Fourth graders on field trip learn reading is fun-damental

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — The library is a haven for book lovers that is often neglected by the young.

Carol Ann Darnell wanted her fourth grade students to have the opportunity to explore the world from the Sanford branch of the Seminole County library.

From her classroom at Midway Elementary School, which has a comfortable, cozy reading nook. 16 youngsters took a Lynx bus to the Palmetto Avenue Library.

Darnell wants to give the youngsters every opportunity to experience reading.

For some, the trip to the library was a first, for others, it was a return to an old friend.

Tony Nelson said he'd never been to the library before.

"But I liked it." he said. "I liked when we went in and they read some stories to us. That was nice."

Nelson used his newly-acquired library card to check out a variety of books for the first time. He found books on magic tricks, on cooking and on string tricks that interested him.

"I'd like to go again." he said.

Classmate Nakia Taylor said she has been to the library once before and really enjoyed it. She'd like to go again.

"I like going and listening to them read to us and then having the chance to check out books for myself."

Another fan of cooking and magic, Taylor said she

2 released on on-line child porn charges

MIAMI - Two men accused of transmitting child pornography via computer have been released on bond but were ordered to stay away from children.

Robert Miller, 49, of Miami Beach, and Orlando Jesus Hernandes, of Hialeah, appeared separately Thursday before a federal magistrate in Miami. They were arrested Web stary as part of a nationwide FBI sting of on-line child pornography.

In its criminal complaint, the FBI said Miller and Hernandes used their America Online accounts to transmit child pornography.

As a condition of his $200,000 bond. Miller, a former high school math teacher, was ordered to move out of the Miami Beach home that he shares with his wife and stepdaughter.

A Dade County School Board employee who refused to be identified said the board's records showed Miller was asked to resign his teaching post in 1967. No reason was noted on his record.

Hernandez, a Hialeah Boy Scout leader, was also ordered to stay away from minors except in cases required by his job as an ambulance driver.

A third man arrested Wednesday, Benjamin lagut, 30, of Pompano Beach, was ordered to undergo counseling at a Broward County hearing.

Teen-ager killed after robbery

JACKSONVILLE - A convenience store owner gave up his money to an armed robber, followed the teen-ager out of his store and abot him to death, police said.

Robert Williams, 15, was shot several times Thursday in the crime-plagued Brooklyn area near downtown Jacksonville. He died hours later at University Medical Center, a hospital spokeswoman said.

A robber with a semiautomatic pistol presumed to be Williams entered Steve Plimmer's store and demanded money, police said.

Plimmer handed over a brown paper sack filled with cash, then followed the robber outside and started shooting, said Jacksonville Sheriff's Office Lt. David Gueterman.

Witnesses said Plimmer fired three to four shots, some after the youth had fallen to the sidewalk.

Plimmer has not been charged. Gueterman said.

Plimmer could not be reached for comment. He has an unlisted phone number.

8 charged with racaketeering

WEST PALM BEACH - Promises of foreign buyers for time shares fraudulently generated nearly $1 million in a telephone botler room operation counting on a soft resale market, prosecutors charged.

Eight people were charged Wednesday with racketeering and wire fraud in a 2-year-old case that grew out of another telemarketing case allegedly operated by the same owner.

Universal Timeshare Marketing placed a toll-free number in newspaper ads seeking people interested in selling their time shares and solicited owners by phone.

Owners who paid $495 in upfront fees were told they would get their money back in 90 days when the time-share sale closed. But prosecutors say the foreign buyers didn't exist, no sales were arranged, and the fees were pocketed. All were owned by Mayer Yahav, 44, of Coral Springs, one of the eight people charged in the new case.

Investigators accumulated 500 affidavits from people who paid the $495 fee. The state attorney general's office estiled a civil suit in May paying about 33 cents on the dollar from Universal's frozen accounts to consumers who filed complaints.

Testing racial tension Miami may be harbinger for other cities

By JOHN PACENTS Associated Press Writer

MIAMI - Miami, dubbed the city of the future, continues to grappic with its ethnic identity amid continued mass immigration to its spores.

Blacks feel disfranchised, Hispanics feel discriminated against and whites are fleeing north.

Politicians, professors and representatives of immigration groups on Thursday painted the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights Thursday a picture of a culturally diverse community that is rapidly evolving.

Miami is the testing ground for ideas on race relations for the new 21st Century city as cities nationwide become more culturally diverse because of immigration.

The commission hoped to learn what is working and what needs to be done in its fifth of six meetings around the nation on the subject.

"If it works in Miami, then it will work anywhere." said Thomas Battle, a Department of Justice conciliation specialist in easing community strife.

Miami Mayor Stephen P. Clark said Miami is still in metamorphosis, changing from the Old Bouth city of decades ago to its new role as gateway to the Americas. "We are a microcosm of many cultures and are getting used to the food, customs, etc.," Clark said. "As youngsters, it was difficult to adjust to a new school, eventually we became comfortable."

Ready for school

Adjusting has been difficult.

Miami was hit with numerous race riots in the 1980s, a boycott by black businesses in the early 1990s, and one immigration crisis after another — most recently last summer when 30,000 Cubans migrated.

"It was like bleeding from your artery and nobody had a tourniquet," Clark said.

Though painting Miami in a mostly positive light, Clark – an Irish Catholic – said schools were overburdened and that if you didn't know Spanish. "get out of the way." Sixty-two percent of Dade County is Hispanic.

Rabbi Solomon Akin, chairperson on a commission advisory group, raid ethnic tension is rampont

He mid after Hurricane Andrew, black businesses were cut out of the recovery effort.

Raymond A. Mohl, head of Florida Atlantic University's, said the long history of treating Cuban immigrants different from Haitians ended last spring, but also caused division. Money that Cubans received to resettle has caused feelings of resentment in black communities, he said.

"Why did it happen? The Cold War," Mohl said. "Mismi was on the front line."

The specter of the nation's anti-immigrant mood was very apparent Thursday. Two activists who support an amendment based on California's Proposition 187 refused to testify in the wake of subpoense requesting they turn over numerous documents.

"When you look at the nature and scope of subpoenas, we want to now if its happenstance or if its an organized effort out of Washington to harass the immigration reform groups in South Florida." said Robert Ross, president of the Florida 187 Committee of Boca Raton.

U.S. Rep. Charles Canady, D-Lakeland, has set a hearing to looking into revoking the subpoena privilege of the commission. Chairwoman Mary Frances Berry, a law professor from Philadelphia, withdraw the subpoenas, saying they were simply the bipartisan commission's invitation.

"I think they assumed we were 'anti' their cause, and we were trying to undermine their cause," she said.

Proposition 187 sentiment also spilled into the first of two days of testimony in Miami.

Angel Dominguez, co-chairman of the Committee for Dignity and Justice for Immigrants, called supporters of such measures racists.

"It's anti-human." Domingues said. "We feel immigrants are used as scapegonts by politicians when they fail to solve social problems."

Commission member Constance Horner said a real concern among many supporters of Proposition 187 is that services will be crushed by the waves of illegal immigrants.

"These people are not necessarily raciets, but are responding to fiscal considerations," ahe said

But that would only happen to properties assessed below market value, state Department of Revenue officials teld Thurs-day's Cabinet meeting. The rule approved by Gov.

That didn't mean they agreed with it, said Ken Wilkinson, Lee County property appraiser and founder of the Save Our Homes initiative. After three earlier court appeals, he told the Cabi-net, "We're broke."

"I believe they (voters) felt that if their property values stayed flat their property taxes would stay flat, and if their property values went down their property taxes would go down." said Education Commissioner Frank Brogan. He and Secretary of against the rule. Wilkinson said he will meet with the "Save Our Homes" board to see what the group will do next.

SARASOTA - An air conditioning repairman who allegedly wanted to "cleanse the world" of alcohol during a weekend spree was in jail on arson and burglary charges.

Steven James Spadoni set fire to the roof of a Holmes Beach bar this weekend, and continued with a bottle-smashing rampage through a nearby liquor store, according to detectives. The spree ended with the torching of a million-dollar Sarasota bayfront estate — with his parents and sister inside, police said.

Spadoni, 32, was in the Manatee County Jail on Thursday on $200,000 bail. He was charged with arson of an occupied dwelling in that incident Wednesday and with amon and burglary in the Holmes Beach incidenta.

Spadoni's parents, Marilyn and Charles Desenberg, were alerted by the insistent barking of their pet Rottweller and shouted to their daughter, Nancy McCroskey, to call 911. They escaped without injury but their home was destroyed, and another dog, a Doberman pinacher, died in the blaze.

Sarasota Fire Department Lt. James Woods, who was present when Spadoni made a taped statement about the incidents, said Spadoni "just couldn't stand people who used alcohol or drugs." He refused to elaborate on motives.

Simpson trial could curtail televised coverage of trials

By INTENELL LAN AP National Writer

Carlos Valdes could have been a star. Valdez, the district attorney of Nueces County, Texas, was all but guaranteed a prominent role on national television as the prosecutor in the case against a woman accused of murdering Selena, the star of Tejano music. Instead, he is shunning the spotlight. Why? Blame O.J. "The last thing I want is to become known as the Marcia Clark of South Texas," Valdes said last week during arguments about allowing cameras into the courtroom.

The judge spared him that ignominy; there will be no cam-eras in the courtroom at the Yolanda Saldivar trial. Nor will there be cameras in the trial of Richard Allen Davis, accused of kidnapping and killing 12-year-old Polly Klass in northern California. Nor were there cameras in the South Carolina trial of Susan Smith, convicted of murdering her two young children.

In each case, someone - a prosecutor, defense lawyer or the judge himself - cited cover-age of the O.J. Simpson trial as a reason to keep the cameras out.

trend. But some news media lawyers and outside experts say they expect the Simpson trial to lead to more challenges of televised coverage of trials. And already, the trial has renewed the debate over whether cameras damage or enhance the criminal justice system.

"Open to the public' doesn't have to mean open to cameras," one critic of televised trials wrote recently on the Op-Ed page of The New York Times. He added that "letting cameras in can turn a courtroom into a movie set.'

Not a startling argument, perhaps, until you see the name of the author: Don Hewitt, the executive producer of the CBS News program "60 Minutes." Yes, the same "60 Minutes" that virtually invented "ambush journalism" and has lugged cameras to the main of the earth, often without invitation.

Yet Hewitt is among several prominent and unlikely critics who have objected to the sometimes lurid, often dull and trial, a crisp, two-week-long af-fair, as an example of what can happen when cameras are

Smith's lawyer, David Bruck. successfully argued for the cam-era ban after cameras had been allowed in pre-trial hearing

"I have to say that the moment the cameras were turned off it was as though someone had pumped the air back in the courtroom," Bruck said in an interview.

From that point on, he added. you had a sense that the courtroom was a senctuary in which all that really went on was the work of the court, and the media and the frenzy was all outside. ... It wasn't like things were done in secret, but there was a sphere of calm that enveloped the courtroom that I think was very, very valuable."

Cameras are now allowed in courtrooms in 47 states - all but Indiana, Mississippi and South Dakota. Rules vary. In Florida, the first state to allow televised trials, cameras are permitted in virtually all cases. Other states give wide discretion to the judge, and tightly restrict what can be shown in photographs or on television.

The federal court system, after a three-year experiment with cameras, decided last fail to restore its ban on photographic coverage. Defenders of cameras argue that modern technology has made televised coverage relatively unobtrusive, and that the presence of photographers at a celebrated trial is far less distracting than the alternative: a row of frantically doodling courtroom artists.

Besides, they argue, the more important point is that the public has a right to see what goes on in its courtrooms, and televised coverage serves an important educational purpose.

That is the essence of the complaint about cameras in the courtroom: that they represent an entertainment medium improperly foisted on a judicial system that relies on dignity and decorum for its integrity. They blame cameras for the interminable length and circus atmosphere of the Simpson trial - and point to the Susan Smith

Sanford sign ordinance

A number of downtown Sanford merchants asked for permission to have outdoor displays in front of their establishments. Following many months of discussion, the Sanford city commission has now formally adopted Ordinance 3268, which allows these displays and signs.

The ordinance however, contains many restrictions and limitations regarding size, location, and hours of display. Downtown merchants who plan to have such displays are advised to obtain an actual copy of the ordinance rather than rely on word-of-mouth for what they can or cannot do.

During city commission discussion of this proposal, it was brought out that several other cities in the area have outdoor displays, including Winter Park, Mount Dora and DeLand. They did not however, have an ordinance which allowed the displays. They were merely allowed, with few if any citations ever issued.

Now Sanford has it's opportunity to not only have the displays, but have them legally without fear of being cited for violations.

For those who wanted this, we know they will be pleased with the results, although some may have preferred approval for larger displays.

It has already been suggested however, that this ordinance, as with any other, may be revisited at some future time to insure that it is not being violated and that no one is taking advantage of it.

For the sake of everyone involved, there is a restriction on having any outdoor displays during hours when the business is closed. This will not only help maintain the outdoor appearance of the city, but will prevent what could be a great many thefts.

As for what is placed on display, and how attractive the displays and/or signs may (or may not) be, that will depend on the store owners and managers. We have no doubt that if perhaps only a few violations are noted, the entire matter may be brought back for serious reconsideration by the commission.

The GOP and boomerang economics

Republicans have made a nice political career They, too, are saying that wages are stagnant, by mocking the only booming liberal Democratic growth industry there is: victimhood. Liberals say that the mastiness, unfairness and guilt of American society hurts blacks, Latinos, consumers, gays, women, the handicapped, welfare recipients, people who use the national parks, hald people, criminals and students who won't study.

The biggest Democratic guilt trip of all deals with the largest group of victims, workers. We have been told that middle class workers are making no progress, that wages have gone down, that wages are stagnant, that jobs are being shipped overseas, that free trade is a disaster. that unskilled workers are suffering, that young workers can't afford houses, that the rich get richer and the poor get poorer and that it's not like it was in the good old days of the 1950s and 1960s.

Conservatives have properly scorned the you-owe-me-pay-up remedies that liberals propose for the victims they have enshrined. That's been good conservative politics. A majority of voters believe that most Americans can and should shape their own destinies.

But now, as the 1996 election looms, you can hear some GOP presidential candidates sound like copycat whiners on the biggest victim issue.

that the middle class is going nowhere, that there is pain for workers as far as the eye can see.

There are some tactical reasons for such a maneuver. But it works against economic reality and contains a built-in boomerang.

President Clinton is now well into his third year of his presidency. He promised to focus on the economy with a laser beam, and that would fix whatever was wrong. So, if there are still economic problems --there always are --- why shouldn't Republicans join the demagogic dialogue, and blame Clinton and the Democrats? Moreover, most Republicans have their own economic agenda. They know that Americana victims,

believe that if it ain't broke, don't fix it. (Of course, their remedies are different from the Democratic ones, but they are still predicated on a broken economy.)

Trouble is, the economy isn't broken, hasn't been broken, and shows no signs of breaking 8000.

The biggest part of the statistical case for wages going down is based on money earnings. But in recent decades American workers have been taking their pay increases through non-cash items like health care, pension plans and insurance. The measures of total compensation show a sturdy increase. So do the decennial census data for mean and median household and family income. Per capita income has almost doubled in three decades.

Homes have gotten larger and easier to afford (according to Harvard's Joint Center for Housing Studies). Home ownership rates are about all-time highs. The Americans living in those homes are much more likely to have air conditioning, garages, additional bathrooms, washers, dryers, stereos, microwaves, ceiling fans, VCRs, cable wiring, color television sets and electronic garage-door openers (from a list offered by Karl Zinameister in The American Enterprise magazine). Believe me, that's not a picture of American life in the 1950s.

In other words, this is probably a good ordinance. But if it is abused, we would be willing to bet that it will be thrown out in very short order.

Commissioners suggested it may be reviewed after the first year. We believe it should be reviewed sooner than that If violations are noted.

It is pleasing to note that more and more people are visiting the downtown shops. many searching for antiques or collectibles. while others come to dine.

What they see on their first or second visit will be their opinion of Sanford for a long time, if not forever.

For those merchants who want outside displays and signs, go to it. But we urge everyone to present them in such a way as to give the best image as possible to people coming to the downtown historic commercial arca.

Will Clinton, GOP avoid 'wreck'?

Even as they rhetorically barrel toward a fiscal "train wreck." the White House and congressional Republicans are quietly laying plans for a last-minute exit from their game of budgetary chicken.

At a recent meeting with House and Senate Democratic leaders, President Clinton suggested unveiling a short-term continuing resolution to keep the government running in the likely event that major appropriations bills aren't passed and signed by the beginning of the new flacal year on Oct. 1.

To demonstrate his dedication to an eventual balanced budget, the White House resolution would contain funding levels for the beginning of flacal 1996 somewhat below current apending levels for 1995.

The White House anticipates that Republicans will propose a 45-day continuing resolution to keep the government running past Oct. 1 in order to free the GOP from responsibility for the fact that Congress has been unable to process appropriations bills. The White House thinks that the 45-day extension is designed to set up another "train wreck" around Nov. 15, when the GOP tries to force President Clinton to sign a tax-cutting budget reconciliation bill by attaching to it mandatory legislation raising the federal debt ceiling.

Meantime, aides to Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., are drafting a shrewd alternative to the White House strategy -- a year-long continuing resolution calling for a 5 percent cut in all federal spending except Social Security.

According to Dole advisers, the plan would avoid all train wrecks and also would bring the country to a balanced budget even more quickly than the budget resolutions passed by Congress. House Republicans recommend flacal 1996 spending of $1.587 trillion, while Dole's plan would bring the budget down to $1.471 trillion.

Dole advisers emphasize that the majority leader hasn't signed off on the plan, but one of them said, "I can't imagine why he wouldn't go for it. It accomplishes everything he'd want to, including making him the guy who avoided shutting down the government."

In public, congressional Republicans and Clinton aren't talking about train-wreck exit strategies, but rather flooring their rhetorical accelerators in a game of political "chicken" and roaring toward a crash.

Republicans say they are determined to slash the size of the federal government. Clinton says he'll veto bills cutting taxes and spending too deeply.

Dole, talking tough in his recent speech before the Chicago Economic Club, invited Clinton to join "the conservative revolution" -by caving in to GOP priorities - and said Clinton "should know that we will never compromise away the mandate the American people gave us last November." "We will fight to the end for fundamental conservative change, or we will take our case to the American people in 1996. This will not be an autumn of compromise," said Dole.

Meantime. Clinton said in an interview with National Public Radio that "if the government gets shut down, it will be (the Republicans') responsibility....

Said the president: "My responsibility was fulfilled when 1 offered them an alternative balanced budget and a willingness to discuss anything. So far. none of them have been willing to discuss anything. They seem determined to raise the cost of Medicare to seniors. to raise the cost of going to college, to cut kids off Head Start, to gut the environmental laws of the country.

happen, our U.N. sources point to three major. obstacles:

- Both countries, having lost World War II five decades ago, have developed strong modern anti-militarist traditions. But Security Council obligations would require them to vote on - and participate in peacekeeping missions that might later evolve into peace enforcement operations like the current situation in Bosnia.

Germany and Japan have tried to quietly redress this since their Security Council campaigns began. There's talk in both nations of amending their constitutions to allow for military participation, but public support for such a move is not great in either country.

- The prospect of Germany permanently joining the Security Council makes Britain and France very nervous. The economic and military influence of both countries has waned since World War II, and they represent the most anachronistic seats at the Security Council. Britain and France are also the most likely to lose their seats if room needs to be made for other nations.

One alternative proposal making the rounds at the U.N. is to have one European Community (EC) seat, which could be occupied by Germany, or two seats - one for Germany and one for the EC. That's particularly galling to the French. however, who couldn't bear to have either Germany or Britain speak for them at the Security Council.

Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali recently defended the British and French scals in an interview with our associate Dale Van Atta, and he appeared surprisingly negative about the prospect of granting permanent seats to Germany and Japan.

"I am in favor of reinforcing the Security Council by obtaining the participation of important countries." he began diplomat-Ically. "But if those important countries have not the will to play a role in international affairs, their presence will be useless."

Then Boutros-Ghali took aim and shot: "You have two very important countries during the last 40 years who refuse to play any role in international affairs: Germany and Japan. They say it's because of their (anti-military) constitutions. But they have the capacity.

"When others discuss the two former important countries. Great Britain and France (being on the Security Council), I say, They are no (longer) superpowers, but they have the political will to play a role in international affairs. And this is very important.""

- For Germany and Japan to be included. the U.N. charter would have to be amended. This would open a giant can of worms, analysts believe, as many other nations would likely push for permanent status.

So with the MOD program and other programs we have going on, there are times that we utilize residents, and Miss Charles is a resident. The Sanford Housing Authority is very active in resident initiative and resident empowerment. We keep a list of residents who are interested in working and when something comes up, we will contact those residents, public housing or section 8, we utilize both.

On June 2, 1995, a general fund check #4939 was issued to the Executive Director's daughter-in-law, for $350.

Some time after said check was issued a document was inserted in the Authorities' files by the Executive Director purporting to justify this check as payment for services performed by Keesha from May 8-29, 1995.

Keesha Richardson testified she never worked two entire weeks for the SHA. She did state she had worked at the Executive Director's home for a few hours. for which she received a check. She said she personally cashed the check at the downtown Sun Bank. She did not understand why her mother-in-law's endorsement was on the check and stated that endorsement was not on the check when she cashed it.

Keesha also testified she worked one day for a few hours in the SHA maintenance storage room with her mother-in-law performing an inventory.

Alzeda Evans, Authority Maintenance Director during 1994. testified she never observed Keesha Richardson working in Maintenance, and it would not be possible for her to work there without being observed.

John Siles had been paid weekly by the Authority this entire period for standby duties. Neither Tim Hudson, Linda

By GARY COATOAM Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY - Monica Camandese and Sarah McWeeney both racked up 11 service points Wednesday to lead Lake Mary to a 16-14, 11-15, 15-2 win over Lake Brantley

"We had good serving." said Lake Mary coach Cindy Henry. "Sarah has a fast, topspin serve that drops. It's a very tough serve to handle."

The first game featured four lead changes, and saw the Patriots miss six game point chances. Lake Brantley led 5-2 and 9-8, which surrounded a 6.5 Lake Mary advantage. Lauren Andrade converted nine service points to push the Patriots to a 14-8 edge. Tracl Woodall then closed out the game for Lake Mary with four straight service points to deny the Patriots another chance. "This was not the team that I expected to show up for us." said Lake Brantley coach Stan Cutler. "I was extremely disappointed. We came in here expecting to win." Lake Brantley evened the match at one game aplece after overcoming a 9-5 deficit. Kristi Finley scored nine straight service points to put the Patriots ahead 14-9. Sara Winchell then closed out the game with an ace for Lake Brantley after Lake Mary cut the lead to 14-11. The Rams took a 6-0 lead to start the third game, the Patriots closed the gap to 8-2, and Camandese then closed out the match for Lake Mary with five service points. # Fruits and veggies important How to keep produce safe, wholesome Fruits and vegetables are an important part of the American diet. Consumers should est more fruits and vegetables for better health. Here's how you can ensure that produce is safe and wholesome.

Each year, people get sick from foods that have not been properly handled, refrigerated, or cooked. If food sen't carefully handled, germs can grow to levels that make people sick. Rarely are fruits and vegetables linked with such illnes

Providing consumers with safe, wholesome fruits and vegetables in the first priority of farmers and your produce man-ager. Consumers also play an important role in making sure the food they est is good for them and their families. Here's some important information about safe handling.

What the fresh fruit and vegetable industry does. ......

workers follow strict guidelines when harvesting and packing to be sure the fruits and vegetables are clean. Most produce is washed at the packinghouse. Trucks used to ship produce are washed and kept at appropriate temperatures. At the store, produce workers also follow detailed federal and state handling

The produce industry also uses Hesard Analysis and Criti-cal Control Point programs. These scientific programs identify points where produce could become contaminated. Once these points are identified, growers, packers, processors, ship-pers, and retailers implement dety programs to prevent contemination.

What concumers can do at the store. Trust your senses. Look for fresh-looking fruits and vegetables that are not bruised. shriveled, moldy, or slimy. Don't buy anything that smells bad. Don't buy packaged vegetables that look slimy. Some fruits will have their own juice and some vegetables are packed in water, and that's OK. Buy only what you need. Most fresh fruits and vegetables are not "stock-up" items. Some. such as apples, potatoes, and most citrus can be stored at home, but most items should be bought to be used within a few days.

Handle produce gently at the store. Keep produce on top in the cart (putting groceries on top of produce will bruise it). Set pro-duce gently on the checkout beit so it doesn't bruise. Some items that seem hardy, such as caultflower, actually are very delicate and bruise easily. At Home. Put produce away promptly. Keep most of your produce in the crisper. It has a alightly higher humidity than the rest of the refrigerator, and this is better for fruits and vegetables. Remember to keep all cut fruits and vegetables covered in the refrigerator.

Throw away any produce you have kept too long - if it is moldy or alimy, if it smells bad, or if it past the "best if used by" date.

Once you're ready to eat your fresh fruits and vegetables, you need to handle them properly. Germs can adhere to the surface of produce and can be passed to the flesh when the item is cut or handled. Therefore, the most important thing you can do is wash all fruits and vegetables in clean drinking water before eat-

This applies to all fruits and vegetables, even if you don't eat the rind or skin (such as meions and oranges). Remember to wash produce just before you use it, not when you put it away. The one exception is leafy greens, such as lettuce which should be rinsed before refrigerating to maintain their crisones

You should not use detergent when washing fruits and vegetables because you might est detergent residues left on the fruit and vegetables. Produce items are porous and can absorb the determent. Determent is not iabeled by the Food and Drag Administration for use on foods. in addition to washing, you should:

Peel and discard outer leaves or rinds. Scrub hearty vegetables such as potatoes as carrots, if you want to eat the fiber- and nutrient-rich akin.

 Clean surfaces, utensils, and hands after touching raw meat and poultry and before you use them on fresh produce.

· Keep refrigerators clean and cold. Cover and refrigerate produce you have cut.

• Wash your thoroughly after using the bathroom or changing dispers, and before preparing food.

Guide assists veterans DEAR ABBY: I am co-author of "The Viet' Vet Survival Guide," a book you mentioned in your column in 1966. The resulting publicity put it into the hands of tens of thousands of veterans and their families in need of information.

Abby, approximately 700,000 U.S. troops served in the Persian Gulf War. Although the fighting was brief, significant numbers of veterans have since suffered a range of unexplained - and often severe - symptoms. The most frequent include: chronic fatigue, joint pain, respiratory ailments, memory loss, rashes, hair loss and gastrointestinal disorders.

There has been no definitive diagnosis to explain the symptoms known as Persian Gulf Syndrome. (In fact, there may be no single disease or syndrome, but rather multiple illnesses with common symptoms and multiple possible causes.) Although no conclusive cause or causes have yet been Identified, the needs of these veterans (and in some cases their families) who are apparently suffering as a result of their service in the Persian Gulf are real and extensive. There are approximately 60,000 known cases to date.

As co-founder and joint executive director of the National Veterans Legal Services program (NVLSP), I need your help to inform the veterans about our new "Self-Help Guide for Veterans of the Gulf War." It is a working tool for Persian Gulf veterans and their families who are suffering from illness as a result of their service in the Persian Gulf. This guide provides easy-to-use information to two weeks for delivery.

veterans, veterans service officers and others assisting Persian Gulf veterans and their families.

It analyzes the new laws governing Persian Gulf veterans when filing and appealing claims for compensation and medical care before the U.S. Department of Veterana Affairs (the VA) and the Department of Defense. It also provides strategies for the best methods to obtain compensation and medical care from the VA, and it details the unique eligibility requirements for compensation and methods to prove eligibility.

As a non-profit public service organization, NVLSP is not interested in benefiting financially from this guide. Our mission is to help needy veterans and their families. We are offering the only self-help guide for Persian Gulf veterans for $5. We also offer discount rates for bulk orders from organizations that provide free services to veterans.

Abby, we would appreciate your help in getting the word out to veterans who would benefit from the information in this guide.

DAVID ADDLESTONE. WASHINGTON, D.C.

DEAR MR. ADDLESTONE: I'm delighted to help. Readers, to order this self-help guide, send a check or money order for $5 to: NVLSP-Persian Gulf Gulde, Drawer 017, Washington, D.C. 20055. (Postage and handling are included in the cost.) Allow

Dumped teen wants boyfriend back

DEAR MART: My boyfriend dumped me three months ago to get back with his old girlfriend. I was crushed because he was the first guy that I've ever really felt-I could be myself with and talk to about everything. When I heard that the two of them were alceping together I wanted to die. I even thought about going over to her house and starting something, but I didn't. The reason it got to me so bad is that he always said that wasn't what he wanted from me because he respected me too much for that. Anyhow, now he's started calling me again saying he just wants to be friends. I love talking to him and I want him back but I know he's still going with, and sleeping with the tramp. I still love him and would be happy to sleep with him if he'd leave her. Should I let him know?

DUMPED DEAR DUMPED: No! If he respected you too much to expect sex from you before, what is the message you'd be giving him if you made the offer now? Besides, this sounds like a case of him wanting to have his cake and eat it too. If he's calling you on the side while he's dating her, you can believe he was probably calling her and maybe even seeing her while he was going with you. Your best bet is to take the higher road.

The next time he calls, tell him that while you really like him and would enjoy seeing him again, you don't do side-bar relationships with guys who are going with someone else. Tell him that he shouldn't call you anymore while he'd dating someone else, but if and when they break up you'd enjoy seeing him again.

Then be sure he sees or knows that you're out and around, seeing other people and having a social life, not sitting around waiting for him. My bet is that he'll be back, then you can decide if he's worth getting romantically involved with.

minister shares his thoughts

SANFORD - Episcopal Bishop John Shelby Spong, author of "Living in Sin ?" once wrote "the church should support and bless all committed relationships, including those of homosexual couples and unmarried heteronexual couples." Since that remark in 1968 he has continued to spark controversy. His public remarks are thus fair game for comment.

Spong's position reminds me of the following story : One night the captain of a ship spotted a strange light ahead. He radioed to it, instructing it to change its course 10 degrees west. The reply came back, "Change YOUR course 10 degrees east." The captain repeated his order, and the same reply came back. The captain angrily shouted, "This is Captain Smith of the U.S. Navy, change your course 10 degrees west or else." The prompt reply was, "Captain, this is Seaman 2nd class Jones at the Lighthouse. Change your course 10 degrees cast of else."

The Bible is our spiritual lighthouse, keeping us from the danger of sin and showing us the safe way. "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my way'' (Psalm 119:105). God's word is infallible, and like the lighthouse, it does not move or change to suit our course of action in life. We must make the changes to adapt to its teachings.

The Bible is very clear on the subjects that Bishop Spong mentions. Those who are engaged in the types of relationships that he wants to sanction are excluded from the and no disease when God's law kingdom of God (I Corinthians 5: 9,10). To deny this is to call God a liar.

Spong's phrase "committed unmarried couples" is a contradiction in terms. If a couple is not married, then to what are they committed ? Monogamy as a teaching has been ridiculed by many sociologists. Recently, however, it has come back into vogue. Yet all the while, marriage has been viewed by God as a commitment to death (Romana 7:2).

I have noted that some young people are making national news with their new determination to save sex for marriage. They have learned that it is worth waiting for. Two thousand years ago the scriptures taught that the marriage bed is undefiled. No guilt, is obeyed. Now, will someone who is not a preacher have the courage to stand up and say that sex outside of marriage is sin?

Den Wheeler Minister for the South Seminole Church of Christ

Wholesome recreation discussed

SANFORD - A recent article caught my eye concerning Christians and the recreation we choose. It was published in the April issue of "Christian Bible Teacher" and written by Don Hatch.

Hatch discussed that we should not let society establish our moral codes for the way we spend free time. He said that if too much time spent in amusement to the neglect of God, family, work and personal growth, this is wrong.

His main emphasis was not that entertainment is to be denied but that we should evaluate that time and be sure it does not influence us in a negative way. "Take time to enjoy life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness in a godly manner. I'd like to share with you the

Is it right? Do godly people generally do it? ? Will it interfere with my family, school, or work? Will it produce good or bad habits? 2 Will it lead into the places that are questionable? Will my example and influence be injurious to others? Will I associate with questionable people to be amused? Will this diminish from proper care for my family? Will the price of amusement reduce my weekly contribution? Will my family, friends or Christians follow me and sin? Can I afford the cost of time and money? Do I have other obligations that should be paid first? 9 Is this amusement building or destroying my family? Do I spend more time being amused than worshiping? Do responsible people have to be amused in this way?

Drs.' assistants medicine of future

DEAR DR. GOTT: When I go to my doctor's office, an assistant weighs me, taken my blood pressure, asks about prescriptions that need to be renewed, fills out the appropriate forms for the doctor's signature and makes a record of complaints regarding my health. Then the doctor appears, checks me over quickly and asks a question or two. I feel he is busy and I hold back on some of my complaints. He then dictates into his dictaphone and that is the extent of the visit - about four to seven minutes. This gentleman was my oncologist and I've started to go to him as my primary-care doctor as well. My former doctor, a family practitioner, gave me more time, a better checkup and he was much more compassionate. Is this a trend we are to expect of doctors?

DEAR READER: This is a trend: medicine of the future, if you will.

More and more physicians are using nurses or other assistants in the office, to perform basic services for patients. The purpose of this arrangement is at least two-fold.

First, by being relieved of "menial" chores, the doctor is free to use his or her skills to better advantage, without having to take the time performing routine duties.

Second, the doctor -- by dint of having more time -- can see more patients and generate additional income. Managed care -the new altar at which insurance companies worship -- rewards the doctors who can handle the most volume. Results count more than style, or even a natisfied patient.

This trend is not altogether bad. In the long run, patients will receive more streamlined care that is efficient and goaloriented.

On the other hand, many older practitioners - including me bemoan the increasing depersonalization of medical practice. In my case, one of the
