to be determined that the same situation shall not arise again. Robertson once more has been placed in charge of the team's training but this time no halfway measures have been attempted. He will be in absolute command, whereas in 1924, the committee named Robertson to shoulder this responsibility and then took away some of his power by placing Christie in charge of the field events and advising Robertson that he merely was to be over-seeer of the runners.

He, however, was in a spot to take the complete "slap" in the event of a team failure and so he found his position almost unbearable. Christie, of course, had his own ideas about the training of jumpers and weight men and they must have been good ones, since it was with men of this type that he won three college championships. Yet the need of an absolute head, both responsible and accountable to the American public for the success of the team, was obvious.

To be truthful, it is not well but probable that Stagg and Christie were pleased with a position that would have allowed anyone to take the credit for the first place.

LONDON TO VIEW SHAKESPEARE IN MODERN DRESS

By Davis J. Walsh

LONDON, Dec. 31.—(INS)—Shakespeare in modern dress, the dramatic innovation which called forth a chorus of criticism then praise with it was taken to New York two seasons ago—was again presented to Londoners early in the new year. Three plays by the Bard of Avon are expected to be put on with the characters attired in the latest from Bond Street and the Rue de la Paix, and once again the theatrical conservatives are raising their voices in agonized complaint over such facetious handling of the great dramatist's works. The play which will be treated in this modern vein are "Macbeth," "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "The Taming of the Shrew," and "Hamlet," which was produced with modern trappings here several years ago, will again be put on and those who are bucking the projects are hoping that the phrase "merger" will not be too cruel in their appraisal of the performance.

The name of the venture is Sir Harry Jackson, the well-known British theatrical producer, and the plays are part of an ambitious schedule prepared for the Court Theatre in the early part of the new year. Sir Harry is not going to be satisfied merely with these Shakespearean revivals. He plans to put on Lord Tennant's "Harold," a play never before produced, and Shaw's "Back to Methuselah" in its entirety. Theatre-goers will remember that this latter piece of work took three nights to show. Sir Harry is going to give each play four weeks' run, regardless of whether it is a success or a failure. He plans also to produce "The Auding Machine" by the American playwright Elmer Rice.

Road Sense

Statistics recently published showing that there were five hundred and twelve persons killed in Florida last year by automobiles only serve to emphasize the importance of more careful driving on the part of motorists, or more stringent laws on the part of the state.

As the Tampa Times says, this casualty list "would shock the entire nation and bring telegrams of sympathy and offers of assistance from the world if it represented one sudden disaster like a hurricane, an earthquake, or a volcanic eruption. The five hundred and twelve men, women and children are just as dead."

In the discussion of automobile accidents we find much said about who had the right of way, the speed, certain car was making, blinding headlights, slippery streets, and a thousand and one excuses, not reasons, for mishaps. If a man is thoroughly alive to the fact that he is DRIVING A CAR, he does not have to worry about such things.

"Road sense" will tell him what to do. In a little pamphlet published by the National "Safety First" Association of England, in conjunction with the Royal Automobile Club, The Automobile Association, and the Commercial Motors Users Association, we find these rather interesting comments on "Road Sense."

"To the alert driver many often barely noticeable objects instinctively suggest danger: a ball rolling across the road may be chased by a child as yet unseen; the pedestrian, whose feet can just be seen under the cart by the roadside, may suddenly emerge from behind it; a shadow on the road, a dust cloud, or the glimpse of a whip, hood or windscreen over the top of a hedge may mean the sudden emergence of a vehicle from some hidden side road; dirty wheel tracks on the road hint at harvest carts coming out from fields; and so on.

"Some drivers even possess an uncanny instinct of divining that the child or pedestrian on the path or refuse will suddenly step right in front of him; or that there is some fool around the corner ahead on the wrong side of the road, or with his vehicle drawn up on the curve.

"One of the fascinations of driving is the cultivation and exercise of Road Sense, which may be defined as the art of anticipation and intuition which enables a driver to do the right thing under all varying conditions. It can only be perfected by practical experience. It implies such a complete knowledge of this Safety Code that the corresponding correct action when driving is automatic.

"Road Sense therefore demands imagination, courtesy and common sense; a spirit of "Give and Take," and true sportsmanship. Road sense leads to safety and good-fellowship on the road. Therefore CULTIVATE ROAD SENSE. Learn to read road conditions, and so to anticipate danger and to act correctly."

Lynchings Are Reduced

Lynchings last year in the United States were about half the number for 1926, according to a survey that has just been completed. There were only sixteen during the twelve months just passed while for the preceding year there were thirty. This information is very gratifying to the great majority of people who look upon lynching as the worst crime against constituted law and order.

The large decrease is attributed to a possible growth in respect for the courts in administering justice and also to an increased sense of responsibility for the protection of society. A greater regard for the courts is probably due to the fact that tribunals in most states have endeavored to function surely and swiftly. There is still room for improvement in this respect although it is admitted that with public co-operation much has been done to speed up the court machinery in order that justice might be meted out properly.

John Temple Graves in writing in the Jacksonville Journal furnishes us with an interesting comment on the subject when he says, "To wipe out lynching it is necessary not only to inculcate a respect for law but also to keep the law worth respecting. In other words, the greatest incentive to lynching today is abuse of the pardon power, the delay in legal processes, the sentimentality of the jurists and the too frequent avoidance of punishment by plea of insanity."

The Jacksonville Editor's reference to the widespread use of the insanity plea to escape the extreme penalty is timely and well taken. The success with which it has been used by hardened criminals and willful murderers contributes an even greater menace than lynching. Capital punishment still exists in most states and in cases where the circumstances demand this penalty it should be carried out despite spectacular defense tactics and pleas of the sob sisters. The theory of capital punishment says Mr. Graves "is not vengeance but protection."

One glaring example of the use of the insanity plea has just been observed in the Remus case and indications are that the same defense will be used by attorneys representing William H. Hickman, confessed kidnapper-slayer of little Marian Parker. When men like Remus and Hickman escape the death penalty on grounds of insanity their case constitute travesties on justice and it is great wonder in the face of such examples there are so few lynchings.

SAVAGE INSTINCTS

ORLANDO REPORTER-STAR

On last Sunday when all the world was exhibiting the Christmas spirit, and when most of the cities of the United States were singing a hallicajah chorus, one Florida city spent the day in an exhibition of the savage instincts that are still undisturbed in some breeds.

A headline in the Miami Herald on Monday read: "Public Brands Dog Coursing Brutal Sports." In a full column front page story the Herald tells of a dog coursing race held Sunday afternoon on the dirt tracks of Hialeah at which a large crowd was in attendance. The story says that the event had been well advertised and brought sports from other states to the race, but that hundreds of spectators were indignant at the manner in which the rabbits were run down by the greyhounds and torn to pieces.

The Herald says that officers of the Coursing Club, of which J. L. Quimby is president, had told a Herald representative on Saturday that the coursing under their plans would result in killing the rabbits, though as a matter of fact, six were ruthlessly slaughtered by the dogs to satisfy the savage instincts of those who gathered to witness the races, and to fill the pockets of the conscienceless promoters. The attitude of the promoters toward a decent regard for animal life is shown by the following paragraph from the Herald story:

"Then comes the part which sent the patrons away filled with indignation. If, at the end of two minutes, the rabbits is still at large and the dogs still chasing it, a third dog is sent into the arena. This third dog is fresh and it takes him only a short while to outstrip his tired companions and catch up to the tired rabbit. And when he catches up it's just too bad for the rabbit.

"Officials of the races last night admitted that as handlers of a coursing race they are not interested in the conservation of rabbits. "Those dogs are worth quite a lot of money in many instances," they said, "and it may be dangerous to let them run too long after the two minutes are up. We know the winning dog by that time, so if the rabbit has not escaped from the inclosure by that time, this third dog is sent in to catch it, or chase it through the safety fence. Nothing which happens after two minutes are up has a bearing on the race. The third dog merely goes in to catch the rabbit or chase it away so the other dogs will not be run too hard."

No city and no state can afford to allow such men to exploit them for personal gain. Even if there is such an absence of a sense of propriety with the ruling classes of any community as to prevent interference with such exhibitions, there is plenty of law in the state to completely ignore laws and

More than 75,000 came to see the rose tournament; crowds from all over California came to the football game.

EVERYTHING IS IN THE UNITED STATES. Coming down through the Cajon pass to Pasadena warm in sunshine with roses blooming everywhere in the open air, you pass dozens of automobiles going up the pass, carrying skis and toboggan sleds. They were bound for Great Bear lake and the mountains, where snow lies five feet deep. Only three hours of touring separates the rose tournament from the deep snow.

THE LONDON GAZETTE published inadvertently an admirable announcement of extra pay for officers in charge of aircraft operations by submarines. That Britain has submarines equipped with folding aircraft, ready if necessary, to carry destruction to the enemy's harbors, is a secret no longer.

That it is intended for Germany. We don't expect war from Britain, but what the British can build others can build.

WE SPEND BILLIONS on battleships, little on submarines and airplanes, and our submarines have a way of going down and staying down.

Suppose a dozen enemy submarines would slip into the harbor of New York, Boston or San Francisco and Oakland, destroy any floating fighting ships, then release airplanes to raid the city and hold it for ransom. That is the sort of attack planned when submarines are built to carry fast aircraft.

WHAT EFFECTIVE defense could we offer to such an attack? None, except an offer to pay any price for mercy. Our new navy may read, some day, "not a cent for defense," but billions for the navy.

NEWS MORE important than rose tournaments or football games supplied by Lord L. S. Bowen of California, past president of the American Association of University Men, is the fact that at the end of the sixteenth century, about the middle of the sixteenth century, the world was made up of "excited" men.

IF WE KNOW more about that gas which Sir William Huggins long ago guessed at, and called "nebular," we might understand the stuff of which stars and planets are made, the raw material of the cosmos.

LET YOUR children look at little specks in the Milky Way and you will see the very spots are in, some a million times as big as our sun, which in turn, is a million times as big as our earth. Such stars have a little meaning for an astronomer. They say for the imagination.

THE UNITED STATES employment service reported a record of work for 1928. The old bugaboo of a bad election year seems to have vanished. The ranks of unemployed Americans are thinner, only 2,887 in 26 against 50,556. The ultra rich, however, are increasing. Two hundred and twenty-eight Americans had incomes of $1,000,000 or more last year, only 207 in 1925.

Quite a few have incomes above $500,000 a year. The government does not give their names.

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS' memory is to be honored by building a magnificent lighthouse costing $4,000,000. What is left of Columbus' body will lie under the lighthouse under a reservation given by the government of San Domingo.

Columbus would be puzzled by one feature of his memorial, namely lights shooting up into the air to guide fliers. He would think angels were expected. Architects are invited to compete in this enterprise which should stir the imagination.

REPORTS OF THE airplane bombardment of an abandoned river bridge near Albarran, N. C. prove that our pilots are able, and all we need is a real fighting air fleet. Bombs containing 500 pounds of explosives easily demolished a structure of reinforced steel and concrete. What would 5000—pounds TNT bombs do to a battleship?

YOU REMEMBER GOLIATH

DON'T overlook the smaller advertisements in this paper. Look them over. The message which an advertisement conveys is vastly more important than the mere size of the space it fills. Some of the biggest values are often described in type no larger than ordinary news-print.

THE safest method is to read all the advertisements large and small. Experience proves that it is time well spent. The more time you spend in preparation for shopping, the less actual time you will have to be on your feet in the stores.

Read the advertisements in this paper and you will know in advance just what to buy, where to buy it and how much you will have to pay for it. You will conserve your own energy and that of the salespeople whose job it is to wait upon you. Preshopping in the advertising columns is simply common sense.

IF you have been skipping the little advertisements in this paper, decide now that you will give them a hearing after this. It will be as much to your advantage as it will be to the advantage of the merchant or manufacturer whose name is signed to the advertisement.

Referring again to size, there's a little boy in the movies whose salary makes that of many a man look like petty cash

Dollars in your pocket for every inch of Herald advertising---

LLOYD SHOE COMPANY

Sanford, Florida

January 4, 1928.

The Sanford Herald
Sanford, Florida.

Gentlemen:

I believe that advertising in the Herald has contributed largely to the success of The Big Sale, and I wish to take this means to extend a few words of appreciation.

From the first full page advertisement inserted to announce the opening of the Big Sale on Dec. 14 to the small ad which was inserted yesterday, every inch of advertising space in the paper has paid a dividend in increased sales.

That is what counts, dollars brought into the store to match every inch of advertising space! That is what Herald advertising has done.

True enough I have offered exceptional bargains in all kinds of shoes, but I feel sure that, unless I could have reached every citizen of Sanford and Seminole County, at such comparatively slight cost and told them of the bargains, the sale would not have been entirely successful.

The Big Sale closes in about ten days. When it has been concluded successfully, I shall give a large share of the credit to the Sanford Herald.

Very Sincerely yours,
LLOYD SHOE CO.

English Authority. On Transportation Predicts Heavy Increase in Cars That Will Require Drastic Measures

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Forecasting
 the age of "skyscraper" roads
 as the only solution for the ever increasing traffic problems of the world's great cities, Lord Montagu, England's foremost authority on transportation, prophesies that within six years there will be double the number of motor vehicles on the roads as there is today.

"The Transport Problem," the problem of traffic on the roads, of moving people and things from one place to another, is the great problem of the twentieth century. It overshadows every other. Upon our handling of it our future depends."

Though Lord Montagu dealt with the traffic situation at it affects London, his views and suggestions are international and can be applied to many of the other great world centres.

Difficult Plan
 His plans for a solution of the traffic congestion are not extremely difficult to have put into programs. They are really the classification of roads on a somewhat similar basis as is used to a small extent in the United States today.

"There should and must be different roads for different classes of traffic. It is most unreasonable to let all kinds of traffic—fast slow, light and heavy—all go on the same roads.

"First of all there should be huge trunk linking up the different big centres of population. On these roads there would run heavy trucks and vans and there would be no speed limits.

"Do not get the wrong impression that 'high speed roads' would be dangerous. They would avoid the congested city centres, circling around it to the highways, and would be as safe as the present state of affairs.

"The next class of road, the B class, would be for any vehicles above a specified weight, and would be of a higher standard.

"Then would come the great mass of unclassified roads existing at present upon which there would be no heavy traffic and on high speed roads.

When they approached the big cities, these roads would go either underground or overhead. That brings me to an essential part of my vision. In the city of the future the fast heavy traffic will inevitably be underground or overhead."

Highways On Arches
 Lord Montagu's ideal for this is the construction of highways
 over the city, which are supported by enormous piers, reminiscent of one of Roman aqueducts.

When it was suggested that these visions were rather futuristic, Lord Montagu replied, "Why not?
 They would give a new dignity, a new charm to the city, and they would be a long way towards paying for the overhead road."

In these arches he pictured offices above which would be situated dwelling, abodes or "flats."

"Every pier could be constructed like that, and there would be a large income from the rent which would go a long way towards paying for the overhead road."

"I am convinced that we cannot do without overhead or underground roads in the cities of the future."

"Let us recognize that transport is the biggest problem of this century, and accordingly. There would be no fear of our solving the problem if we go sensible and energetically to work."
