Flexible Spine An Impossible Wish

DEAR DR. LAMB—I had a complete physical exam two years ago and the doctor found that I have arthritis of the spine. He gave me pills for the pain and a series of exercises to follow. I've been very pleased because my condition has improved. I no longer have the pains I used to have and I no longer take pills. I do continue to do the exercises and I'm quite active.

I'm concerned because my spine doesn't bend very much because of the arthritis. It's made the joints calcified and I'm not very flexible although I try to bend and stretch with exercises. It's possible to break up the calcium deposits in any way so the joints could again function somewhat like they used to? I'm a 48-year-old man and have suffered with arthritis for about 12 years. I don't care how long it takes but if it is possible to be more flexible, I'd like to work toward that goal.

DEAR READER—Your story sounds like you have a special form of rheumatoid arthritis that involves the spine. It's particularly apt to occur in young men. It may not be associated with arthritis of other joints although that's not a set rule.

It does behave a little bit different than the usual variety of rheumatoid arthritis. However, I'm sending you the Health Letter number 4-11, Rheumatoid Arthritis, to give you more information on this problem as it's related to your condition and the letter contains some comments about rheumatoid arthritis of the spine.

It sounds like the treatment your doctor has given you has been very good. Being pain free and being able to be active is an important achievement.

It's often impossible to avoid the spine becoming stiff and fused, regardless of what you do. Your best route to maintaining flexibility is through

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

All South has to do to make three trump is to stop to count his winners.

He is suit of one heart, two spades, three diamonds and a third club trick barring very bad breaks. He almost surely must play clubs at some stage or other and must also try the spade finesse. There is a potential heart finesse also, but the one thing South wants to do is to keep from being forced to take that spade finesse early in the play.

West has the king's trick with dummy's first of diamonds in order to lead a diamond to his nine and West for lawn sprinkling. The consultants said the use of that high a volume of water usually means much of it is being sprinkled on lawns and water for these purposes can better be acquired from individual wells drilled specifically for that purpose.

The county currently has 2,219 customers on its utility systems and, according to county estimates, the systems have a potential of serving 6,000 customers.

"Potable drinking water is fast becoming an expensive commodity," the consultants said.

County Commissioner Sandra Glenn noted the proposed rate increase would be the second in three years, adding the rates were raised in 1976 by 44 percent.

The consultants said, however, after the county acquired the systems money was invested in them to not standard. The consultant added labor costs and other inflationary factors, as well as requirements by the state Department of Environmental Regulations for water and sewer utilities, have increased costs of operation. — DONNA ESTES

Judge To Longwood: Vote Or Be Jailed

Special Meeting Called

Julian said he could not file an appeal with the Fourth District Court of Appeals until the order had been filed, but once it is, he would do so. He said the filing of a notice by a governmental body with the appeals court "generally stays an order subject to the court's findings."

"We'll do whatever is necessary to comply with the court order as needed to keep from going to jail—whatever the law allows us to," said Julian.

The judge granted the contempt motion requested by attorneys for Robert Daves, who filed suit in October, 1978, against the city and Goldberg, after the commissioner moved from the district he was elected to represent.

On May 17 Muldrew ordered the Longwood com-

Sewer Rates To Rise $2.36 In Seminole

Customers of Seminole County's four utility systems will face a $2.36 monthly increase in sewer rates, if recommendations from consulting engineers are approved after a June 12 public hearing.

County Commissioners in a workshop Tuesday heard recommendations from the consulting engineering firm of Post, Buckley, Schuh and Jernigan of Orlando that minimum monthly sewer rates be increased from $9.46 to $11.82—a 25 percent hike.

The firm said revenues from the four systems—Lynnwood, Country Club, Indian Hills and Consumer Utilities—in the south and central part of the county are not sufficient to meet operating expenses, debt service coverage and a balloon payment due in 1980.

The increase, if approved, would generate $100,000 more in revenue annually, the firm said.

The minimum sewer bill is based on 120 percent of the monthly charge for 10,000 gallons of water. It is to be increased to 150 percent. Minimum water rates, meanwhile, would remain at $4.58 for 100 gallons. Charges to those customers, however, who use more than 20,000 gallons of water monthly would be increased from 66 cents per thousand gallons to 80 cents.

The reason for increasing the rate to persons using over 20,000 gallons, according to the consultants, is to discourage use of water for lawn sprinkling. The consultants said the use of that high a volume of water usually means much of it is being sprinkled on lawns and water for these purposes can better be acquired from individual wells drilled specifically for that purpose.

The county currently has 2,219 customers on its utility systems and, according to county estimates, the systems have a potential of serving 6,000 customers.

"Potable drinking water is fast becoming an expensive commodity," the consultants said.

County Commissioner Sandra Glenn noted the proposed rate increase would be the second in three years, adding the rates were raised in 1976 by 44 percent.

The consultant added labor costs and other inflationary factors, as well as requirements by the state Department of Environmental Regulations for water and sewer utilities, have increased costs of operation. — DONNA ESTES

RIOT SQUAD TRAINING What appears to be a dangerous situation at first glance is actually just a training exercise for units of the Florida Highway Patrol riot squad. The FHP conducted riot training in an area near south Sanford Avenue and 28th Street this morning. The riot squad went through mock emergencies using blank bullets.

New Phone Network OK For Seminole

Seminole County government busy signals may just another year during peak hours—but the phone jam may clear.

County commissioners Tuesday authorized installation of a new telephone network at the county courthouse, Roundhill building where the manpower program is housed, the sheriff's department complex to relocate at the Sanford Airport and the Five Points complex.

Dorothy Wade, commission officer manager, told commissioners "the new system will provide total communications to all departments in the county government by the most cost effective and productive manner available and will eliminate any and all problems that exist in the present system."

She said, however, it will be a year before the installation is completed.

The delay of one year, she said, is because the new system is being "tailor-made" for the courthouse and county needs, and a study to determine exact county needs is to be completed first.

Mrs. Wade said that through government offices during peak periods. In addition, government employees cannot conduct business with the outside world during those times, causing low productivity and morale when communications are blocked. There is a "zero growth factor" in the present system, she noted.

Peak hours, said Mrs. Wade, are 8:30 to 9:30 a.m., 10:30 to 11 a.m. and 3 to 4:30 p.m.

She estimated, after consultations with Southern Bell Co. officials, the new system will cost 26 percent more annually over the current rate—up from $155,988.77 to $195,777.

It is also possible to add additional trunk lines to alleviate the (telephone) traffic. It would cost $350 more per month. This still would not alleviate our problems," she said. "We are unable to add any more additional extensions to our present system."

Mrs. Wade said the new system, called the countywide dimension network, will enable all personnel at all locations to quickly and easily communicate with any person within the county government, give fast and orderly connections to outside lines and increase productivity and raise morale.

Most county offices are now linked via the courthouse switchboard.

Keep Personnel Files Secret, Sanford Attorney Says

Should city employees' personnel records be confidential? Says Sanford's city attorney.

Such records do not fall under the same category as other public records and should not be made available to the press or other interested persons, city attorney Vernon Mize has advised the Sanford city commissioners.

"I recommend that personnel records not be disclosed to anyone unless there is a written approval from the individual employee involved," Mize told the commissioners at a Tuesday's regular commission meeting.

An exception would be salary information, which is listed in budget reports.

Mize said it is his opinion that personnel records do not fall under the broad definition of public records which, according to the Florida Public Records Act, must remain open to the public.

Although Mize said he does not expressly exempt personnel files, court cases suggest there is a distinction between public records and personnel records. He also said the federal Freedom of Information Act specifically exempts an employee's personnel record from public scrutiny.

There would be a question of liability if personnel records were released, Mize said. He said the individual releasing the records would be subject to suit if the employee whose records were released did not consent.

Mize said information which is kept in a personnel file and also duplicated in other public documents is not confidential so long as it is obtained by the

Where's Carter?—Fishin'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—I did it and I'm glad. It may have been worded differently, but that was the essence of President Carter's response to questions about his having sneaked away for a secret fishing trip over the weekend.

"It was one of the nicest days of my life," a beaming Carter told reporters at his nationally broadcast news conference Tuesday. Getting away from it all, he said, "is good for me and good for the country."

Members of the White House press corps say, however, the president violated an informal agreement to keep them apprised of any movements he makes in public.

The agreement grew out of a face-to-face meeting between the president and several White House reporters early in Carter's presidency, after he had gone unannounced to an opera at the Kennedy Center and after he had conducted an hours-long running news conference on the streets of Plains, Ga., on a day his press secretary had said he would make no news.

Carter said then it would be a rare occurrence when I wouldn't let you know about his movements. Press secretary Jody Powell concurred, and reporters took that to be an informal agreement. Perhaps they should have listened more carefully to what else Carter had to say:

"I'm not going to relinquish the right to go to the zoo with Amy, or to the opera with my wife, or to pick up arroyos on my farm without prior notice to you."

Carter said at his news conference it is rare for him to get away from the "woods" and swamps and in the fields and on the streams by myself."

"I really believe," he said, "that it is not only good for me, but for the country to be able to do that on occasion. I wish I could do it more. But I don't intend to ignore any opportunity to take advantage of a fishing trip when my permits it."

Fishing has been a favorite form of presidential relaxation at least since the time Benjamin Harrison split on his worms for luck and cussed when the fish got away. President Hoover wetted his line in New Jersey's Pequest River with a member of the state's Fish and Game Commission. President Eisenhower braved the chilly waters of Colorado's South Platte River to hook a rainbow trout. And President Carter learned the sport in a Plains, Ga., pond.

Law enforcement officials found McAdams at the Deltona Inn after they traced the registration of a truck he owned. Deputies said a license check made on McAdams' truck that was found stuck in the mud on the airstrip led them to McAdams.

Authorities said the victim was tied to a tree while the gunmen debated whether to kill him. Deputies said as many as 10 other persons may have been involved in the incident.

Siamese Twins Separated
SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — For the first time in medical history, surgeons early today separated Siamese twins joined at the top of the head.

A team of surgeons at the University of Utah Medical Center worked 19½ hours to cut apart 18-month-old Lisa and Elissa Hansen. The twins went into surgery at 10:45 a.m. MDT (12:45 p.m. EDT) Tuesday and the doctors completed the operation at 3:05 a.m. MDT (5:05 EDT) today.

"The operation was a success. The twins are awake and crying," said medical center spokesman John Dwan. "They have been transferred to a recovery room. They are in stable, but critical condition."

Dwan said the twins, who had separate brains but shared the same skull cavity, were separated at 11:19 p.m. MDT (1:19 a.m. EDT) Tuesday night, but it took nearly four hours to close "the surgical site."

Eleven doctors, including neurosurgeons, plastic surgeons, pediatricians, anesthesiologists, worked in shifts on the girls tying off blood vessels and working to construct the skulls. The doctors were magnifying glasses to perform the delicate surgery.

The doctors worked in shifts — four teams of two doctors were assigned to each infant. The twins' parents, David and Patricia Hansen, waited in a nearby room, surrounded by about 20 relatives, throughout the long operation.

Dwan said the family took it very calmly. "They're very grateful, but they're very tired," he said. Details of the operation will be released at a news conference today at 1 p.m. MDT (3 p.m. EDT), Dwan said.

Veteran Has Mixed Emotions

Longwood Couple Invited To White House Reception

By JANE CASSELLBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

A Longwood veteran invited to attend a White House reception today in observance of Vietnam Veterans' Week left for Washington Tuesday with mixed emotions.

Dyke E. Shannon of 425 Valencia Court was indeed "excited about the invitation and looking forward to meeting President and Mrs. Carter."

But Shannon, who is the state adjutant (executive director) of the Florida Department of the American Legion, said he couldn't help feeling a little hypocritical because of his personal feelings regarding Carter's handling of veterans' affairs, particularly those of the Vietnam veterans. "I think that President Carter is one of the enemies of veterans today," said Shannon. "I am disappointed in what he has done or failed to do for the Vietnam veterans. I am pessimistic and feel this may be just a political token type thing for him to get in good grace with the Vietnam veterans."

Shannon, who was a captain in the Army served in Vietnam for 14 months, was one of 10 Vietnam veterans nominated by the American Legion to receive presidential invitations. Shannon and his wife, Debi, were to attend the 2 p.m. reception today along with 200 other Vietnam era veterans and their spouses.

President and Mrs. Carter were scheduled to attend the reception along with dignitaries from the Veterans Administration and various branches of the Armed Forces.

President Carter has proclaimed May 27-June 3 as Vietnam Veterans' Week to honor "America's most forgotten veteran," calling upon the nation to pay honor for contributions they have made to the American way of life.

"I've had a lot of veterans who have asked me to convey messages to the president, but not many can be repeated in the paper," Shannon revealed. "They were all negative."

Shannon is also disappointed in his long time friend, Max Cleland, director of the Veterans Administration. Cleland was also an army captain and lost both legs to talk with him at the reception.

"He's nothing but a pawn for the administration," said Shannon. "He is not the advocate that we had hoped he would be."

While in the nation's capital, Shannon said, he may talk to Senator Richard Stone regarding pending legislation involving veterans. Shannon said his job with the American Legion takes him to Washington to confer with officials quite often but being invited to the White House is a special event.

Border Chaos Is Escalating

The inability of the administration to deal with massive illegal immigration is fast leading to chaos on our border with Mexico. And the impotence of federal immigration policy is reflected acutely in the growing seige mentality of the Border Patrol.

The very volume of illegal entry from Mexico has created something close to a No-Man's land on the border east and west of San Ysidro, just south of San Diego, Calif. Assaults and robberies are nightly occurrences and the Border Patrol has not escaped the escalating violence. Attacks on patrolmen are commonplace and the officers have responded in kind. Four aliens have been shot by Border Patrol officers in the California sector this year.

In one of these incidents, a veteran officer killed the man and wounded another who, he said, attempted to escape although handcuffed together. Another alien, a teenager, was wounded by an officer recently.

These events are as unfortunate as they are unpredictable. The problem faced by the Border Patrol seems beyond solution. A typical weekend long of illegal immigrants may reach 3,600, and those caught are but a fraction of those who cross successfully.

Inundated by this torrent of humanity, the Border Patrol has been all but abandoned by its government. Its boss, Immigration Commissioner Jeon J. Castillo, is trapped in a policy which he is sworn to enforce, terming it "cruel, outdated and unworkable."

In this definition, he is probably correct. His own solution to illegal immigration is to institute a temporary work program.

What is needed is a rational, comprehensive policy, backed by an adequate, well-financed enforcement organization. No present hope for this is discernible in Washington, and Mr. Castillo only reflects the president's view that "no one has discovered an adequate answer to illegal Mexican immigration."

With policy as a dead end, there is little likelihood that things will get better. What hope there is rests with a federal Select Commission on Immigration and Refugee Policy headed by former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew. It is supposed to deliver a report by January 1981, thus dampening the immigration issue until after the presidential election.

It is, no doubt, convenient for politicians to sweep this issue under the rug until 1981. But on the border the situation is getting out of hand.

The Iran Tie

The effort to re-establish relations with Iran will focus on the "basic friendship" between the Iranian and American people, according to the State Department.

Thus, the hope of sending Walter L. Carter to his post as ambassador in Tehran in the near future springs from displays of pragmatism in both countries.

The United States can note that executions in Iran seem to be less frequent and can reiterate Washington's desire for a good relationship with the oil-rich nation.

The devout Iranian Muslims can recognize that friendship with this country is a good way to balance the continuing threat of atheistic Communist influence originating in the Soviet Union.

Differences and misunderstandings can be clarified more quickly and more surely with resumption of diplomatic relations.

And, as a State Department spokesman has emphasized, "the revolution's objectives of freedom, justice and democratic institutions for the Iranian people" are shared by the American people.

Bye-Bye Breeder Feeder

WASHINGTON (NEA)— Opponents of the women's liberation movement who hope to turn back the clock by defeating the Equal Rights Amendment are battling forces larger than they realize.

Like it or not, the role of women in society is changing inexorably all over the world to an extent far greater than is generally recognized. With or without legal reforms, shifting economic and social conditions are steadily transforming the lives of women everywhere.

The United States, it is worth noting, cannot even claim to be on the cutting edge of this worldwide social revolution. Other nations, most notably in Scandinavia and Eastern Europe, have done considerably more to promote equality between men and women in employment, politics and the family.

"In terms of attitudes and the way we live, the U. S. is quite advanced. In terms of public policy towards women we rank quite far down the scale."

So says Kathleen Newland, author of "The Sisterhood of Man," a new book published this week under the auspices of the non-profit Worldwatch Institute here in Washington. Her study was financed by the United Nations Fund for Population Activities.

Despite frequent failures of enforcement, laws mandating equality for women have become commonplace. In the 1970s alone, more than 25 countries have instituted legal reforms of this nature.

There are, in fact, only eight countries left in the world which legally exclude women from participation in the political process. Except for tiny Liechtenstein, all are orthodox Moslem states — Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, United Arab Emirates, Yemen Arab Republic, Kuwait, Oman and Qatar.

Throughout the world, education is serving as a major catalyst for change in the role of women, even though still again as many women as men remain illiterate. "Unlike employment outside the home or political participation, education for women is almost universally valued," notes Ms. Newland in her book.

With education comes the opportunity — and the impetus — to break away from the traditional "breeder-feeder" role. Almost without exception, studies have shown, the more education women receive, the more likely they are to seek and find employment outside the home.

In industrialized societies worldwide, more than a third of all adult women are in the labor force. In the United States, Scandinavia and Eastern Europe, the percentage is well over half.

Equally significant, there is a direct linkage between education and fertility rates. The more schooling women obtain, the fewer children they are likely to have — a correlation of immense significance in developing nations plagued by disastrous overpopulation.

Indeed, what is most intriguing about the worldwide social revolution is the extent to which improvement in the status of women is related to — and necessary for — progress on a variety of other fronts.

U.S. Conducts Its Own Seal Slaughter

WASHINGTON — The annual slaughter of seal pups off Newfoundland has drawn official condemnation from Congress as well as protests from environmentalists.

But what is not generally known — and what some members of Congress conveniently overlook — is the fact that the United States government runs a similarly bloody seal slaughter of its own each summer in the tiny Pribilof Islands of Alaska.

Last year, federal employees clubbed and bled to death more than 25,000 seals from 2 to 6 years old on the barren islands of St. Paul and St. George, far out in the Bering Sea north of the Aleutian chain. The pelts being upwards of $100 each. After processing in this country, most of the sealskins wind up in fur salons abroad. About 1 percent of the annual kill is used for food.

Unfortunately, the program is as uncommercial as it is inhumane. Last year, according to Internal Commerce Department documents, the operation ran almost $4 million in the red. The deficit was $3.3 million the year before, and $2.8 million in 1976. This means that every Pribilof Island seal pelt that graces the back of a wealthy European woman cost the American taxpayers approximately $150.

Ironically, the Alaskan seal hunt, which weakens the U.S. government's lofty moral position with environmental groups and other nations, was born of a sincere effort to save the

Harry Livengood is one of those guys who tell-it-like-it-is.

Harry announced his resignation as baseball coach at Winter Park High last weekend.

This comes on the heels of three straight Metro Conference championships. Livengood enjoyed moderate success at Trinity Prep seven or eight years ago.

This decision to hang up the clipboard had nothing to do with his health. "I feel I need to re-evaluate my thinking and coaching philosophy regarding student-athlete participation in high school," he says very clearly.

Specifically, Livengood says he has been frustrated the last two years because he had to make a decision on whether to place a competitive team on the field or deny the win-loss column and use players who did not always meet his personal standards.

"I believe varsity sports participation is an honor... a privilege which requires a great deal of self-sacrificing, discipline, intense desire and hard work," he says, "and that's both on and off the playing field."

Livengood said he used several players the last couple of years who simply did not meet his own personal standards, nor the proper standards conducive to the best interests of the school and baseball.

Personally, I feel Livengood is being a little hard on himself, because the scope of high school athletics is as changing as the wind.

On the other hand, I ponder his situation and have to come up with even more respect for the man than before.

What he said, in effect, was that he was having a difficult time justifying some of his decisions as a coach. On one hand, he was being hailed as the first coach to win the Metro three times in a row. And in his mind, he was wrestling with personal problems which he knew could, drastically affect the win-loss record.

George isn't going far from Winter Park. He is retaining his teaching position. George Royal, Livengood's assistant, has been named the new coach.

It will be interesting to learn what Livengood comes up with on this subject after some serious soul searching.

RONALD REAGAN

About Forced Busing

Back in 1975, his first year in Congress, Rep. Ron Mottl, D-Ohio, plunged into the mandatory school busing controversy by introducing a constitutional amendment to abolish the device.

He soon learned that it is easier to be an ardent freshman than an effective one. Rep. Don Edwards of California, the very liberal chairman of the House Subcommittee on Civil and Constitutional Rights, refused to hold hearings on Mottl's bill. The young Cleveland congressman tried to go around the chairman by getting a discharge petition to bring the bill to the floor of the House. Such petitions require a majority of membership signatures, 218. He got 17.

At the beginning of the next Congress, Mottl, now a one-term veteran, tried again. His bill had two key provisions. One said that "no student shall be compelled to attend public school other than the one nearest his residence." The other added that "Congress shall have the power to enforce by appropriate legislation the provisions of this article, and to ensure equal educational opportunities for all students wherever located."

Edwards again refused to hold hearings and even teamed up with House Judiciary Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., to persuade some members who had already signed to take their names off Mottl's petition. (The slate is wiped clean at the end of each Congress' term in such matters, so Mottl had had to start fresh.)

Mottl, wiser in the ways of Congress and capitalizing on the spreading unpopularity of forced busing, kept it at and collected 201 signatures by the end of 1978. He was 17 names short of his goal as the term ended. He was convinced that if he could get his bill to the floor, it would pass. At the time he said, "There is growing sentiment in Congress that compulsory busing just hasn't worked; it is a case of minor successes and no pluses."

This month Mottl is still at it, buttonholing his colleagues from both parties. Last week he was up to 198 names, still below last year's mark. By Memorial Day weekend last year he had only 178 signatures. And, as he points out, 23 of those who signed last year have not yet signed the new petition.

Small Plants Are OK

By JOHN A. WEBSTER
LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (UPI) — Electric utilities planning to expand their generating capacity with new coal-fired power plants might profit by avoiding the traditional "bigger is better" thinking.

A recent study by the energy systems and management analysis group of the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory concludes that building a network of relatively small plants instead of a single large plant could provide several advantages to a utility and, in turn, to consumers.

"We went into the study thinking we would find environmental benefits from smaller plants, but an economic penalty in higher costs to consumers," said Andrew Ford, leader of the research team.

"We found the anticipated environmental impacts were confirmed," Ford said. "But when we turned to the economic impacts, we found they are better with the small plants. We didn't expect that to come out of the analysis."

The study compared two hypothetical power projects to generate electricity from plants in southeastern Utah for consumption in Los Angeles. One model consisted of a single, 3,000-megawatt plant, patterned after the Kaiparowits power plant project that was abandoned three years ago, and the other was composed of one 750-megawatt and three 500-megawatt plants.

Ford said the study showed that the small plants model would result in fewer planning and financing problems for the utility, cheaper electricity in Los Angeles and less environmental degradation in Utah.

"We are suggesting that when utilities prepare environmental impact statements for proposed power plants, instead of looking at a few locations for a large plant, they consider that a collection of small plants may be better," he said.

A major advantage for utilities is that the time for construction of small plants is much shorter than for large plants. The average time to get a small plant approved and built is about six years, compared with 11-12 years for a large plant.

The shorter time would allow utilities to make more accurate forecasts of electrical demand and reduce the possibility of unexpected increases or decreases in demand, both of which have a detrimental effect on a utility's operation.

The ability to build plants faster also would help companies in states where they are not permitted to cover the costs of construction in their rate structures, Ford said.

Another advantage for a utility in the study is that it would have to pay for only 2,250 megawatts of generating capacity in the small plants model, compared with 3,000 megawatts for the large plant.

Despite the difference in total power, Ford said, the two models were judged to be equivalent in delivering electricity in kilowatt-hours to Los Angeles during a one-year period. The reason, he said, is a higher forced outage rate for larger plants — "they tend to go down more frequently and stay down longer for repairs" — and greater backup systems are required for the large plant.

Ford said the reaction to the study, prepared with support from the Environmental Protection Agency and the Department of Energy, has been mixed so far.

"One utility says, 'We are shying from big plants,' but another utility with other problems will state just the opposite," he said. "A lot of reaction we get is, 'My goodness, that's interesting. We hadn't thought about it.'"

The work forked out by DOE bureaucrats is so complicated that even the agency admits it will take about 84 hours to complete. Grant applications are routinely filled out by specialists in the arcane art of grantmanship, and the going rate for these experts is about $100 an hour. Multiplying this by the 125,000 applications DOE expects to get gives an impressive $135 million for the 10.5 million man-hours of work filling out the forms.

WORLD IN BRIEF

War In Uganda Ends As Troops Take Arua

ARUA, Uganda (UPI)—The war in Uganda is over. After six months of sometimes bitter fighting, Tanzanian forces captured the northwestern city of Arua without firing a shot Tuesday, liberating the last stronghold of forces loyal to deposed President Idi Amin. Despite weeks of rumors to the contrary, the deposed dictator was not found in the Arua-Amin's birthplace—when the Tanzanians marched triumphantly into town. Civilians said thousands of residents marched ahead of the Tanzanian column as it entered the town, waving flowers and branches and shouting "Tanzania, Tanzania, Tanzania."

Smuggling Unit Started

HONG KONG (UPI)—Police authorities in the British colony have formed a crack squad to break up Chinese syndicates believed responsible for smuggling tens of thousands of refugees out of Vietnam aboard dilapidated freighters. The new unit will be headed by Assistant Police Commissioner Jack Johnston, who made a reputation for busting drug traffickers, a police spokesman said today.

Israel Reduces Sentence

JERUSALEM (UPI)—Israel said today it has agreed to a U.S. request to reduce by half the five-year prison sentence of a Texas woman convicted in 1978 on charges related to spying for a Palestinian organization. Justice Minister Shmuel Tamir recommended to President Yitzhak Navon that the sentence of Terri Fleenor, 24, of San Antonio, be cut to 2½ years. Justice ministry sources said. Navon's approval was viewed as a formality only.

China Wants Obedience

PEKING (UPI)—A high-ranking Chinese Communist Party official has warned that "counterrevolutionaries" are trying to split the party's ruling Central Committee with demands for greater freedom of expression. Tuesday's edition of People's Daily, the party's official newspaper, printed excerpts of a speech by Li Desheng, a member of the central committee's political bureau, the highest decision-making group.

Rhodesian Cabinet Appointed

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI)—Bishop Abel Muzorewa, sworn in Tuesday as Rhodesia's first black prime minister, today appointed himself minister of defense in a virtual Cabinet that included the former white prime minister, Ian Smith. Smith, who engineered the internal majority rule agreement of March 1978 that led to Muzorewa's taking the helm in Rhodesia, was made minister without portfolio. He has said he will remain in Rhodesia's first majority rule government until Britain and the United States recognize it.

Palestinian gunmen fired rockets into Israel and the Israelis fired back, the Israeli military command said in Tel Aviv. In southern Lebanon, Israeli-backed rightist Christian militias and Palestinian guerrillas traded artillery attacks, with shells landing near Lebanese U.N. soldiers, leftist and Palestinian sources said. Israeli gunboats patrolled off Lebanon in the sixth day of gunfire, which has driven thousands of Lebanese from their homes.

Rising Price Of Gasoline Costs County Taxpayers

Seminole County taxpayers have been hit by inflation for $66,000 in extra fuel costs for county vehicles. County commissioners prepared months ago for the gasoline shortage by getting U.S. Department of Energy approval for a sufficient supply. But they didn't count on the fuel inflation rate jumping to 21 percent. Commissioners Tuesday dipped into the county's contingency fund for $121,000 to pay the higher costs and for front end money for gasoline, oil and lubricants for the remaining five months of the fiscal year. "The $80,361 originally budgeted for gas, oil and lubricants has been more than spent," said Jeff Etchberger, director of the Office of Management, Analysis and Evaluation (OMAE). Etchberger said the $66,000 is needed because an inflation factor of only 15 percent had been anticipated in computing the budget. In addition, he said, $55,000 is for "floating or front end money." He explained that the county's public works department for the fuels used by offices under the county commission and the sheriff's department budgets.

Thirty days or more later, it is reimbursed to the public works budget. County operations, Etchberger said, will use $10,000 worth of oil and lubricants and $100,000 worth of fuel during the remaining months of the fiscal year. Part of this money will be reimbursed. He said 134,500 gallons of unleaded and regular gasoline will be used and 69,955 gallons of diesel fuel. Other budgeted funds transferred among accounts by commissioners include—$200 for an accounting procedure correction for the county library. —$2,200 for the installation of sun screens for the Casselberry branch library. —$25,000 from the contingency fund to pay for the housing of prisoners in the Lake and Orange county jails. Costs for the housing of prisoners outside of the Seminole County jail is averaging $4,000 monthly. —$5,000 for psychiatric examinations required by state law. Although $5,000 was originally budgeted, $4,600 was spent during the first six months of the budget year. —$26.25 to pay Longwood City Clerk Linda Martin for secretarial work for the voting machine advisory committee.

Show Off With Elegant Lobster Dish

Lobster fans will find a rock lobster Madeira served in individual casseroles a treat they will want to repeat.

Singles will enjoy showing off their culinary skills by presenting this dish to guests. But though elegant to serve, it is relatively simple to prepare.

ROCK LOBSTER MADEIRA

18 ounces frozen South African rock lobster tails
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 bunch scallions, trimmed and chopped
1 clove garlic, mashed ½ pound mushrooms,

sliced
1 (8½ ounce) can water chestnuts, drained and sliced
½ cup Madeira wine (or apple-prune juice)
½ cup chicken broth
¼ cup flour
1 cup (½ pint) heavy cream
Salt and pepper
Dry bread crumbs

Parboil frozen rock lobster by dropping tails into boiling salted water. When water returns to boil, drain immediately and dredge with cold water.

With scissors, remove underside membrane of lobster and pull out meat in one piece. Dice.

Melt butter or margarine in saucepan. Sauté scallions, garlic and mushrooms until wilted, about 5 minutes. Stir in water chestnuts, wine and chicken broth. Simmer 5 minutes.

In bowl, mix flour and cream until smooth. Stir into saucepan mixture. Stir in rock lobster meat. Stir over low heat until sauce bubbles and thickens. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

Spoon mixture into scallop shells or other individual casseroles. Edge with crumbs. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Rock Lobster Madeira makes even an amateur chef a wizard

Bring detente to your dinner table with these new recipes from Szechuan Province in China. Szechuan Chicken is an easy-to-prepare but impossible-to-forget dish. Pork Fried Rice will add a lift to any meal.

Use Chinese Diplomacy in Your Kitchen

Arriving in the United States a few years before the diplomats, food from the Szechuan Province of China has crept into the hearts of Americans who love food with flavor. Spicy, hot, steaming... like the climate of Szechuan... once tasted, never forgotten. The flavor comes from the hot chili peppers and peppercorns which are used in the sauces.

Our Szechuan Chicken is amazingly easy to prepare. Takes just minutes to cook, and is budget-wise. The secret of the recipe is the sauce: aromatic and spicy. Tabasco pepper sauce, blended with ginger, sherry, sugar, cornstarch, ginger and Tabasco sauce. Add to skillet with carrots. Stir-fry 3 minutes. Add snow peas; stir-fry 2 minutes longer. Serve hot, with cooked rice. If desired, serve with additional Tabasco sauce. Yield: 6 servings.

PORK FRIED RICE

In a wok or large skillet, over high heat, heat oil. Add garlic; sauté 1 minute. Add chicken; stir-fry until pieces turn white. Combine soy sauce, sherry, sugar, cornstarch, ginger and Tabasco sauce. Add to skillet with carrots. Stir-fry 3 minutes. Add snow peas; stir-fry 2 minutes longer. Serve hot, with cooked rice. If desired, serve with additional Tabasco sauce. Yield: 6 servings.

SECHUAN CHICKEN

1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon cornstarch
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
2 cups julienned carrots
1 package (6 ounces) frozen snow peas, thawed and drained
Cooked rice

In a wok or large skillet, over high heat, heat oil. Add garlic; sauté 1 minute. Add chicken; stir-fry until pieces turn white. Combine soy sauce, sherry, sugar, cornstarch, ginger and Tabasco sauce. Add to skillet with carrots. Stir-fry 3 minutes. Add snow peas; stir-fry 2 minutes longer. Serve hot, with cooked rice. If desired, serve with additional Tabasco sauce. Yield: 6 servings.

SECHUAN CHICKEN

1 cup vegetable oil
4 cloves garlic, minced
2 chicken breasts, boned and skinned
Cut into thin strips
¼ cup soy sauce
2 tablespoons dry sherry
2 tablespoons Tabasco pepper sauce

2 eggs, beaten
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley

In a wok or large skillet, over high heat, heat oil. Add garlic; sauté 1 minute. Add rice, stir until grains separate and rice is hot. Push rice to side of wok; add ham, stir-fry 1 minute, stir into rice. Combine soy sauce, sherry, ginger and Tabasco sauce; pour over rice, stirring to mix well. Push mixture to side of wok; add beaten eggs. Stir until eggs are set, then break into small pieces and stir into rice mixture. Serve hot, sprinkled with parsley.

Olives Enhance Hearty Burgers

It's always nice to find a variation for the ever popular hamburger. With summer barbecues just around the corner, here's a recipe you'll be sure to want to try.

Ripe olives are one of California's most versatile fruits. They can be halved, sliced, chopped, wedged or used whole. Here chopped olives are mixed, along with green onions, as a meat extender in the flavorful patties. In addition, ripe olive wedges add bold and chewy accents to the rich cheese and cream mixture.

Serve between hamburger rolls or crisp French rolls with all the usual garnishes. Add potato salad or any salad of your choice to make a hearty meal for everyone.

MEATY RIPE OLIVE BURGERS

1 cup grated cheddar cheese
3 tablespoons light cream
2 ½ cups canned, pitted California ripe olives
¼ cup chopped green onion

1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1½ pounds ground lean beef
1 tablespoon oil
4 hamburger rolls

Mix cheese with cream. Cut ½ cup of ripe olives into wedges. Add to cheese mixture and set aside. Chop remaining ¼ cup olives. Mix chopped olives, onion, salt, pepper, mustard, and ground beef. Shape into eight thin patties, about ½ inch larger in diameter than rolls. Heat oil. Brown meat patties on both sides. Spill rolls and spread with butter. If desired, and toast lightly. Top patties with cheese-olive mixture. Place patties under broiler long enough to melt cheese. Place one patty on bottom half of roll. Top with another patty and cover with roll top. Garnish with a whole ripe olive. Makes 4 hearty burgers.

'Rush' Into Processed Potatoes

Fast, pleasantly light and delicious — some key words when you're short on time for both preparation and eating. While we relish a meal that's planned and executed with patience and precision, the "rush" occasions seem to demand attention more frequently.

The microwave oven is indeed a speed factor in quick meal preparation, especially when teamed with convenience foods. Processed potatoes take superbly to this type of cookery. Their mellow flavor and distinctive texture is as evident in the convenience form as in fresh spuds. That's because processed potatoes, bearing the "Grown in Idaho" label, are the products of the same superior potatoes grown under ideal conditions found in the Gem State.

Two potato soup ideas for the microwave oven are offered. Seven-Minute Clam Chowder is a quickie main dish that lives up to its name. Frozen potato cubes are the model vegetable cooked with canned clams, chopped onion and seasoning in a light, creamy soup base that cooks in seven short minutes. It's ready for the table after a short standing period typical of most microwave recipes.

Mountain Home Chowder is a speedy version of a favorite recipe made with potatoes, lima beans and corn. Frozen diced potatoes thaw during cooking and help to thicken the broth. This specialty takes its serve from lively seasoning.

SEVEN-MINUTE CLAM CHOWDER

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 slice bacon finely chopped
1 tablespoon flour
one-third cup chopped onion
2 cans (7 1/4 ounces) minced clams, not drained
1 cup frozen cubed potatoes
1 cup light cream
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon dried parsley

In 1 1/2-quart glass baking dish combine butter, bacon, flour and onion. Cook in microwave oven 2 minutes. Stir in remaining ingredients. Cover dish with plastic wrap or waxed paper. Cook in microwave oven for 3 minutes; stir. Cover. Cook 2 minutes longer or until heated through. Let stand 3 minutes before serving. Yield: 4 servings.

MOUNTAIN HOME CHOWDER

1/4 cup finely chopped onion
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 cup chicken broth
1/4 teaspoon dried sage
1/4 teaspoon celery salt

Stir in milk, chicken broth, safe celery salt, pepper and frozen potatoes. Cover with plastic wrap or waxed paper; cook 3 minutes; stir, cook 2 minutes longer.

Add succotash; cook 1 minute. Sprinkle with parsley before serving. Yield: 4 servings.

1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 cups frozen diced potatoes
1 can (16 ounces) succotash, drained
1 teaspoon chopped parsley

Combine onion, butter, and flour in 1 1/2 quart casserole suitable for microwave oven. Cook in microwave oven 2 minutes; stir until smooth.

Frozen cubed potatoes cook from the frozen state with canned clams, chopped onion and seasoning to make a quick, tasty Seven-Minute Clam Chowder.

Potpourri ...

Everybody likes cookies. Add flour in real mayonnaise. Add flour mixture in 4 additions alternately with water, beginning and ending with flour. Four into prepared pans. Bake in 350-degree F oven 30 to 35 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pans 10 minutes. Remove; cool on wire racks.

Frost as desired. Garnish with sliced almonds. Makes 2 (9-inch) layers.

SALAD NICIOISE

Place 3 to 4 tablespoons of meat mixture on each tortilla. Fold 2 sides and roll up. Eat like a sandwich, accompanied by an assortment of Mexican-style sauces, which are available in supermarkets.

Satellite Still Under Consideration

Trustees Vote To Keep SMH In Sanford

By GEOFFREY POUNDS
 Herald Staff Writer

Seminole Memorial Hospital will stay in Sanford at its present site on First Street.

That was the pronouncement made by the SMH made by the board of trustees at a special meeting today. By a unanimous vote, the board approved a motion by Allan Keen stating that the trustees intend to pursue renovation of the hospital to assure quality medical services at the present location.

A separate motion stating that the trustees intend to "explore the feasibility of a satellite unit in a growth area of the county" also was passed by unanimous vote.

The action by the board clarifies a position taken at a May 22 meeting. However, board chairman Thomas Blayney said there appeared to be some confusion as to exactly what transpired at that meeting and the trustees should "uncloud the issues" and "make definite" their intentions.

At the May 22 meeting, the trustees voted to pursue renovation of the existing facility and explore the satellite unit in Lake Mary. However, the action did not entirely exclude the possibility of relocating the hospital since the board also approved the spending of $25,000 for a market study that would have contained information pertaining to relocation.

The action taken today, Keen said, makes it clear that the board is no longer considering relocation as an option. To further establish its position, Blayney moved that the board delay going ahead with the additional consultant study.

Blayney's motion was approved unanimously.

"I think the issue has become somewhat clouded since we begin discussing alternatives. I think we would have a problem signing a contract for $25,000 in consulting fees, when we don't know what the feeling of the county commission is. I think we need to meet with them as soon as possible to present them with our information and get their input," Blayney said.

Blayney said the meeting with the county commissioners will focus on discussions of leasing the hospital from the county. This would be pursued if the commission approved a request to permit the hospital to change from a county-owned facility to a private not-for-profit facility.

A special bill in the legislature that would allow the hospital to reorganize has been approved in both the senate and the house and awaits Governor Bob Graham's signature. If the governor approves, the county commission could grant the hospital's request and the hospital would become a private non-profit facility.

Reorganization has been pursued for several months in order to accommodate financing arrangements that would permit renovation. As a county-owned hospital, funds cannot be raised through tax-exempt revenue bonds. But the Florida Health Facilities Authority Law permits the sale of tax exempt bonds by non-profit, private health care facilities. The sale of such bonds, hospital studies state, could finance the renovation costs, which could surpass $12 million.

Blayney said it would be premature to proceed with any additional plans or studies until the county commissioners provide some indication of how they will act on the reorganization matter.

Carter Policy Void

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge ruled today that economic sanctions used by the administration to enforce its wage-price guidelines are unconstitutional.

U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker, in a 24-page opinion, granted a motion by the AFL-CIO and 10 unions that the crucial part of President Carter's anti-inflation program be voided.

"President Carter has exceeded the authority conferred on him by the Constitution by seeking to control incomes and thereby prices through the procurement power," Parker said.

"The program establishes a mandatory system of wage and price controls, unsupported by law."

Under the Carter guidelines program, companies that violate the 7 percent wage limit per year face loss of contracts with the government amounting to $5 million or more.

The AFL-CIO, and other unions, have maintained that the sanctions turned Carter's "voluntary" program into a mandatory set of controls, and Parker agreed.

"In summary, the defendant's (government) assertion that the guidelines are somehow voluntary has little merit and upon close analysis must fail," Parker said.

During a one-day court hearing May 15 on the challenge, Assistant Attorney General Barbara Babcock said it would be "shameful for the government to purchase from companies that are promoting inflation."

She compared the guidelines enforcement program with a similar policy toward companies that violate equal employment opportunity laws.

Roger Mathers (top) and John Fitzgerald set the stage for the bloody mock disaster.

Local Mock Disaster: Thespians Training Too

By SHARON CARRASCO
 Herald Staff Writer

"As an actor, it's really good experience," says John Fitzgerald, a senior at Seminole High School, as he affixes something called a sucking chest wound to simulate a shotgun injury.

Thursday, Fitzgerald and other students of the Thespian drama club at Seminole High School volunteered their talents today to play the maimed and injured victims in a mock disaster.

The mock disaster is held twice a year as a portion of the final exams of the Health I and Advanced Health classes at the high school, says Jim Terwilliger, athletic trainer and health teacher.

Drama students get a chance to make themselves up as accident victims, while health students must treat their injuries under the simulated situation.

"We try to make the wounds as large and grotesque as possible," says Terwilliger as he affixes a protruding eye to one student.

"This gives the student a feeling of realism, things he would probably never be confronted with. But if he can handle himself under these conditions, then he won't panic under milder situations," Terwilliger says.

Outside in the parking lot, one health student treats an accident victim for a broken tibia and an eye injury.

Lying under a van, another student simulates an amputee from an accident. He screams hysterically as the health student patiently wraps up his arm, causing the spurting blood from the pumping mechanism to cease.

Senior Alma Smith, who says she wants to be a nurse, talks of her treating an accident victim.

"It's good experience. I have never done a gunshot wound in the neck and chest before."

As she picks up the bandages soaked with fake blood, she comments,

"I could have done a broken leg better."

Sanford Association Opposes SMH Move

The Sanford Business Association passed a resolution this morning opposing the move of the Seminole Memorial Hospital and the Seminole County Library First Street Branch.

The business association has joined ranks with both the City of Sanford and the Sanford Chamber of Commerce in its opposition to the hospital's proposed move.

"I feel the need is too great for the hospital to be moved out," says Nora Gordon, president of the Sanford Business Association.

"The hospital move would not hurt business but it would hurt the community," Mrs. Gordon said. "If the hospital were not close, a lot of people would not get the care they need because they couldn't get there."

Jack Horner, executive manager of the chamber of commerce, attended the meeting this morning.

"The association's resolution just shows the whole community is expressing its feelings against the move," Horner said.

Bill MacLaughlin, vice president of the business association, said he made the motion to keep the hospital and the library in the downtown to maintain their easy accessibility to the community.

"If the library were moved, anybody who used it would have to drive out there in their cars," MacLaughlin explained. "They couldn't walk. This would eliminate some kids and other people aside from costing more money."

"Personally, the library wouldn't have to be downtown. I don't use it but it needs to be in a place that is more accessible to more people. Maybe we could keep the thing downtown."

The Seminole Memorial Hospital will serve more people and is easier to get to in its present location than if it is moved, MacLaughlin said.

It's easier to renovate what we have rather than start from scratch." — SHARON CARRASCO

Barton Resigns Seat

Longwood City Commissioner Stephen Barton said he would announce at today's special meeting he will resign from his District 5 seat because he is no longer living in the city.

The meeting was called by Mayor June Lammann so the commission could act on Circuit Judge Richard Muldrew's order that he vote on whether Commissioner Larry Goldberg should vacate his seat. If they defy the order, they could go to jail for 10 days.

Barton's resignation will leave a seat open in District 5, where Goldberg now lives having moved from the district which he was elected to represent.

The commission could, conceivably, appoint Goldberg to fill Barton's seat.

Barton said since his term still has 1 1/2 years left and there is a possibility Goldberg's seat will also be vacated, he hopes the commission will call a special election rather than make an appointment.

Barton moved from the house he was renting in Sleepy Hollow subdivision to his newly completed home at 572 Whisperwood Drive, Sabal Point.

Attorney Davis Quits

Joe Davis, the dean of city attorneys in Seminole County, has resigned the position he has held with the city of Altamonte Springs for the past 21 years effective July 31.

"The position of city attorney in Altamonte Springs has become almost a full time job," Davis, senior partner with the Sanford law firm of Stenstrom, Davis, McIntosh and Julian, said today. "And I no longer have any time to devote to my private law practice. My private clients need professional counsel and advice too."

Davis said he has no problem with any members of the city government. "But I've been thinking about leaving Altamonte for some time. I have stayed there because I felt a personal obligation to see to completion certain projects that had been started." He cited as examples the regional sewer plant that serves most of South-west Seminole County and parts of Orange County, construction of the city hall and civic center and the purchase of the second civic center in the Spring Oaks Area.

The former state legislator said he has not been asked for a recommendation on a replacement and will not be recommending a member of his firm as a successor. At the same time Davis said he will be continuing as city attorney of Oviedo "as long as they want me."

Why Don't 'Independent' Pumps Run Short Of Gas?

By DONNA ESTES
 Herald Staff Writer

How can pumps at convenience food stores and at some motels continue to sell gasoline to motorists when major oil company-affiliated stations have run out?

"The answer is simple, according to Roger Brault, area supervisor for the Cumberland Farms stores in Seminole County. "We buy gasoline from a middle man, who in turn buys it from the major companies. Sometimes we buy the gas in Taft and sometimes in Tampa, but not from any big company," Brault said.

Meanwhile, Mel Dekle, who owns and operates a Gulf Oil Co. station on French Avenue in Sanford and has been in business in the area for the past 30 years, says the oil companies are "selling some of my gasoline to independents."

"Somewhere along the way the oil companies are shipping gasoline out from under us. It's obvious the independents are not making their own gasoline. The major companies are putting gasoline on the open market," Dekle said.

Augie Morales, manager of the Cumberland Farms store in Casselberry noted,

"We get it from wherever we can. We can't really call the independent companies where we get the gasoline fly-by-night operators. They are just not the big companies. Sure we have to pay a little more."

Normal open hours for the Cumberland Farms stores in Seminole County are 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. and self-service gasoline is available during all those hours. "We are short on supplies of no-lead gasoline, but haven't had any problem with getting any of the other types of gasoline," Morales said.

The local stores, Morales said, are told which company to use as supplier by the Cumberland Farms Fire Line, Canton, Mass.

Meanwhile, Rich Hall, Southland Corp. gasoline manager for the north half of Florida, including Seminole County, for Seven-Eleven Food stores, said gasoline for the outlets he serves receive gasoline from "miscellaneous independent sources."

"There is no one supplier," he said. "The corporate office in Dallas sets it up. It is coordinated through the corporate offices." Hall said.

Many Seven-Eleven Stores See GASOLINE, Page 2A

Schlesinger will participate, were designed to give Carter information "from the perspective of both industry and the consumers ... to learn what problems they see down the road in terms of supplies on a regional or national basis," he said.
