MUST KILL PRAIRIE DOGS

Texas Land Owners Are Compelled by Law to Destroy the Pests.

Austin, Tex. Prairie dogs are declared to be a public nulsance, according to an act passed at the special session of the Thirty-fourth legislature and which act is now effective. Tho act also provides for their extermination, but no bounty is given by the state for eliminating the so-called pests; owners of land on which prairie dogs exist are required under the law to kill them and an allowance of two years is given to such owners to rid their lands of the nuisance.

It he also made the duty of the county commissioners of any county in which prairie dogs exist to investigate and determine whether owners of lands in their respective commissioners' precincts have complied with the provisions of the law.

In the event the owner of land on which prairie dogs exist falls to destroy such pests the act empowers the sheriff of the county involved to proceed and destroy the nuisance.

For his service the sheriff is allowed five dollars a day for actual service. and this sum is to be paid by the county commissioners, but the amount so paid shall be assessed against the owner of land and the account or claim entered as a lien against the land in case of failure to pay the amount due the county

My attention has been called by several to a signed editorial in your most excellent Christmas edition of The Herald, stating Sanford's need! institution, where particularly our young men and lads might congre gate and a place equipped with gymnasium, reading room, games, picture machine, etc.

With such there are many of our townspeople including myself in most hearty sympathy with your ideas. However, we are unjust to] ouselves and to the very young menand lads to whom you also appeal for their support, to picture a metropolitan establishment run on expensive lines. I believe that one venture along these lines has been attempted already here. Also a much more expensive undertaking has also just gone to the wall in Orlando. For an organization, either religious or social, to undertake a mode of living beyond its reasonably expected income is as reprehensible as for an individual.

It is presumable that your condemnation of "churches" preachers, included" is to include the Church of the Holy Cross and myself, though not a preacher but priest of the parish. While all of this reasoning holds more than a grain of truth, homely women are apt to look over a few facts which should be of much service in building hope in their breasts. Most men do admire women of striking beauty, they are pleased to escort them hither and thither, finttered at the admiration they create and the envy they engender in the hearts of other men. But when it comes to look ing about for a wife, ten men out of a dozen will not offer either their heart or hand to the royal beauties, but will search out plain women to propose marriage to

The beautiful woman might make quite as good a wife but such men will argue she could not bring them the peace of mind that the plain womwhom he took to a theater or a fash ionable restaurant would soon become annoyed if men turned to stare at the woman he had wedded -- holdly, impu-

In wedlock he must have heart ease, peace of tim of she should ponder well whethmind, the feeling that no one else is craving the aweet, modest violet he has eathered and to shom he and he only, is san god for all time to come What greater happiness comfort and supreme satisfaction than for a man to know that he is the first and only one who has kindled love's beautiful flame in one noble, honest, woman's hosen? That this one woman loves him as she will never love any other man, and will be faithful to him to her latest breath. In youth, middle age,

With the close companiouship of wedded life the husband who has wedded a woman for her sweet womanit ness, her kenial nature and her purity will in time, see so much beauty in he will never cease thanking heaven for giving him the treasure he discovered and will shield her all the more carefully, loyally and lovingly.from the world's snares and pitfalls.

There are men who would not well a lovely woman for all the gold the world might hold. Only a plain woman could win him for a husband. It is well balanced that the men who adore beauty should win the hearts of the beauteous maid, and those who appreciate the great heart that accompanies lack of it should find favor with plainer women. If women could only realize how marriageable men seek homely wives they would surely take to save her from future misery heart of grace,
