Arctic Expedition Lands Seaplanes At Base In Greenland

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—What the next war will be like nobody knows. Different schools of experts predict half a dozen or more entirely different kinds of fighting. They say the Navy is planning to use seaplanes in the next war.

Two of the naval airplanes carried north by the expedition party had been put on shore. One of them engaged in a successful test flight immediately after being assembled. The other apparently had a breakdown, but the garbled radio message received today by the navy department did not indicate any serious damage.

Lieutenant Commander Byrd, who sent the message, said rain and snow prevailed yesterday at Etah and the men had to work under the most adverse conditions. It was given to them.

The third plane was to have been taken ashore today and flights for two of them were prescribed. It was made flight of 19 miles tomorrow to Eskimo village to have some Eskimo clothes made for flying. The navy department is to get them to the north.

Lieutenant Commander Byrd, said, "Eskimos are only seen light enough to see the same time worn enough for work and flying we have to do."

"Biggest task has been to get planes overland and ashore without wings. Use block and tackle to get planes up steep runway. There is plenty of light to fly at midnight if necessary."

Ignorance Bliss For Tourist Until Meaning Of Big Word Is Told

THE DALLES, Ore., Aug. 7.—A thirsty tourist quaffed vigorously from a roadside spring between Miller and Hamilton streets about twenty miles from here. A sign lettered "This water is contaminated" had been placed inside the spring. Division Engineer Wannan of the Oregon highway department, driving by, saw the drinker and stopped to warn him, only to be met by the question, "What kind of mineral water is this? I never heard of it before."

The State replaced the sign with one reading: "This water is rotten. Not fit to drink."

Valuable Painting Of Christ Is Found Recently In Mexico

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Aug. 7.—Father J. J. Hartman, chaplain of St. Anthony's orphanage, has found what he believes to be one of the most important discoveries of America or Europe in recent years, a life-size painting of Christ in a Catholic mission church at the Indian pueblo of Jajala, near Father Hartman has seen the most noted paintings of Christ over the world, and he considers the work in the mission church the most perfect he has studied. The picture is partly in relief, and the color harmony is remarkable. He believes the painting to be of the Byzantine era, preceding any of the European schools. The name of the artist is not known. Father Hartman is of the opinion that the painting was brought to the Isleta mission by early pioneers who accompanied Spanish conquistadors on their first conquest through New Mexico. The mission church is about 200 years old.

The picture has been temporarily removed from the church because of its great value, until permanent arrangements for its safe keeping can be made.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE LEADETH ME.—I will bring the blind by a way that they knew not; I will lead them in paths that they have not known; I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight.

MOTHERING

To want you for the joy of you, I thought was my desire, The singing, smiling boy of you That never seemed to tire;

But, man of mine, it isn't then, Alone that women want their men— We want you sometimes when the smile Has left your lips a little while.

We know there is another you, Another life you lead; And, oh, we want to mother you When that is what you need!

So in your trouble come to us, When winds are blowing wild, You're always lover some to us, Yet always some a child.

For life the time will always bring You need a little mothering— To heal your hurts, to get you through— And then we want to mother you.

What's happened to Musclic Should? asks an exchange. We'll bite, what has?

One thing in favor of a bald-headed man, he ought to be able to see the bright side of things.

Today's best laugh: In a majority of households the better half is the whole cheese.—Tri-City News.

It is rumored that Henry Ford will take one of his shipping board vessels to Morocco in an effort to bring about peace between the French and Abd-el-Krim.

"I went to see a girl last night and as I walked in she handed me a card, I said, 'What's this?' She said, 'It is a rain check.' In the event that four and a half inches of this date are not finished, this check is good for the succeeding night."—Macon Telegraph. Well, what are we coming to next?

It's now Daytona Beach. By an overwhelming vote Tuesday, the citizens of Daytona, Seabreeze and Daytona Beach, decided to consolidate the three cities. After years of rivalry which materially retarded the growth of each place, the three cities have discovered that "united we stand" is better than "divided we fall." Congratulations to greater Daytona Beach.

Cornelius Van der Brugg, Jr., of tabloid paper fame and publisher of the Miami Daily Tab, on a recent visit through Georgia, took occasion to boast that state but did so with many insinuations against Florida. We have heard of several instances where the young millionaire has intimated that Florida is unstable and its future uncertain, all of which leads us to ask that if these things are true, what in the world induced him to establish a newspaper in this state and what still makes him continue its publication at a loss of between twelve and fifteen thousand dollars a month?

Oh, list to the tale, Of poor dumb Pete— Made a left-hand turn On a one-way street. —Miami Tribune

The late Jack Cass, Was full of nerve— He liked to pass, Folks on a curve, —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

To Adolph Jinks, We pen this ode— He claimed his half, Of a country road.

Jim Talked to his girl, And trusted to luck; But it didn't keep him, From hitting a truck.

Rockaway A Good Example

News dispatches Thursday told of a flood of worthless checks being circulated in New York where the Rockaway land boom—a real sensational boom—is in progress. Bankers have estimated that from eight hundred to a thousand bad checks are being received every day and they are finding it necessary to employ extra clerks in an effort to trace the paper. Real estate deals in many instances will be void because many of them have been floated on worthless checks.

So far Florida has been comparatively free from the wooden check writer but The Herald would like to see such public sentiment created that there would be no worthless checks issued. The daily reports of the Sanford Credit Association contain the names of all those who write checks without having sufficient funds on deposit to cover them. But it seems there are some people who take great delight in this class of publicity and do not consider the matter at all as anything to be ashamed of.

Checking accounts with banks has many advantages, but the most important ones are that they permit an individual to keep his funds in a safe place, provide a uniform receipt for bills paid by check, and assist the depositor in systematic saving. The banks of Sanford are always glad to have checking accounts and can always be found looking after the interests of their depositors, protecting their money as it would be protected in no other way.

There is a danger in issuing worthless checks and the Rockaway boom in New York is a good example of it. Florida must exercise all precaution against the activities and operations of that class of speculator who makes a practice of writing so-called "wooden checks". He should not find a gullible public in any of our communities. We don't need that kind of citizens.

Who's Who And How?

Out of Boston comes news of a marriage which has caused much talk, especially among the relatives of those concerned. John Smith eight-one, and Hattie Nourse, fifty-five, have filed their intentions to marry and their families are all mixed up as to who will be related to whom and how.

We know of a lot of people who find difficulty in tracing their ancestors back through the years, even though there has been no mix-up in the family tree. But we can picture future generations of these two principals trying to solve their problem by searching through library after library to secure more light on the subject.

You see its like this. Mrs. Nourse's daughter is married to Mr. Smith's son and the husband and wife are about to become step-brother and step-sister. Young Smith's mother-in-law will be his step-mother and his wife's father-in-law will become her step-father. The younger couple's daughter knows she's going to have a pair of new grandparents but can't quite figure out how because they already bear that relationship to her.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

By IRVIN S. COBB

The Trifles of an Earlier Day In the great Meuse-Argonne ahead two doughboys were squatted in a shell hole for shelter. In another minute or two they expected an order to go forward again against the German positions. The enemy was pouring everything he had in their direction. Machine gun bullets were whining by just above their heads. High explosives and shrapnel shells were bursting about them. Hundreds of guns, big and little, roared and thundered.

One of the soldiers turned his head toward his companion. "Huddy," he said, "I've just been layin' here thinkin'." "Hell of a time to be thinkin'," said his pal. "What were you thinkin' about?" "I was thinkin' how a fellow's feelin's get changed in this war." "What do you mean—get changed?" "Why, once upon a time, back home, a fellow with a thirty-eight calibre pistol run me plum' out of town."

HAYNES LOSES OUT

KEY WEST CALL

The inevitable has happened. Washington had expected it long ago. But its thoroughness surprised Washington and will be a distance shock to those sections of the country not so well informed on the inner mechanism of Washington affairs. Yeh, Haynes has lost his job. Shorn of every vestige of power as prohibition commissioner he has been exalted, if exalted it be, to about the same position as a British Lord, he's there, but it ain't gonna do him any good, and nobody else for that matter. Oh, he wasn't fired!

He's expected to resign and to enter his candidacy for the governorship of Ohio in the next campaign. But there is a significance attached to this shift in the enforcement division of the treasury department that is at the least is capable of various and sundry conclusions. Andrews and Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair were significantly silent upon the issuance of the edict. But we wonder if it isn't a veiled confession on behalf of the administration of a previous weakness existent in the enforcement division of this governmental department. And, if this be true, are we to infer that the prohibition commissioner has been somewhat, oh—er—oh—ineffective in his capacities. Is this where the Washington administration is attempting to shift the blame? Or perchance this is all wrong. Perhaps there is none of the veiled intentions so easily inferred from Mr. Blair's order. But is the public to be left to draw its own conclusions? Which is the more dangerous for the Republican party and Coolidge's hopes for a third term. It may be a bitter dose, but our humble advice to the powers that be is to "teas up"; tell us what has been going on.

"An honest confession," a sage has said, "is good for the soul." Maybe it wouldn't hurt the Grand Old Party either.

DOMESTIC PROBLEMS

PALM BEACH POST

There is every indication that popular demand will cause an extension of the session of congress to be convened in the fall, prior to the regular session in December, if hard and soft coal mining stops on September 1. The coal question is frankly the most perplexing of a number of domestic problems which will have to be dealt with by the incoming congress. It is the most perplexing, because a previous congress, with the remedy in its hands, refused to adopt the recommendations of the United States coal commission which called for the president to take charge of the operation of the mines and fix wages pending a settlement between owners and miners. Now the general public will have to suffer the inevitable result—a coal shortage.

There is an "investigation" scheme scheduled and the Hughes protocol for American adherence to the permanent court of international justice must be either ratified or rejected. With these facts before it, congress faces a busy time and the Congressional Record will suffer from feeding, let us hope, however, that this congress will be useful as well as ornamental.

The Greatest Crop. How Gorillas Walk. Why. Justice, Old Style. British Labor. BY ARTHUR BRISBANE (Copyright 1925)

SEVEN CROPS of alfalfa in a year, tons of potatoes to an acre, great are the wonder crops of this rich land. But the greatest crop is the human crop. Without that, others would amount to nothing.

MR. JONES Star, of Rigby, Idaho, tells of a family gathering of the Call family. It included Anson V. Call, 70 years old, of Afton, Wyoming, father of 20 sons and 10 daughters, all alive, healthy and strong. Mr. Call is the grandfather of 90 children, and they are all well.

WHERE IGNORANCE, disease, poverty and drink, in the slums, combine to force large families upon weak women that cannot take care of them, birth control may be all that its advocates say. They don't need it in Idaho or Wyoming. What they need there is CHILDREN.

DR. BOGCK, of Toronto, says, "To keep your health, walk on tiptoe as gorillas do." There is no evidence that gorillas are healthier than their alleged relations. They certainly do not live as long as humans. And the gorilla doesn't walk on tiptoe because he wants to, but because he must.

A GORILLA has two club feet, at least they would be called club feet in a man. And, as every obstetrician will tell you, all human beings, at a certain period before birth, also have two club or "gorilla" feet. Passing through that stage in their embryonic development, they are born with human feet and well developed heels. And that applies the evolutionists with one of their favorite arguments.

DON'T WALK on your toes going upstairs. Plant your heel first on each step, and observe the difference.

IN INDIANAPOLIS, punishment is to fit the crime, when one man with his automobile kills another. The killer is to spend one hour locked in a room with the corpse of the person killed. The theory is that it will make the killer think, although it won't bring the dead back to life.

VOLTAIRE had the idea reversed. In "Candide" a traveling philosopher chastised the young widows of India to discontinue burning themselves alive with the corpses of their husbands. He didn't forbid it, only made a law that before being burned alive the young widow should pass a couple of hours with the husband's young man in the village.

After that, for some strange reason, the widow usually lost interest in being burned up with her aged spouse. Often she disappeared before the funeral.

SUCH PUNISHMENT as sitting up with the corpse are old and of date. One man wants to whip wife-beaters, thus IMITATING the wife-beater. In old days the thief had his hand cut off, and if he stole again they cut off the other hand.

THE MAN that pecked through the window of a noble lord could have one or both eyes put out. Criminals were branded on breast, hands, cheeks, forehead, to warn the public.

The great Cyrus, as a matter of course, wrote of a king whom he had captured. "I cut off his nose and his lips and chained him at my door."

WHEN A MAN murdered another in China it was customary to tie the corpse to the murderer's neck and make him move about with it for a few days. We should be beyond that kind of "justice."

CONTRAST THE attitude of government toward dissatisfied labor in Great Britain and the United States. United States coal miners want better pay. The mine owners want to pay less. And it is the same in Britain.

BUT HERE, if the Government did anything except let supply and demand fight it out at public expense, the interference would mean government taking control of the mines, saying to workmen: "If you won't arbitrate, or 'work the mines'."

THE BRITISH government approaches labor troubles in more gingerly fashion. You read that Baldwin, premier, proposes postponing the trouble by paying a government subsidy to keep the mines going, and persuades the mine owners to withhold the notices of lower pay that were to have been posted at the mines today.

There's a difference between saying to mine workers: "If you won't work, the government will run the mines" and offering, as Britain does, to keep both sides temporarily contented by taking a subsidy for mine owners from the taxpayers' pockets.

Can you imagine the high financial anguish if such a plan were proposed here? THE BRITISH, in their circumstances, are wise. British industry is in a desperate condition, undersold in the world's markets, from Canada to India. And the British labor party is a party, not as here, the playing of two conservative parties that know how to "handle labor on election day."

Florida's Growth—Will It Continue?

TIMES-UNION

The New York Commercial last Friday, in a very lengthy editorial review of Florida conditions, started its discussion by asking the question: "Will the rapid growth of Florida continue?" At the end of its column article, the Commercial said, "If (Florida) has just merely begun to grow, that growth will not stop while the rest of the United States grows and prospers."

This, then is the answer to the question—will Florida continue to grow? For believing that it will so continue the New York Commercial gives very many sound and substantial reasons. It calls attention to the fact that Florida growth is not phenomenal, that it had its beginning years ago, and that the growth has been continuous and steady. With reference to this the Commercial says:

It is well to remember that the growth of Florida is not so recent as many suppose. Since Henry Flagler built the East Coast railroad the population of Florida has been increasing. The city of Miami which is pointed to as an example of "mushroom growth" has been thirty years in the making. It is a remarkable municipality for one of that age. And yet it has been thirty years in coming to its present size although more than half its growth has taken place inside the past ten years.

The city of Tampa between 1910 and 1920 almost doubled in population. Jacksonville shows great and steady growth over a period of more than a quarter of a century. The student of Florida matters will discover that the present land buying excitement there is logical enough, when the past is considered.

Florida is not growing because of speculators. Speculators are in Florida because the state is growing—and there is a vast difference between logical growth and the speculative growth specified.

Following this, the New York newspaper asks: "Why does Florida grow?" and proceeds to give the answer at considerable length and with specific statement of facts.

SYMPATHY

TAMPA TIMES

We all crave sympathy. When we obtain it, just what we have accomplished? A sober analysis of the subject confronts us with the hard, cold fact that after all is said and done, it is quite worthless.

We cannot ignore the sorrows of others; to do so would be cruel, indeed, but we can realize that the constructive method of meeting this problem is to offer active aid, if that be possible, and if not, the wise thing to do for all concerned is to refrain from dwelling on the subject. One can always diplomatically inspire the suffering individual with new hope without going down into the depths of despair with such a person. We cannot be of any real assistance by coming down to their level, emotionally or otherwise. The thing to do is to draw them up to ours, or else to evacuate in favor of the stronger-minded one who can successfully dominate such a situation.

The majority of people seem never to have learned that "what cannot be cured must indeed be endured," and that complaining and weeping but envelops them still deeper in the gloomy marsh of their own emotions. These are usually the people who justly confide their troubles to any listening ear and burden the unfortunate listener with their worries, when perhaps he already has considerable load along that line to carry himself.

It is an extremely self habit to recite our sorrows over and over again and dwell upon our disappointments and bereavements, for if we but stop to think it over we cannot help but know that "into each life some rain must fall, and some days must be dark and dreary," in order that we may fully appreciate and enjoy the sunshine when it appears in all its splendor. Everything in life moves in cycles, and the pendulum can swing just so far in one direction when it must bow back to its other.

We can control much of the sorrow and disappointment in our lives by cultivating a happy and optimistic frame of mind and watching the thoughts we think. A circumstance or a thing is just exactly to us what we think of it, and if we think we have been hit hard and cannot come back it is a fact that we cannot.

the low vibrations of the suffering and sorrowful by gushing forth in streams of sympathy—much of it being misplaced and of no value whatever. Control your emotions, and by your example teach those with whom you come in contact to do likewise. We were never intended to enter into the emotional mourning of others; we each have our own trials and crosses to bear, and in order to have the reserve energy to meet these when they come we should be ever on the guard to protect ourselves from the vicious habit of sitting down sympathizing, and thereby taking our own rate of vitality where we, too, are subject to attack from disease and destructive elements. There are many among us who suffer from having no idea as to what troubles them—or their troubles.

1925 Agricultural Picture Painted In Very Bright Colors

TALLAHASSEE, Aug. 5.—With business conditions continuing good and the 1925 agricultural picture painted in bright colors, the combination presents an optimistic national outlook, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

Indications point toward a recovery in all branches of the livestock industry; heavy steers have been bringing higher prices than last year; hogs are nearly double the price of a year ago, and lambs are valuable. The report of the United States Department of Agriculture shows:

"Truck crops are coming in for a share of price economy this season," the report says. "Early estimates suggest a potato production of only about 75 bushels per capita, which would be on a par with those well remembered shortage years, 1911 and 1919. Onions, cabbage, melons and peaches have been selling at two or three times last year's prices and seemingly have a brisk fall market ahead.

"Rains last month added to hay and late oats. Corn is making ears now and looks good as a whole. A fairly good spring wheat crop seems assured, despite considerable hot weather damage and some rust in the Red River Valley. Winter wheat was a disappointment but has apparently thrived out about as much grain as was expected and is of good quality. Fruit is not so plentiful in eastern districts, but the Pacific coast will make good much of the deficiency. Cotton has lost ground in the western belt by reason of drought, but indications still point to a good-sized total crop. Potatoes are a decidedly smaller acreage than last year and promise a smaller yield but nevertheless may make more money for producers."

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 7.—St. Petersburg won a forfeit from Tampa here Thursday, 5 to 0, when Umpire Pieh awarded the game to the Saints between the fourth and fifth innings when the Smokers refused to send a man to the plate after they had been warned several times for stalling. A Smart Woman

Hon. Ed. Washburn, State Senator Hudson-Exeter Co., Sanford, Fla.

Dear Ed: One of the problems which confronts the average wife is to keep her husband at home at night. I don't know why this is, for they don't seem to enjoy having them at home very much. Still, there is no denying the fact, and that is that wives want their husbands to be at home after supper or they want to know all of the whereabouts and the wherefore.

It is equally true that husbands, as a rule, have what might be termed the night problem. Just as soon as the mantle of darkness covers the face of the earth, they want to be out and gone. It doesn't matter particularly where, just so long as it's somewhere and that somewhere doesn't happen to be home.

No husband is also confronted with the problem of how to keep himself at home or to manage to get himself away from home to do either of which often requires all the ingenuity that he can command. To get away, and to get away with it, has even been one of the hardest things that a husband has to do.

Now anybody that can solve these two problems at one time certainly comes gratifyingly close to solving up the night problem. Such a person is entitled to the acclamations of the multitude and husbands and wives all over the country should rise up and call such a one blessed.

It takes a smart person to devise a plan that will both enable wives to keep their husbands home at night and also make husbands want to stay at home after nightfall. And that is just what has been accomplished by one smart woman. I'll say she was smart!

This woman's home was raided by the officers and it was discovered that she was operating a 50-gallon still. She explained to the judge that she operated the still because it was the only way she had been able to work out that would keep her husband home at night.

I don't know what the judge did, but he certainly ought to have recommended that she be awarded a Carnegie medal. Of course, this problem has been solved by thousands of people, but in a very different way. Most married couples have given up the old idea of staying home nights. They are wise enough to own an Essex Coach and husband and wife and all the family go out together and have about all the fun that any family is entitled to enjoy in an evening.

Yours, BILL.
