This is the city, Sanford, Fla. This is George Hubler, Police Administrative Service consultant, presenting all the facts about the Sanford Police Department to the city commission. "Suck it up...get it together."

Hubler advised. The department was "flawed...below average," he said. Many members of the force attended the work session at City Hall.

Picking up the pieces at the SPD

By RUSSE WERTS
Herald Staff Writer

The man who apparently knows more about the Sanford Police Department than it knows about itself commanded big-time attention at Monday's City Commission work session.

And, Public Administration Service consultant George Hubler is even busier today in strategy talks at the SPD.

"We can do it"

Chief Joe Dillard

The force isn't "corrupt," Hubler made it clear on Monday. Nor is it necessarily "doomed." There's a chance the SPD can work itself out of a hole - not overnight but step by step. Mayor Larry Dale tersely put it this way: "What we have to do, first, is convince the citizens that Option 'A' is an option."

New faces for Sanford airport board

By MARIA OREM
Herald Staff Writer

There will be some new faces on the governing board at Orlando Sanford Airport.

Of the four Airport Authority board members seeking reappoinment, only one was chosen by the Sanford City Commission at its meeting Monday.

Col. Charles Gibson, who has served on the board since 1993, was voted to a four-year term. Also voted to a four-year term was newcomer Robbie Robertson, former director of the Greater Sanford

Chamber of Commerce. Appointed to three-year terms were Ken Wright, an attorney, and Lon Howell, a business owner. Outgoing members are Gene B. Daniel, Lee P. Moore, and Ronald L. Wein-druch.

Several city commissioners had recently expressed concerns over the direction of the airport authority, with Mayor Larry Dale saying the airport should not be acting as an autonomous board. Dale also said he did not approve of the way the airport had changed its name a few years ago without consulting the city first.

Proponents, opponents of apartment complex hope to compromise

By SHARI BRODIE
Herald Staff Writer

All of the parties involved in opposing or supporting the building of an apartment complex on County Road 46A will meet to try and reach a compromise on the densities of that development.

Residents of Sanford's Kaywood subdivision packed Sanford City Commission chambers Monday night, ready to fight the development they feel will destroy their neighborhood, property values and quality of life. The owners of single-family homes on property adjacent to the proposed development were there to fight for lower densities than the 20 dwelling units per acre that could come through a change to the city's comprehensive plan in the form of a land use amendment.

Prior to the commission meeting, the mayors of Sanford and Lake Mary met with a representative of the developer and hammered out a "developer's agreement" that listed the concessions the developer would be willing to make. The agreement was presented to the commission last night, stating "residential density restricted to 15 dwelling units per gross acre on the south 20 acres and 16.75 dwelling units per acre on the north 30 acres."

Apparently unsatisfied with this concession, Kaywood homeowner Keith Ivey spoke to the commission, offering an alternative density plan that he admitted was mainly his opinion, after researching the city and county's comprehensive land plans.

Ivey proposed high density on the north 10 acres of the 50-acre site, along Rinehart Road, of 20 dwelling units per acre. The south 20 acres, along C.R. 46A, Ivey said, could be 10 dwelling units per acre and the remaining 20 acres in the area between the lakes, would be medium density of 15 dwelling

"What you have proposed, I can live with."

units per acre. "This would still allow the developer 825 units with the varying densities," said Ivey.

Ivey's proposal caught the interest of the commission. Commissioner Whitey Eckstein, who represents the constituency who reside adjacent to the development, said to his fellow commissioners, "Look at this man's compromise, because therein lies the answer." To Ivey, he said, "What you have proposed, I can live with."

Ivey's presentation followed an appeal by Lake Mary Mayor David Meador and commissioners Thom Greene and Gary Brender, to the Sanford commissioners, to allow more time to enable the city of Lake Mary to meet on the subject in an open forum. Meador pointed out that while he had met with Mayor Larry Dale and Bill Burkett, the developer's representative, "we are very concerned about the Sunshine Law," and wanted the opportunity to present a report to the other city commissioners in the upcoming Lake Mary City Commission meeting. "We haven't had the benefit of our city commission meeting in the sunshine."

After Ivey spoke, Sanford attorney Ken Wright, representing the developer, approached the commission. "If it would please the commission," Wright said, "we would request a continuance to reach a compromise." Dale at this point polled the audience, of those representing the Hills of Lake Mary, Kaywood, the city of Lake Mary, Seminole County and the developer about the possibility of all parties getting together. With the affirmative from everyone present, the board voted to table the vote on the land use amendment.

Cops seek suspects who bilked woman of savings

BY DAVID FRAZIER
Herald Staff Writer

Doris Hillery, 48, a Sanford resident, was bilked of her savings Wednesday, by two unknown black males. The incident occurred at the Wal-Mart plaza on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford between 1 and 2 p.m.

The two suspects were able to bilk Hillery out of $4,570.68. Playing upon the woman's sympathy, they asked her to go in on giving a certain amount of cash to the needy and poor, according to Police Information Officer Tom Skiba. She went with one suspect to withdraw money from the Seminole County Teacher's Federal Credit Union. When she returned to the Wal-Mart store, all the money - supposedly $50,000 altogether - was "placed" in a handkerchief and put in Hillery's glove compartment.

When Hillery stopped in an Eckerd's parking lot, she looked in the glove compartment in her car, and found that there was newspaper wrapped in the handkerchief instead of money. Security at the Wal-Mart store saw the suspects leaving in a green Lincoln Continental.

In other police business, Henry Robinson Rankinsson, 80, of 306 Laurel Ct., Sanford, was killed Monday in a traffic related incident. Rankinsson, a Jamaican native, was walking south in the area of Lake Mary Boulevard and State Road 600 when he was struck by two ve-

Tim Raines is doing great at 38

Wouldn't it be grand if Tim Raines and Tim Raines, Jr. - Rock and Little Rock - could appear in a major-league game together. The Griffey's - Ken and Ken, Jr., did it.

What will it take? Rock Raines, who is 38 today, needs to play three or four more seasons. That will give Little Rock time to crash the big-time.

Sanford is proud of both, of course.

Tim Raines cracked the majors in 1979, playing six games for the Montreal Expos. His first full year was 1981, when he hit .304 and stole 71 bases. He had 50 steals in 55 attempts before the strike that year.

Raines stole 90 bases in 1983 and led the National League in runs scored with 133.

He's hitting .307 for the Yankees this year, has a career average of .296 and is close to the 600 mark in career stolen bases.

Rock, Jr., a hero in the recent American Legion World Series championships, has one more base ball season at Seminole High School. He had two homers in the series final and was on the all-tournament team. He's going to be a first round big-league draft choice.

Where was dad picked? Rock Raines - believe it or not - was fifth-round pick by the Expos in 1977.

Happy birthday, Rock Raines, the Pride of Sanford, Fla.

More candles

Baseball pitcher Orel Hershiser is celebrating a birthday, also. He's 39, a year older than Rock Raines. Former star Robin Yount is 42 today. Actress Lauren Bacall is 73; singer B.B. King is 72; TV host Allen Funt is 83; actor Peter Falk is 70, illusionist David Copperfield is 41 and actress Jodie Foster is 44. Seminole Community College President Ann McGee is 48. That's a load. Everyone from Columbus to the Candy Camera man.

Peopleless in Seattle

Here's a twist. It's Stay Away from Seattle Day. Seems so many people are relocating and visiting the city that each Sept. 16 is Stay Away from Seattle Day. OK. We'll go to Tacoma.

Without candy, Halloween is no treat

Special to the Herald

Trick-or-treat, give me something good to eat! Ninety-three percent of American children, aged six to 11, plan to put on their best Superhero costume, grab their pumpkin bags and hit the neighborhood asking for a trick or a treat, according to a recent survey by the Chocolate Manufacturers Association and National Confectioners Association.

Halloween remains the top holiday for confectionery sales as candy treats are the most sought after by trick-or-treaters. This year Americans will spend $950 million on confectionery to All little goblin's goody bags with fun-size candy bars, hard candies, gum, lollipops and other tasty treats.

"Halloween continues to top all other holidays for confectionery sales as parents realize that candy is fun. It is a tradition on Halloween and, most importantly, it can be enjoyed as part of a child's overall healthful diet," says Larry Graham, president of the National Confectioners Association and Chocolate Manufacturers Association (NCA/CMA) in McLean, Virginia.

How much do Americans love candy? New consumption figures show that candy is more popular than ever as a year-round treat. In 1996 Americans ate 28.2 pounds of candy and gum per capita, more than ever before.

On Halloween savvy trick or treaters plan to save their loot and eat their treats over time. Sixty percent of children aged six to 11 say they will save their treats and prolong the fun of Halloween, rather than eat it all at once. Agrees Graham, "Candy collected at Halloween can be enjoyed over many days and even weeks following Halloween."

To ensure that your pirates and princesses have a safe and happy Halloween, NCA/CMA offers the following tips:

Costume Safety

*Use make-up or face paint instead of masks, but if masks are used, make sure that they fit properly and have holes large enough for the mouth and eyes.

*Choose costumes that are marked flame-retardant.

*Wear light-colored clothing at night, short enough to prevent tripping. Add reflective tape or reflectors to dark colored costumes.

*Make props such as magic wands and swords out of cardboard, rather than metal or wood.

Trick-or-Treating Safety

*Give and accept wrapped or packaged candy only.

*Have children bring treats home for adult inspection before it is eaten.

*Accompany small children when trick-or-treating and send older children in groups.

*Go out in daylight and carry a flashlight in case of delay.

*Stay within the neighborhood; visit homes your know.

Big wheels

General Motors was founded by William Crapo "Billy" Durant on Sept. 16, 1908. He was an entrepreneur from Flint, Mich. Pretty good one, too. No one ever called him Crapo. Which is just as well.

One Church, One Child to hold conference in Orlando

Special to the Herald

ORLANDO - "Reclaiming Our Village. The Church and Community Saving All Children."

That's the theme of the 11th annual national conference of One Church, One Child Inc., an organization that builds partnerships with African-American churches to find adoptive homes for black children. The conference will be held Sept. 22-26 at the Radisson Plaza Hotel in downtown Orlando.

Event co-sponsors include the Department of Evangelism A.M.E. Church and the Florida Department of Children & Families.

Among the conference highlights that are open to the public will be the evening worship services. On Sept. 23 at St. Mark A.M.E. Church, located in Orlando at 1988 Bruton Blvd.

More than 1,000 African-American children in Florida need adoptive homes. A main reason One Church was established was national studies showed that African-American children are over-represented in the foster care system. In Florida, while black children comprise less than 15 percent of the population, they make up more than 50 percent of foster children statewide. Also, when returning to their original (biological or legal) parents or guardians is not possible, blacks usually wait twice as long for an adoptive home than whites. In fact, black children are more likely to remain in foster care until adulthood.

Riding provides life lessons

By Annie Vorenkamp
 Special to the Herald

Last month, Annie Vorenkamp earned a Youth Top Ten showing in Half Arabian Western Pleasure JTR and JOTR at the 5th Annual Youth Nationals Arabian and Half-Arabian Championship Horse Show, held in July in Oklahoma City.

More than 1,000 horses and riders competed for national titles in 90 events, the versatile Arabian, half-Arabian and Anglo-Arabian horses at the show were highly competitive in a variety of English, western and other disciplines, demonstrating high style, agility and skill. Thousands of Arabian horse lovers come from all over the United States and Canada for the competition and pageantry of the show. In addition to the prestige of being named champion, the exhibitors competed for almost 650,000 in scholarships plus saddles, jackets and other prizes.

Vorenkamp, who has been riding since she was 11-years-old, wrote a story about her experience in the contest. She is best able to describe how riding has impacted her life.

As I fell to the ground covered in sharp rocks and watched as the four hooves swept over my face, I realized that in order to reach my goals in life there would be risks taken and not every day would go exactly as planned.

I can still remember the look on my trainer's face when she instructed me to climb back on the horse and finish what I had started. Perseverance would play a big part in my life and is one of the many lessons my trainer Wanda Kuester has taught me over the years.

The things in life which will give the most gratification when reflected back on are those which were hard to acquire. I was reminded of this lesson almost every day of my life from the sixth grade on, as my trainer was there to help me through it.

She helped me to pick out my first horse, a memory that will never leave me. This particular horse was very set in his ways, and felt that riding should be dealt with only on his terms. Terms that involved hours of bucking, rearing, bolting and dodging the huge oak tree centered in the arena.

Together, Wanda and I successfully saw this challenge through to the other side and were able to sell him to a barn where he aides in helping young children to ride.

Wanda taught me all the principles of riding through theory, anatomy and application of techniques. Today, I have the great satisfaction of knowing that through her guidance I have brought along three of my own horses and around forty others. She taught me the importance of respecting myself, for riding is an artistic form and expression of beauty.

One of the most important lessons she taught me was that anything is possible if you want it bad enough. Things may take a long time and seem like they are going nowhere, but just on the other side of persistence is a satisfied and met goal.

I've spent approximately 25 hours a week with her, learning all that I could about riding and life. Working from eight in the morning until six at night through the 110 degree summer, the 30 degree winters, the hail storms and the mosquito swarms has taught me true patience, tolerance for pain and persistence.

To look back and reflect on the six, going on seven, years that I spent with her, it would prove that she had taught me a lot more than just heels down and chin up. Working at her barn directed me and showed me how much of a hands on person I am. I have learned the importance of those skills and the necessity to maintain them throughout careers for my future.

She was there for me through the best of times and through the worst of times. The loss of family members and the glory of attaining Reserve High Point Champion in the state of Florida.

As my mother drove me up that rocky, dusty road one hot September day in 1991 to inquire about riding lessons, I could have never realized the great influence this place and this woman would have on me. I thought I would merely be getting a few lessons on riding but in turn I got a whole lesson on life and memories which make me who I am.

From glasses, braces and suspenders to cars, college, training and running my own stables, Wanda has been there to help me through it all and guide me in the right direction.

Airport

At its most recent meeting, several airport officials proposed the name of the airport be changed once to avoid ongoing problems with the Greater Orlando Airport Authority. The GOAA had said the airport name similarity was causing confusion among travelers.

Howell on Tuesday said he was honored to be selected. "I want to see the Airport Authority work with the city commission," Howell said. The relationship is similar to that of a CEO. We should all work together."

Wright said he was pleased the commission had confidence in him and the other new appointees and he was looking forward to working on the board with all its members.

"I think there is tremendous potential there and that will come from a strong board that will work closely with the city commission first, the county commission, the chairman of the GOAA and the GOAA board," Wright said.

Regarding the name of the airport, Wright said, he is inclined toward the name Sanford Orlando Airport.

"The airport is in Sanford...Sanford should not take a back seat."

Germany charges Alaqua man with fraud, tax evasion

Special to the Herald

Charles R. Wilson, United States Attorney for the Middle District of Florida, announced today that, on September 14, the United States Marshals Service and the Federal Bureau of Investigation arrested Gilbert Paul Raymond Noel, 47, a French national, at his exclusive Alaqua Country Club residence on a provisional arrest warrant based on charges filed against him in Munich (Germany) Local Court.

Noel is charged under the German Criminal Code for criminal association, fraud, money laundering, forging of documents and tax evasion. The U. S. Government, specifically the Office of the United States Attorney, obtained a provisional warrant for the arrest of Noel in the United States on behalf of the German government pursuant to the extradition treaty between the United States and Germany.

Noel is a named partner in a company called Verpro, established in 1994 in Germany. The purpose of Verpro, among other things, is to trade with microprocessors and computer components. Noel was the manager of Verpro and responsible for coordination of transactions. Noel is charged with deceiving the German tax authorities by under reporting value added tax liability and falsifying invoices to German and French companies with which Verpro conducted business. Investigations are being conducted by German, Belgian and French police and tax authorities. In addition, Noel has been in the United States for two years and has been involved with such companies as Mega Flight and Mega Computer of Altamonte Springs, Florida and Bybaris, Inc., whose parent company is located in France.

Noel will be afforded an appearance before a U. S. magistrate in Orlando, Florida concerning his extradition to Germany.

Kudos to some great Seminole County teachers

Who says teachers aren't preparing students for the real world of work?

Lake Mary High School economics teacher Anna Vanlandingham has cooked up an edible way for her students to learn the mechanics of the business world. For the past three years, teens in her classes have learned about economics by developing their own company and marketing a product. Vanlandingham said she adopted this approach to make the subject more interesting and to help students better grasp the concept. It's working.

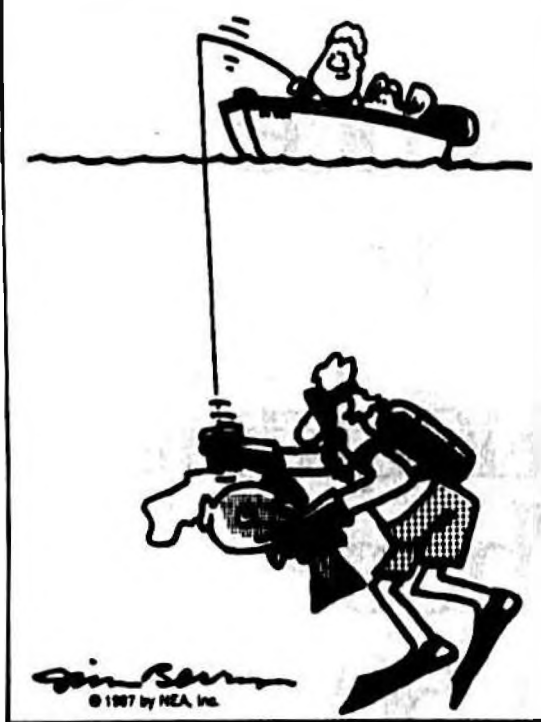

This year, The Ram Cookie Company is expected to generate between $300 and $350 profit with the homemade chocolate chip product. Part of that profit will be used for salaries and the rest will go to charity.

Vanlandingham is a perfect example of many of our creative Seminole County teachers who bring learning to life for their students. "Just doing my job," these fine teachers will say, praising instead the accomplishments of their students.

Thank a teacher today. Working with limited recognition and only moderate pay, our special teachers are responsible for molding young people into successful adults. Their devotion to their profession is most easily seen in ideas such as Vanlandingham's.

And because of her enthusiasm for teaching, we wouldn't be surprised if the Ram Cookie Company goes public!

One man's recipe for healthy living

Bernarr Macfadden was the first of the health nuts -- and some would say that he was nuttier than anybody who has come along after him. He felt that exercise (with dumbbells in front of an open window), vegetarianism and fasting would cure anything.

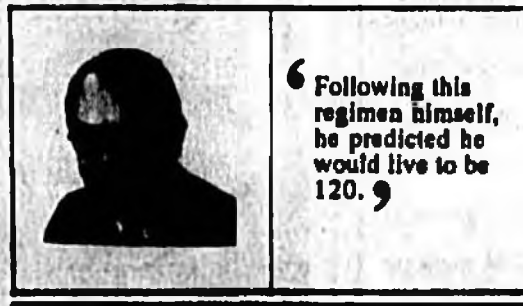

Following this regimen himself, he predicted he would live to be 120. He died in 1985 at the age of 87. Doctors attributed his death to a blood clot in the brain.

Macfadden would have sworn violently if he had heard the doctors' diagnosis. He never trusted doctors.

When he was 65 he admitted he was slowing down, but it wasn't evident when he was 81. Dressed in only his red flannel underwear, he parachuted from an airplane over the Seine River in Paris, France.

He married for the third time when he was 80. His bride was 49. The wedding cake was made from whole-wheat flour, and at the reception the happy couple and their guests drank carrot juice.

Macfadden started a religion he called Coamotarianism, and he preached it to his Sunday congregation while standing on his head. He believed that improved the circulation.

Following this regimen himself, he predicted he would live to be 120.

Macfadden became a millionaire as the head of a vast publishing empire whose biggest moneymaker was True Story magazine. But his favorite was Physical Culture magazine. Subscribers got a Physical Culture watch -- an enormous timepiece whose crowded dial gave instructions on what time to do everything. Many of the instructions still make good sense: -- 7 a.m.: Wake up. Stretch. Rise quickly. 15 minutes' exercise. Deep breathing at open window. Douse in cold tub. Sng! Rough towel rub. Stay nude as long as possible. -- 8 a.m.: No breakfast. Take glass of cool water. Walk to work. Identify the birds. Start day cheerfully. -- 10 a.m.: Glass of milk or water. Never use ice.

-- Noon: First meal. Eat slowly. Count 150 chews per mouthful. Chew tough foods. Don't drink at meals. Exercise teeth on tough sourdough bread. Prevents tooth decay.

-- Noon to 5 p.m.: Refuse to be rushed. Maintain cheerful mind.

-- 5 to 6 p.m.: End of work. Five-mile walk with deep breathing. Rest before dinner. Count chews.

-- 8 to 10 p.m.: Don't work evenings. Have harmless time. A few nuts or grapes.

-- 10 p.m.: Open windows wide. Let body breathe nude. Exercise until tired. Go to bed.

Macfadden was not a Bible-believer, but the vegetarianism he espoused may have had its roots in the Bible. A health-foods cookbook points out that the Bible extols the virtues of a vegetarian diet.

The reference is to the Old Testament story of Daniel (of lions' den fame) who was being trained for the royal service under Nebuchadnezzar. The king had chosen only intelligent young men of good looks and without any physical defects. They were given the finest food from the royal table to eat.

ELLEN GOODMAN

Women aren't paid on par

BOSTON--Back in the early 1980s, when Karen Nussbaum was the head of 9 to 5, the organization of clerical workers conducted a national survey on that perennial favorite: working women and stress. Among the many tidbits, it identified the worst "coping mechanism" that women used, the one sure to lead to the highest stress and the worst results.

No, it wasn't alcohol, it wasn't drugs. It was, she says, "apologizing when you weren't wrong."

Yet that was the posture of many working women in the years after they began flooding the workplace: apologetic. They thought of themselves as temporary or new workers, grateful or guilty women, and marginal.

Well, it took a generation in all, says Nussbaum, but "we're not saying I'm sorry anymore."

What are we saying? The former director of the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor is now head of the AFL-CIO's Working Women's Department which just completed a national survey called "Ask a Working Woman."

The labor union with its 5.5 million women members, expected, even planned, to identify one issue, probably child care, to kick off a high-profile campaign. But as Nussbaum says, "When you ask working women, you have to listen to what they say."

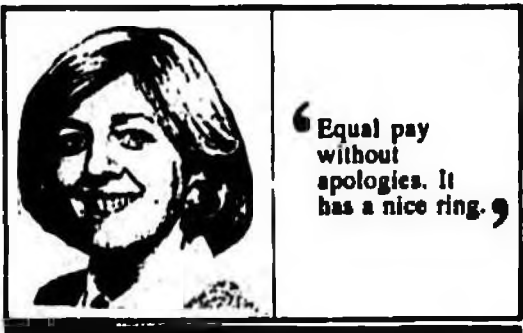

And while child care was a serious concern, the issue that came up with megaphone-clarity in the questionnaires filled out by 50,000 working women and in the scientific telephone survey of some 725 was this: "equal pay." A full 94 percent in the telephone survey identified "equal pay for equal work" as "very important." Over a third said it wasn't currently provided in their jobs.

This says, of course, that basic, old-time, phase one discrimination is alive and well, even though it's been illegal since 1933. But we know that. Women earn 72 cents for every dollar men earn. Women still earn less in every single job category, except--mysteriously--mechanic.

But the phrase "equal pay" does not just refer to the legal issue. After all, nearly half of all working women, especially those in pink collars, are in jobs that are overwhelming female. There is no man around with whom to compare paychecks.

"Equal pay" in fact has come to represent an entire galaxy of complaints revolving around work, fairness and gender. As Nussbaum reads the responses, "What they are saying is my pay isn't right and it's related to my being a woman."

Women have been seething privately about low pay and discrimination for years, but it fell off the public agenda. It wasn't as sexy an issue as harassment; it wasn't as trendy as stress. For some time, the topic was as depressed as the average paycheck.

"If you look at issues, you could say this is static. We were complaining about pay 20 years ago. But if you look a layer deeper, it's volcanic, because women now see themselves as economic actors with responsibility for economic well-being."

A full 41 percent of working women today are the sole support of their families. Two out of five are on their own. Even among the married women, 52 percent reported that their wages were half or more of the family income. No wonder that they report so much anxiety about the lack of job security.

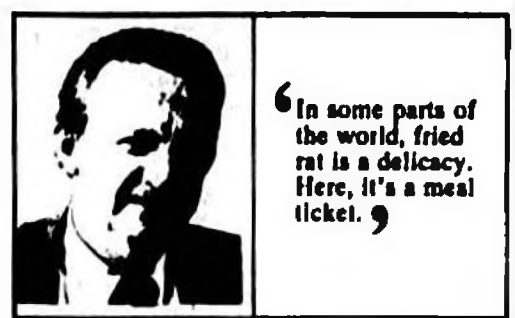

"I think we have arrived at a different frame of mind for most working women," says Nussbaum, flush from an overflowing conference in Washington DC, last week-end. Self-image tagged along behind and finally changed to fit reality. "They are more self-confident. They feel like they are holding everything together and doing it by their fingernails. Attitudes have finally caught up with changed economic conditions."

Among those attitudes is a greater belief among women in the power of working together to make change. The AFL-CIO and a range of women's organizations will be testing that with a newly formed Working Women Working Together Network. They are embarking on a long-term grass-roots campaign for "equal pay" through a series of National Days of Action, a toll-free number (1-800-871-8787), and the targeting of unfair employers.

Now, we're in the wake of a sustained and wildly uneven economic recovery. During the soccer mom election of 1996, even a Republican Congress passed a minimum wage increase. This year, the UPS strike gave labor a boost. We may well be at a turning point when this generation of working women turns private seething into public action.

Equal pay. Without apologies. It has a nice ring.

JOSEPH SPEAR

In some parts of the world, fried rat is a delicacy. Here, it's a meal ticket.

Quit picking on Mickey and Ronald

If you had approached me in January and told me I would be sympathizing with Disney and McDonald's in September, I would've said, sure buddy, and how was Elvia the last time you saw him?

I mean, these are a couple of corporations which have the resources to defend themselves. The Walt Disney Co. owns more than 200 subsidiaries, including Touchstone Pictures and Miramax studios; ABC, the Disney Channel, ESPN and Lifetime; Discover magazine; Hollywood Records; Hyperion Books; Disneyland, Disney World and the EPCOT Center; the incipient utopian city of Celebration; and the Anaheim Angels baseball team. Over all, Disney hauls in revenues of more than $21 billion every year.

The McDonald's company takes in $32 billion a year and owns so many restaurants -- 18,300 around the world -- that its own franchisees have begun suing the parent firm for oversaturation.

So why am I suddenly feeling sympathy for these behemoths?

Well, for one thing, many of their enemies are supercilious moralists who long to impose their mores on the rest of the ignorant and wicked world. For another thing, it's hard to escape the feeling that Disney and McDonald's are being ganged up on.

Most people know by now that the Southern Baptists have called for a boycott of Disney products. The company promotes the gay lifestyle, the Baptists say, and even extends health benefits to same-sex couples. More rabid critics claim Disney pushes a pagan agenda, advocates abortion, encourages free love and inserts lurid subliminal messages in its films: A minister in "The Little Mermaid" supposedly sports an erection, dust clouds in "The Lion King" purportedly spell out "S-E-X," and so on.

The Focus on Family organization recently urged its 4 million contributors to join the Baptist campaign. Already on board are the Free Will Baptists, the Assemblies of God, the Presbyterian Church in America, the American Family Association, the Catholic League and Concerned Women for America.

McDonald's, of course, is the bete noire of animal lovers, environmentalists and myriad sects of food police. A widely celebrated duo in England has for years been accusing the burger baron of crimes against humanity and the planet itself. The company sued for libel and obtained a ruling that it was not responsible for destroying the rainforest and starving the poor, but was guilty of paying low wages and exploiting children.

Those are merely the most publicized campaigns and crusades against Disney and McDonald's. They are also on the receiving end of hundreds of other proceedings and actions. A few examples:

-- The infamous McDonald's spilled coffee episode -- in which a jury awarded an elderly woman $2.9 million for being badly burned by hot java -- is only the most notorious spilled coffee case. Another customer recently claimed he was served bleach and water instead of the tea he had ordered. An Alabama man asserted that his hamburger was topped off with a condom, which he thought was a rubbery pickle. A New York man charged he had bitten into a rat's tail that was in a bag of french fries. In some parts of the world, fried rat is a delicacy. Here, it's a meal ticket.

Option 'A' - the fix it solution - is far more appealing to the members of the SPD, which could be disbanded if the city chooses what Hubler said was "the most drastic" option by contracting the Seminole County Sheriff's Office for all law enforcement services. Option 'C' is a dirty word at the SPD.

One way or another Sheriff Don Ealinger is going to be a major player in the SPD makeover. "Get this man involved," Hubler advised. "He's a very, very powerful individual. Utilize his power. Work together. Have him conduct management training sessions."

Another player appears to be Longwood Police Chief Greg Manning, who is retiring after 25 years (21 as chief) in November. Dale - among others - wants Manning on a new Law Enforcement Options Committee which would make recommendations regarding major matters in the reshaping of the SPD.

Manning told the Sanford Herald he is interested.

The committee could be chosen in two weeks. Hubler recommended that it be a singular-purpose committee - and it have representation from the judiciary (one of two members a former judge), the criminal justice community, the educational community, homeowners groups, business community and a police liaison commissioner.

Dale insists that one of the members of the City Commission be on the committee although he said Monday this member did not necessarily have to be himself.

If the SPD had an angel on this committee it would probably be Commissioner Velma Williams, who strongly endorsed the department on Monday. "The SPD can fix itself," she said. "I want to think anything is possible."

Dale told the officers who attended the work session that he expected an "attitude change." He said there was nothing political about the SPD management review. The department had made a mess of itself. It needed fixing. And it needed the fix now.

Noticing that not all the SPD people seemed to agree, he bristled. SPD Chief Joe Dillard, for one, seemed satisfied with the Monday work session. "We can do it, now," he said. "Most of us are optimistic. We're coming together. We're becoming a much more cohesive department."

Hubler strongly urged the city that it also had to change its charter and have the police manager report to the city manager rather than the mayor and four other commissioners. "Your current system simply doesn't work," he said. "Change it."

As to achieving a 100-percent improvement in its police department, Hubler said each SPD member needed to "suck it up...get it together. Do what's necessary to make the department first rate instead of below average."

Can it be pulled off? "I honestly don't know," Hubler said.

Volunteer of the Week

Scholarship honors ex-SCC teacher

The name Dorothy Morrison is well-known among business owners in the downtown area and those involved with Seminole Community College. This 85-year Sanford resident has volunteered her time, talents and assistance on a daily basis most of her life while in Sanford.

As a former teacher at Seminole Community College, her most recent accomplishment is being notified that a scholarship has been set up in her name there. She still is identified as an English tutor with the college.

This foundation donation established a scholarship in English and British Literature to honor "one of the college's founding faculty and the 27 years of the 43 years of her teaching career," according to a letter sent to the school.

The letter also adds that, "she influenced the lives of thousands of students, many still living in the area. She served as SCC Faculty Senate president for four years, was nominated for the state 'Who's Who of Women in Florida' and was the Faculty Senate's nominee for the state Little Red Schoolhouse award."

Also mentioned was "the scholarship will be awarded for the first time in the spring of 1988. Morrison was chairman of the Humanities and Fine Arts Division for 11 years where she helped develop a talented, noted faculty. She participated in the planning for the Fine Arts Performing Center and Museum. She was on the original Honors Faculty and for many years judged the Seminole County Spelling Bee. She was the sponsor and advisor to the only yearbook at BCC in its 31-year history." She was previously presented a certificate from Main Street businesses. She continues to work for them in untiring efforts in helping make deposits, run errands, turn lights on and off and provide assistance in whatever way she is able to make life a little more bearable. She has also volunteered with Kay Bartholomew at First Street Gallery in managing lights or helping with other necessary things. Dorothy Morrison continues to be a guardian angel and helper to those in need.

How do frogs and toads differ?

Frogs and toads are "amphibious" which means "double life". Most frogs and toads have two stages in their life cycle, larvae (tadpole) and adult. From the approximately 80 species known in the United States, 23 frog and 5 toad species, are native to Florida.

Descriptions: Frogs look different than toads in several ways. Most toads have dry, warty skin, whereas frogs have moist, smooth skin. Most toads also have a pair of glands bulging out from behind their eyes. These glands produce a toxin that protects them from being eaten by most animals. All toads have these glands, but most are too small to severely affect people and our pets. Frogs do not possess these glands, and there are no poisonous frogs native to Florida.

Life stages: Frogs and toads have two life stages, the larvae or tadpole stage and the adult stage. When tadpoles metamorphose into adults, their body structure and breathing organs change. The tail disappears, legs form, the mouth enlarges, lungs replace gills, and other organs transform to adapt to a life that includes breathing air, eating different food items, and living on land and water.

Feeding: All adult frogs and

GARDENING

toads are predators and feed on a wide variety of insects. They have a large mouth and a long, sticky tongue that they use to capture prey. Their hunting style is to sit and wait for their food to come to them. When an insect moves within range, they turn their body, lunge forward, and shoot their tongue through the air. They also will pursue slower prey on the ground. Tadpoles, immature frogs and toads, are plant-eaters and feed mostly on algae, which they filter from the water.

Reproduction: Frogs and toads move to ponds, lakes, streams, and ditches to breed. Males move to the pond first and begin calling. Usually, this activity takes place on rainy nights. Once a female arrives, she selects her mate and breeding begins. Eggs are released into the water and the male releases sperm, fertilizing the eggs. The eggs remain inside a gelatinous mass until hatching. Eggs must remain in a moist environment, because they have no protective shell. Toads lay their eggs in single strands, and most other frogs lay their eggs in large clumps.

Importance: Frogs and toads are an important source of food for fish and other aquatic organisms, as well as terrestrial species such as wading birds, red-shouldered hawks, and a variety of snakes. At times, it seems as though there is an overabundance of frogs and toads in Florida, but they play an important ecological role in the food chain. They sustain animals at the higher levels. One way that people directly benefit from frogs and toads is that many of their insect prey are considered to be pests, such as mosquitoes.

Legal aspects: Permits are required to sell or possess for sale any live amphibian or carcass, skin, or any body parts of amphibians native to the state of Florida. Frogs may be taken throughout the year by gigs, clubs, blow gun, hook and line, hand, or by shooting during daylight hours. A commercial freshwater fish dealer's license is required to take for sale or to sell frogs. The gopher frog, pine barrens treefrog, and Florida bog frog are listed as species of special concern and are thus protected from taking, possessing, and selling of whole animals, body parts, and eggs.

Career Woman Happily Makes A Home for Live-In Boyfriend

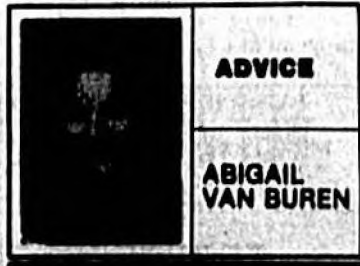

DEAR ABBY: I don't know how you feel about response letters to response letters. Nonetheless, the letter I read today from "Happy With a '90s Home Life," chastising your printing the letter from "Old-Fashioned and Proud of It," evoked a fiery response from me.

I am a 29-year-old woman with a college education, a professional career and a boyfriend I live with. Nothing gives me greater pleasure than knowing when he walks through the door, he has a meal, a neat home, and does not need to worry if his clothes are clean.

I consider myself fortunate to have good looks, brains, and to have retained the values of "making a home" my mother taught me, which I will be proud to teach the daughter I may someday have. I consider myself blessed to have a great guy, and I am showing him just that every day through my quite natural efforts. I know he loves me and I do not expect him to prove it by putting the pillow under my feet as I put them up. Any woman who aspires to shirking domestic duties she should be proud to accomplish can be summed up in one word: lazy.

It is not a matter of women "serving" or men needing "survival skills." Relationships are about wanting to take care of your partner and making each day easier for him. Relationships are meant to be about "us."

Too many partners in relationships these days ask the question, "What can you do for me?" as opposed to, "How can I help you?" There is something wrong with this lack of selflessness, and quite possibly people have forgotten the definition of "true love." If two people really care for each other, there should be no thought of tit-for-tat. Acts performed from the heart all equal out in the end.

HAPPY TO BE RON'S GIRL, 1997

DEAR HAPPY: I'm sorry you didn't allow me to use your name, but perhaps it's for the best. Ron might be killed in the stampede of contemporary feminists trying to do you in - and men climbing over him to get to you.

As close as it gets

Sanford Co-Ed openers decided by one run

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — It doesn't get any closer than this. The Sanford Recreation Department Fall Co-Ed Slowpitch Softball League got started Monday with a pair of one-run games at Pinehurst Parks.

Chang's Car Care jumped out to a 6-1 lead after two innings, but could not dent the scoreboard again and had to sit back and hope the runs were enough as C & L Timber mounted a rally.

Chang's Car Care was still up 6-1 heading into the sixth inning when C & L Timber plated three runs. C & L Timber then made things interesting as an unearned run cut the lead to 6-5 and had the potential tying run was on with only one out. But that was how it ended with the final 6-5 Chang's Car Care.

Half-N-Half got into a major run-for-run battle with Beer:30 in the second game.

C & L Timber	010 008 1	6 8
Chang's Car Care	490 080	6 0
Half-N-Half	400 001 8	6 10
Beer:30	110 081 8	6 17

Half-N-Half took a 4-0 lead in the top of the first inning only to see Beer:30 battle back to take a 5-4 lead after five innings.

Things really got interesting at that point as Half-N-Half scored a run in the top of the sixth inning to tie the game. Beer:30 regained the lead in the bottom of the sixth inning, and Half-N-Half took the lead back with three runs in the top of the seventh inning to hold a 8-6 advantage.

In the bottom of the seventh inning, Joy Weaver singled and Vic DiBartolo ripped a two-run, inside-the-park home run to tie the game. After an out, Joe DiBartolo doubled, but the next batter made an out, bringing Terry Dechav to the plate with two outs. Dechav then singled to give Beer:30 a 9-8 victory.

Next week, C & L Timber takes on Half-N-Half at 7 p.m. and Chang's Car Care battles Beer:30 at 8 p.m.

Providing the offense were:

Chang's Car Care: two hits — Tommy Vesina (run, RBI); one hit — Chip Smith (double, run), Chris Bryson (double), Mary Sechrest (run, two RBI), Debbie Berning (two RBI), Lynn Webb (RBI), Lucy Bellera (run), Staci Abrams; one run — Carol Garner, Zeb Webb.

C & L Timber: two hits — Shannon Hill (double), Terri Hirt; one hit — Mark Blake (double, three RBI), Jimmy Wilkinson (two runs), Tina Hill (run), Michael Burke; one run — Rick Pettit, Michelle Michael; one RBI — Chris Clarke.

Beer:30: four hits — Joy Weaver (triple, two runs, RBI), Terry Dechav (two doubles, run, two RBI); three hits — Vic DiBartolo (home run, double); one RBI — Chris Clarke.

Church Softball begins

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Trinity Assembly of God-Majesty from Deltona picked up where they left off last season and Buen Samaritano survived a big scare to post opening day victories in the Sanford Recreation Department Fall Church Slowpitch Softball League at Chase Park Saturday morning.

Majesty, which went 9-1 in winning the Spring League championship, scored nine runs in the bottom of the first inning and led 14-2 after two innings.

The Flames from Sanford First United Methodist Church finally got things going and outscored Majesty 7-1 the rest of the way, but the early lead and a couple of excellent defensive plays allowed Majesty to post a 14-9 victory.

Buen Samaritano and Sanford Christian then hooked up in a super battle with the score being tied 1-1 after two innings and 3-3 after four innings.

Buen Samaritano took advantage of an error to score two runs in the top of the sixth inning. An RBI double by Carlos Morales and an RBI single by Jesus Munoz gave Buen Samaritano the 5-3 lead.

Sanford Christian got a run back in the bottom of the sixth inning on an error, a double by Ricky Wells and a sacrifice fly by Tony Tichonoff and then had a tremendous opportunity to win the game in the seventh inning.

A single by Rick Williamson and a double by Joe Caputo put the tying and winning runs in scoring position with no one out. An intentional walk to Mark Brewer loaded the bases and a sacrifice fly by Tommy Preston tied the game at 7-7. But the next two batters popped out and the game went to extra innings.

Buen Samaritano took advantage of the second chance, using four errors and three hits, including doubles by Tom Veinmann and Luis Rivera, to plate six runs in the top of the Lake Brantley fumbles away chance

By DEAN SMITH

Herald Sports Editor

DeLAND — Have you ever seen a greased pig contest?

Lake Brantley fumbled 11 times, losing three, and was held to 32 yards of total offense in the first half as the Patriots fell to DeLand 24-19 in varsity football action at Spec Martin Stadium Friday night.

All told there were 13 fumbles between the two teams as Lake Brantley fell to 0-2 overall and 0-1 in Class 6A-District 4, while the Bulldogs improved to 1-1 and 1-0 in the district race.

The Patriots fumbled the ball away three times and lost six yards, twice, on a fumble and a lateral, and fell behind the Bulldogs, which lost their opening game 35-0 to Mainland, 17-0 at halftime.

The Patriots simplified their offense in the second half and were able to get back into the ball game behind the running of quarterback Brian Criswell and fullback Ryan Pagan.

But two extra point tries failed and Lake Brantley was forced to try an on-sides kick, which bounced out of bounds, after cutting the score to 24-19 with 0:53 left on the clock and DeLand was able to run out the clock.

After getting good field position on a 28-yard kick off return by sophomore Lanier Bush, the Patriots fumbled at their own 41 after gaining a first down.

The Bulldogs recovered and got a 29-yard field goal from Dustin Ferrell eight plays later to give the hosts a 3-0 lead.

Another good kick off return gave Lake Brantley the ball at the 25, but a penalty and a fumble gave DeLand the ball at their own seven and two plays later Terrel Johnson carried the ball in from the seven and Ferrell's extra point made the score 10-0.

Another lost fumble by the Patriots two series later gave the Bulldogs the ball at the Lake Brantley 47 just before the end of the first quarter, eight plays later junior quarterback Craig Candetto carried the ball in from the five and after Ferrell split the uprights, DeLand was up 17-0 at intermission.

The Patriots finally got on the scoreboard with 4:40 left in the third quarter as Pagan capped a 13-play, 60-yard drive with a one-yard plunge to make the score 17-8. The extra point snap was fumbled.

Lake Brantley forced the Bulldogs to punt on their next possession and the Patriots took the ball right down the field, going 64 yards in 10 plays and scoring on a surprise backpass from Bush to Trey Keeley from five-yards out on fourth down with 9:49 left in the game. The two-point try failed and

What's the word on DHEA?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Should I use DHEA to improve my athletic performance?

DEAR READER: Dehydroepiandrosterone, a hormone produced in the adrenal glands, increases the production of testosterone (male hormone), leading to subjective improvement in physical and psychological well-being in both men and women. Because, as time passes, we all produce less DHEA, promoters have marketed the drug as an anti-aging compound. This is not true.

Nonetheless, DHEA is sold as a nutritional aid, and many people who take it swear by its value in making them feel better. It may enhance athletic performance but no studies have shown conclusively that it does. (Because it increases blood testosterone levels, the drug may adversely affect drug-screening in international athletes and could lead to a disqualification.)

In addition, its long-term effects are unknown because they haven't been studied. Some men have reported permanent breast swelling from its use; whether DHEA can cause prostate or uterine cancer — a distinct possibility — is unclear. Therefore, its safety is in question.

Because men and women under the age of 40 have adequate (natural) DHEA levels, the drug is not appropriate to improve athletic performance in this age group. Therefore, if you are under 40, I recommend that you not take it.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter is a dance major in college. Although she is very talented, she has had to give up pointe because of severe pain caused by bunions. Her dance career is in jeopardy, yet her doctor has told her to suffer the pain or quit dancing. Isn't there something she can do?

DEAR READER: A bunion is an abnormal swelling of the joint at the base of the big toe, often causing lateral displacement of the toe itself. The cause of this painful affliction is not known, but bunions do tend to run in families.

Although not a hazard to health, bunions can severely hamper athletic performance, particularly ballet.

Orthopedic surgeons have developed several operations to cure bunions. Two of the most popular — the Keller procedure and the Mayo operation — involve removing part of the bone near the joint and straightening the toe.

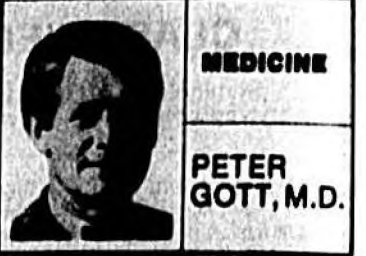

My orthopedic consultants tell me that either type of surgery cures bunions and allows patients to lead relatively normal lives (provided they don't reinjure the toe or consistently wear tight, ill fitting shoes that pinch the feet). Inasmuch as your daughter is a dancer, the situation becomes more problematic. It's possible that the surgeon might forbid her to dance because of the severe stress on the toes. But you won't know until you ask.

Your daughter should be examined by a qualified orthopedic surgeon, especially one who is familiar with the (many) bone problems that plague dancers. Let me know what he says.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am a diabetic whose blood sugars, on medication, are consistently below 150. Recently, I developed a case of hives. The itching drove me crazy, so my doctor prescribed prednisone. My sugars shot up to 400. Why?

DEAR READER: Prednisone and similar cortisone drugs can easily destabilize a diabetic by raising his blood sugar. Consequently, when such therapy is required — as it was in your case — doctors usually try to taper the dose and discontinue the medicine as soon as possible, at the same time increasing the amount of anti-diabetes medication to compensate for the imbalance.

Once you have finished your course of prednisone, your blood sugars should return to their previous levels.

The worst standard bid?

By Phillip Alder

What was the worst bid ever to become part of Standard American? Although this will probably cause a deluge of mail, I think it was the jump raise of an opening one heart or one spade to three hearts or three spades to show 13-15 points and at least four trumps: the so-called forcing raise. If using that bid, what would you do with today's North hand after partner opens one spade? Presumably, you would respond two hearts. Yet that is unappealing, especially as partner will think you have only three-card support when you bid spades on the next round. And that ninth trump will usually be worth an extra trick via a ruff in the dummy.

Much better — and more logical — is the limit raise, which shows some 16-17 points and at least four trumps. (Are you wondering what to do with a game-forcing raise? Tune in tomorrow!) How does the opener react to a game-invitational limit raise? He passes with a minimum, raises with some extras, or (unlikely though it may be) cue-bids or launches into Blackwood with slam interest. Here, South goes on to game, hoping for the best.

West leads the club king to South's ace. If South plays a trump immediately, he should lose four tricks: one spade, one heart and two clubs. Instead, declarer should cross to dummy's diamond ace, overtake the diamond queen with his king, and cash the diamond jack, discarding a club from the dummy. With the loser count down to three, it is time to turn to spades. South's 10 tricks are four spades, one heart, three diamonds, one club and one club ruff in the dummy.
