North's five-club response to Blackwood showed all four aces. South thought about bidding seven for a moment and then decided to take what should have been a sure profit at six.

The play looked simple enough. He led a low spade to his king at trick two and continued with a second spade to dummy's ace. West showed out and all of a sudden there were problems. South had a sure trump loser and there were some slight worries about his fourth heart.

He solved the problem nicely. His next play was to cash dummy's ace of hearts. Then he led a heart toward his hand. East could ruff if he wished, but in that case he would be ruffing South's losing heart. So East discarded a diamond.

South took his queen of hearts, entered dummy with the king of diamonds and led another heart. East could do nothing better than to discard again. South won that trick with the king of hearts, led his 10 of hearts and ruffed in dummy. East could overruff, but once more he would be ruffing South's losing heart. Again, careful play had prevailed.

Enforcement Starts Sunday New Ordinance To Control, Protect Animals

By BILL BELLEVILLE
Herald Staff Writer

If your dog or cat runs loose on private or public property in the county without a leash or "effective voice control," beginning Sunday the pet can be picked up by the animal control officer.

If your pet barks, whines or produces orders offensive to your neighbors, he can also be impounded under the new county animal control ordinance.

If your pet is taken to the pound for these or any other violations, it will cost you $5 the first time, $10 the second, and $25 each time thereafter. In addition, you will have to pay $3 a day boarding cost during the impoundment.

Commissioners are considering a proposal to enforce the county ordinance in the cities if the councils request it, providing they waive their own municipal animal ordinances.

Annual pet tags will cost $3 after Sunday, and a license for the operation of a commercial kennel will run $40 with yearly renewal set at $30. Kennel owners who don't obtain such a license, which includes the cost of six inspections animal control officers will have to make, can be fined $10.

Commercial kennel owners are those defined as deriving more than 25 per cent of their income from the kennel operation. It excludes pet shops, pet beauty parlors and animal hospitals.

Female animals, under the ordinance, may be mated with "intention to breed," but they can be impounded if a female is allowed to mate "indiscriminately."

Fierce, dangerous and vicious animals are required to be confined within secure enclosures. If they are not, the officer can come on the owner's property and impound the animal.

For the first time in the county, animals which are cruelly mistreated are protected by the ordinance. Anyone who maliciously deprives food, water and protection from their pets, or abandons, poisons, beats or kills them can be fined up to $500 and imprisoned up to 60 days.

Animals susceptible to rabies will have to be vaccinated within 30 days after they are brought into the county.

Dead animals with any property attached to them will be removed from any property at the expense of the pet owner. If that owner can't be found, the responsibility falls on the commissioners, the Orlando Dog Kennel Club, and the Seminole County Humane Society.

Numerous complaints about uncontrolled animals knocking over garbage cans, defecating in yards, and running "at large," and of animal mistreatment, prompted the ordinance.

The strangely-worded ordinance supersedes all previous county laws governing animal control.

MIAMI (AP)—Drivers of vehicles with noisy mufflers may be in trouble next week, when the Florida Highway Patrol begins regular enforcement of anti-noise regulations.

Officials say six troopers with electronic equipment have been assigned to enforce the law but issue only warnings at first. Later, there will be $15 fines for drivers of noisy cars, trucks and motorcycles.

"If the exhaust system is in good condition, or if it's been replaced with a stock type muffler when it wears out, a driver will have no problem with the law," said Sgt. Wade Smith, who heads noise enforcement for the Highway Patrol.

"We're not out to hard-time the citizens, but the public is demanding that our highways have quieter vehicles and we think this will help," he said.

In time, the patrol plans to expand enforcement of the noise regulations by training additional patrolmen for the job and by enlisting the support of local police agencies.

New regulations go into effect on Jan. 1, which limit the noise limit for cars to 85 decibels—about as loud as an alarm clock held one foot from your ear. Motorcycles will be limited to 86 decibels, trucks to 90.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford plans to visit mainland China next year in a move to accelerate U.S. relations with the mainland and to balance Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev's trip to Washington next June.

Newsmen traveling with Kissinger were told that at the start of his trip he had no intention of arranging the presidential visit but that circumstances developed that led to an invitation.

The trip was discussed by Kissinger with Washington on Tuesday and Wednesday, when it was nailed down.

U.S. officials traveling with Kissinger said they expected the trip would take place late in 1975. It was also understood that the Chinese took the initiative in arranging the visit.

Ford will be following the footsteps of former President Richard Nixon, whose 1972 visit marked the end of a quarter century of estrangement and produced the Shanghai communique setting guidelines for developing normal relations between the two nations.

The communique today said "U.S. and Chinese sides held frank, wide-ranging and mutually frank talks" during Kissinger's visit. It added: "They reaffirmed their unchanged commitments to the principles of the Shanghai communique."

Otherwise, Kissinger's visit produced no evident major advance in improving relations, although an agreement appeared to be near on compensation to Americans whose property was seized after the Chinese revolution.

"I look forward to visiting the People's Republic of China sometime next year and to continuing the process of normalizing our relations," Ford said in a written statement.

Kissinger, on his way home of detente. Ford's visit would overcome a sense of isolation that would be heightened when Brezhnev visits Washington in June, when he and Ford probably will sign a new 10-year treaty limiting offensive nuclear arms.

The communique made no reference to Taiwan, the refuge of the ousted Nationalist government of Chiang Kai-shek. But U.S. officials said there will be some reduction in the 4,000-man U.S. force on the island before Ford goes to China.

Nixon and his Chinese hosts had been unable to agree on a common policy toward Taiwan.

Doctors Say Nixon Unable To Testify

WASHINGTON (AP)—The court-appointed panel of doctors that examined former President Nixon earlier this week told U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica today that Nixon is not presently able to travel to Washington to testify in the Watergate cover-up trial.

(Earlier story Page 2A)

The doctors also said that Nixon is not well enough to give a deposition but that "we would estimate that he should be able to give a deposition in his home by Jan. 6."

The report signed by Dr. Charles A. Hufnagel said that "it is difficult to predict with accuracy" when Nixon could travel to Washington "without excessive risk."

The report added that if Nixon recovers at an anticipated rate without further complications "we would estimate that such a trip would be possible by Feb. 16, 1975."

The trial, now in its sixth week, is expected to be concluded by Christmas, therefore making it certain that Nixon cannot testify. He had been subpoenaed by John D. Ehrlichman, one of the five defendants.

The doctors said that if Nixon's recovery continues that he might be able to testify at a courtroom near his home at San Clemente, Calif., by Feb. 2.

The possibility remained that Sirica could order a delay in the trial long enough to obtain the former president's testimony by deposition.

Altamonte Election Slated For Three Polling Places

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — City voters Tuesday will cast ballots in three polling places to elect a new city councilman to replace Dan Dorfman, who did not seek re-election.

The polling places will be located at the civic center, city hall and Montgomery Road Fire Station.

Elected to his council seat unopposed was George Perkins. Perkins was appointed last summer to fill the unexpired term of Don Myers, resigned. Candidates for Dorfman's seat are Sandra Glenn, a homemaker and mother, and Tom Radloff, a former councilman.

Altamonte Election Slated For Three Polling Places

Ms. Glenn, researched the city's charter, budget and organization as part of the Seminole League of Women Voters study on consolidation, feels many matters may be solved by cooperation among the county's governmental units, but a strong city government should be retained.

Her main concerns are lake levels, drainage and sewers, the need for federal grants, city beautification, crime and police and fire protection.

Radloff, meanwhile has called for an audit and city council investigation into utility tax revenues to determine if the funds are being used in the manner for which the fees were originally increased several years ago.

CHRISTMASTIME SHOPPER MOOD

Bikes, trikes, clothes and toys in colorfully decorated Christmas displays are greeting customers in Seminole county stores now that Thanksgiving has passed. Enthusiastic shoppers are pouring into centers throughout the county, like these at Sanford Plaza's J. C. Penney store.

Marriage Racket Booming

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal authorities are worried about a booming racket in marriages purchased by poor aliens who prey upon their dreams of life in the United States. Fraudulent marriage rings are popping up with increasing frequency in the big cities harboring thousands of aliens who came to this country illegally and live in daily fear of deportation. Officials of the Immigration and Naturalization Service say they have stepped up their investigations of the practice.

Altamonte Balloting Set For 3 Locations

Altamonte said the city's insurance program is badly in need of review, pointing to the case recently of a police officer who was shot in the line of duty, but has a large hospital bill to contend with.

He said although the city has a hospitalization program available for its employees, personnel holding high risk positions should not have to fear hospital charges remaining after partial insurance payments are made, because the insurance is not comprehensive enough in its coverage.

Radloff lauded his opponent in the race for council stating, "Our campaigns have been conducted solely on the issues with no mud-slinging and this is refreshing," he said.

Self-employed, leaving all the time necessary to serve on the city commission, Radloff said he has installed a "hotline" in his home to be available to citizens 24 hours daily.

Court To Get Nixon Health Report

Nixon has been subpoenaed to testify as a defense witness at the trial of five of his former administration and campaign aides.

Before the trial took a one-day Thanksgiving break, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell testified that he had information from Watergate investigators out of a belief that he was protecting Nixon's campaign for re-election as president.

Mitchell, Haldeman, former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman, former Assistant Atty. Gen. Robert C. Marland and Kenneth W. Parkinson, one-time lawyer for the Nixon re-election committee, are charged with conspiring to obstruct the investigation of the Watergate break-in.

Nearly all day Wednesday, Mitchell underwent grueling, often heated cross examination by prosecutor James F. Nease, his jaw thrust forward, glasses pushed back on his forehead, first questions at the former attorney general who leaned back in the witness chair and often brushed aside accusations with a tart, "No, I did not, Mr. Nease."

He did not volunteer it for obvious reasons," Mitchell testified.

Auto Insurance Ruling Delayed

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — One year ago today, Insurance Commissioner Thomas O'Malley challenged a $10 million auto insurance rate increase imposed by Allstate.

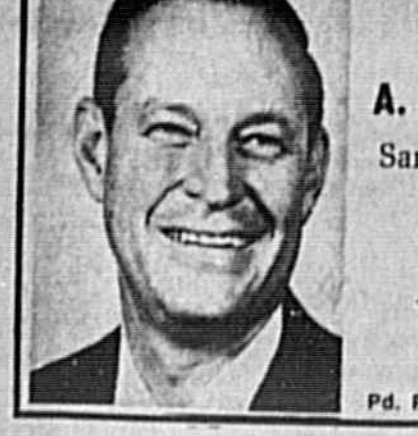

But a spokesman for O'Malley's office says a ruling on the increase, which averaged 10 per cent on Allstate's 600,000 policyholders, probably won't come before June 1975.

Asst. Insurance Commissioner Thomas Brown said the no-fault auto insurance law passed in 1971 allows O'Malley to order refunds of rate increases if he finds the hikes to be excessive, inadequate or unfairly discriminatory.

But Brown said figures supplied by Allstate, showing a loss last year of $23 million on auto insurance, indicate that the increase may be allowed to stand.

"If their figures are in fact correct and can be verified, the rates can't be excessive if they have suffered these losses," Brown said.

Thirteen other auto insurance companies have filed rate in-

All Talk In World
Won't Feed Hungry

In retrospect, the World Food Conference in Rome went about as any expert observer could have predicted.
Efforts by the United States of America and other Western nations to enlist the Soviet Union into international food organizations received only lip service — as all such efforts have.

Third World nations attending the conference, who also have the greatest need for more food automatically blamed the United States and other industrial nations for their own agricultural shortcomings, as they always have.
Identifying themselves with the Third World, Communist Chinese predictably joined in attacks against the United States. In doing so they sought any political openings that developed to make the World Food conference an East-West confrontation.

Also present in Rome was the inevitable group which simplistically insists that the world food problem will take care of itself if every American eats one less hamburger a week or if he does not fertilize his lawn.
We believe it is symbolic that the World Food Conference was held in Rome — the same city that is headquarters for the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO).

We doubt that the current conference on food, or any future one, will fill ground that has not been plowed time and again by the FAO. Since 1943 FAO has accumulated bale upon bale of studies and recommendations on how to raise nutrition standards of the world through application of intelligence and technology.
The FAO also has spent millions of dollars in the last three decades offering advice to the have-not nations of the world about agriculture, nutrition, forestry, fishing, plant and animal diseases. It has operated countless training centers and conducted endless seminars on the growing and distribution of food. Indeed, one of its voluminous 1966 studies outlined how developing nations could have desirable levels of nutrition by 1975 — an irony considering the present scope of the problem.

We conclude regretfully that the hungry will not be fed by another world meeting or another international organization. Such approaches inevitably evolve into political jousting. As a result, the geese that lay the golden eggs usually wind up with a few more bruises and much more latent resentment.
The simple answer to world food shortages, as U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, so eloquently told the conference, is more productivity everywhere.

Or, phrased in biblical terms, the Lord helps those who first help themselves.

BERRY'S WORLD
Perhaps the Lancaster farmer speaks only for a cullion few. Then again, one wonders. Some time ago this column carried an observation that in time of world famine it may be imperative for Americans to use 10 per cent of its aggregate grains to feed dogs and cats. Three hundred readers sent back comments, all but two indignantly suggesting these pets were just as important as those people.

Congressmen Use 'State' As Errand Boy

WASHINGTON — At the State Department, the only celebrities who get more ruffles and flourishes than a visiting pasha or ranking commissar are senators and representatives intent on globetrotting at public expense.
A call from Capitol Hill electrifies State's $565,000 a year staff of 25 congressional liaison experts, all trained to pacify and pamper the legislators who control the department's huge annual budget.

The cable and memo files at Foggy Bottom overflow with tale after tale of the diligence with which the State Department coddles congressmen. Now after a two-month Freedom of Information battle, my associate Bob Owens has gained access to some of the files' finest tidbits.
About a year ago, for example, the State Department indiscreetly alerted too many agencies about a congressional junkie to Europe for a NATO parliamentary meeting. This infuriated Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, whose subcommittee writes the State Department's budget.

Hays, who is called "The Terrible Tempered Mr. Bang," by battle-scarred diplomats, furiously threatened to "break off diplomatic relations with the Department of State," according to an internal memo. Moreover, he fumed, he was going to wreak his revenge by taking a bite out of State's budget.
Apparently State feared Mrs. Sullivan's hair dryer might short-circuit and cause an international incident. They sent six copies of their cables on the subject to the National Security Council.

Rep. Sullivan requests transformer be placed in hotel room large enough to be used for hair dryer. "The State Department cabled its mission in Geneva. "Transformer will be placed in Rep. Sullivan's Hotel du Rhone room as requested," the diplomats wired back.
But Mrs. Sullivan, who more often can be found protecting the taxpayers' money than spending it, had still more requests. She wanted to know whether the room would be big enough for her tastes. The diplomats in Geneva apparently whipped out their yardsticks for they answered with a "Priority" cable:

"Single rooms are approximately 11 to 12 feet by 18.2. Double rooms are approximately 15 feet by 18 feet." Mrs. Sullivan took the larger, costlier choice, spending $29.57 a day for single occupancy of a double room.
She told us she was abashed that copies of the cables "went to every Tom, Dick and Harry and were sent 'Priority.'"
Although envoys' hours might better be spent gathering intelligence on hijackers or foreign economics, they are often forced to perform such flunky chores as these:

— Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., a Louisiana parish commissioner, U.S. District Judge Dan Russell and some business cronies used the State Department to help them with a private trip to the Balkans. State was obliged, among other services, to help locate a large yacht on the sunny Adriatic. The trip was billed as "pleasure combined with group's interest in farming and agriculture."

— One rush cable from the U.S. consulate in Hong Kong to the State Department said, "Please inform Mrs. Montoya (wife of Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M.) that carpet has been delivered and is being forwarded via Northwest Flight 4."
— When Sen. and Mrs. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., visited London, the U.S. embassy cabled them "a recommended theater list" with such fare as "Private Lives," comedy starring Maggie Smith; "Crown Matrimonial," drama about the abdication of Edward VIII; "Applause," musical with Lauren Bacall Ordinary visitors would stand in line for such hits. The Scotts were told by State to select "ASAP" (as soon as available) . . . so seats may be booked while possible.
— House Clerk Pat Jennings, a former congressman who has done much to hush up the misdeeds of his ex-colleagues, wangled a junket for himself and his wife to the Paris Air Show. State's files show they went with the House Science Committee at the invitation of its chairman, Olin Teague, D-Tex. Teague disguised the loyal Jennings as a "special consultant."

Dogfight Over Contract May Lead To 'Dogfight'

Things Are Tough All Over!

A mock aerial dogfight between American and European-built fighter planes? It sounds incredible, yet it's not impossible.
Of course no pilots or airplanes would suffer for each side would shoot "blanks" with photo guns during the air battle.

French aircraft producer Marcel Dassault issued the challenge after Gen. Paul Stelhin, a former French air force chief of staff and a member of the French Parliament, said American technology was superior to that of France and that the American-built YF-16 and YF-17 were better fighters than the French Mirage built by Dassault-Breguet.

The General Dynamics-built YF-16 and the Northrop YF-17 Cobra are lightweight, low-cost fighters presently undergoing tests for the U.S. Air Force at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.
The French entry, if an international air competition should develop, would be the Mirage F1 built by Dassault-Breguet and powered by a new M53 jet engine. The Mirage will not fly with its new power plant until next month at the earliest.

Outraged by Gen. Stelhin's claims, Dassault said he is ready to put his Mirage up against the American entries to prove the French plane's superiority. He added the Swedish SAAB Viggen jet fighter should compete, too, because it is "an excellent plane."

DON OAKLEY
Fulbright Speech No Churchill

In what was probably the swan song of his political career, Sen. J. William Fulbright, who is retiring from Congress and the chairmanship of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at the request of the people of Arkansas (Go speed to him), delivered an address recently at Westminster College in Fulton, Mo.

The same site, it will be recalled, is where Winston Churchill made his famous "Iron Curtain" speech shortly after World War II.
Like Churchill, Fulbright outlined the grave challenges facing the free world in the years ahead. Unlike Churchill, however, Fulbright spoke not of the falling of an Iron Curtain between East and West but at one point referred to attempts to lift that barrier and achieve "détente."

But we almost let détente with the Soviet Union go on the rocks, said Fulbright, by our insistence on an agreement permitting large-scale Jewish emigration from the USSR — "a matter of limited relevance to the basic issue of human rights in the Soviet Union, and of no relevance at all to the vital interests of the United States."

Some would argue that nothing could be more relevant to the true vital interests of the United States than our taking a stand on behalf of human rights at every opportunity, however limited.

Be that as it may, it might be useful to take a fresh look at the people with whom we are dealing — not to sabotage détente but merely to remind ourselves that there are still certain fundamental differences between their system and ours.

Remember Simas Kudirkas, the Lithuanian seaman who tried to jump ship four years ago, only to be returned to the Soviets by the U.S. Coast Guard? Sentenced to 10 years for treason, Kudirkas was later declared an U.S. citizen and has finally made it to this country.

DR. L. E. LAMB
Reader Can't Swallow Food

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have an ailment in swallowing food. The food lodges between the esophagus and the entrance into the stomach. I have had an emergency situation where it was necessary to be admitted to a hospital and have the steak that had lodged in this area removed. Twice since then I have had rubber tubes inserted to stretch this entrance to the stomach. This has been partially successful.

Through the years the irritation causes scar formation. The contracted scarred area produces the obstruction. The passage of solid food. That is why the steak lodged in the opening.
The use of dilators to stretch the opening is good treatment and is often successful. The pain you describe is spasms of the muscles in your esophagus. It can be quite severe, but eyes to bring tears to the esophagus that causes the condition to progress.

DEAR READER — You have an esophageal stricture. Usually this is the result of many years of intermittent irritation of the lower esophagus. The acid material in the stomach leaks back into the

Celery Memories Surface In Alabama Flea Market

There was a time in Sanford when Celery was king—the odd-shaped vegetable created jobs, put money in the bank and food on the table. And, it was when Seminole County supplied 20 per cent of all the celery grown in the United States.

But that was a while ago. Today, the production of celery has dwindled to a trickle. But the memories of its heyday when Sanford was appropriately titled the "Celery Capital of the World" and streets were named after the lucrative plant still remain.

One of those memories surfaced this week at the Sanford Chamber when a Birmingham, Alabama woman sent a copy of a small, yellowed 1941 brochure to the chamber. The brochure, bought by the lady at a flea market in her city, is titled "Celery Recipes"

Even though you don't have a hiatal hernia, you should follow the same routine. You need to prevent the leaking of acid material into the lower esophagus that causes the condition to progress.

"But God said unto him, 'Thou fool! This night is thy soul required of thee; and the things which thou hast prepared, whose shall they be?'"

Comedians earn fame and fortune on foolishness, but aren't fools. Christ warns us against calling a person a fool, for it is such a degraded state. What makes a fool? In Luke 12:16-21, Christ tells about a man who was a first-class, grade A fool. This man didn't make just one mistake; he made three. Like the man who was determined to commit suicide used rope, poison, and a gun, the farmer in Luke was determined to make a fool of himself.

His first mistake was that while seeking God's gifts, he forgot the Giver. The height of ingratitude is to depend upon God's gifts such as sunshine, rain, soil, oxygen, and seed which produces "after its kind" (Gen. 1:11), and then say, "I grew a good crop this year!"

God has given us many good things. Here in America, we are well blessed with material goods even though the prices may be inflated at the moment.

We need to remember that when God gives us something, He expects us to take care of it and use it for Him. Do you have a farm? Then you're God's tenant! Do you have children? You're God's babysitter! Do you have a job or business? Then you're God's partner! If this night shall here "Thou soul be everyone would stop complaining about what they don't have, and be more appreciative of what they do have, we would all be much happier."

The second mistake of the Biblical farmer was that while thinking of himself he forgot his neighbor. "Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take these ease, eat, drink, and be merry." He had an unquenchable thirst for things. He began to hoard, and had not a thought for anyone else.

One mark of a fool is that he tries to be an island unto himself. It may be difficult to love others as you love yourself, but in God's eyes it is necessary. The path to sure destruction is to look out for self first, and to use and abuse others while doing so.

The farmer's third mistake was that while thinking of his body, he forgot his soul. He had a full stomach, full barn, and a good crop this year! He was starving to death. He had made no provision for the time when he would be no more. He forgot eternity. God is not the mean, vindictive type so many have presented Him to be, but He is somewhat like the time killers. This foolish farmer was just killing time here on earth. He was not serving the purpose for which God had placed him here. "Thou soul! This night shall here 'Thou soul be everyone would stop

Gal's Needs

Are Less Demanding

By GEORGE W. CRANE

PH. D., M.D.
CASE 6411, M., aged 24, offers a sexual confession typical of millions of young wives.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "Tom and I were college sweethearts and are completely in love with each other. 'We've been married only about a year, and I am ecstatically happy."

"Because I use the 'Pill,' I also don't worry about any unexpected pregnancy. 'Even so, I already find myself much less erotic than Tom is."

"Thus, I must feign a lot of enthusiasm in the bedroom which I don't really feel. 'So why did God make women to have much less desire for sex than men do?'"

"Let's take the other view, for sake of illustration, and assume that God had created women to have just as great a sex hunger as man."

If so, the human race would probably have disappeared from this planet thousands of years ago!

For if such equality in sex hunger had existed, and a young woman had born a new baby, suppose she then saw an attractive male through the jungle.

She'd have laid the baby down at the foot of a tree to chase after the male and have an affair.

But when she returned to her baby, it would meanwhile have been torn to pieces by a tiger or lion, or would have been swallowed by a python.

Thus, the survival of the human race would have been checked.

God apparently decided that at least one of the two adult parents should be more attached to the infant than to the other mate!

For human babies are totally defenseless and thus MUST have a strong protector to nurture and safeguard them till they can fend for themselves.

To guarantee the continuation of the human species, God thus decided to create women with a bisexual type of capacity for human love.

So he endowed her with a modest sex appetite that would make her receptive to male advances but when the latter resulted in a baby, her maternal love would dominate her sweetheart affection!

Thus, a young wife like Lois may be visualized as having 25 per cent sweethearts affection and 75 maternal hunger.

"But, Dr. Crane," you may ask, "how can she remain happy with Tom unless he gives her babies?"

Well, she expends her 25 per cent affection on him as a boudoir mate but then cuddles and mothers him with her 75 per cent maternal urge.

The young husband runs thus satisfy his wife's total endowment for love, at least for a year or so.

But finally the wife grows restive and either wants a baby for her own or adopted, or must develop substitute "baby" outlets, as in working as a hospital aid or a Girl Scout leader or even kidding a cat, dog or a geranium, is the spinner.

In other animals, too, the female is primarily a maternal creature and nest-builder, whereas the male is the more heavily endowed sexual creature.

Alas, when the baby arrives, many husbands feel suddenly jilted by the fact their wife devotes 75 per cent of attention from the infant!

So, and for my booklet "Facts About Pregnancy," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

- 12:30-4 ABC NCAA FOOTBALL Traditional Rivalry A & M and Texas face each other at Texas, in the first half of a doubleheader.
- 4-7 ABC NCAA FOOTBALL The second half features the game between Auburn and Alabama.
- 8-10 NBC SANFORD AND SON "Fred's Treasure Garden" A wacky story. Grady doesn't realize that the "par-slay" in his salad is really grass. When the salad is served neighborhood cops at a holiday fete, the boys are really turned on.
- 8:30-9 ABC "A VERY MERRY CRICKET" RERUN The merry cricket is back in town, the same cricket who started originally in "Cricket in Times Square." This time he's trying to perk up Christmas spirit and, frankly, he isn't having much success. Then a power failure strikes and he becomes the center of attraction. That old Christmas spirit starts returning.
- 8:30-10 NBC HALLMARK HALL OF FAME "The Gathering Storm" Richard Burton portrays Winston Churchill, covering the period when the English statesman was out of office and out of public favor as he warned of impending World War II. The story includes Churchill's return to power and his famous "blood, sweat and tears" speech. Newsreels are used for the crises of Hitler's move to war and Edward's abdication. It is a fine documentary drama with solid performances by Burton and Virginia McKenna as Churchill's wife.

Opening lead—4J

We aren't going to try to settle the argument about whether North or South bid too much on the way to six hearts. Suffice to say that with West sticking in a club overall, the bid figured to be a loser. West opened the jack of spades and East made the mistake of raising with the king. There was little purpose in that play. His partner had not underlined the ace. If East had hung on to the king, South would have wound up one trick short of his slam.

South grabbed that king with his ace and noted that his queen-nine were now established as the top tenace in that suit.

He proceeded to run off all six trumps while discarding two spades, a club and a diamond from dummy. Then he cashed dummy's three top diamonds to discard his own eight of clubs.

South was now left with the queen-nine of spades and king of clubs. West in back of him decided to hang on to two spades and a club.

Now South led dummy's club. West won the trick and had to lead a spade right into South's tenace.

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The CALNO Council of Local Governments Friday night unanimously elected Winter Springs Mayor Troy Piland and Lake Mary council member Virginia Mercer as the Seminole county representatives on the Seminole Expressway Authority. It took four separate ballots to fill the two posts.

Piland collected the votes of all seven cities delegates on the first ballot. The second choice was Sanford Commissioner John Morris, who received four votes (Sanford, Altamonte Springs, Oviedo and Winter Springs). Lake Mary Mayor Margie Hess got three votes (Casselberry, Longwood and Lake Mary).

Winter Springs and Lake Mary City Atty. Tom Freeman, noting that a winning appointee must have five votes to follow the mandate of the Seminole Expressway Authority law, suggested a unanimous ballot be cast for Morris. The motion failed.

A move by Tom Embree, Casselberry City Council chairman, to nominate Mayor Norman Floyd of Altamonte Springs, CALNO chairman to the second seat, was rebuffed by Altamonte Springs Mayor Morris then withdrew and Mrs. Hess suggested council member Mercer as a compromise choice.

Seminole County Commission Chairman John Kimbrough last week said in order to follow the legislative mandate it would probably be necessary for the individual cities to adopt resolutions endorsing the two selected representatives. He added that the county commission had no desire to take the prerogative of naming delegates to the expressway authority from the cities.

Floyd, however, fearful that the county, after the Nov. 30 deadline would make the appointments, called Friday night's special meeting. Floyd's concerns were echoed by Freeman from the audience.

The expressway membership is to be composed of all five county commissioners and two representatives from the cities. The county has the power, under the law, to name the municipal delegates in the event the cities failed to make recommendations.

The authority will determine the Seminole County route of the proposed tri-county beltline to circle Seminole, Orange and Osceola Counties.

Judge Salfi Will Sit On Supreme Court

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Seminole-Brevard Circuit Court Judge Dominic Salfi of Longwood is one of at least seven judges from throughout Florida who have been asked by Florida Supreme Court Justice James C. Adkins Jr. to sit in on various cases in place of two justices accused of judicial misconduct.

The seven will replace Justices Joseph A. Boyd Jr. and Hal P. Dekle on five-member panels hearing oral arguments in the Supreme Court in the next two weeks, Adkins said Friday.

The Judicial Qualifications Commission has recommended the two be removed from the bench for their alleged receipt and use of a secret proposed opinion in a utility tax case. The court's final opinion allowed utility firms to pass on part of the cost of the corporate income tax to customers.

Dekle also has been accused by the commission of attempting to influence a Panama City lawsuit involving a former reelection campaign supporter of the Justice.

Robert L. McCrary Jr. of Marianna and J. Carl Lee of Fort Lauderdale will sit Monday with Adkins and Justices Ben Justice Richard Ervin on another day, Adkins said.

One or more judges may be appointed to sit for Dekle and Boyd on other matters in the next two weeks, he added.

Adkins said he expects to name on Monday or Tuesday the five judges who will sit with Justices Overton and Ervin in considering the charges against Boyd and Dekle.

A sixth judge will be named to sit for Ervin in the Panama City lawsuit charge against Dekle, because Ervin's brother represented Dekle in the commission proceedings on that matter, Adkins said.

Ervin is to retire in January, and was asked that he not be assigned any new cases, Adkins said. He will stay on special assignment until completion of the Boyd and Dekle cases, he added.

At issue in the Christian case is a ruling by the 1st District Court of Appeal, which dismissed 19 charges of bribery, perjury and conspiracy against Christian.

The appeal court ruled that the special prosecutor was illegally assigned to the case, his two assistants were improperly assigned and all three questioned Christian.

Astronomer Still Gazing At 73

By BILL BELLEVILLE

When Cyrus F. Fernald of Longwood first became interested in astronomy in 1910, he had no idea his dedication to the field would bring him national recognition, land him in the company of astronauts, or expose him to flying saucers.

But after a 58-year amateur "career" of watching the heavens and charting celestial bodies, that's what has happened.

Fernald first became interested in astronomy as a boy "a long time ago" in Wilton, Maine.

Alert and chipper at 73, Fernald today reflects on that first spark and recalls that it was a "series of articles in Scientific American by Prof. Henry Norris Russell that first ignited my interest."

The sparks were fanned by the boy's cousin, the Right Rev. Monsignor Woodman, S.J., whenever the astronomy-inclined priest visited Fernald's home.

Fernald attended Bowdoin College in Maine to take advantage of several astronomy courses the college offered. He later transferred to Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he received training for his lifetime vocation as a Certified Public Accountant. But Fernald's training in the observation of celestial bodies, particularly "variable stars," was obtained on his own time. It involved many hours of the day night observing, researching, and accurately recording his findings, and sharing them with other amateurs, and professionals.

Fernald's interest and accuracy in the pursuit of astronomy was so motivated that in 1950, he logged his 100,000 variable star observation with the American Association of Variable Star Observers (AAVSO). He became one of four men in the world, and the first in the northern hemisphere, to do so.

About one in every 20 stars in "variable", according to Fernald. Such stars vary in brightness over a specific period of time. That variance may range from a few seconds to hundreds of years. But regular variables, all of which Fernald can identify, usually fluctuate around 300 days. No one is quite sure what makes these stars variable, but accurate chronicles, such as those supplied by AAVSO members, are sure to help in the investigation. Information passed on by amateurs like Fernald is also a great help to professional astronomers in understanding life cycle of the stars.

"Astronomers began to regularly observe stars back around the time of Christ," Fernald said. "And you could see a lot more than you can now." Fernald cites the polluted atmosphere and the existence of unnecessary artificial lights as impediments to proper observing. "In the Orlando area, Fernald said, "there are probably more lighted parking lots per 100,000 people than anywhere else in the world."

The pollution and the lights leave few optimum nights for observing, but on the good night, Fernald goes up into his observatory — a specially-built building over his garage behind his home — and directs his large permanently-mounted telescope towards the heavens.

His "Springfield-mount" telescope, with a 10-inch mirror-reflection, is the second one of that design that Fernald has owned. The first was bought years ago in Vermont for $40 and the second was purchased as impediments to proper observing. "In the Orlando
