Cuba heralds Gorbachev arrival

HAVANA, Cuba — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev received a hero's welcome Sunday on his first visit to Havana, where he said he had "plenty to talk about" with Cuban leader Fidel Castro.

Cuba's official Prensa Latina news agency said Gorbachev's discussions with Castro during the three-day visit might result in an announcement that Moscow is canceling part or all of the debt Cuba owes the Soviet Union. It gave no figures.

Gorbachev attended a banquet hosted by Castro Sunday night, and both leaders were to hold three more formal rounds of talks during the visit, the first by the Soviet leader.

Following an initial tour of the city with Castro at his guide, Gorbachev said he was moved by the estimated 800,000 Havana residents lining the streets to greet him.

Sick bird prompts kidnapping

CENTRAL ISLIP, N.Y. — A bird lover who was sure a pigeon he had just bought spread disease to his entire flock kidnapped the man who sold the sick bird and threatened to shoot him, police said.

The pigeon lover pulled out a gun and accused Douglas Conk of selling him a sick bird, said Officer Pete Kelly, a Suffolk County police spokesman. The suspect abducted Conk and another man and took them on a harrowing ride that ended after one of the captives fled and called police, Kelly said.

No one was injured in the four-hour episode. Joseph Amrosca, 50, was arrested and charged with second-degree kidnapping.

Homes, parks top agenda

City to consider living area guidelines, request for park questionnaire

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The city commission will meet today to review minimum living area requirements for single family homes.

Last week the commission adopted an extension of an emergency ordinance temporarily setting minimum living area requirements at 700 square feet for SR-1, 1,200 for SR-1A and 1,500 for SR-1AA. The requirements were omitted from the land development regulations code adopted by the commission in December.

The commission will examine a $3,000 request by the city recreation task force to fund printing of a questionnaire and van rental. The task force, established earlier this year by the commission to determine needs of the recreation department, has asked the commission to provide a van for the members to tour Sanford parks, and to print a random questionnaire of local citizens' perception of city parks and recreation programming.

Bill Simmons, director of engineering and planning, will brief the commission on a Friday meeting with marina merchants and boaters to resolve parking problems on the island. Last week the commission voted to delete boat trailer parking restrictions from an ordinance abolishing marina launching fees. Simmons said this morning he would recommend a solution to the parking problem at the meeting.

At the workshop today, the commission will consider renewal of the $42,514 seven-year Sanford Memorial Stadium lease held by Wes Rinker Florida Baseball School.

Linda Williams, Sanford Housing Authority interim executive director, has asked the commission on behalf of the authority commissioners to waive costs of garbage collection at the city's 480 public housing units. The commission, who adopted a waiver of collection fees for low-income households in January, will review the request for a waiver at the workshop.

Marina city's 'calling card'

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The harbour master of Monroe Harbour Marina calls the facility "Sanford's calling card."

John Lucarelli, harbour master for nearly 19 years, said the near-400 boat marina offers outsiders a positive first impression of the city — in spite of the menacing blind mosquitoes, ducks and birds who thrive in Lake Monroe.

"(Boaters) put up with parking; they put up with the birds; they put up with the blind mosquitoes," he said. "They like Sanford."

Last August a $1.5 million expansion and renovation of the marina was completed. Electric and phone lines to existing boat slips were rewired and 100 slips were added during the project.

The marina offers dry storage of 150 boats

Sanford cops tread water, catch pirate

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — An accused modern-day pirate faces charges of stealing a 44-foot boat and sailing away from Sanford's Monroe Harbour Marina, with police in pursuit in a civilian boat they commandeered.

The story began at about 6:25 p.m. Saturday when witnesses saw the boat, owned by William Cagle, 58, of Sanford, pull away from the dock, with the mooring lines breaking away. The craft entered the lake and traveled at a high speed, creating a high wake, Sanford police reported.

Police arrived soon after the craft's hasty departure and spotted the stolen boat, which the say was being driven recklessly. Police Chief Steven Harriett said today that his men searched the dock for a boat with keys in the ignition and commandeered a craft that belonged to Randy M. Cook of Sanford, to pursue the stolen boat. Cook was in the marina when he came out and noticed his boat was gone. A marina operator told him police were using the boat to catch a thief.

The stolen boat ran aground in shallow water in Lake Monroe in front of Central Florida Regional Hospital, Harriett said.

Faulkner, Morton to vie for vacant Longwood seat

LONGWOOD — Perry E. Faulkner, 44, qualified Friday to run in a special election on Tuesday, May 9, for the District 3 commission seat left vacant when commissioners on Feb. 27 voted to remove Carol Odom because they said she had violated the city charter by interfering in city business.

Faulkner, of 1046 First Place, had almost immediately announced his intentions to run for the seat but waited until the last day to qualify. Faulkner, who served as commissioner for one term (1985-1988), ran for the same seat in November in a three-way race with Odom against Lynette Dennis. He will vie against another candidate, Jeffrey R. Morton, 41, of 872 Buckaw Place, in the May 9 election.

Faulkner is general manager of Orlando Radial Tire Inc., Orlando. He is a 16-year resident of Seminole County and has lived in Longwood for more than eight years. He is married and is the father of two children.

Morton is the former owner of Red Baron Restaurant on Highway 434 in the Plaza del Sol for prices that range from $65 to $110 per month, depending on the size. Dry storage facilities can accommodate boats up to 26 feet in length. Boats in dry storage are stacked four high.

For boats up to 100 feet long, the marina has 245 wet storage boat slips. The cost of wet storage is $3.55 per foot each month.

Lucarell estimates that about 60 percent of boaters storing equipment at the marina are from Orlando. Other boaters come as far as California, Canada and South America to use the facility, he said. Ten percent of the boats stored at the marina are owned by out-of-state sportsmen, he estimated.

Although boaters at Monroe Harbour Marina have blind mosquitoes and ducks to contend with, Lucarell said, the brackish water dock doesn't pose corrosion problems as salt water docks do.

Lucarell expects occupancy to be at 100 percent by the fall, when northerners come south or out of coastal saltwaters. Last fall Lucarell had a 400-boater waiting list for space at the marina, he said.

On a busy weekend, Lucarell said, at least 20 boats are launched from dry storage.

Harbour Marina, who, in turn, leases space to Riverhip Romance. The city also leases space to Holiday Inn, which operates a bar and a snack shop on the marina, and office space to a dentist, an accountant and a fitness center.

Jim Jernigan, parks and recreation department director, said the city is responsible for upkeep of roads, ramps, signs and other maintenance on the marina.

Last week the city abolished a $5 launching fee adopted last May by the commission. The city had estimated $60,000 in revenue from the fees, Jernigan said, but after six months had collected only about $3,000.

Many boaters use their dock space at the marina as a relaxing weekend getaway, he said, instead of taking their boats out on the water.

In his tenure at the marina, Lucarell said the logistics of boating have changed. "I've seen boats go from 600 pounds to one ton," he said. "I've seen boats go from 20 feet to 50 feet."

But while the sport of boating has grown up, he said, the marina doesn't seem to have aged. "Not many people believe this facility is 20 years old."

The city built the marina in 1967. The city of Sanford leases marina space to the Monroe

Attempted coup fails to oust Haitian ruler

United Press International

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — Rebellious soldiers tried Sunday to overthrow Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril, but the attempted coup failed and Avril "controls the situation," state-run television said. No casualties were reported.

A U.S. official said guards loyal to Avril intercepted mutinous soldiers taking him to the airport and returned the military leader to the presidential palace.

Earlier, a private Haitian radio station and the acting foreign minister of neighboring Dominican Republic said the coup was successful.

Haitian government sources said the coup attempt was carried out by military officers led by Col. Hymier Rebu, head of the Leopards battalion, an elite unit of riot control troops.

The government sources, who requested anonymity, said Leopards forces were holding as hostages a daughter of Avril and Interior Minister Acecius St. Louis at the crack unit's headquarters in Freres, a suburb of Port-au-Prince. The sources said St. Louis was injured during the coup attempt.

Despite earlier reports that the coup was successful, State Department spokesman Dennis Harter said in Washington later Sunday: "Our embassy informs us President Avril is now back in the palace. However, the situation remains fluid."

Asked to elaborate on his prepared statement, Harter said Avril's presence in the palace "would suggest that he is back in charge." Harter added in the statement, "According to our embassy, Americans are not in current danger."

The Information Ministry said Avril would address the nation at 8 p.m. on state-run television, but there was no word from the president by 11 p.m.

Sounds that appeared to be gunfire coming from the presidential palace began at 3 a.m. and were heard throughout the day. Military authorities closed Mait Gate International Airport outside Port-au-Prince and blocked roads to it. The air facility remained shut down at midnight.

State-run Haitian television said the Information Ministry had confirmed that a coup attempt was waged "inside the palace."

U.S. State Department spokeswoman Susan Clyde said in Washington that rebellious soldiers were taking Avril to the airport when they were intercepted by loyal presidential guards who took him back to the palace.

"Several people who are suspected of being involved in the coup are apparently in custody at the palace," Clyde said, "but their status is unclear, and we're not sure at this point what actions would be taken against them."

Clyde said earlier Sunday that the uprising appeared to be a "bloodless coup." She said television crews were at the presidential palace awaiting an official announcement.

One U.S. analyst said the attempted coup was triggered by Avril's recent attempts to crack down on drug trafficking in response to American pressure.

Avril was an aide to former dictator Jean-Claude "Baby Doc" Duvalier, who fled in February 1986.

Handle new amnesty program with care

Three million undocumented immigrants became temporary legal U.S. residents under the immigration reform's amnesty program. Now it's time for them to clear the next set of bureaucratic hurdles — or risk slipping back into the shadows of fear and illegality.

The initial phase of amnesty conferred temporary legal status on qualified amnesty applicants for up to 30 months. But once the amnesty applicant has been a temporary resident for 18 months, he or she is expected to apply for permanent residency.

The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, which began this second phase of the amnesty program Nov. 7, is disappointed at the initial turnout. Of the 320,000 people now eligible for Phase 2 in the western region, only about 85,000 have applied for permanent status.

There could be many reasons: confusion over the requirements, apathy or plain old procrastination. But our newly legalized immigrants should overcome fear and inertia and meet this challenge as quickly as possible. Otherwise, when their temporary cards lapse, they will be back at square one, illegal and vulnerable to deportation.

The requirements aren't that daunting. To its credit, the INS has devised a simple shortcut for qualifying. It's a basic English proficiency and civics test. How simple is it? One multiple-choice question asks: "Which country is north of the United States? Cuba, France, Canada or Japan?" Another asks the name of the capital of the United States.

If the temporary resident fails, the test can be taken again, without penalty. Those who don't pass a second time can meet the requirements by enrolling in special English and civics courses offered at various sites around the country.

We commend the INS for streamlining the path to permanent residency, but that isn't enough. With thousands still on the waiting list to enter the English and civics courses in some areas, the state education system must make certain that enough classes are available. The Legislature should add $50 million to the $121 million budget for the education of amnesty applicants rather than risk a cutback of these important educational courses.

It would be tragic if some amnesty seekers lost out solely because they were unable to get into a class before the deadline expired.

The amnesty program had a shaky beginning in 1987, finally gained momentum and eventually provided many undocumented workers with an opportunity to be full-fledged American citizens.

The Bush administration is seriously talking about replacing INS Commissioner Alan Nelson, a move that probably also would mean the departure of Harold Ezell, western regional commissioner.

Despite early problems, Nelson and Ezell deserve credit for establishing the amnesty program and trying to smooth its rough edges. Whoever succeeds them must not drop the ball. The amnesty program is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to bring undocumented workers into the American mainstream. It must be handled with care.

Like Khomeini, pro-lifers turn violent

While many Americans were quick to condemn the Ayatollah Khomeini for assaulting freedom of thought, those same Americans have been boisterously silent about their fellow citizens' assault on freedom of choice.

The freedom to choose concerns abortion. The issue is becoming increasingly divisive — and, in some instances, dangerously violent.

If the issue were confined to an exercise in differences of opinion, there would be no problem. Picketing and harassing patients at family planning clinics may make the patients miserable, but the First Amendment protects the picketers.

Only when anti-abortionists turn violent — as did the Ayatollah Khomeini when he urged followers to execute "Satanic Verses" author Salman Rushdie — is our constitutional soul sabotaged. The reasons for the assault may differ, but the consequences are the same.

In 1985, anti-abortionists bombed 38 family planning clinics and torched 14 more. Their resort to arson and violence is paradoxical because the anti-abortionists are now morally subsidized by the federal government.

The president supports them. And a Supreme Court that legalized abortion, 7-2, in the 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision now teeters on the brink of a probable 6-3 reversal.

Given this federal trend, the polarization between the anti-abortionists (pro-lifers) and the pro-abortionists (pro-choicers) has intensified.

Anti-abortionists condemn pro-choice advocates as murderers. Pro-abortion advocates denounce pro-lifers as terrorists.

A schizophrenic American public seems to favor both sides. In a Los Angeles Times national poll, 57 percent considered abortion an act of murder, but more than half of those polled supported the statement: "Every woman has the right to control her own body."

The anti-abortionists may have the federal government on their side, but they are still losing the soul of the American people. One dramatic example of that lack of national support is a move by several dozen historians to solicit 200 of their colleagues to oppose the Justice Department's effort to overturn the Roe vs. Wade decision. While historians have often served as expert witnesses in court trials, the filing of an amicus curiae (friend-of-the-court) brief by the Ad Hoc Group of Historians in Support of Privacy is an unusual break with tradition.

The coalescing of public opinion against the anti-abortionists has galvanized them to escalate their harassment, intensify their violence and terrorize the First Amendment. Their actions have been felt.

A radio commercial advertising the National Organization for Women-sponsored pro-choice march in Washington, D.C., on Sunday, April 9, is being rejected by most radio stations.

Radio station executives were candid about their reasons for refusing to run the spots. They wanted to avoid anti-abortionists picketing their stations and boycotting their sponsors. Some also fear potential violence.

The only way to combat iron curtain attempts to silence freedom of speech is to raise the curtain, and a giant curtain-raiser will take place on Sunday, April 9, when thousands of freedom-loving Americans will converge on the nation's capital.

Helping schools help themselves

WASHINGTON — The current wave of education reform began with a federal government report, "A Nation at Risk," depicting the failure of far too many schools to give their students a mastery of essential citizenship and economic skills.

Terrell Bell, the education secretary who initiated that report in 1983, was unable to interest his boss, President Reagan, in a federal response. Instead, Reagan traveled the country telling governors, legislators and local school boards that it was up to them to run the rescue operation.

Confounding the skeptics, many states and localities stepped up to the challenge. They raised teachers' pay, toughened curriculum, lengthened school days and years, and insisted on testing students to measure the results.

Impressive as that response was, the people involved — especially governors — soon realized that the first wave of school reform would fall well short of what was needed. In 1986, the nation's governors, working with the Carnegie Foundation Task Force on Teaching as a Profession, launched the second wave. It was aimed primarily at improving professional skills, pay, accountability and authority of teachers.

That effort developed enough momentum that in the final years of the Reagan administration, Education Secretary William Bennett was able to publish useful guidebooks to "what works" in particular schools and classrooms.

Only now, six years after it began with Bell's report, has the education-reform effort turned back to Washington. As this is written, the final touches are being placed on the message in which President Bush will spell out his campaign's stated aspiration to have him recorded as "the education President."

He is expected to offer suggestions for expanding "Head Start" pre-school programs for needy youngsters, savings programs to help middle-class families pay college bills and other classroom goodies hinted at in last year's stump speeches.

But unless there's a last-minute change of mind by Bush's domestic-policy staff, he apparently will not adopt as his own a bold but essentially cost-free idea through which the federal government could give a powerful boost to the healthy experimentation taking place at the local level.

The idea was offered to White House, Office of Management and Budget and Department of Education officials by the National Center on Education and the Economy. This is a Carnegie-funded group led by John Sculley, head of Apple Computer, Inc., and former Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr., of North Carolina, a leader in the education-reform movement. Marc S. Tucker, who headed the staff of the original Carnegie effort, is directing this follow-on project.

It would, by simple waiver of regulations, allow school systems with many poor students to develop educational bootstrap plans and then pool federal and state funds to carry them out. This idea is so much in tune with what the governors already are doing and with the basic philosophy of the Bush administration that New Jersey Gov. Thomas H. Kean (R) has called it "an excellent place to begin" redefining the federal role.

Today, the federal government supplies earmarked funds, through separate programs, for education of poor children, the handicapped, children from foreign-language backgrounds and other target groups. These are well-intentioned efforts. But as Tucker and his colleagues noted in a memo to the President, "Separate bureaucracies...typically carve kids into separate pieces and make it difficult to build initiatives that work for the student." It would be better, they argue, if the quest for excellence gave states and localities "maximum freedom to figure out how to produce those results."

They are not proposing an overhaul of existing federal programs. Rather, they suggest that Bush ask Congress to give Cabinet secretaries authority to solicit proposals from communities and states with large concentrations of poverty. The winners would get "broad waivers that would permit pooling of both state and federal funds...in exchange for commitment...from education, government, community and business leaders...to set and achieve high education performance."

They emphasize this is not a suggestion for deregulating the system. Communities would keep their waivers only as long as they could demonstrate they were making year-by-year progress toward their education goals, so "the emphasis (would be) squarely on performance."

States and districts would receive the same funds they now get, with perhaps a 5 or 10 percent bonus for efforts to boost performance, especially in academic achievement and in helping students make the transition from school to work.

The federal government could give a powerful boost

VA watchdogs shelved some important audits

WASHINGTON — Watchdogs at the Veterans Administration have been accused of concealing politically sensitive findings of waste and abuse — findings that ended up on a shelf instead of in the hands of Congress.

The inspector general's staff at the VA produces audits which are normally released to the public in semi-annual reports to Congress. But we have learned of a few audits that never saw the light of day for reasons that indicate the inspector general may have been distracted by politics.

Inspectors general have been installed in many federal agencies since the 1970s. Their job is to audit and investigate their own departments without concern for politics or the departments' reputation. More than anyone, these watchdogs should follow the axiom of Supreme Court Justice Louis Brandeis: "Sunlight is said to be the best of disinfectants."

For reasons that sound flimsy, however, some VA inspector general audits were never released. A whistleblower has dubbed them "credenza" reports, for their final, private, resting place.

Our associate Stewart Harris saw the uncirculated audits and found evidence that former VA inspector general Frank Sato may have caved in to outside considerations.

A 1986 audit by Sato's staff concluded that the VA could save $6.7 million if it didn't build an unneeded pedestrian bridge at the VA Medical Center in Portland, Ore. Sato agreed with the conclusion, but the audit ended up in the credenza, and the bridge was built. Sato explained that Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., had already budgeted the money for his home state and the VA audit would not have changed that. We asked him if he was afraid of stepping on Hatfield's toes. Sato's answer indicated that he balanced political considerations. Sato said he could have been called before Congress or suffered other distracting, political repercussions if he had issued the report. "You have to consider how to get the most bang for the buck," he said. We think he is wrong.

In another report, Sato's investigators found that many veterans who were paid for being 100 percent disabled were working in other federal jobs. A person who is 100 percent disabled is not supposed to be able to work. The audit was canceled before it was finished. Sato said there was no reason to finish it because the VA saw an early draft of the information and agreed to clean up its act. That is comparable to the police deciding not to tell the district attorney about a robbery because the robber agreed not to do it again. The inspector general is not supposed to have his strings pulled by the agency that he investigates.

Sato's staff also suspended an audit of the Walla Walla, Wash., VA hospital. The VA was grappling with the idea of turning the hospital into an outpatient clinic. Sato told us the VA had already made its decision, so it was not necessary for his team to continue the audit. But it seems to us that the audit would have been useful in that decision-making process. Rep. Tom Foley, D-Wash., proved that it wasn't too late to change the VA's mind.

Foley flexed his considerable political muscle and stopped the VA from converting the hospital to an outpatient clinic. Many of the patients in that hospital were Foley's constituents.

The General Accounting Office and the Office of Special Counsel investigated the reports that Sato did not give to Congress and found no "conclusive" evidence that the Inspector General's office has lost its independence.

A whistleblower has dubbed them 'credenza' reports

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

U.S. Gov't Approves Patent Claims for New Diet Pill

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)—An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" you steady fat loss and calorie reduction by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

The U.S. government has just approved the doctors' claims for a hard-to-get patent that confirms "there has never been anything like their fat-bonding pill process before." It is a totally new major scientific breakthrough and is revolutionizing the weight loss industry.

You Can "Eat Normally" Best of all, "you can continue to eat your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You can start losing fat and reduce calories from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight you desire without exercising."

Flushes Fat Out of Body The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles. Then, all the trapped fat and calories are naturally "flushed" right out of your body because they cannot be absorbed.

Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated.

"Automatically" Lose Fat According to one of the inventors, Dr. William Shell, heart specialist and associate professor of medicine at UCLA medical school, "the new fat-bonding process is a "lazy way" to lose weight because the pills alone "automatically" reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat. It is 100% safe and not a drug."

The fat-magnet pills are already sweeping the country with glowing reports of weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slimmer, trimmer and more attractive again.

Now Available to the Public If you are trying to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these "no-risk" highly successful fat-magnet pills directly from the doctors' exclusive manufacturer only (includes optional calorie-reduction plan for even better results). Send $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$3 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), to: Fat-Magnet, 506 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W248, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) Rose faces awkward opening

The mayor of Cincinnati is threatening Reds fans with arrest Monday if they are caught without wearing something red. Maybe it's a precautionary measure to ensure the color of Pete Rose's face won't stand out in the crowd.

Rose faces potentially his most awkward — and last — Opening Day in 26 major league seasons when he goes before his hometown fans at Riverfront Stadium amid investigations into his gambling habits.

Six other games are scheduled for Opening Day, with St. Louis at New York and San Francisco at San Diego in the NL, and Boston at Baltimore, Toronto at Kansas City, Milwaukee at Cleveland and Seattle at Oakland in the American League.

President Bush, a former first baseman at Yale, will throw out the first ball at Baltimore's Memorial Stadium. He will be accompanied by Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak.

Lyman in Tremendous 12 field

This evening at 7 p.m., the Lyman Greyhounds will take on Lafayette, Kentucky in an opening round game in the Tremendous 12 Spring Baseball Tournament being played this week at Boardwalk and Baseball.

Lyman, off to a surprising 12-4 start, currently leads the Seminole Athletic Conference with a perfect 7-0 record.

Last week, the Greyhounds prepared for the tournament by playing and winning a pair of games at Boardwalk and Baseball. On last Tuesday, Lyman defeated Spruce Creek, 3-2, and, on Saturday, defeated North Miami Lakes, 6-1.

The tournament has new sponsors this year, Hall-of-Famer Ted Williams and Best Western teaming up to put on the event.

DeLand's Gordon leads Vols

TACOMA, Wash. — Bridgette Gordon likes to wear at least 40 pieces of jewelry, but her most impressive collection of gold can be found in her trophy case.

The Tennessee forward added to her glittering string of success Sunday, tying an NCAA championship record with 27 points in her final college game to carry the Lady Volunteers to a 76-60 triumph over Auburn and their second women's NCAA title in three years.

"Right now I'm just happy because we wanted this since the beginning of the year," said Gordon, who scored repeatedly from the baseline and also grabbed 11 rebounds. "Over the years I've seen a lot of people come up and help me. They helped me become the player I am today."

Gordon, a 6-foot senior from DeLand, took the Vols to four Final Fours in her career. In addition to lifting Tennessee to the 1987 title, the SEC Player of the Year won an Olympic gold medal last summer and finished as the school's all-time leading scorer — men included.

Sprained knee may stop Howe

PHILADELPHIA — Philadelphia Flyers defenseman Mark Howe may not be ready for the start of the playoffs because of a sprained left knee he suffered Saturday night in Montreal.

Howe, who missed 17 games earlier this season because of the injury, aggravated the injury with 37 seconds to play in overtime in a 2-2 tie against the Canadiens.

Howe was examined by Flyers team physician Dr. John Gregg before Sunday night's regular-season finale against Pittsburgh and was officially listed on a day-to-day basis.

"I'm going to try to get back into the lineup as soon as possible," said Howe, the Flyers' steadiest defenseman. "Whether the leg will be stable enough by Wednesday (the first night of the playoffs), I don't know yet."

Michigan and Seton Hall settle season

United Press International

SEATTLE — The college basketball season ends Monday night with a game between one school long a mystery to much of the country and another whose will was suspect come tournament time.

Before the season, Seton Hall was picked to finish seventh in its conference. The coach wondered how his team would survive Georgetown and Syracuse and the rest.

Before the season, Steve Fisher of Michigan decided to talk to his athletic director. After all, he was 43 years old and an assistant coach, and he wondered where he was heading.

There is no question about the destination any more. Michigan, 29-7, and Seton Hall, 31-8, play for their first NCAA title (9:12 p.m. EDT) in an improbable finish to the season.

"I don't think anybody thought we'd be playing for the national championship," Seton Hall Coach P.J. Carlesimo said Sunday.

Least of all his Big East coaches, who looked at a program that was 6-23 a few years ago and were not overly impressed.

"You have to understand," Carlesimo said, "the intelligence factor of the eight other coaches in our conference is not very high."

If Seton Hall struggles with an inferiority complex, it is understandable. The New Jersey school has been overshadowed in the East and unknown to many outside the area. It has played basketball since 1903 and been to the NCAA Tournament but twice.

At Sunday's news conference, in a show of hands, only two of six Michigan players knew before the tournament where Seton Hall was located.

Michigan ordinarily is a disappointment come the NCAA Tournament, having lost in the second round in three of the last five years under Coach Bill Frieder. But Frieder was replaced by Fisher two days before the tournament and the Wolverines have been riding an exhilarating wave since.

The latest crest came in Saturday's semifinals when the Wolverines beat Illinois 83-81 on Sean Higgins' follow shot with two seconds left. Fisher slept well that night.

"Every time I rolled over," he said, "I had a smile on my face."

Seton Hall, as evidenced by its 95-78 victory over Duke in the other semifinal, is clearly See NCAA, Page 2B

Trio leads Lake Mary to J.V. win

From staff reports

Lake Mary won the second annual Lake Mary junior varsity spring break baseball tournament Friday night with a 10-2 victory over Lake Howell.

The Rams improved their record to 10-2 and will return to action tonight against Lyman. The Silver Hawks dropped to 8-5 for the season.

Chris Lubinkas finished as the winning pitcher going three innings with David Hudick and Lance Reyes going two innings each. The trio combined on a three-hitter and ran into trouble in only the sixth inning.

The Rams opened the scoring with a run in the bottom of the first inning with T.J. Giuffrida reaching first, stealing second and third and scoring on a passed ball.

Lake Mary broke the game open in the second inning with four runs as, after an out, David Derth singled followed by a Mark Rosenberg walk Chris Barfield then walked to lead the base.

Giuffrida then singled in two runs and left runners on the corners, Chris Haney then walked before Barfield scored on a wild pitch with Giuffrida scoring on a passed ball to up the lead to 5-0.

Lake Mary added a run in the bottom of the third before the Silver Hawks came up with their two runs in the top sixth inning to trim the lead to 6-2.

Lake Mary slammed the door shut on Lake Howell in the bottom half of the inning.

Giuffrida reached first on an error and stole second, Marcus Bullock then reached on another error that scored Giuffrida. Hamilton then singled before Chris Jackson grounded out to short.

Warren Woodard then stroked a two run single before Robert Pine and Scott Hill hit back-to-back singles to bring in Woodard, scoring the final run of the game.

Whether hitting back-to-back or backing up each other in the field, Lake Mary High School's brother duo of Neil

Brothers in arms Rams benefit from James double shot

By TONY DeSORMIER
Herald sports editor

If you think you have it tough with a brother or sister always looking over your shoulder, consider the case of the James brothers, Neil and Greg. Or is it Greg and Neil?

As members of the varsity baseball team at Lake Mary High School, the brothers are together almost 'round the clock (except, thankfully, for the school day — they share only one class). And if that wasn't bad enough, one always has the other right behind him.

On defense, it's Neil, the younger brother (No. 30 in your program) who is out in front. Playing third base, Neil stands between older brother and leftfielder Greg (No. 7) and the batter.

"I think about it (playing behind his brother)," said Greg with a laugh. "I watch him and wonder if he's going to catch the ball and make the out."

Offensively, the roles are reversed. Greg bats in the fifth spot in the Lake Mary order while Neil is right behind him in the sixth slot. "I try to score him if he gets on in front of me," said Neil.

According to Lake Mary coach Allen Tuttle, the offensive alignment is something of a fluke. "That's just the way it's worked out," said Tuttle, who had another impressive pair of brothers — Eric and Alex Birle — on See Brothers, Page 2B

FCC-J turns close game into rout over SCC

JACKSONVILLE — Tom Glover and Jimmy Lewis combined on a three-hitter and the offense exploded for eight runs in the last three innings as the Florida Community College Stars posted a 10-1 victory over Seminole Community College in Mid-Florida Conference baseball action at Alumni Field Saturday.

The loss dropped the SCC Raiders to 7-21 overall and 2-10 in the conference.

Seminole has a trio of home games coming up this week, hosting Central Florida CC Tuesday, Valencia CC on Wednesday and Lake City CC Thursday. All three games are scheduled for a 3:00 p.m. start and will be played at Raider Field on the Seminole Community College campus.

Glover gave up the three Raider hits in seven innings of work, striking out eight and walking only two. Lewis pitched two hitless innings of relief, striking out two and walking two.

Leftfielder Shane Staaccio led the Stars offense with three hits in five at bats, including a triple, two runs batted in and two runs scored. Shortstop Brad Orr added two hits in three at bats with a double, two runs scored and one run batted in.

Seminole pitching held the Stars to only six hits as starting pitcher Charlie Bynum did not allow a hit through five innings, yet still trailed 2-1. In his six innings of work, Bynum gave up only two hits, walking four and striking out three. He was also called for two balks that led to runs.

Centerfielder Steve Roberts was the Raider offense with a triple in three at bats and scored the only run. David Leugers and Jason Wood picked up the other Seminole hits.

The Stars took the lead in the bottom of the second without the benefit of a hit. Kevin O'Sullivan walked, moved to second on a walk to Baylor Alexander, advanced to third on a sacrifice bunt by Mark Devitt, and scored on a sacrifice fly by Orr.

The Raiders tied the score in the third when Roberts tripled and scored on a grounder by Dan Peters.

The Stars retook the lead for good in the fifth, scoring again without a hit. Devitt walked, went to second a balk, third on a sacrifice bunt, and scored on a sacrifice fly.

Florida finally broke through against Bynum in the sixth, picking up a pair of runs on a pair of hits and a hit batman. They turned the game into a rout by scoring three runs in the seventh and three in the eighth.

With just 10 athletes competing, Lady Rams third at Merritt Island

MERRITT ISLAND — Lake Mary's girls track team took a few individuals to the Merritt Island Invitational and came up with a solid performance by placing third in the meet.

Evans won the meet followed by Titusville with the Lady Rams taking third with 35 points. Palm Bay finished fourth in the meet by scoring heavily in the final two events.

"We left early and I know we finished no lower than third place," Lake Mary track coach Mike Gibson said. "There was no team close to us and I really think Evans won the mile relay. We weren't close to Evans or Titusville but we did real well for having just 10 runners, which is a third of our team, on hand."

Amy Kuvach led Lake Mary by winning both the shot put and discus. Kuvach threw the shot 36-7½ and tossed the discus 109-4. Vivian Jones added a sixth place finish in the shot put at 31-11¾ to add strength in the weights.

Heather Gleason had another good day as she took third in the 330 low hurdles with a personal best time of 48.3, took third in the triple jump, in only her second time participating in the event, covering a distance of 31.5½. Gleason also took fourth in the 110 high hurdles with a personal best time of 16.5.

Haydee Rohlehr added a sixth place finish in the 330's at 53.3, while adding a sixth place finish in the high jump by clearing 4-6. Tonya McCrae added a fifth place finish in the long jump at 16-1¾.

The Lady Rams 440 relay team of Rohlehr, McCrae, Gleason and Leah Bucco-White placed sixth with a time of 53.9. Bucco-White added a fourth place finish in the 220 yard dash at 27.6.

"We finally found a runner to run the 220," Gibson said. "We had someone on the county honor roll except the 220. Now Leah (Bucco-White) has broken into the See Lake Mary, Page 2B

Sister's dying with mysterious illness

DEAR DR. GOTT: Our sister is dying before our eyes. She's lost 30 pounds, is covered with lumps, is going blind and can't stand any light. She's had every test imaginable and has been examined by 30 doctors at a research hospital. She does have sprue and has had Valley Fever but the doctors can't figure out what's wrong. Can you help?

DEAR READER: I would be presumptuous to second-guess the army of qualified physicians who have examined your sister and meticulously analyzed her many tests. However, I have three comments.

First, Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome is rapidly becoming more than a national health problem: it is on its way to being a 20th-century, world-wide scourge. The disease is an incurable disruption of the body's ability to fight infection and is caused by the Human Immuno-deficiency Virus. Although I am sure your sister has been checked for AIDS, you might want to ask her doctors about this specific disease.

Second, Valley Fever (San Joaquin fever or coccidioidomycosis) is an infectious disease caused by inhaling the spores of the fungus C. immitis. The ailment initially causes flu-like symptoms of fever, cough, muscle aches and weight loss. Most patients recover uneventfully. The infection is quite common in the southwestern United States. Occasionally ill with loss of appetite and weight, fever, pneumonia, arthritis, skin sores, weakness and meningitis. This progressive type of Valley Fever is fatal in up to 60 percent of patients, despite treatment. However, the use of anti-fungal drugs, such as amphotericin B and ketoconazole, may help. Your sister may need this treatment.

Third, sprue (celiac disease) — a chronic form of intestinal malabsorption caused by a congenital sensitivity to cereal protein (gluten) — can cause malnutrition. This deficiency produces weight loss, diarrhea, anemia, skin sores, bone pain, loss of menstruation and swelling of the legs. Treatment is almost always effective and consists of strict avoidance of gluten in the diet. This means avoiding processed edibles, soups, sauces, ice cream, wheat flour, oats, rye and barley.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

With the opening lead of a low heart, declarer has a wealth of options. Playing low from dummy makes the slam if (1) West has led from the heart king; (2) the club jack falls in three rounds of the suit so that dummy's fourth club provides a parking place for a possible diamond loser; (3) declarer determines the location of the queen of diamonds. But if declarer thinks it extremely unlikely that West would lead away from the king of hearts into a one-no-trump opening hand, he has an extra option. He can rise with dummy's heart ace, play ace and a second spade to his 10-spot, and then exit with the queen of hearts. If East has the king of hearts and originally only two spades, he will be forced to lead into dummy's Q-10-4-2 of clubs or break the diamond suit, since the play of a third heart would let declarer discard a loser while ruffing in dummy. All that thinking is of little avail here, since East wins the heart king and plays the third trump.

Now the play is a simple matter of cashing the A-K-Q of clubs. When East shows up with four to the jack, declarer has a good partial count of West's hand. West started with only four black cards, probably five hearts after the lead of the heart three, so it becomes very likely that he has four diamonds. Since West has more diamonds than East, it becomes good percentage to play West for the queen. Doing so will make the contract.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
April 4, 1989

The year ahead could be a rather unique period where a number of small opportunities could collectively grow into something rather large. Each will be an important piece of the whole.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're likely to be very imaginative today, and your ideas and concepts could be even better than usual. However, don't discuss your intentions prematurely or talk to people who may try to dilute them. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your material prospects look very encouraging at this point in time. Be alert for a development of an unusual nature that could spell financial gains for you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The best of your leadership qualities will be very evident to friends with whom you'll be involved today. You can be bold or assertive if required, but also sensitive when necessary.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You should fare rather well today in situations that have competitive elements. This is because your desire to win is likely to be far stronger than your competitors'.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You might pick up a very good idea today that you'll be able to file away for future reference. It could come in several parts from several sources but have just one use.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Take a more active role in an arrangement where you share a vested interest with another. It is going to take the concerted efforts of both to make it successful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An alliance may be rejuvenated at this time with a person with whom you were once very close. The new arrangement could now produce mutual benefits it failed to yield before.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you are likely to be much more effective in business matters than you were yesterday. If there are any steps you would like to retrace, make them a priority.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Things should run rather smoothly for you and yours in the romance department today. This is because two archers will be on target: you and Cupid.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to utilize at least part of today doing something constructive that you feel is more fun than work. The more creative it is, the better.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something you are presently involved with is in need of some reorganization at this time. Fortunately, this is your strong suit today, so take steps to enhance its efficiency.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You could be rather fortunate today in some material manner in an involvement you have with family members or relatives. These won't be run-of-the-mill happenings.
