Good luck to Paul Redfern over the Caribbean.

It won't be long before all our news comes through the air and is about air.

It's funny there should be no money in the newspaper business when paper is used for money.

Well, why shouldn't the Navy keep up the search for the Dole planes—it hasn't anything else to do.

"John W. Davis, home from abroad, keeps an eye on politics"—headline. What's he afraid it will do to him?

Also, these people who live in glass houses should not throw parties.—DeLand News. Unless they pull down the shades.

The "Pride of Detroit" hopped off yesterday for New Foundland on its way to Europe. Let's hope pride doesn't "goeth before destruction."

A young man in Freeport was struck by lightning Wednesday and his clothes completely torn off. Undressing with lightning rapidity, as it were.

That picture of Mayor Walker in the Tampa Tribune Thursday looked more as if he were in the front row chorus of a Broadway show than a Tammany lieutenant.

There are enough planes getting ready to fly across the Atlantic to start another Dole Derby. But we wouldn't suggest calling it that. The other one was too delicate.

The Sanford Herald writes an editorial in which it refers to pickpockets in Miami. Now that's our idea of wasted effort—being a pickpocket in Miami.—Sarasota Times.

Out in St. Paul a woman was sentenced to thirty days in the workhouse for throwing a pup out of the window. No, it wasn't her husband either.—Ocala Star. Whom do they suspect?

It is rapidly getting to the point where a man who hasn't made a trans-ocean flight is as much of a provincial as the old buck board driver who still gives the entire road to some speeding motorist.

Those Chinamen have been fighting among themselves for years. And we are not making any threats, but if they want to find out what a real war is just let them keep on firing on U. S. ships.

According to a despatch from Hollywood, a ten percent cut in all salaries recently put through, has resulted only in better co-operation and better production. And it seems to be working that way in Sanford too.

A Los Angeles girl was on a train in Mexico attacked by bandits. She died a day or two later from injuries received. Mexicans have no idea how much they hurt the tourist business of their country by such tactics.

The Japanese navy is suffering from battleship crashes. During maneuvers recently four warships came together and one of them sank. Ninety members of the crew, including a high ranking officer are said to have been lost.

Before a man gets married he knows under the general impression that it was Napoleon who conquered most of Continental Europe in the early part of the last century. But before the honeymoon ends he discovers that it was Josephine, Napoleon's wife, who did it.

Our Municipal Band

Miami Life in a recent issue urged the commissioners of that city to engage one or two of the local bands for next year instead of going out on the market for one of the high priced organizations which have served it in "past" seasons.

We were thinking about the Municipal Band of Sanford as we read the comment in the Miami paper. The situation in the Magic City has no particular bearing on that of Sanford, but we were just thinking how fortunate this city is in having such a creditable musical organization as that which is directed by Joseph Reizenstein.

A testimonial to the band's popularity with Sanford people are the large crowds which line the lakefront on Monday and Thursday nights when the organization renders well-balanced programs. In this connection we might mention that not the least of its praiseworthy efforts was the band's recent decision to continue its bi-weekly programs for a price that is equal to half the sum that was formally received from the city.

Sanford citizens are proud of their band. It fills a need which every city feels, but which few are able to afford. It provides a clean, wholesome form of entertainment which all may enjoy and at little expense.

Judge Gary's Rules

Judge Gary has been chairman and chief executive officer of the United States Steel Corporation from the time of its organization in 1905 until his death recently. He had guided its destinies and watched it grow until it is now probably the largest single corporation in America.

When one is sick, so sick that he takes his sickness seriously, he secures the best doctor obtainable to diagnose his case and prescribe for him. When one gets in serious difficulty with the law, he retains the best attorney the extent of his finances will permit.

So, when one is laying down the principles and policies for a business career, he should seek the advice of the most eminently successful business men. Of course it is impossible for the average man to interview personally Mr. J. P. Morgan, Mr. George F. Baker, Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Mr. John Wannamaker, or any other of the other outstanding successes of this period.

But it is not impossible for everyone to sometimes get excellent advice from them in an indirect manner. When Judge Gary, who is probably as well qualified as anyone to give advice on business matters, died, he left in addition to a vast estate, a somewhat lengthy will in which he set forth in black and white some sound advice which he hoped would prove useful to his heirs in preserving his estate for future generations.

As a result of his many years of experience in a fast business world, he has prepared five rules for keeping what you have. They are short, concise, and meaty. We offer them to you here for your consideration:

- 1. Do not sign notes or bonds for anyone. 2. Refrain from anticipating your income in any respect. 3. Loan money only on good security and never make personal loans. 4. Avoid all doubtful investments regardless of how glib the salesman may be. 5. Do not hesitate to reject the opinions of others if "involved in any doubt."

"GO ON TALKING DEAR!"

There are many who know that of that play to whom the "strong man" of great philosophies and world affairs was bound hand and foot without knowing it? Anne humored his conceits, indulged his delusion of independence, advertised it even, and protected it against every suspicion from without—but did not tolerate it in the least in actual fact. At the end of the play the "strong man" is interrupted by an unruly crowd as he expounds in public one of his most impressive and masterly ideas. Anne rebukes the interrupter and turns to her husband with a sweet "Go on talking dear" which is delightfully eloquent of her power and of the humility with which she chooses to hide it from the world.

MUST CARRY NEW YORK TO WIN

As governor of New York, "Al" Smith holds a strategic position in presidential campaign politics. That he would be a formidable candidate to reckon with in New York, running on any kind of platform is admitted by leaders of both parties. At this time he is far from being the unanimous choice of Democracy, but his large following in his own state makes him the particular reason for this. It is the Republican party would find it extremely difficult, in the opinion of many statesmen, to elect their candidate unless he could carry New York.

As Brisbane Sees It

Clemenceau and Jaures. Britain's Air Plans. Amateur Prophecy. Tariff and Farm. BY ARTHUR BRISBANE. Copyright 1927 by Star Co.

CLEMENCEAU, THE French patriot and mental fighter, is ill and in pain. The man who served his country so well does not deserve to suffer. The old Frenchman jokes about his illness, little he cares for himself. His love is for France.

Some day, before long, in the place to which all good patriots go, he will meet other Frenchmen that have loved their country and done their duty. These will include Jaures, who was murdered at the beginning of the war and sought to save France from it.

Clemenceau agrees now, in substance and so do 40,000,000 other French people, with what Jaures said in 1914. He was murdered for saying that then. He is vindicated now. That may be some consolation.

ENGLAND PROMISES TO surprise the United States in particular and the world in general, with a "mystery airplane," now being tried out with great secrecy. This plane christened the Bluebird, expected to go 300 miles per hour, five miles a minute, is built by the British air ministry.

They actually have an air ministry in Great Britain. That country seems really to appreciate the importance of airplane construction.

HOWEVER, INDIVIDUALS here make up for our government lethargy to some extent. Certain Americans are interested in the construction of an airplane with a guaranteed speed of 300 miles an hour that may give the British Bluebird an interesting race.

And Henry Ford has started preliminary work on a superplane to carry 100 passengers and cost $7,000,000.

NIKOLA TESLA SAYS "power transmitted by radio," that is to say, wireless power, will drive airplanes some day. That's encouraging, giving scientific indorsement to a "guess" made in this column several years ago.

Electricity is power, and power travels through the air, as the lightning proves. It comes from the sky down with crushing force. Why shouldn't it go from the earth up to supply energy to flying machines?

JOANNA SOUTHCOTT, WHO died aged 64, 113 years ago, said she was the lady mentioned in the Apocalypse, made prophecies and left a mysterious box to be opened only in a great emergency, and "in the presence of 24 bishops." The box, now opened, without the required number of bishops, contains only worthless trash. That is what modern soothsaying and much amateur prophecy amount to.

SOME FARMERS FAR west think they need to get rid of tariff. But not all farmers think that. Some realize that farm prosperity depends on buying ability of workers in cities. Buying ability in our cities depends on protection from low wages paid in foreign cities.

Let any farmer who doubts it start a farm in China, or in any European country. He would not write back advising the folks to come over.

FASCISMO, MUSSOLINI'S doctrine, has prepared a "book of faith," and Mussolini says it must be accepted as the "infallible compass" of the Italian nation.

"Fascismo, triumphant and enduring," is to last through the ages. Mussolini believes it; the belief makes him happy, inspires his work.

OTHER MUSSOLINI'S WILL come in the hundred million years of life that are ahead of Italy and the rest of our planet. They will write their "books of faith," all different from Mussolini's, but all useful, and all called infallible! The kicks and all quirmings of a baby in the cradle are all different; but all combined produce a healthy baby.

MIGHTY IS THE spectroscope, of which a majority know nothing except that it works. It is told and proved to us that suns millions of miles away are of the same elements that make our earth and our bodies. It has even shown us on the sun elements that we had not yet discovered on the earth.

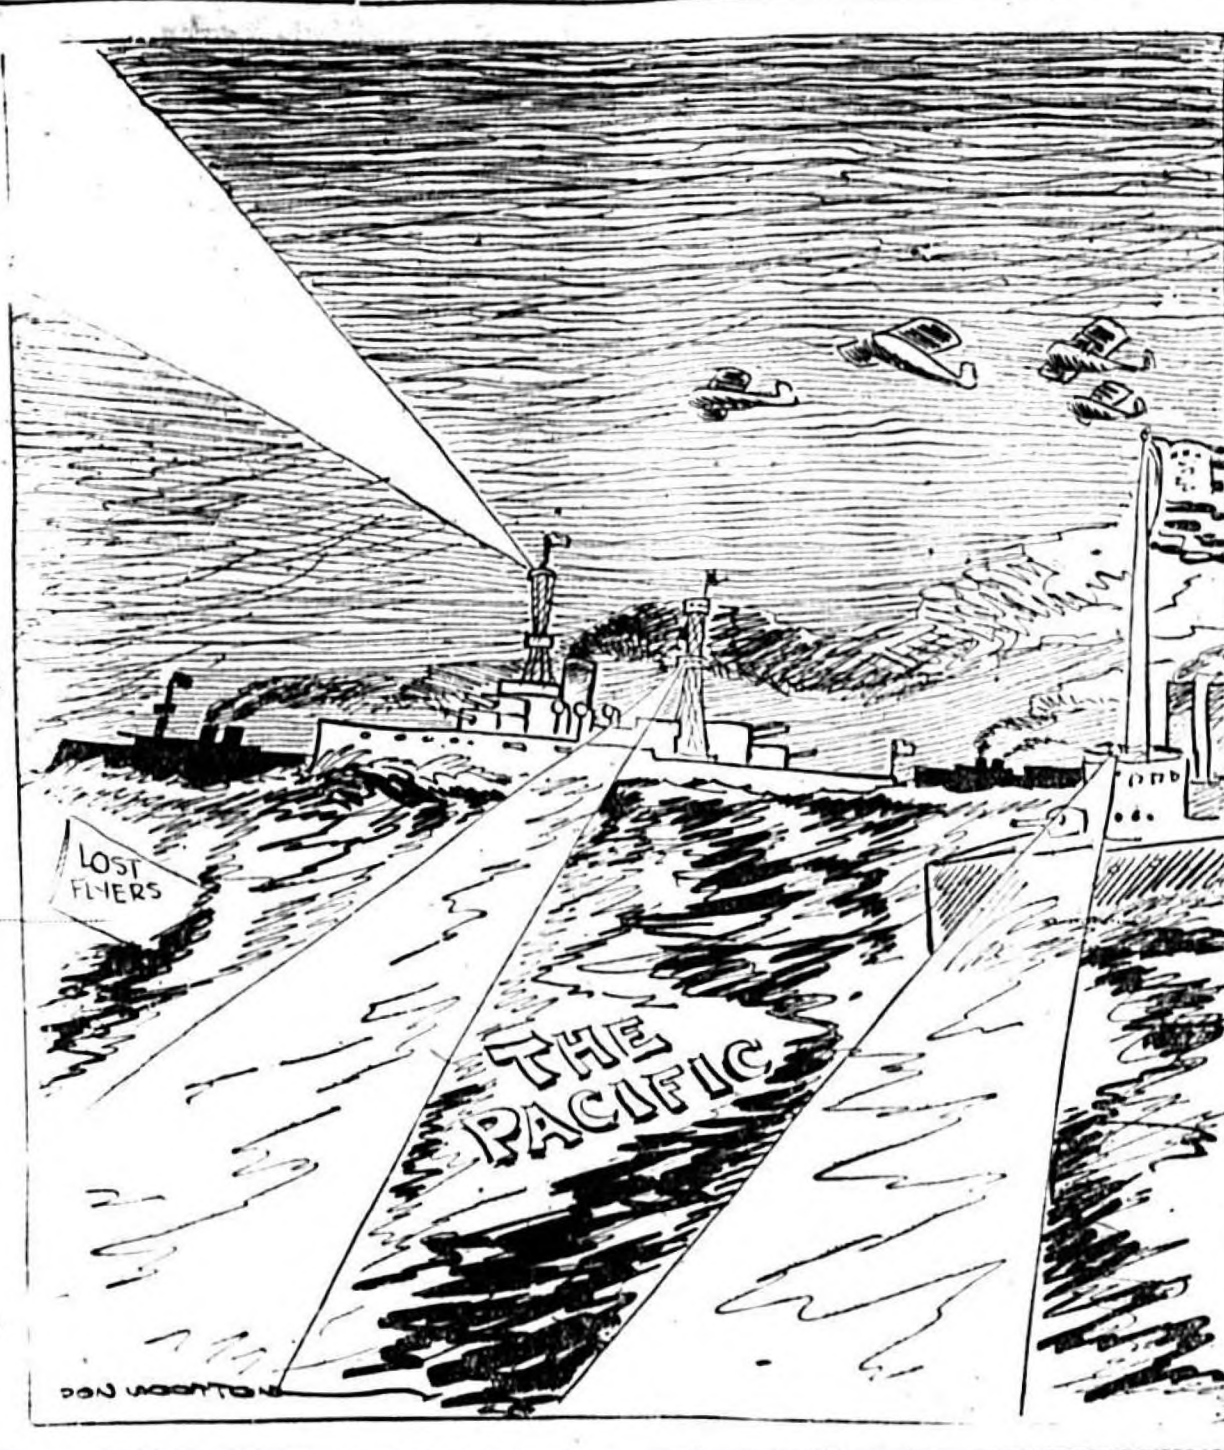

Now the spectroscope is used to study defects in the metal and automobile engines, allowing scientists actually to look into the cylinders of the engine. Perhaps somebody someday will use the spectra to identify oil, gold and water in the ground.

Many a man thinks he has an open mind when it's merely vacant.—Peoria Star.

is not believed that Dawes could swing New York. Taking into consideration this apparent predicament of the Republican party, "an the 'solid South,'" if there still be a solid South, might be tempted to waive its prejudices against Smith's avowedly "wet" proclivities and his church affiliations, and instruct its delegates to support him at the national convention. Recently Senator Fletcher, of Florida, stated that he believed Smith would be acceptable to the South.

New York has been a pivotal state in many presidential elections but never more so than it will be in the coming election.

Pastime Bridge Club Members Entertained By Mrs. Ray Wilson

Mrs. Raymond Wilson entertained most delightfully at bridge Wednesday evening at her home on Willow Avenue, when she was hostess to members of the Pastime Bridge Club.

The rooms where the tables had been arranged for play were most attractively adorned with quantities of vivid-hued zinnias and other summer flowers combined with greenery.

The evening hours passed quickly with the game of bridge and when scores had been compared it was found that the high score prize was won by Mrs. Robert Masska. For failing to score her points and honor, Mrs. J. J. Carroll was given the consolation prize also a lovely houndoir pillow. In cutting for the lucky card, Mrs. J. E. Ritchie won the prize, it being a unique bridge set.

At a late hour the hostess served a tempting ice course and fruit punch as refreshments.

The players were Mrs. J. E. Ritchie, Mrs. Robert Masska, Mrs. J. Carroll, Mrs. J. E. Wathen, Mrs. C. W. Stoudenmire, Mrs. C. Driver, Mrs. Lamson and Mrs. Wilson.

Both the shots reached the third green and then they ran their approach puts well up to get a pair of three's.

After halving the fourth, MacKenzie won the fifth with a 4 against Evans' 5 the Washington man becoming 1 up. He drove into the bottle neck entrance to the green bue Chick's tee kicked into the rough. He found himself half stymied by a clump of trees, so he finally got home with his third. His fourth found him laying himself a stymie, so he picked up, conceding the hole.

Jones in the meantime had become 3 up on Ouimet by winning fourth with a birdie 4.

Bobby's drive was again off the line in the rough and hooked his second. He finally pitched on with his third, sank another 10 footer to win the hole. Francis was short with his approach putt, finally feeding about a 5 footer for a half. He didn't get it.

Bobby remained 3 up when he got a half in par 4 at the fifth. He again drove into the rough but pitched on nicely. Francis was 15 feet away from the pin with his second and both men got down with their second putts.

Another half on the short sixth left Jones still 3 up on Ouimet. MacKenzie and Evans also got their 3's here, Roland remaining 1 up.

At the sixth MacKenzie's tee shot was well on the green while Chick's ball was just to the near edge. He, however, ran his approach putt right into the shadow of the flag for a 3 while MacKenzie putting for a 2, rimmed the cup from a distance of 15 feet.

Evans then won the seventh with a 4 to a 5, to square the match again.

A pulled drive to the rough cost MacKenzie his hole, as he was forced to play his second to the left of the fairway in order to avoid a trap. Chick got on with a drive and an iron and sank his second putt while MacKenzie's chip on for a third ran over to the far edge of the green and he took a 5.

Neither Jones nor Ouimet hit particularly good tee shots in getting their 3's at the sixth both leaving themselves long putts. Ouimet's approach putt ran 2 feet past the hole and he had to sink this effort as Jones ran his first putt to within a foot of the cup.

Bobby next became 4 up by winning the seventh with a 4 against Ouimet's 6.

Francis played the hole very badly, driving into the trees at the right of the fairway and faced a very discouraging shot in his attempt to get home. The ball hit a tree and bounded out of bounds. Bobby was straight all the way for his 4, and faced an 8 foot putt for

MINERS ADDRESS APPEAL TO COURT IN LONG BATTLE

Central Competitive Field of the mid-west, the high court's decision next fall may also vitally affect the fortunes of the miners' union in this field.

The questions which the union's attorneys place before the Supreme court broadly, are:

Can the union organizers appeal directly to individual workers, under contract, not to join the union, to become members and strikers?

Is the union in attempting to stop production of coal in West Virginia violating the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust laws by interfering with interstate commerce?

Lower Court Injunctions

Two lower courts granted injunctions against the union, as a result of strike orders of 1922 and measures to enforce them. The operators won victories in their efforts to resist inroads in the West Virginia fields.

"They (the operators) believe that they have successfully insulated the field of unionization," says a brief filed for the union. "And by the decree in these consolidated

Decision On Twelve Counts To Decide Definitely Outcome Of 30-Year Battle To Make West Virginia Fields Union

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25. - The United Mine Workers of America has appealed twelve injunction suits to the United States Supreme Court, the result of which, in the opinion of some of union officials, will definitely determine their 30-year battle to unionize the West Virginia soft coal fields.

With the union also now engaged in a struggle with operators in the drive and a brassie to get his par 5, Roland, meantime, having shot his brassie into a trap.

cases, 316 companies have succeeded in doing so.

The lower courts held that the union was not unlawful in itself, but declared that it was the intent, in stopping production of coal, to interfere with the business of the mines in sending coal into interstate commerce, thus violating federal laws.

In Bitter Fight

The union, in its appeal, fights bitterly the ruling of lower courts which, its attorneys assert, virtually prohibit agents from persuading non union miners of West Virginia, to join the union.

In defining the extent to which the union can go to increase its membership in West Virginia, the Circuit Court said:

"There can be no doubt of the right of the defendants to use all lawful propaganda to increase their membership. On the other hand, however, this right must be exercised with due regard to the rights of complainants. To make a speech or to circulate an argument under ordinary circumstances, is one thing. To approach a company's employees, working under a contract not to join the union while remaining in the company's service, and induce them in violation of their contracts to join the union and go on a strike for the purpose of forcing the company to recognize the union or of impairing its power of production, is another and very different thing.

This latter act the court enjoined. "To the laymen the effect of this modification is to say, that the union may use persuasion up to the point where it is effective in persuading," assert attorneys for the union.

Attorneys for the operators assert that the miners' union has spent millions of dollars in its long West Virginia fight since 1898. Scores of lives have been lost in the struggle, with each side accusing each other of terrorism.

World Awaits Word From Paul Redfern U. S. o Brazil Flier

graph Agency to handle and give out all news of Redfern's movements and landing, so that it would be official in character. This information will be available to all newspapers and news agencies.

COLUMBIA, S. C. Aug. 26. (INS)—"I know he will make it." These five words of confidence came today from Dr. P. H. Redfern, president of Benedict College here, and the father of Paul Redfern, the young pilot who is attempting to make a non-stop flight from Brunswick, Ga., to Rio De Janeiro, Brazil.

"If, as a lad in high school here, he was able to build a plane himself and fly over the city, surely he ought to be capable of winning in this endeavor," Dr. Redfern said.
Young Redfern spent most of his school days here, building a plane himself while in Columbia high school. When the war came on he left to work for the government in a New Jersey plane factory, but returned to Columbia to finish his schooling.

Dr. Redfern has studied closely the route his son was to take, and, with fatherly pride, repeatedly expressed the belief that the flight would be successful.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Aug. 26. (INS)—The silence of vast stretches of sea and jungle had closed today about aviator Paul Redfern who hopped off from Brunswick yesterday noon on a lone non-stop flight to Brazil.

The daring young pilot left the beach at Glynn Isle at 12:46 P. M., and 24 hours later there was no word from him. But this was not necessarily an indication that anything had gone wrong with the big monoplane, "Port of Brunswick," for the young pilot carried no radio and his course was over the south Atlantic and Caribbean Sea for 2,500 miles—waters broken only by the scattered islands of the West Indies according to naval officers here.

Navy hydrographers estimated that if head winds had not slowed him too much, he should be over Trinidad Island, off the coast of British Guiana, around noon today. If he had made this much progress, he probably would reach Macape, Brazil, on the north bank of the Amazon about midnight tonight.

It had been hoped that Porto Rico would flash the news that the yellow and green monoplane had passed, but he should have made Porto Rico by dawn today, according to these estimates.
Head winds prevailed off the Florida coast yesterday and he may have been delayed, hours, in reaching Porto Rico. Any deviation from his course probably would have caused him to miss the island altogether.

The Brazilian government reported today that visibility was poor in northern Brazil. No severe disturbances at sea were reported, however.

Wireless stations all along the perilous route eagerly awaited some tidings of Redfern. Ships at sea also have been asked to watch for the plane.

In event Redfern is forced down into the Atlantic or Caribbean sea, he has a rubber raft which can be inflated within half a minute by means of compressed air bottle. He has a flare pistol, a special game hunter, which is a combination of a revolver and a shotgun, and a pair of powerful binoculars.
For nourishment, the youthful aviator carried with him two dozen ham and chicken sandwiches, two boxes of bullion cubes, a quantity of chocolate drops and malted milk tablets, one thermos bottle of coffee and another of milk and four gallons of water. He has a small distilling apparatus for the purpose of obtaining drinking water from the sea, enough food and water to last for some time.

"With God's help, I'll reach Brazil," Redfern said as he took off yesterday the second time, his first attempt being unsuccessful because of strong cross winds that would not lift the heavy plane.

"Somewhere in Brazil" is his destination. "I'm not going to take foul chances," he said. "If the weather is bad I'll turn toward the coast and stop at Para (Belém). If it's only moderately severe, I'll continue to Pernambuco. If it's good I'll land in Rio De Janeiro."

How to cross a BRIDGE PARTNER and get away with it

In some states, particularly the state of matrimony, trumping a partner's ace is a crime more to be feared than shooting a Ford out of season.

Pretzellers have found a way out. They make sure there's always a big plate of O-So-Guds alongside the card table. Then when the injured partner gets fairly incandescent with blistering rage, the pretzeler bites out a few letters like this:

O-So-Gud

Now, who could continue to talk mean after getting such a sweetly contrite answer? Not your other half, surely.

Crispy, crunchy, salty pretzels baked by Unecda Bakers smooth over many difficulties. They help make things pleasant at parties and picnics. They're good any time with iced drinks. They're fine for between-meals and before-we-go-to-bed lunches.

And try them with soup, with salad, with cheese, with dessert. Give them to the children for piecing. They are very easy to digest.

Be sure to ask for Unecda Bakers' pretzels.

Tagging All Bases

If the Pittsburgh Pirates do not win the National League pennant this season they can blame Kent Greenfield, star pitcher of the Braves, and incidentally Dave Bancroft manager of the Boston club. Since Earl Smith of the pirates knocked him down some time ago, Bunn has pitched his ace against Pittsburgh at every opportunity and Greenfield has obliged by trimming the bugs five times in a row.

Yesterday Greenfield held the

New Belt line To Show Foul Area Is Named For Boxers

NEW YORK, Aug. 26. (INS)—The epidemic of fouls which has marred the Dempsey-Sharkey bout and other fights in New York recently probably will be curtailed as the result of a revolutionary change made by the New York Athletic Commission in its rule governing foul blows.

In future bouts referees will recognize a new fair area, which will include considerable territory formerly considered as below the belt.

Boxers in bouts here will be required to wear trunks marked in different colors to designate the lower abdomen. The border line between the two colors will be the new belt line. The area of the fair territory will vary according to the size of the boxer.

Thus the belt line, recognized as the line of demarcation ever since the Marquis of Queensbury formulated price ring rules, is no more. It was also decided that punches landing on the hips will be considered fair. Many boxers oppose the changes.

SARASOTA — Building survey being made.

JENSEN — $30,000 new school, house to be erected here.

Gehrig Hits Number 40 To Tie Bambino

DETROIT, Aug. 26. (INS)—The home run race between Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig of the Yankees is all tied into knots again today. Gehrig smacked homer no. 40 against Detroit yesterday, drawing even with the Babe.

Gehrig also hit a single, Ruth went hitless, but was walked three times.

TUNNEY ABOUT RIGHT

SPECUATION, N. Y., Aug. 26.—(INS)—Gene Tunney today suspended training until Sunday.

The champion is carefully guarding himself against going stale. He stepped on the scales yesterday afternoon following a stiff workout and found that he was less than two pounds over the weight he expected to make for Dempsey.
