Twice-Scrubbed Shuttle Launch Set For Tuesday

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Disappointed by back-to-back weekend delays, technicians today readied the shuttle Discovery for a third attempt Tuesday to blast off on a mission to launch three satellites and salvage another.

Stormy weather, which blocked the first launch attempt Saturday, appeared to be the only obstacle. A balky flight computer that stopped the second blastoff effort Sunday was ordered replaced.

An Air Force weather officer said early today "at this time it looks like we'll be 'go' for launch" but he cautioned that an upper-level low pressure zone expected off the coast at launch time would mean thunderstorms in the area.

Discovery cannot fly in rain or near clouds with lightning potential and another delay would threaten NASA's plan to conduct the satellite repair part of the mission.

A launch "scrub" Tuesday would leave only one more chance for astronauts Joe Engle, Richard Covey, William Fisher, James van Hoften and John Lounge to get off in time to fix the disabled Syncom 3 communications satellite. It will be out of reach for several weeks after Thursday.

Engle, the shuttle commander celebrating his 53rd birthday today, seemed undaunted by the two delays. He has had disappointments before, including losing a flight to the moon in 1972 when he was replaced by geologist Harrison Schmitt to increase the scientific output of the Apollo 17 mission.

The space agency skipped a blastoff opportunity today to give engineers time to inspect engine plumbing for possible damage from the alternate cold-warm cycles created by supercold liquid hydrogen being loaded aboard and then drained after the launch delays Saturday and Sunday.

Launch director Robert Sieck said the hydrogen pipes between two fuel pumps on each engine would have to be checked again if the shuttle misses two more launch attempts.

Discovery came within five minutes of blastoff Saturday when threatening rain showers forced a launch delay. The weather was marginal Sunday, but the countdown was halted by a computer failure that appeared 45 minutes before launch time.

Search For Missing Girl Turns Up Nothing Again

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

For the second weekend in a row, a self-professed psychic and university janitor, has led Seminole County searchers on a wild goose chase looking for 6-year-old Regina Mae Armstrong, abducted in Orlando over two months ago.

About 30 searchers joined two Seminole County sheriff's deputies Saturday at Hileys Fish Camp on Lake Jeap near Oviedo to search for the girl who was abducted June 18 from an apartment parking lot, sheriff's spokesman John Spolski said.

No evidence was found in either search, Spolski said, adding that deputies participated in the searches at the request of Regina's parents.

Spolski said although psychics have been ineffective in other Seminole County cases, the deputies were permitted to join the search because "a life is at stake."

Todd McBride, 20, a janitor at Cornell University, who along with a female medium from Florida, had initiated Saturday's search as well as a similar search on Aug. 17, Spolski said.

The searches were organized by a friend of Regina's parents, Bob and Donna Armstrong who were present for both searches, Spolski said. The mediums said they had visions of Regina near a large body of water and that led searchers to Lake Jeap, he said. The first search was made in day's searchers did not roam the woods as they had the week before.

Under the direction of McBride, who had been flown in from Ithica, N.Y., the searchers entered a home north of the fish camp where McBride alleged Regina would be found, Spolski said.

They made an attempt to search the home Friday, but were turned away by the homeowner.

The man consented to a search of his home on Saturday after deputies Donald Dreggors and Leonard Conely explained the distraught state of Regina's parents, Spolski said.

McBride, Mrs. Armstrong, three journalists, and one other unidentified person looked through the home, Spolski said.

When no clues were found, McBride said he was still on the right track and explained his failure by saying the suspect had gotten word of the search and was moving from home to home

Scenic Board Funding On City Agenda

By Rick Brunson
Herald Staff Writer

After two months of talks and planning, Sanford's Scenic Improvement Board is expected to get some money today to start cleaning up the city.

The Sanford City Commission is scheduled to discuss the board's budget for the 1985-86 fiscal year at its 7 p.m. meeting at city hall.

In July, the commission tentatively earmarked about $150,000 for the board in its budget, plus $60,000 a year for the next five years. The proposed city budget has yet to be discussed during public hearings next month before it is finalized.

The money proposed for the board is really budgeted to the Parks and Recreation Department, which will actually carry out the work mandated in the board's 16-page master plan to clean up Sanford. The plan was presented to and approved by the commission in June.

The board wants to use the biggest chunk of its proposed funding for next year — $68,654 — to hire four gardeners. Hiring gardening experts was one of the key points of the board's master plan. The board contends that more expertise is needed to maintain the city's green areas. In the past, shrubs and plants in city parks have been neglected or maintained improperly, which hurts rather than helps and contributes to Sanford's run-down image, the board contends.

The proposed budget calls for hiring one landscape gardener at $17,892 a year and three master gardeners at $15,835 a year. Salary increases, Social Security, pensions, life insurance and tools for the gardeners adds another $17,000.

The rest of the $152,000 would go for additional vehicles — $16,649 — and $50,000 for materials for other board projects.

In other action expected to be taken at today's meeting:

• The commission is scheduled to discuss Commissioner Robert Thomas' proposal to form a human relations committee which he says would promote just treatment, understanding and equal opportunity for all people in Sanford regardless of race, age, religion or economic status.

Thomas is bringing back the controversial proposal after withdrawing it in April. At that time, the other commissioners said the purpose of the committee was unclear and doubted if it was needed in Sanford. The commissioners also didn't like the name "Bi-racial committee" as Thomas proposed.

At its Aug. 19 workshop, the commission discussed the proposal but said it wanted more time to study the plan before taking action. Whether or not the proposal will be passed is unclear. Commissioner John Mercer says he is for it if the black community is for it. Commissioner David Farr said the Aug. 19 meeting, the proposed committee would not be doing anything the commission is not already doing.

Samantha Smith, Girl Ambassador, Killed In Crash

AUBURN, Maine (UPI) — Samantha Smith, the girl who visited the Soviet Union two years ago after writing to its president, died in a fiery Bar Harbor Airlines plane crash that also killed her father, four other passengers and two crew members.

Bar Harbor Flight 1808, originating in Boston with scheduled stops in Auburn, Augusta and Waterville on its way to Bangor, was trying to land at Auburn-Lewiston Municipal Airport when it crashed and burned Sunday night around 10.

Police initially received a report of a fire and arrived on the scene to find the wreckage in a field about a half-mile from the airport, Auburn police Lt. Norman Guerette said. The Auburn Fire Department doused the burning wreckage.

Drought Over, Consumption Back to Normal

County Slated To Lift Water Surcharges

By Doana Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Surcharges that doubled monthly water bills for some of the county's 9,000 utility customers over the past five months are slated to be repealed by the county commission at its 9:30 a.m. meeting Tuesday.

County Environmental Services Director Jim Bible said today the surcharges were levied to encourage customers to conserve water. "And the conservation measures coupled with rainfall has brought consumption down to a normal level," Bible said.

He is recommending the county commissioners adopt a resolution lifting the surcharge.

But Bible is also urging that a moratorium on the installation of residential irrigation meters be continued. The issue of whether installation of residential irrigation meters should be allowed or not will be reviewed in an upcoming rate study to be conducted in the 1985-86 fiscal year, he said.

Customers who did install irrigation meters to count the number of gallons they used for their lawns found they saved money — not on the water, but on their sewer service charges.

Monthly sewer charges are based on how much water a household uses. The amounts used for lawn sprinkling when a meter was in place were not included in the base upon which sewer charges were computed.

The commission, on the recommendation of environmental services, adopted a resolution on March 26 doubling rates to water customers who used more than 15,000 gallons per month.

For those using no more than 15,000 monthly, the cost remained 40 cents per thousand gallons. During the conservation period, the charge per gallon for those using from 15,001 to 20,000 gallons per month was increased from 70 cents per thousand gallons to $1.40, while the charge to those using 20,001 to 30,000 gallons monthly or more, the charge was increased from $1 per thousand gallons to $2.

During the drought and before the surcharge was imposed, water use per household rose from an average of 350

School Daze

In the usual first day crush and confusion, mothers and children arrived this morning at Hamilton Elementary School in Sanford. Seminole County's 41 public schools got off to a smooth start today after the summer break with few problems, according to school district spokesman Karen Coleman. Several schools, including Wilson, Geneva, Red Bug, and Keeth elementary schools, had enrollments higher than had been anticipated. The first day attendance total was not available at press time.

Reagan, Wife Informed On Other Actors To FBI

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — Ronald Reagan served as a confidential informant for the FBI in the 1940s but privately criticized some film producers who tried to root out communists from the movie industry, government documents show.

Reagan and his first wife, actress Jane Wyman, gave agents the names of actors and actresses who supported two groups in the Screen Actors Guild that "follow the Communist Party line" on policy issues, the censored documents say.

The reports of FBI interviews with Reagan and Wyman in the 1940s were obtained through the Freedom of Information Act by the San Jose Mercury News, which detailed the president's role as an informant in a Sunday story.

Reagan was identified by the FBI as T-10, a classification of informant of minor importance, the federal agency said.

The future president was first mentioned in a 1941 FBI report that said he and others might be of some assistance to the bureau. His name next appears in a Nov. 18, 1943, report where Reagan spoke of nearly "coming to blows" with a German sympathizer who made anti-Semitic remarks at a cocktail party.

In April 1947, Reagan and Wyman were interviewed about a July 11, 1946, meeting he attended of the Hollywood Independent Citizens' Committee of Arts, Sciences and Professions. The FBI had monitored the meeting.

Reagan had tried unsuccessfully to get the group to

Night Stalker Linked To Bedtime Shooting, Rape

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — California's Night Stalker serial killer struck for the second straight weekend, shooting a sleeping man in the head and raping his girlfriend at a home more than 450 miles away from the last attack, police said.

The shooting early Sunday in the affluent Orange County community of Mission Viejo put the killer, linked by police to 14 slayings and 19 assaults or rapes since March, back in Southern California and into a new area, authorities said.

The man wounded in the latest attack was in critical condition early today, after emergency surgery at Mission Community Hospital.

The last confirmed attack was Aug. 17 in the Lakeside district of San Francisco where police said the killer fatally shot a man and critically wounded the man's wife.

As in most other crimes attributed to the Night Stalker, the residence struck Sunday was a single-story home painted a shade of yellow and close to a freeway.

Investigators have said the killer usually leaves a distinctive, but not publicly disclosed, trademark at the scene of the crimes. He also has twice left a scrawled message — the exact wording has not been revealed — on walls of victims' homes.

No Recall In Gatorade Incident

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (UPI) — Gatorade was pulled from stores in six western states but no nationwide recall was planned because the illness of a man from suspected urine contamination was an "isolated incident," its makers said today.

A contaminated bottle of Gatorade that sickened a firefighter appears to have been tampered with after it left an Oakland bottling factory, a company spokesman said. State officials were testing samples of the drink.

"This is an isolated case that from all evidence points to a product tampering and not a widespread condition," said Jan Relford, quality assurance director for the Gatorade Division of the Chicago-based Quaker Oats Co.

Gregory Phillips, 34, suffered vomiting, headaches, dizziness and nausea last Thursday evening immediately after drinking Gatorade he bought at a Long's Drug Store near his Santa Clara home.

The drink was found to contain urea, a crystalline solid found in urine and other body fluids, state investigators said. The substance is also produced synthetically and is commonly used in making plastics, fertilizer and adhesives.

Capitol Hill Protectionist Fever

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Troubled by plant closings at home and prospects of a staggering $150 billion trade deficit this year, members of Congress this fall will consider new laws to protect American business from foreign imports.

Japan, with its booming U.S. sales and its perceived reluctance to buy foreign products, will be the primary target.

Not since 1930 when Congress passed the Hawley-Smoot Act that raised tariffs on imports an average 20 percent, have protectionist winds swept so strongly over Capitol Hill. For President Reagan, a free trade advocate, it may mean another confrontation with an increasingly balky Congress.

Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., speaking for the Democrats Saturday, blasted the administration for having "no trade policy at all" and said "our growing trade imbalance has cost us 4 million jobs."

Man Shoots Self Dead As Fiancee Watches Tragedy

MIAMI (UPI) — A 22-year-old man shot himself dead while playing Russian roulette with a .357 Magnum as his fiancee watched, and police said Saturday the victim had never shown the "desire to take his life."

Francisco Sanchez, 22, of Coral Gables, was pronounced dead by rescue workers around 6 p.m. EDT Friday at the apartment he shared with the woman he planned to marry, Metro-Dade County police said.

Sanchez and Maria Vega, 28, were talking when he said he could manipulate the revolver so a bullet would not move underneath the gun's hammer and fire when the trigger was pulled. Homicide Detective Cliff Nelson said.

Vega told police that Sanchez removed five rounds from the six-shot gun, leaving one bullet in the cylinder. He pointed the weapon at Vega and squeezed the trigger an undetermined number of times, Nelson said.

Nelson said Vega poked her head from hiding and saw Sanchez point the pistol at his head. She told police he squeezed twice, then a third time, which is when the gun fired, Nelson said.

Two other south Florida residents died in similar shootings earlier last week. In separate incidents Tuesday, Alex Santiago, 13, and Robbie Kishman, 15, both killed themselves in games of Russian roulette while showing off their parents' guns.

Oil Leak Delays Reactor Start-Up

FORT PIERCE (UPI) — Technicians are still trying to find the source of an oil leak that started a minor fire at Florida Power & Light Co.'s St. Lucie nuclear plant, delaying the start-up of the reactor that was to be returned to service Sunday.

The plant's No. 2 nuclear reactor will not be back on line at least until mid-week, FP&L spokesman Carl Pounds said Sunday.

The unit was taken out of service two weeks ago because of a fuse problem. It was off line, but near operating temperature, early Saturday when oil leaked onto some hot piping, causing a small fire inside a cubicle that houses the reactor's coolant pump.

Longwood Fee Proposal Puts Bite On Developers

City Cites Cost Of Processing Applications For Hefty Increase

The cost of development will go up in Longwood if a proposed increase in application fees for rezonings, annexations, variances and site plan reviews is passed.

After receiving recommendations, one by the city's consulting engineering firm, Dyer, Riddle, Mills and Precourt, and one by city staff, the commission informally agreed at a work session Wednesday to set fees in most instances higher than suggested. The commissioners said they want fees high enough to cover the actual cost of processing applications.

In some cases the commission's proposed increases more than double the amount recommended by both city staff and the consulting engineer. The ordinance will be discussed Sept. 9 and a public hearing and final vote held Sept. 23.

An application for property rezoning would go up from $100 to $640, which is more than the recommended fee of $400.

The proposed fee for a change to the zoning ordinance or comprehensive plan is $965, where today no fee is charged. The engineering firm had recommended $300 and the staff, $400, plus actual costs of advertising if a change to the map exceeds 200 acres.

Other types of applications for which there is no fee now will go up as follows: non-conforming use, $475; site plan revision, $100; arbor ordinance permit, commercial only for more than 10 acres, $130; right-of-way and curb cut permits, $140 for an individual dwelling unit plus 15 cents per foot for commercial, industrial or multi-family property; sewer and water connection permit, $155; and water line extension, $165.

The cost of annexation for commercial property would go from $300 to $1,190 plus advertising costs. The recommended fee by both the engineer and staff was $200. The city commission can waive the fee for individual homeowners if they wish.

A variance request, which now costs $100, would go up to $450, more than twice the recommended amount. The fee for a special exception, now set at $50 would go up to $590; a PUD Conditional Use request would go from $300 to $1,360 ($500 engineering fee in advance); Historical District applications, from $50 to $655; site plan review from $75-$100 to $980; preliminary subdivision plat development plan, $300 to $1,230; final subdivision plat development plan, $590; petition to vacate and abandon a right-of-way or street, $50 to $575 plus cost of appraisal; and petition to close, vacate and abandon easements from $50 to $575 plus advertising cost.

Woman Shoots At Persistent Stranger

A 36-year-old Lake Mary woman who was flagged down by a stranger as she drove east on State Road 46 near Interstate 4 at about 11:30 p.m. Friday, told sheriff's deputies the man jumped in her car, and she later had to shoot at him to make him leave.

Paulette Ann Farr of 256 S. 3rd St., told deputies the man first said he had been in an accident and had injured his head. He asked her to take him to a hospital, a sheriff's report said.

As Ms. Farr drove east the man reportedly asked her if she wanted to have sex. He produced a short-barrel pistol, but didn't point it at her, the report said.

Ms. Farr turned onto Airport Boulevard and parked at Ball Brother's Company. She got out of her car and grabbed a 22-caliber pistol from the glove box area of her vehicle. The suspect got out and as he began running toward Airport Boulevard Ms. Farr fired a single shot at the man but didn't hit him, the report said.

Thomas Ball, 31, of 683 Mourning Dove St., Lake Mary, vice president of Ball Co., told deputies he saw Ms. Farr fire a single shot at the fleeing man, the report said.

Deputies confiscated Ms. Farr's gun, for safekeeping, the report said. She declined to give lawmen a written statement on the incident, the report said.

DRUG BUST

Seminole County drug task force agents working with two confidential informants who allegedly on two occasions bought $100 worth of cocaine at a Winter Park home, charged a suspect in the case Friday following a search of the man's home.

The alleged buys were made on Aug. 12 and 14, where an unspecified amount of cocaine was sold each time for $100, a sheriff's report said.

A search warrant was obtained and the home searched. Unspecified quantities of cocaine and drug paraphernalia and less than 20 grams of marijuana were reportedly found in the home, the report said.

David Lee Griffin, 43, of 210 Moyses Road, was arrested at his home at 10:25 p.m. He has been charged with possession of cocaine, drug paraphernalia and marijuana and was being held in lieu of $8,000 bond.

of $300 from his roommate.

The man was accused by Jon M. Albritton of 1177 La Mesa Drive, of taking $300 from him without permission, a sheriff's report said.

Steven Eugene Myers, 19, was charged at the sheriff's office at 1 p.m. Friday. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

PIPE ASSAULT

A 19-year-old Altamonte Springs man who reportedly hit another man several times in the head with a lead pipe during an argument has been charged with aggravated battery and was being held in lieu of $8,000 bond.

The man reportedly took the pipe from the victim's vehicle and allegedly attacked the unidentified man at 813 Orchid St., Casselberry at about 8 a.m. Friday, a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

The victim and the pipe were bloody, the report said, and Robby Edward Sweat of 1736 Monterey North Apartments, was charged in the case.

PERSISTENT MAN CHARGED

Donna Delmedico, 26, of 240 Cypress Way, Casselberry, called police to 240 Lemon Lane at about 9:40 p.m. Friday to arrest a man she had spoken with on the phone at 4:30 p.m., and had told not to come over.

The man reportedly came anyway and when Ms. Delmedico refused to let him in he reportedly broke a glass door, forced a chain lock and entered the home. She called police and fled out the front door, a police report said.

Police surrounded the home and the suspect came out through a carport and was arrested, the report said.

Gregory T. Walter, 24, of Orlando, has been charged with burglary to an occupied dwelling and criminal mischief. He was being held in lieu of $8,000 bond.

SPEEDER WITH POT

A 20-year-old Altamonte Springs man stopped by police in the parking lot of American Roller Rink, 611 W. State Road 436, because his vehicle was traveling at an estimated 25 to 35 mph in the lot has been charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

The Altamonte Springs police man who stopped the suspect at about 8 p.m. Friday, reported spotting cigarette rolling papers, a partially smoked pot cigarette and a bag of pot in the man's vehicle.

Mark Anthony Thomas of 629 Spicewood Circle was being held in lieu of $500 bond.

BARE EYES

A motorcyclist cited by Sanford police for riding without mandatory eye protection has also been charged with possession of marijuana.

Police reported stopping the man's motorcycle on First Street at Sanford Avenue at about 11:30 a.m. Friday. Police reported finding a bag of marijuana in the suspect's possession.

Steven Michael Vornis, 18, of Deland was released on $500 bond.

TWO ASSAULT OFFICERS

In separate incidents a Seminole County sheriff's deputy and a Sanford policeman charged two suspects for allegedly assaulting them on Friday.

Deputy James Virgin reported the man he arrested at 7:25 p.m. at the Elbow Room, County Road 427, S. Sandford Ave., was cursing when he walked into the bar to assist another deputy who had responded to a disturbance call.

The man charged reportedly told Virgin he was going to punch his head in and took a threatening stance, a sheriff's report said. The man refused to calm down and James Ronald Coyburn, 28, of Route 3, Box 510, Sanford, was charged with disorderly conduct in addition to the assault charge, the report said. He was released on $500 bond.

In the other case, Sanford policeman David Semones charged Dale Roy Wooten, 21, of 1100 W. 1st St., Sanford, with battery and resisting arrest without violence at 3:33 p.m. after he allegedly slammed a car door against Semones' hip and then struggled with the officer, a police report said. The incident occurred at 1201 S. Park Ave., and Wooten was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

BURGLARIES & THEFTS

A thief took a computer and disc worth about $4,000 along with two shotguns and other items from the home of Peggy A. Gronto, 42, of 1650 Carlton Road, Longwood, while she was on vacation between Aug. 16 and Friday, a sheriff's report said.

Tools building equipment worth $3,000 and belonging to John Steven O'She, 38, of 1640 Matland Ave., Matland, were stolen from a job site at 322 W. Hornbeam Drive, Longwood, on Thursday or Friday. Deputies have the name of a suspect in the case.

AARP To Hold Classes For Older Drivers

The American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) will hold a series of "55 Alive" Mature Driving classes for older drivers on Sept. 17 and 19, 1-4:30 p.m. in Deltona.

There will also be a class on Nov. 19 and 21, 1-4:30 p.m. No reservations can be accepted in October. Classes qualify for insurance discounts with participating companies.

A registration and materials fee of $7 is charged. Classes are limited in size and are by reservation only. The registration fee is payable to AARP and must be sent with the reservation to Floyd F. Stapleton, 4830 Monticello, Deltona, Fl., 32738. For information call 904-789-4522.

Although statistically older drivers have fewer accidents per mile than younger drivers, they older drivers have more accidents for the number of miles driven, Stapleton said.

"This means older drivers do not have to go as far to get into trouble," he added. Approximately 24 percent of all licensed drivers are over the age of 55 — the beginning age of normal physical changes relating to driving such as vision, hearing and reaction time. This driving course is designed to help compensate for these physical problems.

'Those Are Real Bullets Out There'

Army Women Closer To Combat Than Most Think

By Russ Kasal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Army Spec. 4 Marian Anderson was waiting with three other female soldiers for the evacuation plane out of Point Salines, Grenada, when the sniper fire began.

It was evening on the fifth day of the Grenada invasion — Oct. 29, 1983. Anderson had been yelling at an all-male unit at the airstrip to douse its lights for security's sake.

The unit's replies — including "ah, females" — were cut short when snipers proved Anderson and three other Military Policewomen right.

"Everybody shut up and we all hit the ground," she recalls.

For roughly two hours the four lay prone as sniper rounds came "over the runway," according to then-MP Spec. 4 Elizabeth Milliken, like the others a member of the 82nd Airborne Division's 118th Military Police Company.

The incident ended with the successful evacuation of the MPs, the only women among the troops. But it illustrates the uncertain relationship between women and combat in today's Army.

Like their Navy and Air Force counterparts, the Army's 77,375 female soldiers cannot legally engage in battle.

But many Americans do not realize that women's combat support roles and the nature of modern ground warfare make them likely targets.

An upcoming Army decision could place them even closer to the fight.

All servicewomen face some risk of encountering combat. Air Force women fly refueling and AWAC's intelligence aircraft, according to the Women's Equity Action League. These aircraft make logical targets for enemy fire. Female naval personnel sail on hospital and repair ships. However, congressional mandate bars permanent assignment of female fliers to Air Force planes on combat missions. Female sailors likewise cannot hold other than temporary positions on ships and aircraft expected to undertake combat assignments.

The Army has no such mandate. It tries "to interpret the intent of Congress," looking at the other services' exclusion rules when making its own, according to Lt. Col. Constance Davis of the Army's Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff of Personnel.

That translates to a policy barring only primary combat missions. The Army defines such combat as "engaging an enemy with individual or crew-served weapons while being exposed to direct enemy fire, a high probability of direct physical combat with the enemy's personnel, and a substantial risk of capture."

Anything else goes, however — including, if necessary, returning enemy fire. "If women are in a unit which is attacked, they will defend their positions, and are trained to do so," Davis says.

The policy enables female soldiers to serve in units almost certain to come under fire in today's fluid ground warfare.

"I think we're kidding ourselves if we think that women are not in a combat environment" given a war, says Army Capt. Carol Barkalow. Barkalow codes Army assignments for their likely exposure to combat at the Logistics Assessment Task Group, Fort Lee, Va.

This system of Direct Combat Probability Coding keeps women out of the infantry, tank units, cannon field artillery, low-level air defense units and attack helicopter squadrons, Barkalow says.

Geared in part to battlefield location, the system allows female soldiers into rear area supply and operational support units deemed less dangerous than those at the front line.

But according to the Army's own "air-land" battle doctrine, the war of the future — at least in Europe — would be "everywhere," according to Davis.

"There is not going to be a definite front line, especially not very early on," Davis argues. "Combat is going to take place all over."

"If there were a battle, there would be women going back and forth all the time" over the field, she adds.

And despite the Grenada evacuation — a decision later deemed incorrect by the commander of the 82nd's XVIII Army Corps — "if there's a battle the women will stay to complete their mission."

Barkalow's experience as an officer with a battery of air defense artillery in West Germany showed her how vulnerable such operational support units could become.

"I was six to seven air minutes away from the East German border," she recalls of her three years at the Nike-Hercules missile battery. "I was dead meat (if war broke out)."

Enlisted women find targets for field artillery and serve with Lance and Pershing missile crews, Davis says. Based on an Army Research Institute study, she estimates that roughly 19 percent of today's female enlisted soldiers serve in such "non-traditional" occupations.

Female-occupied Army positions most susceptible to battle, according to Barkalow, include the "traditional" one of medic, as well as the "less-traditional" job of cook, and "non-traditional" ones of tank repairer, mechanic, and truck driver.

Women MPs can also come in close proximity to fighting, as Anderson and Milliken — both since promoted to Sergeant — found on Grenada.

The Army apparently expected such in her pre-landing briefing, Anderson remembers. "They told us, 'it's real world, those are real bullets out there.'"

Besides the airstrip incident, Anderson narrowly missed driving into sniper fire on Oct. 29. If not for a stalled vehicle, she says, "I wouldn't be here telling you the story."

Milliken guarded POWs the same day, and the island's American Embassy when she returned later. Once she was sent along on a "rat patrol" to check out sightings of Cubans on the hill opposite the Embassy, although her squad encountered no fire.

In fact, women now serve in support units Army guidelines technically prevent them from joining, according to Barkalow.

An upcoming decision on whether to fully open these Forward Support Battalions could prompt other moves allowing women closer to combat, she says. "It may be a catalyst for future decisions of that nature."

Within an Army division, combat troops are supplied by one Main and three Forward Support Battalions. In a battle, the Army theoretically would put the forward support battalions right behind the front line. In turn, the main support battalions would stand in back of the forward support units.

Like combat outfits, forward support battalions are coded "P-1," or most likely to see battle. Women cannot join them permanently, as they can main support battalions.

But "across the board," roughly 17 percent of troops in the Army's 51 forward support battalions are female, Barkalow says.

Those women served in an earlier version of the forward battalions which is being phased out, she explains. They have moved with their old jobs into the new forward support battalions — and stayed there on permanent assignment.

Once they leave, however, their positions will be filled by men.

The Army Logistics Center where Barkalow serves has recommended in a study that forward support battalions be opened to new female assignments. A decision is expected from the Army Chief of Staff in three to four months.

The change was recommended to give a division support commander "the freedom to assign the most qualified individuals where he saw fit" as replacements, "regardless of whether they were male or female," according to Barkalow.

Women can serve as temporary replacements, Barkalow states, but they and the unit will face difficulties if the troops are unaccustomed to working with female soldiers.

Asked whether a forward support officer might regardless feel forced to call up female replacements in battle, she says, "I think we need to come to grips with the reality that that might happen."

Davis doesn't agree that opening the units might set a precedent for putting women even closer to combat risks.

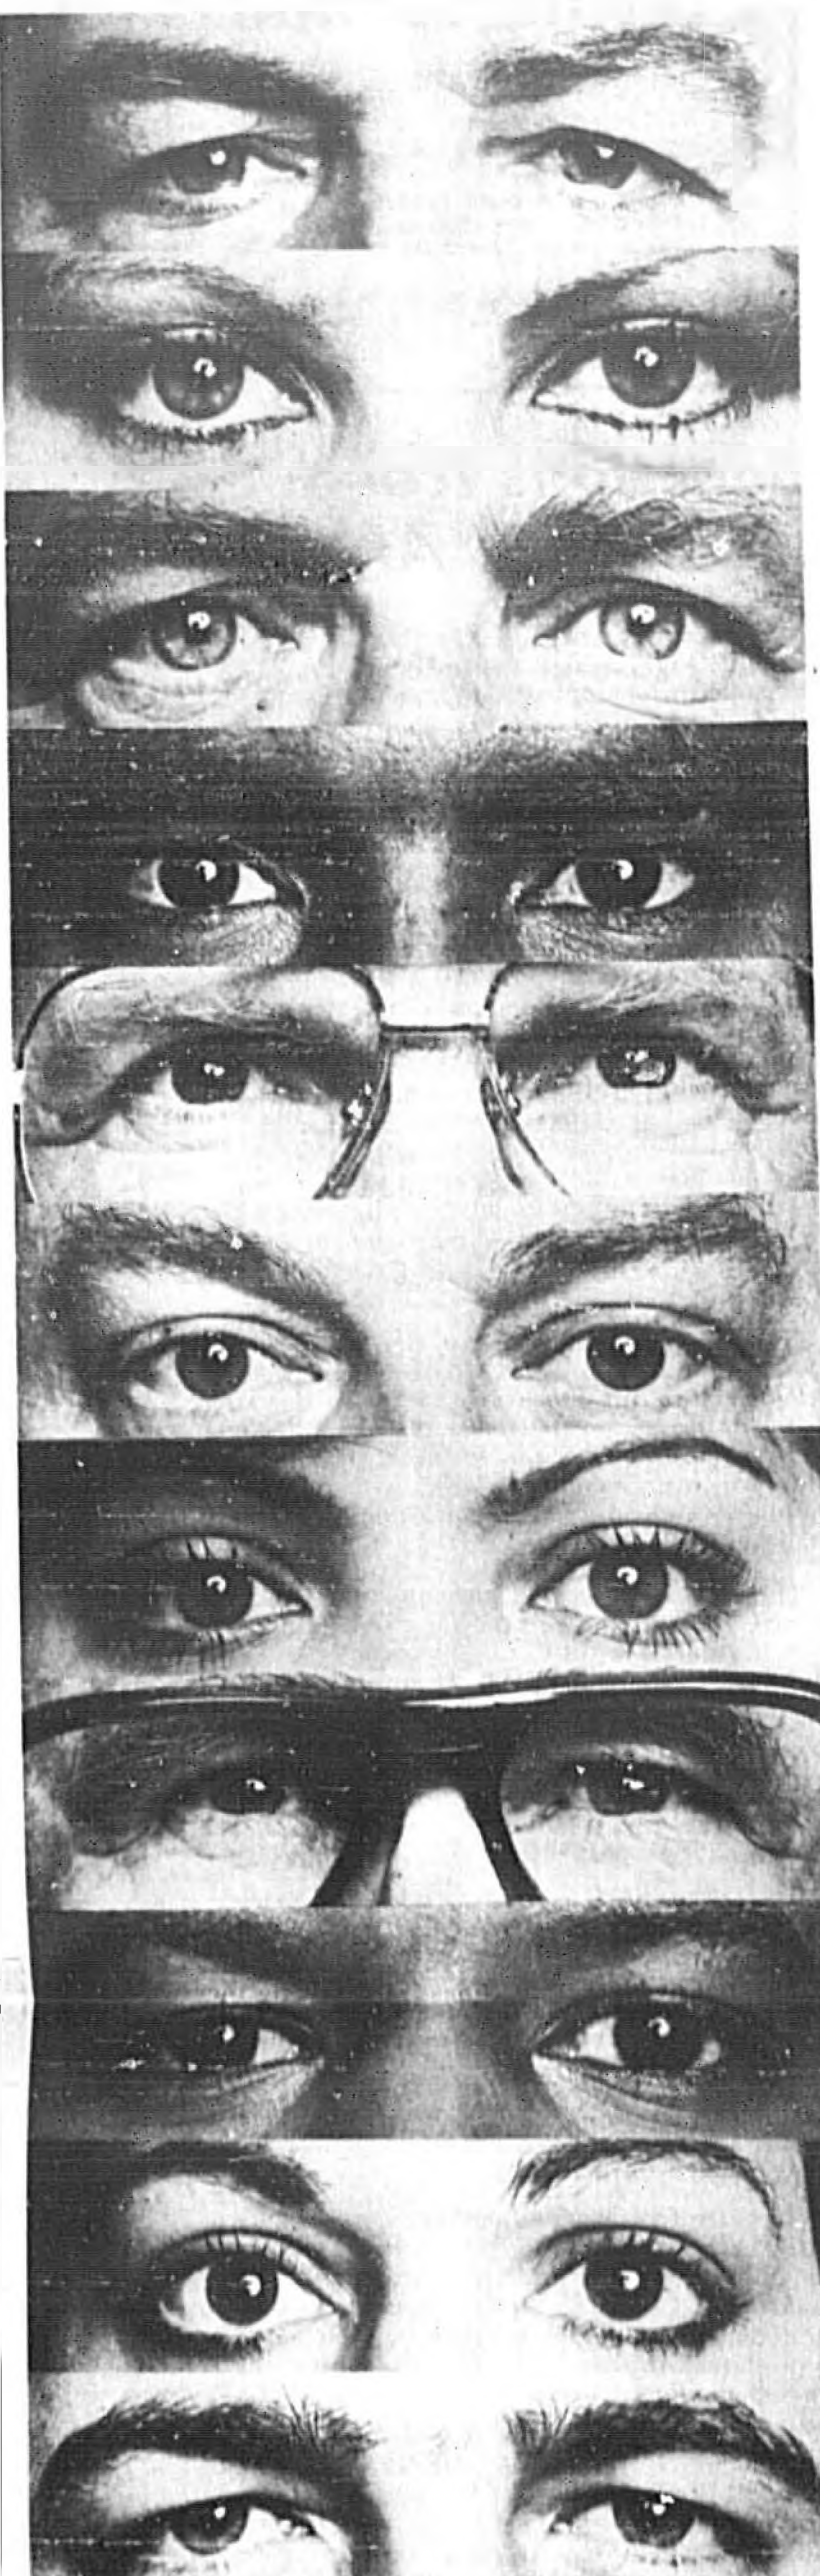

"There are women there already," she says, referring to the female engineers, artillery soldiers and intelligence specialists who would move at least temporarily into forward areas.

Women in positions coded as less combat-prone than P-1 "can go all the way forward" for short periods, Davis points out.

"And what is 'forward' at this point?" she asks, noting that such distinctions may not exist in war.

The Army last made a major change in its combat exclusion policy in 1983. That year it opened up 13 of 23 jobs closed to women in 1982.

The change gave enlisted women access to 5,100 of the Army's then nearly 10,000 units. Pressure for the action came from Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, the defense advisory committee on women in the services, and women's groups.

Sanctions Needed Against S. Africa

Standing at the southern border gate of America, where millions of illegal aliens are exploited and denied rights. It is difficult to cast stones at South Africa. But we have denounced this nation's immigration laws for perpetuating a system of American apartheid. And we condemn South Africa's far more cruel system of racial apartheid, which forces 24 million blacks to live without equal rights as aliens in their own land.

What kind of country is it that denies citizenship to its majority, that forbids blacks to own land outside their impoverished "homelands," that denies them human rights, that permits them to meet together only in order to bury their dead — and then suspends that right when funerals turn into protest marches? Is the same country that has the largest BMW dealership in the world, that boasts prosperous farms and new cities and beautiful beaches — cars, farms, cities and beaches which bear striking resemblance to out Southwest states.

"Please allow us to bury our dead with dignity," pleaded Bishop Tutu when police halted a funeral procession. "Please do not rub our noses in the dust. We are already hurt; we are already down. Don't trample on us. We are human beings, we are not animals. And when we have a death, we cry like you cry."

The world is crying out against South Africa, the unbeloved country. The temptation is great to want to rub Pretoria's nose in the dust, to trample it. But we must hear the cry from within South Africa of good people who are calling for reform. They are few, and the cry for violence and retaliation is growing, but there exists, perhaps, time to avert a bloody race war, though more than 500 people have already died.

The only reform that can save South Africa is the abolition of apartheid. All blacks must be given citizenship in their country. The homelands must be dismantled. All races should be given political rights, on the basis of one man, one vote.

This cannot be done in one day. But it must eventually be done, and the promise must be given now, or the escalation of violence will make legal reform academic.

The United States should show South Africa that it will no longer maintain normal relations with a country that practices racial apartheid. Congress should pass reasonable sanctions against South Africa, similar to the sanctions imposed by Canada, and the president should sign them into law.

Constructive engagement is a dead policy. In its place, economic, diplomatic, and political pressure must be brought to bear on Pretoria to move toward the abolition of apartheid. If the country steps up repression, the United States should step up sanctions.

Yet if South Africa responds positively, the United States should not kick it in the dust.

BERRY'S WORLD

DONALD LAMBRO

Business Needs Help From Congress

WASHINGTON — The late, great humorist, Sam Levinson, wrote a wonderfully funny book titled, "You Don't Have To Be In Who's Who to Know What's What."

And this classic title couldn't be a more apt comment about the U.S. trade deficit and America's inability to be able to compete more aggressively in world markets.

Few within the Washington establishment are addressing the problem of anemic U.S. exports with anything approaching clarity or common sense. Most lawmakers seem perfectly content to make Japan or some other entrepreneurial country the whipping boy when the problem and the solution are really right here at home.

But listen to the views of one small-business operator outside the Washington Beltway who isn't in Who's Who, but who certainly knows what's what:

"I wish that our media would give the same attention to the job losses due to our loss of export markets that they give to the job losses due to imports."

"We lose those export jobs long before the import jobs. When we lose a large contract in India or in Africa, why doesn't that get the same amount of attention paid to the import of subway cars into New York City, or Japanese automobiles?"

"Our best defense is a good offense, and exports put our products into world markets to compete with foreign companies on their own turf, or at least on neutral turf, before they come into our domestic market."

The speaker is Gordon O. F. Johnson, who heads LogEtronics, a small business in Springfield, Va., that manufactures film-developing equipment and cameras. He spoke about foreign-trade problems at a symposium of small-business entrepreneurs, and they were published in The Center Magazine.

Instead of cursing the "darkness" of foreign imports, as a lot of politicians and businesses are doing, Johnson thinks that American businesses should light some export bonfires by aggressively seeking out new markets.

The government, he thinks, could do a lot to help expand U.S. exports by clearing away a thicket of regulatory laws and rules that make foreign trade for small businesses a difficult, if not impossible, obstacle to surmount.

"Some people in this country look at the foreign cars on our streets and say, 'This is terrible. Look at the American jobs that have been lost because of foreign cars."

"And yet," says Johnson, "these foreign cars have kept U.S. car prices down. If we were to go protectionist, U.S. businesses would be less productive domestically and less competitive internationally."

If we are to expand U.S. markets and thus create more jobs at home, he says, "we must stress the need for free trade, not protectionism." The key to expanding exports, says Johnson, is to "help small businesses compete in the global economy."

Until now, the export market has been largely dominated by big corporations that have had the expertise and the manpower to deal with a mountain of export rules, regulations and paperwork.

"Some of this hassle may be inherent and unavoidable," says Johnson, "but some of it is self-inflicted by our government."

Among the worst obstacles: the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act; the anti-boycott laws; excessive export controls; and agencies like the Domestic International Sales Corporation and the Foreign Sales Corporation, "which are unnecessarily complicated from the point of view of a lot of small businesses."

Problems Await Reagan

By Arnold Sawlsak
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — According to some who have been around Washington long enough to know their way to the FDR memorial (it's in back of the National Archives), President Reagan may be in for a nasty surprise when he gets back from vacation.

These folks think the president is going to have real problems, maybe even open revolt, in his dealings with Senate Republicans from now on. They say White House chief of staff Donald Regan is the cause, or at least the symbol, of the problem.

Business consultant Horace Busby, who came to Washington when Lyndon Johnson was a rookie senator and has worked both on Capitol Hill and in the White House, wrote in a "perspective paper" for his clients recently that Regan enraged the GOP establishment in the Senate and House when he persuaded the president to reject a budget compromise in a way "that unceremoniously pulled the rug from under Republican leader Bob Dole."

Busby said Regan then compounded the insult by going to the Capitol and delivering a "trade" denouncing Congress for its inability to break the budget deadlock.

Further, wrote Busby, Regan fed the speculation that he is seeking to become "the White House strong man," the de facto president, by seeing to it that he was in the photographs with Reagan and Vice President Bush after the president's cancer surgery and by calling on Dole after the budget fight bearing an Indian peace pipe. That was a gaffe, according to Busby.

"Those who understand the Senate winced," he wrote. "A staff man at the White House should never presume to come on as an equal to a senator."

Busby isn't the only old Washington hand who faults Regan's style.

Columnists Jack Germond and Robert Novak, often at odds on TV's "McLaughlin Group," agreed recently that Regan's publicized and televised "staff summit meeting" at the president's California ranch was a dumb idea.

They and other McLaughlin panelists also predicted the announcement, from "senior officials" who had to be Regan, that Regan would use his veto more often when he got back to work in September, hurt the administration's chances of getting tax reform legislation this year.

HUD Looking At Home Purchases

Using federal subsidies, a group called Deal Independent Residences is paying top dollar and then some for homes in Wicomico County on Maryland's rural Eastern Shore. The homes will be specifically fitted for deal occupants. The group contracted to buy a four-bedroom home for $89,900, even though the advertised asking price was $47,500. It also has its eye on two other homes priced at $72,000 each. The average price of a home in the county last year was $47,900. The Housing and Urban Development Department is looking into the situation.

ROBERT WAGMAN

GOP Split Threatening

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Most people have forgotten the 1976 Republican presidential primary and the bitter battle between "Ford Republicans" and "Reagan Republicans." By the time it ended, the party was so weakened that Jimmy Carter was able to march to the White House fairly easily.

In the last two presidential campaigns, one of Ronald Reagan's greatest strengths has been his ability to unite the usually divided Republican Party. However, Reagan is a lame duck, and the GOP is looking toward 1988 and beyond. Factionalism is creeping back into the party, and the unity of the Reagan years is quickly crumbling.

In the old days, the Republican Party was divided between moderates (those from the "Rockefeller wing") and conservatives. In many elections, the moderates were able to block the conservatives' aspirations. For example, the conservatives will never forgive the moderates for denying Sen. Robert Taft the 1952 nomination by bringing in war hero Dwight Eisenhower.

However, those days of a clear moderate-conservative split within the GOP are gone. The party as a whole has moved to the right, and today's "moderates" are men like Vice President George Bush, Sen. Robert Dole and former Sen. Howard Baker, who spend most of their time telling everyone how conservative they are.

This isn't to say that there are no moderates within the GOP. The Ripon Society, the last bastion of moderate Republicanism, still exists. However, its influence in party affairs is minuscule. For the most part, its few members who hold major office are senators and representatives from the Northeast.

Today's divisions within the GOP are more complicated than those of older, simpler days, but they're no less bitter. Today's major split tends to be along ideological lines, the major battlegrounds are economic policy and, to a lesser extent, social policy.

On one side are New Right Republicans, who believe passionately in supply-side economics and its absolute opposition to high taxes. The New Right believes that deficits really don't count in the long run, because, as the economy grows, the nation will simply grow out of the deficit.

On the other side are more traditional conservatives, who still believe that deficits are to be avoided at all costs — even if this requires higher taxes.

This division is beginning to pit Senate Republicans against House Republicans. In general, Republicans in the Senate, where they are a majority, believe the secret to winning in 1986 and 1988 is to put the nation's economic house in order. To them, this means the deficit must be reduced. So, they're willing to consider tax increases and major program cuts, including cuts in once-untouchable programs such as defense and Social Security.

ROBERT WALTERS

Lignite World Capital?

BEULAH, N.D. (NEA) — In the midst of the windswept Northern Plains 7½ miles from this rural community stands a sprawling industrial facility whose seemingly improbable location is surpassed only by its surely unattainable goal.

It is the Northern Plains Coal Gasification Project, a $2.1 billion facility that represents this country's most ambitious attempt to develop a synthetic fuels industry.

Planning for the project began in 1972, when its commercial sponsors and federal government supporters had visions of converting the lignite coal that abounds in the area (Beulah proclaims itself the "lignite capital of the world") into natural gas at a reasonable cost.

The ensuing years brought rapidly escalating prices of imported oil and gas, political turmoil in the Middle East and the "energy crises" of 1973-74 and 1979-80.

During the near hysteria of the 1970s about the future of energy supplies and prices, reputable public agencies and private organizations forecast that the price of a 42-gallon barrel of imported crude oil could climb to $60, $80, $100 or even $150 by 1980.

Indeed, prices soared well above the $2-per-barrel level that had been consistent until the early 1970s — but they peaked at $37 in the early 1980s and now are slumping toward $25.

The conversion of coal into natural gas at the 1,000-acre complex north of here is an expensive and elaborate procedure, involving 30 different processes. About 14,000 tons of lignite are fed daily into 12 gasifiers, each the height of a four-story building.

Thus, the financial success of the synthetic plant here is contingent upon the extraordinarily high global energy prices that were widely predicted when the project was planned but that have never materialized.

In the late 1970s, for example, the project's promoters told federal regulators that they could produce natural gas at a cost of $5.56 to $8.62 per thousand cubic feet.

Today, the gas is being synthesized at a price at the high end of that range — about $8.50 per thousand cubic feet. But natural gas from wells throughout the country is readily available at about $2.50 per thousand cubic feet.

MINI-EDITORIAL: In its obsession with the seemingly indestructible drug traffic, Congress sometimes behaves as irrationally as the junkies it's trying to save. The House, for instance, recently slipped a provision into the Defense authorization bill that would allow Navy personnel to arrest dope smugglers overseas. Not only would this require extensive training in law enforcement for the sailors selected, but it would mean they'd have to be on call for long periods for any resulting court cases. All things considered, it would be wiser to leave the war on drug smugglers to civilian landlubbers.

Raines' 50th Steal Slips Into Records

While Dwight Gooden was grabbing national headlines by being the youngest 20-game winner in baseball history, Tim Raines was quietly slipping into the record books at Montreal Sunday.

Raines, one of the few Expos not to fall flat on his face during the crucial time of the division chase, stole his 50th base Sunday as Montreal upended the Dodgers for the second day in a row.

With the theft, Raines becomes the first player in history to steal 50 bases or more in his first five years in the majors. Raines, who must have some kind of record for making the N.L. All-Star team each year, too, has totals of 71, 78, 90 and 75 to go with this year's total.

Raines also boosted his batting average to .311 Sunday with two more hits. He has 13 hits in his last 21 at-bats. The surge has lifted him to fourth in the league.

"I always finish strong," said Raines recently while in Chicago. "But I'm usually hitting below .300 when I start coming on. This time, I'm at .300 so I might finish at .320 or higher."

Raines said he feels the strong rush is necessary since next year will be his sixth in the major leagues. If he doesn't sign with the Expos after this year, he can play out his option and be a free agent after next season.

Raines is already making $12 million a year. One can only guess what he could make if he were to put another year together like the past two seasons during his option year.

Raines said he would like to stay with the Expos but...

San Diego, Atlanta and Los Angeles are his three favorite places to go. "San Diego because I like playing for Dick Williams," he said. "And Atlanta because it's close to home."

And Los Angeles? "Because it's near Hollywood," he laughed.

Move over Jimmy Brown...

Reunions are always fun — even if they're only one year old.

Altamonte's two most successful Little League teams recently honored their champions and both groups had a good time reliving the memories. Fittingly, both reunions were a year to the day of the championship games.

Altamonte Senior League manager Gene Letterio assembled his World Series Sunday, Aug. 18 at Letterio's home. Letterio presented the players with their championship jerseys, a nice touch by the MGR.

Letterio said it took him two months of paperwork through Williamsport to acquire the souvenirs. They arrived just in time, three days before the Sunday get together.

Letterio said a copy of the roster and pitching affidavit was also made available by Little League President Creighton Hale. Letterio gave a copy of each to his World Champions.

Altamonte's other champ from last year, manager Jerrey Thurston's 12-year-olds, got together Saturday at Ron Wallace's house to celebrate last year's USA championship and World Series runnerup to South Korea.

The players almost saw a video replay of last year's game when South Korea scored in the first inning en route to a victory over Mexico. South Korea did the same thing to Altamonte, getting four runs in the first on its way to the title.

Thurston and his 12-year-olds donated the leftover money ($30) to the Altamonte Little League...

If the Altamonte Little League goes through with its latest proposal, it's going to need more than money.

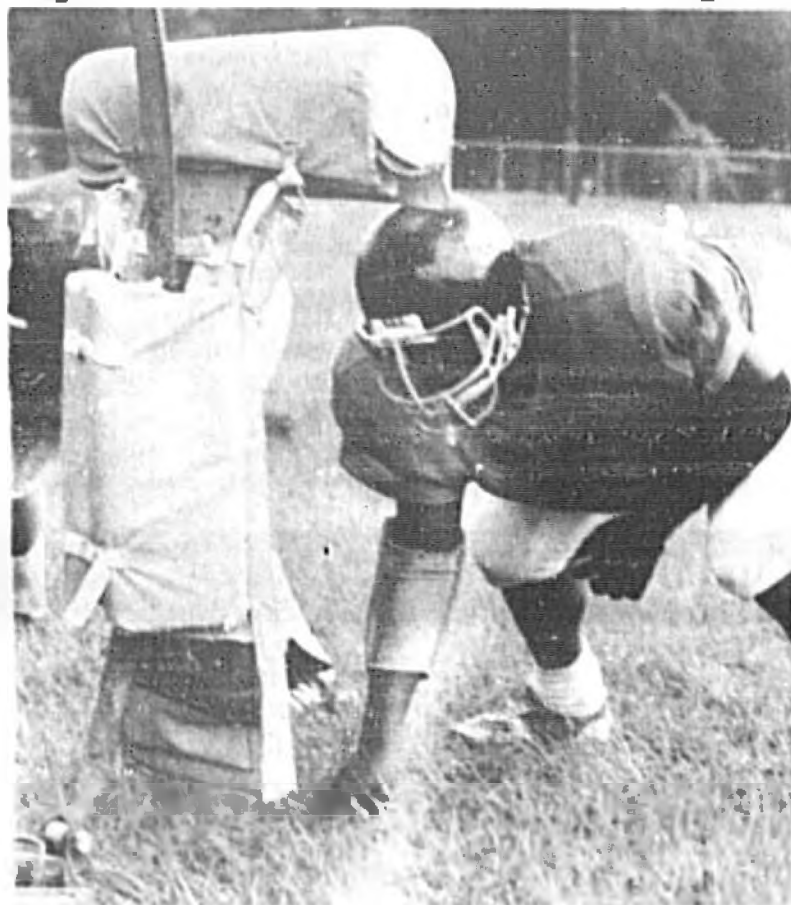

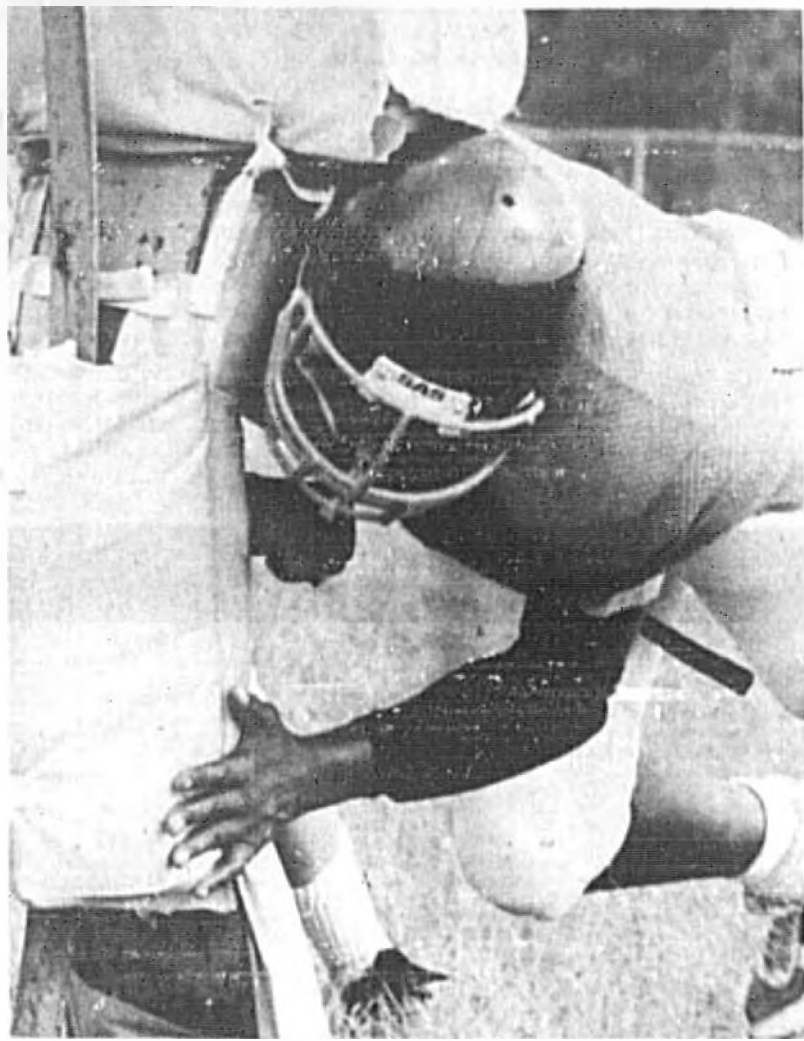

The last proposal I heard that was in the works was to ban any player who participates in high school baseball.

That should bring on the attorneys...or the demise of the Senior League...

Tribe Senior Epitomizes Dedication

By Chris Flater
Herald Sports Writer

Clint Boyles, a 6-0, 220-pound senior, has made up his mind that he wants to play football for Sanford's Fighting Seminoles in 1985. Boyles didn't play in the spring and therefore must work off time he lost in spring drills so he can play in the fall.

"If you don't play in the spring you have to make up 40 hours of spring work before you can play for me," Seminole coach Dave Mosure said. "He (Boyles) has eight hours so far. If he completes them, he'll play by the first game. Also if he completes them he will have made a decision as a senior that he wants to compete."

Boyles is one example of the dedication and enthusiasm that is running rampant in Seminole County as the 1985 prep football season approaches. County coaches and players head into their final two and one-half weeks before the Friday, Sept. 13 opener.

"I just made up my mind that I had wasted three years and it was time to play football," said Boyles last week. "I had been working out at the spa and I'm in pretty good shape but those first few days were tough."

Boyles and Mosure, however, agreed that the double duty has been worthwhile.

"This week of two days has been excellent," Mosure said. "The kids are in real good shape physically and mentally."

Some teams experienced some rough spots this past week, the first full week of practice and the last week of summer vacation. But, for the most part, it was a satisfying week of workouts.

At Seminole High, Mosure sees potential almost everywhere he looks.

"We're getting leadership in different ways from all the kids," he said. "It's a real enthusiastic group."

Mosure said leaders thus far have been Brian Brinson, Dexter Franklin, Dennis Lawrence, Jerry Little and Theron Liggins defensively along with James Rowe, Dwayne Willis, Eddie Banks, Carl Tipton and Allan Kendall offensively.

A pair of underclassmen who Mosure said are looking good are quarterbacks Jeff Blake, a sophomore, and Darryl Taylor, a junior.

"Blake has had an excellent two weeks," Mosure said. "And Taylor has come a great distance. The two quarterbacks continue to improve."

Other underclassmen who have excelled in preseason drills include David Rape, Earnest Lewis and Willie Evans.

"Dave (Rape) has improved his hands and pass routes tremendously," Mosure said. "Earnest (Lewis) has been a pleasant surprise. Evans is really the only returning running back that has improved as far as consistency and ballhandling. He looked good all week."

"We've gotten in a lot more offensively than I thought we would by this time," added Mosure. "We need to work on timing and polish but we've gotten certain things in I didn't expect."

At Lake Mary High, the Rams started quickly then tapered off. "For three days we looked like a bunch of sharks in an eating frenzy, absolutely fantastic," Lake Mary coach Harry Nelson said. "Today (Friday), we looked like worms. I don't know if it's because it's the last day of summer or because they need some time away from me."

Lake Howell Girls Steal Show

9th Graders Impress Hammontree At SCC Summertime Run

By Chris Flater
Herald Sports Writer

As the runners began to cross the finish line at the end of the girls' two mile team race, the most notable entourage on hand Saturday at Seminole Community College was the group of young ladies in the light blue shirts.

While the five other Seminole County teams had few or no runners at the Seminole Summertime Cross Country Jamboree, Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks had 18 runners on hand, which was enough for three teams and then some.

Lake Howell's top five, consisting of all juniors and seniors, finished among the top 21 in the race as the Lady Hawks compiled a team score of 72 which took second in the meet. In first, with a score of 50, was a team called the North Orange Striders which included some top notch runners from Winter Park, Edgewater and Trinity Prep.

Individually, Largo's Mylan Moffat took first place with a time of 11:49 followed by Lake Mary graduate Jill Buddenhagen at 12:03.

Trinity Prep's Adrienne Poltowicz showed she's ready for a fine senior season as she finished third with a time of 12:08.

Cross Country

Poltowicz, the defending 1A State champion, was running for the North Orange Striders team which won the meet. Also running on that team was Winter Park's Amy Gamber (sixth at 12:21) and Edgewater's Susan Nunn (13th at 12:41).

While Lake Howell's more experienced runners showed they're ready for the season to begin, the Lady Hawks also had a number of sophomores and freshmen on the second and third teams which shows that the Lake Howell program is continuing to progress and flourish.

"I'm pleased with the group we have," Lake Howell coach Tom Hammontree said.

"We have some ninth graders coming in to take the places of the ones leaving. That's what we look for when we start the season. We're already thinking about the years to come. That's the only way you can have a successful program. You have to plan and planning starts now."

Leading the way for Lake Howell's A-Team was junior Lisa Samoeki who finished fourth individually with a time of 12:12. Her time in the jamboree last season was 12:16. Senior Amy Ertel finished 12th with a time of 12:37. Ertel ran 12:50 a year ago.

Following Ertel was junior Martha Fonseca (15th at 12:49), senior Angie Smith (20th at 13:07) and Rachel Barnes (21st at 13:15). Fonseca's time in the jamboree last season was 13:07 while Smith didn't run last year and ran a 13:32 as a sophomore in the jamboree.

Leading the way for Lake Howell's B-Team was last year's top junior varsity runner, sophomore Bonnie Oliver, who finished 23rd at 13:18. Oliver was followed by Jenny Bolt (28th at 13:43), Mary Fonseca (33rd at 13:57), younger sister Cindy Oliver (41st at 14:20) and Diane Dimauro (48th at 14:33).

The Lady Hawk's C-Team included Kim Laseur (52nd at 14:50), Kim Hammontree (59th at 15:19), Terry Grainger (63rd at 15:33), Michelle Mitchell (76th at 16:22) and Gwen Lane (79th at 16:30). Also running for Lake Howell Saturday were Angie Bowman (81st at 16:37), Melissa Murphy (83rd at 17:02) and Angie Willard (92nd at 19:38).

Ken Rohr, Lake Mary's distance specialist, finished fourth in Saturday's 3 mile Summertime Run at SCC.

Familiar Names Dominate In Younger Age Brackets

While the high school cross country runners took center stage Saturday, the stars of the future and the past were also on hand at the Seminole Summertime Cross Country Jamboree at Seminole Community College.

The nine and under crowd ran a quarter mile and a number of familiar names were atop the leader board.

First place in the nine and under group went to eight-year-old Jaime Reynolds who ran the quarter mile in 1:19. Second place went to Lisa Payne, 9, daughter of SCC basketball coach Bill Payne. Lisa completed the race in 1:25.

Holly Samoeki, 8, younger sister of Lake Howell standout Lisa Samoeki, was fourth with a time of 1:32. Taressa Gibson, 9, daughter of Lake Mary girls cross country coach Mike Gibson, took sixth place at 1:43 and Danna Smith, 6, niece of Lynn girls coach Joe Laughlin, was seventh at 1:47.

Eighth place went to four-year-old Tiffany Gibson,

Cross Country

Taressa's sister, who ran the quarter mile in 2:09 and in ninth place was three-year-old John Finke who ran a 3:33.

In the half mile run for 10-13 year olds, Matt Hall, 12, took first place at 2:39. Debbie Smith, 13, a Lake Mary High freshman, was fifth overall with a time of 2:58.

In the Open Division three mile race for men and women 19 and over, Roger Sutton won the men's race with a time of 15:28.

Oviedo High graduate and UCF student Marty Phillips was third at 16:16. Jesus DelRosario a Lake Brantley High and UCF graduate, was 15th at 17:22 and Doug Blackwell, Lake Howell's boys track coach, was 18th at 17:41. Ken Rohr Sr., father of Lake Mary senior Ken Rohr, was 25th with a time of 19:52.

The women's winner was De- light Chambers (Brevard County) who ran the three mile course in 19:19. — Chris Flater

Vikings Cut Through Red Tape, Sign Carter

United Press International

Anthony Carter would make a striking gift for any football team. On Sunday the Minnesota Vikings presented themselves with the talented wide receiver by finally cutting through all the red tape Carter was wrapped in.

The Vikings signed Carter and linebacker David Howard, both standouts in the U.S. Football League, to multi-year contracts. Carter reportedly agreed to a 5-year deal worth $2 million.

The two joined the Vikings in training camp Sunday night in Mankato, Minn.

The Vikings had introduced Carter last week at halftime of their exhibition game against Pittsburgh. But it was not until the USFL granted waivers Friday on the former All-America at Michigan that Carter became eligible to join Minnesota.

In other news: — Like his team, Lynn Dickey began his exhibition season slow.

But once the veteran quarterback found his touch, the Green Bay Packers rediscovered their ability to score.

The Packers had not produced

NFL Roundup

a touchdown in their first two exhibition games while being without Dickey, who was sidelined with back and hand injuries.

Dickey returned Saturday night and after a wobbly first quarter, he found his legs, his arms and his receivers, helping Green Bay to a 28-24 victory over the Atlanta Falcons.

"Lynn was rusty," Packers coach Forrest Gregg said. "I didn't intend him to play that much, but the way he played in the first quarter, we thought the risk was worth it. He needed the work."

Dickey finished with 14 completions in 23 attempts for 286 yards.

The Dallas Cowboys will try to maintain their unblemished exhibition record Monday night against the winless Chicago Bears without the services of Danny White in what is expected to be sweltering conditions at Texas Stadium.

— Veteran Gary Danielson and heralded rookie Bernie Kosar are making things difficult for Cleveland Browns coach Marty Schottenheimer, who must decide who his No. 1 quarterback is during the next two weeks.

Danielson, who played the first half of the Browns' 31-28 victory over Buffalo Saturday, had the better statistics — 9-of-14 for 160 yards and two touchdowns. But Kosar (5-of-12, 94 yards) directed Cleveland to what proved to be the winning touchdown.

Gooden Continues March Past Immortals

NEW YORK (UPI) — Last season, he told Tom Seaver, Sandy Koufax and Grover Cleveland Alexander to step aside. On Sunday, he got Bob Feller, Christy Mathewson and — yes, even Babe Ruth — to move back.

It seems like every fifth day, he forces historians to grab the record book, erase the names of some of baseball's greatest and fill in "Dwight Gooden, New York (NL)."

On Sunday, came another victory, and naturally, another milestone for the Mets' right-hander. Although struggling at times, Gooden lasted six innings at muggy Shea Stadium to become the youngest 20-game winner in the modern era as New York posted a 9-3 triumph over the San Diego Padres.

Gooden's 14th straight victory allowed the Mets to remain one game behind first-place St. Louis in the NL East. The Cardinals beat the Braves 5-2 in Atlanta.

Gooden, 20-3, became the majors' second 20-game winner this season and he reached that plateau at the age of 20 years, nine months and nine days. That beat, by about a month, Feller's record set with Cleveland in 1939.

He also arrived at 20 victories younger than

N.L. Baseball

Mathewson, Ruth, Ralph Branca, "Smoky Joe" Wood and Rube Marquard.

So, what does Gooden think about shattering yet another record?

"It's OK, but it's not all me," he said. "There are 25 guys on the team and everybody's got a part of it. When I don't have my good stuff, they are there to pick me up."

As usual, Manager Davey Johnson took great care not to overwork his ace, who threw 97 pitches in allowing five hits with a walk and four strikeouts.

"He threw 140 pitches the last time out (in a 16-strikeout effort against the Giants)," said Johnson. "I was happy to get six innings out of him. I don't want to drain him."

Roger McDowell, who capped a four-run insurance outburst with an RBI double in the seventh, finished for his 12th save.

Last in the Gooden hoopla was the performance of right fielder Darryl Strawberry, who reached base five times with his 20th homer, a two-run double, an RBI single and two walks.

"When I first came to the majors, I got into a lot of bad habits," he said. "I wanted to pull everything. I think that's why my average was down to .250. I'm making a lot better contact this year. I'm thinking more of hitting the ball the other way and back up the middle."

The loss kept the Padres from gaining ground on the Dodgers in the NL West. They trail Los Angeles, which lost 6-1 in Montreal, by 6 1/2 games.

"We're trying to look at this positively," said Steve Garvey. "We didn't lose a game (in the standings) yesterday or today and we picked up a half-game the other day. So, we're gaining."

New York took advantage of second baseman Tim Flannery's error to score three unearned runs off Eric Show, 9-8, in the first on Strawberry's two-run double and Howard Johnson's RBI single.

The Padres used three hits, two wild pitches and an error by Gooden in the third to get within 3-2, but in the fifth, Strawberry launched his 10th homer in the last 26 games, a drive well beyond the 410-foot sign in center.

Dwight Gooden ...20 wins

Darryl Strawberry ...20 homers

After San Diego got that run back on Terry Kennedy's RBI groundout in the sixth, the Mets blew it open in the seventh off reliever Tim Stoddard on a two-run single by George Foster, an RBI single by pinch-hitter Rusty Staub and McDowell's double.

5 Errors Doom Detroit; Yanks Win, Jays Lose

United Press International
Ten months ago, Manager Sparky Anderson challenged the Detroit Tigers to catch a dream. Today, he'd settle for a ground ball.

"We haven't done anything right all year," said Anderson said Sunday after the Tigers committed five errors in a 7-1 loss to the California Angels. "This wasn't a one-day affair. Not after 121 errors. I don't know what we're going to do about it."

Last year, Anderson watched his Tigers capture the World Series, then immediately urged them to repeat. Now 10 1/2 games behind first place Toronto, they have only the slimmest hopes of doing so.

The Angels are in much better shape. Bob Boone and Rod Carew each singled to a run and the Angels took advantage of Kansas City's loss to Texas to move 2 1/2 games ahead of the Royals in the AL West.

innings of hitless relief to improve to 8-2.

"It was a big win for us, coming after we got blown out yesterday (a 13-2 Detroit victory)," said Cliburn, who spent a decade in the minors. "I don't feel like I'm the stopper on this team. Donnie Moore is still the stopper. But the last couple of weeks, I have been able to finish out the games."

"I worked long and hard and it looks like it's paying off. This comes from not giving up on the game."

Detroit centerfielder Chet Lemon, who had not made an error in 108 previous games this season, committed three.

"The ball doesn't take a true roll here. It kind of zig-zags," Lemon said. "I think there's some sand under the outfield and it doesn't take a true bounce. I don't want to make any excuses, though. I was aware of the outfield. I thought, I had it under control when I was charging those balls.

I had a pretty decent game yesterday (five RBI) and a bad one today. What a difference a day makes. But I'll put it out of my mind. Hopefully I won't make that many errors over the next 200 games."

White Sox 5, Blue Jays 3
At Chicago, Harold Baines' three-run homer keyed a four-run first to help the White Sox snap a five-game losing streak. Toronto's George Bell became the first player in the 75-year history of the Comiskey Park to hit a "roof shot" on consecutive days.

Rangers 7, Royals 0
Kansas City, Pete O'Brien knocked in four runs and Oddie McDowell scored three times to support the five-hit pitching of Charlie Hough and propel the Rangers. Hough completed his 11th game to up his mark to 13-12. Bud Black, 8-13, took the loss.

A's 10, Orioles 4

At Oakland, Calif., rookie Tim Lincecum pitched a five-hitter and Dave Kingman and Steve Henderson homered to power the A's. Birtas improved to 10-4 in going the distance for the third time. Mike Flanagan, 2-3, suffered the defeat.

Yankees 8, Mariners 5
At Seattle, Dan Pasqua drove in four runs with a homer and a double and Don Mattingly added his 23rd blast to pace the Yankees. Ed Whitson, 8-7, netted Brian Fisher's late help and ninth save. Mike Moore, 11-8, took the shelling.

Indians 6-2, Brewers 2-0
At Cleveland, Jerry Willard and Mike Hargrove each singled home a pair of runs to back Tom Waddell, 7-5, and spark the Indians in the first game. Moose Haas, 7-6, was the loser. In the second game, George Vukovich's two-run homer made a winner of Ramon Romero, 2-2. Bryan Clark gained his first save. Loser Danny Darwin slid to 7-15.

5-foot-8 right-hander, mastered the Mexicans by striking out eight and walking only one.

"I was a little nervous because I wasn't loose the first couple of innings," Jung said following the game. "I felt good as the game went on."

The only hit off Jung was a fourth-inning single by Mexican pitcher Ricardo Ponce that drove in Ernesto Carrasco. Carrasco had reached base on an error by third baseman Kyung-Hwan Cho.

Ponce, who like Jung went the distance, allowed five hits. He struck out eight and walked five.

Seoul's scoring came in the first and fifth innings.

In the first, successive singles by Cho, Zin-Young You and Jai-Hak Kim produced three runs. Seoul sent nine batters to the plate in the fifth and scored four runs.

The big blow was a two-run double by Jung, the only extra base hit of the game.

Pirates Sweep Houston

United Press International
Pittsburgh manager Chuck Tanner is convinced he's in a pennant race. The fact that it's not for this year's flag does little to cool his fever.

"We're way back this year," Tanner said. "but the way things are going, there's no reason why we can't contend next year and in two years or maybe three years win it all."

Things went this improbable way Sunday afternoon.

The last-place Pirates scored 19 runs, rallying twice in the second game, and swept the Houston Astros in a double-header. Rick Reuschel hit his first home run since 1977. Denny Gonzalez belted his third home run in the two weeks he's been in the major leagues, and Sammy Khafra, another rookie, drove in the game-winning run to complete the back-to-back rarity.

"It feels so good — winning two, coming back twice to win the second game, hitting the ball," Tanner said. "(Club president) Dan Galbreath was so excited he called to congratulate us on winning two. It was like the old days."

The 6-3, 10-9 sweep gave the Pirates their fifth and sixth triumphs in nine games. Over those nine games, Pittsburgh has scored 47 runs for an average of 5.22 per game.

Reuschel, the veteran right-hander making a strong bid to be Comeback Player of the Year, led the Pirates to their first-game victory, pitching a four-hitter and driving in three runs with a two-run double and a solo homer.

Jason Thompson, the slumping slugger, drove in three runs with two singles and rookie Mike Brown doubled in two more in the nightcap.

"After the second time the Astros came back, they could've easily have said the heck with it, but they didn't," Tanner said of the Pirates' persistence in the second game.

Cardinals 5, Braves 2

At Atlanta, Kurt Kephire combined with three relievers on a seven-hitter and Tom Herr tripled home two runs to keep St. Louis in first by a game. Kephire, 10-7, gave up five hits over 7 2/3 innings and Bill Campbell sealed the triumph with his fourth save. Rick Mahler, 16-12, took the loss.

Expos 6, Dodgers 1

At Montreal, Huble Brooks drove in three runs and Bill Guleksson fired a five-hitter to pace Montreal. Guleksson, 12-9, went the distance for the third time this season. Bob Welch, 9-2, lost for the first time in nine decisions. Tim Lincecum rapped two hits and stole his 50th base; Raines became the first major leaguer to ever steal 50 bases in his first five seasons.

Reds 5, Cubs 3

At Cincinnati, Bo Diaz's double off the left-field wall in the sixth inning snapped a 3-3 tie and sparked Cincinnati. Rookie Tom Browning, 13-9, got the victory and John Franco threw three innings for his seventh save. Warren Bruslarf fell to 3-3. Pete Rose did not play and still needs 12 hits to break Ty Cobb's mark.

Phillies 14, Giants 5

At Philadelphia, Juan Samuel and Von Hayes ripped back-to-back homers to highlight a four-homer, 10 extra-base-hit performance that propelled Philadelphia. Reliever Dave Rucker, 2-1, was credited with the triumph. Jim Gott slid to 4-10.

"There's nobody on this earth that is as obnoxious as I am." Nelson said he was pleased with the senior leadership displayed by Marty Hopkins, Dave Mitro, Ray Hartsfield, Byron Washington, Brett Molle and Paul Owen. Nelson also said a pair of newcomers, Richard Burkett and Tom Kothera, have been looking good.

●At Lake Brantley High, rain cancelled most of a scrimmage Friday afternoon but coach Fred Almon said the Patriots ended the week on a high note.

"We kind of reached a flat spot a couple days ago but picked it up today," Almon said. "We're looking forward to really getting into skill things next week."

The senior leadership at Brantley has been another high point since practice started. "I had a talk with a bunch of seniors the other day," Almon said. "They're doing exactly what I like them to do, raising morale."

One of those seniors is offensive lineman Mark Bousquet who Almon said is, "One of the best offensive linemen I've ever coached."

"He can probably right his ticket wherever he wants to go," Almon said of Bousquet. "He's got everything in his own way, he's probably our best leader right now."

Almon said another senior leader, quarterback David DeFiaco, put in a lot of work over the summer. "He worked a lot on throwing the ball," Almon said. "There's no doubt he's our starting quarterback."

Another part of the potent Brantley backfield is senior running back Cornelius Friendly.

"He has really improved," Almon said of Friendly. "He's starting to develop that smoothness he needs to be a good runner."

While Almon's offense looks good, it is the defense that needs the most work.

"Our main concern is on defense," Almon said. "We're so young there, we'll probably start five 10th graders."

Almon said the most experienced defensive players are safety Steve Stark and tackle

●At Oviedo High, the Lions scrimmaged Friday night and coach Jack Blanton said he wasn't too enthused but liked the way his new offensive line looks.

"We just put it together two days ago," Blanton said of the line. "It's the biggest line I've seen at Oviedo."

Among the mammoths on the line is 6-0, 272-pound sophomore center Andy Palmer. Blanton said Palmer, a 15-year-old, bench presses 300 pounds. Also on the line is 234-pound guard Gordon King and 6-0, 220-pound tackle Tony Coffie.

"Tony's doing all right but he's not in top shape yet," Blanton said of Coffie. "He has to be one of our leaders this year."

Others who have looked good in practice for the Lions include safety-split end Willie Gainey, cornerback Bubba Wright and running back Cornell Green.

"We didn't look real good in the scrimmage," Blanton said. "We're still trying to move some people around but we can't get anything clicking. The guys do want to work as a team. What they have to do now is work individually to get themselves mentally and physically prepared."

The Lions will compete in a preseason jamboree Friday, Sept. 6, at St. Cloud.

Lyman's Bill Scott and Lake Howell's Mike Biscaglia were unavailable for comment.

Becker Coasts Past Wilander

Tennis

MASON, Ohio (UPI) — Boris Becker has no designs on the world's top ranking — he's just showing the signs.

The West German Wimbledon champion Sunday beat two-time defending champ Mats Wilander, 6-4, 6-2, to win the ATP Championship.

Becker, ranked ninth in the world, used powerful serves and his outstanding volleying abilities to easily beat the third-ranked Wilander. It was Becker's first championship since winning Wimbledon early in July.

"I played my best match of the tournament," the fourth-seeded, 17-year-old Becker said. "He's been playing good and I beat him four and two. I played too good for him."

Wilander, ranked third in the world, agreed.

"He played much better than me," said the Swedish Wilander, the tournament's top seed. "It's too bad the match couldn't have been more even."

The match, which lasted only 65 minutes, including a four-minute rain delay early in the opening set, was even until the seventh game of the first set. Becker charged the net on several points in that game and broke Wilander's serve to gain a 4-3 advantage.

"I tried to do something else," Becker said of his change in strategy. "So I decided to come in."

Becker served two aces in the 10th game to win the set, 6-4.

"They were four very quick points that changed the whole match," Wilander said.

Becker dominated the second set. Wilander won the first game, but Becker won the next five games to put the match out of reach.

In the middle of that stretch, Becker broke Wilander's serve, served three aces to hold serve and broke Wilander's serve for the third time in the match.

"He serves so well you can't afford to miss easy shots," Wilander said. "He served much better than the other players I've met (in the tournament)."

Earlier in the week, Becker said an injury to his right side was hindering his serve. But by Sunday, he said, it no longer bothered him.

"I served as hard as I could today. He never came to deuce on my serve, so that speaks for itself," Becker said.

Becker and Wilander will play at the U.S. Open in New York this week. Becker, who could meet John McEnroe in the quarterfinal round, is seeded eighth and Wilander is seeded third, behind McEnroe and Ivan Lendl.

JUST WHERE DOES HE RANK?

MASON, Ohio (UPI) — It seems as inevitable as an ever-increasing national debt, Boris Becker will someday be mentioned in the same breath as John McEnroe and Ivan Lendl as one of the best tennis players in the world.

So just where does Becker feel he ranks? "Sometimes 100, sometimes three or two," Becker said after his victory that was worth $18,000. "Today, I am third. Behind (John) McEnroe and (Ivan) Lendl." Officially, he is ninth in the latest ATP rankings.

Becker said repeatedly throughout the week that he is not thinking about becoming No. 1, only about his next opponent, Ion Tiriac, who said he's Becker's "manager" — not coach — confirmed Becker's statement.

"I don't think he cares," Tiriac said. "He knows he's not No. 1, he's just working on it."

"It was a great experience for the girls," Hammontrout said. "It was a situation with meet conditions where they were running against competition and the pressure isn't there. I have a lot of things to feel encouraged about with the girls' development."

The lone runner for Seminole High Saturday was senior Debbie Coleman who finished 31st at 13:49. Oviedo's Renee Wynn turned in a fine performance as she finished 24th at 13:33.

Lyman had four runners on hand including Tracy Fisher (43rd at 14:33), Gretchen O'Grody (61st at 15:25), Audrey Holliday (72nd at 16:06) and Jennifer Pieters (82nd at 16:53).

MCKENNA OUTDUELS HIBBARD

The boys three mile race Saturday at SCC was highlighted by an outstanding individual battle between Bishop Moore senior Rich McKenna and Satellite Beach graduate Bill Hibbard. Both finished with a time of 15:29, but it was McKenna who came out on top.

In the team results, the US Team, which consisted of mostly graduates, took first with a score of 83 followed by Winter Park's Slack Pack at 121.

The top finish by a Seminole County squad was a bit of a surprise as Lake Howell's Silver Hawks took third at 153 and defending Seminole County champion Lake Mary was fourth at 158.

Lake Howell's top four packed together well with Anthony Howe (13th at 16:29) leading the way. Howe was followed by Jeff Van Buskirk (19th at 16:40), John Davis (22nd at 16:52) and Chuck Buser (29th at 17:14). Running fifth for the Silver Hawks was Dylan Rowe who was 70th at 18:42.

Also running for Lake Howell were Bryan Droze (72nd at 18:44), Kavan Howell, last year's middle school cross country champion (93rd at 19:17) and Larry Cheseaman, younger brother of former Lake Howell great Ken Cheseaman, (126th at 22:49).

Lake Mary coach Mark McGee was pleased with his team's performances considering three varsity performers didn't run Saturday. Four of the Rams' top five ran personal bests, some by as much as 45 seconds.

Leading the way was senior Ken Rohr who was the top county prep finisher with a fourth place time of 15:54, his third best time ever. Rohr's time in the jamboree last year was 17:25.

Sophomore Eric Petersen's hard work over the summer showed as he came in ninth with a time of 16:20, his personal best by 40 seconds and three minutes better than his time in the jamboree a year ago. Junior Jeff Hale shaved 45 seconds off his personal best as he finished 34th at 17:21. Rounding out the Rams' top five were senior Marc Eskin (49th at 17:52) and sophomore Paul Evans (62nd at 18:27).

Also running for the Rams were Ashley Morash (92nd at 19:15), Peter Schoemann (112th at 20:46), Scott Plyler (114th at 20:58), Tom Amrhein (121st at 22:50) and Chad Driscoll (122nd at 22:22).

"We had three important guys that weren't there," McGee said. "We did real well considering that. It's a good sign that they're coming back faster than before but they're still not in good racing shape."

In finishing fourth overall, Rohr also outlasted last year's county champion, Seminole High's Billy Penick. Penick, a senior, finished sixth with a time of 16:03. The only other Seminole runner on hand, Kelvin Abney, finished 32nd at 17:30.

Lyman High, running under the name Kevin Frank Memorial Runners Club, finished eighth in the 15 team field with a team score of 193.

The Greyhounds' top five included Nick Radkewich (126th at 17:03), Mike Mohler (30th at 17:17), Robin Rogers (33rd at 17:20), Kevin Quinn (46th at 17:46) and Charles Mullins (58th at 18:15).

Also running for Lyman were graduate Jeff Byra (71st at 18:43), Rick Junnier (111th at 20:43), grad Tim Jones (116th at 21:27), Joe Metzendorf (128th at 24:04), John Jones (130th at 24:45) and Tom Hansen (131st at 24:46).

Joining Satellite's Hibbard on the first place US team were Lake Mary graduates Matt Palumbo (eighth at 16:20) and Harold Pitts (17th at 16:37).

Palumbo received a partial scholarship to run cross country for the University of Central Florida where he is also majoring in Engineering. Pitts will also attend UCF and is planning on running cross country.

Maltbie Outduels Defending Champ

Golf Roundup

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Roger Maltbie led the 1977 British Open at Turnberry, Scotland, for two rounds before faltering to finish back in the pack.

Tom Watson eventually triumphed in that event, but Maltbie learned a good deal in defeat.

And so did Maltbie's youthful caddie, Denis Watson.

"I didn't see Denis again until 1981," said Maltbie. "Then I started seeing him quite a bit."

"Today (Sunday), he and I were engaged in hand-to-hand combat. It was strange — he offered to caddy for me at Turnberry because he was a young pro and didn't qualify for the Open."

"It was funny going head to head with him. Well, maybe not that funny, but I can smile about it now."

Maltbie, the PGA Tour's newest millionaire, coolly fired a 4-under-par 66 Sunday for a 4-shot, wire-to-wire victory over defending champion Denis Watson in the $700,000 World Series of Golf.

"What a thrill to win on a golf course of this calibre," said Maltbie, who earned a $126,000 payday as he fashioned rounds of 65-69-68-66 for a total of 12-under 268 of the 7,173-yard, par-70 Firestone Country Club course.

"I didn't win for nine years until I qualified for the World Series for the first time by winning the Westchester Classic (in June)."

"Maybe it was just my turn. I saw a sports psychologist (Dr. Bob Rotella of the University of Virginia), and he said I was trying too hard and not having enough fun."

"Well, I'm having fun now."

Maltbie's fifth PGA Tour title in 11 years pushed his career earnings to $1,009,050 as he became the 35th PGA Tour player to surpass the $1 million mark.

BUDDEN; BRADLEY TOPS ALCOTT

DENVER (UPI) — Pat Bradley, beating out Amy Alcott in a sudden-death playoff in the $300,000 LPGA National Pro-Am, worried until her final putt that Alcott would rally from a disastrous start on the second playoff hole and pull out the victory.

Bradley began Sunday's final round six strokes behind Alcott, the leader, and fired a 4-under par 68 to finish regulation play at 4-under 284. Alcott scored a 74 and needed a 12-foot birdie putt on the final hole to force the playoff. She then faltered badly on the second playoff hole.

Alcott and Bradley matched pars on the par-4 14th of Meridian Golf Club's 6,357-yard, par-72 layout, the first playoff hole, but Alcott found trouble on the 511-yard, par-5 15th.

English Invader Upsets Field, Captures Million

Racing

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Ill. (UPI) — English Invader Teleprompter was the upset winner of this year's Arlington Million.

but Arlington Park itself pulled off the day's biggest upset simply by staging the race successfully.

Teleprompter grabbed the lead shortly after leaving the gate and won the 1 1/4-mile turf classic by three-fourths of a length over favorite Greinton.

More than 35,000 fans came to watch the fifth running of the race despite the fact that Arlington's grandstand and clubhouse were destroyed by fire July 31.

In just over three weeks, Arlington cleaned up the thousands of tons of rubble and erected a complete temporary facility — betting windows, bleachers, portable toilets and red-and-white tents for the swells.

Incredibly, it worked. There were long lines for everything, from betting to buying pretzels. But by and large, the crowd got in, enjoyed eight races and got out easily and enjoyably.

"We're delighted, just ecstatic," Arlington president Joseph Joyce said.

Suspected Spy Uncovered In President's Office

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — A secretary working in the office of President Richard von Weizsaecker has been arrested on espionage charges — the fifth suspected foreign spy uncovered in West Germany in a month, authorities said.

The influential Die Welt newspaper said in a report prepared for today's editions that the woman came under suspicion during a round of background checks conducted on West German immigrants with access to sensitive government material.

A spokesman for the Federal Prosecutor's office said Sunday a Bonn judge issued an arrest warrant for the unidentified secretary and that she was taken into custody.

Four other alleged spies have been discovered in West Germany in the last month, including Hans-Joachim Tiedge, chief of West Germany's counterespionage agency, whose defection to East Germany was announced Friday in East Berlin.

Two of the alleged spies — Ursula Richter, a bookkeeper for an influential private refugee organization, and Sonja Luneburg, a confidential secretary to Economics Minister Martin Bangemann — are believed to have come to West Germany from Eastern Europe years ago and slowly worked their way into top posts.

Pope Expresses 'Solidarity'

CASTELGANDOLFO, Italy (UPI) — Exactly one year after blaming Soviet authorities for barring a papal visit to Lithuania, Pope John Paul II renewed his crusade for religious liberty Sunday by voicing "profound solidarity" with Lithuanian Catholics.

The pontiff, who often appeals to world governments to recognize religious freedom as a basic human right, delivered a mildly worded speech apparently aimed at Soviet officials as well as Lithuanian Catholics.

John Paul praised Lithuania, the most Catholic republic in the Soviet Union, for maintaining its religious faith despite "the numerous vicissitudes of its history."

The remark was a clear reference to the Soviet takeover of Lithuania in 1940 and subsequent closing of convents and seminaries and bans against religious instruction and many religious observances.

"I desire the brothers in Lithuania, in this time of thanksgiving for their religious life, to feel the profound solidarity of the entire church," John Paul told a crowd of several thousand pilgrims and tourists at his summer residence south of Rome.

BBC Execs Briefed On Subversives

LONDON (UPI) — M15, Britain's domestic intelligence agency, regularly provides background briefs on terrorists and other "subversives" to executives of the British Broadcasting Corp., a published report said Sunday.

The Observer, one of Britain's most respected newspapers, said "background briefs" on "subversives" involved in industrial disputes and terrorist attacks are delivered to the state-financed BBC every three months in a "sealed envelope stamped 'secret.'"

"The lists contain details of left-wing, right-wing and other radical groups, including terrorists with a summary of their recent activities," the paper said.

The article said senior BBC executives acknowledge the briefs could have an effect on coverage, raising new questions about the network's independence.

Last week, the Observer disclosed that the BBC allowed M15 to routinely conduct background checks on job candidates and staff and the BBC eventually confirmed that such checks go on.

China Confirms Plane Crash

PEKING (UPI) — China confirmed Sunday that one of its military planes crash-landed in South Korea after "losing its way" and called on Seoul to return the aircraft and its three crewmen.

South Korean authorities said the Chinese pilot of the H-5 torpedo attack bomber had requested political asylum in Taiwan.

"A military plane on a training flight southeast of Qingdao lost its way and strayed into South Korean airspace Saturday evening," the Chinese Foreign Ministry announced.

"We understand the aircraft crash-landed near Seoul and we hope South Korean authorities will return the plane and all its crew as quickly as possible," the ministry said.

South Korean defense ministry officials said in Seoul the pilot of the Chinese H-5 torpedo attack bomber with three crewmen aboard flew to South Korea in a bid to seek political asylum in Taiwan.

Falwell Apologizes To Tutu

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Rev. Jerry Falwell said he did not mean to criticize Bishop Desmond Tutu of South Africa by calling him "a phony," and gave a qualified apology to the religious leader.

In a series of interviews, Falwell said he was not criticizing Tutu as a religious figure, but added Tutu has no business speaking for Africa's non-white population.

The leader of the conservative Moral Majority first criticized Tutu on his return this week from a five-day visit to South Africa.

"I specifically said if Bishop Tutu purports to speak for all of the blacks of South Africa, he is a phony," Falwell said in an interview published Friday in the USA Today newspaper. "I don't believe he is a phony as a Christian or a servant of God. I think he is a good man."

"However, I totally disagree with his conclusion (supporting economic sanctions against the South African government) that the best way to help the oppressed non-whites of South Africa is to starve them to death."

In remarks addressed to Tutu, Falwell said: "If the word phony ... as communicated to you, meant that I was impugning you as a person or a minister, I apologize. I was impugning the fact that you, sir, do not speak for the South Africans any more than I speak for all Americans."

gallons to between 450-to-600 gallons per day, Bible said. A good part of that water use was for lawn watering, he said.

During the past 45 days with almost daily rainfall, the average use per household dropped to the normal 350 gallons per day, Bible said.

Along with the surcharge and the ban on the installation of residential irrigation meters, the county also restricted lawn sprinkling to after 8 p.m. and before 5 a.m.; restricted commercial nursery irrigation to before noon and after 6 p.m. and restricted the use of commercial irrigation systems to Monday through Friday.

Bible said while a few customers complained, they quickly complied with the conservation measures once they understood the need to conserve water.

Environmental Services did not have to take anyone to court over non-compliance, Bible said.

"The team is pretty disappointed having been denied two days in a row in getting this very ambitious mission going," Sieck said Sunday. "We'd been hit by weather the day before and today we had a hardware problem. The team was pretty discouraged."

The faulty $12 million computer, identical to four others aboard Discovery, was removed and replaced by a spare Sunday night. The failed unit was sent to the Johnson Space Center in Houston for testing.

It was the second time in the four-year shuttle program that a shuttle blastoff had been delayed twice in successive days. Discovery's first flight attempt June 25, 1984, was halted by a failure in a computer and a launch try the next day was aborted when its main engines shut down on the launch pad due to a valve problem.

Discovery finally got off two months later. It has flown four times since then.

Sieck said every day Discovery's takeoff is set back will have a corresponding effect on the first launch for the shuttle Atlantis, the fourth and final member of the shuttle fleet. It had been targeted for launch about Sept. 30 on a secret military mission.

"We have eight fatalities," Guerette said. "We have no report that anyone is alive."

The state medical examiner, Dr. Henry Ryan, said early today that Samantha, 13, and her father, Arthur Smith, were among the six passengers and two crew members killed in the crash.

He said many of the bodies were burned beyond recognition.

Gary Linscott, director of airline market planning for Bar Harbor Airlines, said Federal Aviation Administration investigators and an airline operation team were sent to the scene.

Minutes after the crash, Janet Mills, the Androscoggin County district attorney, broke the news to relatives and friends waiting at the airport. Mills took the family members into a lounge and said there were no survivors.

Ryan notified next of kin of all aboard but one passenger, a businessman.

Smith of Manchester, Maine, gained celebrity status in 1983 when she wrote Andropov of her concerns about the possibility of nuclear war between the two countries. Andropov replied by inviting her to meet with him in Moscow.

The Kremlin footed the bill for the trip for Smith and her parents, including $10,000 for the family's first-class plane tickets. But the 11-year-old never got to meet Andropov on the two-week visit in July 1983 because of the Soviet's ill health.

The crash occurred on Christian Hill while the plane was coming in for a landing, but it apparently failed to clear the wooded hill, which is directly in the flight path.

There was no immediate indication of what caused the crash, Guerette said.

Florence Berwick, who lives next to the airport, said the entire incident happened very fast and afterward. "Everything was burning and we couldn't get anywhere near it."

in the isolated area, Spolaki said. According to the Armstrongs' friend, who organized both searches, no further searches around the lake are planned.

David Bohnstadt, a member of a four-wheel drive club that provided volunteers for both searches, said McBride claimed the searchers had been within 35 feet of Regina in the Aug. 17 search and that she was still alive.

McBride's $200 travel expenses were paid from a fund set up to help find the kidnapped child.

About the same time the search was going on, a 4-year-old girl named Regina, who was playing a name game with a babysitter, said she was Regina Mae Armstrong.

The babysitter, who did not know the girl, called police who determined the child was not the missing Regina Armstrong.

According to Orlando police spokesman Jeff Peck, the girl made the story up.

'Mercy Killer's' Fate Hangs On A Single Vote

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A third Florida cabinet member voted today against releasing Roswell Gilbert from prison while the elderly inmate appeals a 25-year sentence for murdering his incurably ill wife in "an act of love."

Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner announced he decided against supporting a recommendation from Gov. Bob Graham that Gilbert, 78, be released from Avon Park Correctional Institute during his appeal of the sentence for the so-called mercy killing.

Gilbert has another chance for freedom. Three of the six members must support Graham's recommendation before Gilbert can go free. Two Cabinet members agreed last week to support the proposal and two opposed it.

The sixth Cabinet member, state Comptroller Gerald Lewis, has not decided on Graham's proposal. Lewis scheduled a news conference for 2 p.m. today to announce his decision.

"I'm completely devastated," said Martha Moran, Gilbert's only child. "My last hope is Mr. Lewis."

Gilbert, a retired engineer, is serving a mandatory minimum sentence of 25 years for first-degree murder for the March 4 shooting death of his wife Emily, 73, who suffered from two incurable illnesses — Alzheimer's Disease and osteoporosis.

"Mr. Gilbert did not have the solution to this problem," Conner told a news conference. "There were some alternatives. I regret Mr. Gilbert did not pursue those alternatives."

Gilbert's appeal of the sentence is expected to last two years.

Conner has said releasing Gilbert would be "precedent-setting."

"Normally, people are confined during this time," he said. "We still have what the courts consider a murder."

"How many thousands of other cases exist like this in the United States, and what should be done about them?" he said.

Graham made his recommendation Thursday, calling for an "act of mercy" for Gilbert, who has suffered from a kidney ailment during his imprisonment.

Gilbert contended during his trial that the slaying was an "act of love." Testimony by friends and neighbors of the couple showed that Emily Gilbert repeatedly asked her husband to end her suffering.

Medical testimony indicated that the osteoporosis, a degenerative bone disease, caused intense pain. Alzheimer's Disease slowly leads to senility.

Prosecutors said during the trial that Gilbert shot his wife twice in the head with a 9 mm Luger pistol because she had become a burden.

Music Warns People: 'Beware Of Pit Bull'

FORT LAUDERDALE, (UPI) — A self-described dog lover has recorded a song that warns "Beware of the Pit Bull" with lyrics guaranteed to terrify anyone who isn't already afraid of the iron-jawed animals.

The record, titled "Pit Bull," begins with a heavy metal beat and an ominous voice singing "Bewaaare (thud, thud, thud) of the Pit Buuull (bark, bark)."

The refrain advises that the animals are known for "biting, fighting, growling, howling, mutilating, attacking, killing, pawing, clawing, murdering, ripping, tearing, slashing, destroying and amputating."

The record's creator, Mike "Butch" Cavouto claims to like dogs, but said he and his band, "Gator," wrote the song for a purpose.

"We're trying to warn people that these dogs can be dangerous," Cavouto said Saturday.

The record jacket shows a muscular Cavouto, hair slicked back and wearing dark shades, staring fiercely into the camera while holding onto the collar of a pit bull.

The band borrowed a pit bull named Ruine for the picture, and the dog lived up to its reputation and attacked him when the photo session was over. Cavouto said.

A few local radio stations have played the record, but most politely declined, saying it "didn't fit in with their repertoire," said Cavouto, an independent record producer.

accept a resolution condemning communism as well as fascism. He resigned from the committee by telegram that night.

In the same 1947 interview, Reagan, who was elected president of the actors guild that year, described the internal politics of the union. Reagan and Wyman gave agents the names of guild members who supported communist sympathizers. The names were all blacked out in the report obtained by the newspaper.

But on Oct. 23, 1947, Reagan publicly testified before the House Un-American Activities Committee that he could not identify any communists in the movie business. When asked for names, he said, "I have no investigative force, or anything, and I do not know."

In another interview, Reagan, then a Democrat, criticized a committee of producers and actors for the way it was trying to fire communists in the industry.

"Do they expect us to constitute ourselves as a little FBI of our own and try to determine just who is a commie and who isn't?" he asked an FBI agent.

Later he supported a guild policy requiring members to deny they were communists before they could run for union office.

The FBI documents indicated that Reagan was one of at least 18 confidential informants used by the agency in its investigation of suspected communist infiltration of the film industry. The others were not identified.

Questioned about the newspaper report Sunday, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said, "While we have not seen the information the newspapers obtained, it's something that has appeared before."

Death Of Juvenile Inspires 'Please, God, I'm Only 17'

DEAR ABBY: Recently my 16-year-old son was a pallbearer at the funeral of his friend, Juan Carlos, also 16.

Juan was a fine boy, clean-cut, courteous, an honor student (second in his class of 132) and an altar server of his church. He was an only child — his mother was 45 and father was 51 when he was born. They loved this boy so much — he wasn't spoiled and had many friends.

Juan was driving a small car, a birthday present from his parents. He changed lanes and was speeding to pass a "slow" car. He was killed in a head-on collision with a truck. He never had a chance.

It could have happened to my son, or any other boy who took a chance and drove too fast. Please run your article, "Please, God, I'm only 17." It may save a young life.

BEVERLY GRAHAM, BROWNVILLE, TEXAS

DEAR BEVERLY: Here it is, with my heartfelt sympathy to the family of Juan Carlos.

PLEASE, GOD, I'M ONLY 17

The day I died was an ordinary school day. How I wish I had taken the bus! But I was too cool for the bus. I remember how I wheeled the car out of Mom's "special favor." I pleaded, "All the kids drive." When the 2:50 bell rang, I threw all my books in the locker. I was free until 8:40 tomorrow morning! I ran to the parking lot, excited at the thought of driving a car and being my own boss. Free!

It doesn't matter how the accident happened. I was goofing off — going too fast. Taking crazy chances. But I was enjoying my freedom and having fun. The last thing I remember was passing an old lady who seemed to be going awfully slow. I heard a deafening crash and I felt a terrible jolt. Glass and steel flew everywhere. My whole body seemed to be turning inside out. I heard myself scream.

Suddenly I awakened. It was very quiet. A police officer was standing over me. Then I saw a doctor. My body was mangled. I was saturated with blood. Pieces of jagged glass were sticking out all over. Strange that I couldn't feel anything.

Hey, don't pull that sheet over my head! I can't be dead. I'm only 17. I've got a date tonight. I'm supposed to go up and have a wonderful life. I haven't lived yet. I can't be dead.

Later I was placed in a drawer. My folks had to identify me. Why did they have to see me like this? Why did I have to look at Mom's eyes when she faced the most terrible ordeal of her life? Dad suddenly looked like an old man. He told the man in charge, "Yes, he is my son."

The funeral was a weird experience. I saw all my relatives and friends walk toward the casket. They passed, one by one, and looked at me with the saddest eyes I've ever seen. Some of my buddies were crying. A few of the girls touched my hand and sobbed as they walked away.

Please — somebody — wake me up! Get me out of here! I can't bear to see my mom and dad so broken up. My grandparents are so racked with grief they can hardly walk. My brother and sisters are like zombies. They move like robots. In a daze, everybody! No one can believe this. And I can't believe it, either.

Please don't bury me! I'm not dead! I have a lot of living to do! I want to laugh and run again. I want to sing and dance. Please don't put me in the ground. I promise if you give me just one more chance, God, I'll be the most careful driver in the whole world. All I want is one more chance.

Please, God, I'm only 17!

State Preservation Planner Speaks To Historical Group

A special program and work session of the Longwood Historical Commission was held recently at the city commission chambers in Longwood City Hall to discuss historic preservation possibilities for our community.

The session was called to order by Carol Williams, chairman of the Historical Commission. Sharon Wright, vice president of the Central Florida Society for Historic Preservation and program coordinator for the meeting, introduced the speaker, Larry S. Paarlberg. He is the Historic Preservation Planner for the State of Florida Division of Archives.

Paarlberg spoke on the State's Certified Local Government Program and what it can mean to a community as far as grants, funding, historic preservation and environmental protection. The speaker also informed the group about the National Register Program which recognized places of historic value.

An open question session followed the speaking program with Mayor Smerdison, Longwood City Commissioners, members of the Historical Commission and officers and members of Central Florida Society for Historic Preservation participating.

At the Seminole Service Center of the American Red Cross in Longwood, classes in First Aid will be held on Aug. 27-29 from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m.

To register, call the Red Cross at 831-3000. The Center is located at 705 C West State Road 434.

Woman's Age Not A Factor In Son's Death

DEAR DR. GOTT — On Oct. 8, 1983, our teenage son went out to play on a Saturday morning. Five minutes later, I found him dead on the sidewalk. The death certificate listed cardiac arrhythmia. I was 42 when he was born; could this have had a bearing on his condition? I feel so guilty that we didn't know about the arrhythmia.

DEAR READER — The sudden and unexpected death of one's child is one of the most devastating tragic events in human existence. I empathize with your great loss, and I am sure that all those reading this column share your overwhelming bereavement. Although no one can bring back your son, you may be comforted to know that nothing you did or didn't do had any effect whatsoever on his untimely death.

Hundreds of teenagers die each year from undiagnosed causes. Most authorities believe that unrecognized abnormalities of the heart's electrical-conduction system cause many of these deaths. Sometimes meticulous examination of the victim's heart can produce evidence of an anatomical abnormality, but usually, no cause can be found. Because unexpected adolescent death occurs so quickly and without suffering, doctors believe that the heart simply stops beating or develops a runaway rhythm — an arrhythmia — that results in collapse.

The fact that you were 42 when your son was born is not a contributing factor. In addition, there was probably no way you, your husband or your doctor could have predicted his death. Although you will always feel a profound sense of loss, your continuing sense of guilt can be harmful. Let it go. It will serve no useful purpose; it will almost certainly interfere with the many gifts you have to share with family and friends. Guilt will help neither you nor your son's memory.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am an 81-year-old woman. A relative has been harassing me on the phone. Ten months ago she screamed at me so loudly that I felt as if I had had an electric shock, and I became dizzy. My eyes began to fall, and now I can't see. Would vitamins A and B help?

DEAR READER — No, vitamins wouldn't help, but an eye specialist might. If your eyes are normal, you may be experiencing a type of blindness that is associated with severe emotional upset. This could be managed by therapy with a psychiatrist or psychologist. Some scientists have suggested that the miraculous "cures" of blindness that are prevalent in the writings of most religions may represent the unraveling of complex mental pathways.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Any declarer should be happy to reach a slam that will make better than 80 percent of the time. That was the story of today's six-heart contract, which would make if either the spade king or the club queen was in the West hand. Without the opening lead of a spade, there was the further chance that clubs would split 3-3, even if the club queen was wrong. With a spade lead, there would be no choice except to try the immediate finesse; if that lost, the club finesse would still be left. However, the opening lead was the king of diamonds, and now an expert declarer does not have to settle for better than an 80 percent play — as the cards lie, he can make the contract 100 percent of the time. Because the defenders' diamonds split 4-4, the declarer can make an unusual end play.

Declarer won the ace of diamonds and trumped a diamond high, led a low heart to the eight, trumped another diamond high and led to dummy's nine of hearts. Now the last diamond was ruffed, both opponents following. Declarer played a low club, intending to insert the seven, but West played the eight. Dummy's ace won the trick, a heart was played to the South hand, and another club was led. West had to play the 10, which was covered by dummy's jack, and East won the queen. But now poor East had to play into the club A-7 or the spade A-Q. Curtains for the defense!

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY
AUGUST 27, 1983

Your financial prospects will be much brighter in the year ahead than they have been for quite some time. Your opportunities for increased earnings will be numerous.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your effectiveness and productivity will be greatly lessened today if you approach matters with a poor attitude. Happy thoughts make life easier. Major changes are ahead for Virgos in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Relax and enjoy yourself today, but don't kid yourself into believing that just because an activity is expensive, it will be fun. The opposite may be true.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you're planning a happening at your place today, double-check to be sure all your invites can attend, so that you don't overstock or prepare too much.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Strive to be open-minded today. Assignments predicated upon bias will get you off on the wrong foot and cause complications.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'd better make a list in advance if you plan to go shopping today or you could end up buying things you may never use or cost too much.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Clarify your objectives today so that you don't get off on tangents. Once you begin to drift, it will be difficult to get back on course.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 19) Disappointment is likely if you do something for another today hoping to get more in return. Good deeds with strings attached will end up in knots.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If someone you know only casually is more attentive to you today than usual, be alert for ulterior motives. You won't be taken advantage of if you're on guard.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your victories will be hollow ones today if you are too self-seeking. Look out for your own interests, but don't step on the other guy's toes in the process.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) No one will think less of you today for asking questions about things you don't understand. However, you'll irritate others if you pretend to know something you don't.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be doubly cautious and prudent in your financial dealings today, especially if you are involved with strangers. Don't make assumptions; get the facts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It could be a mistake in the long run to let someone else make an important decision for you today. Don't let others think for you just because it's the path of least resistance.
